GALBA, of an Ancient and Noble Roman Family, but no way of Kin to the Cæſars, Succeeded Nero, in the Empire, according to that Prophetical Saying of Auguſtus, who when Galba, a young Lad, with others of his own Age, came to ſalute him, nipping him gently by the Cheek, And, Thou Child, ſaid he, ſhalt taſte of the Empire. Tiberius alſo perceiving it would be his Fortune to Reign, tho' in his old Age, Let him live, ſaid he, ſince it nothing concerns us. His Grandfather alſo, from a particular Omen portending his coming to the Empire; Yes, ſaid Galba, ſmiling, when a Mule brings forth. However, he attempted nothing all Claudius's Reign, nor did he ſtir in all Nero's time, till hearing that a Mule had brought forth indeed, and that Nero had given private Orders to have him put to Death, he began to think of a Revolt; and upon the News of Nero's Death, aſſum'd the Appellation of Cæſar. But he obtain'd the Empire with more Favour and Authority than he manag'd it. For he ſo entirely gave himſelf up to be govern'd by three Favorites, T. Vinius, Cornelius Laco, and his Enfranchiz'd Bondman Icelus, Perſons that ruin'd the Publick Weal with various ſorts of Vices, that he was never himſelf: Sometimes more ſevere and cruel ſometimes more remiſs and negligent than became an elected Prince. and a Man of his Age. Thereupon the German Army Storming that they were defrauded of the promis'd Rewards of their Service againſt the Gauls and Vindex, firſt breaking the Bonds of their Allegiance, wrote to the Prætorian Guards, that they lik'd not an Emperor made in Spain, and therefore that they ſhould chooſe another, who ſhould be grateful to all the Armies. Galba, believing he was deſpiſed by reaſon of his old Age, and want of Children, adopted Piſo, a Noble-man of great hopes, carried him to the Camp, and declar'd his Choice to the Soldiers. But Otho's Faction growing ſtronger and ſtronger, and getting Poſſeſſion of the Camp, as he came forth to oppoſe the Tumult, he was Murder'd by certain Horſemen that were ſent to diſpatch him; not one of thoſe that attended him offering to defend him, unleſs it were Sempronius Druſus, a Centurion; who withſtood the Fury of the Aſſailants as long as he was able. This happen'd in the 73d. Year of his Age, and Seventh Month of his Reign. He was of a Moderate Stature, his Head bald, blue Eyes, Hawk-Nos'd, but his Hands and Feet ſo diſtorted with the Gout, that he could neither endure a Shooe, nor turn over the Leaves of a Book. Hiſtory furniſhes us with ſeveral Inſtances of Valiant Men, who all had Aquiline Noſes; as Cyrus, Artaxerxes, Demetrius Grypus, Scanderbeg, the great Sforza, Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks, Uſum Caſſan, Iſmael Sophi of Perſia, Selim and Solyman, &c. Suetonius, Plutarch.

GALE, or Gala, a City of the Iſland of Ceylan, in the Indian Sea. In the Year 1606. a great part of the Iſland of Ceylan was under the Portugueſes, and the City of Gale, was then in a flouriſhing Condition; as well for that all the Veſſels that came from Japan, China, the Iſles of Sonde, Malaca and Bengala, were forc'd to double the Point of Gala; as for that it was one of the Principal Factories of the Portugueſes. The Hollanders therefore deſigning the Conqueſt of Ceylan, began with the City of Gala, after they had concluded a League with the King of Candy to aſſiſt 'em by Land upon certain Conditions, and took it notwithſtanding the ſtout Reſiſtance of the Portugueſes; who beheld the greateſt part of their Houſes and Magazines beat down, and blown up, before they parley'd. The Hollanders ſoon after repair'd the Fortifications, but Rebuilt few of the Houſes. The Harbour, tho' it lye convenient, is very dangerous by reaſon of the Rocks that lie under Water; ſo that there is no Entrance for great Ships, without the Aſſiſtance of the Town-Pilots. Tavernier.

GALEAZZO Maria Sforza, Duke of Milan, Succeeded his Father Francis Sforza I. in 1466. but his Debaucheries render'd him ſo odious to the People, that he was Murder'd in the Church upon St. Steven's Day, in 1476.

GALEN, (Chriſtopher Bernard de) the Son of Theodore de Galen, Hereditary Marſhal of Curland and one of the moſt conſiderable Families of Weſtphalia, was elected Biſhop of Munſter in 1650 not without great Oppoſition of his Competitors, and in 1657. he Beſieg'd the City of Munſter and took it by Compoſition in 1657. In 1660 he Beſieg'd it a ſecond time. In 1665. he joyn'd with the King of England againſt the Hollanders, to who he gave no ſmall Trouble. In 1672. he broke again with the States of Holland, upon the account of their detaining the Signiory of Borkloe from him, one of the Dependances of his Biſhoprick, and joyning with the French, took ſeveral Places from the Dutch, and the Elector of Brandenburgh who took their parts; but the Imperial Forces conſtrain'd him to make a Peace in 1674. The next Year he allied himſelf with the King of Denmark againſt the King of Sweden, from whom he took ſeveral Places in the Dutchy of Bremen and Principality of Ferden. He died in 1678 in the 74th. Year of his Age, Memoirs du Temps.

GALEN, or GALIEN, (Matthew) Chancellour of the Univerſity of Doway in Flanders. His Works are much eſteem'd, and are as follow: Commentarium de Chriſtiano & Catholico Sacerdote De Originibus Monaſticis. De Miſſa Sacrificio. De Sæculi noſtri Choreis, &c. This Galen died in 1573. And Stapleton of the ſame College, made his Funeral Oration. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Mir. Script. Sæc. 16.

GALENUS, (Claudius) of Pergamus a City of Aſia, the Son of a Learned Architect, was a moſt excellent Phyſician; who flouriſh'd in the Reign of Claudian. Having learn'd what he could at Alexandria, he went to Rome, where he wrote much: From whence returning into Aſia, he was recall'd by the Emperors Verus and Antoninus; after whoſe Death, he return'd into his own Country; where, by his Temperance, he prolong'd the Life of a weak and crazy Body to a fair Age. He was the beginner of that Method of Phyſick moſt in uſe, till lately; the Author of 200 Volumes that were burnt in the Temple of Peace; as appears by his Commentaries upon his own Works, number'd by Cardan, among the 12 moſt Subtil Wits of the World. It's ſaid, he fled from Rome in Plague-Time, without daring to truſt to the Remedies of his Art; and ſome add, That he declar'd himſelf Enemy againſt the Jews and Chriſtians, and accus'd 'em of believing very difficult things, without any Demonſtration. But he himſelf was ſometime after forc'd to leave Rome, upon an Accuſation that he cur'd by Magick; becauſe he had ſometimes the good Fortune to ſtop dangerous Defluxions by Bleeding, and Curing the Falling-Sickneſs by hanging a Peony-Root about the Sick Perſon's Neck. He died in the 70th. of his Age, and as ſome ſay in the 140th. of Chriſt. Cardan. Euſeb. Volaterran.

GALEOTA, known by the Name of Fabio Capece Galeota, deſcended from one of the moſt Noble Families of Naples; a famous Lawyer, and Regent of the Grand Council of Italy; in Spain under Philip IV. got he great Credit by his Pieces entituled, Controverſiæ Juris, in II. Volumes, and his Reſponſa Fiſcalia; and died in 1645. Lorenzo Craſſo.

GALEOTTUS, (Martius) Secretary to Matthæus Corvinus, Tutor to his Son, and Keeper of the Library of Buda; wrote De Jocoſe Dictis & Factis Matthæi Corvini. But being ſent for into France by Lewis XI. and meeting the King accidentally Riding out of Lyons, as he was entring in, out of his haſt to alight, being a heavy fat Man, he fell from his Horſe upon his Head, and died of the Bruiſe in 1478. Leander Alberti. Pierius Valerianus.

GALERIUS, (Armentarius) Born in Dacia, near the City Sardica. Diocleſian made him his Partner in the Empire. He Divorc'd his firſt Wife, and Married Valeria the Emperor's Daughter. Upon his ill Succeſs in a Battel againſt Narſes, King of the Perſians; he was but coldly welcom'd to Antiochia by Diocleſian. Which Diſgrace ſo provok'd him, that gathering new Forces, he vanquiſh'd his Enemy, took him, his Queen and Siſters, all Priſoners, and drove him out of Meſopotamia, and five Provinces more, beyond Tigris. In 304 after Diocleſian and Maximianus had abdicated, Galerius and Conſtantius Chlorus divided the Empire between 'em. And now being more abſolute he exerciſed his inveterate Hatred againſt the Chriſtians with greater Cruelty. In the mean time, he created Cæſars, Flavius Valerius Severus; and Maximinus, his Siſters Son, and purſu'd his Deſigns upon Conſtantius's ſhare; but Flavius being Kill'd by Maxentius, he ſet up Licinius in his room. At length, deſpairing of Succeſs againſt Maxentius and Conſtantine, who ſucceeded Chlorus, He died of an Ulcer, that began to ſwarm with Worms, having reign'd Seven Years after the Abdication of his Father-in-Law. Eutropius, Oroſius.

GALESINI, known by the Name of Petrus Galeſinus, Apoſtolick Protonotary, Born at Milan; Flouriſh'd under the Pontificates of Gregory XIII. and Sixtus V. He ſet forth the Sacred Hiſtory of Sulpitius Severus, that of Aymon or Haymo of Halberſtadt, and ſeveral other Works of the Ancients; and wrote a Hiſtory of the Popes, under the Title of Theatrum Pontificale. Le Mire. Riccioli.

GALIBIS, a People of South America, in Guiana; which the Moderns call Equinoctial France. They inhabit toward the North Sea, along by the River of Courbo, between the Rivers of Surinam and Marauvini, which lie to the Weſt; and that of Gaienne, and an Iſland of the ſame Name, that lie to the Eaſt. Other Maps place them in New Andaluſia, to the North of the River Orinoque.

GALICIA, in Latin Gallæcia, the moſt Weſtern Province of all Spain, which formerly bore the Title of a Kingdom. It is bounded to the Weſt and North by the Atlantick Ocean; to the Eaſt by the Kingdom of Leon and Aſturies, and by Portugal to the South. This Province was formerly of a much larger Extent than at preſent; yet we are aſſur'd, That it extends it ſelf about 100 Leagues upon the Ocean, 40 in Breadth and 50 in Length. Galicia is a Mountainous Country, that bears Wood and Wine, but little Corn: where it joyns to the Sea, the nearneſs to the Ocean, and the Springs of hot Water render the Air unwholſom; yet the Sea affords Store of Fiſh, and the Land abounds in Cattel. At preſent the whole Province contains no more than Six Epiſcopal Cities, of which the Chief is Compoſtella,; the reſt are, Oronſe, Baiona, Betanzos, Padron, Lugo, Mondonedo and Tuy. The Groin or Cornuna is one of its moſt famous Ports, beſides which there are 40 others. The Suevians paſſing into Spain in the Vth. Age, ſettled a Kingdom in Galicia, in 409. under their King Hermeric, which laſted till about 583. that Eburic was dethron'd by Andecus, who enjoy'd his Uſurpation but a ſhort while, being expell'd by Leuvigildus, King of the Viſigoth's who joyn'd Galicia to his own Kingdom in 585. In 713. the Moors ſubdu'd Galicia, with the reſt of the Kingdom of the Viſigoths. In 759. Froila King of Leon and Aſturies kill'd Juſaph King of the Saracens, and his Succeſſors making themſelves Maſters of almoſt all Galicia united it to their own Dominions. Alfonſus de Nova, Molino de Malaga, &c.

GALICIA Nova, a Province of New Mexico, or New Spain, in the Northern America. It lies along by the Sea-ſide, and is properly the Country of the Guadalajara; ſo call'd, from the Name of the Capital City, and a Country, which as ſome ſay, contains the Provinces of Xaliſco, Delos Zacatecas. Chiatmelan, Cinaloa, &c. This Country is not much unlike Spain, as to the nature of the Soil. The Inhabitants were Canibals exceeding Wild and Fierce when the Spaniards ſettled there, and not eaſily brought off from eating mans fleſh. Bohun.

GALILEE, a Celebrated Region of the Holy Land, containing the Northern part of all Judæa, divided into the Upper, or Galilee of the Gentiles, and the Lower; both bounded to the Weſt, by the Mediterranean Sea; to the Eaſt, by the Lake of Tiberias; to the North, by Phœnicia; and to the South, by Samaria. The Upper Galilee comprehended the Tribes of Aſhur and Naphtali; and the Lower thoſe of Zebulon and Iſſachar. The Principal Cities of Galilee, were Apollonia, or the Tower of Strato, Capernaum, Tiberias, Nazareth where Chriſt was Conceived; and Cana, where he wrought his firſt Miracle.

GALILEO, Galilei, Born at Florence, was a famous Mathematician, wrote ſeveral Mathematical Pieces, and made moſt Ingenious Obſervations upon the Spots in the Sun, upon Saturn's ſeeming ſometimes Round and ſometime Oval, upon the Changes of Venus like thoſe in the Moon; Diſcover'd the Satellites of Jupiter, i. e. Four Stars which he diſcover'd about Jupiter, and call'd the Stars of Medicis, &c. He was Impriſon'd 5 Years in the Inquiſition, for maintaining the Motion of the Earth about the Sun, Condemn'd by Urban VIII. as contrary to Scripture, and forc'd to Recant at 60 Years of Age, before he could have his Liberty. Yet his Reaſons met with ſuch Reception among the Learned of this Age, that moſt of 'em hold his Syſtem, and maintain, That it contains nothing contrary to Scripture; which, they ſay, ought to be the Rule of our Faith, and not the Standard of Natural Truths. That the Holy Ghoſt having inſpir'd Men to write thoſe Sacred Books, made 'em ſpeak according to the common Opinion; and that he deſign'd to render us Faithful and Good Men, not Philoſophers, Aſtronomers, and Naturaliſts. He died in 1642. in the 78th. Year of his Age. His Works are Nuncius Sydereus. L'Uſo del Compaſſo Geometrico è militare. Demoſtrazione delle Macchie Solare de allogbi de Siſtemii de Tolomeo & di Copernica. Ghilini. Theat. de Huom. Letter. Jan. Nicius Erythraus. Pin. 1. Imag. Illuſt. &c.

GALLANI, Gallans, a People of Africa, who from ſmall Beginnings conquer'd at length a great Part of Habyſſinia: At firſt no more than Slaves to a great Lord in the Kingdom of Bali; by whom being abus'd beyond ſufferance, they Revolted, and deſpairing of Pardon, fled to the Mountains and exerciſed petty Robberies, till their Numbers being encreas'd by ſuch as reſorted to 'em in hopes of Spoil and Plunder, they multiply'd into Armies, and of Robbers becoming Invaders, ſubdu'd all Bali, and moulded themſelves into a kind of Common-wealth, making ſuch Laws as they thought moſt conducible to augment their Nation, and preſerve that Fierceneſs which had been ſo proſperous and favourable to their Enterprizes. Their Young Men are not permitted to cut their Hair till they have ſlain an Enemy in the Field, or Kill'd a Wild Beaſt. At their Feaſts, the Beſt bit is put in the Middle; and he that takes it, muſt be the firſt to venture into Danger. To ſhew they have Kill'd an Enemy, they muſt after the Battel bring the Heads; or if the Sex be doubted, they muſt go back and fetch the Member of Generation. Their Prey is equally, divided, to encourage every one to fight for himſelf. Their Weapons offenſive are Spears and Javelins at a diſtance, Clubs and Stakes burnt at one end in cloſe fight. Their defenſive Arms, little round Targets made of the Hides of Wild Bulls or Bufalo's. They neither Sow nor follow Grazing, but drive their Herds before 'em both in Peace and War through the moſt fertile Countries. They feed upon raw Fleſh and drink Milk; ſo that what they feed on, yields 'em alſo Drink. A Terrour to civiliz'd People that live in Plenty, and in their own Poverty ſafe from Invaſion themſelves. Ask 'em concerning a God, and they anſwer, It is Heaven that encompaſſes all things. Being thus ſettled and multiply'd in Bali; they went on ſucceſsfully for many Years, and are now Maſters of Gedma, Angota, Dawara, Weda, Fatagar, Ifat, Cont, Damot, Bizamo, and part of Shewa, comprehending near the half of the Habyſſinian Empire. Ludolphus.

GALLAND, or GALLANDIUS, (Peter) Principal of the College of Bon Cour, at Paris. He was a conſiderable Maſter in the Languages, the Belles Lettres and Divinity, and was much valu'd in the Reign of King Francis Iſt. who had a particular regard for him: He dyed in 1559, and wrote, Oratio de Franciſci I. Laudibus. Scriptores de Agrorum limitibus. In Quintilianum Argumenta. Oratio pro Ariſtotele & Pariſienſi Schola contra Ramum. La Croix du Maine, Bibl. Franc. Torniel Adverſ. lib. 2. cap. 1. &c.

GALLARDUM, vulgarly Chaſteau-Galliard, formerly a very Strong Caſtle of France, built upon a Hill, by Richard King of England, upon the Seine, near the Iſle of Andeliacum, Beſieg'd above Five Months by Philip the Auguſt, King of France, and at length taken. Now reduc'd into the Form of a Village, not far from Andeley. Valeſius Not. Gall.

GALLI, the Prieſts of Cybele, Mother of the Gods; ſo call'd from the River Gallus in Phrygia, of which they drank before they began their Sacrifices, becauſe the Water of that River infus'd a kind of Madneſs into 'em, which they call'd Divine. They celebrated their Feſtivals by running about like Madmen, uſing Extravagant Poſtures, and beating upon little Brazen Drums. They alſo Caſtrated themſelves, becauſe the Goddeſs was to be ſerv'd by none but Eunuchs. See more in Cybele.

GALLIA Aquitanica, containing all Aquitain, Guienne, Gaſcoigny, Bearn, Poictou, Santoigne, Perigord, Quercy, Limoſin, Rovergne and Auvergne, is under the King of France; as alſo all Gallia Narbonenſis, containing Occitania, Provence, the Dauphinate, except Savoy: all Gallia Celtica except Switzerland and Burgundy, which is however lately conquer'd to France and the greateſt part of Gallia Belgica; as Picardy, Champaigne, Alſatia, Artois, with part of Flanders and Hainault, and all Burgundy.

GALLIA, otherwiſe call'd, Lanciarotto Gallia, a Lawyer of Alexandria de la paille in the Dutchy of Milan. He was very eminent in his Profeſſion in the XVIth. Cent. He wrote, In conſuetudinem Alexandrinam prohibentem Maritum ultra certum modum Uxori relinquere, Commentarium. Patrocinium pro Rep. Alexand. contra Medial. Statum. Conciliorum ſive Reſp. Volumen, &c. Ghilini Theat. de Huom. Letter.

GALLIENUS, the Son of Valerian, made Emperour after his Father was taken Priſoner by Sapor King of the Perſians. A Perſon altogether given to Sloth and Eaſe, his Pleaſures and his Luſts. He began to Reign alone in 261. and reign'd eight Years. But while he neglected the Delivery of his Father, and caſt off all Care of the Empire, he drew upon himſelf the Contempt and Hatred of all Men. When they brought him News that Egypt was revolted, and Gaul was loſt, all the Anſwer he made was, What? Can't we live without the Flax of Egypt, or the Jippo's of Arras? Hated therefore by all his Captains, that ſaw him lie wallowing in Sloth and Security at home; while the Goths and Scythians invaded, waſted and ſubdu'd the Roman Provinces in Aſia, they began to carve for themſelves; and ſo began the Anarchy of the thirty Tyrants. At length he was ſlain by the Contrivance of Martianus and Heraclianus aſpiring to the Empire, or as others ſay, by Cecropius, Captain of the Dalmatians, not far from Milan. But notwithſtanding his Vices, he was the beſt Orator and Poet of his time. Trebellius Pollio.

GALLINICUS, ſucceeded Romanus in the Exarchate of Ravenna, in the Year 598. He ſeiz'd the Son-in-Law and Daughter of Aigulphus King of the Lombards which occaſion'd a War. Gregor. Mag. lib. 7. ep. 100. Baron. &c.

GALLIO, (Ptolemy) made Cardinal of Como by Pius the IVth. but Gregory XIII. committed to his Management the ſole Adminiſtration of his Affairs, by which means becoming the richeſt Cardinal of his time, he beſtow'd his Wealth in Pious Uſes, leaving among the reſt 100000 Crowns for the Marrying of poor Maids. Auberi Hiſt. Card. Cabrera, &c.

GALLIPOLI, an Epiſcopal City of Italy in la Terra de Otranto, ſeated upon the Bay of Tarentum, and well fortify'd. Leandre Alberti Deſcr. Ital.

GALLIPOLI, a City of Romania, ſeated upon a Streight of the ſame Name, otherwiſe call'd St. George's Arm, and the Streight of the Dardanells, formerly the Helleſpont, between Europe and Aſia; a large City, five or ſix Miles in Compaſs, but more conſiderable heretofore than now; for there is but little to be ſeen of its ancient Splendor. It ſtands upon a Peninſula, having upon the North and South 2 Bays for Gallies, and Boats, of which the Southern ſeems beſt for Ships, 110. Miles South of Conſtantinople.

GALLOWAY, Lat. Gallovidia, a large County in the South of Scotland, which faces Ulſter in Ireland, being ſeparated from it by a Chanel of 15 Miles in breadth. Its bounded by Solway Frith on the South, with Nithdale on the Eaſt, and on the North with Carrick and Kyle. Camden ſays, It takes its Name from Gael, the Name by which the Iriſh call themſelves in their own Language. Buchanan thinks it is called ſo from the Gauls. The Country is Hilly, and fitter for Paſturage than Corn. It hath many Lakes and Rivers which ſupply it with abundance of Fiſh, and particularly Eels, much eſteem'd for their Savoury taſte, and of which the Inhabitants make great Profit. It is alſo noted for a breed of little Horſes called Gallowavs; which though contemptible for their Bulk, yet are very fit for Travel and Work. The Principal Rivers of this Country are the Dee the Cree, Kenn, Luſs, and Ure. The Principal Towns are, Kircudbright, Wigton, and Whithern; the two firſt being Port-Towns. This Country had ſometimes Princes of its own, but not Soveraigns. It gave Title of Earl afterwards to ſome of the Family of Douglas. The Mull of Galloway, is a Neck of Land running out into the Sea, and by the Ancients called Promontorium & Cherſoneſus Novantum; under which, to the North, is the large Bay called by him Rerigonſus, now Loghrian, abounding with Iſlands and Herrings, Buch. Camden, &c.

GALLOWAY (James Earl of) Deſcended from an ancient and noble Family of the Stewards, and is the twentieth in Deſcent from Alexander Stewart, Son of Alexander Stewart Founder of Paiſley, which Alexander the Son, for his good Service againſt the Danes, at the Battel of the Largs, and for aſſiſting in the Attempt to recover the Iſle of Man to the Crown of Scotland, had a Grant from King Alexander III. in 1263, of the Lands of Gairleyes and Glaſſartown. Walter Stewart was his Son and Heir, who, after the Death of Alexander III. joyn'd Sir William Wallace againſt the Engliſh, and was kill'd at the Battel of Falkirke: Alexander his Son and Heir, who ſucceeded was Knighted, and in reward of his Service to the Crown obtain'd a Charter from King Robert I, of the Lands of Dalſwinton; this happen'd immediately after the memorable Battel of Bannocksburn. He was ſucceeded by Sir Walter Stewart, who always adher'd to King David Bruce, and in Conſideration of his Loyalty, procur'd a Charter of the Land of Gairleyes, &c. from John Randolph Earl of Murray; he married Iſabel, Daughter to the Earl of Lenox, and by her had Iſſue Alexander, who was Knighted and married Elizabeth Levingſton: And was ſucceeded by his Son Sir Alexander, who married Margaret Mac Cleland, Daughter to the Baron of Bombre (Anceſtor of the Lord Kirkcubright, &c.) by whom he had Iſſue, Sir Robert, who married Jane Murray, Daughter to the Laird of Corbpool, Anceſtor to the Earl of Annandale, and had Iſſue, Sir Alexander, who married Gennet Kennedy, Daughter to the Laird of Bargenie. The Five next upon the Line are all Sir Alexander's, who married into the Noble Families of Johnſtown, Gordon, Douglas, Maxwell, and that of the Lord Harris: The laſt of which was ſucceeded by Sir Alexander Stewart, commonly call'd the white Knight of Gairleyes, who married Margaret Dunbar, Lady Clugſtown, Siſter to Gaven Dunbar, Archbiſhop of Glaſgow, and Chancellour of Scotland. This Sir Alexander was ſent Ambaſſadour from King James Vth. of Scotland, to King Henry VIIIth. of England, and in 1571. was kill'd at Sterling, with the Earl of Lenox, Regent of Scotland. His Son, by the Lady Clugſtown, Sir Alexander Stewart, ſucceeded him, and married Chriſtian Douglas, Daughter to the Baron of Drumlanerick, by whom he had Iſſue, Alexander, born about the Year 1581. and Created Lord Gairleyes in 1607. and in 1623. Earl of Galloway, &c. He married Grizel Gordon, Daughter to Lochnburr, Anceſtor to the Viſcount of Kenmure, by whom he had Alexander Lord Gairleyes, who died without Iſſue.) This Earl was a Perſon of great Intereſt, and of the Privy Council to King Charles I. He died in 1649, and was ſucceeded by his Second Son James Earl of Galloway, who was very active for the Royal Cauſe, and a great Sufferer in it; he married Nichola Grier, Daughter to Sir Robert Grier of Lag, by whom, beſides ſeveral other Children, he had James the III. Earl of Galloway, who married the Lady Mary Douglas, Daughter to James Earl of Queensberry, by whom he had Iſſue Alexander IVth. Earl of Galloway, who dying without Iſſue. The Honour and Eſtate deſcended to James Vth. and preſent Earl of Galloway, who married Catharine, Daughter to Alexander, Lord Montgomery, Son and Heir to the Earl of Eglenton, by whom he has Iſſue Alexander, Lord Gairleyes, &c. This Account of my Lord Galloway's Family, ſtands upon the Authority of Charters and Hiſtory.

GALLUS, C. Vibius Trebonianus, ſucceeded Decius, and made his Son Voluſius his Aſſociate in the Empire. But upon his making an Ignominious Peace with the Scythians or Goths. upon Condition that the Romans ſhould pay an Annual Tribute to the Barbarians, which was never heard of before, he was Depos'd, and hardly number'd in the Series of the Emperors.

GALLUS, The Son of Julius Conſtantius, Brother to Conſtantine the Great. This Gallus was Brother to Julian the Apoſtate: They were both of them admitted Readers in the Church, but of a very different Humour. Afterwards, in the Year 351. Conſtantius made Gallus Cæſar, who acquitted himſelf handſomely in the beginning of his Adminiſtration, by ſuppreſſing the Oracle of Apollo in the Suburbs of Antioch: And growing popular in the Eaſt, Conſtantius became jealous of him, and cut off his Head, about 3 Years after his Promotion. Socrat. Lib. 3. Theod. Lib. 3. Ammian. Marcellin. Lib. 24. &c.

GALLUS, a young Youth, and Favourite of Mars, whom he always took along with him, when he went to viſit Venus in private, to watch leſt any Body, but more eſpecially the Sun, ſhould come and ſurprize 'em in their Amorous Dalliances; but Gallus falling aſleep, the Sun came unwares, and diſcovering the Secret, reveal'd it to Vulcan; for which Vulcan the next time entangl'd 'em, naked as they were, in a curious Net, and expos'd 'em to the Laughter of the Gods. Which put Mars into ſuch a rage, that he forthwith turn'd his Favourite into a Cock, who has ever ſince been ſo diligent, that the Sun cannot ſtir, but he gives Notice of his Motion. This Fable denotes the force of the Planets, the ſtrict Aſſociation between Love and Valour, the Efficacy of the Sun, and the Sympathy between that Planet and the Cock. Tho' others will have it to ſignifie the Fears and Jealouſies that attend upon Evil Actions, and the danger of committing ſuch Secrets to the moſt Truſty Friends in the World.

GALLUS, a River of Phrygia, riſing out of the Mountains of Celenæ, and diſcharging it ſelf into the River Sanger, the Water of which is of that Admirable Quality, that being moderately drank, it Purges the Brain, and cures Madneſs; but largely drunk, it makes Men Frantick. Pliny, Ferrarius.

GALLUSIUS (Tarquin) an Italian Jeſuit, of the XVII. Century. He wrote divers Treatiſes concerning the Art of Poetry. The moſt conſiderable of which is his defence of Virgil, wherein he endeavours to vindicate him againſt all the Exceptions of the Criticks. Judgem. de Scavans de'l Arte Poetique 1076.

GALLWAY, Lat. Duaca, Gallica is a County in the Weſt of Ireland, in the Province of Connaught, Bounded on the North with the County of Mayo; on the Eaſt by the River Shannon, which parts it from Roſcommon and King's County; on the South with Clare, and on the Weſt with the Ocean; a Country fruitful both as to Corn and Paſture. It has a Lake 22 Miles long, and 3 or 4 broad. The Principal City is Gallway, and the 3d. in the Kingdom of Ireland, ſituate near the Fall of the Lake of Corbes, a neat and ſtrong Place, built almoſt round, and wall'd with Stones. It has a Biſhop's See, and a delicate and ſafe Harbour, call'd, The Bay of Gallway, capable of holding a vaſt Fleet, and ſecur'd on the Weſt by 5 Iſlands. The fertility of the County in which it ſtands affording plenty of Goods for Exportation; the Inhabitants of this City in Mr. Cambden's time, had made great Improvements by their Navigations, and much enrich'd themſelves. This City being ſo remote from England, and very Strong at firſt in Rebellion againſt King Charles I. ſtood a kind of Neuter, and would neither admit the Iriſh nor Engliſh; but when the latter became Maſters of moſt part of the Country, it joyn'd 'em, and ſubmitted to the Earl of Ormond, the King's Deputy. In 1651. Ireton having taken Limerick after a long Siege, this Town was immediately attack'd by the ſame Forces, under the Command of Sir Charles Coot, and the Parliament Ships of War on the Sea ſide; ſo that there being no hopes of Relief, it was forced to Surrender, and was ſoon after viſited by the Plague, which in leſs than 18 Months ſwept away 12000 of its Inhabitants. The Iriſh had the Poſſeſſion of this place, and held it for King James II. till 1691.

GAMA, or Antonius de Gama, a Portugueſe, living in the XVI. and XVIIth. Centuries. He was very well Read in the Civil and Canon Law, and wrote Deciſiones Supremi Luſitaniæ Senatus. Tractatus de Sacramentis præſtandis, Ultimo Supplicio damnatis, ac de Teſtamentis, Anatomia & eorum Sepultura. Nicholas Anton Bibl. Hiſp.

GAMAHES, Curious Figures, form'd naturally in precious Stones, Marble or Metals. Pliny mentions an Agate of King Pyrrhus's, which repreſented the Nine Muſes, and Apollo in the midſt, playing upon a Harp. Maiolus aſſures us, That at Venice, there is another Agate with the Figure of a Man which grew in it. In the Temple of St. Sophia in Conſtantinople, there was formerly, the Reſemblance of St. John Baptiſt, naturally repreſented on white Marble; in his Habit of Camels Hair, in full Proportion, excepting the want of one Foot. There are ſeveral other Inſtances of Curioſities of this kind. Thier's des Superſtition's.

GAMALIEL, a Doctor of the Jewiſh Law, and in great Reputation among the Jews, a private Diſciple of Chriſt, and St. Paul's Maſter, being preſent at a Council held by the Jews about the Chriſtians, He ſaid, That this new Sect, if not of God, would fall of it ſelf; and on the contrary, That it was not in the Power of Man to deſtroy it, if it came from him. See his Plea for the Apoſtles in hazard of their lives. Acts 5.

GAMANODURUM, as ſome will have it, Lamerding, a ſmall Town in the Biſhoprick of Saltsburgh, near the Springs of the River Ens, upon the Confines of Auſtria. But others will have it to be Judinburgh, a Town of the Upper Stiria, upon the River Muer. Baudrand.

GAMBARA, (Hubert) made a Cardinal by Paul III. in 1539. and Legate of Parma and Piacenza, one of the greateſt Politicians of his time, who loved Learning and Learned Men, and who had a Memory ſo happy, that he never forgot whatever he read. He died in 1549. Leander Alberti.

GAMBEA, a Kingdom of Africa, in Nigritia, that lies at ſome diſtance from the Sea-Coaſt, upon the River Gambia; one of the three Principal Arms of the River Niger, toward Cape Verd, diſcharging it ſelf into the Atlantick Ocean. Baudrand.

GAMBRIVIUS, a King of the Ancient Germans, ſucceeded his Father Marſus, and is ſaid to have built the City Cambray. He is alſo ſuppos'd to have been the Founder of the Famous City of Hamborough, formerly the Seat of the Ancient Gambrivii. Henningus, T. 1. Ferrarius.

GAMMACORURA, a Mountain of the Iſland of Ternate; one of the Molucca's, continually ſpouting out Fire and Flames. It was almoſt overwhelm'd in 1673. At what time it caſt up ſuch a prodigious quantity of Aſhes, as darken'd all the Skie. Memoirs Hiſtor.

GAND, Lat. Gandavium, Engl. Gaunt, an Epiſcopal City of the Low-Countries, under the Archbiſhop of Malines, and the Capital of Flanders, intercut by ſeveral Rivers and Canals; for the Grand Scheld, the Lis, the Upper Scheld, and a prodigious number of Canals, divide the City and Parts adjoyning into ſeveral Iſlands. The Circuit of Gand is very great; and certain it is, that it was once one of the largeſt Cities of Europe. Fifty thouſand Inhabitants of this City, under the Standard of Gaunt, have formerly been Formidable to the neighbouring States, and their Princes themſelves, in the Reigns of Philip of Valois, and Charles VI. And indeed they were much inclin'd to Revolt for two or three Ages together. They give out, That their City was built by Julius Cæſar, while he lay at Terouanne, who mentions 'em by the Name of Gorduni. Pope Paul IV. erected it into a Biſhoprick, An. 1559. at the Requeſt of Philip II. King of Spain. It was firſt Converted, as they ſay, by the Preaching of St. Amand, Biſhop of Tongres. The City contains 7 Pariſhes, and a great number of Churches, Monaſteries, Hoſpitals, &c. In this City reſides the Provincial-Council of Flanders, inſtituted by John Duke of Burgundy, in 1409. As alſo the Legal-Chamber is here continued, for thoſe who have Lands in Fee. The Prinees Court is an ancient Building that has as many Rooms as there are Days in the Year, and where the Wooden Cradle of Charles V. is ſtill to be ſeen. The Belfort is a very high Tower; where is to be ſeen the Dial call'd Roland, that weighs 11000 Pound; and above it ſtands a Dragon of Gilt Copper, which Earl Baldwin IX. ſent from Conſtantinople. In 1539. they revolted from Charles V. and would have put themſelves under the Protection of Francis I. of France; who not only refus'd their Offer, but gave the Emperor free Paſſage through his Dominions into the Low-Countries. On the other ſide, the Emperor having reduc'd 'em to Obedience, put to Death about 30 of the Principal Burgeſſes, and Baniſh'd a greater number; took from 'em their Artillery, Arms and Privileges, and built a Cittadel to curb 'em for the future. The Cittadel is ſtill ſtanding, with Outworks, a Counterſcarp, large Moats, good Ramparts, and ſeveral Baſtions; and the Situation and Riches of the Town ſtill render it Conſiderable. This City ſtands at the equal diſtance of 4 Leagues from Antwerp, Bruſſels and Mechlin. It was taken by the French, in 1678. in ſix Days; who afterwards reſtor'd it to the Spaniards, who are now in Poſſeſſion of it. Sanderus, Cluver. Mercant. Magenus, &c.

GANDAVENSIS AGGER, t'zas van Ghendt, a well-fortify'd Caſtle of Belgium, in the County of Flanders; built by the Spaniards; and taken by the Hollanders in 1644. and ſtill in their Poſſeſſion; together with a ſpacious Harbour, 4 Leagues from Gaunt to the Eaſt. Baudrand.

GANDIA, a City and Ancient Dukedom of Spain, in the Kingdom of Valencia, belonging to the Family of Borgia, with an Univerſity founded by Duke Francis Borgia. It is mounted upon the Mediterranean Sea, 7 or 8 Leagues from Valencia. Baudrand.

GANEIUS, or Gagneius (John) Premier Almoner to Francis I. liv'd in 1545. He wrote Notes upon the New-Teſtament, put the Pſalms into Latin Verſe, and Tranſlated Primaſius's Commentaries upon St. Paul's Epiſtles, by Francis Iſt's particular Command. Miræus, &c.

GANGARA, a City and Kingdom of Africa, in Nigritia, between the Lake Borno, the Kingdoms of Borno and Caſſena, and the River Niger, abounding in Gold. The King is an Abſolute Prince, and his Soldiers in great Eſteem among the Negro's: They are as well Cavalry as Infantry, and their Weapons are Bows and Arrows, and Cymiters. Beſides the Capital City of Gangara, there are alſo others, as Maraſſa, Semigda, &c. Marmolius.

GANGARIDES, People of Aſia, towards the Mouths of the River Ganges; perhaps in the Kingdom now call'd Bengala under the Great Mogul.

GANGES, le Gange, a River of India, one of the Largeſt and moſt Conſiderable in the World; which riſing out of the Mountains of Dalanguer, that make a part of Imaus, towards the Frontiers of Tartary, croſſes all the Kingdoms of the Great Mogul, runs to Horduvare, Serenagar, Gouro, &c. And after it has ſwell'd it ſelf in its Courſe, with the Rivers of Canda, Perſeli, Semena, Ztiotza, &c. diſcharges it ſelf into the Bay of Bengala, through 5 ſeveral Months, that form many Iſlands. This River, where it is moſt narrow, is above 2 Leagues over; its greateſt breadth 5 Leagues. Some have been of Opinion, That it was one of the Four Rivers of Terreſtrial Paradiſe; the Phiſon mention'd in Geneſis: But this is altogether unlikely, its Source being above 1200 Leagues from that of the Euphrates. However, the Indians think that its Waters have ſomewhat Extraordinary in them, and for the ſame reaſon waſh themſelves in it; Kings coming thither in Diſguiſe, and others ſending above 600 Leagues for it. Spangles of Gold, and Precious Stones, are found mix'd with its Sand. Vincent le Blank, Baudrand, Linſchot, &c.

GANGRA, Cangria, or Caſtomoni, by the Turks, as ſome ſay, Kiengara, an Archiepiſcopal City of Paphlagonia, in the Province of Aſia the Leſs. Here it was, that about the Year 324 a Council was call'd to Condemn Euſtathius the Monk; who condemned all other manner of living but his own, and excluded all married Perſons from the Hopes of Salvation. We have 20 Canons remaining of this Council, tranſlated into Latin by Dionyſius Exiguus.

GANGUS SINUS, Gang Golfe, a Spacious Bay of the Eaſtern Ocean, extending it ſelf a great way into China, between the Provinces of Nanchin, Pechin and Xantuna to the Eaſt, and the Kingdom of Corea to the Weſt; by the Portugueſe call'd Enſeada de Nanquin.

GANHAY, a Fort of the Province of Fokien, in China, toward the South-Eaſt Coaſt, between the South and the Eaſt. It is a Place very Populous, full of Magnificent Houſes, and great number of Veſſels bring Trade to the Harbour: But becauſe it is a Garriſon-Town, the Chineſes give it the Name of a Fort. To the Eaſt of the City there is a very beautiful Bridge, all built of Free-ſtone, upon high and large Arches, 250 Paces long. Martin Martini, Thevenot.

GANIMEDE, the Son of Tros, King of Phrygia. The Poets feign, That he was belov'd, and carry'd up into Heaven, by Jupiter, in the Shape of an Eagle; where he was made Cup-Bearer to the Gods, after the Marriage of Hebe and Hercules. All which denotes no more than the mounting the Soul up to Heaven upon the Wings of Contemplation. Ovid Metam. Lib. 10.

GANKING, a large City of the Province of Nanking, and Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, with Juriſdiction over 5 Cities. 'Tis a Town of great Trade, and very Rich; for that all things that come to Nanking, from other Parts, muſt paſs by Ganking. And in regard the three Provinces of Nanking, Huquang and Kiangſi meet there, and for that it lies Commodious for his Warlike Expeditions, the Emperor keeps a Viceroy, diſtinct from the Viceroy of the Province, with a ſtrong Garriſon in the Fort of Haymuen, which Commands the Lake of Payang, and the River of Kiang. In this City is to be ſeen an Iron Column, all of one Piece, 3 Pearches High, and proportionable in Circumference. Martin Martini.

GANNAT, a Borough of France, in Bourbonnois, toward the Frontiers of Auvergne; Lat. Gannatum, and Gannapum. It ſtands upon a ſmall River that falls into the Allier, on the other ſide of Vichy.

GAOGA, a City and Kingdom of Africa, in Nigritia, between Nubia and the Kingdom of Borno. Some call this Country Kaugha. The Kings are deſcended from a Negro Slave, who having ſeiz'd upon his Maſters Goods, bought Horſes; and roving about the neighbouring Counties, traffick'd in Slaves for Horſes; with which he mounted his own People, and ſo made himſelf Maſter of the Kingdom. Marmol. Sanutus.

GAOXA, an Iſland upon the Coaſt of the Province of Quantung, in China; where there is a Fiſh of an Extraordinary Nature, which the Chineſes call Hoangcio Tu, or the Tellow Fiſh; one part of the Year a Bird, and the other a Fiſh. Kircher, of China.

GAP, Vapincum, an Epiſcopal City of France, in the Dauphinate, under the Archbiſhop of Aix, in Provence, with a Bailliage. It is the Capital City of a Country call'd le Capanzois, 2 Leagues from the Durance, 5 from Ambrun, and a little more from Siſteron. Hard by ſtands the Fort of Puymore, ſeated upon a Hill, which Commands the Town. It ſuffered much in the XVIth. Age, being often taken and re-taken by the Catholicks and Hugonots. It alſo ſuffer'd much in 1692. being taken and diſmantl'd by the Duke of Savoy. The Biſhop of Gap is an Earl.

GARA (Nicholas) Palatine of Hungary, a Man of mean Birth, but of an Extraordinary Valour, rais'd himſelf to the Greateſt Offices of the Kingdom of Hungary; inſomuch that the Hungarians having acknowledged for their Sovereign, after the Death of King Lewis I. the Queen his Widow, and her Daughter, Gara had the Command of the whole Kingdom: But abuſing his Power, in Oppreſſing the Nobility, they took Arms againſt the Queen; and having deprived her of the Crown, conferr'd it upon Charles King of Naples, Grandſon of King Lewis I. In the mean time, Gara, who never abandon'd the Queen, ſought all Means to cut off the Uſurper Charles: Which having compaſs'd at laſt, he led the Queen and her Daughter into the Provinces, to make their Subjects acknowledge them once more. The Governor of Croatia, taking hold of this Occaſion to revenge the Uſurpers Death, aſſembled the Nobility and People, met and kill'd Gara, ſowed the Mother in a Sack, and caſt her into the River Bozola, and ſent Queen Mary her Daughter to Priſon: Whence ſhe was enlarg'd by Sigiſmond, Marquiſs of Brandenburgh (to whom ſhe was promis'd in Marriage,) who enter'd Croatia with a ſtrong Army, and put the Rebellious Governor to a cruel Death. Du Puy.

GARAMANTES, a People of the Innermoſt Lybia; ſo call'd from Garamas, the Son of Apollo, formerly inhabiting about the Springs of the River Cinyphus, (according to Iſidore;) whoſe Country was 150 Miles in length, and but 25 broad, and 15 Days Journey from the Temple of Ammon, (as Strabo teſtifies.) At this day they make a part of the Kingdom of Borno; partly White, partly Black; but Affable and given to Trade: In Community of Wives, and Neglect of Religion, like their Anceſtors.

GARAMAS, a Mountain of Aſia, part of Caucaſus, in the Confines of Iberia, out of which the River Phaſis riſes. Ferrarius.

GARAZU, a Town of South-America, in the Region of Braſile, and Province of Parnambuc 5 German Leagues from Olinda to the North. Baudrand.

GARCIAS I. King of Navarre, ſucceeded his Father Inigo Zimenez, about 850. He reigned 20 Years, and died in 870. Garcias II. ſucceeded Sancho in 905. and died in 925. Garcias III. was Noted for Trembling always before he enter'd into Battle; but afterwards, no Man behav'd himſelf with more Bravary: He ſucceeded Sancho Abarca, and died toward the beginning of the XIth. Age. Garcias IV. firſt aſſiſted, then fell out with his Brother Ferdinand I. and loſt both the Battle and his Life, in 1054. Garcias V. the Son of Ramir, recover'd the Kingdom of Navarre, in 1134. made War with his Neighbours that ſought to diſpoſſeſs him, and died of a Fall from his Horſe, after a Reign of 20 Years. Mariana.

GARCIAS, King of Oviedo and Leon, Son of Alphonſo III. ſirnam'd the Great: He took up Arms againſt his Father; but loſt the Battle, and was taken Priſoner: However, his Brothers and his Father-in-Law releas'd him, and forc'd his own Father to reſign the Crown to him; which he held about 3 Years, and died in 913. Mariana.

GARCIAS, a Lawyer of Sevil, living toward the end of the XIIIth. Century. He's very well known, by the Learned Commentaries he has writ in 5 Books. Trithemius de Script. Eccl. And. Schot. Bibl. Hiſp.

GARCIAS-LAZA de la Vega, commonly call'd, Garcilaſſo de la Vega, born at Toledo, and Son to a Man of quality of the ſame Name. He was Privy Councellor to King Ferdinand, and Queen Iſabel, and ſent Ambaſſador by them, to Pope Alexander VIth. He was brave, handſome, with a great ſhare of Wit, and had an extraordinary Genius for Poetry, as appears by his Book, Entitl'd, Obras de Garcilazo de la Vega, con Annotationes. There was another Garcilaſſo de la Vega, Born at Cuſco in America; Son of a Spaniſh Gentleman, and a Native of that Country. This laſt Garcilaſſo, wrote the Hiſtory of Florida in Spaniſh, as alſo that of Peru, with an Account of the Ynca's, ſince tranſlated into French. Paulus Jov. in Elog. Doct. cap. Ult. Bembo in Epiſt. Andr. Schot. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

GARDINER, (Stephen) Biſhop of Wincheſter, and Lord Chancellor of England, was Born at Bury St. Edmonds in Suffolk. He was Natural Son to Richard Woodville, Brother to Queen Elizabeth, Wife to K. Edward IVth. This is believ'd to be his true Deſcent, though not commonly known. He was a Man well skill'd in the Canon and Civil Laws, and moderately in Divinity. He had alſo a good Stile in Latin, and a through Underſtanding of the Greek Language. In the time of King Henry VIIIth. he appear'd for the diſſo ving the Marriage with Catharine of Spain, and afterwards ſubſcrib'd the Divorce. He comply'd likewiſe with the Court, in renouncing the Popes Authority, and wrote a Book, de vera & falſa Obedientia, to ſupport the Kings Proceedings. However, in the Reign of Edward the VIth. he oppos'd the Progreſs of the Reformation, for which he was impriſon'd, but was ſet at Liberty the next Year, and though his Sentiments continu'd the ſame as formerly, yet his outward Complyance was ſuch, that it was not eaſie to find any advantage againſt him for the preſent; but afterwards ſhewing his Diſſatisfaction more openly, he was depriv'd of his Biſhoprick in 1551, and impriſon'd in the Tower, till Queen Mary diſcharg'd him. In this Princeſſes Reign, he was a great Miniſter and Favourite, and had a great ſhare in the Articles of Marriage, between the Queen and Philip II. of Spain, which Articles were very Judiciouſly drawn up, and much to the advantage of England. But then, as to the proceeding againſt thoſe of the Reformation, he was too much enclin'd to Rigour and Severity, and when Cardinal Pool urg'd, that the People were to be recover'd to the Church of Rome, by moderation and gentle Methods, Gardiner declar'd for the Execution of the Laws againſt the Lollards, and that Terrour was a more effectual Expedient, than bare Perſuaſion. On his Death-bed, he was much diſſatisfy'd with his former Life, and often repeated theſe words, Erravi cum Petro, ſed non flevi cum Petro. He died on the 23d. of October 1555, being the Day that Biſhop Ridley, and Biſhop Latimer were burnt at *Oxford. GARDON, a River of France, in Languedoc: which riſing out of the Mountains of Cevennes, runs to Alets, where it takes the Name of Gardon d' Aletz. Soon after it joyns the Gardon d' Anduze; and then receiving ſome ſmall Rivers, diſcharges it ſelf into the Rhone toward Beaucaire. Over this River the Romans built a famous Bridge, between Avignon and Niſmes, call'd Pont de Gard, for the Support of an Aqueduct to convey Water to Niſmes, which they deſigned to beautifie for a Place of Pleaſure. This Water was brought from a Fountain upon a Hill, near the City of Uzez, 2 Leagues from the Bridge. And in regard there were two very high Mountains that ſtood upon each ſide of the River, the Romans rais'd three Rows of Arches one above another, built of Free-ſtone, of a ſurpriſing Bigneſs and Length: The firſt and lower Bridge is of 6 Arches; the ſecond of 2 Arches of the ſame Heighth and Breadth; the third has 35 which are neither ſo high nor ſo large as the other; the lower Bridge is 150 Paces long; the ſecond 275; and the third 300. The uppermoſt of theſe Bridges carries at the top a Canal cover'd with large Free-ſtones; which is the Conduit, though rough, that carries Water from one Mountain to another. Moreri.

GARET, a Province of Africa, in the Kingdom of Fez, in Barbary, extending it ſelf along the Mediterranean Sea, toward the Territories of Argier. It lies between the River Mulvia, that ſeparates it from the Kingdom of Argier and the River Nocor, which parts it from the Province of Eriff. The Mediterranean Sea bounds it to the North, and the Deſart Mountains to the South The African Authors divide this Province into three Parts: The one comprehending the Cities, with their Territories; the other, the inhabited Mountains; and the third, the Deſarts. The Principal Cities of it are Melilla and Cacaca, under the King of Spain; Fezota and Meggea, &c. Marmol.

'Tis Intitul'd, De Liberati Diaconi Breviarium, cum Notis & Diſſertationibus. The laſt Book publiſh'd by him, is a Journal of the Popes, with very curious Diſſertations, 'tis call'd Liber Diurnus Romanorum Pontificum, cum Diſſertationibus de Cauſa Honorii, de Uſu Pallii, &c. Since his Death, there is publiſh'd from his Collection, a Supplement of Theodoret's Works, Intitul'd, Auctarium Theodoreti Cyrenſis Epiſcopi, ſeu Operum Tomus-Quintus. Memoirs du Temps, &c.

GARONNE, Lat. Garumna, a River of France, which riſing out of the Pyrenæan Mountains, in the Frontiers of Arragon, near the little Village of Salarda, Waters the Plain of Aran, in the Country of Cominges; and running forward to St. Beat, St. Bertrand, De Cominges, Valentine, Rieux, Moret, comes to Toloſe, the Capital City of Languedoc; where being already ſwell'd with divers other Rivers, it receives the Leſſer-Lara. After which, it takes in the Tam below Moiſſac; then the Gers, that comes from Leictoure, paſſes to Agen, and ſo runs to Aguillon, upon the Confluence of the Lot; and thence, watering Tonnine, Marmande, and La Roole, it receives the Drott; and running to Cadillac, holds on its Courſe near Bourdeaux, and beyond it joyns the Dourdagne. Theſe two Rivers form the Canal of the Garonne; which waſhing Santoigne on the one ſide, and Guienne on the other, throws it ſelf into the Aquitain Sea. The Mouth of this River is extremely broad, between Royan in Santoigne, and Soulac in Guienne: where ſtands alſo La Tour de Cordouan, between which and Xantoigne, on the one ſide, is Le Pas des Aſnes; and on the other between the Tour and Guienne, the Road call'd Le Pas de Grave. Moreri. Baudrand.

GARSTANG, a Market-Town in Amounderneſs Hundred, in Lancaſhire, ſituate on the River Wire.

GARZIA, (Dominick) Canon at Saragoſſa, he underſtood the Languages very well, but is very Dogmatical and Deciſive in his Writings, which makes Morinus juſtly complain of his Vanity. He died in 1629. And wrote, Propugnaculum Chriſtianæ Religionis contra perſidiam Judæorum. Recentiorum, Variarum & inextricabilium Quæſtionum ex Viſceribus Libri Geneſios, Diſcuſſio, &c. Nichol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. &c.

GASCOIGN, Lat. Vaſconia a Province of France; which, to ſpeak properly, is no more than the Third part of Aquitain, or the Novempopulania of the Antients, at leaſt ſince the Diviſion of Auguſtus Cæſar. It comprehends Gaſcoigni Proper, or Cap de Gaſcoign; Le Pais de Baſques; Le Bigorre; Le Cominges, &c. This Province is encloſ'd between the Garonne, the Pyrenæans, the Ocean, and the preſent Guienne. So that Querci, Rovergne, and Languedoc, ſeparated by the Garonne, lie to the Eaſt of it; Spain, and the Pyrenæan Mountains, to the South; Guienne Proper, to the North; and the Ocean, to the Weſt. Gaſcoign Proper, or La Chaloſſe, lies between Bearn, Armagnac, Guienne and Landes, abounding in Rye, Millet and Paſturage. This Country, for a long time, belong'd to the Kings of England, as Dukes of Aquitain; but were deprived of it, and of all their Poſſeſſions in France, by King Charles VII. about 1452. It is obſerved, As the French change the Letters [V] and [W] into [G] in the Words Galles for Wales, and Gaſcoign for Vaſconia; ſo particularly the Gaſcoigners interchange the Letters [V] and [B] with one another, in giving the ſame Pronunciation to both: Which gave Joſeph Scaliger occaſion to ſay of 'em, Fælices populi quibus bibere eſt vivere. Moreri.

GASSENDUS (Peter) of Digne, in Provence, Doctor of Divinity, one of the greateſt Ornaments of France, was born in 1592. and died in 1655. leaving behind him III Volumes of Epicurus's Philoſophy: VI others, containing his own Philoſophy, his Aſtronomical Works, with the Lives of Epicurus, Copernicus, Tycho-Brahe, Regiomontanus, Peirechius, with Epiſtles, &c. All the Learned Men of his Time had a great Eſteem for him, and ſought his Acquaintance; eſpecially St. Marthe, Voſſius, Hobbs, Magnan, Merſenne, and the Cardinal of Lyons, who procur'd him a Chair of Royal Profeſſor of Mathematicks, in 1645.

GASSION, a Noble and Conſiderable Family in Bearn; from which deſcended John Gaſſion, made a Marſhal of France in 1643. He ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Taking Mardike, the Cities of Link, Bourbourg, Bethune, Courtray, Furnes, Dunkirk, &c. He Beſieged Lens in 1647. where he received a Wound, of which he died the ſame Year.

GASTINOIS, Lat. Vaſtinium, a County of France, bordering upon Beauſſe; part of the Government of the Iſland of France, and comprehends the Dukedom of Nemours, the Earldoms of Rochfort and Moret, with Montargis, Montlehery, &c.

GASTON (John Baptiſta) Duke of Orleans, Brother of Lewis XIII. was Lieutenant-General of the Kingdom, during the Minority of Lewis XIV. and Commanded the Armies in Flanders, in the Years 1644, and 1645. During the Civil Wars, he retired to Blois, and died in 1660. He was a great Lover of Curioſities, and had his Cloſet Furniſh'd with Medals, Jewels, Miniatures, and other Rarities.

GASTON, ſirnam'd Phæbus III. Count of Foix; a Prince renown'd for his Victories, his Generoſity, and his Buildings. He compos'd ſeveral Pieces of Hunting, and one which bore the Title of the Mirrour of Phæbus. He died ſuddenly, in the Year 1391.

GASTON de Foix, Duke of Nemours, General of the French, reliev'd Bologna, beſieg'd by the Forces of the Pope, the King of Spain, and the Venetians; defeated John Paolo Baglione, who Commanded part of the Venetian Army, and won the Battle of Ravenna, in 1512. but purſuing a Body of the Enemy too far, was ſurrounded by Number, overlaid and ſlain in the 24th. Year of his Age. Claud. de Seiſſel, and John Anton. Hiſt. Lewis XII.

GASULES, Inhabitants of the Mountains of Laalem Geſula in the Province of Sus, in the Kingdom of Morocco. The Xeriffs of Fez and Morocco make uſe of them for their Guards, upon the Score of their Fidelity and Courage. Marmol. de l'Afrique Lib. 3.

GATAKER (Tho.) an Engliſhman, born at London, in 1574, and died in 1654. He wrote ſeveral Tracts in Criticiſm and Divinity. His Critical Treatiſes are, 1. His Cinnus, or a Collection of divers Obſervations, principally upon the Holy Scriptures. 2. His Diſſertation on the Stile of the New Teſtament. 3. His Remarks upon the Emperor Antoninus's Book. 4. His Adverſaria Miſcellanea, and ſome others of leſſer Note, which the Reader may find at the end of the Treatiſe laſt mentioned. His Books in Divinity; are almoſt all in Engliſh. He was a Man of great Reading. Vita Tho. Gatakeri, partim ab ipſo, partim ab alio Conſcripta.

GATH, a City of Paleſtine, in the Tribe of Judah, upon the Frontiers of Dan; One of the Five Satrapies of the Philiſtines, poſſeſſed by the Anakims, or Gyants, in Joſhua's days, from whom Goliah, a Native of Gath, deſcended; but a Kingdom in David's time, under the Dominion of Achiſh, before whom David counterfeited himſelf Mad. After that, David, when he came to the Crown, took it, with all the Towns belonging to it. Rehoboam fortify'd it, as a Frontier Town: And Hazael, King of Syria, took it from Jehoaſh, King of Judah. But being recover'd by the Philiſtines again, Vzziah made War upon them, re-took Gath, and diſmantl'd it.

GATTINARA, a Town and Earldom in Piedmont.

GATTON, an ancient Borough-Town in the County of Surrey, and Hundred of Key-Gate, ſends two Members to Parliament. Roman Coins have been often dug up here.

GAULS. To omit the Fabulous Stories of the Ancient Gauls, whom ſome will have to be deſcended from Gomer, the Eldeſt Son of Japhet; others, to be ſo call'd from Galatus, the Son of Hercules; certain it is, that they were known by the Name of Galli, or Gauls, in the time of Tarquinius Priſcus, Fifth King of Rome. The ancient Bounds of the Gauls were Eaſtward, the River Rhine, the Alps, and the Var; to the South, the Mediterranean Sea, and the Pyrenæans; to the Weſt, the Main Ocean; and to the North, the Britiſh Seas. But after that, the Gauls, in the Reign of Belloveſus, became Maſters of ſome part of Italy, the Celebrated Diviſion of Gallia was made into Ciſalpina Italica, or neareſt to Rome, and Tranſalpina, which is moſt properly call'd Gallia. This ſame ſpacious Country, which extended it ſelf from the Rhine to the River Rubicon, now Piſatello, was alſo divided into three Provinces, Togata, which was the ſame with Ciſalpina, from the Alps to Tuſcany and the Adriatick Gulph; becauſe the Inhabitants wore their Cloaths long, like the Romans: The Second, Braccata, from the Faſhion of their Breeches, which was properly Gallia Narbonnenſis: And the Third, Comata, by reaſon the People wore Long Buſhie Heads of Hair. Afterwards, Gaul was divided variouſly, by Julius Cæſar, and others. But Auguſtus divided it into Four parts, Narbonnenſis, Aquitanick, Celtic and Belgic. The Ancient Gauls were ſo particularly enclin'd to War, that all the Ancient Authors have applauded their Courage, and their Generoſity. Cicero confeſſes, That the Romans were more afraid of the Gauls, than of any other Nation in the World. And Salluſt adds, That Honour was not to be ſo much diſputed for with them, as Life. And therefore the Old Romans made a Law, That when they were to War with the Gauls, the Prieſts ſhould not be excus'd from bearing Arms. They were extremely Bold, Daring, and Quick to enter into War; but were tax'd of loſing their Courage upon the leaſt Diſadvantage, and to fail of Reſolution in Adverſity. The Old Men among the Gauls were not diſpenced from taking Arms: And Cæſar obſerves, That Young Men never appear'd before their Parents in publick, until they were of Age to go to War: And adds, That they us'd to put him to Death, that came laſt to their appointed Rendezouz; hated Lyes and Artifices, putting their Truſt in nothing elſe but their Valour. Plutarch ſays, They neither fear'd Fire, Earthquake, nor the Fall of Houſes. And Strabo ſays, That one of 'em being ask'd by Alexander, What his Country-men feared? Anſwer'd, Nothing ſo much as that the Sky may fall upon 'em. Livy and Polybius write, That they fought Naked, and without Arms, at the Battle of Cannæ: That, next to War, their ordinary Exerciſe was Hunting, keeping themſelves always in Action; becauſe they had a Law that inflicted a Penalty upon thoſe that exceeded a certain Bigneſs. Their Soldiers were of two ſorts; ſome Mercenary; others Volunteers, who follow'd Noblemen, and underwent their Fate, ſharing in their Good and Bad Fortune; for when they happen'd to be kill'd, the Attendants all fell with them, or kill'd each other; thinking it the greateſt Infamy imaginable, to ſurvive their Maſter. Their Cavalry was arm'd with Lances and Axes; their Infantry with Javelins, Pikes, Bows and Slings; whilſt their Noblemen fought in Chariots, arm'd with Scythes on both ſides, runing up and down to break the Ranks, and put their Enemy in Diſorder: each Soldier carry'd his Bundle of Straw, or a Faſcine, to ſit upon. They never retrench'd their Camp, till after the Loſs of Avaric, now Bourges; then they begun to imitate the Romans in that and all their other Inventions. In the Attack of a Place, they made a general Diſcharge, to beat the Beſieged from the Ramparts; and then covering themſelves with their Bucklers, ſcaled them. They had a way to ſhoot both Bullets and Darts, that carry'd Fire with them. When they happen'd to kill any Noted Enemy, they hung his Head on their Horſes Main, or carried it on the top of a Lance. They Swore ſolemnly by their Standards; and as a Sign of Peace and Alliance, they held up their naked Arm. As for Learned Men, they always had ſome that excell'd in every Science. But what Annius of Viterbo ſays, That the Greeks and Aſiaticks learn'd Liberal Sciences from them, is ſo far from being true, that they owe 'em to theſe firſt; eſpecially to the Ionian, and a Colony of Phœnicians, who having eſtabliſh'd themſelves at Marſeilles, made it ſo Famous for all ſorts of Learning, that Cicero call'd it the Athens of Gaul. And Strabo affirms, That many Romans and Athenians, with a great number of other Græcians, came there to Study. There were but two Ranks among 'em that were in any Eſteem, the Prieſts and the Nobility: The Condition of the People was deplorable, who were in a manner Slaves. Their Funerals were Magnificent; and they burn'd with the Body of the Deceas'd, whatever was moſt precious and dear to him while he liv'd, even their Cattle, his Bondmen, and enfranchiz'd Slaves. As for the Government of the Gauls, it's certain it was Ariſtocratick in ſeveral Places; or at leaſt, that their Monarchs were Choſen by the People. In other Parts it was Democratick, and their Prieſts had a great ſhare of it: For Cæſar ſays, They tried Cauſes, gave Sentence for Puniſhment and Reward; and if any was ſo obſtinate, as not to acquieſce to their Sentence, they Interdicted him the Communion of their Sacrifices. After which cenſure every one look'd upon him as an Execrable Perſon, and avoided all converſation with him; ſuch excommunicated Perſons were as it were outlaw'd, receiving no benefit from publick Juſtice, they were admitted to no Offices in the Common wealth and diſregarded as ignominious and obſcure People at their death. But after Julius Cæſar had made himſelf Maſter of it and divided it into 17 Provinces, it was Govern'd by 6 Conſular Perſons and 11 Preſidents; Conſtantine the Great plac'd Counts in the Cities, and Dukes in the Frontier Towns: And when the ſame Emperor, about 330. divided the Place of Præfectus Prætorio into 4. there was One in Gaul who had Three Deputies under him; One in Gaul it ſelf, One in Spain, and a Third in Great Britain: and thus it continu'd till the Franks made themſelves Maſters of it, in 418. The Religion of the Ancient Gauls was extremely Superſtitious, (as Cæſar informs us;) and they worſhipp'd the ſame Deities which the Romans did, though under ſeveral Names. They had a great Veneration for Mercury, whom they believ'd to be the Inventor of all Arts. They attributed the Cure of Diſeaſes to Apollo: To Minerva, the Governance of Manufactures: To Jupiter, the Government of the Heavens; and allow'd Mars to be the God of War. Saturn they dreaded moſt of all, and therefore offer'd Humane Victims to appeaſe him; which they likewiſe did, for the Preſervation of Perſons in greateſt Eſteem among 'em: Which therefore the Roman Emperors were conſtrain'd to prohibit by very ſevere Edicts. Their Country was ſo Fruitful, that though they minded War more than Agriculture, their Wine and Linen were ſent into all the neighbouring Provinces; and Julius Cæſar drew ſuch Treaſure thence, that having pay'd his Debts, he had wherewith to keep on foot an Army againſt the Commonwealth; wherewith he, at laſt, made himſelf Maſter of the Empire. They multiplied ſo faſt, that their Country being over ſtock'd, ſome were forc'd to ſeek new Habitations. They made themſelves Maſters of Part of Italy, now call'd Gallia Ciſalpina; and eſtabliſh'd themſelves in that part of Greece, now call'd Galatia, or the Country of the Gallo-Græcians.

GAVIUM, Gavi, a fortify'd Town of Italy, in the Territory of Genoa, within the Appennine Mountains, by the River Lemo, upon the Confines of Montferrat and Milanois, in the Mid-way between Genoa to the South, and Dertona to the North. Baudrand.

GAURICUS, (Pomponius) a Neapolitan: He publiſh'd ſeveral Pieces in Verſe, a Treatiſe of Architecture, another of Phyſiognomy, the Lives of the Greek Poets, &c. and dy'd, or (as ſome will have it) diſappear'd in 1530.

GAURICUS, (Luke) Biſhop of Civita Ducall, a Famous Aſtrologer, living in the XVIth. Cent. under the Pontificate of Julius IId. Leo Xth. and Paul IIId. All theſe Popes, and Clement VIIth. had a great Value for Gauricus, who was eminent for Mathematicks and Calculation of Nativities. He predicted a great many things very ſurprizingly. For inſtance, 'tis ſaid, that Queen Catharine de Medicis, having conſulted him about the Fortune of King Henry IId. her Husband, he anſwer'd that the King was in danger of being kill'd in a Duel, of a wound in his Eye; this Prediction was laught at, at firſt; but afterwards juſtified in the Event. Gauricus died at Ferrara in 1559. His Works are, Calendarium Eccleſiaſticum Novum. De miraculoſa Eclipſi in Paſſione Domini Obſervata, &c. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 6. 22, & 23. Riccioli Chron. &c.

GAURS, a People diſpers'd over all Perſia and the Indies, that obſerve a particular Religion. They that inhabit in India, are generally Turners of Ivory: Thoſe of Kerman, in Perſia, where there are above 10000, follow Woollen Manufacture. In that Province ſtands their Principal Temple, where their Chief Prieſt reſides, and whither all the Gaurs are oblig'd to repair in Pilgrimage once in their Lives. There are alſo ſeveral Gaurs at Iſpahan. They pretend to Seven Books which Ebrahim-Zer-Ateucht ſent 'em from Paradiſe, to inſtruct 'em in the True Religion; and Seven more containing the Interpretation of all Dreams. Inſtead of Baptiſm they waſh their Infants with Water, wherein they Boyl certain Herbs, while the Prieſt ſays, ſuch a number of Prayers. And their Ceremony of Marriage is perform'd, by waſhing the Foreheads of both Parties with Water firſt bleſs'd by the Cazi, or Prieſt. They acknowledge One God, Creator of Heaven and Earth; and have a great Veneration for Fire. Their Prieſts, whom they call Cazi, give them ſome of this holy Fire, every month; To this Heavenly Element, as they call it, they appeal in their Oaths, and no body is ſo hardy as to forſwear himſelf before this Fire.

Of their Origin, and their Prophets.

They ſay, the Father of their Prophet was a Frank by Nation: That his Name was Azer: And add, That he was an Engraver by Trade: That he left his Country, to ſettle among them at Babylon; where he marry'd a Wife call'd Goddon, who being viſited by an Angel ſent from Paradiſe, was repleniſh'd with Celeſtial Light; of which ſhe conceiv'd, and bore Ebrahim-zer-Ateucht. They ſay, the Aſtrologers of thoſe Times fore-ſaw this Birth, and acquainted therewith a King call'd Neubrout; who Commanded, That all Women with Child ſhould be put to Death. But it not appearing to the Eye, that the Prophet's Mother was with Child, ſhe eſcap'd. The King of Babylon hearing that ſhe was Brought-to-bed, ſent for the Child, and deſign'd to have kill'd him immediately; but God withered his Arm. This making him Mad, he threw him into a violent Fire, where the Child (ſay they) reſted, as if on a Bed of Roſes. They who then began to Honour this young Prophet, took ſome of the Fire, kept it carefully, and tranſmitted it to their Poſterity, to preſerve the Memory of this Miracle. But nothing being capable to convince the impious King, God chaſtiſed him for his Unbelief, in plaguing his People with Flyes, whoſe Sting was Mortal; one whereof having bit the King's Ear, he died Mad. His Succeſſor, Cha-Glotchte's, did, at firſt, intend to perſecute the Infant-Prophet; but having ſeen the Miracles which he wrought, he ador'd him as the reſt. At length the Prophet retir'd from the World. Some ſay, He was taken Body and Soul into Heaven. Others, That he put himſelf into an Iron Coffin, near Badgat; and that he was thus carry'd in Triumph by Angels. They believe, That People will at laſt receive the Religion of their Prophet; and, That then will be the Univerſal Reſurrection. It's eaſie to ſee, that theſe Gaurs have had a confus'd Knowledge of the Myſteries of the Chriſtian Religion. They pretend, That when their Prophet arriv'd in Paradiſe, God made Uſe of him to tranſmit unto them Seven Books, for their Inſtruction in the True Religion; That they received Seven more afterwards, containing the Explication of Dreams; and Seven other Books, with the Secrets of Phyſick: But ſay, That Alexander the Great having Conquer'd their Country, burnt the firſt, becauſe none could interpret them, and carry'd the reſt away for his own Uſe. And add, That the Prieſts and Doctors, who in thoſe troubleſom Times had retir'd into the Mountains to ſave their Lives, met, after Alexander's Death, and made a new Book, of what their Memory could furniſh them with, out of what they had read before. This is a great Volume, writ in a different Character from the Perſian, Arabick, or Indian. Tavernier.

GAURUS, a Mountain of Campania, near Monte Maſſico; by the Natives now call'd Gerro, and Garro; Noted for the Goodneſs of the Wine which it produces. Ferrarius.

GAZA, now Gazera, a City of Paleſtine, in the Tribe of Judah: One of the Five Satrapies of the Philiſtines, won by Judah; but recover'd again by the Philiſtines, after Jeptha's Death. Samſon carry'd away the Gates of the City; and was afterwards brought to Gaza, when the Philiſtines had put out his Eyes. Alexander the Great took it: And after him, Simon the Macchabæan. It is now under a peculiar Prince, who holds it of the Turk: A ſmall but the beſt Peopl'd City of Paleſtine, at this day; though often Plunder'd and ruin'd by the Chriſtians, during their Wars in the Holy Land. But Conſtantine was ſo kind, as to repair it, and to adorn it with a Biſhoprick. Its beſt buildings are of rough Stone, Arch'd within, and Flat on the top; but none Comely, or very Convenient, though there are Foot-ſteps of a far better Condition; divers ſimple Roofs being ſupported by goodly Pillars of Parian Marble, ſome Plain, ſome curiouſly Carv'd, and others broken in Pieces to ſerve for Threſholds for almoſt every beggarly Cottage. The Coptick Chriſtians have a Church in it, and the Greek another. Without are ſeveral goodly Moſques, fac'd with Marble. The Caſtle that defends it has four Towers, at each corner one, and is kept in good Order. Near to the Caſtle is the Seraglio for Baſha's Wives. Sands's Travels. Thevenot.

GAZÆUS, (Wm.) Canon of Aire, and Rector of a Church in Arras. He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes in French, as, l' Hiſtoire Eccleſiaſtique du Pais bas. La Bibliotheque Sacree des Saints, &c. He died in 1602. One of his Nephews, Angelinus Gazæus, wrote ſome Latin Poems, call'd, Pia Hilaria, well enough in their Kind. This Angelinus died in 1630, in the Jeſuits College at Liege. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

GAZELLUS, Governour of Syria, and had formerly been Prince of Apamæa a Town of the ſame Province: He was at firſt very much in the Intereſt of the Sultan of Ægypt, and did what he could to oppoſe the Turkiſh Conqueſts; but perceiving Selim had defeated Tomambey Sultan or Souldan of Ægypt, in ſeveral Fights, he ſubmitted to the Conquerour who gave him the Government of Syria. After the Death of Selim, Gazellus revolted from the Turk, with a Deſign to reſtore the Government of the Mammeluc's. To this purpoſe he ſent to Cayerbey, Governour of Ægypt, who inſtead of going into his Propoſal, executed his Ambaſſadors. However Gazellus did not flag in his Reſolution at this News, but raiſing what Forces he could, fought the Baſhaw Faræta near Damaſcus, where he loſt his Life very honourably, as to Point of Courage. Speculum Trag. Regum, Principum, &c.

GAZIE, Troops rais'd by the Mooriſh Princes, for the Propagation of their Religion; much of the ſame Nature with thoſe, who undertake the Croiſade among Chriſtians. Almanzor II. made an Expedition into Spain, with four Hundred thouſand Men, about the Year 1200 rais'd upon this Score. Marmol, lib. 2.

GEDALIAH, by Nebuchadnezzor made Ruler over the remainder of the Prople which he left in Judæa. Johanan gave him good Advice, To beware of Iſhmael, a Prince of the Royal Blood; who neglecting his Advice, was treacherouſly murder'd by the ſame Iſhmael, in hopes that the ſcatter'd Jews that repair'd to Gedaliah would have adher'd to him, and have made him Formidable, in time, to the Chaldeans. 2 Chron. 25. Jer. 40. 41.

GEDEON, of the Tribe of Manaſſes, the fifth Judge of Iſrael, about the Year of the World 2760. He was inſtrumental in delivering his Countrymen from their Servitude under the Medianites. See Judges, Cap. 7. 8. Joſeph, lib. 5. Antiq. Jud.

GEDROSIA, a Province of Perſia, which now makes the two Provinces of Circan and Macran, between Carmania to the Weſt: and the Dominions of the Great Mogul, and the Mouths of Indus, to the Eaſt near the Indian Ocean. Baudrand.

GEHAN-ABAD, a City of the Province of Dehli, which formerly bore the Name of a Kingdom, in the Empire of the Great Mogul, on this ſide Ganges. The Capital City of this Province was alſo call'd Dehli: but that City is almoſt ruin'd, ſince Chagehan caus'd the New City of Gehan-Abad to be built near to it, and made it the Place of his Reſidence, becauſe the Air of that Place was more temperate. All the Private Houſes are large Encloſures; in the middle of which are the Lodging-Rooms, to the end that no body may approach the Place where the Women are ſhut up. Moſt of the Great Lords live without the City, for the Conveniency of the Water. The King's Palace takes up about Half a League in Circuit. The Walls are built of Free-ſtone, with Battlements, and a Tower between every ten Battlements. The Moats are full of Water, and faced with Free-ſtone. The Omra's, or Great Lords of the Kingdom, keep Guard within the Second Court. The Divan, or Hall of Audience, is in the Third Court, ſupported with 32 Columns of Marble, and painted with all ſorts of Flowers. On the Left-ſide of the Court where the Divan is, ſtands a little Moſque, with a Duomo of Lead all over double Guilt where the King goes to Prayers every Day except Fridays, when he goes to the Grand Moſque which is a Beautiful Structure upon a Platform Higher than the Houſes of the City. The King's Stables ſtand upon the Right-ſide of the Court, full of Beautiful Horſes, the worſt of which ſtands him in 3000 Crowns there being ſome that coſt 10000 Crowns. They do not feed on Hay, and Oats, as our Horſes in Europe, but are ſerv'd in the Morning with Balls of Wheat Meal, and Butter, in Sugar-Cane time and Seaſon of Millet they are ſerv'd with ſome towards Noon; and at Night with a Meaſure of ground Peaſe ſteep'd in Water. Tavernier.

GEHAN-GUIR, King of the Eaſt-Indies, began his Reign in 1604. and dy'd in 1627. His two Sons, Koſrou and Kourom, tir'd with his long Reign, ſought to Dethrone him in his Life-time; and to that purpoſe, Koſrou rais'd a Powerful Army; but being defeated, and taken Priſoner, his Father put out his Eyes, deſigning to leave the Kingdom to his Grand-ſon, Bolaki, the Son of Koſrou. To prevent him, Kourom rais'd a great Army, put his Brother Koſrou to Death, and aſſum'd the Title of Cha-Gehan, or King of the World. Gehan-Guir, upon this, marches againſt his rebellious Son, but dies by the way. Tavernier.

GELASIUS CYZICENUS, Biſhop of Cæſarea in Paleſtine, liv'd in the reign of Baſiliſcus till towards the latter End of the Vth. Cent. He wrote the Hiſtory of the firſt Council of Nice, in two Books, for there are no more, ſtrictly ſpeaking, the third conſiſting only of ſome Letters of the Emperour Conſtantine. But this Hiſtory is of no great Credit. Photius, Bibl. Num. 15. 88. 89. Baronius, Bellarmine, &c.

GELASIUS, an African by Birth ſucceeded Felix III. or, as others, ſay, the IId. Excommunicated Anaſtaſius the Emperor, for favouring Acacius and the Hereticks. He Expell'd the Manichæans out of Rome, and Anathematiz'd the King of the Vandals, who was an Arian, and died in 496. after he had ſate ſomewhat above 4 Years. In the Year 494. he held a Synod conſiſting of ſeventy Biſhops at Rome, which Council, after a Declaration of the Canon of Scripture cenſur'd the Books of ſeveral Authors, as Apocryphal and condemn'd a great number of Hereticks. Gennadius affirms, that this Gelaſius, wrote ſeveral Treatiſes upon the Sacraments, upon the Holy Scriptures, and an excellent Volume againſt Neſtorius and Eutyches, beſides ſome Hymns in imitation of St. Ambroſe. Gennad. lib. 94. de Script. Eccleſ. Platina.

GELASIUS II. ſucceeded Paſchal II. in 1118. in a troubleſom Pontificate, which he enjoy'd but One Year, and ſome few Days: In which time he was twice expell'd Rome, once by Cinci Frangipani, for madneſs that a Creature of his own Recommendation was not Choſen: The ſecond time, by the Emperor Henry V. who ſet up Gregory VIII. againſt him. So that being forc'd to flie into France, he dy'd at the Abbey of Cluny, in 1619.

GELDENHAUR (Gerard) Archbiſhop of Utrecht, embrac'd the Reformation of Luther, and retir'd into Germany; where he wrote the Hiſtories of Holland, of the Low-Countries, and of the Biſhops of Utrecht, and was kill'd by High way-men in 1542. Melchior Adam.

GELO, a Tyrant of Syracuſe, defeated the Carthaginians that invaded Sicily at the preſſing Inſtances of Xerxes, and died in the Year of Rome 276. and 478 before the Birth of Chriſt.

GELONI, a People of Europæan Scythia, bordering upon the Agathyrſi, who with great Patience endur'd Hunger in time of War, living upon Milk mingl'd with Blood which they drew from their Horſes. They flea'd their Enemies, and made Coats of their Skins, to render themſelves more terrible to others. Mela, l. 1.

GEMBLOURS, Lat. Gemblacum a Town of Brabant with a Famous Abbey, upon the Confines of Haſpengaw, between Namur and Nivelle. Ferrarius.

GEMINIUS (Victor) an African, in the IIId. Age, Excommunicated by St. Cyprian after his Death, becauſe he made a Prieſt Guardian to his Children, and thereby involv'd him in the Affairs of the World. Brancanus, Voſſius.

GEMISTUS (George) a Platonick Philoſopher and Mathematician, in great Eſteem at the Court of Florence in the XVth. Age. He wrote a Treatiſe of the Difference between Ariſtotle and Plato, a Comment upon Zoroaſter's Magick; and ſeveral other Pieces. Voſſius, &c.

GENABU. See Orleans.

GENEBRARD, (Gilbert) a great Zealot for the League againſt Henry III. For which the Leaguers procur'd him the Archbiſhoprick of Aix, from whence the King expell'd him. He wrote a Book call'd Chronologia Sacra, ending in 1584. Tranſlated Joſephus, though badly. He wrote likewiſe, De Sacrarum Electionum jure ad Eccleſiæ Romanæ redintegrationem: This Book was thought prejudicial to the Rights of the Gallican Church. The Parliament of Provence, at the King's Inſtance, order'd it to be burnt, and Genebrard, was at the ſame time baniſh'd by His Majeſty, who to give him his due, had been a great Rebel in the Holy League, and died in 1597. Thuan. l. 119.

GENEVA, an Ancient City of the Allobroges, upon the Frontiers of Savoy, ſeated upon the Rhone, at the Extremity of the Lake Leman, is a neat City, well fortified, and has an admirable Situation; partly upon a Hill, partly in a Plain, which has the Lake to the North. The Rhone iſſuing out of the Lake, encompaſſes the City to the Weſt, and divides it from that ſame delightful part call'd St. Gervaſe. At the End of the City the Rhone receives the River Arve, which is another Rampart of Geneva to the South. St. Peter's Church is built upon a Hill. There are in this City ſeveral Piazza's, a fair Town-Houſe, with a pair of Stairs of particular Workmanſhip, an Arſenal in good Order, vaſt Walks, and beautiful Streets, eſpecially along the Lake. The Rivieres make three different Streets; for there is in the middle a Paſſage for Coaches and Horſes, with Shops on both ſides, having Portico's before 'em, ſupported with Pillats, where you walk ſecurely from the Weather. It is a City of great Trade, in a Soil abounding with Wine. It is very Ancient, and was very conſiderable in the time of the Romans, as ſeveral Inſcriptions teſtifie. After ſeveral Revolutions, and ſuffering much by the Incurſions of the Barbarians, it had Counts of its own; of which the moſt Ancient was Robert, in the Year 880. After that, this City preſerv'd her Liberty for many Years under the Imperial Protection; till being deſerted by the Emperors engaged in Civil Diſſentions, ſhe had recourſe to her own Biſhops, then in great Authority: For about the Year 1032, the greateſt part of the Biſhops became Temporal Lords of the Towns of their See; and the Counts ſeiz'd upon the Provinces, where they Govern'd, which the Emperours of Germany had given them upon Condition of Homage and Fealty; 'twas about this time that the Biſhops of Geneva, on one ſide, and the Earls of the Country of Geneva, on the other, pretended to the Soveraignty of the Place. It muſt be ſaid notwithſtanding, that this City has always pretended to Freedom and a Sort of Independency, being always own'd to be an Imperial Town by the Emperours, who gave it the ſame Privileges and Franchiſes with other Towns, which were part of the Empire: But this is no place, to diſpute the Pretenſions of both Parties, which the Reader may conſult, if he pleaſes in Treatiſes publiſh'd upon that Subject: However we may obſerve, that about 150 Years before the Change of Religion, the Town of Geneva always acknowledged their Biſhop for their Prince,but almoſt ſuch a ſort of one as the Doge of Venice: The Council and the four Syndicks choſen by the People, having always had a joint ſhare with the Biſhop and Chapter in the Civil Government of the Town, and the Territories thereunto belonging, without any Acknowledgment of the Authority either of the Counts of the Country of Geneva, or of the Dukes of Savoy. But the Biſhops and Dukes of Savoy having frequent Conteſts, about their reſpective Pretenſions, theſe Diſcords ſtrangely afflicted her, being already twice conſum'd by Fire. So that ſhe was forc'd to ſtruggle with the ſucceeding Dukes of Savoy for her Liberty; which ſhe did with various Fortune, being reduc'd to great Extremities by Charles Duke of Savoy, after a long Siege, and like to have been ſeiz'd by Emanuel. Which forc'd her to a ſtrict Alliance with the Cantons of Bearn and Friburgh; by whom ſhe was deliver'd from her Fears, and the Dukes of Savoy brought to an eaſie Compoſition and Renunciation of all their Pretenſions. But nothing conduc'd ſo much to her Eſtabliſhment, as her embracing the Reformation, firſt preach'd to her by William Farel, her firſt Reformed Miniſter; to whom ſucceeded Calvin and Beza, who both died at Geneva. So that after ſhe had renewed a perpetual League with the Cantons before-mention'd by their Support, in 1535. the Council of Geneva aboliſh'd the Roman Religion; and that they might leave to Poſterity an Eternal Memorial of their forſaking the Superſtitions of Rome, they ſet up, the next Year, the following Inſcription, ingrav'd in Letters of Gold upon a Copper-Plate, ſtill remaining in the Town-Houſe, In Memory of the Grace which God had given 'em, to ſhake off the Yoak of Antichriſt, aboliſh Superſtition, and recover their Liberty by the Defeat and Flight of their Enemies. About 350 Years ago this City was twice burn'd in ſeven Years time; and the Change of Religion having heightned their Neighbours Rage againſt it, it ſuffer'd a very ſharp Siege, and miſerable Famine, in 1584. But yet prevail'd ſo far, by the Help of the Canton of Zurick, that the Duke of Savoy, and their Biſhop, were forc'd, as ſome ſay, to renounce all their Pretenſions to it. Nor did it reap leſs Glory from its defeating the Nocturnal Scalado of Charles Emanuel, in 1602. The Province of Geneva, which derives its Name from it, is bounded by the Provinces of Chablais and Foſſigni to the Eaſt, the Rhone to the Weſt, and in part alſo to the North; and with Savoy, properly ſo call'd, to the South. Thuanus, Leti, Moreri, &c.

GENII, certain Spirits which the Old Heathens believ'd were a ſort of Guardians to particular Perſons and Places. Plutarch ſuppoſes them a middle ſort of Beings, between Gods and Men: 'Twas generally believ'd that every Man had two, one good and one bad; the firſt prompting him to Vertue, and the other to Vice: Socrates and Pythagoras's Dæmons were of this ſort, though ſomewhat more particular and ſenſible in their reſpective Functions, and Superintendency. Plutarch in his Book, De Defectu Oraculorum, aſſigns the Cauſe of the Silence of the Oracles, to the removal of theſe Oracular Genii. The Heathens generally ſacrificed Wine,Flowers,Frankincenſe,and ſometimes a Pig to the Genii. It was the Cuſtom of the Romans to ſwear by the Genius of their Emperours, which they pretended to do, with a great deal of Conſcience and Solemnity; and the Puniſhment of Perjury in this Caſe was ignominious enough: The Emperour Caligula put ſome Romans to death for refuſal of this Oath, and the Chriſtians were often diſcover'd and puniſh'd upon this Score. Plutarch de Defect.Orac.Tacit. lib.5. Hiſt.Cenſorin. lib. de Die Natali, cap.3. Ammian. Marcellin. lib.21, &c.

GENNEPIUM, Genep, a ſmall City of Germany, in the Dutchy of Cleves, ſeated upon the River Mers, where it falls into the Meuſe. It is well fortify'd, and kept by a Dutch Garriſon, though in the Territories of Brandenburgh. It was once taken by the Spaniards, but recover'd by the Hollanders, in 1641.

GENNESARET, a Lake of Paleſtine, vulgarly call'd the Sea of Galilee, and the Sea of Tiberias, now the Sea de Tabari, is 18 Miles in Length, from North to South; and 7 in Breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt. The River Jordan falls into it near Capernaum; and having croſs'd it, iſſues out of it near Bethſaida, afterwards call'd Scythopolis. The Land of Genneſaret, ſo call'd in Matthew, enjoys a Temperate Air. For which reaſon it bears very large Wallnuts, that love cold Climates; and Dates, that are pleas'd with Heat; together with Figs and Olives, that require a Temperate Air grow there in great abundance. The City of Genneſaret, afterwards call'd Tiberias, lies upon the Weſt-ſide of the Lake. Joſephus.

GENOUA, Lat. Genua, by the French Gennes, an Archiepiſcopal City of Italy, and a Sovereign Republick upon the Mediterranean Sea, the Capital of a ſmall Country call'd the State of the Republick of Genoua, or la Riviera di Genoua, from the River Var to the Macra, about 160 Miles in Length, and 25 Broad; bounded to the South by the Mediterranean; by Tuſcany to the Eaſt; by the Dutchies of Parma, and Milan, and Montferrat, to the North; and by the County of Nice to the Weſt. The whole Country is divided into la Riviera di Ponente, and Riviera di Levante; and Genoua, as Miſtreſs of the Signiory, ſtands in the Middle, between B tz. The Inner-part of the Country is ſomewhat Mountainous, but the Sea-Coaſt moſt Fertile and Delightful; and the Weſtern-part exceeds the other, being all cover'd with Citron and Orange-Trees, &c. The Situation of Genoua is ſuch, that the South-ſide ſtands upon the Sea-ſhore, partly upon a Plain, partly upon Hills that join to the Appennine. 'Tis a City of the greateſt Trade in Italy, about 5 or 6 Miles in Compaſs, with ſtrong Walls, a good Rampart, and 5 Gates toward the Continent, all planted with great Guns. The Port of Genoua was formerly dangerous; but the Mole, which is a wonderful Piece of Work, advancing forward into the Sea, ſecures the Harbour. The Buildings of the City are ſo Magnificent and Regular, and there are ſo many Stately Palaces in it, that ſhe may well deſerve the Name of Proud. The Palace of Doria is the moſt Conſiderable, extending from the Sea to the Top of the Mountain; the Apartments are Vaſt and Magnificent, the Furniture Sumptuous, and every thing beſpeaks Prodigality. And there is this Inſcription upon the Walls, By the Grace of God and the King, the Whole belongs to the Maſter of the Houſe. In the New Street, which is the Faireſt in Genoua are none but Palaces, or Magnificent Houſes; but the Palace of the Signiori, where the Duke reſides, la Caſa del Imperial, the Arſenal, St. Lawrence's Church, which is the Metropolis; where is to be ſeen a Plate of one ſolid Emrauld, the Annunciade, the Churches of the Jeſuites and Theatines,and ſome others, are the Principal both of Sacred and Profane Structures in Genoua. There are in this City two ſorts of Noble Families, the Ancient and the Modern. Of the firſt there are Twenty eight, of which the Four Chiefeſt are Grimaldi, Fieſco, Spinola, and Doria. The other Noble Families, which amount to the number of Four hundred thirty ſeven, are annexed to the Principal Twenty eight. After ſeveral Revolutions, and various Maſters, this City was govern'd by Conſuls, from the Year 1099. to 1257. At what time William Boccanegra was elected Preſident, or Captain, by the People. In 1396. Genoua put her ſelf under the Protection of the French, who ſent her Governors, the laſt of which was Jean le Maingre, ſirnam'd Boucicaut; in whoſe time the People maſſacred the French, and put themſelves under the Marquiſs of Montferrat, from 1409. till 1413. After that, they ſubmitted to the Dukes of Milan, who appointed them Governors alſo, till upon one of the Duke's Releaſing without Ranſom the Kings of Sicily and Navarre, the Infant their Brother, the Grand Maſter of the Order of St. James, and above 120 more Great Lords of Sicily and Arragon, which they had taken in a Sea-Engagement, they took that Pretence to recover their Liberty. In 1522. the City was Pillag'd by the Army of Charles V. under the Marquiſs of Peſcara. Francis I. reconquer'd it, in 1527. And ſoon after, Andrew Doria ſhook off the French Yoke, and ſet it at liberty. Since which time they have been Govern'd by Dukes of their own, Elected every Two Years, and aſſiſted by Eight Senators, who are call'd Governors; beſides the Council of 400. So that it may ſeem to be a mix'd Government of Ariſtocracy and Democracy. The Genoeſes did ſuch conſiderable Service in the Holy War, that they obtain'd of Baldwin III. part of the Sea-Towns in Paleſtine. And when the Weſtern Chriſtians took Conſtantinople from the Eaſtern Emperors, the Genoeſe had a great hand in it, and had Pera aſſign'd 'em. They were then Maſters of Lesbos and Chio, and of ſeveral Iſlands in thoſe Seas; and Caffa, in the Black Sea, in Crim Tartary: But aiming to gain Creet too from the Venetians in 1207. they drew great Troubles upon themſelves; which with their Inteſtine Broils, occaſion'd their Fall. The French pretend that in 1396. this Republick made-over, by a Formal Grant to Charles VI. of France, all the Sovereign Lordſhip of it, and the States depending; which was executed and confirm'd again to Charles VII. in 1458. But afterwards preferring the Intereſt of Spain, Lewis XIV. ſent his Fleet to Bomb it, in 1674. In this Action the Ducal Palace was burnt, and many other of the Nobleſt in the City; and an incredible Miſchief done. In the end, he forc'd 'em to ſend their Duke and four Senators to his Court, to make Submiſſion to him. The State of Genoua is wonderfully Fruitful by Nature, and made much more ſo by the Induſtry of the Inhabitants; and has ſo many Villages and fine Buildings, eſpecially toward Genoua, that it may ſeem to be one continu'd City. It's Govern'd as a Commonwealth, under a Duke, to Continue but Two Years, and Two Senates, or Councils.

GENSERIC, King of the Vandals in Spain, defeated Hermenric King of the Suevians; and croſs'd over into Africa, in the Year 428. to the Relief of Count Boniface who had deſir'd his aſſiſtance; but the Count afterwards changing his Opinion fought Genſericus and was defeated by him. This Genſericus vanquiſh'd Aſpar, ſent againſt him by Theodoſius the Younger, and forc'd Valentinian to deſire Peace; who being kill'd by Maximus, his Widow Eudoxia, whom Maximus had Marry'd by Force, call'd in Genſeric into Italy, to revenge her Husband's Death. Upon which, Genſeric takes Rome, Plunders it for 14 Days together: The immenſe Treaſure of the Temple of Jeruſalem, brought thence by the Emperor Titus, made part of his rich Booty: Carries away Eudoxia, and her two Daughters, Marries the Mother himſelf, and gives one of the Daughters to his Son Huneric, ſending back the other to Conſtantinople. Returning into Africa, being an Arian himſelf, he moſt cruelly Perſecuted the Orthodox. After he had ravag'd all the Weſt, he invaded Illyrium, Peloponneſus, Greece and the Iſlands of the Archipelago; which laſt he deſtroy'd entirely. The Emperor Marcian, not finding himſelf ſtrong enough to reſiſt him, was forc'd to diſſemble his reſentment. His Succeſſor Leo in 468. rais'd an Army of a Hundred thouſand Foot, and ſent a Fleet conſiſting of a Thouſand Ships againſt him under Baſilicus; who being corrupted by that Barbarian, this Gallant Army periſh'd. Hiſtorians ſay, He was a ſucceſsful Prince, and cry him up for taking the two moſt renown'd Cities of the Univerſe in his time, Rome and Carthage. He died in 476. *Victor Uticen. de Perſec. GENTILIS, (John Valentin) Born at Coſenze in Italy, liv'd in the 16th. Century, and imploy'd his Learning in crying down, and endeavouring to ridicule the Divinity of Chriſt, uſing Atheiſtical rather than Arian Arguments. He affirm'd there were 3 Perſons in the Trinity of diſtinct Natures. Calvin ſmelt him out in ſome Conferences which he had with him, and caus'd him to be ſeiz'd; whereupon he Abjur'd the Errors he was charg'd with, and had the Liberty of the Town of Geneva, upon his Promiſe of not leaving it; which he kept no longer than until he found opportunity of making his Eſcape: Then having over-run Savoy, France, Germany, and Tranſilvania, he ſettled at laſt in Poland, under the Protection of Brandrata, where he and Paul Alciat taught a very refin'd Arianiſm. Gentilis held among other things, That the Father only was true God, that he did not communicate his own proper Being to the Son and Holy Ghoſt, but an Inferior. Being baniſh'd with all the other Hereticks by Sigiſmond King of Poland, about 1562 he came to Bern in Swiſſerland, where he was Beheaded in 1565. boaſting before his Execution, That whereas other Martyrs died for the Glory of the Son, he was the firſt himſelf who ſuffer'd for the Glory of the Father.

GENTILIS, or Gentilis de Gentilibus, an Eminent Phyſician born at Foligno in Italy, in the XIVth. Cent. He wrote Commentaries upon Avicen, which are ſtill much valu'd; the Title of 'em, is, Commentaria Aurea ſuper Opera Avicennæ. Comment. in Arte Galeni, &c. *Trithem. de Script. Eccl. Leandr. GENTILLY, a Village within a ſmall League of Paris, ſeated upon the River Bievre, of which the Water has a particular Vertue for the Dying of Scarlet; but more famous for the Council which was there held in 767. where were preſent Six Legates from the Pope, Six Ambaſſadors from Copronymus the Emperor, and the King of France with all his Nobility.

GENTIUS, King of Illyria, about the Year of Rome 586. for Ten Talents took part with Perſeus, and impriſon'd the Roman Ambaſſadors. Anicius the Prætor, took Scodra the principal City of Illyria, and ſent away Gentius, with his Brother, his Wife and Children, to Rome; where they were kept to make up a part of the Spectacle, at the Victor's Triumph. Livy.

GEOFREY, or Jeoffridi John, obtain'd of Lewis XI. the Aboliſhment of the Pragmatick Sanction in France; for which he was made a Cardinal by Pius II. in the Year 1473. In the mean time, the Remonſtrances of the Univerſity and Parliament of Paris obſtructing the Revocation, the Pope ſent the Cardinal to France as his Legat, to endeavour to get it verified. Paul II. continued him in the ſame Station, but to no purpoſe, the Parliament made ſuch Oppoſition againſt it, and the Doctors of Sorbonne appeal'd to the next General Council, and regiſter'd their Appeal in the Châtelet. Lewis XI. ſent him with an Army againſt the Count of Armagnac, who had made himſelf Maſter of Lectour. 'Tis ſaid, That after the Capitulation, the Prelate broke his word, for that the Town was carried by Storm, and the Count Kill'd in his own Houſe. Afterwards going to Beſiege Perpignan, he ſick'ned by the way, and died in 1473. Mezeray, &c.

GEOFREY de St. Aumer, one of the Founders of the Order of the Templars, joining Intereſt with Hugo de Paganis, and ſeven others, whoſe Names are unknown, began that Order in 1118. Theſe nine dedicating themſelves to the Service of God, in a Method reſembling the Regular Canons, profeſs'd ſolemnly to obſerve the three Monaſtick Vows of the Religious. This Vow was made before the Patriarch of Jeruſalem. Baldwin IId. GEOGRAPHY, a Deſcription of the Earth, from the Greek, γαῖα or γῆ, Earth, and γράφειν, to write or deſcribe. This Science conſiders the Terraqueous Globe, and ſo comprehends Hydrography, or Deſcription of Rivers, Seas, &c. Chorography, the Deſcription of Regions, Kingdoms and Provinces. Topography, or the Deſcription of particular places. Ariſtotle was of Opinion, That there was Ten times more Water than Earth; but by the Diſcovery of America, and of a great number of Iſlands and Coaſts ſince his time, we have reaſon to think that the Extenſion of the Earth equals all the Seas put together. Geographers give the Terreſtrial Globe 9000 Leagues Circuit, count 2803 Leagues for its Diameter; that is, for the ſtraight Line that may be drawn from us to our Antipodes; 1431. and half from the Superficies to the Center. According to this Calculation, the Superficies of the Earth contains 25773000 ſquare Leagues. Scripture informs us, That the firſt Diviſion of the Earth was made between the three Children of Noah; Sem had all Aſia; Cham, Africa, with what we now call Syria and Arabia; Japhet, Europe, and what Geographers call Aſia Minor, or Natolia. Afterwards it was divided into two great parts in the ſame Hemiſphere, ſeparated from each other by the Ocean. One of theſe vaſt Continents, contain'd Aſia, Europe, and Africa; The other, the Land of the Antichthones, toward the South. But now the Earth is divided into two Hemiſpheres, one containing Europe, Aſia and Africa; the other, America. As for the Figure of the Earth, ſome of the Ancients thought it Flat like a Table; others gave it the Form of a Drum: But Thales and the Stoicks, believed it round: which is the Opinion of all the Learned, and is grounded upon a great many Experiments. Firſt, In the Eclipſes of the Moon, the Shadow of the Earth appears Circular. Secondly, In travelling from the South, Northwards, it appears Viſibly that the farther we go, the greater is the Elevation of the Artick Pole; add to this, That if the Earth were flat, we might ſee from ſome of our High Mountains the greateſt part of its Superficies. It will not be amiſs to obſerve here, That in all regular Maps, the upper Part is the North, to the right hand the Eaſt, &c. or where it is not ſo, there are the Words, North, South, &c. or the Sea-Roſe, whoſe Flower-de-luce points towards the North. *Briet. GEORGE, a Heretick Biſhop of Cappadocia, placed in the See of Alexandria, by the Arians, in oppoſition to St. Athanaſius, A. C. 356. he was ſo violent againſt the Orthodox, that he even forbad the Poor to receive Alms from any of 'em; his deportment to the Idolaters, drew upon him their Reſentment, and his Covetouſneſs a general hatred; for he appropriated to himſelf the Salt-Works and Lakes whence People had the Ruſhes and Sedge, for Paper; he dealt in Nitre, and having invented a Litter to carry dead Bodies in, would force all others to make uſe of it. At laſt declaiming againſt the Abominations of the Gentiles, he excited a furious Sedition againſt the Chriſtians, but it fell heavy upon himſelf; for the enrag'd Multitude having dragg'd him about the Streets, put him to a cruel Death, and then burn'd his Body in 362. Julian the Apoſtate hearing of his Death, wrote two Letters, one to the Inhabitants of Alexandria, the other to Eudicius Præfect of Ægypt, to make diligent Search for his Writing, that what concern'd the Sect of the Galileans, i. e. Chriſtians, might be burn'd; and his Books of Philoſophy, Rhetorick, &c. ſent to his Library at Antioch. *Ammian. GEORGE, Deſpot of Servia in 1440. was conſtrain'd to ſerve Bajazet I. againſt Tamerlain: Afterwards he took part ſometimes with the Chriſtians, ſometimes with the Ottomans; at length Amurat married his Daughter. Mahomet II. took Novograde, the Chief City of Servia from him. He died of a Wound received in his hand, fighting againſt the Hungarians led by Zillagy, Brother-in-Law to Hunniades, Guillet. Hiſt.

GEORGE of Trebizonde, ſo call'd, becauſe his Father was born at that Town, as for George, he was born in Candie, in the XVth. Cent. He came to Rome in the time of Pope Eugenius the IVth. where he taught Rhetorick and Philoſophy many Years, and was afterwards made Secretary to Pope Nicholas the Vth. He Tranſlated a great many Greek Books, and wrote others in Latin, but was ſtrangely infatuated with Admiration of Ariſtotle's Philoſophy, in reſpect of whom he treated Plato with great neglect, but it was not long before Cardinal Beſſarion ſtopp'd his Mouth upon this Argument: 'Tis ſaid, that George liv'd ſo long till he forgot all his Learning. Paulus Jovius in Elog. cap. 21. Leo Allatius.

GEORGE, (St.) a Military Order founded 1470, by Frederick the IVth. Emperour, and firſt Archduke of Auſtria; 'tis ſaid, theſe Knights were oblig'd to guard the Frontiers of Bohemia and Hungary againſt the Incurſions of the Turks, who were then very troubleſome: The Arms of this Order were Argent, a Croſs Gules. Frederick above-mention'd gave the great Maſter of this Order, the Title of Prince, and granted to him and his Succeſſours, the Town of Mileſtadt in Carinthia. Afterwards this Order ſinking very much in Diſcipline and Credit, Maximilian the IId. intended to bring it up to its firſt Inſtitution, but the Civil Wars about Religion hinder'd the Execution of the Deſign. Wolfgang, lib. 3. Hiſt. Auſtr. &c.

GEORGIA Proper, formerly Iberia, contains the Cities of Teflis, Gory, Suram and My. The Air is dry, very hot in Summer, very cold in Winter; their Summer begins in May, but laſts till the end of November. The Soil is very fruitful, provided it be well water'd; and the Bread and Fruits are Excellent. Their Wild-Fowl have an Admirable taſte, and their Wild-Boar is very delicate. The Common People live generally upon Pig, which never does 'em any hurt, tho' they Eat never ſo much. The Caſpian Sea, and the River Kur, ſupply them with Fiſh. Their Wine is extraordinary and cheap.

GEORGIA Proper, was a Kingdom of which all the Inhabitants were Chriſtians, but ſince 1639. the Mahometans are mix'd among 'em; and the King of Perſia, having conquer'd the Country, has made two Kingdoms of it, of which he has given the Command to Princes, whom he calls Viceroys, and who are obliged to be Mahometans, if they will preſerve their Dignity. The Chriſtians are partly of the Sect of the Armenians, and a part obſerve the Greek Ceremonies. The Georgians are excellent Archers, and compoſe a good part of the King of Perſia's Cavalry, who relyes much upon their Courage and Fidelity. The People are generally ruddy and freſh Complexion'd, and the Women eſteem'd the faireſt in Aſia. They Cloiſter their Daughters very young, becauſe People ſteal 'em, to carry them into Turkey and Perſia, where they have extraordinary Prices for 'em. The Women never Feaſt with their Hus-bands; but after theſe have treated their Friends, they Invite and make Merry with thoſe of their own Sex. Great Numbers of Armenians, Greeks, Jews, Turks, Perſians, Tartars and Muſcovites dwell in this Country; having the free exerciſe of their ſeveral Religions. They build all their Churches upon Mountains and Hills, that they might be ſeen at the greater diſtance. For Religion the Natives differ little from the Mingrelians; They do not admit a particular Judgment, ſaying, that Souls are carried by their Guardian Angels before Jeſus Chriſt, who, if he finds 'em ſpotleſs, ſends 'em to a place of Light; if otherwiſe, to a place of Darkneſs, without any other Puniſhment; where they expect the Univerſal Judgment. They believe Infidels will not appear at the laſt Judgment, but remain in their place of Puniſhment. A Prieſt aſſiſts and reads Prayers at their Chriſtnings; but it's the Godfather that Baptizes. They confeſs very ſeldom, and when they do, it's only in general terms, viz. That they have ſinned againſt God, &c. They give the Communion to dying Children; They make uſe of Wooden Chalices; do not ſay each their Office, but content 'emſelves to hear it read. The Prince is Abſolute as well in Spirituals as Temporals, and each Nobleman has Sovereign Power over his Vaſſals and Servants; which they exerciſe in a very Arbitrary manner. They Divorce their Wives when they are found to be Barren, or convicted of Adultery, or known unſupportably troubleſome and quarrelſome. The Georgians are generally very ignorant and unpoliſh'd, and great Drunkards. The Principal Noblemen of Georgia Profeſs outwardly the Turkiſh Religion, which among many of them is thought no better than a Politick Compliance for Preferment and Penſions, at the Mahometan Court. And that they may have the Honour of marrying their Daughters to the Perſian King. Tavernier, Sir John Chardin.

GERALDI, (Hugo) Biſhop of Cahors, rais'd to that Dignity, by Clement V. in 1312. Who likewiſe gave him 10000 Florins in Gold; but was afterwards Accuſed and Convicted of ſo many Crimes, that John XXII. publickly degraded him, and deliver'd him to the Criminal Judges; by whom he was condemn'd to be Flea'd, dragged to the Pile, and then Burnt. Ciaconius.

GERANIA, an Ancient Town of Mæſia towards Thrace and Mount Hæmus, inhabited in old times, if we believe Poets, by a Race of Pygmies, the talleſt of whom hardly exceeded a Cubit in height. They add, That theſe were attack'd, worſted and forc'd from their Country by Storks; That their Women bore Children at 5 Years of Age, and were look'd upon as old and decay'd at 8. Pliny.

GERARD, (Gilbert) a Branch of the ancient Family of the Gerards of Brin in Com. Lanc. which derive their Deſcent from the great Geraldine or Fits-Geralds Stock in Ireland, was for his profound Learning and Knowledge in the Laws, made choice of to be Autumn-Reader in Grays-Inn, and in 2 and 3 of Ph. and M. joyn'd with Nicholas Bacon, afterwards Lord-Keeper of the Great Seal, in the Office of Treaſurer for that Society. In the time of which Queen, upon the Lady Elizabeth's being queſtion'd at the Council-Table, he was permitted to Plead there on her behalf, and perform'd his part ſo well, as that he ſuffer'd Impriſonment for the ſame in the Tower of London, during the remaining Term of Queen Mary's Reign; for which Service, and other great Merits, Queen Elizabeth conſtituted him her Attorney-General the Firſt of her Reign, in which Truſt he continued until the 23d. of her Reign, and then ſhe made him Maſter of the Rolls, having Knighted him two Years before. He built that ſtately Quadrangular Fabrick of Stone Leaded on the Roof at Gerard's-Bromely in Com. Staff. his Principal Seat, and dying in 1592. his Son Thomas ſucceeded, and being conſtituted Knight-Marſhal, was 1 Jac. advanced to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Gerard of Gerard's-Bromley before-mention'd; alſo in 14 Jac. to be the King's Lieutenant in the Marches of Wales, commonly call'd Lord Preſident: departing this Life in An. 1618. he was ſucceeded by Gilbert his Son and Heir, who dying in 1622. Dutton his Eldeſt Son and Heir ſucceeded, Married firſt Mary Daughter to Francis Earl of Weſtmorland, by whom he had Iſſue only one Son Charles, and Mary a Daughter, Married to Sir Anthony Cape of Hanwell in Com. Oxon. Baronet. His ſecond Wife was Elizabeth Daughter and Coheir to Henry Earl of Thomond in Ireland, by whom he had Iſſue Elizabeth Married to William Spencer of Aſhton in Com. Lanc. Eſq; a younger Son to the Lord Spencer of Aſhton in Com. Lanc. Eſq; and dying in 1640. being then 28 Years of Age, was Buried at Aſhley, to whom ſucceeded his only Son, who Married Jane, the only ſurviving Daughter and ſole Heir to George Digby of Sandon in Com. Staff. Eſq; and by her had one only Son nam'd Digby. Born 1662. Dugdale.

GERARD, (Charles) great Grandſon to the above-mention'd Sir Gilbert Gerard Knight, having been train'd up in Martial Diſcipline from his Youth in the United Provinces, commonly call'd the Netherlands, in 1642. repair'd to His Majeſty at Shrewsbury, ſhortly after the Erection of his Royal Standard at Nottingham the ſame Year. And in a little time raiſing a Regiment of Foot and a Troop of Horſe at his own Charge, behav'd himſelf with great Valour in divers ſharp Encounters: Firſt in the Battel of Kineton, where he received ſome dangerous Wounds; and afterwards in ſundry other Fights, viz. at the taking of Litchfield, and Skirmiſh at Nottingham-Bridge, in the firſt Battel of Newbury and Relief of Newark. Then as General to Prince Rupert in the Parts of South Wales, where his great Valour and judicious Conduct, made him famous for his Victories at Kaerdiffe, Kidwelly, and Kaermarthen; and for his Succeſs in taking the Caſtles of Cardignan, Emblin, Langhorne and Roche; as alſo the ſtrong Town of Haverford-Weſt, with the Caſtles of Picton and Carew. Beſides theſe his own Perſonal Actings, he had two Valiant Brothers, Edward a Colonel of Foot, and Sir Gilbert Gerard Knight; as alſo two Uncles, Sir Gilbert Gerard Knight, then Governor of Worceſter, and Ratcliffe Gerard Lieutenant-Colonel, which Ratcliffe had three Sons; 1ſt. Ratcliffe, 2d. John afterwards put to Death by Cromwell; and 3d. Sir Gilbert Gerard, now Baronet; who were all in the Battel of Kineton and ſundry other ſharp Encounters, during the whole courſe of thoſe late Unhappy Wars. In conſideration therefore of theſe his great Services, he was by the King made Lieutenant-General of his Horſe; and by Letters-Patent bearing Date at Oxford 21 Car. 1. advanced to the Degree and Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Gerard of Brandon, in Com. Suff. and afterwards by King Charles II. created Earl of Macclesfield. Dugdale.

GERARD, Surnam'd Thom, Guardian of the Hoſpital of Jeruſalem, and afterwards Founder and Firſt Great-Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem. The Merchants of Amalfi, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples, ſituate upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea, between Naples and Salern, having obtain'd leave of the Calife of Egypt and Syria, Built in Jeruſalem a Church for Divine Service; Founded a Monaſtery of Monks of St. Benet, to receive and entertain the Chriſtian Pilgrims, and a Convent of Nuns, call'd of Mary Magdalene, to receive the Woman that ſhould viſit the Holy Sepulchre, &c. An Hoſpital was Built in 1080. and the Adminiſtration thereof given to Gerard, who after Godfrey of Bouillon had taken the City, in 1099. Founded the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem; Inſtituted a Rule and a Religious Habit for the Knights, who at their reception, vow'd Chaſtity, Obedience, Self-Abdication; to aſſiſt the Chriſtians always, &c. Gerard having Govern'd the Order 18 Years, died much lamented in 1118. and was Succeeded by Raymond du Puy. Boſio Hiſt. de Lordre de St. Jean de Jeruſalem.

GERAW, in Lat. Geravia, a Country of Germany in the Palatinate of the Rhine, between the Rhine and the Mein, where ſtands the Town of Darmſtadt; which derives it's Name to the Lantgraviate of Darmſtadt, belonging to a Prince of the Family of Heſſe.

GERBEROY, in Lat. Gerboredum, a Town of France in Beauvoiſis, 4 or 5 Leagues from Beauvais upon the Frontiers of Picardy, and a Lordſhip belonging to the Biſhop of that City.

GERBES, an Iſland of Africa, upon the Mediterranean Sea, which depends upon the Kingdom of Tripoli. It is ſeparated from the Continent by a narrow Streight, over which there is a Bridge. The Arabians give it the Nane of Zerbi. Ptolemy's Lætophagitis, Pliny's Meninx, and Polybius's Mirmex. The Spaniards were Maſters of it, till defeated by the Infidels, in 1560.

GERGAN, Archbiſhop of Arta in Epirus liv'd in the XVII. Cent. and wrote a Catechiſm in Vulgar Greek for the Uſe of his Country men, agreeing in moſt things with the Sentiments of the Reformation; ſoon after Cariophilus endeavoured to confute this Syſtem. His Refutation is wrote in Vulgar Greek and Latin, publiſh'd at Rome, in 1631. R. Simon.

GERGEAU, Gergolium, a City of France upon the Loire, 4 Leagues above Orleans, with a Bridge for the Paſſage of the River. The Engliſh took it in 1420; but the next Year the D. of Alencon retook it by Aſſault.

GERGENTI, in Latin Agrigentum and Agragas. A Town of Sicily, with a Biſhop's See, formerly under the Archbiſhoprick of Syracuſe, but now under that of Palermo. The Town takes its Name from a Mountain call'd Agragas, at the Foot of which it ſtands. Elian aſſures us, that Plato relates of the Inhabitants of this Town, that they built as if they thought themſelves Immortal; and Gormondiz'd, as if they ſhould never have the ſatisfaction of another Meal. Phalaris ſeiz'd the Government of Agrigentum, and made himſelf abſolute about the hundred and eighty third Year of Rome. After him Alcamon, Alcander, Thero and Traſidius were Sovereigns of this Place. Afterwards the Town fell into the Hands of the Carthaginians; who, in the 347th. Year of Rome, making a Deſcent upon Sicily, ſurpriz'd it in the beginning of Winter: But afterwards the Romans expell'd the Carthaginians, and made themſelves Maſters of the Place. Agrigentum was one of the biggeſt, fineſt, and moſt populous Cities in Sicily; Diodorus gives a Noble Deſcription of it; Empedocles the Philoſopher and Poet; Carcinus the Tragick Poet, and Metellus a Famous Muſician, were born here. Agrigentum ſuffer'd very much, by the Incurſions of the Saracens; it is at preſent under the Spaniard, and though much fallen from its former greatneſs, is ſtill a conſiderable Town. The Lakes near Agrigentum had ſome extraordinary Qualities; The Water being ſalt, like that of the Sea: And if People, who could not ſwim, were thrown in, they never ſunk, but floated like Wood, upon the Surface. There was a Fort in this Town built by Dædalus; ſome time before the taking of Troy, ſo well contriv'd by this famous Engineer, that three or four Men could Defend the Town againſt the Enemy: This extraordinary Strength, made King Cocalus chooſe it for his Royal Seat and Exchequer. St. Auguſtin tells us, that the Salt of Agrigentum was of ſuch an extraordinary Nature, that it grew fluid by ſetting it to the Fire, and ſpit and crackl'd, if you put it into the Water. Strabo, lib. 6. Diodorus Siculus. Thucid. lib. 6. Cluvier Sicilia Antiqua. Auguſt. de Civit. Dei, lib. 21. cap. 5. &c.

GERMANICUS, (Cæſar) the Son of Druſus and Antonia, Auguſtus's Niece, was adopted by the Emperor Tiberius, his Uncle by the Father's ſide, Queſtor 5 Years before the Laws allow'd it, and preſently after that, Conſul. Being ſent to the Army in Germany, when the Legions upon the News of Auguſtus's Death, moſt obſtinately refus'd Tiberius, and would have advanc'd him to the Imperial Throne, he quieted their exaſperated Minds, and prevented their Revolt; and ſoon after Vanquiſhing the Enemy, had the Honour of a Triumph allow'd him. Being ſent into the Eaſt, he overthrew the King of Armenia, and reduc'd Cappadocia into a Province. He died at Antioch of a lingring Diſeaſe, not without Suſpicion of Poiſon given him by Piſo's contrivance, and the fraudulent Connivance of Tiberius himſelf. He had by Agrippina his Wife, Grand-daughter of Auguſtus, Three Sons and as many Daughters. Nero, Married to Julia Druſilla, and kill'd by Tiberius, Druſus, and Caligula the Emperor. Agrippina Married firſt to Domitius, by whom ſhe had Nero, afterwards Emperor. Secondly, to Criſpus Paſſienus; And Thirdly, to the Emperor Claudius. Druſilla, the ſecond Daughter of Germanicus, was Married to Lucius Caſſius; and afterwards to Marcus Lepidus. Livia Married to Marcus Vinicius. Tacit. Sueton.

GERMANUS, born at Auxerre, where he was Biſhop in the Vth. Cent. He was Maſter of a great deal of Elocution, and counted one of the beſt Pleaders of his Time. He was afterwards intruſted with the Government of the Town, and after the Death of the Biſhop Amatur, was choſen to ſucceed him. In 429. the French Biſhops ſent him into Great Britain with Lupus, Biſhop of Troye, to oppoſe the Errours of Pelagius and Celeſtius; theſe two Prelates manag'd the Buſineſs with great Diligence and Succeſs, and after their Return, Germanus made a ſecond Voyage upon the ſame Account, and 'tis ſaid, work'd Miracles among the Britons. Germanus died at Ravenna, in Italy, in the Year 448. Proſper. Chron. Baron. Annal.

GERMANUS, (John) Biſhop of Nevers, and afterwards of Châlon upon the Saône, was one of the moſt Eminent Prelates of the XVth. Cent. His Merit preferr'd him to the Favour of Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, who procur'd him his Biſhoprick, and made him Chancellor of his own Order, of the Golden Fleece. His Works are, Adverſus Mahumetanos & Inſideles. Adverſus Alcoranum, lib. 5. In lib. 4. Sententiarum. Theſaurus Pauperum. Iter Cœli, ſeu de Regimine Eccleſiaſticorum & Laicorum. Mappa Mundi, &c. Barthol. Chaſſaneus in Catal. Glor. Mundi. La Croix du Main. Bibl. Franc. &c.

GERMANY, a Large fruitful and pleaſant Country of Europe, which has the Title of an Empire. Authors do not agree why this Country was call'd Germany. Cæſar in his Commentaries, Tacitus, Dion, and other Writers ſeem to intimate, That the Eburons, Condruſes, Segnes, Cereſes and Pemanes; having, when they croſs'd the Rhine to ſettle in Gaul, taken the common Name of Tongres, were ſoon after call'd by the Natives Germans, or Brothers; others will have it come from Germannen, i. e. all Man; others from Werren, to Diſpute or Quarrel; and add, That they were firſt call'd Weermans, then Guerremans, and at laſt Germans; but it's more probable, the Country being inhabited by Scythians, Gauls, &c. that confederating together againſt the Romans, they took the Name of Germans, to ſignify their Union and Alliance. Nor do Authors agree better about its Limits; ſome bound it with the German and Baltick Seas, with the Rivers Rhine, Danube and Viſtule. When Charlemain undertook its Conqueſt, it was bounded with the Danube to the South, the Rhine to the Weſt, the Baltick to the North, and Sarmatia to the Eaſt. But now it is bounded on the North by the Baltick Sea, Denmark and the German Ocean; on the Eaſt by Hungary, Pruſſia and Poland; on the South by the Alpes, which part it from Italy; on the Weſt by the Netherlands, Lorrain and Franche Comtè. It's divided different ways; Firſt, into Higher and Lower, the Upper comprehends Alſace, Tirol, the Dutchy of Bavaria, the Upper Palatinate of Franconia, Suabia, Bohemia, Sileſia, Moravia, Auſtria, Carinthia, Carniola, Stiria, &c. The Provinces of Lower Germany are the Netherlands upon the Rhine; Weſtphalia, Heſſe, Brunſwick, Thuringia, Miſnia, Luſatia, Upper and Lower Saxony upon the Elbe. The Emperor Maximilian the Firſt, divided it into 10 Circles in 1512. Viz. of Auſtria, Bavaria, Franconia, Suabia, Burgundy, of the Upper Rhine, Weſtphalia, Upper and Lower Saxony; which may be ſeen under their ſeveral Heads. The Length of the whole from Eaſt to Weſt, i. e. from the Viſtule or Weiſſel to the Rhine, is eſteem'd 840 Italian Miles; the Breadth from North to South from the Ocean to the Town of Brixen in Tirol 740. So that the Figure being almoſt ſquare, it may take up 3160 Miles in compaſs, or thereabouts, ſituate in the Northern temperate Zone, betwixt the middle Parallels of the 6th. and 10th. Climates, the longeſt Day in the moſt Southern Parts being 15 hours and a half, and in the moſt Northern 17 and a quarter. The Soil in general is very fertile, and there is ſcarce any Part but furniſhes all things neceſſary for the life or uſe of Man; there being Silver, Copper, Tin, Lead, and Iron Mines, and ſome of Quickſilver, excellent Wine, Corn in abundance, Wool, Cattle, &c. The Principal Rivers of this Country are the Danube, which after receiving into it above 60 Navigable Rivers, beſides a far greater number of leſſer ones, in its long courſe of 1500. Miles diſcharges it ſelf into the Euxine Sea. The Rhine, which after a courſe of 800 Miles empties it ſelf into the German Ocean. The Elbe, which has a courſe of 400 Miles. The Oder, Weſer, Weiſſel, the Moſelle, Neckar, &c. The chief Mountains are, The Chain that encircles Bohemia; The Abnobus in the Dutchy of Wirtemberg; The Thaunus of the Ancients towards Mayence; The Sudeti or Suditi, now call'd the Mountains Wenenberg and Fietelberg, Mont Godart, Mont Jura a part of the Alps, &c. It had a famous Foreſt in the time of the Romans call'd Hercinia, 60 Days Journey in length and 9 in breadth. The Black Foreſt, which the Romans call'd The Foreſt of Mars, and Ptolemy, The Deſart of the Helvetians is a part of it, and takes up the whole Tract of Land about the Rhine, between Alſace and the Lake of Conſtance. There is another towards Bohemia, call'd Bohemewaldt, with ſome other parts of the Ancient Hercinia. Tacitus ſpeaking of the Ancient Germans ſays, They were the firſt that Sung when they march'd to Fight, and read Verſes that animated 'em, they judg'd of the Succeſs of an Engagement by the Shouts and Huſſa's of the Onſet. The Men were tall and robuſt, impatient of Heat or Thirſt, but could endure Hunger and Cold to admiration. Their Wives as Martial as they themſelves, accompanied 'em to the War, dreſs'd their Wounds, and provided 'em with Neceſſaries, and for this reaſon brought their Husbands no other Portion but Arms; they were very Chaſt; if any happen'd to be taken in Adultery, the Husband ſhav'd and ſtrip'd her in the preſence of her Friends, then led her about the Town, and turn'd her away. It was eſteem'd an unpardonable Immorality to ſhut their Doors, they paſs'd Nights and Days in drinking, made their Alliances, Reconciliations, and form'd their Deſigns ſo. It's true, they ſometime forbore coming to a Reſolution until the next Day, that having deliberated when they could not diſſemble, they might reſolve when in no danger of being deceiv'd. Their Year was Lunar, and they obſerv'd a ridiculous Maxim, of never fighting in the decline of the Moon; counted time by Nights. Their Infantry ſurpaſs'd the Cavalry; for which reaſon, they ſometimes mixt Foot with Horſe, they drew up in Batallions and Squadrons, thought it no diſhonour to fly, ſo that they could come again to the Charge, and often made uſe of it for a Stratagem; they eſteem'd nothing ſo infamous, as the throwing away or loſing their Buckler or Shield, they carried off their Dead in the heat of the Battel: Their Burials were without Pomp. They burn'd the Bodies of their Noblemen, but neither perfum'd the Pile, nor adorn'd it with rich Habits, adding nothing but ſometimes the Arms and Horſe of the deceas'd. The Germans of our Age are laborious, ſimple, ambitious in Love-Intrigues, cruel in War, ready to ſerve for Money, conſtant in the Religion they embrace, Valiant, true Friends, open Enemies, jealous and miſtruſtful, plentiful Eaters and Drinkers. The Invention of Printing, Gun Powder and Fire-Arms, are attributed to'em; for there have been very Learned Men of this Country in all Sciences, and able Artiſts in every Calling. As for the Government of Germany, as the People were always great Lovers of Liberty, it's well recorded in Hiſtory how much they reſiſted the Romans firſt, and the French afterwards. For all Authors agree, That they were never all ſubdued neither by the one nor other; though the whole Body was not under one Sovereign, ſome Parts living as Commonwealths, others under petty Princes and Captains, whoſe Authority was limited by Reaſon and Law. When Charlemain ſubdued a great part, they begun to have Dukes, who repreſented the Prince, and two ſorts of Counts, the one to defend the Provinces, the other to adminiſter Juſtice in 'em; the firſt were oblig'd to accompany the Prince, and were therefore call'd Comites. Charlemain and his Succeſſors to Lewis the IIId. enjoy'd the Empire; but then the Princes choſe Conrad, and after him Henry the Fowler, who was ſucceeded by his Son Otho, ſirnamed the Great, after whom the Emperours had their Dignities by Succeſſion, the conſent of the People being neceſſary only to declare the Capacity of thoſe upon whom the Empire was devolv'd; this Cuſtom held to Henry the IVth's time, who occaſion'd the Conſtitution made for the Election of Emperours. This Prince was depos'd in 1105. and afterwards to prevent the Confuſion which the great number of States and Sovereigns unavoidably caus'd, the whole Power of chooſing was committed to the ſeven Chiefs among 'em; ſome think this was done in Otho IIId's Reign, others ſay, it was after Frederick IId's Death; however it was confirm'd by Charles IV. in his Ordinance call'd, The Golden Bull, which regulates the form of Election and Power of the Electors. This quality is now annex'd to certain Lands, ſo that whoever is in Poſſeſſion of 'em, are thereby Electors. Theſe are Eccleſiaſtick or Secular. The firſt are the Archbiſhops of Mayence, Treves, and Cologn. The Seculars are the Kingdom of Bohemia, the Duke of Bavaria, the Duke of Saxony, the Marquiſs of Brandenbourg, the Prince Palatine of the Rhine, and Duke of Hanover; who, beſides the Power of Election, have that of Capitulating with, and Depoſing the Emperour. So that if one Suffrage be wanting, there may be a Proteſt enter'd againſt the Proceedings. By the right of Capitulation, they attribute to themſelves great Privileges, as of making War, Coining, having a care of the publick Intereſt and Security of the States, and the Emperour promiſeth 'em upon Oath to receive the Empire upon theſe Conditions, and maintain the Liberties and Privileges of the whole Body that compoſes it. The Power of Depoſition has been put in Execution ſometimes. The Archbiſhop of Mayence publiſheth the Emperour's Death, and gives notice to the Electours to meet. Though the Election is commonly at Francfort, yet there is no inviolable Neceſſity that it ſhould; for ſome Emperours have been Crown'd in Aix la Chapelle, Milan, Bologne, and at Rome. The ſame Electour takes the Title of Chancellour of Germany. The Electour of Treves of Chancellour of the Gauls. And he of Cologn, of Italy. The Duke of Bavaria the Great Maſter of the Empire, carries the Golden Apple. The Electour of Saxony the Sword. The Electour of Brandenburg Great Chamberlain, the Scepter. The Electour Palatine is Great Treaſurer of the Empire. The Power of the Electours is equal in all things to the Emperours, excepting what the Germans call Fahn Leben, which ſignifies the Mark of Homage, for the making of a Fief or Tenure, held under a Sovereign. Formerly, when the Empire was vacant, either by the Death or Abſence of the Emperour, the Electours Palatine and of Saxony, exercis'd the Office of Vicars and Regents; but now the Electour of Bavaria diſputes that Honour with the firſt: when there is a King of the Romans, he governs the Empire as Vicar-General, and ſucceeds the Emperour without the trouble of a new Election. The Matriculæ of the Empire, are Contracts, wherein the Privileges of the Princes are marked, both for Immunities, Precedency in Diets, &c. The Members or Orders of the Empire conſiſt of Electours Eccleſiaſtick and Secular, Princes, Counts, Barons, and Imperial or free Towns. The Eccleſiaſtick Princes are, the Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Abbots, and Abbeſſes, the Great Maſter of the Teutonick Order, the Secular Princes, the Arch-Duke of Auſtria, the Dukes of Bavaria, Saxony, Marquiſs of Brandenbourg, the Dukes of Brunſwick and Lunebourg, of Juliers, Cleves and Bergue, of Mekelbourg, Pomeren, Wirtemberg, the Landtgraves of Heſſe, the Marquiſſes of Baden, the Dukes of Sax-Lawenbourg, of Holſtein, Savoy, Lorrain, the Landtgraves of Leichtemberg, the Princes of Anhalt, the Counts of Aremberg and Hohenzolleren, &c. The Free and Imperial Cities are, Augsbourg, Cologne, Nuremberg, Stratsbourg, Francfort, Spire, Lubeck, &c. and make the third Part of the States of the Empire. The Emperour muſt be a Native German, or one by Extraction, a Laick and no Churchman, a Roman Catholick, a Count or Baron at leaſt, but there is no Age ſpecified in the Conſtitution; for Otho was choſen at 11 Years of Age, Henry III. at 12. Henry IV. at 5. Frederick II. when but in the Cradle. The States of the Empire aſſembled at Francfort in 1338. and at Cullen in 1339. Voted that the Election alone conferr'd the full Imperial Power, ſo that the Emperours now after the uſual Oath declare, That the two Coronations that were formerly ſolemniz'd at Rome and Milan are unneceſſary. The Popes proteſted againſt theſe Ordinances, and refus'd to acknowledge the Emperours that were neither Crown'd by themſelves, nor by vertue of their diſpenſing Brief, which confirm'd the Election. Now, when the Place and Day are agreed upon, the Archbiſhop of Mayence acquaints the Magiſtrates of Aix la Chapelle and Nuremberg, and theſe ſend by their Deputies the Regalia, in their Cuſtody, viz. the Magiſtrates of Nuremberg, the Golden Crown of Charlemain, which weighs 14 pound, the Ring, Scepter, Globe, Shooes, Sword, given as is ſaid, to that Prince by an Angel, the Magiſtrates of Aix la Chapelle, a Shrine covered with Diamonds; wherein, they ſay, is kept ſome of St. Stephen's Blood, Charlemain's Sword, with his Belt, and a Book of Goſpels in Golden Letters, made uſe of by that Prince. After Maſs and the Coronation, the Emperour is conducted by the three Eccleſiaſtical Electours, the Secular walking before 'em to Charlemain's Chair, if the Ceremony be perform'd at Aix la Chapelle, where that Chair is kept; having ſeated himſelf thereon, he that Officiates pronounces theſe words, Take and keep Poſſeſſion of this Place conferr'd upon you, not by Right of Inheritance or Paternal Succeſſion, but by the free Suffrages of the Electours of the German Empire, and more particularly, by the Providence of the Almighty, &c. Then the Emperour attended by the Secular Electours, makes Knights by touching 'em with Charlemain's Sword, and is made Canon of the Collegiate Church of Aix la Chapelle. Before Charlemain's time, and after him, not only when the Empire was Hereditary, but even when it paſs'd by Election to the Families of Saxony, Franconia and Suabia, to Frederick II. in 1245. its Government was purely Monarchical, both in Germany and Italy. But the Electors and Princes of Germany, have ſince that time inſenſibly attributed to themſelves ſeveral Privileges; ſo that now 'tis Monarchical and Ariſtocratick. There being ſome things wherein the Emperor acts as Sovereign without the Concurrence of any other, and others wherein he muſt call the Electors and States of the Empire. He takes all the Marks of the Ancient Weſtern Emperors, with the Titles of Ever-Auguſt, Cæſar, Sacred Majeſty, &c. His Imperial Crown is clos'd with a Globe at top on't as an Emblem of Univerſal Monarchy. He confers the Secular high Dignities of King, Prince, Arch-Duke, &c. For it was Henry II. that erected the Dukedom of Hungary into a Kingdom in favour of Stephen Duke thereof. Henry IV. created Vratiſlaus or Ladiſlaus Duke of Bohemia King; Frederick I. gave to Prince Peter the Kingdom of Denmark; Otho the IIId. erected the Dutchy of Poland into a Kingdom, in favour of Boleſlaus. The Emperor has alſo the Diſpoſal of the Fiefs of the Empire, whereof he gives the Inveſtiture to Eccleſiaſticks by the Scepter, and to Seculars by the Banner or Sword. The Electors and Princes of the Empire ſwear Allegiance to him, he has the entire diſpoſition of all Eſtates and principalities, which accrew to the Empire by Forfeiture or otherwiſe. He grants Pardons, Inſtitutes or Confirms Univerſities and Academies, and has ſeveral other marks of Sovereignty. But he cannot alienate nor mortgage the Fiefs of the Empire, grant the Privilege of Coining Money, Confiſcate the Goods or Eſtates of Rebels, make any Innovation in matter of Religion, eſtabliſh or aboliſh Laws, raiſe or ſink the value of Money, declare War in or out of the Empire, impoſe Taxes, raiſe Men, build New Fortifications, &c. without the Conſent and general Approbation of the States of the Empire, unleſs in very emergent Caſes, and then the Approbation of the Electors ſufficeth, as the Authority of the Emperor alone is enough to make a Truce, and grant Suſpenſion of Arms. Demeſns of the Prince and of the Crown are different, in all Elective Kingdoms; the Imperial Demeſns were formerly very conſiderable, but are fallen ſo low now, that they hardly defray the coſts of the Empire, and pay ſome of its officers; for not one Town belongs to the Emperor as Emperor. His whole Revenue conſiſts in Aids, and what they call Roman Months, paid by the States and Members of the Empire, and other Subſidies paid by the Imperial Towns, which amount but to about 40000 Livres, in Taxes of the Chancelery and Impoſitions upon the Jews, call'd the Money of Oblation. The Title of King of the Romans in the ſence it's now taken in, was unknown in the time of Charlemain, for that Prince took the Title as King of Rome, his Succeſſors beſtow'd it upon their Preſumptive Heirs and Succeſſors; ſo that it was much the ſame with the Title of Cæſar, given by the Ancient Emperors of Rome. Now the King of the Romans, is one choſen by the Electors in the Emperor's Life-time, to have the Management of Affairs in his Abſence, as Vicar-General of the Empire, and to Succeed him without any farther Election or Confirmation, they do not ſwear Allegiance to him untill after the Emperor's Death, he is call'd Auguſt, but not always Auguſt, as the Emperor; The Spread-Eagle that he bears for Arms has but one Head, and he has no Power in the Empire, but in the Emperor's Abſence. The three Colleges of the Empire are, 1. That of Electors. 2. That of Princes. 3. The College of the Free or Imperial Towns; This diſtinction was eſtabliſh'd in the Diet at Francfort in 1580. The Electors are Princes of the Empire too, as Princes they are Sovereign in their own Territories with ſome certain reſtrictions that make 'em depend of the Emperor and Empire, as Electors beſides the Power of chooſing the Emperor and King of the Romans, they have Precedency of all other Princes of the Empire, even of Cardinals and Kings. There is this Difference between the Secular and Eccleſiaſtick Electors, that the firſt have an Active and Paſſive Voice, i. e. may chooſe and be choſen; the laſt an Active only. The three Archbiſhops are to be 30 Years compleat before they can be advanced to this Dignity, the Secular 18, before they can do the Function; when they ſucceed younger, an Uncle or the next Kinſman takes his Place and Habit, and Adminiſters for him. The Secular Electors have each their Vicars, who officiate in their abſence; and theſe Charges are Hereditary in the Families that poſſeſs them. The King of Bohemia has for his Vicar the Baron of Limbourg, to execute the Office of Cup-bearer. The Duke of Bavaria Great Maſter of the Palace, the Count of Truchſes. The Elector of Saxony Great Marſhal, Count Papenheim. The Marquiſs of Brandenbourg Great Chamberlain, the Count of Hohenzollern. The Elector Palatin Great Treaſurer, the Count of Sinzendorf. The College of Princes conſiſts of all the other Secular and Eccleſiaſtical Princes of the Empire, of all the Abbots, Counts, &c. The Members of this College have their deliberative and deciſive Voices in the general Diets, and Contribute to the Neceſſities of the Empire, as they are tax'd in the Matriculæ or Regiſters of the States. The Arch-Duke of Auſtria, and Arch-Biſhop of Saltzbourg are Alternative Directors of it. The College of the Imperial Cities aſſembles apart, as the other two, to deliberate upon what is propos'd relating to the Empire; their Deputies have their deliberative and deciſive Voices in General Aſſemblies, create Magiſtrates in their own Juriſdiction, make Laws of their own proper Authority, Coin, Fortifie the Places belonging to them, raiſe and do any thing elſe that the Princes of the Empire are allow'd to do. Germany had formerly Eighty or Eighty five Imperial Towns, whereof there are but 58 now remaining, which are parted into two Diviſions in the Diets, viz. that of the Rhine and Suabia; The Firſt Comprehends Cullen, Aix la Chapelle, Strasbourg, Lubeck, Worms, Spire, Francfort, with the 10 Cities of Alſace, &c. The Second, Ratisbonne, Augsbourg, Nuremberg, Ulm, with 32 more. The Imperial Diets are compos'd of theſe three Colleges. The Emperor ſeated upon a Throne, has on his Right the Electors of Mayence, Bavaria, and Brandenbourg; on the Left, the Electors of Cologn, Saxony and Palatinate, the Elector of Treves ſitting right over againſt him. The other Eccleſiaſtick Princes are on the Right, the Secular on the Left; the Deputies of the Imperial City upon Forms that croſs from Right to Left. The Emperor having propos'd what he thinks fit to the Aſſembly, they deliberate, and afterwards meet to communicate their Sentiments, ſend the reſult to the Emperor, whoſe Approbation makes it an Imperial Conſtitution. As for the Circles of the Empire above-mention'd, each has its Directors and Colonel; the firſt have Power to Aſſemble the States of their reſpective Circles and regulate the Publick Affairs. The Colonel commands the Militia, takes care of the Artillery and Magazines; and as all Members of the Empire are to contribute to its Neceſſities, each Circle is oblig'd to provide a certain Number of Horſe and Foot, or to Pay an Equivalent in Money every Month: Theſe Contributions are call'd Roman Months, words which ſome think derive their Original from a Tax impos'd firſt of all to Pay 20000 Foot and 4000 Horſe, that attended the Emperors when they went to Rome. The Circle of Auſtria has for Director the Emperor as its Arch-Duke; the Circle of Bavaria, the Duke of that Name and Arch-Biſhop of Saltzbourg; the Circle of Suabia abounding more in Imperial Towns than any other, has for Directors the Biſhop of Conſtance and Duke of Wirtemberg. The Circle of Franconia, the Biſhop of Bamberg and Marquis of Bareith or Culembach; The Circle of Upper Saxony, the Elector of that Name; The Circle of Lower Saxony, very conſiderable for the Powerful States it comprehends, has the King of Sweden, as Duke of Bremen, and the Elector of Brandenbourg, as Duke of Magdebourgh, Co-Directors with the Eldeſt of the Dukes of Brunſwick and Lunenbourg. The Circle of Weſtphalia abounds with war-like Men and excellent Horſes, and has for Directors the Marquiſs of Brandenbourg and Duke of Newbourg (as Maſters of the Dutchies of Juliers, Cleves, Mentz, the Counties of Marck, Ravenberg, and the Lordſhip of Ravenſtein) with the Biſhop of Munſter; The Circle of the Lower Rhine, call'd that of 4 Electors, becauſe it comprehends the 3 Eccleſiaſtical Electorates and the Palatinate, all ſituate upon the Rhine, has for Directors the Elector of Mayence and Elector Palatine; The Circle of the Upper Rhine, the Biſhop of Worms and Elector Palatine, as Duke of Simmeren. The Circle of Burgundy took its Name from the County of that Name, which is now in the Poſſeſſion of the King of France. The King of Spain is Sovereign Director of what is left of it both in Germany and Flanders, which Charles the Fifth got to be receiv'd as a Member of the Empire at the Diet of Augsbourg in 1548. yet independent of the Imperial Chamber of Spire, in the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, but ſubject to the Charges and Contributions. Juſtice is adminiſtred either in general Tribunals, or particular Courts. All the Princes, States and Members of the Empire have Sovereign Power in their own Territories, except in certain Caſes, wherein people may Appeal to the Imperial Chamber of Spire, or to the Aulique Council. In particular Courts they follow the Laws of the Empire, which conſiſts in Ancient Conſtitutions, the Golden Bull, the Pacification of Paſſaw, the Treaties of Weſtphalia, the Saxon Law eſtabliſh'd by Charlemain, and the Roman or Civil Law ſet up by the Emperour Juſtinian; which laſt is obſerv'd in all places where the Saxon has not been receiv'd. The two Supream Courts which have Juriſdiction all over the Empire, are the Imperial Chamber of Spire, and the Emperors Council. The Firſt by the Treaties of Weſtphalia, was to conſiſt of a R. C. Judge, 4 Preſidents, 2 Proteſtants and 2 R C. and 50 Councellors, whereof 24 were to be Proteſtant, 26 R. C. The Judge and the 4 Preſidents are nominated by the Emperor. As to the Qualifications of the Judge, he muſt be a Prince, Count or Baron; And the 4 Preſidents; muſt be two of them Swordmen and two men of Letters. But now this Chamber conſiſts of a leſſer Number of Officers. The Elector of Treves as Biſhopof*Spire*, is Judge; there are but two Preſidents, one a Proteſtant, the other a R.C. 15 Councellours, whereof 7 are Proteſtants. The other Sovereign, viz. The Emperour's Council, conſiſts of a R. C. Preſident, a Vice-Chancellor, 18 Councellors, whereof 9 are Proteſtants. They are made up of two Benches, One of 'em Gentleman and the other Lawyers. The Emperor, as Sovereign Judge, preſides in both theſe Courts, and pronounceth the Sentences when he is there in Perſon; and becauſe they that preſide in his Abſence repreſent him, they have the Privilege of carrying the Imperial Scepter, as a mark of their Dignity. There are two ſorts of Nobility in Germany, one immediate, depending only of the Emperor and Empire; the other, tho' it acknowledges the Emperor as chief, is under the Juriſdiction of other Princes; the firſt poſſeſs Hereditary Fiefs, for which they are oblig'd to Serve the Emperor in Perſon, on all occaſions, with a certain retinue. Theſe Fiefs are moſt of 'em in Suabia, Franconia and along the Rhine, and are a very conſiderable Body; their Lords have Power to raiſe Taxes, and to hold plea's of Civil and Criminal Courts. It's they, being the ancienter Nobility, that form the Chapters, whence are choſen the Electoral Arch-biſhops, for theſe muſt prove their Nobility by eight Deſcents, both by Father and Mother, Grandfather and Grandmother, through every Deſcent. This Ancient Nobleſs were formerly call'd to the general Diet, but afterwards their Attendance was diſpens'd with, and they privileg'd to tax themſelves when the Publick Good requir'd it. To conclude this Article, Leopold-Ignace-Francis-Balthaſar-Joſeph-Felicien, the preſent Emperor is the 45th. from Charlemain, who begun his Reign in 800, and the 11th. from Albert II. Duke of Auſtria, who fix'd the Title ſo in his Family in 1439. that it paſs'd to no other ſince.

GERMERSHEIM, a ſmall City of the Lower Palatinate, formerly a Free and Imperial City, but the Emperor Charles IV. gave it to Rupert, Elector Palatine, to whom and his Succeſſors it has ever ſince remain'd with all its dependencies, which are very large. It was very much ruin'd in the German Wars, but begins to recover it ſelf.

GERMIGNY, a Village of France in Bric, upon the River Main, a delightful placo, where the Biſhops of Meaux have their Country Habitation, beautify'd with lovely Gardens and Rivulets.

GERONTES, Senators or Ancients, inſtituted by Lycurgus after the Model of the Areopagites. They were 32, or as ſome ſay, 28 in Number, and were never admitted under Threeſcore Years of Age. They govern'd with the Kings, and upheld the People's Intereſt. Their Authority and that of the King's were equal in their Suffrages, nor could they be degraded from their Dignity, unleſs they were convicted of ſome great Crime. Chevreau.

GERONTIUS, a Captain under Conſtantine the Tyrant in the Vth. Age, quarrell'd with his Maſter, and deſigning to deſpoil him of his Purple, and ſet up Maximus one of his Creatures, Beſieg'd him in Vienna; but hearing that Honorius's Army was marching againſt him, under Conſtans, fled into Spain. The Soldiers deſpiſing him for his Flight, attack'd him in his own Houſe in 411. where finding he could not defend himſelf, he firſt Kill'd his Wife, and then Stabb'd himſelf to the Heart. Caſſiodorus & Proſper. Sozomen.

GERTRUYDENBERGA, S. Gertrudis Mons, a City of Holland upon the left ſide of the Merwe, 2 or 3 Leagues from Dort, and as many from Breda. It is built in the form of a Creſcent, and regularly fortify'd toward the Frontiers of Brabant. This City belongs in Fee to the Prince of Orange, and is a place where great Store of Salmon, Sturgeon, and Shad-fiſh are taken. The Hollanders ſurpriz'd it in 1573. Since which time it has been ſeveral times taken and retaken. Thuanus, Strada.

GERVASE of Tilbury, an Engliſhman, ſo call'd from the Place of his Birth upon the Thames, liv'd in the XIIIth. Cent. He was Nephew to King Henry the IId. of England, and very much in favour with the Emperour Otho IVth. Gervaſe dedicated a Deſcription of the World to this Emperour. He wrote ſomewhat of the Hiſtory of England, and likewiſe the Hiſtory of the Holy Land. A Treatiſe of the Original of the Burgundians, with another call'd Mirabilia Orbis. De Otiis Imperialibus, &c. which he likewiſe dedicates to the Emperour above-mention'd. Bale. Miræus. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. &c.

GERYON, Son of Chryſaorus, was King of three Iſlands upon the Coaſt of Spain, now call'd Majorca, Minorca and Yvica; which gave the Poets an occaſion to ſeign that Geryon had three Bodies. Others give three Bodies to Geryon, becauſe there were three Brothers of that Name, who liv'd together in ſuch perfect Unity, that they ſeem'd to have but one Soul. Some Mythologiſts will have it, That the 3 Bodies denoted the 3 different Subſtances that compoſe Thunder, the Subtile Matter that penetrates, a windy Subſtance that diſſipates and makes the Noiſe, and a Viſcous that burns; and to confirm this, ſay, That Jupiter's Thunderbolt was repreſented with three Darts or Points.

GESNER, (Conrade) of Zurich in Switzerland, a famous Phyſician, Surnam'd, the Pliny of Germany, and no leſs famous for his Works in Print. This great Man begun his Studies in France, and having finiſh'd 'em, travell'd into Italy; at his return, being choſen Profeſſor of Philoſophy, he apply'd himſelf particularly to explain what belong'd to Natural Hiſtory, and to find out a more Eaſie and Compendious way of learning Sciences than is commonly practis'd in Univerſities; His Writings are, his Bibliotheca Univerſalis. Hiſtoria Animalium, Vol. IV. De Serpentum natura, Lib. V. Catalogus Plantarum. Epiſtol. Medicin. L. II. De thermis Germaniæ & Helvetiæ, De Foſſilium Lapidum & gemmarum figuris & ſimilitudinibus. De Lacte, Operibus Lactariis, Lexion-Græco-Latinum, &c. Simler. Lorenzo Craſſo. Thuanus beſtows a high Encomium upon him, l. 38. He dy'd in 1565. in the 49th. Year of his Age.

GESTRICIA, a Province of Swedeland, having the Bothnic Bay to the Eaſt, and Decarlalie to the Weſt; wherein there are ſeveral Iron Mines.

GESULA, a Province of the Kingdom of Morocco in Barbary, to the Eaſt, bounded by the Province of Dara; to the Weſt by the Mountain of Laalem upon the Frontiers of the Province of Sus: to the North by the Province of Morocco; and Southward by the Teſſet. The Inhabitants boaſt themſelves the moſt Ancient People of Africa, as deſcended from the Getuli. There is neither City nor Wall'd-Town in all the Province, only Villages containing a Thouſand Inhabitants or more. There is every Year a Fair which laſts two Months; during which time, they give all Strangers that come to Traffick, their Diet Gratis. The Geſules have been always well us'd, ſince the Cheriffs reigned in Morocco, by reaſon of their Fidelity and Skill in handling their Muſquets. They were the firſt that learnt to caſt Iron and make it into Bullets, about 1542. during the Reign of Cheriff Hamet. Marmolius.

GETA, the Son of the Emperor Severus, and Brother of Caracalla. The Father declar'd 'em both Cæſars, and made them his Companions in the Empire: But when Severus was dead, Caracalla murder'd Geta in the Arms of his Mother. Herodian.

GETAE, a People of Scythia, who inhabited on both ſides the River Danube, between Mœſia, and Dacia. They fell into Macedon and Thrace, in 505. and defeated the Conſul Sabinianus, whom Anaſtaſius ſent againſt 'em. Upon which the Emperor gave 'em a vaſt Summ of Money to retire out of the Empire. Calviſius.

GETHES, King of Heruli, near the Palus Mœotis, came to Conſtantinople with the Princes and Lords of his Court, in the time of the Emperor Juſtinian, to receive Baptiſm. Paul Diacon.

GETULIA, a Spacious Region of Africa, where now ſtands part of Biledulgerid and Zaara, and which was formerly the utmoſt Limit of the Roman Conqueſts in Africa. Saluſt. &c.

GEX, or the Bailliage of Gex, which is comprehended frequently within Bugey, a Province of France, has to the North, the County of Burgundy; to the Eaſt, Le Pais de Vaud, in the Canton of Bern; to the Weſt, Bugel; and to the South, is ſeparated from Savoy by the River Rhone, and partly by the Lake of Geneva. There is in it a City of the ſame Name; which, together with its Baliwick, once depended upon the Duke of Savoy, but was reſign'd to France by the Treaty concluded at Lyons, in 1601. Baudrand.

GEZAIRA, a Tract of Africa, in Barbary, and one of the three Principal Parts of the Kingdom of Algiers, between the Province of Bugia to the Eaſt, and Teneza to the Weſt. To the North it is bounded by the Mediterranean Sea; and to the South, by Mountains, as Johannes Leo teſtifies. The Chief City of it is Algier; by the Arabians, Gezaira.

GHENEOA, a Kingdom or Province of Nigritia, in Africa, toward the Mouth of the River Niger. This Country was under the Dominion of the Lumptunes, and pay'd 'em a Tribute under the Reign of Soni-Heli. But his Succeſſor, Tſchia, vanquiſh'd the King of Gheneoa, about 1520 and carry'd him Priſoner to Gago, where he dy'd. Afterwards this Kingdom was reduc'd into a Province; and the great Fair uſually kept at Gheneoa, was remov'd to Tombut. There is neither City nor Caſtle in all the Countrey; only the Governor lives in a great Village with the Alfaqui's, or Magiſtrates, and the moſt Honourable of the Inhabitants. The Niger which overflows its Banks like Nile, makes an Iſland of this Village, in July, Auguſt, and September; and when the Water begins to riſe, the Merchants of Tombut load their Goods in Barks and Canoo's. The Province of Gheneoa abounds in Barley, Rice, Sheep and Fiſh. It alſo produces great Plenty of Cotton; and the Inhabitants exchange their Calicuts for Woollen Cloth of Europe, as alſo for Copper, Tin, Arms, &c. Dapper Deſtript. Afric.

GHET, a Letter of Divorce which the Jews give their Wives when they put 'em away upon any Diſtaſte. They ground this Practice upon thoſe words of the 14th. Chapter of Deuteronomy, If a man has married a woman who by her faults diſpleaſes him, let him write a letter of divorce, put it into her hand, and diſcharge her. But to hinder the Abuſes which may proceed from this Privilege, the Rabbins have order'd a great many Formalities to take up time, that the Husband might conſider what he does, and perhaps be reconcil'd to his Wiſe. The Letter is writ and ſign'd, before Witneſſes, deliver'd to the Woman, in the preſence of ſome Prieſt; who having read it, bids her not to Marry in Three Months time, leſt ſhe might be with Child. The Letter is commonly worded after this manner: “ On ſuch a Day, Month and “ Year, and in ſuch a Place, I G. H. do voluntarily divorce, “ put from me, and make free you E. B. heretofore my “ Wiſe, and give you leave to marry whom you pleaſe. R. Leon. de Modena.

GILBRATAR, a large Town upon the Lake of Marecaye, in the Province of Venezuela, in Caſtello del oro, toward the Coaſt of Southern America; where the beſt Spaniſh Tabaco is made, call'd Tabago de Maracaibo. The Country is well water'd with Rivers, and bears the beſt Cacao in the Weſt-Indies; and Cedars ſo large, that the Savages will make a Boat of one Trunk ſufficient to carry the weight of 30 Tun. The Air is Unhealthful, eſpecially in rainy Weather; ſo that none but Labourers live in this Borough, the Wealthier ſort retiring to Merida, or Maracaibo. Oexmelin's Hiſt. of the Weſt-Indies.

GILDAS, call'd the Wiſe, or Badonicus; born in Great Britain, living in the VIth. Century, wrote a little Treatiſe, De Excidio Britanniæ; and another againſt the Immorality of the Clergy. Gildas wrote his Treatiſe De Excidio Britanniæ in 564, in the Sixty Fourth Year of his Age, being born the ſame Year, that the Saxons were defeated by the Britons, at the Battle on Badon-Hill. He wrote his Treatiſe above mention'd in Armorica or Britagne in France, whither the Britains had retir'd with their Colony, in the time of Meroveus King of the Franks. In this Treatiſe or Letter, as he calls it, he beſtows ſome Strokes of Satyr upon the Five Kings, who Reign'd at that time in Great Britain. Uſſerius Ant. Britan. Cap. 13. P. 255. Ed. Londin. 1687. Stillingfleet. Origin. Britan. Chap. 5.

GILDO, Governor of Africa under Arcadius, uſurp'd the Dominion of Africa; for which being reprehended by his Brother Maſcecel, he put his Sons to Death. In revenge of which Injury, Maſcecel got together a ſmall Force in Italy; and Landing in Africa with 5000 Men, overthrew 70000 of the Enemy. Upon which Gildo kill'd himſelf in his Flight. Ammian. Marcel. Zozimus.

GILEAD, was properly the Mountain where Laban made a Covenant with Jacob; but afterwards the Mountain deriv'd its Name both to the City of Gilead, and all the Country adjoyning: which being fit to feed Cattle, was begg'd of Moſes by the Tribes of Reuben and Gad. It lay beyond the River Jordan to the Eaſt, Sihon having the one half, and Og poſſeſſing the other; and was ſhewn to Moſes by God, as the moſt delightful and neareſt Proſpect of the Land of Canaan, from the Top of Mount Nebo. Numb. and Deut.

GILES, Biſhop of Freſcati, afterwards made a Cardinal, and by John XIII. ſent his Legate into Poland, was the firſt that erected the Cities of Gueſne and Cracow into Archbiſhopricks; and the Cities of Poſnania, Vratiſlaw, Cruſwick, Ploſco, Culm, Lubeſſe and Camin, into Biſhopricks; and ſupply'd 'em with Archbiſhops and Biſhops, which he ſent for out of France, Italy and Germany, in the Reign of Mieceſlaus, Firſt Chriſtian King of Poland.

GILES, Gillo, or Ægidius, Maſter of the Roman Forces in Gaul, was ſet up by the French in the room of Childerick I. by reaſon of his Cruelties. At what time Guinomand, Childerick's faithful Friend, taking part with Giles, under pretence of Friendſhip, put him upon ſuch violent Courſes, which he follow'd, that Childerick was recall'd, and Giles expell'd the Kingdom. Idacius.

GILGAL, a ſmall Province of Paleſtine, on this ſide Jordan, to the Eaſt of Jericho, where Joſhua encamp'd till the Iſraelites were recover'd of their Circumciſion, and where he ſet up 12 Stones, in Memory of his paſſing Jordan on dry Land, (Deut. 4. 5.) It ſeems to have been a Country try of a great Extent, under the Name of the Kingdom of the Nations of Gilgal. Joſh. 12.

GILGUL, a Word repeated often in the Books of the Jews, which ſignifies rowling; for they believe, that whatever part of the Earth they happen to die in, out of the Land of Canaan, their Bodies muſt rowl thither, to come thence to the General Judgment: Wherefore, a great many of 'em, when they find themſelves near their End, draw as near as poſſible they can to this Land, to have the leſs way to rowl. They founded this, Opinion on Ezek. 37. 12. See I will open your graves and lead you to the Land of Iſrael. Rabbi Leo of Modena underſtands this rowling of a Metempſycoſis, affirming, that ſome of the Jews believ'd Pythagoras's Tranſmigration, or the Souls travelling from one Body to another.

GILIMER, Kinſman to Huneric, King of the Vandals in Africa, was to have ſucceeded him; but finding his Reign too long for his Ambition, dethron'd him, and ſeated himſelf in his room, in 531. Juſtinian, deſirous to recover Africa, wrote to Gilimer in favour of Huneric; and making Gilimer's Contempt of his Letters his Pretence, ſent Beliſarius into Africa; who re-took Carthage, and purſuing Gilimer from Place to Place, compell'd him by Hunger to ſurrender, and carry'd him to Conſtantinople: where being brought before Juſtinian, and conſidering the Viciſſitudes of Fortune, he ſaid no more, but only repeated the Words of Solomon, Vanity of Vanities, all is Vanity. However, Juſtinian allow'd him a being in Galatia; and in the mean time, Africa was reduc'd into a Roman Province, as it had been before the Conqueſt of it by the Vandals. Procop. de Bell. Vandal. Lib. 1.

GILLUS, the Thirteenth King of Scotland, ſucceeded Evenus. A Competition happening for the Crown, betwixt Dochamus and Dorgallus, the Sons of Durſtus, it was fomented by the Fraud of Gillus, the Baſtard Son of King Evenus; who being convened with the Nobles to decide the Controverſie, ſuborned wicked Fellows to raiſe a Tumult, in which the two Competitors were kill'd; and Gillus feigning as if his Life had been aim'd at, implor'd the Aid of all who were preſent; and with part of the Nobility, and ſome flagitious Perſons fitted to his purpoſe, fled to Evonium, a Caſtle fortify'd by King Evenus. So that having fix'd himſelf in that ſtrong Garriſon, from a high place of the Caſtle he made a long Oration to the People, exclaim'd againſt the Obſtinacy of the two Brothers, and curs'd the Aſſaſſines; but at laſt told 'em, That he was left by Evenus to be the Guardian of the Kingdom, till a New King was Choſen. The People hearing this, though they did not believe it; yet ſeeing him fortify'd in a ſtrong Garriſon, to avoid greater Miſchief, they declar'd him King. But not thinking himſelf ſafe, ſo long as any of the Poſterity of Durſtus remained, he reſolv'd to deſtroy his Nephews, and accordingly murther'd two of them, but one eſcaped. He extended his Fury to all of the Royal Blood. Whereupon the Nobility combin'd againſt him, defeated and conſtrain'd him to flie into Ireland. Whence he renew'd the War; but being purſued thither, and defeated, he was ſlain by Cadwallus, General for King Evenus, in the 3d. Year after Gillus had begun his Reign, about 40 Years before Chriſt's time. Buchan.

GILOLO, one of the Molucca Iſlands in the Indian Sea, to the Eaſt of which lies the Land of Papous, and the Iſland of Celebes to the Weſt. The Situation of it is under the Equator, in 165. Deg. of Longit. The Form of it is Irregular, as having four Tongues of Land that advance ſeveral Ways; the one about 20 Leagues, the other 50. GILPIN (Bernard) a Learned Engliſh-man, Born at Kendal, of an ancient and conſiderable Family, in the County of Weſtmorland, in 1517. made ſuch Progreſs at the Univerſity of Oxford, that he was ſingl'd out to make Head againſt the Reformers, with whom he often diſputed in King Edward VIth's Reign. Peter Martyr ſtood in greater fear of him, than of any other of his Adverſaries, becauſe he argued with great Attention and Ingenuity. But at laſt this Learned Man, by his great Application to Scripture and the Fathers, began to ſee that his own Doctrine was not conformable to Antiquity, and therefore reſolv'd to change it. Whilſt he had theſe Thoughts, Cutbert Tonſtal, Biſhop of Durham, adviſ'd him to Travel. Whereupon he quitted his Cure. Nor could the Biſhop perſuade him to the contrary, though he promis'd he would procure him a Diſpenſation; and ſwore by the Soul of his Father, That otherwiſe he would want Money to pay the Charges of his Voyage, and at laſt die a Beggar. To which Gilpin made no other Anſwer, but that he believ'd the Devil would not hold the Diſpenſation valid. At his return, Queen Elizabeth offer'd him the Biſhoprick of Carliſle. Which he refus'd; alledging, He had a great number of Friends in that Dioceſe, to whom he could not grant what they ſhould deſire of him without injuring his Conſcience, nor refuſe without diſguſting 'em. Charlton, Biſhop of Chicheſter. Vid. Vitæ Selectæ Londini, 1681.

GIMNOSOPHISTS, or Gymnoſophiſts, Philoſophers of the Indies, divided into Brachmanes, Germanes, or Sermanes, and Hylobians: Which laſt liv'd in Woods and Foreſts, to contemplate, more at leiſure, the Wonders of Nature; they cloath'd themſelves with the Bark of Trees, and took their Reſt in the hollow of decay'd Aſhes. All theſe Philoſophers in general held the Metempſycoſis, ſaid the Happineſs of Man conſiſted in a generous Contempt of the Goods of Fortune, and gloried in giving good Advice to Kings and Magiſtrates for the Government of their People. Tertul. Clem. Alexand. &c.

GINDI, a ſort of People among the Turks, who ſhow Tricks of Activity on Horſe-back; they'll ſometimes throw a Lance riding, and catch it again; ſome of 'em will Gallop with one foot upon one Horſe, and the other upon another, and when they are upon this Speed and Poſture, they'll make a ſhoot at Birds, which are ſet on the tops of Trees, on purpoſe: Sometimes they'll ſlide from the Back, under the Horſes Belly, and then recover the Saddle again. Ricaut. Ott. Emp.

GINDUS, a River of Aſia riſing in Armenia, and diſcharging it ſelf into the Tigris: This River gave a little check to Cyrus's March to the Siege of Babylon, and drown'd one of his Charging Horſes, which ſo much diſpleas'd him, That he order'd it immediately to be laid dry, by Emptying it into Three hundred and ſixty Canals. Herodot. Chlio, &c.

GINGA, Queen of Angola, a Country of Africa, between the Kingdoms of Congo and Bengala; by moſt horrible Cruelties reveng'd the Death of her Father, Beheaded by the Portugueſes. She over-ran the Country with a great number of her Subjects, putting all to Fire and Sword, and ſpaing neither Age nor Sex. She fed upon Humane Fleſh, and always went in Man's Apparel, with 600 Negro's in her Train; of which 300 were Men clad like Women, and 300 Women in Mens Habit. However, at laſt ſhe made a Profeſſion of Chriſtianity, and ſhewed great Marks of Repentance at her Death. Menezes.

GINGI, a City and Province of India, in the Peninſula on this ſide Ganges, upon the Coaſt of Coromandel. This Province, which is known by the Name of the State de Naque de Gangi, has a particular Prince, whom the Natives call Naique, and who is a Tributary to the King of Viſapour. This little State is bounded by the Gulf of Bengala to the Eaſt; by the Kingdom of Biſnagar to the North; by the Mountains of Malabar to the Weſt; and the Province of Taniaor to the South. The City of Gingi, which gives its Name to the Province, is large, and well peopl'd. There is a Fortreſs belonging to it, of which the King of Biſnagar was formerly Maſter. The other Cities are Coloran, Candabaran, &c.

GIOTTO, Scholar to Cimabue, born near Florence in 1276, was a good Sculptor and Architect, as well as a better Painter than his Maſter: He began to ſhake off the Stiffneſs of the Greek Manner, endeavouring to give a finer Air to his Heads, and more of Nature to his Colouring, with proper Poſtures to his Figures: His moſt remarkable Piece, is that which he wrought in one of the Churches in Florence, repreſenting the Death of the Bleſſed Virgin, with the Apoſtles about her: The Attitudes of which Story, M. Angelo Buonaroti, us'd to ſay, could not be better deſign'd. Freſnoy's Art of Painting, P. 254.

Chronologia Toletanorum Præſulum & Conciliorum. De Primatu Eccleſiæ Toletanæ. De Dignitatibus & Officiis Regis & Domus Regiæ Gothorum.* He died in 1599. Nicholas Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. Voſſius, Labbée, &c.

GIRONE, Lat. Gerunda, an Epiſcopal City of Spain, in Catalonia, under the Archbiſhop of Terragone. There is one broad Street that runs the whole length of the City, with ſeveral good Suburbs. Girone is alſo indifferently well fortified. This place in 1694. was taken by the French under the Mareſchal de Noailles; but reſtored to the Spaniards, by the Peace of Reſwick in 1697.

GISCALA (John of) was Head of the Factious, who refus'd to ſurrender Giſcala to the Romans; but finding he was not able to defend the Place againſt ſo Potent an Army, fled to Jeruſalem; where he drew the Zealots to his Party, and prophan'd the Temple with a thouſand Cruelties, which he exercis'd upon the Princes and People. At length, after he had held out the City of Jeruſalem to Extremity, he yielded to the Romans, by whom he was condemn'd to perpetual Impriſonment. Joſephus.

GISCO, After he had made War in Africa with good Succeſs, was baniſh'd by his Fellow-Citizens; who envying his Honour, accus'd him to have unjuſtly put to Death his Brother Amilcar, under a falſe Pretence of having aſpir'd to Tyranny. But he was afterwards recall'd; and his Enemies being deliver'd up to be us'd as he pleas'd himſelf, he only made 'em proſtrate themſelves upon the Ground, while he ſet his Foot upon their Necks. Soon after, he was ſent into Sicily with an Army. Where being arriv'd, he made a Peace with Timoleon, upon Condition, That all the Cities depending upon Greece, ſhould be abſolutely Free. Plutarch.

GISORS, a City of France, in Normandy, in the County of Vexin, ſeated upon the little River of Epte, being a Bailliage, 14 Leagues from Paris. Not far from hence it was, that when Philip the Auguſt, and Henry King of England, heard the News of the taking Jeruſalem by Saladin, they had an Interview, in the Year 1288. between Giſors and Triæ, and reſolv'd upon a Croiſade for the Relief of the Holy Land. In Token of which, they ſet up a Croſs in their Camp, and mutually promis'd to lay all their Differences aſide till their return. Roger, in Philip Auguſt. De Cheſne.

GIUS-CHON, in the Turkiſh Tongue, ſignifies a Reader of the Alcoran; whereof there are 30 in every Royal Moſque, that read each a Section of the Alcoran; which being divided into that Number, the Whole is read every Day. This is done for the Repoſe of the Souls of thoſe that leave Legacies for that purpoſe, and therefore the Readers ſtand generally near the Tombs or Graves of thoſe they Pray for. Ricaut.

GLADIATORS, Sword-Players, Slaves that were taught to fight at Sharps, by Fencing-Maſters, on purpoſe for the Divertiſement of the Roman People, at their Publick Games, or Shows. At firſt, none but Slaves and Fugitives, that were enforc'd to it, would thus hazard their Lives: Afterwards, Free-men ſuffer'd themſelves to be Hired to it; and they bound themſelves by a ſolemn Oath, to Fight to the laſt Gaſp, or elſe to yield their Bodies to be Whipt or Branded. ——Uri virgis, ferroque necari—— But, for the moſt part, the Prince or People gave their Lives to the Wounded, when they acknowledg'd themſelves Overcome, in holding a Finger up, and dropping the Point of their Weapon, and this was call'd Miſſio. Sometimes Noblemen themſelves, that were decay'd in their Eſtates, to merit the Emperor's Favour, would engage in theſe ſorts of Combats. The Victor was either Crown'd with a Palm-Tree-Branch; or elſe, if he were a Slave, was preſented with a Wand, call'd Rudis, in Token of his being made a Free-man. Now that there might be a ſufficient Number of theſe Gladiators, there were Schools erected, into which Captives, Fugitives, Servants, and notorious Offenders, were Condemn'd, and many times Sold. Theodoret, King of the Oſtrogoths, in Italy, utterly aboliſh'd theſe Gladiators, in 500. The Gladiators wore always ſome Mark of Diſtinction, as a Peacock's Feather, or other very diſcernable thing. Nero order'd 400 Senators, and 600 Roman Knights, to Fight for his Diverſion. See more in Roſinus.

GLAMORGANSHIRE, Glamorganienſis Comitatus, is a Maritime County of South-Wales: ſo called (according to Cambden) from Mor, the Britiſh Word for the Sea, as agreeing to its Situation, or (as others will have it) from one Morgan, a Prince thereof. But, however it was ſo denominated, certain it is, that it ſtands bounded Northward with Brecknockſhire; Southward, with the Severn Sea; Eaſtward, with the River Rumney, which parts it from Monmouthſhire; and Weſtward, with Carmarthenſhire. Its Length, from Eaſt to Weſt, is near upon 40 Engliſh Miles; its Breadth, from North to South, about 20 Miles. The Whole is divided into 10 Hundreds; wherein are 118 Pariſhes, and 11 Market-Towns; anciently inhabited by the Silures, poſſeſſed of South-Wales; as the Ordovices were of North-Wales; and now being in the Dioceſs of Landaff. As to the Soil of this Country, the North and South Parts differ exceedingly. For, whereas the North is exceeding Hilly, and yields but little Corn; the South is ſo fruitful, that it wants for nothing: And, whereas the Northern Shires yield but little good Fruit, here grows as good, and as ſoon ripe, as any where in England. In ſhort, This is look'd upon, by ſome, as the Garden of Wales. Beſides the Rumney, which divides this County from Monmouthſhire, and the Hoghon, which ſevers part of it from Carmarthenſhire, here you willl find the Tave, Elay, Ogmore, Avon, Neath, and others of leſs Note. As for the Wonder of the Well at Newton, and that of a Rock (or Cliff) in the Iſle of Barrey, belonging to this County, ſee the Words Newton and Barrey. The Market-Towns are Cardiff the Principal Place, Cowbridge, Bridgend, Aberavon, Carfilly-Caſtle, Kanſig-Caſtle, Lantriſſent, Lantwyt, Neath, Penrees, and Swanzey. Among which, Cardiff alone has the Privilege of ſending a Member to Parliament, beſides the Knight of the Shire. Within a Mile of Cardiff, on the River Tave, ſtands Landaff, a Biſhop's See.

GLANDEVES, Lat. Glandeva, Glannata, and Glannatica, an Epiſcopal City of France, near to the River Var, under the Archbiſhop of Ambrun. This City was formerly an Earldom, but the continual Over-flowings of the Var conſtrain'd the Inhabitants to remove to Entrevaux about a Quarter of a League diſtant, whither the Cathedral was alſo tranſlated.

GLANVILL (Joſeph) Born at Plimouth in Devonſhire, was admitted into Exeter-College, Oxon. in 1652. from whence, after four years Continuance, he removed to Lincoln-College, in which, he took the Degree of Maſter of Arts: Soon after the Reſtauration he went into Holy Orders, was made a Member of the Royal Society, and, in 1666, was preſented to the Rectory of the great Church in Bath; afterwards made Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles II. and Prebendary of Worceſter. He was a Perſon, of more than ordinary Parts, and Memory, of an Inquiſitive and Philoſophical Genius, and a great Maſter of Stile; his Diſcourſes being generally Penn'd with a great deal of Spirit and Perſpicuity. He died at Bath in the Year 1680. His Works are as follow. The Vanity of Dogmatizing, ſhewing the ſhortneſs, and uncertainty of our Knowledge, and its Cauſes, with ſome Reflections on Peripateticiſm. Lux Orientalis, or an Enquiry into the Opinion of the Eaſtern Sages, concerning the Pre-exiſtence of Souls, being a Key to unlock the Grand Myſteries of Providence. Scepſis Scientifica, or Confeſs'd Ignorance the Way to Schiſm, &c. A Reply to the Exceptions of the Learned Tho. Albius; or the Author's Defence of the Vanity of Dogmatizing, &c. Some Philoſophical Conſiderations, touching the Being of Witches and Witch-craft, in a Letter to Robert Hunt, Eſquire. A Blow at Modern Sadduciſm, in ſome Philoſophical Diſcourſes about Witch-craft. A Relation of the Fam'd Diſturbance of the Houſe of Mr. Mumpeſſon. Reflections on Drollery, and Atheiſm. Plus Ultra, or the Progreſs and Advancement of Knowledge, ſince the Days of Ariſtotle. Several Sermons, (viz.) One upon the Kings Martyrdom; Catholick Charity recommended in a Sermon before the Lord Mayor of London. A Seaſonable Recommendation, and Defence of Reaſon, in the Affairs of Religion, againſt Infidelity, Scepticiſm, and Phanaticiſm of all ſorts. Philoſophia Pia, or a Diſcourſe of the Religious Temper and Tendencies of the Experimental Philoſophy, Profeſs'd by the Royal Society. A Prefatory Anſwer to Mr. Henry Stubb, wherein, the Malignity, Hypocriſie and Falſhood of his Temper, Pretences and Reports, &c. In his Animadverſions on Plus Ultra, are diſcover'd. A further Diſcovery of Mr. Stubb. An Earneſt Invitation to the Lord's Supper. Seaſonable Reflections and Diſcourſes, in Order to the Conviction, and Cure of the Scoffing, and Infidelity of a Degenerate Age, conſiſting of Four Sermons. An Eſſay, concerning Preaching. A Seaſonable Defence of Preaching. Sadduciſmus Triumphatus, Publiſh'd by Dr. Henry More with Additions. Athen. Oxon.

GLARIS, a Town, and one of the Confederate Cantons of Switzerland, being a little Country, 3 German Miles in Length, though not very Broad, almoſt ſurrounded with Mountains, between Altorf, Schwits and Appenzel, which firſt caſt off the Auſtrian Yoak, and enter'd into Confederacy with the reſt of the Cantons, in 1351. In the Year 1386. they were again attack'd by Leopold, Duke of Auſtria; who being worſted the ſame Year, yet in 1387. advanc'd with 15000

Men as far as Navalia, with a Reſolution to have broken into the Country through that Narrow Paſs. But there being oppos'd by no more than 350 of the Inhabitants of Glaris, and 30 Switzers, that ſmall Number won ſo Famous a Victory, after they had ſlain above 3000 of the Enemy, beſide what were drown'd in the Lake Rivarius, that they totally recover'd their Liberty, which they have preſerv'd to this day. The Inhabitants are part Proteſtants, part Roman Catholicks; the Proteſtants, upon the Preaching of Zwinglius, embracing the Reformation in 1515. two Years before Luther appear'd in Saxony. The Town of Glaris has nothing Conſiderable; the reſt are Neſtel, or Nephel, Urnen, Quart Weſen, &c. Simler, Plantin.

GLASCOW, in Latin, Glaſcum. A City in the Weſt of Scotland near the River Cluyd, 16 Miles from the Weſtern ſhore. This was very anciently a Biſhops See, but diſcontinued, till William King of Scotland reſtor'd it. 'Tis now an Archbiſhop's See, and an Univerſity, which was open'd by Turnbull a Biſhop, who, in 1554, built a College here: And 'tis now the beſt place of Trade in this part of Scotland, having a delightful Situation, Excellent Apples, and a Bridge with eight Arches over the Cluyd. Cambden Ed. London, 1695.

GLASSENBURY, Glaſconia, or Avalonia, from the Iſland of Avalon, ſo called, in which it ſtands, is a Market-Town about the Middle of Somerſetſhire, ſituate on the North-ſide of the River Parret, Famous in the Popiſh Times for its Rich and Stately Abbey: The Monks whereof, for the Credit of it, gave out, That the Body of Joſeph of Arimathea lay there Interred. Certain it is, that this was a Shelter to the Britains in the latter Times of the Britiſh Churches when they were miſerably haraſs'd and perſecuted by the Pagan Saxons. And it might be (as Biſhop Stillingfleet ſays) of far greater Requeſt among the Britains, becauſe it was the Place where the Famous Britiſh King Arthur was Buried; whoſe Body was found there, very deep in the Earth, in the Reign of Henry II. with a Latin Inſcription on a Leaden Croſs, expreſſing that King Arthur lay there buried, in the Iſle of Avalon.

GLATS, Lat. Glatium, by the Bohemians Gladſco, a City of Germany, in Bohemia, Capital of a Præfecture of the ſame Name, ſeated upon the River Miza, well fortify'd, and having a good Caſtle.

GLAUCUS, Son to Hippollochus, who, at the Siege of Troy, chang'd his Arms that were of Gold, for Diomed's that were only of Copper. There was another Glaucus, the Son of Siſyphus, who feeding his Horſes with Humane Fleſh, was by them devour'd himſelf: Denoting thereby the Vanity of thoſe that conſume their Eſtates by keeping of Race-Horſes. Alſo another Glaucus, a Fiſher-man; who putting into his Mouth a certain Herb, the Touch of which reviv'd ſeveral ſorts of Fiſh, became Mad, and threw himſelf into the Sea, where he was turn'd into a Marine Deity. Whence the Proverb, Glaucus, comeſâ Herbâ, habitat in Mari. Eraſmus in Adag.

GLEN (Baldwin) a Monk of Arras, of the Order of St. Auguſtine, was an Author of Note towards the End of the XVIth. Century. He wrote, Chronicon ſeu Hiſtoria Abbatum Cœnobii Henniacenſis. Monarchia & Series Regum Hiſpaniæ. Delineatio Belgicarum Provinciarum, &c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Mir. &c.

GLICAS (Michael) of Sicily, liv'd in the XIIIth. Age, about the Year 1250 and wrote Annals in IV Parts: The Firſt containing the Work of the Six Days Creation: The Second, from the Beginning of the World, till Chriſt's Time: The Third ended with Conſtantine the Great: The Fourth continu'd on to Alexius Comnenus, who died in 1118. To which Leunclavius added a Fifth, that proceeded as far as the Taking of Conſtantinople. Voſſius.

GLICERIUS, Flavius, a perſon of Quality who had gone through many conſiderable Employments, aſſum'd the Imperial Crown after the Death of Olybrius, and was Crown'd at Ravenna, in 473. But after he had Reign'd a Year was Depos'd by Julius Nepos, not far from the Mouth of the River Tiber, and then Conſecrated Biſhop of Salona, in Dalmatia, where he liv'd till 480. Caſſiodor. Jornandes. &c.

GLISSARIA, an Iſland upon the Coaſt of Jutland, now Norſtrant, near Huſum, in Sleſwick, 25 Miles in Compaſs, having in it ſome few Villages. Baudrand, Cluverius.

GLOCESTER, Lat. Gloceſtria, Glevum, the Chief Place of Gloceſterſhire, and a Biſhop's See, in the Province of Canterbury, is about 80 Miles W. and by N. from London. A fine and neat City, ſeated in a fruitful Vale, on the Eaſt Banks of the Severn, with a large Key, or Wharf, very commodious for its Trade. The Streets are generally fair, and the Town well built upon an eaſie Aſcent. Among the Romans it was in good Eſteem, under the Name of Glevum; and it has been formerly, Wall'd about, except on the River's ſide, with a ſtrong Wall; ſome Remains whereof are ſtill to be ſeen in many Places; which ſhew what Strength they have been of. King Richard III. being Duke hereof, when he came to the Crown, made it a County of it ſelf, by laying to it two of the adjacent Hundreds. Its Cathedral being firſt an Abbey-Church, was built by Aldred, Archbiſhop of Tork, and Biſhop of Worceſter; and afterwards repair'd, and ſo well beautify'd by ſeveral Abbots, that it is, to this Day, one of the Faireſt Fabricks of this Realm. In this Church lies Interr'd, under a Monument of Alabaſter, the unfortunate Prince, King Edward II. who by the Cruelty of Iſabel his Wife, was Murder'd at Berkley-Caſtle. That Gloceſter was a Biſhop's See, in the time of the Britains, ſeems probable, becauſe the Biſhop's Stile does occur in the Synodical Acts of thoſe elder Times, by the Name of Clevienſis, agreeable to Clevid the Britiſh Name of it. But whether it were ſo or not, this is certain, That it came to nothing, by the Heathen Saxons; and that when they embrac'd the Chriſtian Faith, it was firſt under the Authority of the Biſhops of Litchfield, and afterwards of thoſe of Worceſter. In the reign of Henry VIII. it was diſmember'd from that Dioceſs, and made a Biſhop's See, with five others of his Erection; conſtituting therein a Chapter of a Dean, and ſix Prebendaries; for the Maintenance whereof, he aſſign'd over moſt of the Lands belonging to all the Monaſteries here. The Dioceſs contains only Gloceſterſhire, wherein are 267 Pariſhes, of which 125 are Impropriations. And here is but One Archdeacon, being call'd of Gloceſter. The Biſhoprick, according to the Eſtimate thereof at the firſt Foundation, is valu'd in the King's Books but 315 l. 7 s. 2*d.* And for a Tenth of all, the Clergy pay unto the King, 358 l. 15 s. But beſides the Honour Gloceſter has, of being a Biſhop's See, it has given the Title of Duke to one of the Royal Family.

GLOCESTERSHIRE, Gloceſtrienſis Comitatus, is a large In-land County of England, lying betwixt Worceſter and Warwickſhire Northward, Somerſetſhire Southward, Oxford and Wiltſhire on the Eaſt, the River Wye and Herefordſhire on the Weſt. So that the Length of it, from North to South, is 48 Miles; its Breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt, 28 Miles. The Whole is divided into 30 Hundreds; wherein are 280 Pariſhes, and 30 Market-Towns: Whoſe Inhabitants, in the Time of the Romans went (with thoſe of Oxfordſhire) by the Name of Dobuni; the County making Part of the Heptarchy Kingdom of Mercia, and now the Dioceſs of Gloceſter. This is a well Water'd County; for, beſides the Severn, which runs through it from North, to South, here are the North and South Avon, Wye, Windruth, Coln, Churn, Stroud, Frome, and others of leſs Note; all yielding great Plenty of Fiſh, and the Severn particularly abundance of Salmon. Here is alſo Dean Foreſt, between the Severn and the Wye, reckon'd to be 20 Miles Long, and 10 Broad, but a good part of it conſum'd by Iron-Mines: And the Cotſwold Hills, Famous for the Wool of its Sheep, which feed here in great abundance. As the Air of this Country is Sweet and Pleaſant, ſo is the Soil exceeding Fruitful: And it yields not only Plenty of Corn and Graſs, but exceeds all other Parts of England in the Goodneſs and Abundance of its Fruits; particularly Pear-Trees and Apple-Trees, which grow here of their own accord, and whereof great Quantity of Perry and Cyder is made: Yet more might be made, were it not for a kind of Bird, that comes hither ſometimes, and that in great Companies. A Bird ſomething biggar than a Sparrow, with a Bill thwarted croſs-wiſe at the End, whereby it ſhaves (or cuts) an Apple in two at one ſnap, but eats only the Kernels thereof, and ſo ſpoils more than he devours. They come about Harveſt-time, when Apples begin to be ripe. That here were formerly a great many Vineyards, it appears from the many Places call'd Vineyards to this day, whereof one moſt Eminent, nigh Gloceſter; and that, by ancient Records, ſome Towns in this Shire pay'd Rent-Wines in great Proportions. But in latter Ages this Commodity has been diſus'd, partly becauſe Better and Cheaper may be had from Beyond-Sea, and partly becauſe our other Native Liquors prove more Healthful to us. Tabaco likewiſe grew here very well, and much of it was planted about Winchcomb, whereby many got good Eſtates, till the Planting of it was (for good Reaſons of State) prohibited by Act of Parliament. England has the beſt Oak in the World, not for Fineneſs, but Firmneſs: And the beſt Oak in England, is in Dean-Foreſt aforeſaid; ſo Tough, that (when it is dry) 'tis ſaid to be as hard as Iron. For Metals, here is Iron; and Steel, its eldeſt Brother, as the firſt Runing of Iron. Among the Memorable Products of this County, there are frequently found about Alderley, Oyſters, Cockles, and Perwinkles of Stone, which may be look'd upon as Luſus Naturæ. And for Manufactures, here is as good Cloathing as any in England, either for Fineneſs or Colour: For, as the beſt Wool grows here on Cotſwold-Hills, ſo here is an excellent Water for colouring the Cloth, which is that of the River Strowd. The Market-Towns are, the City of Gloceſter, which gives Name to the County, Berkley, Blakney, Briſtol, Cheltenham, Chipping-Campden, Chipping-Sodbury, Cirenceſter, Colford, Great Dean, Durſley, Fairford, Horton, Horwood, Letchlad, Marſhfield, Minching-hampton, Newent, Newnham, Northleach, Stanley, Stow, Stroud, Tetbury, Tewksbury, Thornbury, Wickwar, Winchcomb, Great Wicomb, and Wotton. Amongſt which Gloceſter, Cirenceſter, and Tewksbury, have the Privilege to ſend each two Members to Parliament, beſides the Knights of the Shire. In which Caſe, Briſtol ſtol is reckon'd in Somerſetſhire. The Monaſteries diſſolved here by Henry VIII. were, Glóceſter, Cirenceſter, Tewksbury, Deer-huſt, Minching, Berkley, Kingſwood, Winchcomb, and Hales. Speed. Cambden, &c.

GLOGAW, a City and Dukedom of Germany, in Sileſia: the City ſtands upon the River Oder, toward the Frontiers of Poland regularly fortify'd, and having a Caſtle. There is alſo another Glogaw in Sileſia too, call'd Little Glogaw, or Klein Glogaw, in the Dukedom of Opelen.

GLORIOSO, (John Camillo) an Eminent Philoſopher and Mathematician, in Naples, where he was born 1572. His Works are, Exercitationis Mathematicæ Diſſertatio Aſtronomica. Phyſica De Cometis, &c. Tomaſini in Elog, Doct. Part II. Lorenzo Craſſo. Elog. d' Huom. Lettre Part II. &c.

GLUCKSTADT, a ſmall City of Denmark in Holſatia, ſeated upon the Right ſide of the Elbe, in that part where it receives a little River call'd Rhine, and fortify'd by Chriſtian IV. in 1629.

GNEFACTUS, King of Egypt, having march'd his Army into Arabia, where Proviſions fail'd him in the Deſarts, was conſtrain'd to Eat what he could meet with in the Country People's Houſes. Which ſort of Diet pleas'd him ſo well, that he reſolv'd for the future to feed on no other but ſuch homely fare, and wiſh'd a hundred Imprecations upon Menes the firſt King of Egypt, for introducing among the Egyptians Luxury and expenſive Eating. And to render his Memory Odious, caus'd thoſe Maledictions to be engrav'd upon a Column which he Erected in the Temple of Jupiter Ammon; giving at the ſame time an Illuſtrious Example of Frugality to his Succeſſors. Plutarch, Diodorus.

GNESNE, in Latin Gneſna, and by the Germans call'd Gniſen, an Archiepiſcopal City, and Metropolitan of all Poland ſeated in the Palatinate of Kaliſh in Lower Poland, between Poſna and Toren. At preſent there is nothing that renders the City conſiderable, but only that it is the Reſidence of the Primate of Poland, who has always a great ſhare in the Management of the Publick Affairs. Gneſne was formerly the Capital of the Kingdom, but was Burnt ni 1613. The Archbiſhop and Primate of Poland, is Legate in Courſe of the Holy See, Regent of the Kingdom after the Death of the King, and gives Audience to Ambaſſadors, unleſs it be at the time of Election. He Summons the Senate, fixes the Day of Meeting for the Election, propoſes what Matters are to be debated, Crowns the Kings and Queens, and performs the Ceremonies of their Enterment. The States would have par'd off ſome of his Power during the Interregnum, when Sigiſmund III. went into Sweden in 1594. but Sigiſmund Karn Cowiski, then Primate oppos'd their Deſign, and diſappointed it. It was anciently call'd Limioſaleum, and is ſaid to have been Built by Lechus, the firſt Prince of the Country, who gave it the Name of Gneſne, from an Eagle's Neſt which was found in going to lay the Foundations. Cromer.

GNOSIMACHI, a ſort of Hereticks who Condemn'd all manner of Inquiſition after Knowledge; believing it of no Uſe to thoſe from whom God required only Good Actions.

GNOSSUS, the moſt celebrated City of Creet in the Days of Antiquity, famous for the Fables of Mino ſandthe Minotaur, now a Poor Village, call'd Ginoſa.

GNOSTICS, that ſprang out of the Nicolaitans, certain Hereticks, who believ'd two Principles, the one Good, the Principle of Good; the other Bad, the Author of Evil. They held the Soul to be of the Subſtance of God, and deny'd the Divinity of Chriſt; ſaying only, That God dwelt in him. They held the moſt unlawful Pleaſures of the Body to be good, &c. and defil'd their Nightly Meetings with all manner of obſcene Impurities. Dr. Hamond believes this Hereſie begun in the Time of the Apoſtles, and that St. Paul alludes to 'em, in 1 Tim. 6. 20. and in ſeveral other Places. Tertullian. Auſtin.

GOA, an Archiepiſcopal City and Capital of all the Places which the Portugueſes poſſeſs'd in the Eaſt-Indies, as being the Seat of the Viceroy. It is ſeated in the Kingdom of Decan. In the Peninſula of Indus on this ſide Ganges, one of the faireſt and beſt Towns of Trade in the Eaſt. It ſtands in an Iſland which the Rivers of Mandoua & Guari form, where they fall into the Sea. The Ports of Goa, Conſtantinople and Toulon are eſteem'd the faireſt of our whole Continent. Alphonſo d' Albuquerque took it for the Portugueſes in the Year 1510. who have, ſince that, ſettled themſelves ſo powerfully there, notwithſtanding the Diſturbance of their Neighbours, that they are not to be remov'd. The Hoſpital is one of the faireſt in the Univerſe, exceeding that of the Holy Ghoſt, of Rome, and the Infirmary of Malta. The Viceroy's Palace is a Magnificent Structure. The Churches of Goa are ſumptuouſly adorn'd, of which one was erected into a Cathedral by Paul IV. and beſides the Churches, there are ſeveral Monaſteries. Were not the City ſo ſtreightned as it is by the Mountains, it would be much more inhabited, in regard the Air would be much more wholeſome; but the Mountains hinder the Winds from cooling the Air, ſo that the Heats are Violent. The Jeſuits have no leſs than Five Houſes in this City. In ſhort, it was one of the faireſt Poſts in the World to be Viceroy of Goa. He had Five Governments at his diſpoſal, whoſe Revenues equal'd the moſt conſiderable in Europe. Theſe were, the Government of Mozambique in Africa; that of Maſcale upon the Coaſts of Arabia; that of Ormuz upon the Coaſt of Perſia; that of Ceylan towards the Cape of Comori, at the Point of the Peninſula of Indus, and on this ſide of the Gulf of Bengala, and the Government of Malaca to the South of the Peninſula of Indoſtan, on the other ſide of the Gulf; but ſince the Hollanders and the Engliſh have cut off a great part of their Trade, the Portugueſes are nothing near ſo Potent as they were in the Indies. The Natives of Goa are Idolaters, and many of 'em have ſuch a Veneration for Monkeys, that they build 'em Pagods or Temples, and worſhip them. Tavernier.

GOAR, (James) born at Paris, a Dominican, being ſent as Miſſionary into the Levant, had an opportunity of fully informing himſelf concerning the Belief and Cuſtoms of the Greek Church; being thus qualified, he publiſh'd the Euchologion in Greek and Latin at Paris in 1647. being a very correct Edition: To this Work, he has added ſeveral Learned Remarks, where the Doctrine and Ceremonies of the Greek Church are fully explain'd. Goar likewiſe tranſlated ſome of the Byzantine Hiſtorians, but the Criticks obſerve, that he has miſtaken his Authours Sence, in ſeveral Places. R. Simon.

GOBBO, (Peter Paul) a Native of Cortona, and famous Painter of Landskips, but more eſpecially of Fruits; in which he is ſaid to have out-done Zeuxis, who cheated Birds only; whereas Men took Gobbo's for real Fruit. Felibien.

GOBELINS, a noted Houſe of Paris in the Suburb of St. Marcel, formerly poſſeſs'd by famous Wool-Dyers; whereof the chief call'd Giles Gobelin, who liv'd in the Reign of Francis I. is ſaid to have found the Secret of Dyeing Scarlet, which was from him call'd, The Scarlet of the Gobelins; the Houſe alſo took that Name, and the River that runs by it, whoſe Water is very proper for that uſe. The Dutch have endeavour'd all they could to diſcover the Secret, but to no purpoſe. This Houſe now is full of the beſt Tapeſtry-Makers, Goldſmiths, and Carvers in Marble and Wood of France, under the direction of the Overſeer of the Buildings, Arts, and Manufactures of that Kingdom, and all continually imploy'd in making Decorations for the Kings Houſes.

GOBRIAS, one of the Seven Perſians that conſpir'd with Darius to expel the Magi, who after the death of Cambyſes had uſurp'd the Kingdom; He attended Darius in his Expedition againſt the Scythians, and interpreted the Preſent which the Scythians ſent the Perſians, deſigning the Invaſion of their Country; This Preſent was a Bird, a Rat, a Frog and five Arrows, which Gobrias expounded thus; O ye Perſians, unleſs ye retire with the Speed of Birds, or fortify your ſelves in Moraſſes like Frogs, orrun into an Augur-Hole like Rats, we ſhall certainly diſpatch you with theſe Arrows. Herodot. lib. 4.

GOCLENIUS, (Conrad) eſteem'd for his Notes upon Tully's Offices, his Edition of Lucan, and ſeveral other Pieces; dy'd in 1539. or as others ſay, 35. Melchior Adam.

ST. GODARD, formerly Adula, a part of the Alps in the County of Switzerland. Strangers and Travellers, that know not the way, are often in danger of periſhing among the Precipices, when they go without Guides, in regard, it is generally cover'd with Snow.

GODEAU, (Anthony) Biſhop of Vence, was the firſt who occaſion'd the ſetting up of the French Academy in Paris; He wrote a Poem of St. Paul, a Hiſtory of the Church, &c. and dy'd of an Apoplexy in 1672. St. Marthe. Peliſſon.

GODESCALCUS, a German Monk, who liv'd in the 9th. Cent. much eſteem'd for his Learning, and the Penetration of his Genius; but afterwards accuſed of Hereſie, for teaching, That God deſtin'd the Reprobate to Damnation, as the Elect to Glory; and that therefore, as he was the Principle of Good actions, ſo he was likewiſe Author of Evil. Some endeavour'd to defend his Doctrine, and ſaid, His Sentiments well underſtood, were the ſame with St. Auguſtin*'s upon thoſe Heads*; but Rabanus Maurus Archbiſhop of Mayence, believ'd him guilty of the Errors with which he was charg'd and ſent Godeſcalcus to Hincmar, Archbiſhop of Rheims his Metropolitan, who being no Friend to him, condemn'd him to be diveſted of his Order of Prieſthood, beat until he threw his Writings into a Fire, and afterwards caſt in Priſon, where he died, perſiſting to the laſt in his Opinion; which made Hincmar treat him as excommunicated, refuſe him the Sacraments and Chriſtian Burial. Genebrard, Baronius.

GODFREY of Bouillon, call'd the Chriſtian Hercules, Prince of Lorrain, having given frequent Proofs of an invincible Courage under the Emperor Henry IV. whom he ſerv'd with great Succeſs in Germany and Italy, was choſen General of the Expedition which the Chriſtians undertook for the Recovery of the Holy Land, Sold his Hereditary Dukedom of Liege to Otbert Biſhop of the Dioceſs, and laid out the Money in his Preparations for the War. The Greeks oppoſing the March of his Army, he conſtrain'd Alexius Comnenus to give him free Paſſage, and to diſſemble his unjuſt Jealouſies. In the Year 1097. he vanquiſh'd Solyman Sultan of the Turks, and took Nice after a Months Siege, then Antioch and Edeſſa; and in four Years time ſubdu'd Lycaonia, Cilicia, Syria and Meſopota- mia Comagena, which ſtruck ſuch a Terror into the Saracens, that the Caliph of Egypt by his Ambaſſadors ſu'd for Peace. In 1099. he took Jeruſalem, and by the general Conſent of all the Chieftains of the Army was Crown'd King of Judæa, with a Crown of Thorns, upon his refuſal of a Crown of Gold, and the title of King of Jeruſalem, where his Saviour was treated ignominiouſly, and Crown'd with Thorns. After which, his Army being extreamly waſted, the Sultan of Egypt taking his Advantage, ſent into the Field againſt him a Hundred thouſand Horſe, and a Proportionable Number of Infantry, which were all defeated with the Slaughter of above a Hundred Thouſand of the Enemy; and that Victory gain'd him the quiet Poſſeſſion of all the Holy Land. But he enjoy'd his Conqueſts but a very ſmall while; for he dy'd in the Year 1100. Baronius, Guibert, Geſta Dei per Francos. Gulielm. Tyrius.

GODFREY, Surnam'd the Dane, deſir'd to be Baptiz'd a Chriſtian in the Reign of the Emperor Charles the Groſs. The Emperor would needs be his Godfather, and Married him to a Natural Daughter of the Emperor Lothaire I. by whom he had in Dowry Fourſcore thouſand Pound weight of Gold, and the Dutchy of Friſe. But afterwards the Emperor being incens'd againſt him, for aſſiſting his Brother-in-Law Hugo in his Pretentions to Lorrain, was deſirous to be rid of him. Thereupon, Henry Duke of Saxony, and Guilibert Archbiſhop of Cologne, having decoy'd him into an Iſland in the Rhine, under the Pretence of a Conference, Murder'd both him and all his Train. Reginon, Mezeray.

GODOFREDUS, or Gothofredus, (Denys) an Eminent Lawyer, one of the moſt Learned Men of his Time, born at Paris in 1549. the Civil Wars in France made him quit the Realm, from whence he retir'd to Geneva, and afterwards into Germany, where he profeſs'd the Civil Law in ſeveral Univerſities. The Electour Palatine ſent him as Envoy, in 1618. to Lewis the XIIIth. who gave him ſeveral Marks of his Eſteem, and preſented him with his Picture and a Medal in Gold. Godofred died in 1622. GOEGHY, the Name of a Sect of Banyans in the Indies, who acknowledge a God, whom they call Bruin Creator of all things; they do not believe a Metempſychoſis as the other Banyans do, but hope their Souls after they leave their Bodies will be eternally with God; they live retir'd and pray much, never frequent the Churches of other Sects, nor have any Moſques of their own. They have a particular eſteem for one Mecis whom they call God's Servant. They never Marry, and are ſo ſuperſtitiouſly Reſerv'd that they will not ſuffer a Woman to touch 'em. Mandeſlo. Olearius.

GOEREE, a ſmall Iſland belonging to the Kingdom of Ale, in Nigritia, near the Coaſt of the Atlantick Sea, 3 Miles from Cape Verd. There was in it a Fort, which the Dutch, that built it, call'd Fort Naſſaw; but in the Year 1677. the French took it, under the Conduct of the Count d' Eſtrees, ras'd it, and built another, of which they are ſtill the Maſters.

GOEZ, (Damian de) a Portugueſe, liv'd in the XVIth. Age, in great repute for his Learning, and much eſteem'd by the Great Men his Contemporaries. He wrote an Account of The Religion and Manners of the Ethiopians, Deploratio Lappianæ gentis, Commentaries on the Actions of the Portugals in India. De Rebus & Imperio Luſitanorum, A Deſcription of Lisbon, The Hiſtory of D. Manuel King of Portugal, &c. At length, whether ſtrangl'd by his Enemies, or whether he died of an Apoplexy, he was found Dead in his own Houſe at Lisbon.

GOGA, a ſmall Iſland of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Dominions of the Great Mogul, in the Kingdom of Guzarate, and in the Golph of Cambaya.

GOHORRI, (James) born at Paris, and call'd the Solitary, was a Philoſopher, and Mathematician of Note in the XVIth. Cent. He wrote de Uſu & Myſteriis Notarum. The Hiſtory of Peru, &c. La Croix du Main. Thuanus, Voſſius, &c.

GOJA, (John) by others call'd Flavio Gira; if he did not invent, yet he brought to greater Perfection the Uſe of the Needle and Loadſtone, in 1302. Kirchir. Art. Magnet.

GOJAM, a Kingdom of Habeſſinia, no leſs famous for being the Place where the Fountains of Nile were diſcover'd, than for its Situation, as being almoſt all encompaſs'd round by the River Nile, like a Peninſula. It is ſaid to contain 20 Provinces, by the Relation of Godignus. Ludolphus.

GOLCONDA, a Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Peninſula on this ſide Ganges, extending it ſelf in length upon the Sea that lies to the Eaſt of it; The River Guenga, which lies to the North, ſeparates it in part from the Territories of the Great Mogul: A great Chain of Mountains part it to the Weſt, from the Kingdom of Decan; and that of Biſnagar-bounds is to the South. The Kingdom of Golconda poſſeſſes one part of Biſnagar, together with the Coaſt of Coromandel, as far as Coloran. It had formerly belong'd to the Kingdom of Orixa, which lies to the North of it, and immediately to the South of the River Guenga. But Modern Relations aſſure us, that the Great Mogul is Maſter of that Kingdom, which he conquer'd about 20 or 30 Years ago. The City of Golconda is one of the largeſt and faireſt of India: It is uſually call'd Heider-Abad, and by Corruption Hidraband: and it is ſaid to have been built by Heider-Sha, who gave it his own Name. It is ſeated at the Foot of a Mountain, upon which is built a Fortreſs call'd Golconda; and the King's Palace makes as it were a third City. The other Cities are Maſulipatan, Narſingapatan, Petrapoli, Pahor, Vixnopatan, &c. which lie all upon the Sea-ſide; and beſides Cordipoli, which is extream ſtrong, there are alſo ſeveral other Places of Defence. The Kingdom of Golconda, is famous for the Mines of Diamonds that are in it; beſides, it affords great Quantities of Salt, Iron and Steel, &c. The Inhabitants are very Rich, and the Country, though extreamly Mountainous, produces great Store of Rice. The King is a Mahumetan of the Perſian Sect. There is to be ſeen in Golconda the moſt Magnificent Pagod in all India; but it is not finiſh'd. More eſpecially, the Stones are to be admir'd for their Bigneſs; and the Place where they ſay Prayers is an entire Rock of ſuch a prodigious Bulk, that they were five Years with the continual Labour of 5 or 600 Men removing and ſhaping it into Form; the Engine upon which they drew it, being drawn with 1400 Oxen. Were this Pagod finiſh'd, it might well be ſaid to be one of the moſt wonderful Structures in all Aſia. Three Leagues alſo from the City, ſtands a very fair Moſque, where are to be ſeen the Kings of Golconda, and where every day about Four in the Afternoon, they diſtribute Alms to all the Poor that will come. When the King ſits to do Juſtice, he appears in a Balcony that looks out upon the Piazza, and all People that have any Buſineſs there, ſtand below right againſt the Throne. Between the Balcony and the Ground, are ſet up three Rows of Poles about the length of a Half-Pike, to the Ends of which, they faſten Ropes that run a-croſs one above another; and this ſort of Barrier extends it ſelf the whole length of the Piazza. When the King calls for any Perſon, the Rope is let down juſt againſt the Balcony, under which ſits a Secretary of State, who receives the Petitions; and when he has got five or ſix, he puts 'em into a Bag, at what time an Eunuch that ſtands by the King in the Balcony, lets down a Rope, and then pulls up the Bag, and preſents the Petitions to his Majeſty. The great Lords of the Kingdom mount the Guard every Monday, each in his turn: There are ſome of theſe Lords that command five or ſix thouſand Horſe, and Encamp with their Tents ſet up right againſt the City. When they mount the Guard, they go out of their Houſes to the Rendezvous; but when they ſet forward, they appear in good Order, and there is ſomething of Pomp in their March. In the firſt place appear 10 or 12 Elephants; after that, 30 or 40 Camels, attended by ſeveral Coaches, about which the Domeſtick Servants walk on foot; then follow the Led-Horſes; and laſtly, the Lord to whom the Equipage belongs, with 10 or 12 Harlots dancing and skipping before him, and attended by his Cavalry and Infantry. There are in Golconda an infinite Number of Harlots, who are oblig'd to ſubſcribe their Names in the Daroga's, or Judge of the City's Book. They pay no Tribute to the King, but every Friday a certain Number of 'em are oblig'd to appear with their Governeſs and their Muſick, and Dance before the King in his Balcony; or if he be not there, an Eunuch makes 'em a ſign to be gone. Theſe ſort of Women are exercis'd to that ſuppleneſs of their Joints, and ſo active withal, that the reigning King being deſirous to ſee the City of Maſlipatan, Nine of 'em ſo cloſ'd themſelves together, as to repreſent an Elephant; Four making the four Feet, Four reſembling the Body, and One the Trunk, while the King ſitting upon the Back of the repreſented Beaſt, as in his Throne, made his Entry into the City. The preſent King of Golconda is call'd Abdoul Coutou Cha; who deriv'd his Original from hence. Under the Reign of Abkar, King of the Indies, the Father of Gehan-Guir, the Dominions of the Great Mogul Southward, reach'd no farther than to Narbeder, where the River parted his Empire from the Territories of the Raja of Narſingue, which reach'd as far as Cape Comorin; all the other Raja's being in a manner his Subjects and depending upon him. This Raja was ſo Potent, that he kept a-foot 4 Armies under as many Generals, the moſt conſiderable of which had his Quarters in thoſe Lands that now compoſe the Kingdom of Golconda; the Second held the Province of Viſapour; the Third that of Dultabat; and the Fourth that of Brampour. But the laſt Raja of Narſingue dying without Iſſue, the four Generals ſet up for themſelves in their ſeveral Provinces, and having won a famous Victory from Abkar the Great Mogul, aſſum'd the Title of Sovereign Kings. But Gehan-Guir, the Son of Abkar, ſoon ſubdu'd the King of Brampour; Chagehan, the Son of Gehan-Guir, conquer'd Dultabat; and Aurengzeb, the Son of Gehan-Guir, ſubdu'd the greateſt part of Viſapour: But as for the King of Golconda, there was no body meddl'd with him, but let him alone upon his Submiſſion to pay an Annual Tribute of two hundred thouſand Pagods, or 400000 Crowns of our Money. Tavernier.

GOLDAST, (Melchior) a German Lawyer, liv'd toward the beginning of the XVIIth. Age, in the Year 1615. Eminent among the Proteſtants, for his III. Volumes in Folio, under the Title of Monarchia S. Romani Imperii, &c.

GOLDEN-FLEECE, an Order of Knighthood inſtituted by Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy. The firſt Solemnities were perform'd at Bruges, at this Dukes Marriage with Iſabel of Portugal in 1429. The Order was at firſt compos'd of four and twenty Knights, who were Gentlemen of Birth, and unblemiſh'd Reputation. Afterwards this Prince encreas'd the Number to one and thirty, and made a Law, that himſelf and Succeſſours ſhould be Sovereigns or Grand Maſters of the Order. Theſe Knights wore a Scarlet Cloak lin'd with Ermin, with a Collar open'd, and the Dukes Cypher upon 'em, in form of a B, to ſignify Burgundy; together with Flints ſtriking Fire, with this Motto, Ante ferit quam Flamma micat. At the End of the Collar there was a Golden-Fleece hung, with this Device, Pretium non vile Laborum. This Order is now common to all the Princes of the Houſe of Auſtria, as being deſcended from Mary of Burgundy, Daughter of Charles the Hardy, laſt Duke of Burgundy. Chifſletius inſign. Equit. Ord. Vell. Aurei. Favinus Theat. de Honn. & de Cheval. Mezeray, &c.

GOLDEN NUMBER, a Note or Mark put into the Calendar, to point out the Day of the Solar Month, in which the New Moon begins. This Mark was one of the 19 Numerical Figures of the Lunar Cycle, according to this manner. The firſt Year of this Cycle they deſign'd the New Moon, with the Figure I. the ſecond Year by the Figure II. the third by III. and ſo on to 19, and then beginning again with I. It was called the Golden Number, becauſe it was commonly writ with Golden Characters, or becauſe of its Excellence, and the eaſie Method it afforded at firſt to find the New Moons. This Golden Number continues yet to be Printed in our Almanacks, for the uſe of thoſe Nations who have not admitted the Reformation of the Kalendar, made by Pope Gregory XIII. in 1582. and for the better underſtanding of ſome Hiſtorians of the paſt Ages; but it is now no longer made uſe of to know the New Moons by, becauſe of the Miſtake caus'd by this Golden Number, and which is explain'd in the Article of Lunar Cycle; the New Moons being now known by the Epacts. *Petav. de Doctrin. GOLTZIUS, (Hubert) born in the Dutchy of Gueldres, a great Antiquary, to whom the Commonwealth of Learning is greatly beholding for his explaining Ancient Hiſtory by Medals, Old Inſcriptions and Paintings, of which his Works are full, and teſtifie the Pains which he took. He has left us the Emperours, upon Coins from Julius Cæſar to Charles the Vth. a Regiſter of the Magiſtrates, and Triumphs of Rome from the Foundation of the Town till the Death of Auguſtus. A Liſt of the Conſuls. A Treatiſe concerning the Origin and State of the Romans, and their Magiſtrates. A Treaſure of Antiquities. The Lives of Julius Cæſar and Auguſtus. Sicily and Magna Græcia. A Voyage into Italy, Germany and France, &c. All theſe Works are written in Latin. This Goltzius, notwithſtanding his great Learning and Abilities, is cenſur'd by ſome People, for not being ſufficiently exact, in diſtinguiſhing Counterfeit Medals from the True. He dy'd in 1583. Melchior Adam.

GOMARUS, an Eminent Divine, Profeſſour in the Univerſity of Leyden, where he ſtiffly diſputed againſt Arminius, and with whom he had a Conference in the preſence of the States of Holland. He was employ'd and ſucceſsfully perform'd his part in tranſlating the Bible into Dutch. See Arminius.

GOMER, the Son of Japhet, whom ſome will have to be the Father of the Gomerites a People of Aſia, not far from Syria: Others ſuppoſe him to have been the Founder of the Gauls or Galatians, who were alſo call'd Gomerites. But the firſt Opinion is moſt probable from the 38th. of Ezechiel.

GOMERA, an Iſland in the African Sea, one of the Canaries ſeated between Tenariff to the Eaſt, and the Iſland of Iron to the Weſt, with a Town of the ſame Name, and a Harbour on that ſide next to Tenariff.

GOMORRHA, one of the five Cities within the Limits of Judæa, conſum'd by Fire from Heaven; where now the Lake Aſphaltitis, or the Dead-Sea, formerly a ſmall Kingdom in the time of Abraham, Gen. 14, &c.

GONDEBALD, King of the Burgundians, and one of the four Sons of Gondioch, ſhar'd his Father's Dominions with his Brothers, in the Year 473. but afterwards leagu'd himſelf with his ſecond Brother, to deſpoil the other two; but being vanquiſh'd, lay hid a good while, till he was ſuppos'd to be Dead: and then taking the Field again, ſurpriz'd his Brothers, in the City of Vienne; put Chilperic to death, and burnt Gondomar in a Tower: and then reſtoring Peace to his Subjects, made excellent Laws for the Good Government of his Souldiers. Nevertheleſs, being overthrown a ſecond time by Godegeſilus, aſſiſted by Clodoveus, he reſum'd freſh Courage and retir'd to Avignon, where being Beſieg'd by Clodoveus, he made a Peace with him, by the Mediation of his Counſellor Aredius. After which, he Sack'd Vienne a ſecond time, and quarrelling again with Clodoveus, went into Italy to demand Aid of Theodoric. Which not obtaining, he dy'd in Italy about the Year 508. or, as ſome ſay, 516. Gondebald made a general Edict which comprehended the Burgundian Laws, ſince publiſh'd by Lindebrogius in his Codex Legum Antiquarum. Greg. Tours, Paradin.

GONDEBALD, King of the Vandals in Italy, Succeeded his Uncle Huneric, about 485. At the beginning of his Reign gentle and mild to the Orthodox, but afterwards perſecuted 'em with no leſs Severity than his Predeceſſors. He dy'd in the Year 495. Procopius.

GONDEBALD, call'd himſelf the Son of Clotaire I. who would never acknowledge him, but averr'd him to be the Son of a Miller. But however it were, he retir'd to Conſtantinople in 583. where he was treated by the Emperor Tiberius with extraordinary Civility. Soon after Gontran Boſon, going to the Emperor's Court, perſwaded Gondebald, that the Franks had ſent for him, believing no Perſon ſo fit to Govern 'em as himſelf. Gondebald thus deluded, and aſſiſted by Tiberius Landed at Marſeilles, where he was royally receiv'd; but there Gontran deſerted him, robb'd him of his Treaſures, and miſus'd his Friends; till at length after the Death of Chilperic, the Grandees of the Kingdom perſwaded him to aſſume the Title of King, at what time Gontran ſent Forces againſt him, and beſieged him in the Caſtle of Cominges, where they who had taken his part, deliver'd him to his Enemies, by whom he had his Brains beat out with a Stone. Haymo. Paulus Æmilius, &c.

GONDEGESILUS, Second Son of Gondioch King of the Burgundians, accepted the ſhare which Gondebald aſſign'd him, enter'd into a League with him againſt his two Younger Brothers, and made choice of Geneva for his Royal Seat. Afterwards diſdaining to be ſubject to his Brother's Laws, he excited Clodoveus to Invade his Dominions; but Gondebald making Peace with Clodoveus, ſurpriz'd him in Vienne; where flying to an Arian Church, he was kill'd in 500. Gregory of Tours, Paradin, &c.

GONDEMAR, King of the Viſigoths in Spain, Succeeded Viteric in the Year 610. and reign'd 2 Years and 10 Months. He was preſent at the Council of Toledo, held in 610. where he made a Decree for the Precedency of that Church. St. Iſidore.

GONFANON, a Banner cut at the lower end into ſeveral Jaggs, every one of which is call'd Eanon. The Ancient Banners of the Church were ſo call'd, that were Born by the Gonfalonieri, upon the Raiſing of Forces for the Defence of the Church, and the Eccleſiaſtical State. At Florence the Gonfalonieri were the Chief of the Republick: and at Sienna there are three Gonfalonieri, who every one Command the three ſeveral Quarters of the City. P. Menetrier.

GONTIER, Count of Swartzenburg, elected Emperor in the Year 1346. in Oppoſition to Charles King of Bohemia. But as the two Rivals were preparing for War, Gontier was Poiſon'd at Francfort. See the Hiſtory of this Emperor in a ſmall Book Printed by Ahaſuerus Fritſchius, at Leipſick in 1677.

GONTIER, Archbiſhop of Cologn, and Grand Almoner to Charles the Bald, finding that Lothaire II. was in love with his Siſter Valdrade, joyn'd with the King, and fram'd ſeveral Accuſations againſt his Wife Theutgard, and pronounc'd her divorc'd. The Queen appeal'd to Pope Nicholas I. who ſent his Legates into France. But they being gain'd by Gontier's Preſents, approv'd the Repudiation. Upon which, Nicholas call'd a Council at Rome, and Condemn'd both his Legates and Gontier, who thereupon took a Journey to Rome, in hopes to appeaſe the Pope, but finding him inflexible, he return'd back and died in 870. Otho Friſingenſis, Reginon, &c.

GONTRAN, Son of Clothaire I. had for his ſhare in 561. Orleans, Bourges and Burgundy. His uſual Reſidence was at Chalon upon the Soane. The Beginning of his Reign was ſomewhat black'ned by the Irregularity of his Amours. He joyn'd with Chilperic to oppoſe the Arms of Sigebert. He made War with Recared King of the Goths in Languedoc, without Succeſs, being defeated at Carcaſſonne in 587. After the Death of Chilperic, he took his Son into his Protection, and endeavour'd to revenge his Death. The War which he undertook againſt Gondebald, and the Care which he took of his Nephews, are Teſtimonies of the Kindneſs which he had for 'em. Toward the End of his Life, he gave his Dominions to his Nephew Childebert II. He Summon'd ſeveral Councils, and was a Lover of Juſtice and the Publick Good. Nevertheleſs, he was tax'd of being Timorous, Suſpicious, Inconſtant, eaſie to be gain'd by Flattery, and ſubject to Choler. He died at Chalon upon the Soane, in the Year 592. Gregory of Tours, Haymon, &c.

Hiſtorians applaud him for a good and Generous Prince, Religious, and a Lover of Learning and Juſtice. He died in 1484. Francis de Gonzaga II. Marquis of Mantua, firſt of all General for the Venetians, ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Battel fought near the Tara, at the taking of Novara; and the Defence of Ferdinand II. Afterwards Lewis XII. gave him the Command of the French in Italy; at what time he laid a Bridge over the Garigliano, and paſs'd his Army over the River under the Protection of his Canon, in View of the great General Gonſales, who had made his Brags that he would ſtop him. In the Year 1509. he was at the Battel of Giera d' Adda; after which, he was General of the Forces of Maximilian I. of thoſe of the Duke of Milan, of the Forces of the Church under Julius II. He was taken by the Venetians, who nevertheleſs honour'd his Merit, by putting him at the Head of their Army. The Pope made him Gonfalonier of the Church: after which, he died in 1519. Frederick de Gonzaga II. Duke of Mantua, firſt joyn'd himſelf with Francis I. and the Princes of Italy, againſt the Emperor Charles Vth. for the Enlargement of Pope Clement VII. but afterwards, altering his Mind, he cloſ'd with Charles V. who added the Marquiſate of Montferrat to his Dukedom of Mantua. He died in 1540. Charles de Gonzaga-Cleves I. of that Name, one of the greateſt Men of his Time, as may be ſeen by the Curious Memoirs publiſh'd in his Name. Francis Gonzaga, Cardinal of Mantua, promoted to the Purple by Pius II. in 1461. and died in 1483. Hercules Gonzaga, made Cardinal of Mantua by Pius IV. preſided at the Council of Trent, and died in 1563. Highly eſteem'd while he liv'd by the Cardinals Hoſius, Bembo and Sadolet. Guichardin. P. Jov. Thuan. &c.

GONZALES, or Gonſalvo of Cordova, Surnam'd the Great Captain, was a Spaniard, a Perſon of Quality, and one that wanted not Wit to bring about his Deſigns. He ſerv'd under Ferdinand and Iſabel in the Conqueſt of Granada, where he won ſeveral Strong Places from the Moors. Ferdinand Vth. King of Arragon gave him the Command of the Forces which he pretendedly ſent into the Kingdom of Naples, to ſuccour his Kinſmen Frederic and Alphonſo; but indeed to ſhare the Kingdom of Naples with the French. He Beſieg'd Taranto, wherein was Alphonſo Duke of Calabria, the King of Naples's Son, took the Town by Capitulation, and Swore upon the Euchariſt to the young Prince, that he would ſet him at Liberty; but for all that, when he was in Poſſeſſion of the Town, he pretended to have receiv'd New Orders from the King his Maſter, and ſent the young Prince a Priſoner into Spain. After this, the Spaniards and French diſagreeing about the Limits of their Shares, and not being able to reconcile the Quarrel, betook themſelves to Arms. And then it was, that Gonſales having in two ſignal Battels, firſt defeated d' Aubigny and taken him Priſoner, and in the ſecond Kill'd Lewis Armagnac, Duke of Nemours; and Laſtly, in a third moſt bloody Battel fought near the Garigliano, utterly ruin'd the Remainders of the French: He made himſelf Maſter of Gajeta, and ſettled the Kingdom of Naples under the Dominion of the Spaniards. 'Tis ſaid, That after this, Gonſales deſign'd to have made himſelf Soveraign of Naples, or at leaſt to have reſtor'd it to Arch-Duke Philip. However it were, Ferdinand, who was a jealous Prince, and none of the moſt Grateful, made a Journey to Naples, and forc'd this great General to follow him into Spain. Where he retir'd to his Houſe in diſcontent, and died in 1515. Thuanus, l. 1. Brantoſme, Mezeray, &c.

GONZALES de Salas, a Learned Spaniard of Madrid, made a Comment upon Petronius Arbiter; an Abſtract of Geography, Tragedies de duplici Terra viventium, and died in 1651.

GOODWIN Sands, dangerous Shelves on the North-eaſt of Kent, and ſo call'd from E. Goodwin, in whoſe Poſſeſſion this Tract was before the Sea over-whelm'd it; when inquiry was made, What might have occaſion'd this Inundation; an old Man imputed it to the Building of Tenterden Steeple in this County, for which he was heartily laugh'd at, tho' in ſome ſence it was true enough; for Money had been conſtantly collected out of this County, to fence the Eaſt Banks of this County againſt the Encroachments of the Sea, and thoſe Sums were depoſited in ſuch hands, as finding the Sea quiet for many Years, and fearing nothing from thence, converted that Money to the Building of a Steeple, and endowing of a Church in Tenterden.

GORANUS, the Brother and Succeſſor of Congallus I. 45th. King of Scotland, govern'd the Kingdom after his Example, Travelling into all Parts of it to puniſh Offenders, and prevent the Injuries which great Men did offer the Poor; and perſwaded Lothus, King of the Picts, to break his Alliance with the Saxons, inſiſting upon their Inhumane Cruelty to the Britains, who had deſerv'd ſo well of 'em, and their baſe Treachery in Killing the greateſt part of the Nobility when they had invited 'em to a Conference; concluding, That it was unworthy a true Chriſtian to conſent to that League, whereby Chriſtian Religion muſt be extinguiſh'd, Prophane Rites renew'd, and wicked Tyrants, Enemies of Piety and Humanity, arm'd with Power againſt God and his Law: Having thus diſengag'd him from the Saxons, he made him enter into a League with Uter, King of the Britains, and with himſelf againſt 'em. This was renew'd again with K. Arthur, Uric's Son, a Prince of great Valour, who took London and York from the Saxons; and being aſſiſted by King Goranus and Lothus, gave 'em a great defeat upon the Banks of the Humber, and at length ſubdu'd 'em quite. Goranus having Govern'd 34 Years, is ſaid to have been Kill'd by his own Subjects.

GORCONIUM, Gorcum a City of the Low-Countries in Holland, ſeated upon the Meuſe 5 Leagues above Dort, and in regard it is fortified after the Modern Faſhion, it may be ſaid to be one of the beſt Places in the Low-Countries. The River of Lingh runs through the middle of the City, and throws it ſelf into the Meuſe. It was Built in 1230. by John Lord of Arkel, after he had Built the Caſtle, which is ſtill to be ſeen. Gorcum is a well-peopl'd City, and Capital of the Country of Arkel, which the Natives call t' Landt van Arkel. Nor is it leſs famous for the Siege which the Hollanders laid to it, before they made themſelves Maſters of it. 'Tis ſaid, That from the top of Gorcum Steeple, you may diſcover Two and twenty Wall'd Cities, and a great Number of Towns and Villages. Petit. Zuerius, Junius.

GORDIANUS Senior, was the Son of Metius Marullus and Ulpia Gordiana, by the Father's ſide deſcended from the Gracchi; by the Mother's from Trajan the Emperor. A Perſon of great Magnanimity, Eloquence, Juſtice, Continency, and one of that great Moderation, that in all the high Roman Offices which he bore, he never did any thing over-greedily, immodeſtly, or to exceſs. Being made Pro-Conſul of Africa, and his Son ſoon after Legate with him; the Mildneſs of his Government won him ſo many Friends, that in Oppoſition to Maximinus, who was hated by all the World, Gordianus was advanc'd to the Throne in the 80th. Year of his Reign, and his Son made General of the Army, and ſoon after acknowledg'd Emperor with his Father, and the Choice approv'd by the Senate. This was done by the Procurement of Mauricius, a Captain in great Favour among the Africans. But at the ſame time one Capellianus, formerly degraded by the Emperor, in his Pro-conſulſhip, for ſeveral Irregularities by him committed, and for that reaſon bearing Gordianus a private grudge, got together a Rabble of Moors, and march'd directly for Carthage, to find out the new Emperor, who ſent againſt him his Son, a Better Man than a Soldier, who was therefore eaſily defeated and ſlain by Capellianus. Upon the News of which, Gordianus fearing to fall into the hands of Maximinus, kill'd himſelf. He was a Perſon much addicted to Poetry in his Youth, and wrote the Lives of Antoninus Pius and Antoninus Marcus, (of whoſe worth he was always a great Admirer) in XXX. Books in moſt Elegant Verſe. He was belov'd of the People, for his Magnificence during his Queſtorſhip, and his Splendid Shews, things extreamly taking with the Vulgar. He was ſomething fat of Body, and in his latter years, his comely grey Hairs, his graceful and Majeſtick Preſence procur'd him a general Reſpect. Julius Capitolinus. Herodian, Lib. 7.

GORDIANUS, the Son of the Emperor, conſpicuous for his Form, of a ſingular Memory, and of ſo good a Diſpoſition, that when he ſaw any of his School-fellows chaſtiz'd, he could not forbear weeping, was acknowledg'd Emperor by the Senate, ſo ſoon as the News was brought that he was Elected together with his Father. How he was ſlain you have already heard. He was a Perſon that went neat and rich in his Habit, lov'd good Eating and his Eaſe, and extreamly belov'd by his Servants, and all his Acquaintance.

GORDIANUS Tertius, was veſted with the Imperial Robes, and Saluted Cæſar in the Senate-Houſe, at the requeſt of the People and Soldiers, not being above Sixteen Years of Age. He was the Son, as moſt affirm, of a Daughter of Gordian the Elder. He quell'd the Sedition of Sabinianus in Africa, by the Aſſiſtance of the Præfect of that Province, and compell'd the Conſpirators to acknowledge their Crime and ſue for Pardon. He Married the Daughter of Miſitheus, a moſt Learned Philoſopher, and following his good Counſel, made the Empire look with a new Face of Honour and Juſtice. He made an Expedition into Perſia, overthrew Sapor, retook Antiochia, and expell'd the Perſians out of the Roman Empire. But this Happineſs laſted no longer than Miſitheus liv'd, who, was cut off by the Artifices of Philip, Surnam'd the Arabian, made Captain of the Prætorian Bands upon the Death of Miſitheus; for which reaſon he ſought his life, and that he might make way to the Imperial Throne. For being advanc'd to that Dignity, he ſoon wrought the downfal of Gordian, and having got himſelf to be joyn'd with him Co-Partner in the Empire, commanded him to be ſtript and murder'd by the Souldiers, whom he had brought to be at his Devotion, and incens'd againſt Gordianus by many pretended Accuſations. Julius Capitolinus. Herodian. Aurelian. Victor, &c.

GORDITANUM Promontorium, Capo di Monte falcone, a Promontory upon the Weſtern Coaſt of Sardinia, toward the North, and jetting out toward the Iſland of Aſinara, hardly 20 Miles from Argentera to the North, but 20 from Saſſari to the Weſt. Baudrand.

GORDIUM, a City of Great Phrygia, upon the River Sangarius, famous for the Gordian Knot which was there kept as a Sacred Relick. Alexander the Great had a mind to ſee this Myſterious Knot, and not having Dexterity enough to untye it, drew his Sword and cut it a pieces. Zenophon Quint. Curt. Lib. 3.

GORDIUS King of Phrygia, and Father of Midas, who being a poor Husbandman, had two Yokes of Oxen, with one of which he Plow'd his Land, with the other he drew his Wain; That as he was at Plow, an Eagle Perch'd upon the Yoke of one of his Oxen, and ſate there till Evening; upon which, conſulting the Southſayers, a Virgin of the Country bid him Sacrifice to Jupiter, under the Title of King: that thereupon he Married the Virgin, and had Midas by her. In the mean time, the Phrygians, admoniſh'd by the Oracle to take for their Sovereign the firſt Perſon they met in a Wain, met Gordius, with his Wife and Son, and preſently plac'd him in the Throne. Midas, for the Favour receiv'd from Jupiter, Conſecrated to him his Father's Cart. 'Tis further ſaid, That the Knot which faſten'd the Yoke to the Beam, was ſo ingeniouſly and artificially contriv'd of the Bark of a Cornel-Tree, that the Ends of it could not be diſcover'd; and the Noiſe of Fame was, That whoever could unlooſe it, ſhould obtain the Empire of Aſia. Alexander therefore coming to Gordium, and not able to unlooſe the Knot, cut it with his Sword, and boaſted that he had fulfill'd the Oracle. Curtius, Arrian.

GORDON, the Sirname of an Ancient and Great Family in Scotland; who took their Name from the Barony of Gordon, in the Shire of Berwick, or the Mers, in the South of that Kingdom, which was the Ancient Inheritance of the Family. The Duke of Gordon is Chief of the Name, and the Family have had their Principal Reſidence in the North of Scotland, for ſome Ages, their Chief Manſion being the Bog of Gight. Sir John Gordon, of this Family, leaving an only Daughter to ſucceed to his great Eſtate, ſhe married Sir Alexander Setoun; who, by Authority of Parliament, took the Name of Gordon, to preſerve the Memory of the Family: And was, by King James II. Created Earl of Huntly, in 1449. King James VI. advanc'd to the Title of Marquis George Gordon, Earl of Huntly, Lord Gordon and Badenoch; being a Man of great Honour and Reputation, for his Ancient Nobleneſs of Birth, and the Multitude of his Dependants and Followers. George Gordon, Earl of Huntly, was ſent againſt the Engliſh with his own Clan, to prevent their Incurſions into the Borders by King James V. In which he was Succeſsful; having, by the Aſſiſtance of the Lord Hume, repuls'd them with Loſs. He afterwards Commanded 10000 Men againſt them; and upon his Approach, they retir'd in Confuſion; of which he made no Advantage: Whereupon the King was mightily incens'd againſt him, as at moſt of his Nobility, who were averſe to the War with England at that time. He was, in Queen Mary's time, employ'd to reduce the Chief of the Mac Reynalds, who had committed Depredations upon his Neighbours: But being Unſucceſsful, he was blamed; but more for having cauſed William, the Chief of the Clan Chattan, to be put to Death, becauſe he would not put himſelf under his Clanſhip. However, the Earl eſcaped with Impriſonment, and quitting ſome of his Royalties. The Nobility, not being willing that the French, who then govern'd all under the Queen-Regent, ſhould be inured to ſpill the Blood of the Scotch Nobles: And Gordon, being a Politick Man, advis'd the Queen-Regent to beſtow ſuch Court-Offices as were any way Gainful, upon Strangers, to create an ill Underſtanding betwixt Her and the Nobility. He was a great Oppoſer of the Reformation, and undertook, to Queen Mary's Uncles, to reduce the North to the Church of Rome. The Pope and Guiſes knowing him to be a Powerful Man, kept him in their Intereſt by great Promiſes; and, among others, That their Niece, the Queen, ſhould Marry his Son John. Which animated him ſo far, that he attempted to cut off the Earl of Murray, her Brother, one of the Chief of the Proteſtants; and to have ſurpriz'd the Queen her ſelf, when in the North, where his Power was very great: And his Son John, in the mean time, was at the Head of 1000 Horſe. But as the Queen was on her Way to his Caſtle of Strathbogy, the Earl, in his Diſcourſe, did offend her; ſo that ſhe refus'd to go with him, and diſappointed the Plot: And the Highland Clans, particularly the Mac Intoſhes, with the Frazers and Monroes, came to her Aſſiſtance. But Huntly, by his Friends about her, had ſtill Hopes of effecting his Deſign againſt the Earl of Murray, and then he doubted not of obtaining his Deſire as to the Marriage. But this being diſcover'd by intercepted Letters, he was reduc'd to Deſpair, and forc'd to hazard a Battel: Wherein, though he was Superior in Number, yet the Earl of Murray defeated him, and took himſelf, with his two Sons, Priſoners. The Old Man being Corpulent, Died in their Hands; his Son John was Beheaded; but Adam Pardon'd; and the Eldeſt put himſelf under the Protection of Hamilton, his Father-in-Law. Of the Advancement of this Family to the Title of Marquiſs, by King James VI. we have heard above: And by King Charles II. it was honour'd with the Title of a Dukedom, in the Perſon of the preſent Duke, now a Priſoner in the Caſtle of Edinburgh, which he held out, in the Beginning of the Revolution, for King James, againſt King William: But, during the Siege, he behav'd himſelf with ſo much Moderation, in regard of the Miſchief which he might have done to the City from that impregnable Fortreſs, that he was allow'd a Capitulation on very Honourable Terms: But having afterwards gone over to France, he was taken, as paſſing from thence into Germany and brought Priſoner to Edinbourgh. There are of this Noble Sirname, beſides the Duke, the Earls of Sutherland: . . . Viſcount of Kenmure: . . . . And many conſiderable Gentlemen.

GORGON, La Gorgona, a ſmall City of Italy, between the Tuſcan Shore and Corſica, formerly under the Dominion of the Piſans, but now ſubject to the Duke of Tuſcany containing only one Village with a Tower, 25 Miles diſtant from Livorno to the Weſt, 20 Miles from the Mouth of the River Magra to the South, and altogether Mountainous.

GORGONES, or Gorgades, the Iſlands of Cape Vert, in the Atlantick Ocean, toward Africa and Cape Vert, being Ten in Number, under the King of Portugal. Vid. Heſperides & Virides Inſulæ. Baudrand.

GORGONS, Three Siſters, the Daughters of Phorcus and Ceta, whoſe Names were Meduſa, Euriale, and Sthenio. They dwelt near the Heſperian Gardens, and turn'd into Stones all People that look'd in their Faces. Perſeus vanquiſh'd 'em, and kill'd Meduſa by Minerva's Aſſiſtance. All which, the Mythologiſts ſay, is meant of Fortitude, which Overcomes the greateſt Dangers. Virgil. Natal. Com.

GORITIA, Goritz, a City of Friuli, and Capital of a County of the ſame Name; ſeated upon the River Liſonzo, 3 or 4 Miles from Aquileia, and as many from Palma: A fortify'd Town, belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria.

GORLÆUS, (Abraham) Born at Antwerp; a great Collector of Medals, Ancient Coins, and other Antiquities: (as may be ſeen by his Treatiſe de Annulorum Origine; his Theſaurus Numiſmatum. Familiarum Roman. Paralipomena Numiſmatum. Dactylitheca ſeu Annulorum Sigillorumq; è Ferro, Ære, Argento atq; Auro promptuarium, &c.) He died in the Year 1609. Val. Andr.

GORLITZ, Lat. Gorlitium, a Town of Germany, in Upper Luſatia; ſeated between the Marſhes toward the Neiſe, 4 or 5 Leagues from Bautzen, upon the Frontiers of Bohemia, of which it was formerly a Member, but now belongs to the Duke of Saxony: A well fortify'd City.

GOROPIUS, (John) born at a Village in Brabant, called Hilvaren Beca. He was much eſteem'd in Charles the Vth's Time, and Phyſician to the Queens of France and Hungary, and conſiderably skill'd in Philoſophy, Languages, and the Polite part of Learning; however his Works did not altogether anſwer his Character, which might poſſibly be occaſion'd by his giving himſelf the liberty of maintaining Paradoxes. One of which was, that Adam ſpoke Teutonick or High-Dutch. Goropius wrote Origines Anverpianæ in nine Books, and died at Maeſtricht, in 1572. Lipſius, Cent. 3. ad Belg. Ep. 44. Scaliger. Lib. 2. Ep. 146. Miræus in Elog. Belg. &c.

GORSKINS, (James) Archdeacon of Gneſne, Vice-Chancellour and Profeſſour of the Univerſity of Cracovia in Poland, was a Perſon much eſteem'd for his Learning in the XVIth. Cent. and made a conſiderable Progreſs in the Study of the Languages, Divinity and Canon Law. He died in 1585. His Works are, De Uſu legitimo Euchariſtiæ. De Paſtore. De Baptiſmo Prædeſtinatorum; Cruſius ſive Animadverſio in Theologos Wittemberg. Præmunitio adverſus Inſanum Dogma Franchen Ariani. Victoria Regis Stephani. Præſtantiſſimorum Polonorum Epiſtolæ, lib. 30. Starovolſcius in Elog. Polog, &c.

GORY, a ſmall City of Gurgiſtan, or Georgia Proper; ſeated in a Plain between two Mountains, upon the River Kur, at the Foot of a Riſing Hill; upon the Top of which ſtands a Fortreſs guarded by Natural Perſians. It was built during the Wars of Gurgiſtan, about 40 Years ago, by Ruſtan Kan, General of the Perſian Army. It is fortify'd as well by Nature as Art; which is the Reaſon there are not in it above 100 Men that keep Garriſon. The Inhabitants are all Merchants, and very Rich; and all things neceſſary for Humane Life are to be had there at a cheap Rate.

GOSLARIA, Goſlar, a Free and Imperial City of Germany, in the Lower Saxony, and in the Dukedom of Brunſwick; ſeated upon the Oker, which riſes not far from it, about 5 or 6 Leagues from Hildeſheim.

GOSTININ, a City and Caſtellanſhip of Lower Poland, in the Palatinate of Raue, with a good Caſtle, 2 or 3 Leagues from the Viſtula, and as many from Ploczko. Demetrius Suiski, Grand Duke of Moſcovy, whom his Subjects had deliver'd into the Hands of Staniſlaus Zolkiewski, General of the Forces of Sigiſmund King of Poland, was carry'd to Goſtinin, in 1611. and there died in a ſhort time after.

GOTEMBURGH, a City of North America, in New Sweden; built by the Swedes, taken from them by the Hollanders, and from them by the Engliſh.

GOTEMBURGH, Lat. Gothoburgum, a City of Sweden, upon the Baltick Sea, with a fair Harbour. It lies in Weſtro-Gotland, about 2 or 3 Leagues from Babus. And here it was that Charles IX. King of Sweden, died, in 1660.

GOTHA, a City of Germany, in Turingia, belonging to one of the Branches of the Princes of the Houſe of Saxony. This City ſuffer'd much in the XVIth. Age, during the Wars in Germany. John Auguſtus, of Saxony, took it the Year 1567. and there put a ſtop to his Brother, John Frederick, who was carry'd away Priſoner to Vienna. Thuanus, l. 41.

GOTHAM, a Village of Ruſhcliff Wapentake, in the South Parts of Nottinghamſhire: Noted for a ſort of Rugged Stone found near it, but beautify'd with ſuch delicate Veins as exceed the Beauty of Marble. As Wiſe as a Man of Gotham, is a Proverb to expreſs a Fool. How this Proverb ſhould paſs ſo currant, I ſee no Ground for it, but ſuch Fopperies as have been father'd on the Men of Gotham; though perhaps it breeds as Wiſe People as any that cauſeleſly laugh at their Simplicity. To juſtifie which, Doctor Fuller quotes a Worthy Man of this Place, William de Gotham, who was twice Chancellor of Cambridge, in the XIVth. Century, and prov'd as Wiſe a Governor as that Age did afford. But, as he ſays withal Men of all Ages have made themſelves merry, by ſingling out ſome Place, and fixing the Staple of Stupidity or Stolidity therein. Thus the Phrygians were counted the Fools of all Aſia, and the Anvils of other Mens Wits to work upon. Serò ſapiunt Phryges, Phryx niſi ictus non ſapit. Thus Abdera, in Greece, was the Place for Dull-Pates: Abderitanæ pectora Plebis habes. Plutarch was a Bœotian; and yet Bœotum Ingenium ſignified a down right Blockhead. Eraſmus a Hollander, and yet Auris Batava is taken for a heavy Fancy, which has no Skill in Witty Conceits.

GOTHIA, which they of the Country call Gotland, or the Land of the Goths, is a Province of Sweden, which lies between Sweden Proper, Norway, and the Baltick Sea. It is divided into Weſtern, or Weſtro-Gotland; Eaſtern, or Oſtro-Gotland; and Southern, or Sud-Gotland. The Provinces of Weſtro-Gotland, are Weſtro-Gotland, Dalia, and Wermeland: Of Eaſtern Gothia Oſtro-Gotland, Smaland, Oeland, and the Iſle of Gotland: Of Southern Gotland, Skonen, Halland, and Bleking. Which three laſt formerly belong'd to Denmark, but are now under the Kingd of Sweden. Some aſſure us, That the Goths came out of this Country: But Others, That they were the Getæ of Aſia who leaving their own Country in ſearch of a more Fertile Soil, ſettled themſelves in Boſnia, Thrace, and Bulgaria, from whence they ſpread themſelves into Scandinavia, and ſtop'd upon the Shore of the Baltick Sea, till the Time of Alaric. However it were, certain it is, that they began to make themſelves known in the Time of the Emperor Decius, about the Year 251. Theodoſius the Great vanquiſh'd 'em in Thrace; and to gain his Good-will, they receiv'd Baptiſm. 'Tis true, That Baronius obſerves, That the Goths were inſtructed in the Myſteries of the Chriſtian Faith, in the Reign of Conſtantine the Great. But in the Reign of Decius, they ravag'd Mœſia and Thrace: In the Time of Galienus, they waſted Greece, Macedonia and Aſia: And at ſeveral other times, many other Provinces of the Roman Empire were ruin'd by their Incurſions. And they were become ſo Formidable, that Procopius made uſe of no other Forces in all the Meaſures that he took to Invade the Empire, in 365. The Emperor Valens was by them ſlain in a Battel which he gave them in 378. Alaric, with his Goths, took Rome, and harraſs'd all Italy, during the Reign of Honorius, in the Year 409. Ataulph, his Succeſſor, began the Kingdom of the Viſigoths in Aquitain and Languedoc. Afterwards they ſet up a Kingdom in Spain; where they continued near 300 Years, till Roderic was driven out by the Moors and Saracens, in 713. Theodorick, adopted by the Emperour Zeno, and making War upon Odoacer, King of the Heruli, in Italy; ſet up the Kingdom of the Oſtro-Goths, or Eaſtern Goths there, which continued about 58 Years, till Narſes, Juſtinian's General conquer'd Totilas and Teia, and put an End to the Goths in Italy, in the Year 552. Procopius, Jornandes, Cluverius.

GOTHINI, an Ancient People of Germany, toward the River Oder, and to the Eaſt of the Marcomanni, now a Part of the Province of Sileſia, near to Vratiſlaw, by the Teſtimony of Sanſon.

GOTHLAND, Lat. Gothlandia, an Iſland of Sweden, in the Baltick Sea, 12 Leagues in Length from North to South, and 5 in Breadth from Eaſt to Weſt; wherein ſtands the City of Wisby, formerly a Town of great Trade.

GOTHS, an Ancient People of Germany, which dwelt all along the Viſtula, even as far as its Mouth, in the Baltick-Sea at Dantzick. The Original of theſe People is very much diſputed, but the Learned Cluverius is poſitive, that they were firſt ſeated in the Country above-mention'd, between the Viſtula and the Oder; and afterwards incorporating the Heruli by Conqueſt, the Rugians and ſome other Vandalick Clans, they were known after this Incorporation by the general Name of Goths, and as ſuch diſtinguiſh'd from the reſt of the Vandals, who ſtill retain'd the ſame Name; and in proceſs of time, finding their Country too ſtrait for the Number of the Inhabitants, they divided themſelves into two Nations; ſo that they who inhabited the more Eaſtern Parts, toward the Pontus Euxinus, as far as the River Tyras, were the Oſtro-Gots, Govern'd by Princes of the Houſe of the Amali: The others, who inhabited more to the Weſt, as far as the River Tibiſcus, and call'd themſelves Viſi-Gots, were Commanded by Princes of the Race of the Balthi. Both the one and the other were Faithful to the Romans for ſome time; but afterwards they frequently croſs'd the Danube, and committed great Ravages in the Territories of the Empire. They Beſieg'd Martianopoli, in Thrace, during the Reign of Claudius, near 100 Years before they fell into Dacia. And then it was, that the Gepidi, coming out of their Iſlands, threw themſelves into Mid-land Dacia, led by their King Faſtida, and made but one People with the Goths. And at the ſame time they alſo continued to paſs the Danube, and make moſt terrible Incurſions into Thrace, Illyria, and Pannonia; till being tam'd by Conſtantine the Great, they lay quiet within their own Limits. And about that time it was, that by reaſon of their Commerce with the Romans, ſeveral among 'em forſook their Idols, and embrac'd the Chriſtian Religion. One of their Biſhops alſo was preſent at the General Council of Nice. But not long after, the Catholick Religion was chang'd among 'em by that Arch-Heretick Audæus, who gave a Humane Shape to God; ſo that they follow'd the Hereſie of the Anthropomorphites. Maimburgh's Hiſt. of Arianiſm.

GOTTINGHEN, a City of Lower Saxony, in the Dutchy of Brunſwick. Some Authors take it for the Municium of the Ancients. It is ſeated upon the River Leine, upon the Frontiers of Heſſia, on that ſide next to Duderſtadt.

GOTTORP, Lat. Gottorpium, a Fortreſs of Denmark, in Jutland, and the uſual Reſidence of the Dukes of Sleſwick, of the Houſe of Holſtein, who alſo bear the Title of Dukes of Gottorp. It is one of the moſt delicious Seats that is to be ſeen in all the Northern Parts of Europe, nothing can be more Pleaſant and Romantick than the Situation of this Caſtle, it ſtands in an Iſland ſurrounded by a large Lake made by the River Sley, whoſe riſing Banks are cloathed with fine Woods, the Waters clear and full of Fiſh, carry Veſſels of ſmall Burthen to and from the Baltick-Sea, into which it empties it ſelf: The Gardens are large, well diſpoſed with Fountains, &c. A moſt Noble Park, or rather Foreſt, full of Deer, wild Boars, and all ſorts of Game joins cloſe to this Garden, cut through with pleaſant Walks and Ridings: This place ſuffered much during the Misfortune of the late Duke, who was reſtored to it, as well as the reſt of his Dominions, in 1689. but his Son has been lately diſpoſſeſt of it by the Troops of Denmark.

GOUALIAR, or Goualeor, a City of a Province of the ſame Name, in the Empire of the Great Mogull, on this ſide Ganges, to the Eaſt of Agra. This Place is look'd upon as one of the Wonders of the Indies, and is the Arſenal where the Emperor keeps his Treaſures; and hither it is that the Great Mogul ſends all ſuch Princes whoſe Perſons he deſigns to Secure, or elſe to put privately to Death. Tavernier.

GOUDA, a City of the Low-Countries, in Holland, ſeated upon the Yſſel, which there receives two Rivers; of which the one, call'd Gou, derives its Name to the City. It is ſaid to have been built in the Year 1272. under Florent V. Count of Holland: And that it had two particular Lords of the Houſe of Blois; the laſt of which reſign'd it to the Counts of Holland, in 1398. Gouda was burnt in 1420. but now it has a very Fair Church, and a Magnificent Town-Houſe. The Situation of the City is not only very Pleaſant, but alſo very Advantageous, by reaſon of the Sluces, and the convenient Harbour in the Yſſel. It lies above 5 Leagues from Leyden.

GOVEA (Antony) of a Noble Family in Portugal: He acquir'd the Reputation of an Excellent Poet, a Great Philoſopher, and a Learned Lawyer; left ſeveral Works behind him, and died in 1565. We have four Epiſtles, and ſeveral Epigrams of his; His other Works are, Ad Titulum de Juriſdictione omnium Judicum. Variarum Juris Lectionum, lib. 2. De ſubſtitutionibus. Ad Legem Falcidiam. In Trebellianum, &c. Thuanus gives him a large Encomium, lib. 33.

GOUEL, a River in the Kingdom of Bengale, where there are Diamonds found. See Soumelpour.

GOVERNO, Lat. Acroventum, is a Town in the Signiory of Venice, upon the Po, in that part where the River receives the Menzo, and lies in the Dutchy of Mantoua, between Mantoua, and Concorda, not far from Miranda; Famous for the Interview between Pope Leo, and Attila, King of the Hunns.

GOUFFIER, a Noble and Ancient Family of Poitou, in France; from whence, among others of great Dignity in that Kingdom, deſcended Adrian Gouffier Cardinal of Boiſſi, advanc'd to the Purple by Leo X. at the Requeſt of Francis I. with whom he was in great Favour; and William Gouffier, known by the Name of Admiral de Bonivet. In the Year 1519. Francis I. ſent him his Extraordinary Embaſſador into England. In 1521. he Commanded the Army deſign'd by King Francis for the Recovery of Navarre: At what time feigning to March toward Pampelone, he turn'd away toward St. John de Luz; and having paſs'd the River Bidaſſon, lay'd Siege to Fontarabi; which Surrender'd, after the firſt Aſſault. In 1523. he Commanded the Army in Italy, and lay'd Siege to Milan; but was forc'd to riſe from before it, by reaſon of the Peſtilence that rag'd in his Army. To repair his Loſſes, he perſwaded King Francis to take the Field next Summer in Perſon, and adviſed him to fight the Battel of Pavia; where he himſelf loſt his life, and the King his Liberty. Mezeray, &c.

GOULAMS, Perſian Slaves, made up of the Gatherings of all Nations, and principally of the Georgian Renegado's. The King of Perſia has about fourteen Thouſand of theſe Goulams, in a diſtinct Body, in his Army. Thevenot.

GOULETTA, a Fortreſs between the Mediterranean Sea and the Lake of Tunis. Before the Pirate Barbaroſſa fortify'd it, 'twas no more than a ſquare Tower, ſeated up on the Mouth of a Canal, where the Sea Water enters into the Lake. The Canal is about a Bowſhot in Length; but ſo Narrow, that one Galley cannot row through it. The Lake is about 3 Leagues in Length, and 2 Broad, and all overſpread with Banks of Sand: ſo that there is no paſſing but with Barks, along the Canals, where the Current of the Water runs ſtrongeſt. Barbaroſſa conſidering that Tunis could not be Fortify'd, as being Commanded by ſeveral Hills to the Weſt, reſolv'd to haſten the Fortifications of Gouletta. But the Emperor Charles V. took it by Aſſault, that he might reſtore it to the King of Tunis, whom Barbaroſſa had dethron'd. Afterwards he regain'd the City of Tunis, which he deliver'd into the Hands of Her Lawful Sovereign, in the ſame Year 1535. In 1574. the Turks made themſelves Maſters of it, and made a ſpacious Harbour there, and built a Cuſtom-Houſe, two Moſques, with Priſons for Chriſtian Slaves. Marmol.

GOURA, Gourè, a Caſtle in the Kingdom of Nigritia, upon the ſhore of the Atlantick Sea, newly built and fortify'd by the Hollanders, 3 Leagues from Cape Vert, and ſtanding in a ſmall Iſland almoſt joyning to the Shore.

GOURNAY, Gornacum, a Town in Normandy, ſeated upon the Eptè, in the County of Bray, about 5 Leagues above Giſors, there is another Town of the ſame Name, in the Iſland of France, upon the Confines of Picardy, between Compiegne, Noyon and Clermont in Beauvaſis.

GOURUM, or Gouro, a City of Aſia, in India, within the Kingdom of Bengale, about 200 Miles from Bengale to the North, and as many from the Bay of Ganges, under the Dominion of the Great Mogul.

GOZE, an Iſland of Africa, which the Latins call Gaules, the Natives Gaudiſch. It lies to the Weſt of Maltha, being ſeparated from it only by a narrow Frith not above 4 Miles broad. There is in it a Fortreſs upon a Hill, with a ſmall Borough; which, together with the Iſland, belongs to the Knights of Maltha.

GOZON (Deodatus) the Twenty ſeventh Grand Maſter of Rhodes, advanc'd to that Dignity in the Year 1346. He is reported to have kill'd a Dragon as big as a ſmall Horſe, with long Ears, cover'd over with Scales, having a Head like a Serpent, four Feet, reſembling thoſe of Crocodiles; two Wings, Black above, and Yellow mix'd with Greeniſh underneath, and a Tail lying in ſeveral Folds and Circles upon his Body. This Monſter haunted Rhodes, at a Place call'd Maupas, and infected all the Air of the Country near adjoyning to his Den; till Gozon diſpatch'd him, by the Aſſiſtance of two Maſtiffs: It us'd to walk, ſwinging its Wings, darting Fire at the Eyes, and making a hidious Hiſſing. Gozon having undertaken to fight him, caus'd an Artificial Dragon to be made, as like it as Art could poſſibly; and having accuſtom'd his Horſe to come to it, and his Dogs to faſten upon and rear its Belly, he arm'd himſelf Cap-a-pé, and being attended with ſome of his Domeſticks, came near the Den; and there leaving his Servants, with Orders to come to his Aſſiſtance if they ſaw Occaſion, made forward, with his Lance in his Hand. The Dragon ſpying him, came forward with his wonted fierceneſs; and Gozon having broke his Lance againſt its Breaſt, without doing it the leaſt harm, alighted from his Horſe; and the Dogs having faſten'd upon the Beaſt, he ran his Sword into his Wind-Pipe, where the Skin was ſomewhat tenderer. It's ſaid all this is repreſented in the Tapeſtry of the Order; and that theſe Words, Draconis Extinctor are ſtill to be ſeen upon that Great Maſter's Tomb. Boſio's Hiſtory of the Order of St. John, &c. But after all, this Story looks like a Romance.

GRACCHUS (Titus Sempronius) of the Family of the Sempronians in Rome, twice Conſul, once Cenſor, and twice Triumph'd. When he was Prætor, he ſubdu'd Gallia. The firſt time he was Conſul, being ſent into Spain, he reduc'd the Celtiberians, and took their City Ilurcis, and ſplendidly repair'd it, that it might be a Memorial of his Atchievements, calling the Name of it Gracchuris. The ſecond time he was Conſul, he utterly ſubdu'd Sardigni, and brought away ſuch a vaſt number of Slaves, that the long continuance of the Sale, gave Occaſion to the Proverb Sardi Venales. His Wife was Cornelia, of the Family of the Scipio's, Eminent for her Chaſtity and Learning; by whom he had two Sons, Tiberius and Caius, of rare Parts, and admirable Eloquence; but ſo over-fondly covetous of Popular Applauſe, that they forſook the Nobility, and took part with the Common People, and reviv'd the Agrarian Laws, the perpetual Fuel of Seditions; and never would be quiet, till they had arm'd the Nobility to their Deſtruction. Tiberius was kill'd firſt, while he was Haranguing to the People, by Pub. Naſica; and Caius two Years after that, when he had poſſeſs'd the Capitol, and by frequently pointing to his Head, recommended the Preſervation of it to the People, (which by others was interpreted to be a Demanding the Diadem,) was ſlain by the Order of the Conſul Opimius. Livy, Florus, &c.

GRACCHUS Sempronius, of a Noble Family in the Reign of Auguſtus; a Perſon Induſtrious, and wickedly Eloquent; vitiated Julia, the Daughter of Cæſar; marry'd to Marcus Agrippa, and afterwards being marry'd to Tiberius, proſecuting his former Adulteries, inceus'd her againſt her Huſband: For which reaſon he was baniſh'd into the Iſland of Cercina, where he continu'd 14 Years in Exile; and after Julia was murder'd in the Iſland of Pandeteria, by the Command of Tiberius, had his Head ſtruck off by Perſons ſent on purpoſe to take away his Life. Tacit. Annal.

GRACES, Lat. Gratiæ, by the Greeks call'd Charites, were ſaid to be the Daughters of Jupiter and Eurynome, or (as Others ſay) of Jupiter and Venus, being three in number, Aglais, ſignifying Beauty; Euphroſyne, Gladneſs or Joy; and Thalia, Youth and Mirth; all referring to the Fertility of the Earth, and the Abundance of Fruits which it produces. Thalia ſignifying the pleaſant Blooming of the Trees; Aglaia, the Splendour of the Summer; and Euphroſyne, the Joy which the Husbandman takes in the Plenty of his Harveſts. Some referr the Signification of this Fable to Benefits receiv'd and beſtow'd. By Aglaia, denoting the Benefit done; by Euphroſyne, the Perſon that receives; and by Thalia, the Perſon that beſtows. Therefore they were always painted with a Smiling Countenance, and repreſented Naked; to ſhew, that we ought to oblige our Friends without Diſſimulation. Natales Comes, Seneca, Fulgent.

GRACIA à Dios a City and Promontory of Honduras, a Province of New Spain, in Northern America. There are in the Parts adjoyning; a great number of Indians; to whom the Spaniards give the Name of Indios Bravos, by reaſon they are Stout and Generous, and were never yet ſubdu'd. Nevertheleſs, they agree with the Engliſh and French, and make no ſcruple to ſerve aboard their Ships. Where, after they have ſerv'd 3 or 4 Years, and learn'd to ſpeak the Languages, they return Home, without demanding any other Reward of Money or Cloaths, but only ſome Iron Tools. Their Government is much like the Republican; for they acknowledge neither King nor Prince. When they go to War, they make the moſt Couragious and beſt Experienc'd among 'em their Leader; and when they return Home again, that Commander has no more Authority than any of the reſt. The Country which they poſſeſs is about 50 Leagues in Extent, inhabited by about 15 or 1600 Men; divided into two Bands, of which the one is ſettled at Cape Gracia à Dios, the other at Mouſtique. Religion they have none; only 'tis ſaid, that formerly they were Idolaters, and worſhipp'd a Slave, dreſs'd up in the ſhape of their Idol, for One whole Year: The Prieſts waſh'd him well, clad him in the Idol's Robes, and honour'd him that Year as a God: He had 12 Guards always to ſerve him, and hinder his Eſcape: He lodg'd in the Temple, where he receiv'd the Viſits of the Nobility, &c. who, with the Prieſts, waited on him when he appear'd in publick: The Women brought him their Children to receive his Benediction, and ſome proſtrated themſelves at his Feet; Then ſacrific'd him with a world of Ceremonies, and ſet up another. Oexmelin's Hiſt. of the Weſt-Indies.

GRACURIS, by ſome ſuppos'd to be Agreda, a Town of Arragon, upon the River Queils, in the Confines of Old Caſtile, others will have it to be Cagurtia, in the Kingdom of Navarre, near the River Ebro, and not far from Vienna.

GRADISCA, a Fortreſs belonging to the Houſe of Auſtria, in Friuli; ſeated upon the River Liſonzo, in the County of Goritia.

GRADO, a City of Friuli, built among the Marſhes of the Gulph of Venice. It was formerly the Seat of a Patriarch; afterwards tranſlated to Aquileia; and from thence, about 200 Years ago, tranſlated to Venice. 'Tis alſo the Place where St. Mark's Chair is preſerved, which was ſent thither by the Emperour Heraclius. In the Year 1256. Alexander IV. added new Privileges to thoſe which the Patriarch had receiv'd from Leo X. in 1050. The Patriarchate was tranſlated to Venice by Nicolas V. and Laurentio Juſtiniano was the firſt that enjoy'd that Dignity. At preſent the City of Grado is not very Conſiderable, lying about twelve Miles from Aquileia.

GRADONICUS, (Peter) Duke of Venice, Elected in 1290. by his Prudence: diſcover'd the Conſpiracy of Bajamont Teupolus, and prevented the fatal Conſequences that might have befallen the City. The Republick therefore, to Honour the Memory of their Preſerver, order'd St. Catharine's Day to be ſolemnly obſerv'd, as being the Day on which he was Elected. Egnat. lib. 3.

GRAFFIO, or Jacobus de Graffiis, a Benedictine, Abbot of Montcaſſin in Italy, liv'd in 1595. He was Grand Penitentiary in the Dioceſs of Naples. He applied himſelf chiefly to the Studies of the Moral and Caſuiſtical Part of Religion. His Works are; Deciſiones Aureæ caſuum Conſcientiæ, Lib. IV. Conſilia ſeu Reſponſa Caſuum Conſcientiæ. De Arbitrariis Confeſſariorum quæ attinent ad Caſus Conſcientiæ, &c.

GRAFTON, a ſmall Town of Cleley-Hundred, 3 Miles Eaſt of Toceſter, in Northamptonſhire. Adjoining to which is a fine Park, and a Mannor-Houſe of great Antiquity; moſt part whereof was burnt and pull'd down in the Civil Wars, Anno 1643. Memorable for the Marriage here conſummated betwixt Edward IV. and the Lady Grey, the firſt King of England ſince the Conqueſt that Marry'd his Subject; this being the Ancient Seat of the Family de Wydeville, Earls Rivers. The laſt of which Line, Richard, dying in the Year 1490. bequeath'd it (among other Lands) by his Will, to Thomas Grey, Marquiſs of Dorſet. In which Name it continu'd till Henry VIII. with whom it was exchanged for other Lands in Leiceſterſhire, and ſo has ever ſince continu'd in the Crown. The ſame gives the Title of Duke to Charles, Son to the late Duke of Grafton that was kill'd before Cork, in Ireland.

GRAILLY, (John) in 1364. commanded the Forces of Philip King of Navarre againſt Charles V. King of France, at the Battel of Cocherel, in Normandy; where he was taken Priſoner by Bertrand de Gueſchin, and not releas'd till the Treaty of Peace concluded between thoſe two Princes. Afterwards he ſerv'd the Engliſh againſt France; and after many ſignal Exploits, was taken Priſoner before Subize, and impriſon'd in the Tour of the Temple at Paris; from which the King of England did all he could to get him releas'd, and had prevail'd, upon Condition he would never take Arms againſt the French; but he choſe rather to die in Priſon, which he did five Years after his Impriſonment.

GRAIN, (Baptiſtle) a Frenchman, he was Councellour and Maſter of Requeſts to Queen Mary de Medicis. In 1614. He publiſh'd a Hiſtory entitled, De cade contenant la vie & geſtes du Roy Henry le Grand, IV de ce nom, en laquelle eſt repreſenté le etat de la France, de puis le Traitè de Cambray en 1559. juſques a la mort du Roy, &c.

GRAN, Lat. Strigonium, an Archiepiſcopal City of Hungary, upon the River Danube, belonging to the Emperor. Its Caſtle is a very fine Pile built upon the Banks of the Danube, upon a Rock which is very ſteep. The City is of a Triangular Form: It has two great Towers, one toward Thomasberg, and the other towards the Danube, over-againſt Barkan. Between theſe Towers there is a Wall which has ſmall Flanks and redoubts, and a Dike flank'd with free Stone. At the foot of the Dike there runs a Terraſs, which has ſtrong Palliſado's, and four great Points inſtead of Ravelins: The other ſide, toward the Danube, has nothing but Walls and Palliſado's: It is very ſteep on that ſide, and ſecur'd by the River. The Caſtle ſtands very high, but there are two Mountains from which it may be batter'd. This City is divided into Two Parts, the High and the Low Town, both very ſtrong. St. Thomas's-Hill is alſo well fortifi'd; becauſe, being very near the Town, it would otherwiſe have Commanded it. There are in it excellent Temperate Baths. This City was heretofore the Capital of Hungary; and has many Magnificent Buildings in it, as St. Stephen's Church, the Archbiſhop's Palace, &c. The Country about it affords excellent Wines; ſo that the Pleaſantneſs of its Situation, and the Fertility of the Soil, eaſily induc'd the Ancient Kings of Hungary to ſettle here. The Importance of the Place has brought upon it many bloody Sieges. John, King of Hungary, Beſieg'd it, without any Succeſs, about 1529. Solyman the Magnificent Took it, in 1544. The Count of Mansfeild Re-took it for the Archduke Matthias, in 1595. It was taken and Re-taken ſince. It ſtands 6 German Miles from Alba Regalis to the Eaſt, the ſame from Buda to the North, and Comora to the South, in a moſt Fruitful and Pleaſant Plain.

GRANADA, or the New Kingdom of Granada, in that part of the Southern America which the Geographers call New Caſtile. This Country is about 130 Leagues in Length, and 30 Broad in the broadeſt part, but not above 20 where it grows narrow. It is cover'd with very thick Foreſts, and abounds in Paſturage that breeds great Store of Horſes and Cattle. There are alſo in it ſome Mines of Gold, Emraulds and other Precious-Stones. The Air is Temperate, but with little difference between Winter and Summer; and the Days and Nights are equal, by reaſon of their Vicinity to the Equator: nevertheleſs, there are ſome Provinces of it which are very Hot. The Principal Provinces of New Granada are Bogota and Tunia: To the South of which lie the Savages, call'd Panches; as the Bogots and Tunians are call'd Moxes. The Panches retain much of their ancient Savageneſs; but the Moxes have had always much more Civility. The Bogots and Tunians are Tall of Stature, and Active of Body. Their Women are Fair and White. They cover themſelves with Mantles of ſeveral Colours girt about them; and wear upon their Heads a ſort of Flower'd Hats, made of Cotten, and dy'd after a manner moſt pleaſing to the Sight. They are alſo much addicted to Dancing and Singing. Thoſe Parts adjoyning to the Rio Grande de la Maddalena, are inhabited by the Savage Canapeyes, diſtinguiſh'd into Muſos and Colyma's, who have two Summers, and two Winters. Their firſt Summer begins in December, and laſts till the End of February: Their firſt Winter begins in March, and laſts till the End of May. Their ſecond Summer continues all June, July and Auguſt: And their ſecond Winter laſts all September, October and November. Not that theſe Seaſons are diſtinguiſh'd by Heat or Cold; but by the Rainy Weather in Winter, and the Fair in Summer: However the Rain falls generally in the Night, rarely in the Day-time. Their greateſt Inconveniences are violent Hurricanes, accompany'd with Thunder and Lightning. The Spaniards poſſeſs the City of Santa Fè, with the Town of St. Michael, and the Cities of Tocayma, Trinidad, Tunia, Pamplona, Merida, Belez, Marequita, Tbague, Vittoria, &c. The City of Santa Fè de Bogota is the Seat of the Parliament, and the Reſidence of the Governor; having a Cathedral-Church, the Archbiſhop of which has under him the Biſhops of Carthagena, Santa Martha, and Papayan. Near to the City lies the Lake of Guatavita; upon the Banks of which the Savages were wont to ſacrifice to their Idols; to whom they offer'd much Gold, and other things of great Value, De Laet.

GRAND Almoner of France, an Officer of the Crown, who diſpoſes of the Money ſet a-part for the King's Alms: He ſays Divine-Service in the King's-Chapel, when he has a mind to do it; and is Biſhop of the Court, having Power to perform the Functions of a Biſhop, in any Dioceſs, without asking the Dioceſan leave: He has the Superintendence of the Hoſpital of Fifteen Score at Paris: He is Sworn by His Majeſty; and by virtue of his Employment, is Commander of His Majeſty's Orders.

GRAND, Maſter of the Ceremonies of France, an Officer of the King's Court, whoſe buſineſs it is to regulate the Precedency of Perſons of Quality at publick Solemnities, as at the Coronation of Kings, the Audience of Ambaſſadours, the Cavalcades and Pompous Entries, and Funerals of Kings, Queens, &c. The Grand Maſter has a Maſter of the Ceremonies, and another Aſſiſtant under him. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

GRANICUS, a River of Aſia, in the Leſſer Phrygia, riſing out of Mount Ida, and emptying it ſelf into the Propontis, not far from Lampſachus: Famous for the Victory which Alexander the Great obtain'd over Darius, in the CXLth. Olympiad, 334 Years before the Chriſtian Computation.

GRANIUS (Petronius) being taken in Africa by Scipio that follow'd Cæſar's Party, and offer'd his Life, refus'd it, ſaying, That Cæſar's Soldiers were wont not to accept, but give Life to others; and immediately ſtabb'd himſelf with his own Sword. Plutarch in Cæſar's Life.

GRANSON, Lat. Granſonium, a Town and Bailiwick of Switzerland, belonging to the Cantons of Bern and Friburg, and lying near the Lake of Neuf-Chaſtel: Famous for the Battel which the Swtzers obtain'd in the Year 1476. over Charles the Bold, laſt Duke of Burgundy.

GRANTHAM, a Market and Borough-Town in the South-Weſt Parts of Lincolnſhire, ſeated on the River Witham, which runs from hence Northward to Lincoln, giving the Name of Grantham Wapentake to the adjacent Territory, and belonging to Keſteven Diviſion. 'Tis a Town of good account, and well reſorted unto, as lying in the Northern Road. The Church Steeple has this remarkable, That it ſeems crooked to the Beholders. It has alſo a Free-School. From London 104 Miles. This place has been lately dignified with the Honour of an Earldom, by His Preſent Majeſty King William III. in the Perſon of Henry D' Auverquerque, created Earl of Grantham.

GRANVILLE, Sir Richard was the Eighth Earl of Corboile, alias Corbeile, Baron of Thorigny, and Granville in Normandy, and was thus deſcended. Rollo, the firſt Duke of Normandy, had two Sons, William his Eldeſt, ſirnamed Long-Eſpeè, who ſucceeded to his ſaid Dukedom, and Robert ſecond Son of the ſaid Duke who was the firſt Earl of Corboile. Rollo the Son of Robert, Second Earl of Corboile. Hamon Third, Earl of Corboile. Robert Fourth, Earl of Corboile. Richard Fifth, Earl of Corboile. Hamon ſirnamed Dentatus Sixth, Earl of Corboile, and Baron Thorigny and Granville. The ſaid Hamon Dentatus had two Sons, the Eldeſt called after his own Name Robert Fitz-Hamon, the Second, as it is ſtill the Cuſtom of thoſe Countries, after the Name of one of his Lordſhips Richard de Granville, which ſirname of Granville, or by Corruption of Pronunciation in the Engliſh Tongue Grenvile, alias Greynevile, Graynfield, and Grann-Villa, has remained to his Poſterity ever ſince. The ſaid Brothers Robert Fitz-Hamon, and Richard de Granville accompanied William the Conquerour in his Expedition into England, in the Year of our Lord 1066. And were preſent with him at the great Battle of Haſtings, where King Harold was ſlain; and for their ſignal Services the Conquerour beſtow'd upon Fitz-Hamon the Elder Brother, the Counties, Honours, and Lordſhips of Glouceſter and Briſtol, with all the Lands, Royalties, and Dependencies belonging to the ſame, with divers other great Poſſeſſions and Territories appertaining to Brithrick a great Saxon Lord, before he became diſpoſſeſt by the Conquerour. And upon Richard de Granville the younger Brother, the Caſtle and Lordſhip of Bideford, with other Lordſhips, Lands, and Poſſeſſions in Devonſhire, Cornwal, Somerſetſhire, and Buckinghamſhire, many whereof remain to his Poſterity to this Day. After the Death of William the Conquerour, in the Reign of King William Rufus: The ſaid Robert Fitz-Hamon chuſing twelve Valiant and Famous Knights for his Companions, whereof his Brother Richard de Granville was one, Enter'd with an Army into Wales, and Defeating the Welſh-Forces ſlew Rheſe their Prince, made an Entire Conqueſt of Glamorganſhire, and oblig'd all the Reſt of Wales to pay Tribute to the King of England; the King in conſideration of this and the other great Services of the ſaid Fitz-Hamon, and being likewiſe his near Kinſman created the ſaid Fitz-Hamon a free Prince of all his conquer'd Lands in Wales, holding the ſame to him and his Heirs in Fee and Vaſſallage of the King as his Chief Lord, and then the ſaid Fitz-Hamon divided his conquered Country betwixt himſelf and the ſaid twelve Knights his Companions. King William Rufus dying, the ſaid Fitz-Hamon, who by his great Exploits, had now obtained the Name of the great Fitz-Hamon, was ſent by King Henry the Firſt as General of his Army againſt France, in which War he received a Wound by the Puſh of a Pike upon his Temples, whereof he died. He left Iſſue but one only Daughter called Mabell by his Wife Sibell, Daughter of Roger Montgomery Earl of Arundell, and Shrewsbury, which ſaid Mabell King Henry the Firſt married to Robert his Natural Son, creating him in Right of his ſaid Wife, Earl of Glouceſter and Briſtol; this was that Famous Earl of Glouceſter, who afterwards maintained with ſo much Conſtancy and Valour, the Pretenſions of Maud the Empreſs; he inherited by his ſaid Wife, beſides the Counties of Glouceſter and Briſtol, all thoſe other Lands and Poſſeſſions of Fitz-Hamon in England and Wales, deſcending to his ſaid Wife from her ſaid Father to the Prejudice of the Male-Line. And all the ſucceeding Lords thereof were ſuch as deſcended from him the ſaid Fitz-Hamon, as Earls of Glouceſter, Clares, Spencers, Beauchamps, Nevilles, and by a Daughter of Neville came at laſt to King Richard the Third. The ſaid Robert Fitz-Hamon was thus ſtiled : Sir Robert Fitz-Hamon, by the Grace of God, Prince of Glamorgan, Earl of Corboile, Baron of Thorigny, and Granville Lord of Glouceſter, Briſtol, Tewksbury and Cardiffe, Conquerour of Wales, near Kinſman to the King, and General of his Highneſſes Army in France. Fitz-Hamon thus dying, Richard de Granville his Brother, as the next Heir-Male, inherited by the Norman Laws all the Eſtate and Honours of his Family in Normandy, and thereby became Earl of Corboile, Baron of Thorigny and Granville, and marrying Iſabel ſole Daughter of Walter Gifford, Earl of Longueville in Normandy, and Buckingham in England, Coheireſs with her Aunt Roheſia, made himſelf Reparation by this Match, for all thoſe Eſtates in England and Wales, which his Neice Mabel had carried away : At his Town of Neith in Glamorganſhire, he founded an Abby for Religious Monks, and endow'd the ſame with all thoſe Lands in Wales, which fell to his ſhare upon the Conqueſt of that Country. In his Old Age, he took upon him the Sign of the Croſs, according to the Devotion of thoſe Times, and ſetting forward for Jeruſalem, in that Journey died : Leaving Iſſue by his ſaid Wife Iſabel, Richard de Granville, Earl of Corboile, Baron Thorigny and Granville, who married Adelyne Widow to Hugh Montford, and Eldeſt Daughter of Robert de Bellemont or Beaumont, Earl of Mollent in France, and the firſt Earl of Leiceſter in England, after the Conqueſt, by Elizabeth Daughter of Hugh the Great, Earl of Vermandois, Son of King Henry of France, mixing thereby with the Blood of the Houſe of Normandy, the Blood Royal of France, from whoſe Loins are directly and lineally deſcended, that Ancient Famous and Noble Houſe of the Granvilles in Devonſhire and Cornwall : No Subjects ever ſurpaſſing them in Valour, Antiquity and Nobleneſs of Birth, nor in Loyalty and Fidelity to the Crown, which they have moſt eminently ſhown in all Ages ſince the Conqueſt, among whom muſt be always remembred ; That Famous Sir Richard, who in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, being Vice-Admiral of England, encountered with a ſingle Ship; the whole Armado of Spain, and with a hundred Men fought againſt ten Thouſand ; of this memorable Action, Sir Walter Rawleigh has writ the Relation in a particular Treatiſe ; and Sir Bevil, who ſo generouſly laviſht his Blood and his whole Subſtance in Defence of his King and Country in the late Civil Wars, dying like his Great Anceſtour Fitz-Hamon, fighting with his Pike in his Hand, at the Battle of Lanſdown. Being ſucceeding by Sir John, Eldeſt Son to the ſaid Sir Bevil, the Preſent Chief now living of this Illuſtrious Family, who is by an immediate Succeſſion from Father to Son, beginning about the Year of our Lord 876, from Robert the Son of Rollo, being upwards of eight hundred Years, the thirtieth Earl of Corboile, Baron of Thorigny and Granville, created by King Charles the Second upon the twentieth Day of April 1661. Earl of Bathe, Viſcount Lanſdown, Baron of Bideford, and Granville, Groom of the Stole, and firſt Gentleman of His Majeſties Bed-Chamber, Lord Warden of the Stanneries, Lord Lieutenant of the Counties of Cornwall and Devon, Governour of Plymouth, &c. and one of the Lord's of His Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy Council, which Addition of Honours he obtain'd by his ſignal Services, and Sufferings in the late Civil Wars, having upon the Death of his Father Sir Bevil, taken upon him the Command of his Regiment, though at that Time but ſixteen Years of Age ; been preſent in ſeveral Battles and Sieges, received many Wounds particularly in the Fight at Newbery, where he was left among the Dead : But was happily reſerv'd for an Action of the greateſt Glory and Importance to his Country, being the firſt and chief Inſtrument of that Famous Negotiation with his Kinſman, General Monk, by which the Royal Family, was Re-inthroned without Conditions. In Memory of the particulat Share, the ſaid Earl had in this Tranſaction, His Majeſty King Charles the Second did paſs a Warrant under the Privy-Seal, whereby he oblig'd himſelf, and recommended it to his Succeſſours, that in Caſe of Failure of Iſſue-Male to General Monk, the Title and Dukedom of Albemarle ſhould deſcend to the ſaid Earl, and be continued in his Family. His ſaid Majeſty did likewiſe paſs to the ſaid Earl another Warrant for the Earldom of Glamorgan, it being the firſt Title enjoy'd in England by his great Anceſtour Fitz-Hamon, &c. The ſaid Earl has one Brother Denys Granville, Dr. of Divinity made Dean of Durham by King Charles the Second, a Gentleman of great worth, and who has very honourably diſtinguiſh'd himſelf in his Station; his Lordſhip has alſo Iſſue-Male now living Charles Lord Viſcount Lanſdown, and Baron Granville, who after the Example of his Anceſtours ſought Honour Early in the Field, being preſent with the Duke of Lorrain, at the laſt famous Relief of Vienna beſieged by the Turks, and in all thoſe memorable Battles and Sieges in the beginning of the ſaid War as long as the Empire continued under any Difficulties. In memory of which Actions the Emperour created him an Earl of the Sacred Roman Empire, with Privilege to bear his Arms quartered upon the Breaſt of the Roman Eagle, &c. And John the Second, Son of the ſaid Earl, who likewiſe choſe the Profeſſion of Arms, and in ſeveral Stations both by Sea and at Land, has evidenced to the World that he inherits the Valour of his Anceſtours, &c. His Lordſhips Arms are, Ruby, Three Horſe-men's Reſtes, Topaz. Dugdale, Dale, &c.

GRANVILLE, Lat. Grandiſvilla, a City of France, in Normandy, between Coutances, to the North, and Auranches and Mount St. Michael to the South. It ſtands upon the Sea, 7 Leagues from the Iſland of Jerſey, and is ſeated partly upon a Rock of difficult acceſs, and partly upon a Plain where the Harbour opens it ſelf.

GRAS, a Name which is uſually given to the Mouths of the River Rhone, and generally to the Mouths of other Rivers where there are any Hrabours ; from the Latin word Gradus, ſignifying Stairs ; by reaſon that in all Sea-Ports there are Places furniſh'd with Stairs, for the Conveniency of Landing and taking Water. The 7 Mouths of the Rhone are call'd Gras-Neuf, Gras d' Orgon, le Gras du Midy, le Gras de Paulet. le Gras d' Enfer, le Gras de Paſſon.

GRASSA, Graſſe, an Epiſcopal City of France, and a Seat of Juſtice in the Upper Provence, under the Metropolitan of Embrun, and the Parliament of Aix. The Epiſcopal See was transferr'd thither from Antibe, by Innocent IV. about the Year 1250. by reaſon of the bad Air, and the Incurſions of Pirates which render'd it an unſafe Reſidence for the Inhabitants. Some are of Opinion, that L. Craſſus, the Roman Conſul, gave his Name to this Town. However it were, Graſſa, is a good City, well peopled, and Wealthy ; pleaſantly ſeated in an admirable Soil, having a Cathedral, with ſeveral other Churches and Religious Houſes. It produces good Soldiers, and Men of Wit. Papire Maſſon. S. Marthe, &c.

GRATIAN, the Son of Valentinian I. by his firſt Wife, was declar'd Auguſtus by his Father, at the City of Amiens, in 365. and ſucceeded him in 379. A Prince extoll'd for his great Wit, his Eloquence, Modeſty, Chaſtity and Zeal againſt Hereticks, eſpecially the Priſcillianiſts and Arians. He aſſociated Theodoſius with him in the Empire ; and advanc'd Auſonius the Poet, for whom he had a particular Kindneſs to the Conſulſhip. He was ſirnam'd Allemanicus ; for that he overthrew the Germans, with the Slaughter of above 30000 of their number, near Strasburgh : He was the firſt Emperor that refus'd the Title of High-Prieſt or Pontifex Maximus upon the Score of its being a Pagan dignity, which for politick reaſons had been born by his Predeceſſours. In the mean time, the Uſurper Maximus having got himſelf declar'd Emperor, Debauch'd part of Gratian's Army into a Revolt, and afterwards by the Treachery of Merobaudus defeated the Emperor at Paris ; who ſoon after this misfortune fell into an Ambuſcade at Lyons, and was Aſſaſſinated by Andragathius. Ammianus Marcellinus, Lib. 27. St. Jerom. Ep. 3. St. Ambroſe de Obitu Valent. Sozomen, Lib. 7. &c.

GRATIAN, a private Soldier, proclaim'd Emperour by the revolted Roman Legions in Great Britain, who ſet him up againſt Honorius, in the Year 407 ; but this Uſurpation was but of ſhort continuance, for the ſame Rebels that ſet him up, knock'd him on the Head four Months after, and ſet up Conſtantine another Uſurper in his Room. Zoſimus, Sozomen, lib. 6.

GRATIAN, born at Cluſi or Chiuſi in Tuſcany, liv'd in the XIIth. Cent. He was a Benedictine Monk in the Monaſtery of St. Fælix at Bononia. There he wrote his Book called the Decretum or Concordia Diſcordantium Canonum, becauſe he endeavours to reconcile the ſeeming Contradictions of the Canons ; and to this purpoſe he makes uſe of the Holy Scriptures, the Authorities of the Fathers, Decrees of Councils, Pope's Epiſtles, and the Laws of Emperours and Princes. Gratian in his Collection, ranges the Canons, more with reſpect to the reſemblance of the matter than the Order of Time. He divides his Work into three Parts ; the Firſt contains a Hundred and one Diſtinctions, where he treats of Eccleſiaſticks: The Second takes in 36 Cauſes, where both the Caſe and the Method of proceeding in giving Judgment, is treated : The Third handles Sacred Matters, conſiſting of five Diſtinctions, which he calls De Conſecratione. Gratian was 24 Years upon this Work, and publiſh'd it in 1151. He had the Misfortune not to conſult the Originals of the Authorities he makes uſe of, which makes him ſometimes miſtake in his Citations, and quote one Council, and one Father for another : And beſides, he cites the Pope's Epiſtles of the three firſt Centuries for Genuine, which are now known to be Spurious, and forg'd by Iſidore Mercator. Several Authours have endeavour'd to rectify theſe Miſtakes, and particularly Antonius Auguſtinus, in his Book de Emendatione Gratiani, which Baluzius has given us in an Excellent Edition. Antonius Auguſtinus in Dial. de Decreti Emend. Baron. A. C. 1151. Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. Baluz. de Emend. Grat. &c.

GRATIANI, (Anthony Maria) Biſhop of Amelia in Italy, was firſt Secretary to Cardinal Commendon, and afterwards to Pope Sixtus Quintus. He wrote the Life of Cardinal Commendon. De Bello Cyprio. De caſibus adverſis Illuſtrium Virorum ſui Ævi, &c. Janus Nicius Pinac. II. Imag. Illuſt. cap. 62. &c.

GRATIUS, known by the Name of Ortwinus Gratius, born in the Dioceſs of Munſter, he ſtudied at Deventer, and afterwards removed to Cullen, where he died in 1542. His Works are, Faſciculus Rerum expetendarum & fugiendarum. Triumphus B. Job. Apologia adverſus Johannem Reuchlinum,&c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Mir. de Script. Sæc. XVI.

GRATZ, or Grets; Graiacum, Græcium, and Savaria, a magnificent City of Germany, in the Lower Stiria, Capital of the Country, with a beautiful Caſtle, formerly the uſual Reſidence of the Emperor Ferdinand II. while he was no more than Archduke of Auſtria. It is ſeated upon the River Meure, about 12 or 13 Leagues from Vienna, 5 Leagues above the Confluence of the Meure and Drave.

GRAUDENTZ, and Grudzancks, Lat. Graudentium, a ſmall City of Poland, in Royal Pruſſia, ſeated in the Palatinate of Culm, where the little River Oſſa falls into the Viſtula, 9 Leagues from Torn, and a little more from Mariemburgh; well fortified, and having a good Caſtle.

GRAVE, Lat. Gravia, a City of the Low-Countries, in Brabant, belonging to the Hollanders. It is a ſtrong Town, and of great Importance, ſeated upon the left ſide of the Meuſe, whoſe Waters fill the large Moats which environ ſeven large Bulwarks with their Half Moons. It lies about 4 Leagues from Boiſleduc, and 2 from Raveſtein, upon the Frontiers of the Province of Guelders. John III. Duke of Brabant, in 1323. gave it to Otho, Prince of Cuick and Heverle, who reſtor'd it in 1328. Afterwards it was the Occaſion of great Wars between the Dukes of Brabant and Holland, who both pretended a Right to it. It is the Capital City of the Country of Guickland, not to be deſpis'd for its Fertility, and has been a long time in the Hands of the Hollanders. Only about the Year 1672. the Torrent of French Victory ſwept it away into the Power of the French. But in the Year 1677. Monſieur Camilli, Governor for the King of France, Surrendred it to the Prince of Orange, after it had been for ſome time Beſieg'd by M. Rabenhauſt.

GRAVELINE, or Gravelinga; Lat. Gravelinga, and Gravelina, a City of the Low-Countries, in Flanders; ſeated near the Sea, upon the River Aa, between Calais and Dunkirk, 3 Leagues from each, and 2 from Bourbourg. The Normans ruin'd it; but it was afterwards repair'd (as it is ſaid) by Thierry of Alſatia, Count of Flanders, who died there in 1168. And in the Year 1528. there was a ſtrong Caſtle added to it by the Order of Charles V. So that it is now one of the moſt Regular, and Strongeſt Places of Europe. It is but ſmall, though of great Importance; and was taken by the French, in 1658. and relinquiſh'd to them by the Pyrenæan Treaty.

GRAVESEND, a Noted Market-Town in the County of Kent, in Alesford-Lath; ſeated upon a riſing Hill, on the Banks of the Thames, over-againſt Tilbury-Fort, in Eſſex. From London 20 Miles.

GRAVINA (Peter) an Italian Poet, who beſides that he was highly applauded for his Poems, aud much eſteem'd for his Writing by the Great General Gonſalvo, and Proſper Colonna, dy'd a Remarkable Death. For being in the Country, as he lay aſleep under a Cheſnut-Tree, a Cheſnut with the prickly Rind fell upon his Cheek, and prick'd it. When he awoke, the Prickles left an Itching in the Skin; which he fell a rubbing ſo violently, that his continual Rubbing caus'd an Ulcer in the Part, which brought him to his End, in 1527. Jovius, Pierius, Valerianus.

GRAVING, is the Art of Engraving upon Precious Stones, Copper and Wood. As for the Art of Engraving Precious Stones, Cornelians and Cryſtals, the Ancients were the moſt exquiſite Maſters of it; as appears by many rare Pieces of their Workmanſhip ſtill extant: And their Art lay buried with 'em for many Centuries of Years; till Sculpture and Painting being reviv'd in Italy, Engraving upon Precious Stones began to ſhew it ſelf again much about the ſame time, but came not to any Perfection till about the time of Pope Martin V. at the Beginning of the XVth. Age: And one of the firſt that render'd himſelf Eminent for this ſort of Graving, was John di Corgnivole, a Florentine; ſo call'd, becauſe he Engrav'd upon Cornelians. As for Engraving upon Copper and Wood, it is to be admir'd that they who Wrought ſo admirably upon Precious Stones, never diſcover'd this Secret, which appear'd not till after the Invention of Printing; and then Albert Durez, and Lucas, were the firſt that brought this Art to Perfection.

GRAVIUS (Henry) of Louvain, a Learned Printer, in ſuch Eſteem with Sixtus V. that he conferr'd upon him the Care of the Library and Printing-Houſe in the Vatican. He died young, at Rome, in 1591. and had his Epitaph made him by Cardinal Baronius.

GRAVIUS (Walter) A Dominican and Prior of a Monaſtery at Nimegen, where he died in 1534. He wrote againſt Eraſmus, under the Name of Godefridus Rurſius Taxander, Apologia de Confeſſione & de Uſu Carnium. He wrote likewiſe, De Ritibus olim circa Baptizatos & Confitentes Obſervatis.

GRAY, Lat. Græum, a Town of Franche Comté, in Burgundy, ſeated upon the Saone, about 5 or 6 Leagues from Dole; a Pleaſant City, though not very Big. It has been very Strong, with a good Caſtle belonging to it. But Lewis XIV. who took it in 1668. demoliſh'd both the Fortifications of the Town, and the Caſtle it ſelf.

GREAVES (John) Son of John Greaves, Rector of Calmoor near to Airford in Hantſhire: Was Educated at Merton College in Oxford, where he was afterwards Fellow, and having the Reputation of a good Linguiſt, and a Perſon of Addreſs, was recommended to Archbiſhop Laud, who ſent him to Travel into the Levant, to procure him ſome Books of Learning in the Oriental Languages; this Voyage, from which he return'd in 1640. was perform'd to the great Satisfaction of the Archbiſhop, ſo that ſome few years after, he was made, Savilian Profeſſor of Aſtronomy in Oxford, in the Diſcharge of which Function, he acquir'd great Reputation. He afterwards loſt his Chair and Fellowſhip for his Loyalty, and died at London. His Works are, Pyramido-graphia, or a Deſcription of the Pyramids in Egypt. A Diſcourſe of the Roman Foot and Denarius, from whence, as from two Principles, The Meaſures and Weights, us'd by the Ancients, may be deduced. Demonſtratio Ortus Syrii Heliaci pro Parallelo inferioris Ægypti. Elementa Linguæ Perſicæ. The manner of Hatching Chickens at Cairo. Epochæ Celebriores, Aſtronomis, Hiſtoricis, Chronologicis Chaitaiorum, Syro-græcorum, Arabum, Perſarum, Choraſmiorum uſitatæ, ex traditione Ulugh Beigh, together with the Geographical Tables of Abul Feda, upon both which Pieces, he wrote Learned Notes. He likewiſe ſet forth, Aſtronomia Chah Cholgii Perſæ, together with the Hypotheſis of the Planets, to which he ſubjoyn'd the Geographical Tables of Naſſir. Edinus the Perſian, and of Ulugh Beigh. He alſo publiſh'd a Deſcription of the Grand Seignior's Seraglio, or the Turkiſh Court, written by Robert Withers. To conclude, He left behind him at his Death, Lemmata Archimedis apud Græcos & Latinos è vetuſto Codice MSS. Arabico traducta, cum Arabum Scholiis: Which were afterwards review'd by Sam. Foſter the Mathematician, and many of them tranſlated and publiſhed by John Twiſden, C. L. M. D. Athen. Oxon.

GREECE, Lat. Græcia, is a Spacious Country of Europe, now belonging to the Turk; all but the Morea, lately wreſted out of their Hands by the Venetians. 'Tis ſaid, That it deriv'd its Name from a certain King call'd Græcus; and that another King, whoſe Name was Hellen, or Hella, gave his People the Name of Hellenes. But the Name of Greece is taken variouſly: For at firſt it comprehended only two little Countries; of which the one was call'd Theſſalia; and the other, Hellas, or Greece properly ſo call'd. Afterwards, Macedon, the Southern Provinces, Achaia, Peloponneſus, as alſo all the Iſlands round about that End of the Continent, took the Name of Greece. And beſides that, the Name of Greece was given to Sicily, and Magna Græcia a part of Italy, now in the Kingdom of Naples: and ſpread it ſelf likewiſe into the Continent of Neighbouring Aſia, which was call'd Aſiatick Greece. The Whole that comprehended this ſame Greece, was encloſ'd between the Egean Sea, to the Eaſt; the Cretan Sea to the South; the Ionian Sea to the Weſt; and to the North by the Mountains of Mariani. There are ſeveral Parts of this ſame Greece; but principally Epirus, the Peloponneſus, Greece taken according to its proper Signification, Theſſaly and Macedon. Hellas, or Greece properly ſo call'd, between Epirus, Theſſaly, the Egean Sea, and the Gulph of Corinth; comprehending Ætolia, Doris, Phocis, Attica, Megara, Bœotia, and the Country of the Locri. Moreover, the Greeks were ſo Renown'd for their Wit and Courage, that People reſorted to 'em from all Parts of the World, either to be inſtructed in the creditable Sciences, or elſe to Learn the Art of War. They were the Inventors of Arts, and Improvers of Sciences: And they were the People who firſt of all ſubmitted to Laws, and who found out the way to govern themſelves, and rule others. The Country was ſo ſtockt in Men of Learning, that the time was once, when there were found to be above Three hundred Authors who had made the Deſcription of one Battle. They receiv'd their Laws from ſeveral great Perſons: Athens from Cecrops, Draco and Solon: Lacedæmon from Lycurgus; Mantinea from Nicodora; the Locri from Zeleucus, and Candi from Minos. The Romans boaſted to have receiv'd their beſt Laws from Greece; to which purpoſe they ſent Spurius Poſthumus, Aulus Manlius, and Publius Sulpitius, to inform themſelves of the Manners and Cuſtoms of the Greeks. And as they were renown'd for Learning, ſo were they no leſs fam'd for their Military Bravery, carrying their Conqueſts into ſeveral parts of the Univerſe. Aſiatick Greece Comprehended Myſia, Phrygia, Æolia, Ionia, Doris, Lydia, and Caria; and great Greece, contain'd Calabria and Sicily. There were alſo ſeveral Republicks in Greece, of which Athens and Lacedæmon were the moſt renown'd. She fought a long time in defence of her Liberty; but was at length ſubjected to the Romans, and afterwards to the Emperors of Conſtantinople, and now Groans under the Yoak of the Turk, (excepting Morea lately recover'd by the Venetians.) Under whoſe Government all her Cities lie utterly ruin'd, and without Defence. Greece is at this Day divided into Six large Provinces, Macedon, Albania, Epirus, Theſſaly, Achaia and the Morea, retaining all their Ancient Names, except Albania and the Morea. At preſent the Greeks are ſo far degenerated from what they anciently were, ſo cow'd by the Turks, both Prieſts and People ſo miſerably Ignorant, and ſo frequently abjure the Chriſtian Religion to embrace Mahumetiſm, for the more quiet enjoyment of the Conveniencies of this Life, that were it not for thoſe Chriſtian Feſtiva's and Faſts which are in ſuch Veneration among them, the Chriſtian Religion would, ere this, in all probability have been eradicated out of the Country. But by the means of thoſe Solemnities, wherein their Holy Performances continue five Hours together, and ſometimes, though rarely, ſeven; they ſtill preſerve a Face of the Chriſtian Religion under a Patriarch, Biſhops and Prieſts, of which, you have an exact Account by Dr. Smith of Magdalen College, in his Epiſtle, De Græca Eccleſiæ hodierno Statu. Printed in the Year 1678. The Greek Prieſts and Prelates wear their Hair long, like the Laiety of Europe. Their Pontifical and Prieſtly Habits are different alſo from thoſe of the Roman Church. The Patriarch wears a Dalmatic or long Gown with Sleeves all Embroider'd, and upon his Head a Regal Crown inſtead of a Mitre. The Biſhops wear a certain Cap down to their Ears, like the hollow of a Hat without Brims. Nor do the Prieſts make uſe of Surplices, or ſquare Caps, but only Albes, Stoles, and Copes. Nor do they bear Croſſes in their hands, but only a little Staff of Ebony, tipp'd with Ivory, or ſet with Mother of Pearl. In the Sacrament they make uſe of Leaven'd Bread, and Adminiſter the Sacrament in Both Kinds. They admit of no Images in Baſs Relief, or Emboſs'd Work, but only Paintings or Sculptures in Copper or Silver, nor do they make uſe of Muſick in their Churches. Their Monks or Caloyers, which are generally of the Orders either of St. Baſil or St. Chryſoſtom, lead very Auſtere Lives; eſpecially thoſe of Mount Athos. In moſt places in the Greek Church, Divine Service is perform'd in the vulgar Tongue, excepting the Goſpel, and ſome Prayers which are pronounc'd in Greek. They uſe no other Tranſlation of the Bible, but the Septuagint. They do not aſſert a Purgatory, but pray for the Dead, that God would have Mercy upon them at the General Judgment: As for the Pope, they diſown his Authority, and believe him no more than Patriarch of the Weſtern Church. They obſerve a great many Holy-Days, as, The Birth of the Virgin Mary, The Exaltation of the Croſs, the Tranſlation of St. John the Divine, The Entrance of the Virgin into the Temple, The Nativity of Chriſt, and his Baptiſm, The Purification of the Virgin, the Annunciation, the Finding of St. John's Head, The Feſtivals of the Apoſtles and ſeveral Martyrs, &c. They alſo obſerve four Faſts in the Year more Solemn than the reſt; of which, the Great and Holy Faſt of Lent before Eaſter is the Chief. The Second, eight Days after Whitſontide; wherein though they abſtain from Fleſh, Butter, and Eggs, yet they permit the free Uſe of Fiſh, Oil and Wine. The Third, is The Faſt of the Bleſſed Virgin, from the 1ſt. of Auguſt to the 15th. The Fourth, is The Faſt of the Bleſſed Apoſtles Peter and Paul, which they begin the ſecond Sunday next after the Feaſt of All Saints, and which they obſerve ſo many days as there are between Eaſter and the Second of May. See more in Smith. As for the Ancient Greeks, moſt certain it is, that they had the Advantage over all other Nations for Learning, and Bravary, and Human Wiſdom ſeem'd to be their Inheritance. Which though it were true for the moſt part of all the Greeks, whether Europeans or Aſiaticks, yet Athens was ſtill the School of all Greece, and the Athenians diſtinguiſh'd themſelves from the reſt by the Beauty of their Genius, and the Elegancy of their Style. Nevertheleſs, if they ſurpaſs'd the reſt in Politeneſs and Delicacy of Wit, yet they were great Admirers of Tales and Fictions. Almoſt all their Authors were addicted to Superſtition, and their Poets for the moſt part were the Fathers of their falſe Deities and the Inventers of the Pagan Theology. Nor were the Greek Hiſtorians any more addicted to Truth than their Poets; particularly Herodotus and Diodorus Siculus, whoſe Example, ſeveral others have follow'd. Their Ancient Hiſtorians were given to Romance, and their Modern Hiſtorians had recourſe to Viſions and extraordinary Adventures to ſatisfie their Genius's, which is the reaſon we have nothing of exact or certain knowledge of what paſs'd toward the latter end of the Conſtantinopolitan Empire. Leo Allatius, Arcudius, Baronius, *Jovet. GREEK Fire, invented in the 7th. Century by an Ingenier of Heliopolis in Syria, call'd Callinicus, by whom it was ſucceſsfully imploy'd in the Sea-fight, wherein the Generals of the Emperor Pogonat's Fleet deſtroy'd the Saracens Ships, and kill'd 'em 30000 Men. This Fire had an extraordinary quality of burning brisker in Water, and of diffuſing it ſelf on all ſides according to the impreſſion given it, nothing but Oil which nouriſhes other Fire could quench it, or a mixture of Venegar, Urine and Sand. It was compoſs'd of Sulphur, Napthe, Pitch, Gums, Bitumen, and other Drugs; they that uſed it, blue it out of long Tubes of Copper, or ſhot it out of Croſs-bows, or other Spring Inſtruments. *P. GREENWICH, a Town of Black-Heath Hundred, in the North-Weſt of Kent, 5 Miles from London. 'Tis a neat and healthful Place, pleaſantly ſeated in a Gravelly Soil, on the Banks of the Thames, and well frequented by Gentry. Adjoyning to which is a Royal-Houſe, with a Park about it, yielding a fair Proſpect; the Birth-place of Henry VIII. and the Dying-place of Edward VI. his Son and Succeſſor. Another Palace there is by the River's ſide, firſt Built by Humphry Duke of Gloceſter, and after him inlarg'd and beautify'd by ſeveral Kings; till being faln to Ruin, the late King Charles attempted to make it a Stately Building, but left it unfiniſhed.

GREGORY, 73d. King of Scotland, Son of Dongallus, was ſet in his ſtead, having reconcil'd all thoſe to him that were againſt his Promotion, and reſtor'd the Old Laws concerning the Immunity of the Miniſters of the Church; he march'd againſt the Picts, left by the Danes in Fife, whilſt themſelves were imploying their Arms againſt the Engliſh, and drove 'em thence, as alſo out of Lothian and Merch too, and being admitted in the Night time into Berwick, put all the Daniſh Garriſon to the Sword, marching afterwards into Northumberland, he fought a proſperous Battel againſt Herdeknute, and recover'd all that part of the Country from them. Then he turn'd his Arms againſt the Britains, who had ſome of the Scotiſh Dominions, but made Peace with them upon their giving up the Land, and promiſe of Aſſiſtance, ſhould the Danes return. But repenting this Agreement, they entred Scotland in a Hoſtile manner, and as they were carrying away a great Booty, Gregory met them at Loch Maban, and after a bloody Fight, overthrew them and their King Conſtantine; a firm Peace following this Battle, the Scots were left in Poſſeſſion of what they had got from the Danes. A little after, the Iriſh making an irruption into Galway, carried off ſome Booty, upon pretence that the Men of Galway had hoſtilely ſeiz'd upon and Plunder'd ſome Galleys driven on their Coaſts, belonging to the Inhabitants of Dublin. Gregory follow'd them into Ireland with a Strong Army, and having defeated their Forces Commanded by Brienus and Cornelius, two of the powerfulleſt of the Nobility (who taking the advantage of the Minority of their King Dunachus, had divided the whole Land into two Factions) took Dundalk, Drogheda, and Dublin; where having committed the Care of the Young King, his Kinſman, to ſuch of the old Councel ors as he judg'd moſt faithful to him, and having exacted an Oath from the Nobility, That they ſhould admit neither Engliſh, Danes, or Britains into the Iſland without his Permiſſion, he return'd home in Triumph, carrying along with him 60 Hoſtages for the performance of their Agreement. He died Anno 892. that being the 18th. of his Reign. Buch.

GREGORY Iſt. of that Name, call'd Gregory the Great, Pope of Rome; a Roman, and a Perſon of Quality by Extraction. He was made Senator of Rome, in his Youth; and was Governor or Lord Mayor of that City, in 581. In the former part of his Education, he had made a conſiderable Progreſs in Logick and Rhetorick, and had a great Reputation at the Bar. Notwithſtanding the advantage of his Seeular Imployments, his Inclinations lay wholly for a Monaſtick Life, ſo that ſoon after, diſ-engaging himſelf from the World; he retir'd into a Monaſtery of his own Foundation; but in the Year 583, Pope Pelagius II. getting him out of the Monaſtery, Ordain'd him Deacon, and ſent him Nuntio to the Emperor Tiberius. In the Year 590, upon the Death of Pelagius, he was choſen Pope with the Unanimous Conſent of all People of Probity and Conſideration. 'Tis true, he endeavour'd what he could to decline the Election, but finding his refuſal impracticable, ſubmitted to accept it. The ſame Year that he was made Pope, there happen'd to be a terrible Mortality in the City, which was the occaſion, of his compoſing a Litany, to avert the Wrath of God: During his Popedom, he conven'd a great many Synods, and endeavour'd to reſtore the Diſcipline of the Church, and was very zealous and careful to check the Progreſs of Hereſie and Schiſm. In this Pope's time, John Patriarch of Conſtantinople took upon him the Stile of Oecumenical, or Univerſal Biſhop: The aſſuming this new Title, was reprimanded by Gregory, with a great deal of Satyr and Severity; he roundly tells him, That ſuch a preſumptuous Stile, was a blaſphemous, Antichriſtian, and Diabolical Pretention. In the Year 593, Mauritius the Emperor, ſet forth an Edict or Declaration, That no Soldier ſhould be admitted to turn Monk: This Order Gregory complain'd of as unreaſonable and unjuſt, however in Obedience to the Emperors Command, he publiſh'd it. In the Year 596, he ſent Auguſtin, Mellitus, and ſome other Monks, to Preach Chriſtianity to the Saxons in England. Upon the Death of Mauritius, in 603, he was ſo unhappy as to ſend Congratulatory Letters to the Tyrant Phocas, who had murther'd the Emperor: Which Letters, to ſpeak plainly, were too full of Compliment and Approbation, and treated the Memory of Mauritius very unhandſomely. Gregory died in 604, and bating the falſe ſtep above-mention'd, was a Perſon of great Piety; and Learning too, conſidering the time he liv'd in. His Works are Expoſitiones in Job, ſive Moralium Libri 35. Liber Paſtoralis Curæ. Epiſtolarum, lib. 12. Liber Sacramentorum. De Circulo Anni. Antiphonarius, ſive gradualis Liber, &c. All which are printed at Paris, Bazil and Rome, in two Volumes. Cave, Hiſt. Litter. p. 1. Platina. Bede, &c.

GREGORY II. Succeeded Conſtantine I. in the Year 714. In his time, Leo the Emperour call'd a Synod to diſcuſs the Controverſies about the Worſhipping of Images, together with the Adoration of Reliques, and after a long Conteſt it was decreed, That the Worſhip of Images and Reliques was unlawful. Thereupon, Leo order'd the Images and Statues to be burnt in the Middle of the City, and the Pictures to be daub'd over with Whiting, and commanded Gregory II. to do the ſame. On the other ſide, the Pope ſummon'd a Synod, in the Year 733. wherein the Worſhip of Images was approv'd, the Emperour's Decree condemn'd, and Leo anathematiz'd. Gregory alſo forbid the Italians to pay any Tribute to the Emperour; and endeavour'd to alienate all the Weſtern Parts from their Obedience to Leo: Upon this Behaviour of the Pope towards the Emperour, Cardinal Baronius makes this extraordinary Remark, Sic dignum Poſteris, idem Gregorius reliquit exemplum, (meaning the Rebellion in Italy, which the Pope had occaſion'd by his Excommunications) Ne in Eccleſia Chriſti regnare ſinerentur Hæretici Principes, ſi ſæpe moniti in errore perſiſtere obſtinato animo invenirentur, Baron. ad An. 730. Num. 5. This Conteſt between the Pope and the Emperour, was the Occaſion of great Commotions in Rome and Ravenna; where Paulus the Exarch was kill'd, ſupporting the Emperour's Right. At length Gregory died in 731. after he had ſate 16 Years, 8 Months, and 20 Days.

GREGORY III. ſucceeded the Former 5 Days after his Deceaſe, and continu'd his Animoſity againſt Leo for aboliſhing of Images, even to a ſecond Excommunication, which the Emperor laugh'd at. He aſſiſted the Duke of Spoleto againſt Luitprand, King of the Lombards; but Luitprand proving Victorious by the Fortitude of Rachiſius, beſieg'd Rome; upon which the Pope ſends to Charles Martel for Aſſiſtance, through whoſe Mediation, Luitprand rais'd his Siege. He added ſeveral Ceremonies to the Worſhip of St. Peter and the Saints, and made a Golden Image of the Virgin Mary with Chriſt in her Arms, which he order'd to be ſet up in the Church of St. Maries in the Stable, and dy'd in the Eighth Year of his Pontificate, in the Year 741. Platina.

GREGORY IV. being elected Pope in the Year 827. would not accept of the Dignity till his Election was Confirm'd by Ludovicus the Emperor. He inſtituted the Feaſt of All Saints, and dy'd in 843. after he had ſate 16 Years. Platina. Peucer.

GREGORY V. before call'd Bruno, the Son of Otho Duke of Suevia, was made Pope by the Emperor Otho III. in the Year 996. after whoſe Departure out of Italy, being depos'd by Creſcentius, Otho returns and reſtores him again, and puts Creſcentius to an Ignominious Death. By the Conſent of this Pope the Decree was made, whereby it was ordain'd, That the Germans only ſhould have the Power of Electing the Emperor, and that ſuch and ſuch Perſons ſhould be the Electors. He dy'd in the Year 999. after he had ſate two Years and five Months. Peuter. Platina.

GREGORY the VIth. bought the Pontificate of Benedict the IXth. who ſold it him, becauſe he was not able to withſtand Sylveſter III. who conteſted the Popedom both with him and Gregory. But the Emperor Hen. III. marching into Italy, put 'em all three by, and made 'em Surrender their Pretenſions to Clement II. in 1046. However Gregory ſate 2 Years and 7 Months, after which he was carry'd away into Germany, where 'tis thought he dy'd the ſame Year. Platina, Ciaconius, William of Malmsbury.

GREGORY VII. call'd Hildebrand before his Election, ſucceeded Alexander II. in the Year 1073. being advanc'd by the Suffrages of the Cardinals without the Emperor's Authority, and the better to confirm himſelf in the Pontificate, aboliſh'd the Imperial Power of conferring Inveſtiture upon Biſhops and Clergymen, and became an Inveterate Enemy of the Emperor Hen. IV. whom he cited to Rome upon the Complaint of the Saxons, under the Penalty of Excommunication, abſolv'd his Subjects from their Oaths of Allegiance, and prevail'd with Rodolphus Duke of Suevia, to aſſume the Title of Emperor, and take up Arms againſt him; to which purpoſe, he ſent him a Crown of Gold with this Inſcription.

Petrus dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho.

But Rodolphus being overthown and ſlain, Henry march'd directly into Italy, Beſieg'd Rome, and took the City, and ſets up Clement III. upon which, Gregory fled to Salerna, and there dy'd, after he had ſate Twelve Years, one Month and three Days. Peucer. See Henry IV. Emperor. Aventin. Annal. Boiar. lib. 5. Benno Cardinalis, &c.

GREGORY VIII. ſet up by the Emperour Henry V. in oppoſition to Gelaſius II. not long after, upon the Election of Calixtus II. who ſucceeded after the Death of Gelaſius, was thruſt into a Monaſtery, and not reckon'd in the Number of the Popes. However he is mention'd by Platina, and by Guthlerbet called Gregory the VIIIth. But the true Gregory VIII. was of Beneventum, and ſucceeding Urban III. ſate only two Months, and died the ſame Year he was choſen, in 1187.

GREGORY IX. ſucceeded Honorius III. in the Year 1227. and continu'd the ſame implacable Enmity to the Emperour Frederick II. which his Predeceſſour had done before him. Being deſirous to get the Emperour out of Italy, he admoniſh'd him to haſten his Expedition into the Holy Land, and becauſe he linger'd longer than the Pope was willing, Gregory accus'd him of Perjury, Adultery, and Severity to his Wife; anfl threatned him with Excommunication. Which the Emperour ſlighting, and proceeding in his Expedition, without taking his leave of the Holy Father, the Pope commanded the Army in Syria, not to follow or obey him. But Frederick proving Victorious, at his return, gave Gregory 120 thouſand Ounces of Gold to be Friends with him: which, though it pacified him for a time, yet ſoon after he began another War with the Emperour, that prov'd fatal to all Italy, into which the Emperour march'd of a ſudden with a mighty Army, laying all waſt before him, notwithſtanding the Anathema's, which the Pope ſent forth with ſo much Spleen and Bitterneſs, that many of the Cardinals blam'd his Violence. Thereupon Gregory ſummon'd a Council to meet in the Lateran, and conſult about the depoſing of Frederick; but Frederick had ſo block'd up the Paſſages both by Sea and Land, that none, or very few of the Prelates could meet, while Frederick impriſon'd all that he took upon the Roads in Piſa; which ſo perplexed the Pope, that he died ſoon after, either out of Grief or Vexation in 1241. after he had ſate 14 Years, five Months, and three Days. Platina, Peucerus, Cave, &c.

GREGORY X. was choſen Pope in his Abſence, at Viterbo, in the Year 1272. He aſſembl'd a Council at Lyons; whither Michael Palæologus repair'd, in hopes of Aſſiſtance, and conſented that the Greek Churches ſhould be ſubject to the Roman Pontiff. But the main Buſineſs of the Council was, to puſh on a War for the recovery of the Holy Land, which the Pope promoted with all his might, and under that pretence, exacted of the Clergy the Tenths of all their Livings for five Years. He labour'd to reconcile the Guelfs and Gibelines, and died in 1276. after he had ſate ſomething more than four Years. He was a Man of an extraordinary Reputation through his whole Life, for Prudence, in the Conduct of his Affairs; for Courage, greatneſs of Mind, and Contempt of Money; for Humanity, Clemency and Charity to the Poor. Platina.

GREGORY XI. ſucceeded Urban V. in 1390. and was the firſt of thoſe Popes who tranſlated the Pontifical See from Avignon to Rome, from whence it had been 70 Years abſent; and died in the Seventh Year of his Pontificate, in the Year 1378.

GREGORY the XIIth. choſen at Rome, while Benedict XIII. ſate at Avignon, with this Condition, that he ſhould reſign the Pontificate, if Benedict would do the like. Both promis'd, but neither would be as good as his word. So that the Colleges of both Popes, aſſembling at Piſa, pronounced both to have forfeited the Papacy, and ſet up Alexander V. Gregory held his own 8 Years, till the Council of Conſtance, at what time, for quietneſs ſake, he reſign'd the Pontificate, in the Year 1415.

GREGORY XIII. ſucceeded Pius V. in the Year 1572. He caus'd the Portico or Walking-Place to be adorn'd with noble Painting, and was the Author of the Gregorian Calendar, and died in the Year 1585. after he had ſate 13 Year: being choſen at 70 Years of Age. Platina. See Calendar.

GREGORY XIV. ſucceeded Urban VII. in 1590. He proclaim'd a Jubilee, and expended vaſt Summs of Money to ſupport the League of France, in Hatred of Hugonots and Hereticks, ſate 10 Months, and died in 1591.

GREGORY XV. ſucceeded Paul V. in 1621. and publiſh'd a Bull touching the Election of Popes by ſecret Suffrages, Canoniz'd St. Iſidore, Ignatius, Francis Xavier, Philip Nerio, and St. Tereſa; Erected the Biſhoprick of Paris into a Metropolitan See, Founded the Propagation of Faith, ſate 2 Years, 5 Days, and died in 1623.

GREGORY, a Native of Rome, made a Cardinal by Calixtus II. ſided with Anaclet the IId. a falſe Pope; and after his Death in 1138. was himſelf ſet up by Roger King of Sicily, in Oppoſition to Innocent II. but at length, perceiving himſelf abandon'd by all the World, ſubmitted to Innocent, by the great care of St. Bernard. Baronius.

GREGORY of Nazianzum, the Father, liv'd in the IVth. Age, was converted to the Faith, upon the Prayers of his Wife Nonna, was Baptiz'd, and ſometime after made Biſhop of Nazianzum. He generouſly deliver'd his City from Julian the Apoſtate's Soldiers, and oppos'd the ſame Emperour upon the Election of the Biſhop of Cæſarea. He govern'd his Church 45 Years, and died a hundred Years old, in 372. He was married and had two Sons, Gregory Nazianzen zen and Cæſarius, after he was Biſhop. Gregory Nazianz. Carm. de Vit. ſua poſt init.

GREGORY of Nazianzum, the Son, ſirnamed the Divine, was one of the moſt Illuſtrious Ornaments of the Greek Church in the IVth. Age. He was made Biſhop of Conſtantinople in 379. but finding his Election conteſted by Timotheus, Archbiſhop of Alexandria, he voluntarily reſign'd his Dignity about the Year 382. in the General Council of Conſtantinople. His Works are Extant in two Volumes, Printed at Paris, in 1609.

GREGORY Palamas, Archbiſhop of Theſſalonica, ſlipped into the Errour of the Greeks, who taught, that the Light which the Apoſtles beheld upon Mount Tabor, was an uncreated Light, and conſequently the Divine Eſſence it ſelf; and wrote ſeveral Pieces in Defence of this Doctrine.

GREGORY of Tours, a learned Prelate, born of a Noble Family in Auvergne, flouriſh'd in the VIth. Age. He was preſent at the Synod of Paris, in 577. and in that of Braine, in 580. where he juſtified himſelf from an Accuſation, as if he had ſpoken diſreſpectfully of the Queen Fredegunda. Afterwards he went to Rome and made an Acquaintance with Gregory the Great. He died in the Year 595. and wrote the Hiſtory of the firſt Kings of France, in ten Books, beſides ſeveral other Pieces. Hincmar. in vit. S. Remigii. Haymo, lib. 1. cap. 18. Honorius Auguſtodunenſis, lib. 3. cap. 33. &c. and died in the Year 595.

GREGORY of Cappadocia an Arrian, was ordain'd Biſhop of Alexandria, by the Arrian Faction, in the Council of Antioch, in 341. He perſecuted the Orthodox, who adher'd to their lawfull Biſhop Athanaſius, and was guilty of a great many other cruel and irregular Practices. The Biſhops aſſembling in the Council of Sardica, in the Year 347. depos'd this Gregory, and declar'd all his Ordinations invalid. He was kill'd ſome time after at Alexandria. Socrat. lib. 2. Theod. lib. 2. Sozom. lib. 5. &c.

GREGORY, Biſhop of Neo-cæſarea, call'd, Thaumaturgus, from his working of Miracles, about the Year 234. he was Origen's Scholar, under whom he ſtudied five Years, and learned Logick, Phyſicks, Mathematicks, Ethicks, &c. In the Decian Perſecution, he retir'd, believing ſuch cautious Conduct moſt ſerviceable for the Church at that time. In the Year 265. he was preſent at the Council, held at Antioch againſt Paulus Samoſatenus. He wrote a Panegyrical or Gratulatory Oration to Origen, which he pronounc'd in the School upon taking leave. *Metaphraſis in Eccleſiaſten? Brevis Expoſitio fidei. GREGORY, Biſhop of Niſſa, a Town in Cappadocia, lived in the IVth. Cent. and was the great St. Baſil's Brother. He was made Biſhop of Niſſa, in the Year 369. and was baniſh'd by the Emperour Valence the next Year, for adhering to the Council of Nice. About 7 Years after, the Emperor reſtor'd him, and in 381. he was preſent at the Council of Conſtantinople, and pitch'd upon to make the Funeral Oration of Meletius Biſhop of Antioch, and of Flacilla, Daughter to the Emperour Theodoſius, who died in that Town. He died in 396. His Works were printed, by Fronto Ducæus, at Paris, in 1605. and by Morellus, in 1615. and in 1618. they were publiſh'd with ſome Additions; in theſe Editions, the Reader may ſee more of the Life of this great Man. *Baſil. GRENADA, a Kingdom with a City of the ſame Name, in the Southern part of Spain. In Latin Granata and Granatum, and Regnum Granatenſe. It is bounded by Murcia to the Eaſt, by New-Caſtile to the North, by Andaluſia to the Weſt, and by the Sea to the South. The Kingdom was a long time in the Poſſeſſion of the Moors, who built therein the City of Grenada, more particularly ſuppos'd to have been rais'd by Bedla, the Son of Aben-Habus, who liv'd in the Xth. Age. The Arabian Annals tell us, that from that time, the Kings of the Moors reſided in that City, till Abenhul, who expell'd the Almohades out of Spain. He ſettled his Court at Almeria, and was there kill'd. Mahomet Alamar, who ſucceeded him, return'd with his Court to Grenada, at what time, the City encreas'd to that degree, that as ſome Authors aſſure us, it conſiſted of 60000 Houſes: and that Bulhar, King of Grenada, rais'd ſuch Magnificent and Sumptuous Structures in it, that his Subjects believ'd him to have the Art of making Gold. Between him and Muley-Aſſen were ten Succeſſors. But Ferdinand and Iſabel expell'd Boabdili, the Son of Muley-Aſſen, and put an End to the Dominion of the Moors in Spain. This Kingdom was then much better peopled and richer than now it is. The Situation of moſt of the Cities belonging to it, and the Form of the Towers, correſponds with the Deſcriptions in Cæſar's Commentaries. The City of Grenada is the largeſt City of Spain, and the moſt commodious in Summer, by reaſon of the Springs and Fountains that are in it, and the pureneſs of the Air; ſo that the Moors were wont to ſay, that Paradiſe was in that part of Heaven, which was over that City. They freed it once from a Siege, which John II. King of Caſtile laid to it, by a Preſent which they made him of Twelve Mules laden with Figs, in every one of which was a double Ducat. There is in the City of Grenada a famous Univerſity, beſides that, it is dignified with an Archbiſhoprick, Erected by Alexander VI. after the Expulſion of the Moors. It is ſeated partly upon Hills, and partly in a Plain, being waſh'd by the River Duero, which at a little farther diſtance, comes to be ſwell'd by the Xenil and ſeveral other Rivers. The whole City is divided into four Quarters, Grenada, Alhambra, Albaizin, and Antiquerula, ſo call'd, becauſe 'tis ſuppos'd that the Moors came from Antequera. Grenada is about four Leagues in Circuit, encompaſs'd with a Wall, wherein are counted a hundred and thirty Towers with their Battlements. The Cathedral is a modern and admirable Piece of Building, wherein are the Tombs of Ferdinand and Iſabel; beſides a great Number of other Magnificent Buildings, ſeveral Monaſteries, fair Piazza's, &c. but it is but thinly inhabited, as well as the reſt of the Kingdom. *Diego de Muros Hiſt. GRENADA, a City of Mexico, or New-Spain in North America, it is ſeated in the Nicaragua, in the Chancery of Guatimala, toward the North Sea, and the Gulph of Nicaragua.

GRENADA, or New-Grenada, which the Spaniards call Nuevo Reyno de Granada, a large Country of Southern America, within that Region which is call'd the Terra Ferma. It lies between the Provinces of Paria, Popayan, and Santa Martha. The Spaniards are in poſſeſſion of it, having ſeveral Colonies in it, Santa Fè de Bogata, the Capital City of New Granada ſtands alſo in the Terra Ferma. The other Cities are Trinidad, Merida, Pampelona, S. Chriſtoval, &c.

GRENADA, an Iſland of North America, one of the Charibees, the Spaniards gave it that Name, but the French are now Maſters of it. It lies between the Iſlands of the Trinitie, Talago, and the Barbado's. Conſult Father du Tertre.

Dying in 1559, He left Iſſue Foulke his Son and Heir, who was Knighted in 7 Eliz. he left Iſſue by Anne his Wife, Daughter to Ralph Nevil Earl of Weſtmorland, Foulke his Son and Heir who having been a Servant in Court to Queen Elizabeth for many Years, continu'd ſo to King James, by whom he was made Knight of the Bath at his Coronation; and in the 12th. of his Reign, Under-Treaſurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer, as alſo one of his Privy-Council; and in the 18 Jac. for his faithful Service in thoſe Imployments, advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Brook of Beauchamp's-Court, with Limitation of that Honour in default of Iſſue-Male of his own Body unto Robert Grevil, Son of Foulke, Son to the before-ſpecified Robert, ſecond Son to the firſt Sir Foulk Grevil: about 8 Years after receiving a Mortal Stab in his Back by one Haywood, who had ſpent the greateſt part of his Age in his Perſonal Service, and dying without Iſſue, Robert his Kinſman, on whom the Honour had been entail'd, ſucceeded him in that Dignity and Title, who being Commander in Chief of the Parliament Forces, ſent to Aſſault the Cloſe of Litchfield, he was ſhot in the Eye on the Feſtival of St. Chad, the Titulary Saint of that ancient Church; of which he died, leaving Iſſue by the Lady Catharine his Wife, Daughter to Francis E. of Bedford, 5 Sons, Francis who next ſucceeded him in his Honour, but died unmarried; Robert Succeſſor to his Brother, Edward and Algernon, who died unmarried, and Foulke now living. Which Robert took to Wife Anne one of the Daughters and Co-Heirs, and at length ſole Heir to Sir William Dodington of Bremer Com. South. Kt. by whom he hath Iſſue two Daughters, Anne and Dodington. Dugdale.

GREY, (Edmund) lineally deſcended from Roger de Grey, Son to John Lord Grey of Wilton, in high eſteem with King Edw. IV. who made him Lord Treaſurer of England, and within 2 Years following, viz. 5 E. 4. uſing then the Titles of Lord and Baron of Haſtings, Weysford and Ruthyn, created him Earl of Kent; King Richard III. confirm'd this Creation-Patent; as did alſo Henry VII. in the 2d. of his Reign. His Son George ſucceeding him in this Honour, ſignaliz'd himſelf againſt the French, and afterwards in the Suppreſſion of the Corniſh Rebels, who were overcme chiefly by his Valour and Conduct at Black-Heath in Kent. Departing this Life, 20 H. 7. Richard his Son and Heir ſucceeding, died without Iſſue, having firſt much waſted his Eſtate by Gaming, whereby the Right to this Earldom came to Sir Henry his Brother, who, by reaſon of his ſlender Eſtate, declin'd to take upon him the Title of Earl, as did his Son and Heir Henry who left Iſſue 3 Sons, Reginald, Henry, and Charles; which Reginald, Anno 1571. 13. Eliz. his Eſtate by frugality being much recover'd through the ſpecial Favour of Queen Elizabeth, re-aſſum'd his Title of Earl, and in 15 Eliz. was one of the Peers for the Tryal of the Duke of Norfolk. Dying without Iſſue, Sir Henry Grey his Brother and Heir ſucceeding, died alſo without Iſſue, leaving the Honour to Charles his Brother, to whom ſucceeded Henry his Son and Heir; who leaving no Iſſue, Anthony Grey Rector of the Church of Burbache in Com. Leic. Son of George, Son of Anthony Grey of Branſpeth, third Son to George Earl of Kent before mention'd, by reaſon of the Entail upon the Heir-Male, ſucceeded in the Title of Earl. But upon Claim made unto the Dignity of Lord Grey, commonly call'd Lord Ruthyn, by Charles Longvile Eſq; Son and Heir to Sir Michael Longvile Knight, by Suſan his Wife, Siſter and Heir to Henry the laſt Earl of Kent, who died without Iſſue, after great and long diſpute in the Parliament begun at Weſtminſter 1640. Anthony then Earl of Kent, challenging the ſame, as Appurtenant to his Title of Earl, and Charles Longvile ſetting forth his Claim thereto, through Suſan his Mother, as right Heir to that Dignity, it was at length clearly adjudg'd to Longvile, who accordingly ſate in Parliament as Lord Grey; he left Iſſue one ſole Daughter and Heir call'd Suſan, to whom the Title of Baroneſs Grey deſcended. Which Suſan being Wedded to Sir Henry Yelverton of Eaſton-Manduit, in the County of Northampton, Baronet, had Iſſue by him 3 Sons, Charles, Henry and Chriſtopher; and one Daughter call'd Frances. Anthony to whom the Earldom of Kent devolv'd, took to Wife Magdalen the Daughter to William Purefoy of Caldecote, in Com. Warw. Eſq; by whom he had Iſſue 5 Sons, viz. Henry, John, Job, Theophilus and Nathanael, and 5 Daughters. Henry after the Death of his Father, ſucceeding in his Honour, Wedded Mary the Daughter of Sir William Courtene Knight, by whom he had Iſſue two Sons; Henry, who died . . . . . , and Anthony, who ſucceeding him, took to Wiſe Mary the ſole Daughter and Heir to John Lord Lucas. Dugdale.

GREY, (Sir Edward) ſecond Son to Reginald Lord Grey of Ruthyn, marrying Elizabeth the ſole Daughter of Henry Son to William Lord Ferrers of Groby, by reaſon of the ſaid Henry's Death, in the Life-time of William his Father, became next Heir to the ſame Lord Ferrers, and bore the Title of Lord Ferrers of Groby, to diſtinguiſh him from the Lord Ferrers of Chartley. He left Iſſue Sir John Grey Knight. Edward afterwards call'd Lord Liſle, and Reginald, ſlain in the Battel of Wakefield, and Anne a Daughter, married to Sir Edw. Hungerford. Sir John married Elizabeth the Eldeſt Daughter to Richard Wodvile Earl of Rivers, and being ſlain in the Battel of St. Albans on the King's part, in 39 H. 6. left Iſſue two Sons, Sir Thomas and Sir Richard; which laſt was Beheaded at Pomfret in 1 R. 3. Elizabeth their Mother ſtill ſurviving, with whoſe Beauty King Edw. IV. when ſhe came to him as Petitioner on the behalf of her ſelf and her Son being Captivated, made her his Queen, and for her ſake ſo much favour'd her Son Sir Thomas, that he created him Earl of Huntingdon, and afterwards advanc'd him to the Dignity of Marqueſs of Dorſet, on the 18th. April, and 1ſt. of his Reign, after the Death of King Edward, in reſpect of his near relation to the young King Edward V. whom Richard Duke of Gloceſter his Uncle, caus'd to be unnaturally Murther'd, he was attain'd of High Treaſon, but he found means to make his Eſcape into Britany, with divers other Perſons of Note, to the Aid of Henry Earl of Richmond, by whom he was left at Paris with John Bourchier, in Pledge of certain Sums of Money borrow'd there, and after the Battel of Boſworth, tho' he was at firſt ſomewhat jealous of him, heaped many Favours upon him. His Son and Heir Thomas in 3 Hen. 8. was General of an Army ſent into Spain to joyn with the Forces of Ferdinand the Emperor, to Invade Guienne, a Territory belonging to the King of France, and in 5 H. 8. with 4 of his Brothers, the D. of Suffolk, and other gallant Engliſhmen, upon Proclamation of Juſts at St. Denys in France, which Francis de Valois, next Heir to the Crown of France, having married Claude eldeſt Daughter to Lewis XII. by Anne Inheretrix of Bretaigne, to give Proof of his Valour, had obtain'd leave of the King to be perform'd, went thither, and behav'd himſelf ſo bravely therein, that he return'd home with ſingular Honour, carried the Sword of Eſtate before King H. 8. as the Duke of Bourbon did before Francis I. of France, at the famous meeting between Ardres and Giſnes, in 14 H. 8. was ſent to Calais to attend the Emperor Charles the Fifth into England, 21 H. 8. being one of the Witneſſes produced in the Caſe of Divorce betwixt King Henry and Queen Catharine, depos'd to the Age of Prince Arthur, was one of the Lords who Subſcribed and Preſented to the King 44 Articles of Complaint againſt the then Great and Potent Cardinal Wolſey, and afterwards ſubſcrib'd a Letter to Pope Clement VII. whereby they importun'd his Allowance of the Divorce. Henry his Son and Heir, 1 E. 6. was conſtituted Lord High Conſtable of England, during the Solemnity of that King's Coronation. In 4 E. 6. made Juſtice Itinerant of all the King's Foreſts, and in 5. Warden of the E. W. and Middle Marches toward Scotland: having taken to his ſecond Wife, Frances eldeſt Daughter to Charles Brandon Duke of Suffolk, by Mary the French Queen his Wife, her 2 Brothers, dying Iſſueleſs, was in favour of her, created Duke of Suffolk, 11 Oct. 5 E. 6. by whom he had only 3 Daughters; Jane Married to Guilford Dudley, 4th. Son to John Duke of Northumberland, Katharine and Mary. Upon the Death of King Edw. 6. this Duke was through the Ambition of the then Duke of Northumberland, allur'd to Countenance the Proclaiming of his Daughter the Lady Jane to be Queen upon pretence of King Edward's deſignation of her ſo to be by his Will; but that Attempt not thriving, tho' it coſt Northumberland, and ſome others their Heads; yet was this Henry ſpar'd, notwithſtanding which favour, he was ſo unhappy as to be ſtirring again in obſtructing Queen Mary's Marriage with Philip, Son to the Emperor Charles the Fifth, and ſet out Proclamations to incenſe the People againſt it; whereupon being cloſely ſought after, he was neceſſitated to hide himſelf under the truſt of one Underwood his Keeper, in a Hollow Tree in his Park at Aſtley, who after ſome few Days diſcover'd him; ſo that not long after, he loſt his Head on Tower-Hill. The Honour being thus loſt, did ſo continue untill King James by his Letters Patents in the 1ſt. of his Reign, created Sir Henry Grey of Pergo in Com. Eſſex Knight, Baron Grey of Groby in Com. Leic. with Remainder to the Heirs-Male of his Body. Henry eldeſt Son to John his Son, who died in his Life-time, was by K. Charles I. created Earl of Stamford, in Com. Linc. he had Iſſue by Anne his Wife, one of the Daughters and Co-heirs to William Earl of Exeter four Sons; Thomas, Anchitel, John and Leonard, and five Daughters: Elizabeth, Wife of George Lord De la Mere; Diana, of Robert Earl of Aylesbury, and Joan; as alſo, Anne and Mary. Thomas dying in his Father's Life-time, left Iſſue by Dorothy his Wife, Daughter and Co-heir to Edward Earl of Bathe, Thomas now Earl of Stamford, and two Daughters, Elizabeth and Anne. Dugdale.

GREY, (William) deſcended of the Noble and Ancient Family of Chillingham in Com. Northumb. was both for his own perſonal Merits, and the good Service his Predeceſſours rendred the Crown, advanced to the Degree of Baronet 17 Jac. and afterwards 21 Jac. to the Honour of Baron, by the Title of Lord Grey of Werke. He Married Anne the Daughter and Co-heir to Sir John Wentworth of Gorfield, in Com. Eſſex, Baronet, by whom he had ſeveral Sons, of whom Ralph, the preſent Lord, only ſurvived him. This Ralph Married Catharine, Daughter to Sir Edward Ford, of Hartlong in Com. Suſſex, Knight, Widow of Alexander Colepeper, eldeſt Son to John Lord Colepeper; by whom he had Iſſue Ford, who Married Mary Daughter of George Lord Berkley, Ralph and Charles. Ford, Lord Grey, has by his preſent Majeſty King William, been created Earl of Tankervile, an Honour which formerly, it's like, belonged to his Family, ſince we read of one John Grey, created Earl of Tankervile, by Henry V. and he is now one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, as his Brother the Honourable Ralf Grey, is Governour of Barbadoes. Dugdale.

GREY, (Jane) called alſo Jane of Suffolk, Proclaimed Queen of England in 1553. was the Daughter of Henry Duke of Suffolk, and Grand-daughter of Mary, Siſter of King Henry VIII. She Married Gilford Dudley, and was 17 Years of Age when Edward VI. declared her lawful Heir to the Crown at his Death. She was Proclaimed Queen accordingly by ſome of the Nobility; but the greater part, through their hatred to the Duke of Northumberland, whom they ſuſpected to have haſtened King Edward's Death, ſided with Mary King Henry the VIIIth's Daughter, ſeiz'd and impriſon'd Jane Grey, her Husband and Father-in-Law, who were all three Beheaded the ſame Day, 1553. Hiſt. of England.

GRIBELIN, (Mr. Sim.) of London, Graver, has lately grav'd Darius's Tent, after the Famous Monſieur le Brun, and is the firſt that has attempted it in Little: This Cut is a very extraordinary Performance, both for the Harmony and Combination of the Groupp's, and likewiſe for the Curioſity of the ſingle Figures, in which the Paſſions are expreſs'd with a great deal of Force and Propriety, by which it appears, that Monſieur Gribelin has attained to a great Perfection both in Drawing and Graving, having carried the Delicacy of the Burin to the heighth of Improvement; of which beſides the Specimen above-mentioned, his uſual Pieces are ſufficient Proof: For either in Hiſtory, Pourtraicts, Architecture, Perſpectives, or Ornaments, he performs to a high Degree.

GRIFFE, (Sebaſtian) a Printer of Lyons, Eminent in the laſt Age for his Exactneſs, and the Beauty of his Impreſſions; to whom Julius Scaliger, in a Letter, recommends the Printing of his Book, De Cauſis Linguæ Latinæ, in 1540. Menagius.

GRIFFIN, (Edward) was by Letters Patent, in the 4th. of King James the IId. advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of the Kingdom of England, by the Stile and Title of Lord Griffin of Bray-Brooke, in the County of Northampton. As the Name Griffin, Griffen, Gryffith, or Gryphon, (and theſe ſeveral ways I have ſeen it ſpell'd, or written in their Records) is undoubtedly Welch: So by an Oral Tradition among them, ſupported by, if not grounded on an Ancient but unatteſted Pedigree, ſtill in their Poſſeſſion, this Family is from thence: But whether from Griffin the Son of Leolin, Prince of North Wales, who with his Eldeſt Son was long kept a Priſoner in the Tower of London, by Henry III. and for whoſe Liberty his Wife Covenanted with the ſaid King to deliver two other of his Sons as Hoſtages, for enſurance that her Husband Griffin, and his Eldeſt Son, ſhould ſtand to the Articles which ſhe had made with the King for his Liberty: Or whether from Griffin of Le Brimfield, who fled to England for Refuge, his Houſes being deſtroyed, and his Lands laid waſte for his adhering to Henry the IIId. of England, or from any other Family of the Name, no Monuments or Records that I have ſeen, make out. However from a Pedigree drawn up by Sir Richard St. George, and peruſed and approved by our Learned Camden, and from Good and Authentick Records, it appears, that this Family was ſeated, at Gothmundle, alias Gomunale, and now commonly Gumley in Leiceſterſhire, and made their aboad there in the Reign of Edward the IId. at what time the Heir-General of the Worſhipful Family of the Favells of Weſton-Favell, a Town near adjoining, being married to Sir John Griffin, they were altogether reſident there. Till by the Death of Edward Lord Latimer Bochard, who left no Iſſue, his Siſter, the Daughter of Thomas Lord Latimer Bochard of Bray-brooke, was married to Sir Thomas Griffin, and brought to him with Divers other Manners and Lands, the Caſtle of Bray-brooke, which then became the Seat of this Family, till part of it was caſually blown up by Gun-Powder. This Family did as well enjoy moſt of the Patrimony, as participate of the Blood of theſe Noble and Worthy Families, and by the Ancient Cuſtom of this Realm, may Quarter the Arms of Hubert de Burg, Earl of Kent, Lord Tregoze, Lord Le Warr, Lord Latimer, Bray-brooke, Newmarch, Coniers, Darcie, Newille, Clavering, Fawconberge, and many others of the Nobility and Gentry. A younger Son of this Family was Attorney-General, and made a great Addition to the Wealth of the Family. The firſt Line failing, Sir Edward Griffin, Father to this Lord Griffin, was Treaſurer of the Chamber to King Charles the Iſt. as was this Lord Griffin to King Charles the IId. and James the IId. His Lordſhip married the Right Honourable the Lady Eſſex Howard, Daughter to James Earl of Suffolk; by whom he has Iſſue, the Honourable James Griffin, Eſq; The Arms of this Family, are, Diamond, a Griphon Rampant, Pearl, Beak'd and Member'd, Topaz.

GRIFFON, ſtil'd the Patriarch of the Eaſtern Church, ſent by Sixtus IV. to try whether he could reconcile the Maronites of Mont Libanon to the Church of Rome: He died in 1475. leaving behind him an Itinerary of the Holy Land. Voſſius.

GRIFFON, the Son of Charles Martel, by his ſecond Wife Sunihild, revolted from his Brothers Pepin and Carloman, and retir'd to the Fortreſs of Laon, where he was beſieg'd and taken by his Brothers, and ſhut up in Chaſteau-Neuf in Ardenne. Pepin the Short releas'd him, treated him Civilly in his Court, and gave him ſome Counties for his Support. But neither Impriſonment nor kind Uſage could tame his Ambition. He eſcap'd into Saxony, and there ſtirring up the People to take his part, Invaded Bavaria, and call'd himſelf Duke of the Country. But Pepin having vanquiſhed his Followers, carried him along with him into France, where he gave him Mans, and twelve Counties in Neuſtria for his Subſiſtence. Nevertheleſs, he made a third Eſcape, and betook himſelf to Duke Gaifre, and at length was aſſaſſinated in the Valley of Maurienne, as he was going into Italy, as ſome ſay, by Duke Gaifre's Procurement, who was jealous of his being too familiar with his Wife. Haymo, Otho Friſingenſis, &c.

GRIGNAN, a City and County of Provence, in the Lands which are call'd Adjacents; ſeated two or three Leagues from the Rhone, toward St. Paul and Montelimar. Grignan was formerly dignified with the Title of a Barony, and afterwards of an Earldom, about the Year 1550. There is in it a Collegiate Church, Founded in the Year 1512. and a Caſtle; which teſtifies the Ancient Grandeur of the Lords of Grignan.

GRIGNAN, the Name of an Ancient and Illuſtrious Family in France, whoſe Anceſtors were the founders of the City of Montelimar, in the Dauphinate, and from whence have deſcended ſeveral Perſons Eminent in the particular Hiſtories of France; whoſe Poſterity ſtill continues a fair Reputation in the Court of France to this Day.

GRIMA, Grim, a Town of Germany, in the Province of Miſnia, upon the River Muld, three Leagues from Leipſic, towards Meiſſen, under the Duke of Saxony.

GRIMALDI, the Name of a Family, one of the moſt Ancient and Illuſtrious in Italy; which has been poſſeſſed of the Principality of Monaco for ſix hundred Years together: and is ſuppos'd to have deriv'd its Original from Grimoaldus, Maſter of the Palace under Childebert II. However it were, the Family has been Eminent for great Perſonages; of which, ſome have been Admirals of the Fleets of the Genoeſes, others Peers of France, and ſome Cardinals of the Sacred College.

GRIMANI, a Noble Venetian Family, eminent in the particular Stories of that City, having ſupplied the Commonwealth with ſeveral Dukes, and the Church with two Cardinals. Sigonius, Juſtiniani, &c.

GRIMOALDUS, Duke of Beneventum, ſet up for King of the Lombards, in 662. or 663. after the Death of Aripert; whoſe Sons Godebert and Pertharit, contending for the Crown one with another, Grimoald laid hold of the Opportunity to wreſt it from both. He put the firſt to Death, while Perthant retired to Chaganus, King of the Avarois. He was a Prince of great Wit and Conduct. By which means he defeated the Franks; and ſurpriz'd the Emperour Conſtans, who had ſet up his Son, the Duke of Beneventum. Duke Lupus having made himſelf Maſter of Friuli, Grimoald engag'd Chaganus to drive him out of the Province; and then he made uſe of the Dexterity of his Wit to expell the latter. He alſo won the Franks to his ſide, who were about to have ſuccour'd Pertharit, and died in 673. after he had reigned nine Years. Sigonius.

GRIMOALDUS, the Son of Pepin, ſucceeded him in the Office of Mayor of the Palace of Auſtraſia. After the Death of Sigebert, he caus'd his Son Dagobert to be ſhav'd, and ſent him to a Monaſtery in Ireland, intending to have advanc'd his own Son to the Throne; which ſo offended the Auſtraſians, that they ſurpriz'd him, together with his Son, and carried them to Paris, where Clouis II. reſided; who, in the Year 654. put Grimoald to death, or (as others ſay) confin'd him to perpetual Impriſonment. Haymo. Mezeray, &c.

GRIMOARD, an Ancient Family of Provence, in the County of Givaudan; from whence deſcended William de Grimoard, made Pope in 1362. under the Name of Urban V. and his Brother, Cardinal Angelic Grimoard, Legate of Romagna, Marca d' Ancona, and Lombardy, in his Brother's time. Du Cheſne.

GRIMSBY, a Market and Borough-Town by the Sea-ſide, in the Eaſt of Lincolnſhire. It lies in Brodley Wapentake, part of Lindſey Diviſion, and has been formerly a Place of good Trade, before its Haven was choaked up. It had alſo a Caſtle for its Defence, and two Churches for Publick Service: Now there's but one; which indeed, for Largeneſs, appears more like a Cathedral than a Pariſh-Church. The Town is govern'd by a Mayor and twelve Aldermen. From London 124 Miles.

GRINÆUS, (Simon) born in the County of Zollern in Suabia, in 1493. he wrote Notes upon Plato, upon the VIII. Books of Ariſtotle's Topicks, upon Juſtin, Euclid, Julius Pollux, &c. He wrote likewiſe the Life of Oecolampadius, &c. Melchior Adam, in Vit. Germ. Phil. & Juriſc. &c.

GRINARIUM, Knaringen, a Town of Germany in Vindelicia, not far from the Danube, in the Marquiſate of Burgaw, in Suabia, upon the River Camlach; not one full Mile from Burgaw to the Weſt, in the way to Ulm, (by the Teſtimony of Cluverius.)

GRINDAL, (Edmond) born in 1519. Ridley, Biſhop of London, to whom he was Chaplain, recommended him to King Edward the VIth. but this Prince dying ſoon after, Grindal travell'd into Germany, to avoid the Perſecution under Queen Mary. Queen Elizabeth promoted him to the See of London, in 1560. In 1575. he was made Archbiſhop of Canterbury: He died in 1583. Herool. Anglica, &c.

GRINSTEAD, (Eaſt) or Greenſtead, a Market-Town in the County of Suſſex, in Pevenſey Rape, which has the Honour of Electing two Members of Parliament. The Aſſizes are ſometimes kept at it. It is grac'd with a fair Church, and ſtands towards the Confines of Surrey.

GRIPSWALD, a Hans-Town of Germany, in Pomerania, ſeated Half a League from the Baltick Sea, with a convenient Harbour, between Walgaſt and Stralſund: A fair City, and well fortified. The Swedes won it in 1631. and held it, by the Peace of Munſter, in 1648. The Electour of Brandenburgh took it in the Year 1678. but was conſtrained to reſtore it to the Swedes the next Year. There is in it an Univerſity, Founded by Vratiſlaus IX. Duke of Pomerania, in 1456. and re-confirm'd by Philip, in 1547. (according to the Relation of Bertius.)

GRIS, (James) a Favourite of Peter II. Count of Alenſon; who falling in Love with the Wife of John de Carouge, an Officer under the ſame Count, forc'd her, in her own Chamber, at what time her Husband had taken a Voyage into the Holy-Land. The Lady declar'd her Misfortune to her Husband, at his return: Who receiving no Satisfaction from the Count of Alenſon, cited de Gris to the Parliament of Paris; which, for want of convincing Proofs, Ordain'd, That both Parties ſhould decide their Quarrel by a ſingle Duel. Which was done at Paris, in 1387. in the Piazza of St. Catharine, behind the Church, in the Preſence of the King, and multitudes of People that ſate on Scaffolds rear'd on purpoſe to behold the Combate. In Concluſion, Victory favouring John de Carouge, perſwaded all the Beholders of the Juſtice of the Victor's Cauſe, and the Lady's Innocence. And therefore, to ſignalize the Injuſtice of his Adverſary, and render his Name the more Infamous, the Body of Gris was delivered dead to the Hangman; who dragg'd it to Montfaucon, and there hang'd it up. Froiſſart.

GRISANT, (William) an Engliſh Phyſician and Mathematician, living in the XIVth. Cent. He wrote ſeveral conſiderable Treatiſes, as De Quadratura Circuli. De Qualitatibus Aſtrorum & De Significationibus eorum. De Magnitudine Solis. Speculum Aſtrologiæ. De Cauſa Ignorantiæ. De Judicio Patientis, &c. Bale. Pits. Voſſius, &c.

GRISONS, a People of Germany, in the Ancient Rhœtia, toward the Sources of the Rhine and the Inn. Their Country is bounded by Tyrol to the Eaſt; by the State of Venice and Milanois to the South; and by Suabia, and Switzerland, to the North and Weſt. The Griſons obſerve a Republican Form of Government; firſt entring into a League one with another, in 1471. and afterwards with the Switzers, in 1491. They are divided into ſix Parts: The Grey League; the League of the Houſe of God; the League of the Ten Juriſdictions; the Valteline; and the Counties of Chiavena and Bormio. The whole Country is ſeated among inacceſſible Mountains and Precipices: And indeed, the Griſons are the moſt Potent Allies of the Swiſſes; and derive their Name from hence, That the firſt time they enter'd into the League together, they were wont to wear Grey Scarfs. Coire is their Capital City, whither Merchandice is brought out of Italy and Germany, for the Conveniency of the Rhine, which there begins to be Navigable. The reſt of their Cities are Chiavenne, Tiranno, Majenfeldt, Sandrio, Morbegno, Bormio, &c.

GRODNO, a City of Poland, in Lithuania, and one of the Principal Towns of the Palatinate of Troki; ſeated partly upon a Hill, and partly in a Plain upon the Banks of a River. It was formerly dignified with the Title of a Dukedom, and is the Place where the States of Lithuania meet. The Muſcovites took it, in the Year 1655. and almoſt utterly ruin'd it.

GROENLAND, is that ſame Northern Part of the Land which winds from the South to the Eaſt, declining toward the North from Cape Farwell, in the Deucaledonian, all along the Coaſts of the Frozen Sea, that extend themſelves toward Spitzberg and Nova Zembla. Some have affirm'd, That it joyns to Tartary; but there is no certainty in that Relation. It has to the Eaſt the Frozen Sea; to the South, the Deucaledonian Ocean; and to the Weſt, the Streight Chriſtian, and the Sea call'd Chriſtian, which ſeparates it from America. The Breadth of it is unknown, to the North. The Daniſh Chronicle reports it to be the Extremity of the World, to the North; and that beyond, there is no more Northern Land. There are ſome who believe that Groenland is a Continent of America; ſince the Engliſh, who ſought to paſs the Streight of Davis, in ſearch of a way into the Eaſt, have found, that what Davis took for a Streight, is a Gulph. But Munck, a Daniſh Captain, who attempted the Eaſt Paſſage through the North-Weſt of Davis's Gulph, is of Opinion, That Groenland is a Country altogether ſeparate from America. The Elevation of Groenland, taken from Cape Farwell, according to the Meaſure taken by Captain Munck, an Underſtanding Seaman, is 60 deg. 30 min. The other Parts, more elevated, approach nearer the Pole: Nor is there any thing certain to be decided, but only of Spitzberg, which the Danes Count to be a Part of Groenland, and place in 78 deg. or thereabouts; meaning Longitude all this while: For as to Latitude, there is nothing at all of Certainty; only, that Cape Farwell lies beyond the Canaries, and our firſt Meridian. There are two Chronicles, the one Iſland, the other Daniſh, that inform us, how one Forvaldus, and his Son Erric, having committed a Murther in Norway, fled into Iſeland; where Erric committing a ſecond Murther, reſolv'd to ſeek out a Land which a Friend of his had diſcover'd, to the Weſt of Iſeland. Which Land he found, and made his Approach to it, between two Promontories, the one ſtanding in an Iſland over-againſt the Continent of Groenland, the other in the Continent it ſelf; the firſt call'd Huidſerken, the other Huarf: That he landed firſt in the Iſland, and call'd it Erric Sun, by his own Name: That all the Winter he ſtaid in the Iſland, and the next Spring paſs'd over into Groenland; which he ſo call'd, from the Verdure of the Meadows and Trees. Being thus landed, in a Port which he call Erricsfiorden, he built a ſmall Manſion, which he call'd Oſtrebug, not far from the Port; and thence proceeding Weſtward, rais'd another Habitation, which he call'd Weſtrebug. Next Summer he went Northward, as far as a Rock call'd Snefiel, or the Rock of Snow, and diſcover'd another Harbour, which he call'd Ravensfiorden, or the Port of Crows. Upon this, Erric returns into Iſeland, and perſwades a great number of the Iſelanders to go along with him; which they did. And much about the ſame time, Leiffe, the Son of Erric, went into Norway: Where addreſſing himſelf to Olaus Trugger, then King of Norway, he made him a Relation of the Goodneſs of the Land which his Father had diſcover'd. Upon which, the King of Norway, after he had caus'd him to be Baptiz'd, ſent him back to his Father, with a Prieſt, to inſtruct both his Father, and the People that were with him in the Chriſtian Religion. The Daniſh Chronicle reports, That the Succeſſors of Erric being multiplied in Groenland, advanc'd farther into the Country, and found, among the Mountains, very Fertile Valleys, Meadows and Rivers; divided Groenland into Eaſtern and Weſtern, and built in the Eaſtern-part a City, which they call'd Garde, which was afterwards the Seat of their Biſhops, with a Church dedicated to St. Nicholas. After which, their Poſterity went farther, and built another City by the Name of Albe. (See the Specimen Iſelandicum of Angrimus Jonas, where he ſpeaks of Groenland, from the firſt Settlement of the People, to the Year 1389.) The Iſeland Chronicle makes mention of another City in the Eaſtern-part of Groenland, call'd Skagefiord; a Church, call'd Korskirk; with two or three Monaſteries; and that the County of Veſtrebug, or Weſt Groenland, was inhabited by a ſort of Savages, call'd Skreglingres. However it were, it is agreed on all hands, that the Country of Groenland abounded in excellent Paſturage, and vaſt numbers of Horſes, great and ſmall Cattle, Dear, Raine-Dear, Wolfs, Foxes, Black and White Bears, &c. And great ſtore of Wild Fowl, eſpecially Grey and White Falcons. The Iſeland

Chronicle alſo further obſerves, That the Air of Groenland was more Temperate than in Norway. But it ſeems, that in the Year 1348. a great Peſtilence, call'd the Black Peſtilence; deſtroy'd all the Mariners and Merchants of Norway and Denmark that compos'd the Groenland-Companies in thoſe Kingdoms; which cauſed ſuch an Interruption of the Voyages and Trade to Old Groenland, that the Country is quite loſt. Since that ſeveral New Diſcoveries have been made of other Parts of Groenland, by Martin Frobiſher and Hudſon, both Engliſhmen; John Munken, of Denmark; and Others, who have met with People in ſeveral Parts, but ſo Wild and Savage, that they could never be civiliz'd by any Preſents or Careſſes. The Men Fat, Active, and their Complexions Olive-coloured, uſing for their Weapons ſhort Bows and Slings. The Women tie their Hair behind their Ears, to ſhew their Faces, which are generally painted with Blew and Yellow. Their Habits are made of the Skins of Fiſh, artificially ſew'd together with the Sinews of the Fiſh; and the Shifts both of the Men and Women, made of the Intrails of Fiſh, ſewed together after the ſame manner, but very noiſome and naſty. Some of the Daniſh Seamen brought away ſeveral of the Groenlanders: But notwithſtanding all the kind Uſage that was ſhewn 'em in the King's Court, ſuch was their Affection for their Native Country, that they pin'd away for Grief of their being detain'd from it. Relation of Groenland, dedicated to M. de la Mothe le Vayer.

GROLLA, Groll, Groenlo, a City of the Low-Countries, in the County of Zutphen, toward the Frontiers of Weſtphalia, and the Dioceſe of Munſter. A very ſtrong place, having good Walls, defended by five great Baſtions with Horn-Works, environ'd with Moats ſupplied with Water from the little River Sling. Groll lies four Leagues from Zutphen, and two from Brederwoerde. The Marquiſs of Spinola took it from the Hollanders, toward 1605. And they regain'd it again in 1617. In 1672. the Biſhop of Munſter joining with the French, made himſelf Maſter of it; but was obliged to reſtore it again ſoon after, upon the Turn of that ſweeping Tyde.

GROLLERIUS, (John) Treaſurer of France, extoll'd by Thuanus for his Learning, his Bounty toward Learned Men, and the Vaſtneſs of his Library, not to be exceeded by any, unleſs that of Aſinius Pollio's, at Rome; ſo Choice, and kept in ſuch Decorum, that the King of France purchas'd it at a great Rate, and order'd it to be added to the Royal Library at Paris. Thuan. l. 38.

GRONINGUE, a City and Signiory, one of the Provinces of the United States. It lies in Friſe; but is a particular and ſeparate State by it ſelf, under its own Laws and Juriſdiction. It formerly belong'd to the Biſhops of Utrecht; afterwards to the Dukes of Guelders; then to Charles V. till it came to be as now it is. This Province has the laſt Voice in the Aſſembly of the States-General. It abounds in Paſturage, having a great number of Canals, which are fed from Delpzyl, near the Mouth of the River Ems. And for the City it ſelf, it is Large, Beautiful, Wealthy, Strong, and well Peopled. Valer. Andreas in Topogr. Belg. Strada de Bell. Belgic. &c.

GROSTHED, (Robert) was made Biſhop of Lincoln, in 1235. He was a Perſon of great Learning, a good Governour, and of an exemplary Life. He declaimed with a great deal of Freedom againſt the Corruptions of the Court of Rome, and was at laſt excommunicated, for refuſing to comply with the Pope's unreaſonable Exactions upon the Churches of his Dioceſs; which Cenſure, he bore up againſt boldly, and appeal'd to our Saviour's Tribunal. He wrote a great many Tracts, of which theſe following are Printed. Sermones ad Clerum. Dictum de Bono Judice in Pſal. 57. v. 1. Dictum de Prophetis veris & falſis. Dictum de Fide & ejus Articulis. Dictum de Gratia & Juſtificatione Hominis. Dicta de Oratione. Dictum de Superbia, de detractione & ejus Malis, &c. Epiſtolæ CI. quarum ultima omnium maxime inſignis extat apud Matthæum Paris, Pag. 870. Conſtitutiones XXXIX Dioceſeos ſuæ, Clericis directæ. All theſe Tracts above-mentioned are Publiſhed by Mr. Edward Brown, in the Appendix Ad Faſciculum Rerum Expetendarum. Liber de Ceſſatione Legalium, Printed, though imperfectly at London 1652. Commentarius in Dionyſii Areopagitæ Librum de Myſtica Theologia, Printed with the Works of Dionyſius at Strasburg in 1502. Compendium Sphæræ Mundi, Printed at Venice, in 1508. Commentarius in Libros Poſteriorum Ariſtotelis, at Venice. Teſtamentum XII Patriarcharum, Tranſlated by him, out of Greek into Latin 1242. There are a great Many Pieces of this Biſhop's in Manuſcript, in the Libraries of Weſtminſter, Lambeth, and the Univerſity Library at Cambridge. He died in 1253. Ex Annalibus de Lannarcoſt, in Bibliotheca Cottoniana, Claudius D. 7. Anglia Sacra pars Secunda.

GROTESCO-WORK, a ſort of Painting repreſenting the Figures of Men, and Brute Animals, after a whimſical and ridiculous manner; ſo call'd, as being firſt met with, after it had been long loſt, in certain Grotto's in Rome, by John d'Udine, a Famous Painter, who, romaging among the Ruines of Titus's Palace, diſcover'd thoſe ſort of Figures in ſome of the lower Vaults, with ſeveral Pieces of Hiſtory, and ſome Ornaments in Baſs Relief, made of Stuke. D'Udine carried Raphael Urbin along with him to ſee the Work, who admir'd the Beauty of it, being never a-whit the worſe, and the Colours freſh, as being preſerv'd from the Waſte of Time, by being pent up in Rubbiſh from the Injuries of the Air. Thoſe Pictures D'Udine Copy'd, and made ſeveral others after his own Invention, and ſo renew'd that manner of Painting. He alſo reviv'd the Compoſition of Stuke, by ſearching into the Materials of thoſe Pieces of Groteſco in Baſs Relief, which he found at the ſame time; and by that means brought Groteſco in Baſs Relief in Faſhion again. Felibien.

GROTIUS, vulgarly de Groot, Hugh, or Hugo, a Native of Delpht, in Holland, of one of the moſt conſiderable Families in the Town, and the Phœnix of his Age. He was firſt Syndick of Rotterdam; which he quitted, in 1613. for that of Advocate of the Treaſury. By his ſiding with Barnevelt, whom he ſupported as well by his Writings as by his Reputation, he brought himſelf into great Troubles, and was impriſon'd in the Caſtle of Loveſtein; from whence he eſcap'd by a Stratagem of his Wife, Mary Regersberg, who having obtain'd leave to ſend her Husband Books in a large Cheſt, Grotius got into the Cheſt, and ſo paſſing the Guards, betook himſelf into the Spaniſh Low-Countries, and from thence into France; where he was kindly receiv'd by Lewis XIII. Returning into Holland, upon the Encouragement of Prince Henry Frederic, he ſtaid there ſome ſmall time; but the States not deeming it convenient that he ſhould reſide in his own Country, order'd his Departure. Upon which he retir'd into Sweden; where Queen Chriſtina employ'd him in her moſt Important Affairs, and ſent him her Embaſſador into France. He died at Roſtock, in Meckelbourg, in the Year 1645. leaving ſeveral Pieces behind him, well known, and in great Reputation among Learned Men. He writ De Veritate Religionis Chriſtianæ, Lib. VI. Mare Liberum, againſt Selden's Mare Clauſum. De Jure Belli & Pacis, Lib. III. De Antiquitate Reipublicæ Bataviæ. De Imperio Summarum Poteſtatum circa Sacra Com. Annales & Hiſtoriæ de Rebus Belgicis. Hiſtoria Gothorum, Vandalorum & Longobardorum. Diſſertatio de Origine Gentium Americanarum. De Satisfactione Chriſti, adverſus Socinum. Apologeticus, Poemata, Annotationes in totam Sacram Scripturam, and his Epiſtles printed in 1687. at Amſterdam. Meurſius in Athen. Batav. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Melchior Adam in Vit. Juriſc. Germ. &c.

GROTKAVIA, Grotkaw, a Town of Germany, in the Upper Sileſia, the Capital of a Dukedom of the ſame Name, in the Mid-way between Neſſen to the South, and Brieg to the North.

GROTTA di Napoli, Lat. Crypta Neapolitana, cut through the Foot of a Mountain call'd Monte Poſilypo, upon the Road from Naples to Putzuolo. This Hollow Way, which is about half a League in Length, Twelve Foot Deep, and as many Broad, was a wonderful Piece of Labour, digg'd thorough, on purpoſe to ſhorten the Way from the one of thoſe two Cities to the other. Lucullus employ'd no leſs than 100000 Men to make this Hollow Way; who brought it to Perfection in 15 Days. At the Entrance into this Hollow Way ſtands Virgil's Sepulchre. Schrad. Monument. Ital.

La GROTTA de Cani, a Peſtilential Cavern, near the Lake Agnano, in Italy, four Leagues from Naples towards Pozzuoli. 'Tis likewiſe call'd the Cavern of Charon, from the mortal Malignity of the Air and Vapours within it. In 1638. Kircher ſays he try'd the Experiment of letting down a Dog into it, which thereupon became as perfectly dead; but being taken up and plung'd in the Lake Agnano, he reviv'd again: And from this ſort of Quality it comes to bear the Name of De Cani. Kircher Mundi Subter. Tom. 1.

GROUCHI, in Lat. Gruchius, (Nicholas de) liv'd in the XVIth. Cent. of a Noble Family at Roan, was a conſiderable Linguiſt, and general Scholar, but his Inclination lay moſtly for Criticiſm. He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, De Comitiis Romanorum, Lib. III. &c. La Croix du Maine Bibl. Franc. &c.

GRUBENHAGA, Grubenhagen, a Town of Germany, under the Juriſdiction of Brunſwick, ennobl'd with the Title of a Dukedom, near the River Leine, three Leagues from Gotting to the North, and four from Corvey to the Eaſt. Baudrand.

GRUMBACH, (William) a German, the occaſion of the Civil War that was kindl'd in Germany in the Year 1566. Who having aſſaſſinated the Biſhop of Wirtzbourg, in Franconia, committed all Acts of Hoſtility in the Country. Which oblig'd Maximilian II. to proclaim him Out-law'd, together with the reſt of his Followers. Thereupon the Elector of Saxony beſieg'd both Gotha, and the Citadel of Grimmeſtein, whither Grumbach was retir'd; and having taken both the City and the Caſtle, together with Grumbach himſelf, caus'd him to be Hang'd and Quarter'd alive, with all the Chief of his Confederates. Chytræus. Chron. Lib. 23.

GRUMENTUM, formerly an Epiſcopal City of Lucania, now a Caſtle, by the Name of Agromento, a little above Turſi. Baudrand.

GRUTER, (John or Janus) born at Antwerp in 1560, and very Eminent for the Politepart of Learning. He has left us a Collection of Poems, Notes upon Seneca, Statius, Martial, Salluſt, Livy, Tacitus, Florus, Paterculus, Pliny Junior, The Hiſtoria Auguſta. He likewiſe publiſh'd Cicero's Works, and a Collection of Ancient Inſcriptions. He wrote alſo, Suſpicionum Lib. IX. Lampas ſeu Theſaurus Criticus. Florilegium Magnum ſeu Polyanthæa. Æthico-politicorum Tom. III. Bibliotheca Exulum. Chronicon Chronicorum. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Barthius Adv. Venator in Panegyrico Gruteri, &c.

GRYLLUS, the Son of Xenophon; who fighting valiantly againſt the Thebans, was mortally wounded in the Battel: But after he had received his Death's-wound, no leſs mortally wounded Epaminondas, the Theban General. Xenophon, when he heard of his Death, threw off the Garland of Flowers he wore round his Hat. But when he was told, That he kill'd the Enemy's General before he fell, he took it up again, ſaying, That his Death deſerved rather to be celebrated with Joy, than Sorrow and Regret. Diogenes Laertius.

GUADALAJARA, a Province of North-America, in New-Gallicia, with an Epiſcopal City of the ſame Name, both large and beautiful. The City was built in the Year 1531. by one of the Family of the Guſmans; and the Biſhoprick, which before was ſettled at Compoſtella, was tranſlated thither afterwards, in 1570. It is ſeated in a Delightful and Fertile Plain, Water'd with ſeveral Streams and Fountains not far from the River Baranja. The Air of the Country is Temperate; and the Soil ſo Fertile, that it yields a Hundred for one; and all the Fruits of Europe grow there in great Abundance. The Province of Guadalajara lies between Zacateca, Mechoacan and Xaliſco. The reſt of the Cities are Zaporaco, Chutiquipaque, Quaxacatlan, &c. Guadalajara is alſo a Town in Spain, in Old Caſtile, Capital of the Country of Algarvia, upon the River Henares. A Coſta, Lib. 7.

GUADALOUPA, or Gardalupa, one of the Antilles; which many place among the Caribbes, in North-America, belonging to the French ever ſince 1635. The Natives call it Carucueina. It lies between the Iſland of S. Domingo to the South, and Marigalante to the Eaſt. The Caſtillians gave it the Name of Guadaloupa, from Guadaloupa in New Caſtile, ſo much Noted for the great Concourſe of Pilgrims to it. This Iſland is divided into Two Parts, or Peninſula's. The Biggeſt lies to the Eaſt of the other, and is call'd the Great Land; which is the true Guada Loupa. The other, to the Weſt of this, or rather between the Weſt and South, is ſubdivided into two Territories. It produces plenty of Sugar-Canes; and the French began to ſettle there, in 1635. So that it is now extremely well Peopled. There is in it a neat City of the ſame Name, and three or four Forts upon the Coaſt. Hiſt. of the Antilles.

GUADALQUIVIR, Lat. Bætis, one of the greateſt Rivers of Spain; and therefore the Name which the Moors gave it, ſignifies a great River. It riſes out of the Mountains of Caſtile, toward the Frontiers of Murcia; croſſes Andaluſia; paſſes to Sevil, the Capital City of the Country, after it has Water'd Cordova, and throws it ſelf into the Ocean at St. Lucar.

GUADEL, a City of Aſia, in Perſia, within the Province of Kerman, ſeated upon the Gulph of Ormus, with a convenient Harbour.

GUADIANA, Ana, or Anas, a River of Spain. It riſes in New-Caſtile, at Rio Reydera, in the Plain which the Natives call Campo de Montiel. A little lower, it runs under Ground, near Medellin, for 10 Leagues together; and ſhews it ſelf again near Argamaſilla. For which reaſon it is, that the Spaniards make their Boaſts of having a Bridge upon which they can feed 10000 Sheep. The Name of Anas, which the Ancients gave it, ſignifying a Duck, demonſtrates, that they look'd upon the River like one of thoſe Amphibious Animals, which ſometimes appear upon the Land, and ſometimes hide themſelves under Water.

GUADIX, an Epiſcopal City of Spain, in the Kingdom of Grenada; the Guadicium, or Acci of the Latins, under the Metropolitan of Sevil, or (as others ſays) of Grenada. It is ſeated toward the Sources of the River Guadalentin, 9 or 10 Leagues from the City of Grenada; and was re-gain'd from the Moors, in the Year 1489. by Ferdinand and Iſabel.

GUAJAQUILUM, Guayaquil, a Town of South-America, in the North-part of Peru, upon the Shore of the Pacifick Sea, with a ſpacious Harbour, over-againſt the Iſland of Puna, 50 Spaniſh Leagues from Quito to the South. Baudrand.

GUAIRA, a Province of Southern-America, it has Paraguay proper to the Eaſt, not far from the River of Parana, and extending it ſelf to the Sea. The Capital City of it is Cividad Real, call'd alſo Guaira, and Oliveros. The Spaniards are Maſters of the Country.

GUALATA, a Kingdom of Nigritia, in Africa, toward the Atlantick Ocean. The Capital City of it bears the ſame Name, by the Natives call'd Benais. There is alſo another City, call'd Hoden, about 6 Days Journey from Cape Blanc, built for the Convenience of the Arabians and Caravans, that travel from Tombut into Barbary: Over all the reſt of the Country you meet with only Towns or great Villages. The Soil produces Rice, Millet and Barley; and great numbers of Date-Trees ſhade it, the Dates of which are very good. Fleſh is extremely ſcarce; unleſs it be at Hoden, where the Inhabitants breed good ſtore of Cattel, and where are alſo Camels and Goats in abundance; as alſo Oſtridges, whoſe Eggs are good to eat: but the Lions and Leopards make great havock among them. The Inhabitants are Free enough in Trade; but Dull, and very Thick Skull'd. Both Men and Women hide one part of their Faces. At Hoden, the Men wear a ſhort White Coat, but the Women cover only their Bellies. When the Senegues were Maſters of this Kingdom, the King kept his Court at Gualata, and a great number of Merchants came out of Barbary to Trade there: But under the Reign of Soni-Heli the Trade was remov'd to Guogo and Tombut. Nevertheleſs, the Inhabitants of Hoden have a Trade among them ſtill; for that being Maſters of Camels, they carry Copper, Silver, and other Merchandizes, to Tombut, and bring back Gold. In the Year 1526. the King of Tombut conquer'd this Country; but reſtor'd it again to the Lawful Prince, upon Conſideration of a certain Tribute. The People ſpeak the Language of Zungay, and worſhip Fire. But the Inhabitants of Hoden, being deſcended from the Arabians, are Mahometans, and mortally hate the Chriſtians. Dapper Deſc. D' l'Afrique.

St. GUALBERT, Founder of the Order of the Monks of Valle Ombroſa, in the Year 1040. afterwards approv'd by Alexander II. in 1070.

GUALID, the Eighth Califf, or Succeſſor to Mahomet, reigned after the Death of Abdulmelic, his Father, in 708. At his coming to the Crown, he took from the Chriſtians the great Church of Damaſcus, the moſt Magnificent Church in the World, as well for the Structure as the Riches of it. Moreover, out of his Averſion to the Chriſtians, he forbid the Uſe of the Greek Language over all his Dominions. In 710. he ſent Muſa with a great Army into Africa, to reduce the revolted Africans. Muſa having ſubdued thoſe People, extended his Conqueſts into Spain; where he fix'd the Arabians, in 712. Nor was Gualid idle in Aſia, but ſent three great Armies into the Provinces of the Conſtantinopolitan Empire; who made great havock in Romania and Cilicia, and return'd to Damaſcus laden with Booty. After this, he rais'd another Army, with a Reſolution to Beſiege Conſtantinople, refuſing to grant the Truce that Theodoſius III. demanded of him; but died before he could put his Deſign in Execution. Marmol. de l'Afrique, Lib. II.

GUALID II. ſucceded Jezil II. in 727. And being more addicted to Peace than War, apply'd himſelf, at the Beginning of his Reign, to the Building of ſumptuous Palaces and Moſques in Damaſcus. However, by his Generals, he wag'd War with the Emperour of Conſtantinople: And in 742. did much Miſchief in the Provinces of the Empire; but died in 746. after he had reigned 19 Years, and very much perſecuted the Chriſtians to force them to a Renunciation of their Religion.

GUALID, or Beni-Gualid, a Mountain of the Province of Errif, in the Kingdom of Fez, in Africa, inhabited by a Wealthy People that live free from Impoſitions, in regard it would coſt the King a World of Trouble and Charges to force 'em in their Highlands; where they have 60 good Villages, inhabited by above 6000 Fighting Men, and a Soil that produces all things neceſſary for Humane Life. They have alſo a Privilege confirm'd to 'em by the Kings of Tunis, upon every Change of a new Prince, to receive all Criminals that come for Sanctuary among 'em. Marmol.

GUAM, one of the Ladrone Iſlands, between the Pacifick and the Indian Ocean, and the moſt Eaſterly-part of the Indies: The Natives of this Iſland are ſtrong Bodied, large Limb'd and well Shap'd; and notwithſtanding their ſternneſs of Countenance, are tolerably affable and courteous: They are very ingenious in making Boats, call'd Proe's in the Indies: They have little Houſes handſomely Thatch'd, with Palmeto Thatch, and ſeveral Villages, near the Shoar, on the Weſt-ſide of the Iſland; where they have Spaniſh Prieſts to inſtruct them in the Chriſtian Religion. On this ſide of the Iſland, the Cocoe-Trees grow in great Groves 3 or 4 Miles in length, and a Mile or two broad. They uſe the Cocoe, in making Broath, and eſpecially for Oyl, both for burning and frying: They likewiſe draw a ſort of Wine from the Tree, call'd Toddy, which looks like Whey, 'tis ſweet and very pleaſant, but muſt be drunk within four and twenty Hours, for fear of ſouring. Thoſe that have a great many Trees, draw a Spirit from the ſour Wine, call'd Arack, which in making of Punch is counted better, than the Arack diſtill'd from Rice. This Iſland likewiſe produces the Lime, which is a ſort of Baſtard or Crab-Limon: The Tree or Buſh is prickly, like a Thorn: The Fruit reſembles a Limon, but ſmaller. They have likewiſe a Fruit, call'd the Bread-fruit, growing on a Tree, about the bigneſs of a large Apple tree, and is about the largeneſs of a Penny-loaf, the Taſte of it is ſweet and pleaſant; the Natives bake it, to make it Bread: There is likewiſe ſome Rice growing upon this Iſland. Dampiere's New Voyage round the World.

The Province of Guatimala, in the Language of the Indians, is call'd Quatuemallac, which ſignifies a rotten Tree, lies toward the Coaſt of the South Sea. The Soil is fertile in Mayz and European Wheat, and abounds in Cotten. It rains but ſeldom; but when it falls, it pours down with great Violence, chiefly from the Month of April till October, that the Winds blow from the South or North; the North Wind laſts only fifteen Days, but then 'tis cold and boiſtrous. The Country is full of Mountains and Foreſts, and croſs'd by ſeveral Rivers, which renders it proper both for Hunting and Fiſhing. The Meadows are excellent, and breed great ſtore of Cattel; but the Air is not very wholſom. It ſwarms with Bees, which make their Honey, as well as their Wax, White. There is alſo ſome Balſam to be met with; but the Woad is excellent. The Natives of the Country are Docile enough; but when they have once embrac'd the Chriſtian Religion, they are apt to relapſe into their old Superſtitions, unleſs great Care be taken of 'em. The Capital City of Guatimala, is St. Jago di Guatimala, the Seat of a Parliament and a Biſhop, under the Metropolitan of Mexico, ſituated in a Valley, thro' the midſt of which runs a fair River between two Burning Mountains. The Soil is Fertile in Mayz, and the neighbouring Parts are planted with Fruit-Trees, which make the Country very Pleaſant. In the Year 1541. the City of St. Jago was almoſt ruin'd by a diſmal Tempeſt, which overturn'd a great part of the Houſes, and buried a conſiderable Number of the Inhabitants in the Ruins. De Laet.

GUIANA, or GUAIANA, a Country of South America, between the North Sea, toward the North and Eaſt; the Kingdom of the Amazons toward the South; and the Golden Caſtile adjoyning to the River Oronoque, toward the Weſt. The Country of the Caribbes is inclos'd within Guiana, and lies toward the North Sea. The moſt Conſiderable People of Guiana are the Caribbes, the Arvaques, the Taos, and the Galibi's. The Caribbes love War for want of other Exerciſe, and when they march out upon any Enterprize againſt their Enemies, they are ſo cautious of ſurprize, that they poſt their Out-guards and their Sentinels with as much Care and Art as the Europeans. The Galibi's are a little more addicted to Peace, and never undertake a War, but when they believe themſelves to be very much wrong'd; as when their Neighbours refuſe to Dance their Dances, or to Sing their Songs. They that border upon the Spaniards, have learnt to handle Fire-Arms. The Inhabitants of this Country are well-proportion'd, moderately tall and ſtrong of Body. They are for the moſt part ſwarthy, and go naked; but there are ſome who wear before the Privy-Parts, a covering of Feathers neatly wrought together, and upon their Heads a Tonſi or Bonnet made of Birds Feathers, very proper and becoming. Their Food is Caſſave and Ozacou. Caſſave is the Bread of the Country, made of a Root, which they grate and fetch the Water out of it, which is perfect Poiſon, yet loſes its malignity when it has boil'd for ſome time. The Ozacou is a Paſt made of the Patate's or Figs of the Country, which they ſteep in Water, to make a Drink of the Colour of Milk. But the greateſt part of the Caribbes are Boucaniers, and feed upon Man's Fleſh gridled upon the Fire. The Galibi's are induſtrious, and Till ſuch a quantity of Ground as will ſerve their Neceſſities, according to the bigneſs of their Families. They neither care for Gold or Silver; but exchange their Hamacks or Cotton-Beds, their Aloes Wood, their Apes and Parroquets, for Hatchets, Knives, Looking-Glaſſes, and ſuch kind of Trumpery, but more eſpecially for Green Stones, which they highly eſteem, and believe to be a Sovereign Remedy againſt the Falling-Sickneſs, to which they are very ſubject. The Air of the Country is very temperate, and the Soil produces Mayz in abundance. Fruit-Trees are there very common, and the Arrana's and Plantans bear Figs as big as an Egg, and as long as a Man's Finger, being alſo delicious to the Taſt. The Chief Commodities of the Country are, Aloes Wood, Braſile, Balſam, Cotton, Silk, and Spices. In ſome parts alſo, there grows a Tree, which bears a certain Fruit call'd Mancenille, like a ſmall Apple, delightful to the Sight, but ſo venomous withal, that immediately it Poiſons thoſe that taſte but never ſo little of it. Their Apes and Marmoſets are very big, and very flat-nos'd, and their Turkies have long Tufts of black Feathers, like Herons upon their Heads. De Laet.

He wrote two Books of Muſick, and liv'd about the Year 1028.

GUIDONIS, (Bernard) Biſhop of Tuy in Spain, and afterwards of Lodeve in Languedoc, wrote a Chronicle under the Title of Speculum Hiſtoricum Pontificum Romanorum, Imperatorum & Regum Galliæ, which he brought down to 1322. he likewiſe wrote De Conciliis. De Officio Miſſæ, &c. and died in 1331.

GUIENNE, a Province of France, ennobled with the Title of a Dukedom. It was formerly call'd Aquitain, tho' at this Day it comprehends Countries quite different from thoſe, which anciently Aquitain contain'd. Pliny gives it the Name of Aremorica. Guienne, particularly ſo call'd, is properly the Seneſchalſhip of Bourdeaux; but that which uſually bears that Name is bounded to the Weſt by the Ocean; by Landes and Gaſcoigny to the South; to the Eaſt by Perigort, and Quercy; and to the North by Santoigne. The Country is pleaſant and fertile; the Air ſweet and temperate; and the People Ingenious, only they are accus'd of too much raſhneſs and boaſting where they get the upper hand. This Country contains Bourdelois, Medoc, Bazadois, Agenois, and Condonnois, with the part between the two Seas, call'd L' Entre deux Mers. The Chief City of it is Bourdeaux; the reſt are, Agen, Condom, Bazas, Marmande, St. Foy, Libourn, Bourg upon the Sea, Nerac, &c. The Viſigoths won it from the Romans, and held it till they were expell'd by King Clovis, and after that, it was under particular Dukes, but was united to the Crown in the Reigns of Philip the Auguſt, Lewis VIII. and St. Lewis. Afterwards the Engliſh enjoy'd it till the Reign of Charles VII. In the Year 1469. Lewis XI. gave it his Brother Charles for his Support, and Child's Portion. But he dying without Iſſue, in 1472. it was again United to the Crown.

GUIFFEREY, (Guy) one of the moſt famous Captains of the XVIth. Age, held out Marſeilles againſt the Emperour Charles V. and contributed very much to the winning of the Battel of Cerizoles; where he Commanded the Vanguard in 1544. The next Year he Commanded the Right Squadron of 35 Ships, in the Royal Navy, which Francis I. ſent againſt the Engliſh. Conſult Brantome's and Bellay's Memoires, and Thuan. l. 1.

GUILANDINUS, (Melchior) of Konisberg in Pruſſia, commended by Thuanus, for his laborious Enquiries into the Nature of Herbs and Simples, though Matthiolus and he could never agree in their Judgments, and Joſeph Scaliger Corrects many Errours in his Comment upon Paper. Thuanus, l. 96.

GUILFORD, the Capital Town of the County of Surrey, in the Hundred of Woking, which returns two Members to the Houſe of Commons. It is pleaſantly ſituate upon the River Wey, containing three Pariſhes, well frequented, accommodated, and handſome. The Saxon Kings had a Royal Manſion here, in whoſe time it was a place of greater extent. The Ruins of a large old Caſtle near the River, remain yet to be ſeen. In the Year 1660. King Charles II. created Elizabeth Viſcounteſs of Kinelmacky in Ireland, Counteſs of this place for life. In 1672. the Title of Earl of Guilford, was granted by the ſame King to John Maitland, the late Duke of Lautherdale in Scotland. After whom the late Francis North receiv'd the Title of Baron Guilford, from the ſame King, which Honour is now enjoy'd by his Son Francis North, Lord Guilford. It's 30 Miles from London.

GULIELMUS, otherwiſe known by the Name of Janus Gulielmus; Eminent for his Notes upon Plautus: His Treatiſe againſt Sigonius; His Tranſlation of ſome Pieces of Euripides, &c. and from whom much more was expected, but that he died Young, in the 30th. Year of his Age, in 1584. Thuanus, l. 80.

GULIELMUS TYRIUS, Biſhop of Tyre in Phænicia, liv'd in the XIIth. Century. He wrote the Hiſtory of the Holy War, undertaken by the Chriſtians, under Godfrey of Bologne for the Recovery of the Holy Land; this Work containing 23 Books, begins at 1095, and reaches to 1180. Johannes Heroldus added ſix Books to this Hiſtory, by way of Continuation. Gulielmus Tyrius was preſent at the Council of Lateran, held under Pope Alexander III, in 1168. Henry Pantaleon. Roger Hoveden. Matth. Paris, &c.

GUIMARANES, a Town of Spain in the Kingdom of Portugal, and in the Province between the Duero and the Minho, ennobled with the Title of a Dukedom, four Leagues from Braccara to the Eaſt, in the way to the Mountains. Baudrand.

GUINA, Guines, a City of France, in the re-conquer'd Country of Picardy, ſeated two Leagues from the Sea, and almoſt as many from Calais, in a Marſhy Country, where, 'tis ſaid, there are Floating Iſlands; ennobled with the Title of an Earldom, the Earls of which deſcended from one Sifrid, a Dane, to whom Arnold Earl of Flanders, gave the County of Guines, in Fee, for re-conquering it from William Count of Ponthieu in the IXth. Age; which Counts of Guines continu'd till the Year 1351. at what time Ralph de Guines Conſtable of France, was Beheaded for High-Treaſon, and the Earldom united to the Crown. In 1360. King John of France ſurrender'd this County to the Engliſh by the Treaty of Bretigni. After that, Edward III. of England ſurpriz'd the Town of Guines, during a Truce between him and the King of France, having corrupted the Fidelity of the Governour with Money. Which ſurprize, Edw. III. pleaſantly excus'd, by ſaying, That Truces were Merchantable, and that Philip of Valois would have done the ſame to have had Calais. It was re-taken from the Engliſh by Francis Duke of Guiſe, in 1558. Du Cheſne, &c.

GUINEA, a Kingdom of Africa, between Nigritia, which lies to the North of it; the Atlantic Sea to the South; the Kingdoms of Congo and Biafara to the Eaſt, and the Mountain call'd Sierra Leona to the Weſt. The Country is very wide from Eaſt to Weſt, and the People of Europe drive a great Trade in it. The French were the firſt who diſcover'd it, about the Year 1346. and had ſent ſome Colonies thither. But the Civil Wars of France in the Reigns of Charles VI. and Charles VII. having caus'd an Interruption of Trade, they were driven out of the Country by the Portugueſe, Engliſh, Hollanders, Danes and Swedes. The Portugueſe were formerly Maſters of St. George de la Mine, but now it belongs to the Hollanders; with the Forts of Naſſau, Cormentin, &c. The Engliſh poſſeſs Cabo Corſe, and the Danes Frederick's Burgh. The Soil is fat and fertile, but the heats are inſupportable. The chief Productions of the Country are, Cotton, Rice, Sugar-Canes, Gold, Elephants, Peacocks, Apes and Ivory. Guiney is divided into three Parts, Guiney Proper, Malagette, and the Kingdom of Benin; the firſt contains the Gold Coaſt, the Coaſt of Malagette, and the Tooth Coaſt. See the Relation of Guiney by the Sieur Villaud de Bellefond.

GUINEY New, Certain Lands to the Eaſt of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Southern Hemiſphere; however 'tis not yet certainly known, whether it be an Iſland or a Continent of the Terra Auſtralis. It is ſeparated by a narrow Streight of the Sea, from the Land of the Papous, which is an Iſland to the Eaſt of Ceram, and Gilolo, extending it ſelf to the firſt and fifth Degree of Latitude beyond the Æquator.

GUINTHER, (John) a Phyſician born at Andernach in the Archbiſhoprick of Cologn, in the Year 1487. Phyſician to Francis I. died at Strasburgh, after he had left France, in the Year 1574. and 87th. of his Age; leaving behind him ſeveral Tranſlations of the Ancients, as Galen, Oribaſius, Paulus Ægineta, &c. As alſo ſeveral Treatiſes, De Medicina veteri & nova, de Balneis, de Peſte, &c. Thuanus, l. 59.

GUIPUSCOA, a ſmall Province of Spain, formerly in Navarre, but for theſe 300 Years paſt in Biſcay, which bounds it to the Weſt, as Alava does to the South, the Aquitanick Ocean to the North, and Navarre with Part of France, from which it is ſeparated by the River Bidaſſoa. The Country is well-peopl'd, having in it ſeveral neat Cities; of which, the Chief are Toloſa, St.Sebaſtian, Fontarabia,&c. Baudrand, Moreri.

GUISE, a City and Dukedom of France in Picardy, with a Caſtle, ſeated in the Country of Tierrache, upon the River Oyſe, above de la Fere; Beſieg'd in Vain by the Spaniards in the Year 1528. But that which made this Town moſt remarkable, were the Dukes of Guiſe, who in former times had a very great hand in all the Affairs of France from the Reign of Francis I. to that of Henry IV. This Family was a Branch of the Houſe of Lorrain, advanc'd by Francis I. in 1528. from Counts or Earls of Guiſe, which was their Inheritance, to Duke of the ſame place. The firſt thus rais'd, was Claude the Son of Renatus II. He had Eight Sons, of which were Francis Duke of Guiſe, Claudius Duke of Aumale, and Renatus Marquiſs of Ellebeuf. Francis became very famous by his gallant Defence of Metz againſt Charles V. and his ſurprizing Calais, from the Engliſh. He was kill'd with a Muſquet-ſhot, by John Poltrot a Hugonot, in 1553. Some Hiſtorians report, as if the Duke had not fair play in this Accident. This Francis was the Father of Henry Duke of Guiſe, and Charles Duke of Mayne, &c. Henry making himſelf Head of the Holy League, was ſlain in the States of Blois, by the Order of his Prince, in 1588. Charles the other Brother, took up Arms againſt Henry III. and continu'd them againſt Henry IV. till at laſt in 1594. he was forced to ſubmit to that Victorious Prince. Charles the Son of Henry ſucceeded his Father in the Dukedom, and was the Father of Henry II. who has been famous of later times, and ſtiled Duke of the Republick of Naples, though the Spaniards ſhortly outed him.

GUISE, (James) a Cordelier, born in Valenciennes in Hainault, in the XIVth. Cent. He wrote the Chronicle and Annals of Hainault. This Work was Epitomiz'd in the XVIth. Cent. which notwithſtanding Miraus's good Opinion of the Abridgment, is not always exact. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

GULPH of Mexico, part of the North-Sea, in North-America, between the Antilly's, Florida, and Mexico or New Spain. There are five Fiſheries for Pearls in this Gulph, ſucceſſive one to another from Eaſt to Weſt. The firſt along the Iſland of Cubagna. The Second near the Iſland of Marguerita, and where the Pearls that are found ſurpaſs the reſt in Perfection, both for the Water and for the Bigneſs. The Third is at Comogota, near the firm Land. The Fourth in Rio de la Hacha. And the laſt at St. Martha, 60 Leagues from Rio de la Hacha. Tavernier.

GUNNING, (Peter) Son of Peter Gunning Miniſter of How in Kent, by his Wife Eleonor Treſt, (Deſcended from a good Family in that County) was born at How in 1613. He was Educated in Clare-Hall in Cambridge, where both his Induſtry and Parts were taken notice of as extraordinary. When the Rebellion broke out againſt King Charles the Iſt. He with a great deal of Argument and Vehemence, preſs'd the Univerſity in a Sermon at St. Mary's, to Publiſh a Proteſtation againſt the Solemn League, which was afterwards done: Not long after, upon his Refuſal to take the Covenant, he was put out of his Fellowſhip; and that Univerſity falling under the Power of the Parliament Forces, he removed from thence to Oxford. At length, the King's Cauſe being perfectly ſunk, and the Uſurpation ſettled, Mr. Gunning, after ſeveral Removes, fixt in London, and had a conſtant Congregation in the Chapel, at Exeter-Houſe in the Strand: Having ſometimes Conferences with Roman Catholicks, Presbyterians, Anabaptiſts, Independents, Quakers, &c. in Defence of the Church of England. Upon the Reſtoration, he was made Prebendary of Canterbury, and Commencing Doctour in Divinity, was made Maſter of St. John's College in Cambridge. He was Margaret Profeſſor firſt, and ſoon after made Regius Profeſſor of Divinity; and, upon the Death of Biſhop King, was promoted to the See of Chicheſter, in 1669. from whence, in 1674. he was Tranſlated to the Biſhoprick of Ely; where he died in 1684. He was a Perſon of General and almoſt Univerſal Knowledge, and particularly, a moſt profound Divine. His Memory was ready and retentive, his Judgment ſolid, and his Apprehenſion quick and penetrating; and as to his Moral Qualifications, his Temper was remarkably ſweet and obliging, and his Life Exemplary and Primitive. He was an Excellent Governour, a Careful Inſtructour, a Hoſpitable Entertainer and a Bountiful Benefactour. Neither was his Charity to the Poor leſs conſiderable than any other part of his Character. To conclude, by his laſt Will and Teſtament, he left the Remainder of his Eſtate, for the Augmentation of Poor Vicarages. His Works are, A Contention for Truth, being the Subſtance of two Publick Diſputations, between himſelf and Mr. Denn, concerning the Lawfulneſs of Infant Baptiſm. Schiſm Un-mask'd, or a late Conference between Mr. Peter Gunning, and Mr. John Pearſon, on the one Part, and two Diſputants of the Roman Perſuaſion, on the other: This Book was firſt Printed at Paris, in 1658. by the Roman Catholicks, and afterwards twice at Home, by thoſe of the Church of England. The Paſchal or Lent-Faſt Apoſtolical and Perpetual, &c. A Diſcourſe delivered in two Sermons at Ely, &c. by Dr. Gower. Athen. Oxon.

GUNTSPERGH, a Town in Germany, in Latin Guntia, ſeated upon the Danube, where it receives the little River Guntz; miſtaken by ſome for another Town of the ſame Name, not far from Auſpurgh. Ferrarius, Moreri.

GUPLO, a Lake of Poland, in the Palatinate of Breſt; ſix Leagues from Breſt to the Weſt, and eight from Lanſchet to the North. Six Leagues in Length from North to South, and half a League Broad. Upon this Lake ſtands the Caſtle of Kruſvich, where Popietus II. Prince of Poland, was devour'd by Mice. Baudrand.

GURCUM, Gurk, an Epiſcopal City of Germany in Carinthia, under the Archbiſhop of Saltsburgh; erected into an Epiſcopal See, by Gebhard Archbiſhop of Saltzburg, in 1073. At this Day, the Biſhop is a Prince of the Empire. Lazius, Lib. 12. De Rep. Rom.

GUREIGURA, or Guregra, a Mountain in Africa, thirteen Leagues from Fez, toward the Mountain Atlas. The Inhabitants are very rich, becauſe they abound in Wheat and Barley; as alſo in great and ſmall Cattel. They have ſeveral Villages well-peopl'd; but neither City, nor Caſtle, nor Wall'd-Town; the difficult Paſſes of their Avenues being ſufficient for their Defence. They have a great Number of Lions among them, but ſo tame and ſo cowardly, that the Women make them run with their Sticks, like ſo many Dogs. Marmol. del Afrique.

GUSTAVUS I. King of Sweden, of the Branch of Waza, was the Son of Eric de Waza, Duke of Gripſholm. Chriſtiern the IId. King of Denmark, Surnam'd the Cruel, who had made himſelf Maſter of Sweden, in 1518. Impriſon'd him in the City of Copenhagen, and had put him to Death, had he not made his Eſcape, under pretence of going a Hunting. Thereupon he retir'd into his own Country; after which, the Lubeckers gave him Aſſiſtance. In the mean time, Chriſtiern having defeated Steno, caus'd himſelf to be Crown'd at Stockholm in 1520. but being expell'd for his Tyrannies, Guſtavus was declar'd Prince and Governour of Sweden, and afterwards ſettled himſelf ſo well, that he was elected King in 1523. and ſo order'd his Affairs, that the Kingdom, which was only Elective before, became Hereditary to his Family. He introduc'd the Lutheran Faith into his Kingdom, and died in 1560. Johannes Magnus, Chitræus, Thuanus, l. 26.

GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS II. ſtil'd the Great was Born at Stockholm in 1594. and in 1611. declar'd King after his Father's Death. Fortune favour'd the beginning of his Reign with conſiderable Advantages over the Danes and Polanders. He re-conquer'd what the firſt had taken from him, and preſs'd 'em ſo hard, that they began to fear the Ruin of their Monarchy, until the King of England's Ambaſſadors mediating a Peace, they readily reſtor'd Colmar to the Swedes, and renounced all Pretenſions of Right to that Kingdom. After this, Guſtavus turning his Arms againſt the Muſcovites, made himſelf Maſter of Novogard, Slaveſuſs, Porcheu, Lodg, and Angdou, and of all the large Territories depending on 'em. Theſe Succeſſes, with the Polanders declaring againſt Muſcovy made the Great Duke ſue through the Mediation of the King of Great Britain, and of the States-General, for a Peace, which was Concluded in 1617. The Great Duke of Ruſſia, renounced Lifeland, and quitting the Title of it, and making over to the King of Sweden, Inovograd, Jamme, Caporit, and Nolebourg, to be for ever United to his Crown, promiſed he would not ſuccour the Polanders againſt Swedeland. This War being thus ended, he married Maria Eleonora, Siſter of George William, Elector of Brandenburg; and ſoon after march'd againſt Sigiſmond King of Poland; who, to recover the Kingdom of Sweden, had made an Alliance with the Houſe of Auſtria, and tho' he met with a more vigorous Reſiſtance in this than in the former War, and was ſometimes worſted, and often in great Danger of being Kill'd; yet he over-ran a great part of that Kingdom, and had brought it to a very low ebb, had not the Emperor ſent 10000 Foot, and as many Horſe to its Aſſiſtance, under General Walleſtein and Arnheim, who put a ſtop to his Glorious Victories, and made him the more inclinable to hear the Ambaſſadors of Charles of Great Britain and Lewis XIII. of France, who interpos'd with great earneſtneſs for an Accommodation, which they at laſt brought both Crowns to in 1629. But Guſtavus ſtill thirſty of Glory, began to caſt his Eyes upon Germany, as the ſole Theatre worthy of his Valour: However, he conſider'd a long time before he reſolv'd to Attack it; and paſs'd through it incognito, to obſerve the State of the Empire, the Force of the Free-Towns, of the Princes, and of the Emperor Ferdinand II. the Situation of the Provinces, and the Rivers by which they were ſeparated. He repreſented to himſelf that the Emperor had then a ſtanding Army of 100000 Foot, and 30000 Horſe, newly fluſh'd with the Defeat of the King of Denmark and Elector Palatin, that he was ſupported by the Elector of Bavaria, and the Catholick League; and Sweden was too weak to oppoſe ſo great a Power, but on the other ſide, the Proteſtants invited him to take up Arms to ſuccour 'em, and promis'd to ſecond him. They complain'd That Ferdinand violated their Privileges, and oppreſs'd their Liberty; That to Subdue Germany, and render the Empire Hereditary in his Houſe, he cover'd the Country with Soldiers, and Garriſon'd 'em in the moſt important places, &c.

Beſides this Invitation, Guſtavus built upon the Alliance of Lewis XIII, the French King, of Charles I. King of Great Britain, and of the States General of the United Provinces, and did eaſily perſwade himſelf, that for their own Intereſt, and to humble the Houſe of Auſtria, they would defend him: upon theſe Grounds chiefly, he reſolv'd upon the War, with the conſent of all his States aſſembled at Stockholm; then cauſing Maria Eleonora of Brandenburgh, his Wife, to be declar'd Regent of his Kingdom, and the Princeſs Chriſtina, his Daughter, the lawful Heireſs of that Crown: He rais'd forces as well in Sweden as in Pruſſia, and with an Army of 20000 Men, Landed in the Iſle of Rugen, drove the Imperialiſts thence, and to encourage his Men, gave all that belong'd to the other up to Plunder; but at the ſame time, iſſu'd our Proclamations, that he ſuffer'd all the Inhabitants to remain peaceably in their Houſes, and order'd Bread to be diſtributed to all that had none. Soon after he made himſelf Maſter of the Iſle of Uſeden: Hereupon the Emperor caus'd it to be Enacted in the Dyet of Ratisbonne, That Arms ſhould be taken againſt the Swedes throughout the whole Empire, ſent to Walleſtein, That he revok'd the Power he had committed to him of Commanding his Armies, and to take from him the Letters Patents he had for that purpoſe; which Walleſtein, deliver'd, without otherwiſe complaining, than of the Perfidiouſneſs of thoſe, who to ruin him, deſtroy'd the Emperor's Power. John de Serclaes Count of Tilly, the Elector of Bavaria's General, ſucceeding him, march'd into Miſnia, to keep the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburgh to their Duty; In the mean time, the King is receiv'd into Stetin, which he fortifies with extraordinary Expedition, defeats Torquato Conti, had the better in ſeveral Rencounters near the Fort of Gartz; but adventuring too far, and but ſlightly Guarded, he fell into an Ambuſcade, was taken Priſoner without being known, but ſoon reſcu'd by a Colonel of the Finlanders. Count Pappenheim retook ſome places which the Swedes had poſſeſs'd themſelves of: Yet the Landtgrave of Heſſe declaring for 'em they took Greyfenhagen upon the Oder, Garbz and Coningberg. The Year after, viz. 1630. Guſtavus renew'd his Alliance with the French King, for the defence of their oppreſs'd Friends, receiv'd a conſiderable Sum of Money from King Charles I. of England, and ſome from the United Provinces; which was follow'd with the Surrender of ſeveral Towns, and the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburgh, with 24 Proteſtant Princes, and the Deputies of Lunenburg, Minden, Ratzburg, and other Imperial Cities of the ſame Religion having met, agreed in defence of the Liberty of the Empire, and of the Proteſtant Religion, to join the King of Sweden, and rais'd 80000 Men, directed by one and the ſame Council, and paid by the ſame Treaſurer, and in a little time, Guſtavus took Danſmin, one of the Magazines of the Imperial Army, and told D. Savelly the Governour, that he was fitter for the Court than War. Count Tilly took Feldeberg about the ſame time, and New Brandenburg, where he put above 2000 Swedes to the Sword, which the King reveng'd ſoon after by a far greater Slaughter of the Imperialiſts at Francfort upon the Oder; the Plunder of which City, valu'd at ſeveral Tuns of Gold, he left to his Soldiers: But Count Tilly having taken Magdebourg by Storm, Maſſacred 30000 Perſons, without diſtinction of Quality, Age or Sex, and Burnt the Town; then march'd towards Tangermund, to give the King Battel, which he declin'd for good Reaſons, and went to Stetin to give Audience to the Ambaſſadors of the Great Duke of Muſcovy, who came to offer him conſiderable Succours of Men and Money; which very much encourag'd the Swedes, who thereupon made themſelves Maſters of ſeveral Places, and worſted the Imperialiſts upon all Rencounters. This made Count Tilly march nearer the King, and having brib'd 4 Peaſants to ſet Werben on Fire, and ſuborn'd ſome Traitors to nail the Sweediſh Cannon, kept in a readineſs all his Forces to fall on when theſe things were executed. The King having intimation of his Deſign, improv'd it to his Advantage; for ordering great Fires to be made in divers parts of Werben, to draw the Imperialiſts on, he only anſwer'd with Muſquet-ſhots their Cannon, until they approach to break down his advanced Barricado's; then he ſaluted 'em with a Salvo of his whole Artillery, and caus'd 'em to be vigorouſly charg'd in Front and Flank; and had certainly entirely defeated 'em, had not Tilly's wiſe Conduct prevented ſo fatal a Diſgrace; however they loſt 6000 Men: And Count Tilly coming a ſecond time to force him to Battel, had little better Succeſs; whereupon he rtereated to Tangermund. The Swedes fell upon his Rear, which occaſion'd a very ſharp Skirmiſh. Tilly being re-inforc'd, enter'd Saxony, where his Army liv'd at diſcretion, whilſt Count Pappenheim over-ran Miſnia with 6000 Horſe, and both joining their Forces, Beſieged and took Leipſick. Whereupon the Swedes re-inforc'd with 8000 Men, ſent to their Aſſiſtance by the King of England, under the Marquiſs of Hamilton, and by ſeveral other Troops, together with the Elector of Saxony, march'd directly towards Tilly; who fortified his Camp with Retrenchments, and propos'd not to fight till Altringer and Tieffembac were come up, unleſs a fair occaſion was offer'd. But Pappenheim and Furſtemberg perſwaded him to Marſhal his Army, which conſiſted of 40000 Men, and give 'em Battel. The King and Elector of Saxony having alſo drawn up their Troops in good order, the Fight began with great Courage on both ſides, and in a little time the Imperialiſts broke the Saxons; cry'd Victory, and Plunder'd their Baggage; but the King coming to their Succour, beat the Imperialiſts from their Artillery. Tilly rallied two old Bands, and renew'd the Fight with greater obſtinacy than can be expreſs'd, ſeveral of his Veteranes having their Legs ſhot off, fought upon their Knees, and would not quit their Arms but with their Lives. Pappenheim, and Horn and Bannier, with their Reſerves, falling in at the ſame time, Victory was doubtful, until the King at the Head of his Finland Cavalry, broke through the Imperialiſts ſo often, that he quite routed 'em, about 7 in the Evening. They loſt 10000 upon the place, 7000 Priſoners, all their Baggage and Cannon; Tilly receiv'd 4 or 5 Wounds; Pappenheim was pierc'd with 7 Shots, and lay ſtrip'd among the Dead a whole Night. This Victory was accompanied with great Succeſs. The King took in ſeveral Towns, ſubdu'd Franconia, took Mentz, with ſeveral other places in the Palatinate. The Elector of Saxony improv'd that Victory alſo, by driving the Imperialiſts out of his Territories; taking Prague, in Bohemia, &c. Things being in this ill Poſture with the Emperour, he repented he had diſcarded Walleſtein, and ſent to him, to be pleas'd to re-take his Poſt, with far greater Privileges than he had before: Which he accepted, after ſome Oppoſition, and in leſs than three Months brought a powerful and well-appointed Army into the Field. Tilly aſſembl'd alſo the Remains of his Scatter'd Army; which, upon Walleſtein's refuſal of joining them, he poſted upon the Frontiers of Bavaria, to ſecure it from the Swedes; where, in a Skirmiſh, he receiv'd a Contuſion from a Cannon-Bullet, and died, at Ingolſtadt, much regretted by all the Catholick League, to which he had render'd great Service, having gain'd 32 Battels before the Swedes came into Germany. After his Death, the Swedes took Munick; and whilſt Walleſtein took Prague, and beat the Saxons out of Bohemia, and Pappenheim ravag'd Lower Saxony, they haraſs'd Bavaria miſerably, and threatned Auſtria: Whereupon the Emperor order'd Walleſtein to march to their Relief. The King, upon his Approach, intrench'd himſelf near Nuremberg, ſo well, that Walleſtein, ſeeing it impoſſible to force his Camp, deſign'd to ſtarve him: But finding that impracticable, and having loſt 12000 of his Men in Skirmiſhes with the Swedes, march'd away, owning, That he eſteem'd the King of Swedeland the greateſt General of the World; and that he ſhould be ſatisfied, ſince he deſpair'd of overcoming him, if he could reconcile him to the Emperor. Turning his Arms towards Saxony, he took Leipſwick, with ſeveral other Places. The King's Army being re-inforc'd, he follow'd him; and having poſted himſelf in ſight of the Imperialiſts, Novemb. 15. 1632. reſolv'd to fight 'em the next Morning. He paſs'd the Night in his Coach, diſcourſing his Principal Officers, who were forc'd to lie on Bundles of Straw, becauſe their Equipage was left behind. Both the Armies being drawn up the next day in Battle, the Fight begun with great fury: The King marching at the Head of his Guards, and other Regiments of Horſe, after a furious Bruſh, took part of the Enemies Artillery, and turn'd it upon 'em; but 4 Imperial Battalions, ſuſtain'd by their Cavalry, charg'd the Swedes ſo vigorouſly, that they made 'em quit their Ground. The King ſeeing this Diſorder, alighted from his Horſe, and put himſelf at the Head of the Regiments of Chreſtorph and La Tour, and told 'em, That if, after having paſs'd ſo many Rivers, ſcal'd ſo many Walls, and forc'd ſo many Fortreſſes, they had not the Courage to defend themſelves, they would at leaſt ſtand firm to ſee him die. This Reproach touch'd 'em ſo ſenſibly, that they fell on with ſuch Fury and Reſolution, that they regain'd the Artillery, and broke into Walleſtein's Retrenchments. The King being over-joy'd at this, made towards the Right, to view a Poſt he intended to make uſe of, and fell unfortunately into a Body of Maracini's Curiaſſiers, who kill'd him. Bernard, Duke of Weymar, having intimation of it, gave out, That he was taken Priſoner, and animated the Soldiers to periſh or reſcue him. Who thereupon redoubl'd their Fury, and gave no Quarter; ſo that the Imperialiſts began to give ground, until Pappenheim coming in with ſix freſh Regiments, encourag'd 'em to renew the Fight, which then became more bloody than before; but at laſt they were forc'd to quit the Field, leaving their Cannon, part of their Baggage, and 12000 ſlain upon the Place: Among the reſt, the Famous Pappenheim, and Iſolani, General of the Croates. The Swedes, beſides the King, loſt 6 or 7000 Men. Guſtavus Adolphus liv'd 37 Years, 10 Months, and 17 Days, and had receiv'd 13 Wounds before thoſe of which he died. Never was a King more belov'd, or more lamented. As for his Perſon, he had a large Forehead, a clear and ruddy Complexion, regular Features, a ſparkling Eye, but Short-ſighted. He was Tall, Streight, and Well-proportion'd. His Port was Majeſtick; his Body Vigorous and Strong, and harden'd to Labour. He was Vigilant, Liberal, and Exemplarily Pious; Eaſie of Acceſs; an Enemy of Ceremonies. His Judgment was Solid; his Fancy Grave, and Memory Extraordinary. To theſe Advantages he added the Knowledge of Sciences, eſpecially the Mathematicks, Politicks and Hiſtory; ſpoke Latin, Italian, French and High-Dutch, as well as his own Natural Tongue. This incomparable Man was no leſs a Politician than a general, though in this laſt Quality he had ſcarce his Equal. His Camp was ever fortified and intrenched like a ſtrong Town, according as the Situation of the Place did allow of; ſo that he was always equally advantag'd on all ſides for Attack and Defence. His Army paſs'd the very Winter in Tents; and to keep out the Cold, wore Coats lin'd with Furrs, which he had caus'd to be made in Sweden. His Cavalry ſurrounded all his Quarters; and being all along back'd by the Foot, were rang'd in ſuch Order, that there was no forcing 'em to a Battle. His Artillery was eaſily manag'd, and always planted in a convenient Poſt, to cover his Men. Obedience, Continency, and continual Labour, were inviolably obſerv'd in his Army; and Blaſphemy and Drunkenneſs as rigorouſly puniſh'd upon his Enſigns, whereon his Arms were painted, were written in Golden Letters, Guſtavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, Defender of the Evangelical Faith : Or, If God be for us, who ſhall be againſt us. And upon thoſe wherein were a Sword and Scepter, were theſe words, Mars ſways the Sword, and Themis the Scepter. Men were advanc'd in his Army according to their Rank, without any Favour; and as they had learn'd to obey, before they learn'd to command, they caus'd Military Diſcipline to be obſerv'd exactly: Inſomuch, that if, upon any Surpriſal, the Soldiers were put into Diſorder, they eaſily repair'd the Defect, and of themſelves recover'd the Poſts they were to defend. This Great Man was venturous, ſometimes without Neceſſity; he would go down, ſometimes, into Copper-Mines that were 70 Fathom deep, where Stones that drop from the ſides do often daſh the Workmen in pieces: Eſpecially in War, he neglected his Life, and perform'd rather the Duty of a Soldier, than of a General; and when ſome made him this Objection, he ſaid in his Excuſe, That Armies ſlight the Danger they ſhare in with their King: That if Generals did not act in Perſon, they could not atchieve a glittering Reputation, which is always moſt ſerviceable to 'em. That thoſe that ſhun Death, meet with it oftner than they that ſeek it: That Julius Cæſar was never wounded though he ever ſought in the foremoſt Ranks of his Troops: That Alexander the Great mark'd out the way with his own Blood, that led him to the Empire of the Eaſt: That in the Paſſage of the River Granicus, he had his Helmet cloven by a Blow with a Pole-Ax to his very Hair: At the taking of Gaza, his Shoulder was run through with a Dart: In the Country of the Marcandians, the Bone of his Leg was cloven with an Arrow: In Hyrcania, a blow of a Stone upon his Neck, put him into a Swoon, and had like to have bereav'd him of his Sight: Againſt the Aſſacanians his Heel was broke by a Dart: At the Battel of Iſſus, his Thigh was run through with a Sword: Againſt the Oxidraques, where (having leap'd from off the Wall of a Town, into it, he alone fought all the Inhabitants) he received a Blow with a Hatchet upon his Head, &c. And that to be as Famous as thoſe Great Men, he ought not to be more Timorous than they. He had abundance of Scots in his Army, who were very ſerviceable to him; and he, on the other hand, was reſpectful to them, and in a particular manner aſcrib'd his Victory at Leipſigh to a Scotch Brigade. They performed great Services for him at other times; as, the Noble Defence of Stralſound, the taking of Frankfort-onth'-Oder by Aſſault, and ſeveral Towns in the Palatinate by Scalade, though their Enemies were double their Number. In Conſideration of which, he honoured them to be Guard to himſelf, and the King of Bohemia, at Munichen, for three Weeks; where the latter took particular Notice of them. Beſides a great number of Regiments of that Nation, he had in his Service two Scotch Generals, one Velt-Marſhal, one Lieutenant-General, two Major-Generals, thirty Colonels, fifty two Lieutenant-Colonels, fourteen Majors; beſides Captains and Subalterns, whoſe Number is not known. Puffendorf, Monro's Expedition.

GUSTROW, a City of Germany in Meckelburgh, in Saxony, with a noble Fortreſs, which is the Reſidence of the Dukes of the ſame Name. 'Tis ſeated about 6 or 7 Leagues from Wiſmar, and 4 from Roſtock, John Albert, Duke of Guſtrow, was proſcrib'd by the Emperor Ferdinand II. for adhering to the King of Denmark; but was reſtor'd by Guſtavus Adolphus, in the Year 1631. and upon the Death of Guſtavus Adolphus Duke of Mecklemburg: Guſtrow in 1696, the Diſputes that hapned upon his Deceaſe, between thoſe that pretended to the Succeſſion, were decided by the Emperor in Favour of Frederick-William Duke of Mecklemburg Swerin, who was put into Poſſeſſion accordingly.

GUTHIER or Gutherius (James an Advocate of the Parliament of Paris : He compos'd, in 1612. Four Books of the Laws of the Ancient Romans, with ſeveral other Pieces of the Roman Antiquities. As De Jure Veterum Pontificum. De jure Manium. De Officiis Domus Auguſtæ, &c. His firſt Labour was ſo well receiv'd at Rome, that, in Teſtimony of their Gratitude, the Senate conferred upon him the Honour of being a Citizen of Rome, to him and his Poſterity. Which was confirm'd by Lewis the XIII. King of France, under his Letters Patents, by the Advice of the Queen-Mother, Mary de Medicis. He died in the Year 1638. Hank. de Rom. rer. Scriptor.

GUTIERREZ (John) a Spaniard, liv'd to the Year 1590. He was firſt a Lawyer, and afterwards turn'd Divine, and wrote 8 Volumes in Folio, Printed at Lyons in 1661. There was a Spaniſh Phyſician of the ſame Name, who about 1629, wrote ſeveral ingenious Treatiſes. An Poſſibile ſit in Rabientium Urinis Canes parvos generari. De Miniſtranda aqua nive refrigerata Ægroto die Expurgationis, &c. Nicholas Anton. Bibl. Script. Hiſp.

GUTKAW, a Town of Germany, in the Upper Pomerania, ſeated upon the River Pene, 3 Leagues from Gripſwald to the South, belonging to the Sweeds.

GUTTEMBERG (John) a Native of Strasburgh, a Gentleman, or (as ſome ſay) dignify'd with the Order of Knighthood, was the firſt Inventor of Printing, and made the firſt Experiments of his new Invention at Mayence, in Germany; where he was made a Burgeſs of that City, for introducing into the Country ſo Noble and Uſeful an Art. Plydore Virgil. Fauſtus, Coſtor, J. Mentel.

GUY, the Son of Lambert Duke of Spoleto, Emperor after the Death of Charles the Groſs, made an Agreement with Berengarius, That the One ſhould hold Italy; the Other France, with the Title of Emperor. But Guy, protracting Time, found France too hot for him; and then Quarrelling with Berengarius, vanquiſh'd him in two bloody Battels, and took Pavia from him, in the Year 890. But in the Year 893. was himſelf driven out of all Lombardy, by Arnolphus, the Son of Carloman, and forc'd to retire to Spoleto; where, while he was raiſing a new Army to recover his Loſs, he died in the Year 894. Luitprand. Otho Friſingenſis.

GUY, or Guido Luſignanus, King of Jeruſalem, in the Year 1184. being expell'd Jeruſalem, and almoſt all the Holy Land, by Saladine, he ſold his Title of King of Jeruſalem to Richard of England: for the Kingdom of Cyprus; which he and his Poſterity held till the Year 1473. He died in 1194.

GUY of Ravenna, flouriſh'd under the Reign of Charles the Groſs in the IXth. Age; and wrote a Hiſtory of the Goths, ſtill extant, with the Lives of the Popes. Simler, Voſſius, &c.

GUY-CLIFT, in warwickſhire, near Warwick, moſt pleaſantly ſeated on the ſide of the River Avon; where Guy of Warwick, after he had left off his Noble and Valiant Exploits, led an Hermit's Life.

GUZMAN (Ferdinand Nunez de) known by the Name of Ferdinandus Nonius Pincianus; born at Valladolid; did a great deal of honour to his Country in the XVIth. Age. He wrote Notes upon Seneca's Works, Obſervations upon Pomponius Mela, and Pliny's Natural Hiſtory, &c. and dy'd in 1552, or 1553. after he had given Order to have theſe Words engrav'd upon his Tomb, Maximum Vitæ Bonum, Mors. Juſtus Lipſius. Andreas Schottus, &c.

GUZURAT, a Province of the Empire of the Great Mogul, in the Continent of India, to the Eaſt of Decan. It is commonly call'd the Kingdom of Cambaye; formerly under particular Kings, but now in Subjection to the Great Mogul. About 1545. Achobar uſurp'd the Poſſeſſion of this Kingdom, during the Minority of Madof Her, who was not above 12 Years of Age when his Father left him the Crown, ſo that the Young King's Guardian, Ehamet-Chan, found himſelf enforc'd to emplore the Protection of the Great Mogul, againſt the Grandees of the Kingdom who were revolted; for which he promis'd him the City of Amadabat. Upon which, Achobar, the Great Mogul, enter'd Guzurat with a Powerful Army. But inſtead of ſupporting Madof-Her and his Guardian, he ſeiz'd upon the whole Kingdom, and carry'd away the young Prince and his Tutor Priſoners. The Principal Cities of Guzurat, are, Amadabat, Cambaye, Surat, Diu, Broitſchia, &c. which are the Richeſt and beſt trading Towns in India. The Great Mogul governs the Kingdom of Guzurat by a Viceroy, who generally reſides at Amadabat; where he has a Court (as Travellers ſay) more Magnificent than any King of Europe. This Kingdom has no Enemies to be afraid of; only the Mountains ſerve for Retreats to certain Raia's, or Petty Princes, that live upon the Incurſions which their Subjects make into the Mogul's Territories. Mandeſlo, Olearius.

GYAC, Chief Chamberlain, and Favourite to Charles VII. of France, who abus'd the Favour of his Prince; for that having the Management of the King's Treaſury, he diſpos'd of the Publick Money to his own Uſe. Which Arthur of Bretaigne, Conſtable of France, not enduring, caus'd him to be taken out of his Bed, without the King's Knowledge, and carry'd to Dune-le-Roy; and after they had ty'd a Stone about his Neck, to be thrown into the River. This was the end of that wicked Miniſter of State, about the Year 1425. Mezeray.

GYLIPPUS, a Lacedæmonian General, who was ſent into Sicily to aſſiſt the Syracuſians; where he vanquiſh'd, in ſeveral Battels, Demoſthenes and Nicias, who thought to have made themſelves Maſters of Syracuſe. He accompany'd Lyſander at the Taking of Athens; who entruſted him with all the Gold and Silver taken in the Sacking of the City, amounting to 1000 Talents, put into large Sacks ſealed up. But Gylippus, reſolving to have his Share, caus'd the Sacks to be open'd at the Bottom; and after he had taken a Talent out of each Sack, had 'em artificially ſowed up again. The Ephori miſſing the Summ which was ſet down in Lyſander's Letter, made diligent Enquiry after the Theft: When Gylippus's Servant, who was Privy to it, not daring to make an open Diſcovery, reported, in ſome Company, That there were a great number of Owls under the Tiles of his Maſter's Houſe. Now, in regard the Athenian Money was ſtamp'd with the Figure of an Owl, the Ephori readily gueſſing at the meaning, ſent to ſearch Gylippus's Houſe, and found the Money. Which put Gylippus into ſuch confuſion that he left the City, and ſpent the reſt of his Days in Foreign Countries. Plutarch. Diodorus.

GYMNOSOPHISTS, Indian Philoſophers divided into two Sects, Brachmans and Sermans. There were alſo ſome who were call'd Hylobians, becauſe they liv'd in Foreſts, that they might be more at leiſure to contemplate the Wonders of Nature. Theſe Philoſophers held the Tranſmigration of Souls; and, That the Chief Happineſs of Man conſiſted in the Contempt of the Bleſſings of Fortune. They alſo boaſted in giving good Counſel to Kings and Princes, for the Government of their States. The Hylobians cover'd themſelves with the Barks of Trees, and lay in hollow Oaks. Strabo, Philoſtratus, Porphyrius, &c.

H

H, IS rather counted an Aſpiration, than a Letter; and Priſcian, a Learned and Ancient Grammarian, excludes it from the Number of Letters. The truth is, when it is put before Vowels alone, it makes the Vowel only to be ſounded with Aſpiration, that is, Stronger and Harder than it is without it; as in theſe words, have, hit, home. In Conjunction with C or S, it hath a different Sound; as in Child, Shame: And ſometimes it is mute with C, as in Choler, Character, and others extracted from the Greek. Join'd with P, they are both ſounded together like the Greek Φ, which is that of our F; as in Phænomenon, Philoſopher. With G, or R, it is alſo mute; as in Ghoſt, Rheumatiſm.

HABAKKUK, whoſe Name ſignifies a Wreſtler. The Eighth of the Smaller Prophets. The Holy Scripture does not preciſely determine in whoſe time he liv'd, nor of what Tribe he was: But, ſince he foretells the ruin of the Jews by the Chaldæans, he muſt needs have Propheſied before Zedekiah's Reign; either in the firſt Years of Manaſſeh, when Right and Juſtice were gone out of the Land, as our Prophet complain'd in his time; or, in the Days of Amon, who worſhipp'd the Idols his Father Manaſſeh had ſerv'd in the Beginning of his Reign. Accordingly, we ſee Habakkuk's Prophecy is plac'd between that of Naham, Contemporary with Manaſſeh; and that of Zephaniah, who flouriſh'd under Joſiah.

HABAKKUK, whom we read of in the Apocryphal Hiſtory of Bell and the Dragon, to have been tranſported by an Angel from Judæa to Babylon, to feed Daniel in the Lion's Den, with the Dinner he had got ready for the Reapers, cannot be the ſame Habakkuk with the former, who lived before the Babylonian Captivity.

HABAT, an African Province of the Kingdom of Fez, and conſequently part of Mauritania Tingitana. It lies along the Atlantick Sea, to the Mouth of the Streights, reaching a Hundred Miles in Length, and about Eighty in Breadth. The Country is very Plentiful of all Neceſſaries, and both the plain and hilly Parts of it well Inhabited. In former times repleniſh'd with many fair Cities, founded by the Goths, Romans, and Old African Moors; but now much defac'd by the Wars. The Principal are, Arzilla, Ceuta, and Tetuan. (Leo African.) Here alſo ſtood Tangier, before it was demoliſh'd by King Charles II.

HABERT, a French Family, famous for Learned Men; eſpecially Habert Biſhop of Vabres, whom Cardinal Richlieu made choice of to confute Janſenius. He wrote ſeveral Books; amongſt which, thoſe of chief Note, are his Works intituled, De Gratia ex Patribus Græcis; De Conſenſu Hierarchiæ & Monarchiæ; De Cathedrâ ſeu Primatu Sancti Petri; he alſo Tranſlated the Ceremonial of the Eaſtern Church, &c. Of this Family was Suſanna Habert, the Wonder of our Age for her Profound Learning; who, having loſt her Husband Charles du Jardin, when ſhe was but 24 Years of Age, continued a Widow, and ſpent her time in learning Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Spaniſh, Italian, Philoſophy and Divinity; ſo that ſhe grew famous among the Learned, as ſhe was among Good People, for her ſingular Piety and Charity. The foreſaid Biſhop of Vabres was her Nephew, to whom as 'tis thought, ſhe left her learned Manuſcripts. She Died Anno 1633. in the Nunnery of the Lady of Grace in Ville l'Evêque, where ſhe liv'd near 20 Years. La Croix du Maine Bibl. Fran. Hilarion de Coſte, Eloge des Dames Illuſtres.

* HABRAN, a Small City in Arabia Fœlix, ſeated in a Valley; the Inhabitants of which, are a mix'd People, from ſeveral Parts of Arabia. Three Stations diſtant from Sanaa, and 48 Miles W. of Saada.

HABSEL: See HAPSEL.

* HABSPURG, a Caſtle of Swiſſerland on the River Aar, by the Latins called Arula, near the Town Brucks, in Latin Brugas. It gave Title to the Ancient and Noble Family of the Counts of Habſpurg, from whom the moſt Auguſt Houſe of Auſtria, and many other Princes are deſcended. The Founder of this Family was Archenbaldus, Great Chamberlain to Clodoveus II. of France, Ann. 661. His Son Leudeſius was alſo Great Chamberlain, and Slain by Ebroinus, An. 680. Ethico Succeeded and was created D. of Alſace, by Theodorick. Etho or Hetto his Second Son followed—and was Succeeded by Albericus, He by Eberhardus, and He by Hugo, who had three Sons: Gerard, Founder of the Houſe of Lorrain: Hugo, Founder of that of Dagsburg; and Guntram who was Count of Habſpurg, but deprived of part of his Eſtate for Rebelling againſt his Father. He died An. 946. Cuonzelin who conquered the Hungarians, An. 937. Succeeded him, and had Sons, Rapato or Ratbodas Count of Habſpurg, and Cuonzelin Founder of the Houſes of Zeringen, Teccii and Baden. Rapato was Succeeded by his Son Werner I. He by Otto, He by Werner II. and He by Werner III. whoſe Son Adelbert the Rich, was the firſt Lantgrave of Alſace. Rudolphus his Son Succeeded, and had Sons, Albert and Rudolph. From the latter deſcended the laſt Counts of Habſpurg, Lauffenburg and Kyburg. And from Albert came Rodolph, who laid the Foundation of the Auſtrian Greatneſs, and was choſen Emperour, An. 1273. All this Genealogy till Albert ſeems to be Fabulous. See Auſtria Hoffman.

* HACACHAN, a Kingdom of the Great Mogul in the Eaſt-Indies. It lies Weſt of Multan, and its Principal Places are Chutzan and Uche.

* HACHA, or LA HACHA, a Province, Town and River of Caſtiglia del Oro (otherwiſe called Terra Firma) in the Southern America. And, as the River gave its Name to the Town, ſo did the Town to the whole Province. All Subject to the Spaniards. The Province is ſurrounded on two ſides by the Ocean, and on the third Eaſtward, with a large Arm of the Sea, called Golpho de Venezuela. The Town is but ſmall: Built on a little Hill about a Mile from the Sea. The Soil about it is very rich, fruitful of all ſuch Plants as are brought from Spain; well ſtor'd with Salt Springs, Veins of Gold, and ſome Gems of great Worth and Virtue: But the Harbour is none of the beſt, being expos'd to the Northen Winds. It is about Eight Leagues diſtant from the New Salamanca, and Eighteen from Cabo la Vela. In the Year 1595, it was ſurpriz'd and ſack'd by Sir Francis Drake.

* HACHETTE, (Joan) a French Woman of Beauvais in Picardy, famous for her Magnanimity. It was the Fate of Beauvais in 1472, to be cloſely Beſieg'd by the Burgundians, and the Fortune of this Amazon (putting her ſelf at the Head of the Towns-Women) to repulſe 'em with Shame, when they came to ſtorm it; which ſhe did with Stones, and Artificial Fire made of Lead and Roſin. A Burgundian mounting the Breach, and ſetting up his Standard there, ſhe ſnatch'd hold of it, and threw the Souldier down from the Wall. Great was the Action, and ſacred is her Memory to this day in Beauvais, her Picture being ſet up in the Town-Houſe, and her Poſterity free from Taxes ever ſince. The Day of this Deliverance, being the Tenth of July, is yearly Celebrated by a Solemn Proceſſion, in which Women have the Precedency. And whilſt ſhe lived ſhe walked at the Head of 'em, with the Standard which is now kept in the Jacobins Church. Favin's Hiſt. Navarre.

* HACKETT, (William) a fam'd Impoſtor in Q. Elizabeth's time, who was firſt taken Notice of An. 1591. giving himſelf out for the Sovereign of Europe, and the true Meſſiah. He was of obſcure Birth, his Parents being of the Vulgar at Oundel in Northamptonſhire. He was ſo Cruel, Eager, and Inſolent, that he bit off his School-Maſter's Noſe, and eat it before his Face, as he pretended to embrace him out of Love. After he had Lewdly ſpent what he had in the World, he plaid the Hypocrite and counterfeited Sanctity, by which he deluded ſome weak People, who look'd upon him as the Meſſiah expected by the Jews; but being at length taken, was Convicted of Blaſphemy and Treaſon; for which he was Executed at Tyburn the ſame Year. Cambden's Hiſtory of Q. Elizabeth.

* HACKLUIT, (Richard), a Divine who lived moſt in the Reign of Q. Elizabeth, was Born of an Ancient and Flouriſhing Family in Herefordſhire, bred a Student in Chriſt-Church in Oxford, and afterwards made Prebendary of Weſtminſter. Beſides Divinity, his Genius led him very much to Hiſtory, and eſpecially to that part of it, which relates to Navigation. He ſet forth a Collection of Engliſh Sea-Voyages, Ancient, Middle, and Modern; taken partly out of Private Letters, partly out of ſmall Treatiſes which had been irrecoverably loſt, had they not been preſerv'd by his Care. He died in the beginning of the Reign of King James I.

* HADDON, (Walter) a maſter of Requeſts in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, born of an honourable Family in Buckinghamſhire, and Bred up at Eaton, from whence he became Fellow of King's-College, where he commenced Dr. of Law, and was of the King's Profeſſors in that Faculty. An. 1550. he was choſen Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, and ſoon after made Preſident of Magdalen-College in Oxford, which Places, he waved in Q. Mary's Reign, betaking himſelf to a private Life. Q. Elizabeth ſucceeding to the Crown, made him Maſter of Requeſts, and employ'd him in ſeveral Embaſſies. Her Majeſty being demanded whom ſhe preferr'd for Learning, Haddon or Buchanan? ſhe made this wary and ingenious Anſwer, Buchananum omnibus antepono, Haddonum nemini poſtpono. The truth is, he was a moſt Eloquent Man, and a pure Ciceronian in his Stile, as appears by his Writings; eſpecially his Book againſt Oſorius. He and Dr. Waltan ſettled the Trade between us and the Netherlands, and remov'd the Mart to London. Both noted for their Reſervedneſs in the Point of Succeſſion, which they kept locked in their own Breaſts, notwithſtanding the Earl of Leiceſter's Sollicitations. He died in the Year 1572.

* HADEMAR, Lat. Hademarum, a Town and Principality of Franconia in Germany, belonging to the Houſe of Naſſaw. It lies in that Part called Wetteravia, about four Leagues from Coblentz, and ſeven North of Mentz.

HADERSLEBEN, or HADERSLEVEN, a Sea-Port Town, and Biſhop's See of Jutland in Denmark. It ſtands near the Baltick Sea, over againſt the Iſle of Funen, 40 Miles North of Sleſwick; beautified with the fair Caſtle of Hansburg; founded by John Eldeſt Son of Chriſtiern I. and finiſhed by Frederick II. King of Denmark. This Town and Caſtle were twice taken by the Swedes in the Daniſh Wars, but reſtored to the true Owners, the Danes, by the Peace concluded between the two Crowns, An. 1658. Frederick III. was born here 1609.

* HADHRAMUT, a City and Province in the S. W. parts of Arabia Fælix, 80. Germ. Miles E. of Aden. A Place naturally Barren; yet it produces ſome Aloes, tho' not ſo good as thoſe of Socotora. Nubien. P. 26. The Province has Seger on the E. Tehama on the W. and the Ocean on the S. from Dolfar the moſt Eaſtern Town to Aden are 300 Miles, the Breadth of this Province. Nubienſis, P. 53.

* HADID, See CHADID.

* HADINGTON, a Town of Lothian in the South parts of Scotland. Which being poſſeſs'd by the Engliſh in Edward VI's. Reign, and preſs'd upon by the Scots under the Command of Termes a Frenchman, the Garriſon, having no hope of Relief, burnt the Town, and Octob. 1. 1549. marched away for England. But, before that, the French, under the Command of Heſſius, had been repuls'd with great Loſs (juſt as entring the Town which they had ſurpriz'd) by the ready wit of an Engliſh private Centinel, who fir'd a Cannon, that by chance ſtood at the Gate, which made a dreadful havock among the French, who ſtood in Rank before it. Buchan.

* HADLEY, a Market-Town of Cosford Hundred, in the South parts of Suffolk, ſituate on the Eaſt-ſide of the River Breton, and formerly a Place of good Note upon the account of Cloathing. This is a Peculiar of Canterbury, beautified with a fine Church, and of ſome Note for the Martyrdom of Dr. Taylor, Parſon of Hadley, who ſuffered here for his Religion in the Reign of Q. Mary.

* HADULLAN, or ADULLA, an Ancient and Magnificent City of Palæſtine, taken and deſtroy'd by Joſhua; but afterwards rebuilt, and belonging to the Tribe of Judah. In the time of the Maccabees, it was very much enlarged and beautified by Jonathan.

* HÆMUS, Mount Hæmus, a great and rocky Chain of Hills extending from the Euxine (or Black-Sea) to the Gulph of Venice, and ſo parting Greece from thoſe Countries that lie North from it. Whoſe height is ſuch, that Stratonicus an Old Grecian, us'd to ſay of 'em, That for Eight Months of the Year it was always Cold there, and the reſt of the Year Winter. From the Top of this Mount, Perſeus the laſt King of Macedon, took ſuch a Survey of the adjacent Countries, that having fortify'd the narrow Paſſes thereof againſt the Romans, it was conceived, ſays Florus, Non reliquiſſe aditum, niſi è Cœlo venientibus; That there was no Paſſage left for any Forces, unleſs they fell immediately from the Heavens. On the ſide of Thracia there were but two Paſſes, and thoſe eaſily lock'd againſt any Invaders. Beſides this Mountain, there is another of this Name in that Part of Greece called Theſſaly, the ſame which Ptolomy and others (perhaps for diſtinction ſake) write Æmus, without an Aſpiration.

HAERLEM, Lat. Harlemum, a City of Holland the next for Greatneſs and Beauty to Amſterdam; from whence it is diſtant but three Leagues Weſtward. 'Tis ſeated near a Lake of that Name, a League from the Sea, and five from Leyden, with which it has Communication by a Canal made An. 1656. There are near it, delicate Meadows, a delightful Foreſt, and a great number of fair and wealthy Villages, which make it very pleaſant. Within, it is beautified with fine Piazza's, a ſtately Town-Houſe, and many other Publick Edifices. Pope Paul IV. at the Requeſt of Phillip II. of Spain, made it a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to the Arch-Biſhop of Utrecht. Before that, viz. Anno 1347. it was almoſt wholly reduced into Aſhes. In the Year 1572, the Inhabitants revolted from the Spaniſh Government, and embraced the Proteſtant Religion. They were Beſieged not long after by Frederick Toledo, the Duke of Alva's Son, and after a ſtout Reſiſtance for the ſpace of eight Months, were fain to Surrender themſelves at Diſcretion; whereby they became a Prey to the Spaniards Cruelty. But it was retaken ſince by the States. This City glories in the Invention of Printing, ſaid to be found out here firſt by one Lawrence Coſter, An. 1420. whoſe ſtock of Letters was ſtoln away by a Servant of his, and carried into Germany, where Tully's Offices was the Firſt Book that ever was Printed. Junius. Guichardin.

HAFIZI, an Arabick word, ſignifying Keepers; ſo called, becauſe they got the Alcoran by heart, and are look'd upon by the Mahometans, as Holy Men entruſted with God's Laws.

* HAGAR, the Handmaid of Sarah, Abraham's Wife, whoſe Story you will find to this effect, Gen. 16. Sarah her Miſtreſs was Barren, and deſpairing of bearing any Children, prayed her Husband to accept of her Handmaid as his Wife, that he might have Iſſue, and ſhe the Comfort of ſeeing her own Barrenneſs ſupplyed by the Fruitfulneſs of her Maid. Abraham yielded to her Deſire: But, Sarah found by Experience, that what ſhe had contriv'd for her Comfort, became to her a new Matter of Grief: For Hagar now filling the Place of her Miſtreſs, and tranſported with Joy when ſhe found ſhe had Conceiv'd, began to ſlight her. Sarah complain'd of it to Abraham; who, to convince her that he would not in the leaſt countenance Hagar's Inſolence, left her to her diſpoſal. Then Sarah dealt hardly with her, to uſe the Scripture Phraſe, and Hagar fled before her Face. But being come near a Fountain in the Wilderneſs, the Angel of the Lord appeared unto her, who ask'd her, Whence ſhe came, and whither ſhe went? To whom ſhe anſwer'd, That ſhe fled from the Wrath of her Miſtreſs. The Angel thereupon commanded her to return to her Miſtreſs, and to humble her ſelf before her. The fruit of Hagar's Conception prov'd a Son, whom Abraham call'd Iſhmael; and from him ſprung a Great People, called Iſhmalites.

* HAGARENS: See ISHMAELITES.

* HAGGAI, the Tenth in Order among the ſmaller Prophets, whoſe Name ſignifies Joy. The Holy Writ teſtifies, That he began to Prophecy in the Second Year of King Darius: But what Darius this was, is not ſo certain. Moſt Interpreters aſſert that it was Darius Son to Hydaſpes, who began to Reign in 3532 of the World, 522 before Chriſt. However a Learned Rabbin affirms, That Haggai liv'd to the time of Alexander the Great: and thus he would have Propheſy'd in 3631. under Darius Ochus. But this Calculation does not agree with the Chronological Succeſſion of the Jewiſh High-Prieſts, who make Joſhua Son to Joſedec, Contemporary to Darius Hydaſpes, and reckon near 200 Years from him to Jaddus High-Prieſt under Alexander the Great. The Septuagint aſcribe ſome of the Pſalms to this Prophet and Zacharias. Haggai was ſent from God to reprove the Jews Negligence in Rebuilding the Temple: And to animate them, he Promiſes, That the Glory of this latter Houſe ſhall be greater than that of the former: Which cannot be true, unleſs it be underſtood, as the Chriſtians do, of the honour it received by the preſence of the Meſſiah: Since the ſecond Temple was otherwiſe inferiour to the firſt in Magnificence and Riches, and eſpecially in that it wanted the ancient Tokens of the preſence of God, as the Ark and Cherubims, the Ephod, the Holy Fire, &c.

* HAGIAR, a City of Arabia Petræa, with a Beautiful Caſtle; ſeated in the Mountains, and Sandy Deſarts, and has but one Well, call'd Thomud. It is in the Road between Damaſcus and Medina, 40 German Miles N. from the latter, and 30 E. from Madian on the Red Sea. This is ſuppoſed to be the Petra of the Ancients. Nubienſis, P. 110. and 119. There are two other Cities of this Name in Arabia Fœlix; but of little note.

* HAGIAZ, a Province of Arabia Fœlix; Bounded on the W. by the Red Sea; on the N. by Arabia Petræa; on the E. by Jamama; and on the S. by Tehama. Medina and Mecca, are both in this Province.

HAGIOGRAPHA, that is, Holy Writings, a word of great Antiquity in the Church, and often uſed by St. Hierom. Taken from the Cuſtom of the Synagogues, by which the Old Teſtament was divided into Three Parts, viz. Moſes's Law, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa. And by theſe laſt are meant the Pſalms, the Proverbs, Job, Ezra, Chronicles, Solomon's Songs, Ruth, Eccleſiaſtes and Eſther. The Jews reckon Daniel and the Lamentations among the Hagiographa, and not among the Prophets; for which Theodoret blames 'em. But it matters not much, ſince they acknowledge thoſe Books, which they call Hagiographa, to be inſpir'd by God, and to be part of the Sacred Canon, as well as thoſe of the Firſt and Second Order. St. Jerome, Theodoret.

* HAGUE, in Dutch Graven Hague, in French La Haie, in Latin Haga Comitum; the fineſt Village in Europe, and much exceeding many Cities in Bigneſs and Beauty. It lies in the Province of Holland, about two Miles from the Sea, betwixt Leyden and Delf, beautified with many fair Buildings, and the Streets with fine Rows of Trees. This is the Meeting-place for the States General, the States of the Provinces, the Court of Holland, the High Council-Court of Brabant, and Council of State. Here the Earls of Holland did formerly reſide, whence its Latin Name Haga Comitum. It was alſo the Reſidence of the Princes of Orange. In this Place it was that the States by their Edict 1586. Abrogated the Authority of Phillip II. of Spain, and that there was a Conference about the Five Articles of the Remonſtrants, An. 1610. which occaſion'd the Calling of the Synod of Dort. Thuanus, Præfat. ad acta Syn. Dordrec.

HAGUENAW, Lat. Hagenoa, an Imperial Town, the chief of the Lower Alſace in Germany, ſeated on the River Mater, ſcarce two Leagues from the Rhine, about three from Strasbourg Northward, and four Eaſt of Savern. The Emperour Frederick Barbaroſſa firſt walled it about, An. 1164. and built a Palace therein. Being ſeated in a Sandy and Unfruitful Soil, the Old Lantgraves of Alſace, did chiefly reſort thither for the conveniency of Hunting. By the Treaty of Munſter it fell to the French, who kept it ever ſince. Limnæus Enucl. Lib. 4. Cap. 24.

* HAIACHAN: See HACACHAN.

HAICTITES, a Mahometan Sect, who believe that Jeſus Chriſt being Eternal, aſſum'd a true Body of Fleſh. They have inſerted into their Creed, That Chriſt ſhall come to Judge the World at the laſt Day; and to prove it, they quote this Text out of the Alcoran: O Mahomet, Thou ſhalt ſee thy Lord, that will come in the Clouds. They dare not, indeed, openly interpret theſe words of our Saviour; yet they affirm, That this is foretold of the Meſſiah, and own it privately, that this Meſſiah can be no other but Jeſus, who is to come again with the ſame Body he had, to Reign 40 Years on the Earth, to deſtroy the Antichriſt, and then the World ſhall be at an End. Pocock affirms this laſt Opinion to be generally received among the Turks. Ricaut's Ottoman Empire.

HAILBRON, Lat. Hailbruna, the Aliſum of the Ancients, an Imperial Town of the Dukedom of Wirtemberg in Suabia, part of the Upper Germany. It ſtands upon the Necker, two Leagues from Wimpfen, eight from Spire; and is called Hailbron, that is, a Spring of Health, from the great Number of wholſom Springs about it. It was made Imperial in the Year 1240, by the Emperour Frederick II. and has obtain'd many fair Privileges from four of his Succeſſors. Limnæus Enucl. Lib. 4. Cap. 27.

* HAIMBURG: See HAYNBURG.

HAINAN, a conſiderable Iſland near the Coaſt of China, and the Province of Quangtung, near 60 Leagues about; 'tis Mountainous and Woody, but very Fruitful and Rich; yielding Gold and Silver Mines, and ſuch quantity of Pearls, that there are more found here than any where elſe. There grows alſo a great deal of Ebony, Aquila, and Brazil Wood, and a ſort of Red Marble. The Indian Nut called Jaca, the biggeſt ſort of Fruit in the World, grows here plentifully; not on the Branches, as being too weak to bear it, but on the Body of the Tree. The ſame is opened with an Ax, and out of its ſeveral Cells a Yellow Pulp is taken, having the taſt of a Cheſtnut. But the Wonder of all, is the Plant call'd Chifung, a foreteller of Stormes by the Knots on the Root of it. The Seamen reckoning the Number and Diſtance of the Tempeſts, by the Number and Diſtance of the Knots. The Jeſuits have here ſeveral Churches. It is 140 Miles from E. to W. and 120 from N. to S. Martinis's Deſcription of China, Vol. 3. in Thevenot's Collection.

HAINAULT, Lat. Hannonia, one of the Spaniſh Provinces in the Low-Countries, but moſt of it now under the French. 'Tis bounded on the North with Brabant and Flanders; On the South with Champagne and Picardy; Eaſtward with part of Brabant and the County of Namur; Weſtward with the Scheld, which parts it from Artois, and part of the French Flanders. It is in Length about 70 Miles, at leaſt 60 in Breadth, and bears the Title of an Earldom; anciently call'd Saltus Carbonarius, from the abundance of Charcoal made in the Woods and Foreſts of it; and now Hainault, from the River Haine that runs through it. The Air is Temperate, and the Soil very Fruitful; the Country being well-watered by Rivers, Lakes, &c. which do much enrich it: So that the Country abounds in moſt places, with freſh Meadows and ſweet Paſtures, good Fruits and profitable Trees; but eſpecially with great plenty of Corn. There are alſo Lead and Iron Mines, and Quarries of excellent Marble. The Principal Rivers are, the Sambre, the Haine, and the Dender. Chief Towns, Mons, Aeth, Valenciennes, Landrecy and Philipville. In ſhort, This Province is ſaid to contain 24 Walled-Towns, and 950 Villages; among which there are reckoned 1 Principality, 10 Counties, 12 Peerages, 22 Baronies, 26 Abbies; With One Earl-Marſhal, a Seneſchal, a Great Huntſman, a Chamberlain, and divers other Officers, whoſe Places are Hereditary. Morery begins his Chronological Table of the Earls of Hainault, with Rainier I. Sirnamed Long Neck; who bravely withſtood the Normans in the Year 876, and brings it through 21 Succeſſions to Charles V. King of Spain, and Emperour of Germany: In the Poſſeſſion of whoſe Succeſſors to the Crown of Spain, Hainault continued, till the French got it by force of Arms. Le Mire. Guichardin.

* HAIR, a Deſart in Libya, 100 Miles long, lying on the South of Nigritia, and Eaſt of the Deſart of Igni.

HAIRETITES, a Sect of Mahometans, who, like the Ancient Pyrrhonians, doubt of every thing. They hold, That Truth cannot be diſcerned from Falſhood; and, That Demonſtrations are uſeleſs. In controverted Points, their only Anſwer is, God knows it, to us 'tis unknown. Some Mufti's have been of that Sect; and when they Sign'd Sentences, they would commonly ſuperadd, God knows what is beſt. They us'd to Drink Opiates, to increaſe their Natural Dulneſs and Stupidity. Ricaut's Ottoman Empire.

* HALABAS, a large City in the Empire of the Great Mogul, built on the Point of Land where the Gemins or Gemma falls into the Ganges. It has a fair Caſtle of free Stone, with a double Moat, where the Governour reſides. Tavernier, Part 2. P. 52.

*HALAH: See CHALAH.

* HALAM, (Robert) an Engliſh Cardinal, who liv'd in the Reigns of H. IV. and V. was Bred in Oxford, and afterwards became Chancellor thereof 1403. From Archdeacon of Canterbury, he was made Biſhop of Salisbury, and created Cardinal in 1411. It argues his Abilities, that he was one of them who were ſent to repreſent the Engliſh Clergy, both in the Council of Piſa and Conſtance.

HALAR, Lat. Halara, Hola, a Town in the North Parts of Iſeland, belonging to Denmark. 'Tis but Small, and without Walls; yet a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to the Arch-Biſhop of Drontheim.

HALBERSTADT, a Town and Principality of Germany, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg. It lies in the Lower Saxony on the River Hotheim, about 8 Leagues Weſt of Madgeburg, and as much South of Brunſwick; the Principality extending it ſelf between the Dukedom of Anhalt, Brunſwick, and Madgeburg. It was formerly an Imperial Town; but by the Grant of Charles the Great, this Principality was given to the Biſhop of Halberſtadt, who was Suffragan to the Arch-Biſhop of Mentz. But ſince the Reformation, it was given, with the Title of Admiral to the Sons of the Dukes of Brunſwick; and afterwards by the Treaty of Munſter, aſſign'd to the Elector of Brandenburg, with the Title of Prince of Halberſtadt; the Houſe of Brunſwick being recompenſed with an alternate Succeſſion in the Biſhoprick of Oſnabrug, and ſome other Additionals. Crantz. Bertius. Cluvier.

HALDAN, a Daniſh King, before the Birth of Chriſt; of ſuch Gigantick Stature and Strength, that having a Mind to a Virgin of his own Country, who was Guarded by 12 Champions, He cut up an Oak, with which he laid among 'em, and having Subdued them, Married the Virgin, by whom he had Harald. He was, notwithſtanding his Prodigious Strength, kill'd, fighting in defence of his Country. Olaus, Lib. 5. c. 21.

* HALE, (Sir Matth.) Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's-Bench in the Reign of King Charles II. He was born at Alderney in Glouceſter-Shire, Nov. 1*ſt.* 1609. His Grandfather was Robert Hale, an Eminent Clothier in Woutton Underedge, in that County, whoſe ſecond Son Robert, was a Barraſter of Lincolns-Inn, and Father to Sir Matthew above mention'd. This Robert was a Perſon of that extraordinary ſtrictneſs of Conſcience, that he gave over the practiſe of the Law, being ſhock'd at the ordinary cuſtom of over pleading a bad cauſe, and ſome other Practices in that Profeſſion, which to him, ſeem'd contradictory to that exactneſs of Truth and Juſtice which became a Chriſtian. Sir Matthew being ſent to Oxford, was admitted a Commoner of Magdalen-Hall in Oxford, Anno 1626; where he continued about Three Years, laying a Foundation for his great Learning and Knowledge. In 1629, He was admitted Student in Lincolns-Inn; where for many Years together he Studied at the rate of 16 Hours a Day, and throwing aſide all fine Cloths, betook himſelf to a plain faſhion. Some Years before the Civil Wars broke out, he was call'd to the Bar. In 1653, He was by Writ made Serjeant at Law, and ſoon after one of the Juſtices of the Common-pleas; in which place he acted with great Juſtice and Integrity, though with the diſpleaſure ſometimes of the Protector. Upon the Reſtauration he was made Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and Knighted; and in the Year 1671, on the Death of Sir John Keeling, he was advanced to the Place of Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's-Bench. In which Station he continued to his Death, which happened in December 1676. Beſides his Knowledge in the Law, wherein he was moſt Eminent, he had the Character of a Great Divine, and of a Profound Philoſopher. His Works extant, are a plain Demonſtration of his great Skill in all thoſe Faculties, as his Life was of his excellent Temper and Principles, both Moral and Chriſtian. He was brought up under Puritans; yet his Plainneſs and Integrity made him acceptable to both Parties. He was a Pattern of honeſt Plainneſs and Humility; a Lover of Goodneſs and all good Men; a great Contemner of the Riches, Pomp and Vanity of the World; and a true Upholder of Juſtice. His Works are: The Primitive Origination of Mankind, Fol. Contemplations, Moral and Divine, Octav. Difficales Nugæ: or, Obſervations touching the Torricellian Experiment, Octv. An Eſſay touching the Gravitation, or non Gravitation of Fluid Bodies, and the Reaſons thereof. Obſervations touching the Principles of Natural Motions, and eſpecially touching Rarefaction and Condenſation. The Life and Death of Pomponius Atticus, written by Cornelius Nepos, Tranſlated out of his Fragments, together with Obſervations Political and Moral thereupon. Pleas of the Crown, or a Methodical Summary of the Principal Matters relating to that Subject. * See the Life written by Dr. Burnet.

* HALENBERG, a part of Mount Calenberg: beginning at the Danube in the Lower Auſtria, and reaching South as far as the Drave, ſeparating Hungary from Styria and Carinthia.

* HALESWORTH, a Market-Town of Blithing Hundred, in the North-Eaſt Parts of Suffolk. This Town deals much in Linen, Yarn, and Sale-Cloth.

HALI-BACHA, Son-in-Law to Solim II. Admiral of the Turkiſh Fleet in 1570, and 1571. After having Plundered ſeveral of the Venetian Iſlands, he gave Battel in the Lepanto to the Chriſtian Fleet, Commanded by Don John of Auſtria, who attacking the Turkiſh Admiral with great Bravery, Hali was ſhot with a Muſquet. The Spaniards preſently Boarded him, took his Standard, and Cried out, Victory; which ſtruck ſuch a Terrour among the Turks, that they fled. Two of Hali's Sons were brought Priſoners to Rome, where one of them died; but the other was ſent to his Mother, who complemented Don John with Magnificent Preſents. Gratian's Hiſtory of Cyprus.

HALI-BEG, Interpreter to the Grand Signior, who could Speak 17 Languages. He was Born in Poland, in the XVII. Cent. whence he was carried a Slave; and proper Name was Albertus Bobovius. He could ſpeak French, Engliſh and German, as well as if he had been a Native. J. Spon. Voyage d' Italie en 1675. He is thought to have furniſh'd Ricaut with Memoirs.

HALICARNASSUS, now Neſi; a Town of Caria, in Anatolia, on the Gulph of Ceramis; famous for Mauſolus's ſtately Monument built by Queen Artemiſia, his Widow, and counted one of the World's ſeven Wonders. Famous beſides, for being the Birth-place of Herodotus and Dionyſius, (hence called Halicarnaſſâs) two famous Hiſtorians. It is 106. Miles S. from Epheſus. In Long. 57. 50. Lat. 36. 10. Strabo. Pliny.

* HALIFAX: See HALLIFAX.

* HALITZ, Lat. Halicia, a Town of Poland, with a Caſtle, ſeated on the River Nieſter, in the Province of Ruſſia Nigra, the Chief of that Tract, called Poſtkutia. It was formerly a King's Seat who was called King of Halitz, and alſo an Arch-Biſhoprick; but now tranſlated to Lemberg, from which it is 16 Poliſh Miles North-Eaſt; in a decaying Condition. Hoffman.

* HALL, (Joſeph) Biſhop of Norwich, call'd the Engliſh Seneca, was Born at Aſhby de la Zouch in Leiceſterſhire, July 1. 1574. and Bred in Emanuel College in Cambridge. His Father was Governour or Bailiff of the ſaid Aſhby his Birth-place, under the Earl of Huntington. So promiſing were his Parts in his Childhood, that he was quickly deſtin'd to an Academical Life; and as ſoon almoſt as Emanuel College was admitted into Cambridge, he was received into that College. He paſs'd all his Degrees with great Applauſe; but was particularly noted in the Univerſity for his ingenious Theſis, Mundus Seneſcit, that the World decays; for whilſt he maintain'd it by ſtrength of Argument (whether true, or falſe) his own Parts confuted him; the quickneſs whereof did rather argue an increaſe than decay of Parts in this latter Age. His firſt Church-Preferment, was the Rectory of Halſted in Suffolk; the next at Waltham-Abby in Eſſex. Being Dr. of Divinity, he was ſent over by King James I. to the famous Synod of Dort, conſiſting of Learned Divines from all the Proteſtant States in Europe, to examine Arminius's Doctrine. After this he was made, Firſt, Dean of Worceſter, then Biſhop of Exeter; and at laſt, Biſhop of Norwich. And he liv'd to ſee the Government Overturn'd in the Reign of King Charles I. In ſhort, He became a great Sufferer in thoſe times, being twice ſent to the Tower, Sequeſtred to his very Cloths, his Palace rifled, &c. All which Oppreſſions he bore Patiently, being fitted thereunto; as may be ſeen by his Treatiſes of Conſolation. He may be ſaid to have died with a Pen in his Hand. And ſuch was the Pureneſs, Plainneſs, and Fulneſs of his Stile, that Sir Henry Wotton (a great Admirer of it) gave him the Name of our Engliſh Seneca. Not Unhappy, ſays Dr. Fuller, at Controverſies, more Happy at Comments, very good in his Characters, better in his Sermons, beſt of all in his Meditations. As to Burial, his Opinion was, That God's Houſe (meaning a Church conſecrated to his Service) was not a meet Repoſitory for the dead Bodies of the greateſt Saints, as he expreſs'd it in his Will. He died in the Year 1656. and was Buried at Hyhem, near Norwich. Fuller's Worthies.

HALL. Lat. Halla, Suevia, an Imperial Town of Suabia, in the Upper-Germany. It ſtands in the Northermoſt Parts of the Province, near the Borders of Franconia, the Palatinate and Dukedom of Wirtemberg. It is divided into two Parts by the River Corker, and the Town took the Name of Hall from the Salt Springs that are about it; for the Propriety of which, there were great Wars formerly betwixt the Catti and Hermanduri. This place was ſeveral times taken and retaken in the late Wars. Cluvier. Bertius. It is 6 Miles Eaſt of Hailbron, and 19 from Francfort.

* HALL, Lat. Halla Saxoniæ, a Town of Miſnia in the Upper-Saxony, 5 Leagues North of Leipſick, lately fallen to the Elector of Brandenburg. It ſtands on the Eaſt-ſide of the River Pala, and is of great reſort for the Vaſt quantity of Salt made there, and vended in other Places. At firſt but a Village call'd Debredor, but afterwards improv'd into a goodly Town by the Emperour Otho the Second, who gave it the Name of Hall, from the Salt Springs about it, and it became ſince ſo famous for Wealth and Learning, that this Verſe was made upon it. Halla Urbs eſt doctis divitibuſq; potens. Gaguinus in Philippo.

* HALL, a Town of the County of Tirol, in the Upper-Germany, Subject to the Emperour. 'Tis ſeated on the River Inn, ſome Miles Eaſt and by North of Inſpruck, the Capital of Tirol.

* HALL, a Town of Hainault, in the Low-Countries, two Leagues South of Bruſſels in Brabant: For the Security whereof, this Place was Fortifying two Years ago, when the French Army appear'd before it, in April 1690, and entred it, the Garriſon having Marched out before privately, it not being then tenable. This Town is famous for the pretended Miracles of our Lady of Hall; whereof the Learned Juſtus Lipſius wrote a Hiſtory, which has been ſufficiently confuted by Learned Proteſtants. See Grotius's Hiſtory of Flanders in the Year 1578.

HALLAND, Hallandia, part of South Gothland; formerly belonging to the Danes, and now to the Swedes ſince the Peace of Roſchild in 1658. It lies on the Sea, over againſt the North parts of Jutland in Denmark, which lies Weſt from it; of a conſiderable Length, but the Breadth not proportionable. A Country much praiſed for the Wholſomneſs of its Air, Commodiouſneſs of Havens, Plenty of Fiſh, Pleaſure of Hunting; Lead and Braſs Mines, with ſome Veins of Silver; as alſo for many well-peopled Towns and Villages, the Principal of which are, Helmſtad, Falkenburg, Laholm, and Varburg. Hoffman.

* HALLIFAX, a Market-Town of Morley Wapentake, in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkshire, ſituate upon the ſteep deſcent of a Hill, in a Barren Soil; and yet a Large and Populous Place, though but one Pariſh Church in it: Which defect is made up with many Chapels of Eaſe. The Inhabitants are noted for their Induſtry in Clothing, and other Manufactures; but chiefly for the ſtrict Law they formerly had amongſt themſelves for the ſpeedy Puniſhment of Cloth-Stealers. To which alludes the ſaying of the Beggars and Vagrant People, From Hell, Hull, and Hallifax, Good Lord, deliver us. Of late, this Town has been of chief Note, for giving the Title of Marqueſs to the Right Honourable George Savil, firſt created Baron of Ealand and Viſcount Hallifax, by K. Charles II. in the Year 1679. afterwards Earl, and at laſt Marqueſs of Hallifax.

HALLOIX, (Peter) A Jeſuit, born at Leige, in the XVIIth. Cent. He was well read in Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory. His Works are, Illuſtrium Eccleſiæ Orientalis Scriptorum, qui primo Chriſti Sæculo floruerunt, Vitæ & Documenta Illuſtrium, &c. qui ſecundo Sæculo floruerunt. Da Vita Originis, defenſio, item Dogmata ejus, &c. * Aligamb. de Script. Soc. Jeſ. &c.

HALLOANDAR (George) A Jerman Lawyer of Miſnia in Saxony, was much taken notice of for his Learning. He died at Venice in 1531, he publiſh'd the fifty Books of the Digeſts or Pandects, together with a Catalogue of the Roman Conſuls, and ſeveral other very curious Peices. * Melchior Adam in Vit. Juriſc. Germ.

* HALSTED, a Market Town of Hinckford Hundred, in the North of Eſſex. It ſtands on the North Side of the Coln, with a Bridge over the River.

* HALYDOWN, a Town in Northumberland, on the River Tyne; where Oſwald King of that Country, invoking Jeſus Chriſt, Overthrew Edwall King of the Brittains, An. 634. whence the place was called Haly-down, or Heavens-Field. This Victory confirm'd Oſwald in his Chriſtianity, and occaſion'd his ſending for Aidan out of Scotland to teach his People. This Haly-down is not the ſame with that where the Engliſh obtain'd a Victory over the Scots; for that's upon the River Tweed, near Berwick.

* HALYS, a River of Lydia in Anatolia, that has its riſe in Mount Taurus, and runs through Paphlagonia and Cappadocia, into the Gulph of Sorniſo, where it diſcharges it ſelf, 20 Miles from the Town of that Name. Famous for the Defeat of Crœſus; who being deceiv'd by an Ambiguous Oracle, went over the River to Encounter Cyrus, and having been totally Routed, occaſion'd the Loſs of his own Kingdom, and not that of his Enemy; as he had promiſed to himſelf. The Greek words are, Κροῖσος. Ἅλυν διαβὰς μεγάλην ἀρχὴν διαλύσει. The Latin, Crœſus Halym penetrans Magnam ſubvertet opum vim. Cic. Lucanus.

* HALYSIA, or AZYLIA, now Alcipo; a Town of Epirus, on the River Achelaus, 15 Miles from Leucadia; where the Athenians got a great Victory by Sea over the Lacedæmonians. Here are ſeveral Monuments of Antiquity to be ſeen. Xenophon.

HAM, Lat. Hamum; a Town of Vermandois in Picardy, ſituate in a Plain on the Bank of the River Somme, 4 Leagues from St. Oventin, betwixt Noyon and Peronne. Lewis of Luxemburg commonly called Conneſtable de S. Paul, cauſed a Cittadel to be Built here. Anno 1470. with 4 Baſtions and a ſquare Tower. In Germany there's a Hans-Town of this Name, ſeated on the River Lippe, in the Earldom of Marc in Weſtphalia, upon the Borders of the Biſhoprick of Munſter. It belongs, with the ſaid Earldom, to the Elector of Brandenburg.

* HAMADRYADES, Nymphs of Oaks and other Trees. Of whom the great Scholiaſt Apollonius relates a Pleaſant Hiſtory out of an Ancient Hiſtorian, Charon of Lamſachem. One Rheecus perceiving an Oak ready to fall down, ordered his Servants to Underprop it. The Nymph, who was to have dy'd with the Tree, ſo highly reſented the Kindneſs, that ſhe appear'd to him, bad him ask her whatſoever he would, and promiſed to grant it him. He readily anſwer'd, That his greateſt Paſſion was to enjoy her. To which the Nymph conſented, upon Condition that he ſhould not meddle with any other Woman. But Rheecus hapning one Day to be overcome by a Temptation, a Boy that ſerved as a Meſſenger between 'em, found him in the Fact, and took upon him to Check his Maſter. Rheecus anſwering ſomewhat Angrily, the Nymph fell into a Paſſion, and emaſculated him. Poets often confound the Hamadryades and Naiades: Some call 'em Goddeſſes; and even they who make 'em Mortal, grant 'em a Hundred Thouſand Years of Natural Life. Auſon. Virgil. Ovid.

* HAMAN, an Amalekite, Favourite of Ahaſuerus King of Perſia, was a great Perſecutor of the Jews, till the King, being ſatisfied by Queen Eſther, how much he had abus'd his Royal Authority, order'd him to be Hang'd on the ſame Gallows he had prepared for Mordecai. See Mordecai.

* HAMATH, a City in the N. E. of the Tribe of Zebulon; whence the Adjacent Country was called the Land of Emath, or the Amathites. It was a Frontier towards Syria, and on the Foot of Lebanon. It was built by Hamath, the 11th. Son of Canaan, 2 K. 23. It is noted, becauſe the Spies ſent by Moſes, came to it, Numb. 13. for obtaining Peace of David, 2 Sam. 8. It was taken by the Syrians, and retaken by Jeroboam. The Aſſyrians did afterwards ſubdue it, which gave occaſion to Senacherib's Proud Queſtion, Where are the Gods of Hamath?

HAMAXOBIANI, a People bordering on Scythia, who dwelt in Tents made of Leather, which they carried about on Waggons. They Signaliz'd their Courage againſt Cyrus, Darius and Alexander. Horace Silius Italicus.

HAMBELIANS, One of the Four Ancient Mahometan Sects, ſtill to be found among ſome Arabians. So called from Hambeli the firſt Author thereof. Ricaut's Hiſt. of the Ottom. Emp.

HAMBURG, Lat. Hamburgum; a Free and Imperial City of the Lower Saxony, in Germany, and Second of the Vandalick Hans-Towns; a place of Great Traffick. It lies upon the Borders of Holſtein; Conveniently ſeated for Trade on the River Elbe, about 18 German Miles from the Sea. 'Tis a Flouriſhing City, Large, Populous, Rich, graced with fair Buildings, and very well Fortify'd. Formerly an Arch-Biſhop's See, founded by Charles the Great; but removed to Bremen, An. 850. with the conſent of Lewis then Emperour. Morery ſays, That Hamburg was ſometime Subject to the Arch-Biſhops of Bremen, and afterwards to ſome Private Princes; till at laſt it came into the Poſſeſſion of the Dukes of Holſtein, which happened in the Year 1374. Then the Hamburghers took the Oath of Allegiance to Chriſtiern Count of Oldenburg (the Firſt King of Denmark of that Houſe) as Duke of Holſtein; acknowledging him and his Succeſſors for their Lawful Lords. But they have ſince ſlip'd their Necks out of the Collar, and being become a Free State, they only Pay ſome ſmall Duty to the King of Denmark, as Duke of Holſtein, by way of a Toll upon the account of Gluckſtadt, belonging to that King; which lies between Hamburg and the Rivers Mouth. However the Kings of Denmark have not laid down their Claim, as appears by ſeveral (though fruitleſs) Attempts they made upon this City; and particularly, the preſent King of Denmark, in the Year 1686. The truth is, they owe the Continuance of their Liberty, not ſo much to their own Strength, as the Jealouſie of the Neighbouring Princes; whoſe Intereſt is to keep it a Free State, rather than let it fall under the Power of any one Prince. Amongſt the Curioſities of this place, we may reckon the Town-houſe, adorned with the Statues of Nine Worthies, Carved with very great Art; and the Exchange or Meeting-place for Merchants. But, for Rare Workmanſhip, there's nothing like the Pulpit of St. Catharine's Church; being made of Marble, with Figures of Alabaſter, and Ornaments of Gold moſt delicately wrought. It is obſerved of Hamburg, That it had once 177 Brewers, when there was but 40 Bakers, One Lawyer, and One Phyſician; The reaſon of which diſproportion was, That a Cup too much was their Natural Phyſick; That Bread being counted a Binder, was to be but ſparingly uſed; And, That their Differences were ſooner ended over a Can, than by Courſe of Law. Laſtly, Hamburg was formerly the Staple for Engliſh Cloth; from whence, on ſome Diſcontents, it was removed to Stade, and at laſt to Holland. The Hamburghers are Lutherans, and able to Arm 15000 Men. Crantius. Cluvier. Bertius. This City has had the Common Fate to change ſeveral Maſters; but they firſt paved the way to their Liberty, by purchaſing the Count of Orlamund's Right, who was made Governour of it by the King of Denmark, An. 1203. The Government is ſomewhat Democratical. Their great Reformer was Bugenhagius. They oppoſed the Settlement of the Engliſh Proteſtants, who fled thither in Q. Mary's Time: But now there is a Congregation of them there, who have liberty to meet for Divine Service at Altena, a neighbouring Village belonging to the King of Denmark. The Engliſh Hamburgh Company contributes not a little to the Trade and Fame of the Place, it being the uſual Abode of our Reſident for the Hanſe Towns. It is 16 German Miles from Bremen, and 6 E. from Stada.

HAMELEN, Lat. Hamila, a Town of Lower Saxony in Germany, under the Duke of Hanouer. It lies properly in the Dukedom of Brunſwick, between Heildeſheim on the Eaſt, and Paderborne on the Weſt, being 26 Miles S. of Hamburg, and 20 S. E. of Bremen, and Watered by the River Weſer. It is famous for the wonderful Accident ſaid to have happened here July 22. 1376; for being incredibly troubled with Rats, a Muſician (whom they call'd the Py'd-Piper) offer'd to deſtroy 'em for a certain Summ which was agreed upon. Then the Piper tuning his Pipes, all the Rats in the Town danced after him as he croſs'd the River, and were drowned. This done, he demanded his Pay, but was denied. Whereupon ſtriking up a new Fit of Mirth, all the Children of the Town (Male and Female) were ſo much charmed therewith, that they followed him to a neighbouring Hill, which opening, ſwallowed all up but one that lagged behind, and according to ſome, they were ſeen again in Tranſilvania. In memory of this Tragedy, it was Ordered, That in all publick Writings, after the Date of our Saviours Nativity, this of their Childrens being ſwallowed up, ſhould be added. M. Schokii Fabula Hamelenſis. This Town is alſo Noted in Hiſtory, for the great Overthrow the Imperialiſts received here in July, 1633, 6000 being killed on the Spot, as attempting to relieve the Town then Beſieged by the Swedes, to whom it Surrender'd preſently after the Fight. Calviſius.

HAMET BEN-ABDALA, a Mahometan Prophet, who rebelled againſt the Cheriffs, took from 'em the Kingdom of Fez and Morocco, and ſtil'd himſelf King of Africk, and of all other Countries belonging unto China. Mulei Seidan King of Morocco, gave him Battel, to recover his Kingdom, but was Defeated by Inchantments. Mulei having diſcovered the Cheat, he came to Encounter his Enemy a ſecond time, carrying more powerful Magicians along with him; which had the deſir'd Succeſs: For Hamet was routed and killed, and the Family of the Cheriffs aſcended the Throne again. Horn.

* HAMILTON, The Name of a Noble and Ancient Family in Scotland; whereof there are at this time one Duke, two Earls, and one Baron. Whoſe Riſe is thus ſet down by the learned Buchanan in his Hiſtory of Scotland. There was, ſaid he, in the Court of England, in the Reign of Edward II. a certain Gentleman, who ſpake Honourably of the Valour and Fortune of Robert Bruce then King of Scotland. Whereupon one of the Spencers, Bed-Chamber-Man to the King, either thinking his Speech was reproachful to the Engliſh, or elſe to curry Favour with the looſer ſort of the Nobility, drew forth his Faulchion and gave him a ſlight Wound. The Gentleman exaſperated by ſo baſe an Affront, and attempting a preſent Revenge, was prevented by the Company; but the day after, finding Spencer in the ſame place, he ran him through. Upon which he fled preſently into Scotland, where he was courteouſly received by King Robert, and had ſome Lands near the River Clyd beſtow'd upon him: Whoſe Poſterity not long after, were advanced to the Degree of Noblemen, and thus gave Riſe to the Great Family of the Hamiltons. The Lands which the King gave him, have now a Town and Caſtle of that Name, being the Duke's uſual Reſidence, 35 Miles W. of Edinburgh. This Family has matched with the Blood Royal, and did formerly bear the Title of D. of Chattleherault in France, where the eldeſt Son had uſually great Commands, One of them called James Earl of Arran, was Regent of Scotland in Queen Mary's Minority. Of this Family alſo, was Patrick Hamilton, a Learned and Pious Preacher, who was burnt for Religion about 1544. Buch. The Author of the Preſent State of Scotland, ſays, there is an Act of Parliament, recognizing their right of Succeſſion to the Crown of Scotland, if the Race of the Stewards ſhould fail.

* HAM LISNAN, a Town in the Kingdom of Fez, in Africk. It lies in the Province of Chaus, and was built by the old Africans in the moſt hilly Parts of the Country. Famous for the Temple of an old Idol worſhipped here, to which, at certain times, Men and Women reſorted in the Night; where, after their Devotions ended, and the Candles put out, every Man lay with the Woman he firſt touch'd. From whence perhaps the Family of Love have drawn their Platform, if all be true which is ſaid of them. A thing the Primitive Chriſtians were charg'd with by their Enemies, but falſely. Heylin.

* HAMMA, an ancient Town 15 Miles S. of Capis in the Kingdom of Tunis in Barbary, ſtrongly walled. It was built by the Romans, and has many of their Inſcriptions on Marble. The Streets are mean, the People poor, and the Country barren, Productive of nothing, but unpleaſant Dates. A Mile to the S. there is a hot Spring, which is convey'd into the Town, and ſerves for a Bath, though exceſſive hot, yet the People drink it after a days cooling. There is a Lake found by the ſaid Spring, call'd the Leper's Pool, becauſe it Cures the Leproſy, by Bathing. It taſtes like Brimſtone, and does not quench Thirſt. Leo African p. 257. Eng.

HAMMAR, or HAMMER, Lat. Hammaria, a Town of Aggerhus, in the Kingdom of Norway; formerly a Biſhop's See, but ſince annexed to the See of Aſloia.

HAMMON. See AMMON.

* HAMMOND (Henry) D. D. was born at Chertſey in Surrey, and bred in Eaton-School; from whence he went to Oxford, where he became Fellow of Magdalen-College, Canon of Chriſt's Church, and Orator of the Univerſity. His Father was Doctor of Phyſick, and Phyſician to Prince Henry, King James I's Eldeſt Son. So pregnant were his Parts in his tender Years, that, when at Eaton-School, he puzzled the judicious Mr. Buſt, who was ſo skilful in Examining of Boys; ſo that being pos'd with his prodigious Wit, he at laſt left him to himſelf, which was the beſt courſe he could take. Such was his Complexion, Sanctity, Temperance, Meekneſs, Charity and Knowledge, that, as our Author ſays, he may be as juſtly called an Angelical Doctor, as he who is generally ſo called. So freſh and lively was his Complexion, that he reſembled the uſual Portraictures of Cherubims; ſo great his Sanctity, that he ſpent moſt of his Life in Devotion; ſuch his Abſtinence, that his Eating and Drinking were next to nothing; ſo great his Meekneſs, that he would not revile any of an oppoſite Judgment; ſo tranſcendent his Charity, that he was a Tutelar Angel to many a poor Royaliſt, whom he kept from famiſhing. Laſtly, Such the Latitude of his Learning, that he was moſt accurate in the whole Circle of Arts. He was, ſays a late Author, eloquent in the Tongues, exact in Ancient and Modern Writers, well-vers'd in Philoſophy, and better in Philology, moſt learn'd in School-Divinity, and a great Maſter in Church-Antiquity; made up of Fathers, Councils, Church-Hiſtorians, &c. as may beſt be ſeen in his moſt Elaborate Works. And as Diſtillers extract Aqua Vitæ from the Dregs of dead Beer, ſo he from the rotton Writings of the Rabbins, drew many Obſervations to the Advancement of Chriſtianity. Had not his Diſſolution happened juſt before the Reſtoration, he had been Biſhop of Worceſter, being deſigned for that Biſhoprick by King Charles II. He died at Weſtwood in Worceſterſhire, Anno 1659. leaving many learned Works behind him, which, by the Care of William Fulman, of Corpus-Chriſti College, were printed at London, and publiſhed in four Vollumes in Folio, 1684. Amongſt which, theſe are of ſpecial note, viz. his Practical Catechiſm, and his Annotations upon the New Teſtament. His Life is written by Dr. John Fell; to which I refer the Reader, for farther Information.

* HAMPSHIRE, or HANTSIRE, otherwiſe called the County of Southampton, from Southampton the Shire-Town; Lat. Hantonia. It is a Maritime County of England, bounded on the North with Bark-ſhire, on the South with the Channel, Eaſtward with Surrey and Suſſex, Weſtward with Dorſet and Wiltſhire. Its Length, from North to South, is at leaſt 50 Miles; its Breadth, from Eaſt to Weſt, not above 30. The whole divided into 37 Hundreds, wherein are 253 Pariſhes, and 23 Market-Towns, beſides the City of Wincheſter. Here the Air is temperate, and the Soil plentiful of Corn and Paſturage, with plenty of Wood for Fuel; nor is there in England any pleaſanter Country to live in. For the Defence of the Sea Coaſt, here are two noted Caſtles in the South-Weſt Parts, viz. Hurſt and Calſhot-Caſtles, upon two points of Land, ſhooting forth into the Sea; beſides the ſtrong Town of Portſmouth. The Fields are cloath'd, for the moſt part of the year, with an excellent Verdure, the Woods are ſtock'd with variety of Fowl, the Parks with red Deer, and the Rivers with Fiſhes, beſides the Conveniency of the Sea for Sea-fiſh, and Foreign Trade. Amongſt its Rivers, are the Avon and the Stower, the Teſt and the Itching. But this Country is chiefly noted, for its Honey and Wax; as alſo for its Bacon, counted the beſt in England; becauſe their Swine feed upon Acorns in the Foreſt. The principal Trading Commodities of this Country are Wool, Cloth and Iron. Laſtly, Out of this County are Elected, beſides the two Knights of the Shire, no leſs than 24 Members to ſerve in Parliament, including thoſe of the Iſle of Weight, which properly belong to this County.

* HAMPTON-COURT, a Royal Palace, 10 Miles S. W. from London, ſeated upon the Thames, in Spelthorn Hundred, part of Middleſex, over againſt Kingſton in Surrey. It was built by Cardinal Woolſey, in the Reign of Henry VIII. In this Houſe Montmorency, Lord Steward and Marſhal of France, ſent Embaſſador to the ſaid Henry VIII, was moſt ſumptuouſly Treated by that Prelate 4 or 5 days together: And by the Account which Martin Bellay, an Attendant of Montmorency, gives of this Palace, the Chambers had Hangings of wonderful Value, and every Place glitter'd with vaſt quantities of Gold and Silver Plate. There were (ſays he) 280 Beds, the Furniture to moſt of 'em, being Silk, and all for the Entertainment of Strangers only. Grotius rather adds to, than diminiſhes this Account in theſe his following Verſes.

Si quis opes neſcit (ſed quis tamen ille?) Britannus,
Hamton-Curta tuos conſulat ille Lares.
Contulerit toto cum ſparſa palatia Mundo
Dicet ibi Reges, hic habitare Deos.

HAMSE: See EMESA.

HANAW, Lat. Hanovia, a Town and Earldom of Franconia in Germany, under a Prince of the Empire, called the Count of Hanaw. The Town is Seated on the River Kintz, 4 Leagues E. of Francfort; and divided into the Old and New Town. This being built after the Model of the Towns in Holland, is neat and well fortified. Spener.

HANCHUNG, a great City of the Province of Xenſi in China. The Situation whereof is very ſtrong, by reaſon of the Mountains and Woods that ſurround it, ſo that it is almoſt inacceſſible to any Army. There is a wonderful Bridge made over the Mountains, to go in a direct way from hence to Sigan, the ſpace of 50 Leagues; for the building whereof, 300000 Men were imploy'd, beſides a whole Army of Souldiers. The Bridge above mentioned, is covered with Earth, and rail'd on both ſides with Iron Rails. The Commodities of this Place, are Honey, Wax, Musk, and Vermillion; and its Territories abound with Red and Falow Deer. Martin Martini's Deſcription of China.

HANGCHEU, the Capital City of the Province of Chekiang, and ſometime the Imperial Seat of China. This City is full of Canals, over which are a prodigious number of Bridges, of curious Workmanſhip. Theſe Canals iſſue from a Lake within the City, whoſe Water is as clear as Cryſtal. The ſame is finely beautified along the Banks with Groves, Gardens, Palaces, Temples, Colleges, and other Buildings, both publick and private, ſo that the Chineſe call it a Paradiſe on Earth. Upon a Hill in the middle of the City, yielding a delicate Proſpect, is a ſtately Tower, with a Dial ſhewing the Hours, by means of a Water Hour-glaſs: The Figures being guilt, and a foot and half in length, that they may be the more conſpicuous. Here is alſo a great number of Triumphal Arches Three Story high, erected to the Honour of deſerving Magiſtrates, and Citizens. They are beautified with Painting and Engraving. In the Great Piazza alone, they reckon 300 of 'em, with 3 Arches each, the great one in the middle, and the two leſſer on each ſide. There are 4 great Towers all built of China Ware. Their Temples are numerous and Magnificent, and their Idol Prieſts proportionable, who are reckon'd to be 15000. The City ſo Populous, that 10000 Sacks of Rice are ſpent there every day, and yet a Sack contains as much as may ſerve 100 Men ſufficiently for one day. The Jeſuits have a very Magnificent Church here, and two Chapels in the Suburbs. In the adjacent Country, are abundance of Tygers, and the neighbouring Mountain Tienno is famous for Muſhrooms, which are ſalted and carried through the whole Empire, as rare Preſents. Near this City, is the Lake Cinking, famous for the gilded Fiſh called Kinyu, which the Grandees buy ſometime at three Golden Crowns a piece, tho' they be no longer than ones finger, but they are highly valued, becauſe their Skins gliſter, as if pouder'd with Gold Duſt; and they are familiar with thoſe that will feed them, and play a thouſand little Tricks in the Water, as if they deſigned to pleaſe them. Weſtward from this City, is the little Hill of Filaiſung, where are above 3000 Prieſts, part of whom live in Caverns, as in a perpetual Priſon, having their Food let down by Cords. On the Lake of Schu within the City, are abundance of Pleaſure-boats, richly Painted and Gilded. And the River Che, is alſo very remarkable; for every 18th. day of the 8th. Moon (which falls in October) the Tide ſurpaſſes all other Tides in the Year, and flows with ſuch violence, that it over-whelms all Veſſels; and that Day, the whole City divert themſelves with beholding the ſame. Martin Martini's Deſcription of China.

* HANGING-STONE, a boundary betwixt Comb-Martin, and an other Pariſh in Devonſhire. It was ſo call'd from the following Accident. A Thief ſitting down by it to reſt himſelf, with a ſtolen Sheep, whoſe Feet were tied about his Neck, the Creature ſtruggling fell on the other ſide of the Stone, which is about a Foot high, and ſo hang'd him.

* HANKFORD, (Sir William) Chief Judge of the King's-Bench, in the Reign of Henry V. was Born in Devonſhire. He adorn'd the Bench with great Learning and Integrity; but coming home Diſcontented from London, he fell into a great Paſſion with his Keeper, for ſuffering his Deer to be ſtoln, and charg'd him to ſhoot any, whom he ſhould find in the Park, that would not Stand when Spoken to, promiſing to bear him harmleſs. The next Night being dark, he preſents himſelf, and refuſing to ſtand the Keeper (according to his Order) ſhot him Dead, Dec. 12. 1422.

* HANMER, (Meredith) D. D. was Born in Flintſhire, a County of North Wales. He Tranſlated the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtories of Euſebius, Socrates, Euagrius, &c. into Engliſh: Wrote an Ephemeris of the Iriſh Saints, and a Chronicle of that Country, being Treaſurer of Trinity Church in Dublin. He Died there of the Plague, Anno 1604.

HANNIBAL, the famous General of the Carthaginians, was Son of Amilcar, a Captain of Carthage; who had three Sons, of whom he uſed to ſay, That he bred up three Lions, who one Day ſhould tear the Entrails of Rome. He made his Son Hannibal Swear upon the Altar, that he ſhould never be reconciled to the Romans; which Ceremony, Silirus Italicus deſcribes Elegantly, in the following manner, l. 1.

Olli permulcens Genitor caput, oſcula libat,
Attolitque animos hortando, & talibus implet:
Gens rediviva Phrygum, Cadmeæ Stirpis Alumnos
Fœderibus non æqua premit. Si fata negarint
Dedecus id patriæ noſtrâ depellere dextrâ,
Hæc tua ſit laus, nate, velis, age, concipe bella
Latura exitium Laurentibus, horreat portus
Jam pubes Tyrrhena tuos, partuſque recuſent,
Te ſurgente, puer, Latiæ producere matres.

To which Hannibal Anſwered:

Romanos terra atque undis ubi competet ætas
Ferro ignique ſequar, Rhætæaque fata revolvam.
Non Superi mihi, non Martem cohibentia pacta,
Non celſæ obſtiterint Alpes, Tarpeiaque Saxa:
Hanc mentem juro noſtræ per numina Matris,
Per manes, Regina, tuos.

At 26 Years of Age, he took upon him the Command of the Army, and after divers Succeſſes in Spain; as the Taking of Salamanca and Saguntum. He Defeated the Gauls, who diſputed the Paſſage of the Rhone, reſolving to carry the War into Italy. He went over the Alps with 80000 Foot and 12000 Horſe, in ſpite of Publius Cornelius, the Snow, and the Mountaineers that oppos'd his Paſſage. He made his Way through the Rocks, by a new Invention of mollifying them with Vinegar, and then cutting them with Inſtruments of Iron. Having taken Turin in three days, he advanced as far as Pavia, where he Defeated Cornelius Scipio; who had loſt his life alſo, had he not been reſcued by his Son, afterward ſurnamed Africanus. Hannibal preſſed on, and Defeated Cornelius, together with his Colleague Sempronius Longus, a ſecond time, near the River Trebia. The next Year he was met near the Lake Thraſimene by Flaminius, whom he likewiſe overthrew, with the Slaughter of 15000 Men. The ſame Year, Fabius Maximus, ſurnamed Cunctator, wearied him with his Delays; but Terentius Varro, willing to make a quick Diſpatch, contrary to the Advice of his Colleague, Paulus Æmilius, gave him Battle at Cannæ, wherein the ſaid Æmilius was ſlain, with 40000 Foot and 2700 Horſe, and the Flower of the Roman Gentry; ſo that Hannibal is ſaid to have ſent to Carthage, 2 or 3 Buſhels of Gold Rings, found upon 5630 ſlain Roman Gentlemen: A prodigious Victory, the Conſequence whereof, muſt have been the Ruin and Downfall of the Roman Common-Wealth, had Hannibal known how to uſe it: But inſtead of going ſtraight to Rome, he went to Capua, where he Winter'd, and the Delights of the Place debauched his whole Army, whilſt the Romans recovered themſelves from the Conſternation, which the Loſs of five Battles had caſt them into. Then Fabius, having the Command of their Forces, uſed his former Policy, always following Hannibal cloſe, and incamping in the moſt advantageous Poſts, without hazarding a Battel, which Hannibal greedily ſought for, but in vain. At laſt he came before Rome, which the Romans valued ſo little, that they ſent Forces to Spain that ſame day; and the very Ground on which he pitcht his Tent, was bought and ſold in the City, at its full Value; and he with as much Contempt of 'em, ſet their Shops to Sale by Auction; but it was too late, and the Rains forced him to raiſe the Siege. Two Years after, the Proconſul Marcellus gave him Battle Three days ſucceſſively. With equal Advantage the Firſt Day, with Diſadvantage the Second, but with more Succeſs the Third. He offered Battel alſo on the Fourth; but Hannibal retired, ſaying, What ſhould I do with this Man, who can neither Conquer, nor be Conquered. Next year, Marcellus was kill'd by an Ambuſh, and Hannibal being poſſeſſed of his Corps, made uſe of his Seal to the Governour of Selapia, deſiring him to be ready to receive him into his Garriſon next night: But Criſpinus the other Conſul, though grievouſly Wounded, dreading ſome ſuch thing, ſent a Caution to the Neighbouring Garriſons, ſo that the Governour Counter-plotted Hannibal, and on Pretence of Receiving, cut off a great many of his Troops. An. 547. Claudius Nero Defeated Aſdrubal, Hannibal's Brother, who alſo Invaded Italy with another Army; and having killed him, threw his Head into Hannibal's Camp, who on ſight thereof, ſaid, He doubted no longer of the Ruin of Carthage. After this, he was Defeated by Sempronius Gracchus, and alſo in a Sea-fight at Eumenes. Thus having paſſed 16 Years in Italy, he was call'd home, to Relieve Carthage then hard Beſet by Scipio; with whom he Treating of a Peace, without effect, they came to a Battel, which Hannibal loſt, with 20000 of his Men kill'd, and as many taken. This accumulation of Miſfortunes, the product of one Neglect, made Hannibal adviſe the Carthaginians to Peace, quit Africk, and fly into Aſia, where he ſtirred up firſt Antiochus, then Pruſia, King of Bithynia againſt the Romans; but all to little purpoſe. At laſt, fearing to fall into the Hands of the Romans, he poiſoned himſelf in the 64th. Year of his Age, about 183 Years before Chriſt, on which Juvenal Writes Elegantly, Sat. 10. thus,

Exitus ergo quis eſt, O gloria? vincitur idem

Annulus———

However Authors are not agreed on the manner of his Death; ſome ſaying, that he was Crucify'd; and others, that he was ſtoned by the Carthaginians for his ill Succeſs. Various are the Characters Hiſtorians give him, being charged by ſome with Perfidiouſneſs, by others with Cruelty. Livy praiſes him for his Wit, and Scipio for his Military Skill; inſomuch, that he reckons him the Greateſt of all Generals, Pyrrhus the Second, and Himſelf the Third. Lucian in his Dialogues of the Dead, brings in Alexander the Great, and Scipio, contending which was the Greateſt Captain; but according to him, Alexander was the Firſt, Scipio the Second, and Hannibal the Third. Cornelius Nepos writes of him, that he did as much exceed all other Captains, as the Roman Valour exceeded that of other Nations. Inſomuch, that there was a probability of his Conquering the Romans, if he had not been weakned by the Envy of his Country-men: But the Emulation and Detraction of many, was too hard for the Vertue of one. Beſides the aforeſaid Hannibal, the Carthaginians had an Admiral of this Name, who had been ſometime ſucceſsful againſt the Romans; and another who was ſent to the Succour of the Hegeſtians. The Romans themſelves had an Hannibal in the XIII Age, who was made a Cardinal by Pope Urban IV. and to whom Thomas Aquinas dedicated ſome of his Works. Denmark in this preſent Age produced a famous States-man of this Name, commonly called Count Hannibal of Seeſtede, who died at Paris in 1666. with the Character of Plenipotentiary from the King of Denmark.

HANNIBALIANUS, King or Governour of Pontus and Armenia: He was Son to Dalmatius, Brother to Conſtantine the Great. Hannibalianus was much in the favour of his Uncle Conſtantine, who married him to his Eldeſt Daughter Conſtantina, and gave him the Title of King, with the Provinces of Armenia the Leſſer, Pontus and Capadocia for his Dominions: But after the Death of Conſtantine, he was Murther'd by Conſtantius in the Year 337. * Chronicon Alexandrinum, Ammianus Marcellinus, &c.

* HANNO, the Name of three noted Carthaginians. One, who to paſs for a God, taught ſome Birds to ſay, Hanno is a God; and afterwards let them fly, that others might learn it of 'em, and ſo proclaim him a God in the Air. But the Birds, when at liberty, betook themſelves to their wild Notes again, and Hanno loſt his labour. Another Hanno wrote a relation of his Voyage round Africk, in his own Language, which was Tranſlated into Greek, under the Title of Periplus. The Third, was a Captain, who had a very tame Lion, for which the State (who look'd upon it as a Sign of his Aſpiring to the Government) baniſh'd him. In the XI. Age, there was one Hanno Arch-Biſhop of Cologne, who caus'd the Eyes of ſeveral Judges to be pull'd out, for giving an unjuſt Sentence againſt a poor Woman; except one of them, to whom he left one Eye, that he might ſee to lead the others home. He alſo ordered Heads of Brick without Eyes to be fixt over their Doors. Plin. Ælian. Voſſius.

* HANOVER, The Families of Wolfembuttle, Lunenburg, Zell and Hanover, are all of one Stock, viz. The Houſe of Brunſwick, and Deſcended from the Guelfs and Henry the Lyon. I ſhall not repeat what is ſaid in other places, but only obſerve, that William the Seventh, was the Fifth Child of Erneſt, the Seventh Duke of Lunenburg and Zell, and became the Head of the Family of Zell and Hanover. He married Dorothy, Daughter to Chriſtian the Third King of Denmark, and Died in 1592. After he had by her ſixteen Children, many of whom out-liv'd their Father; but the Brothers had agreed among themſelves, that to preſerve the Luſtre of the Family, only one of them ſhould Marry; who was George the Thirteenth Child to William, and an Excellent Prince, Valiant, Pious and Prudent. He had Five Children by Anne Elianor Daughter to Lewis, Landgrave of Heſſe-Darmſtad, and Died in 1641. Chriſtian Lewis his Eldeſt Son, died without Iſſue in 1665. The Second Son George William ſucceeded his Brother. He was born in 1624, is yet alive, and has but one Daughter. John Fredrick the Third Son to George, was born in 1625, Married Benedicta Henriet Philippina, Daughter to Edward Count Palatine of the Rhine, and Duke of Nevers, Died in 1679, and left but Four Daughters. Sophia Amelia, who Eſpouſed Frederick King of Denmark, and Died in 1685, was the Fourth Child of George. The Fifth was Erneſt Auguſtus Biſhop of Oſnabrug, born in 1629. He Married Sophia Daughter to Frederick, the Fifth Elector of the Palatinate and King of Bohemia by Elizabeth Daughter to King James I. of E. in 1658, and Succeeded to the Eſtate of John Frederick his third Brother in 1680. He has ſeveral Children, of which George Lewis the Eldeſt, born in 1660, is only to Succeed him in all his Eſtates; nay, and in all the Countries belonging to the Houſe of Zell and Hanover. Since he has Married in 1682. Sophia-Dorothy, only Daughter to George William, the Duke of Zell, his Unkle. This Year 1692. Prince Erneſt Auguſtus put in to be made Elector of the Empire, and has obtain'd it. Schowart Obſer. Hiſto. Geneal.

HANOVER, Lat. Hanovera, a Town of the Lower Saxony in Germany, and the uſual Reſidence of the Duke of that Name, being a Proteſtant Prince, of the Houſe of Brunſwick or Lunenburg, and one of the moſt Potent in the Empire. The Town is Seated on the River Lein, in the Dukedom of Brunſwick, ſix Leagues W, of the Town ſo call'd, and is both a fair and ſtrong Town. It joined with the Smalcaldian Confederates in the late German Wars. Sleidan.

* HANSE-TOWNS, certain Towns of Germany, confederate for the benefit of Trade, and enioying great Privileges. Some ſay, that they were ſo called from the Word Hanſe, ſignifying Alliance; and others, from An-Ze, which ſignifies upon the Sea; becauſe the firſt Towns that entred into this ſort of Incorporation, were Seated near the Baltick. The City of Bremen, in the Lower Saxony, is ſaid to have been the Founder of this Confederacy, about the Year 1164, to encourage the Trade, which it, and many other Maritime Towns, drove in Livonia. How many Aſſociated at firſt, is not certainly known: But the Deſign did ſo viſibly proſper, that many In-land Cities, and ſome of no great Trading, joined with 'em in a League, for their common Defence and Preſervation. And at laſt it grew to that height, that moſt of the Chief Places of Trade in Europe, entred into the Confederacy. As, in the Low-Countries: Antwerp, Dort, Amſterdam, Rotterdam, Bruges, Oſtend and Dunkirk. In France: Calais, Rouen, St. Malo, Bourdeaux, Bayonne and Marſeille. In Spain: Barcelona, Sevil and Cadiz. In Portugal: Lisbon. In Italy: Leghorn, Naples and Meſſina. In England: London; beſides many other Sea-Port Towns, reckon'd in all, to the Number of 72. But theſe Foreign Hanſe-Towns, quitted the League, when the Princes and States, under whoſe Dominion they lived, erected Companies, to promote and encourage the Trade of their reſpective Subjects. In the moſt flouriſhing Times of the Confederacy, the Hanſe-Towns had Four general Staples, for the Sale of their Merchandiſe, viz. London in England; Bruges in Flanders (whence it was carried to Antwerp, and thence to Amſterdam) Bergen in Norway; and Novogrod in Ruſſia. And this Confederacy, which was made at firſt only for the Security of their Trade, and their Mutual Defence againſt Princes, grew ſo Powerful at laſt, as to attempt a War againſt Waldemar III. King of Denmark, who Reign'd about 1348. Their Fleet went ſtraight to Copenhagen, and put the King to flight; who, to make Peace, yielded to them the Poſſeſſion of Schonen, for the Space of 16 Years. Anno 1428. they ſet out another Fleet, of 250 Sail, againſt Eric King of Denmark, with Land Forces conſiſting of 12000 Men, and put him to very hard ſhifts. In 1615, with the Hollanders Aſſiſtance, they Relieved the Town of Brunſwick, then Beſieged by the Duke of that Name. After the Foreign Hanſe-Towns had withdrawn themſelves from the League, by Order of their ſupreme Powers, ſtill the German Hanſe-Towns continued their Confederacy, and then Decreed, That none ſhould be admitted, but ſuch as were Situate in Germany, or had a Dependency on the Empire. Whereupon they reduced themſelves under Four Capital Hanſe-Towns, Lubeck, Cologne, Brunſwick and Dantzick; which laſt, though Subject, in ſome meaſure, to the King of Poland, is called to the German Diets. Lubeck has the Precedency, being impowered to call General Aſſemblies, and intruſted with the Publick Treaſure of the Society. The Aſſemblies Meet but once in three Years, unleſs upon ſome extraordinary and urgent Occaſion. They had formerly for their Protector, the Great Maſter of the Teutonick Order: Sometimes the King of Denmark, or the King of Sweden; and alſo the King of Spain, as Soveraign of the Low-Countries. But they have been a long time without Protectors. At preſent, the Hanſe-Towns are in a manner reduced to theſe Six, viz. Lubeck, Hamburg, Bremen, Roſtock, Dantzick and Cologne; the reſt, having little or no Share, beſides the Name, in their Confederacy. Heiſſius Hiſtory of the Empire.

HANTUILLE, or HANWILL (John) an Engliſh Benedictine, living in the XIIIth. Cent. He was a Learned Perſon for his Time, and had a Genius for Verſifying; beſides ſeveral Poems, he wrote the Antiquities of England in Nine Books, Intituled, Architrenium, which he Dedicated to Walter of Coutances, Arch-Biſhop of Roan. * Lilius Giraldus. Voſſius, Bale, &c.

HAOAXUS, or HAOAXE, an African River, which riſing in the Abyſſinian Mountains, runs through that Kingdom, and renders it Fruitful, as Nile does Egypt, to which its not much inferiour in Greatneſs; and after a Courſe of 600 Miles, falls into the Red Sea. Lobo's Travels.

HAOLONE, a Tartarian Prince, Brother to Cublai, the Great Cham. Anno 1256, being Baptized with his ſaid Brother, he raiſed a vaſt Army to reinthrone Hayton King of Armenia, whoſe Kingdom the Saracens ravaged. He poſſeſſed himſelf of Perſia, impriſoned the Caliph of Babilon, and Starv'd him in a Tower amidſt his Treaſures. After that, he recovered Aleppo, Damaſcus, and all the Holy Land, where he re-eſtabliſhed the Chriſtians. St. Lewis of France ſent him Magnificent Preſents. Kircher de la Chine.

HAPSBURG: See HABSBURG.

* HAPSEL, Lat. Hapſelia, a Town of Eſten in Livonia, under the Crown of Sueden. It ſtands upon a ſmall Bay of the Baltick, 12 Leagues Weſt of Reuel; and was formerly a Biſhop's See, ſuffragan to the Arch-Biſhop of Riga; but ſince Transferred to Oeſel. Hoffman.

* HARAN, Lat. Carræ, or Carrhæ, a City of Meſopotamia. This is the Place, to which Terah, the Father of Abraham removed, when he went towards Canaan, and called it Haran, after one of his Sons, who was Father to Lot. It was afterwards known to the Roman Writers, by the Name of Carræ. Noted for the Death of Craſſus, that Wealthy Roman, whoſe Eſtate amounted to 7100 Talents; that is in our Money, One Million, Three Hundred Thirty One Thouſand, Two Hundred and Ninety Pounds, beſides the Tenth he offered to Hercules, and three Months Corn he diſtributed among the Poor. He himſelf was ſlain, and his Army routed near this City, by Orodes King of Parthia. Hence Lucian ſays,

> ——— Miſerando funere Craſſus
> Aſſyrias Latio maculavit ſanguine Carras.

Where it is to be Noted, That he calls it the Aſſyrian Carræ, by Poetical Licence, becauſe formerly the Aſſyrians had been Lords thereof. It was alſo memorable, for a Famous Temple of the Moon, Worſhipped here (but no where elſe) in both Sexes; ſome honouring it as a Female Deity, then called Dea Luna; and others in the Dreſs and Shape of a Man, by them called Deus Lunus. But with this Proviſo, ſays Partianus, That he who Worſhipped the Moon, in the ſhape of a Man, ſhould preſerve his Authority over his Wife, but he that Worſhipp'd her in the ſhape of a Woman, ſhould be for ever ſubject to his Wife; which makes us think there were but few of this Religion. Heylen.

HARBOROUGH: See HARBURG.

HARBURG, a German Town in the Dukedom of Lunenburg, on the Banks of the River Elbe, about two Leagues S. of Hamburg, and ſix Weſt of Lunenburg.

HARBURG, or Harborough, a Market-Town of Gartrey Hundred, in the utmoſt South parts of Leiceſterſhire, ſituate on the North ſide of the Weſand, which parts it from Northamptonſhire.

HARCOURT, Lat. Harcurtium, a Town and Caſtle of Normandy in France, about five Leagues from Evreux, and two N. of Beaumont. Of principal Note, for giving Name to the Ancient Family of the Harcourts, which has bred ſo many Great Men, both in Church and State: And amongſt others, the Lady Marie de Harcourt, famous for her great Courage, and Charity to the Poor. She was Daughter of John the VII. Count of Harcourt, and Wife of Anthony of Lorrain, Count of Vaudemont. This Generous Princeſs followed her Husband, in moſt of his Warlike Expeditions: And 'tis reported of her, that hearing of the Siege of Vaudemont, when ſhe was juſt got up from Child-bed, ſhe mounted on Horſeback, and with a ſmall Force, obliged the Enemy to raiſe the ſame. La Roque. Du Cheſne.

HARDERWICK, Lat. Hardervicum, or Hardebonas, a Sea Town of Guelderland in the Low Countries, under the States of Holland. It lies in that Tract of Guelderland, which is called the Velawe on the Zuider Zee, ſix Leagues W. of Deventer. An. 1503, it was burnt down to the Ground, but has been Rebuilt ſince, more Strong and Beautiful than formerly. It is alſo an Univerſity.

HARDI CANUTE: See CANUTE.

* HARDING (John) Eſq; a Man equally addicted to Arms and Arts. He liv'd in the XV. Age, in the Reign of Edw. IV. His firſt Military Imployment was under Robert Umfreville, Governour of Roxborough Caſtle, with whom he did good Service againſt the Scots. Afterwards he followed King Edward the IV's Standard, to whom he faithfully adher'd, not only in the Sunſhine of Proſperity, but alſo in his greateſt Diſtreſs. But the beſt Service he did the King, was his venturing into Scotland, and fetching thence out of their Records, many Original Letters, which he got by his Induſtry, but with great hazard of his life. He preſented 'em to the King, and thence Collected an Hiſtory of the ſeveral ſolemn Submiſſions publickly made, and Sacred Oaths of Fealty, openly taken by ſome of the Kings of Scotland, to the Kings of England, ſince the Reign of Ethelſtan. But Scotch Hiſtorians aſſert, that ſuch Homage, was perform'd only for the County of Cumberland, and ſome Parcels of Land their Kings had in England, South of the River Twede: Except in the Caſe of the Baliols, who promiſed to hold the Crown on theſe Terms, That they might be ſeated upon the Throne, by the Power of the Engliſh Kings, the People being averſe to them. He wrote alſo a Chronicle of the Kings in Verſe, from Brutus to the foreſaid King Edward IV. for which, he was accounted one of the chiefeſt Poets of his time.

* HARDTZ WALDT, a Mountain and Foreſt in Thuringia, in the S. of the Dutchy of Brunſwick, between Halberſtadt to the E. and Goſlar to the W. reaching between the Saal and the Weſer, called Sylva Herculis; and by Ptolomy, Sylva Semana; by Cæſar, Sylva Bacenis. Mercator, by Miſtake, makes it part of Sylva Hercinia.

HARDUEING (Denys) was born at Ghent, and died in 1606. He was a conſiderable Lawyer, Hiſtorian, and Maſter of the Polite part of Learning. His Works are, De Magiſtratibus Flandriæ. De Cancellarys Burgundiæ. Hiſtoria Eccleſiaſtica Flandriæ. De Illuſtribus Zelandiæ Familiis. De Nobilitate Burgundica, Namurcens & Leodicenſi. De Nobilitate Hiſpanica. Ælogia Gentis Farneſiæ, &c. * Valar. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

* HARE Sir (Nicholas) Deſcended from John, the Son of Mr. Nicholas Hare of Homersfield, in the County of Suffolk, of a good Houſe and Family; who was very Eminent in his Generation, and had been a great Benefactor to the Society of the Middle Temple, whereof he was Governour in the 30th. 32d. and 37th. of Henry VIII. As alſo in the 5th. of Edward VI. and in the 3d. and 4th. of Philip and Mary; and after he had been imployed with the D. of Norfolk in ſeveral Great Affairs, and ſerved at Court as Maſter of Requeſts to three Princes ſucceſſively, he was Advanced by Q. Mary to be Maſter of the Rolls, and one of the Privy-Council, and died Speaker of the Honourable Houſe of Commons, Oct. 31. An. 1557. He, together with his Lady, was Buried in the Temple Church near the Altar, under a fair Monument, with an Engraven Epitaph; but were removed, not long ſince, to the Round Walk under the Cupulo, which his Succeſſors are diſpleas'd at. This Sir Nicholas leaving no Iſſue, Sir Ralph Hare of Stow Bardolph, in the County of Norfolk, became Heir. This Sir Ralph had a Brother nam'd John, who was Father to Hugh, created by Charles I. Baron of Colrain in Ireland, Aug. 31ſt. 1625. and Married the Lady Lucy Mountague, ſecond Daughter to the Right Honourable Henry firſt Earl of Mancheſter, by whom he had Henry the preſent Lord Colrain, whoſe firſt Lady was Conſtantia, only Daughter to Sir Richard Lucy of Brooksbunbury, Com. Hartford, Knight and Baronet; by whom he has Iſſue, the Honourable Hugh Hare of Bechworth Com. Surrey, Eſq; his Eldeſt Son, married to Mrs. Lydia Carleton; and alſo the Honourable Lucius and Conſtantia Hare, not yet Married. His Lordſhips preſent Lady, is her Grace Sarah, Relict of John, late Duke of Summerſet.

HARFLEUR, Lat. Harflevium, a Town of Normandy in France, properly belonging to that part of it call'd le Pais de Caux. It ſtands at the Mouth of the Seine, three Leagues N. of Honfleur, and about two Eaſtward of Havre de Grace. But of little Note at preſent, becauſe not capable of any great Shipping, nor uſeful in the way of Trade, ſince Havre de Grace has intercepted it. Famous notwithſtanding in our Engliſh Hiſtory, for being the firſt Town, which that Victorious Prince, King Henry V. attempted and took in France, a little before the Battle of Agincourt; but now more Famous for the Defeat of the French Fleet under Tourville, by the Engliſh and Dutch under Admiral Ruſſel, off of the Cape called Cape Harfleur, An. 1692.

HARLAI, the Name of a moſt Noble and Ancient Family of France, famous for having bred Men of great Note in the World. Some derive their Original from England, and others from Burgundy; particularly from Harlay a Town in the Franche Compte. However, Francis de Harlai Son of Philibert, was the firſt that came and ſettled in France, in the Reign of Charles VI. One of them being ſent by Henry III. to the German Proteſtants, with an Embaſſy, he brought 12000 Men with him, and Defeated the Duke of Savoy, who oppoſed his March. He alſo ſerved Henry IV. with great Zeal. Achilles de Harley being firſt Preſident of the Parliament of Paris, upon the day of the Barricades, there being taken by the Leaguers, boldly declar'd againſt the undutiful Heats of thoſe People, who, under a vain pretence of Religion, diſpis'd the Royal Authority, and by ſo doing, outrag'd that Faith, which they pretended to Defend; and being threatned by 'em, he told them, That he hated to oppoſe his Prince, becauſe of a different Religion; that his Soul was in God's hands, his Body in theirs, and his Heart with the King, to whom afterwards he made his Eſcape.

HARLEM: See HAERLEM.

* HARLESTON, a Market-Town of Erſham Hundred, in the South Eaſt Borders of Norfolk, on the Weſt ſide of the River Wavency.

HARLEIGH alias HARLECH-CASTLE in the County of Merioneth, in the Principality of North Wales, ſtands on the Weſt part of the Sea-ſhore; it was a very ſtately Structure, and of exceeding ſtrength both by Art and Nature: Scituated on a Hill which is an entire Rock, from whence it takes it Name, for Arlech in the Brittiſh Tongue, ſignifies, upon a Rock, (as Mr. Cambden informs us). It is walled about, and has a double Bulwark commanding the Sea, and Paſſage of Entrance upon that Coaſt. In the Year 1591, Queen Elizabeth of England, &c. did, by Letters Patents, grant the Office of Conſtable of Harleigh-Caſtle, to John Eyre, Eſq; as a mark of Her Royal Favour, he being then Cup-Bearer to that Princeſs, having firſt been Page of Honour, and a Perſon very eminent for his Parts and Learning, and was much in eſteem in moſt of the Courts of Europe. Charles Nicolas Eyre, Eſq; Grandſon of John Eyre, ſucceeded him in the Honour of Conſtable of Harleigh-Caſtle; very near to the Walls was dug up a Golden Torques, being a wreathed Bar of Gold of three or four twiſts, about four foot in length, its believ'd to be of great Antiquity.

* HARLEY (John) Biſhop of Hereford, in the Reign of Henry VIII. was born in Buckinghamſhire, and bred in Magdalen-College in Oxford. No ſooner was Edward VI. come to the Crown, but he Preach'd Proteſtant Doctrine, when few People could tell which way the Tide would turn, and moſt Men were in ſuſpence. In a ſolemn Lent Sermon, that he Preach'd in St. Peter's Pariſh-Church in Oxford, he powerfully preſs'd Juſtification by Faith alone: Upon which, he was hurried up to London for an Heretick, where he was acquitted, Commended and Preferr'd to be Tutor to the Sons of John Earl of Warwick, afterwards Duke of Northumberland. Then he was made Biſhop of Hereford, but loſt his Biſhoprick, for being Married in the 1ſt. of Q. Mary.

* HARLINGEN, Lat. Harlinga, one of the chief Towns of Weſtfriezland, under the States of Holland, Situate at the Entrance of the Zuider Zee, where it has a pretty good Harbour, well Fortify'd, and hard to be taken, becauſe the Country about it, may be laid under Water.

* HARMAS, a Town of Bœotia in Greece, ſo called, becauſe the Southſayers Amphiaraus, was there ſwallowed under Ground. Therefore this Place was encompaſs'd with Pillars. And 'tis ſaid, that the very Birds would not reſt upon them, nor wild Beaſts eat the Graſs that grew upon that Ground. Stephanus.

* HARMONIDAS, a Trojan ſo belov'd by the Goddeſs Pallas, that ſhe taught him all what Architecture can perform. It was he that built the Ships that carried Paris into Greece. Homer Iliad. 5.

* HARNLAND, a Province of Livonia, having Finland on the N. Wirland on the E. and Wike on the S. It is 16 German Miles in length, and eighth in Breadth. And together with Wirland makes a Dutchy, ſubject to the Crown of Sweden. Guagnus.

HARO (Lewis de) A Grandee and Miniſter of State in Spain, he was Nephew to Gaſpard Duke de Olivarez, who, dying without Iſſue, Lewis ſucceeded in his Honour and Eſtate; but his Temper was much more even and unaſpiring than his Uncles; he did conſiderable ſervice to the Crown of Spain, and particularly, by Treating the Peace with Cardinal Mazarine between France and that Kingdom in 1659. He died in 1662. * Hiſt. du Siecla courant.

* HAROLD, King of England, for his Swiftneſs ſurnam'd Harefoot, was Son to Canute the firſt of the Name, by Algiva of Northampton his firſt Wife. Yet, ſome think him to have been Suppoſitious, and that ſhe had him of a Shoomaker's Wife, or a Maid-ſervant, to conceal her Barrenneſs. Upon King Canute's deceaſe, purſuant to his Teſtament, he was Proclaim'd King of England, in a great Aſſembly at Oxford, by D. Leofric. and the Mercians. But Alnot, then Archbiſhop, having the Regal Habiliments in his Cuſtody, refus'd to deliver 'em up to any but the Sons of Emma; for which Harold ever hated the Clergy, and they lov'd him accordingly. Godwin Earl of Kent, the Londoners, and the Weſt Saxons, ſtood all for Hardi Canute, the late King's Son by his ſecond Wife Emma: But he being then in Denmark, Harold prevail'd; yet ſo, as that the Kingdom ſhould be divided between 'em, and the Weſt and South part, reſerv'd by Emma for Hardi Canute, till his Return. But Harold having now the Power in his own hands, and being poſſeſs'd of his Father's Treaſure at Wincheſter, made it his buſineſs to ſecure all to himſelf. To get his two Half-brothers Edward and Alfred into his Power, he forg'd a Letter, in the Name of their Mother Emma, inviting them into England, the Copy whereof is to be ſeen in the Book call'd Encomium Emmæ. This Letter was ſent to the young Princes then in Normandy, by expreſs Meſſengers, with preſents alſo, as from their Mother. Their Anſwer was, by the ſame Meſſengers, that one of 'em would ſoon wait upon her, naming both the Time and Place. It was the Fate of Alfred, the Younger Brother to come over; who no ſooner Landed, but he fell into the hands of Earl Godwin, ſent on purpoſe to betray him. Being brought Priſoner to London, he was carried bound to Ely, had his Eyes put out by the way, and being deliver'd to the Monks of Ely, died ſoon afterwards in their Cuſtody. Emma full of Grief for the loſs of her Son, fled immediately to Baldwin Earl of Flanders, who Aſſign'd her a Dwelling at Bruges, where having Reſided about two Years, ſhe was viſited from Denmark by Hardi Canute her Son; who had not been long there, when Harold died at London or Oxford, and was Buried at Wincheſter, in the 5th. Year of his Reign, the leſs Lamented, becauſe a Tyrant, His Succeſſor was the ſaid Hardi Canute. Baker. Chron.

* HAROLD, the Second King of England, ſucceeded Edward the Confeſſor, Anno 1066. But his Reign was ſhort, and ended the very ſame Year. He was no ſooner Plac'd upon the Throne, but he began to be more Courtly than ever, framing himſelf to any thing, that he might gain the Love of his Subjects. He was Courteous to the Good, Diſcountenanc'd the Wicked; made good Laws, and Repeal'd bad ones. He ſtrictly charg'd his Officers to puniſh Thieves, Robbers, and all Diſturbers of the Peace, whilſt he himſelf ſhew'd his Zeal both by Sea and Land, for the Defence of the Realm. In the mean time, a Comet was ſeen with a terrible ſtreamer, which was look'd upon as a Prognoſtick of great Changes. The firſt Diſturber of Harold's peace was his Brother Toſti, who envying his younger Brother's Advancement to the Crown, did his utmoſt to Dethrone him. He came from Flanders with ſome Ships, and Infeſted the Coaſt of Hampſhire and Suſſex, putting the Iſle of Wight under Contribution. But hearing that Forces were preparing againſt him, he turn'd his Courſe towards Lincolnſhire, where he committed ſome Outrages, yet was ſoon forc'd to quit the Country, and ſeek for ſhelter at the Court of Malcolm King of Scots. Harold, it ſeems, in the Reign of King Edward, had been at the Court of William Duke of Normandy; where being kindly Entertain'd, he was ſo far wrought upon, as to promiſe voluntarily upon Oath, not only to deliver him Dover Caſtle, (then in his Poſſeſſion) but alſo to uſe his utmoſt Endeavour to procure him the Kingdom after King Edward's deceaſe. Whereupon the Duke's Daughter, then too young for Marriage, was Betroth'd to him, and on his Departure he was richly preſented by the Duke; who hearing afterwards that Harold had taken Poſſeſſion of the Crown, ſent Embaſſadors to mind him of his Promiſe and Oath. To whom he made this Anſwer, That by the death of his Daughter betroth'd unto him upon that Condition, he was abſolv'd from his Oath; adding ſuch other plauſible Reaſons, as ſeem'd to make the Duke's Demands unjuſt. Matthew Paris ſays, that he ſent his Meſſengers back, on lame and broken-winded Horſes. The Duke being incens'd at ſuch a Return, reſolves to get by Force what he could not compaſs by fair Means. Accordingly he fits out a great Fleet at St. Valery, and raiſes a choice Army to Invade England. Harold hearing of it, makes Preparation to reſiſt him, and cauſes ſtrong Watch to be kept on the Coaſt. But whilſt he was thus providing againſt Duke Will. Harold Harfager King of Norway, appears at the Mouth of the Tine with a prodigious Navy, which Earl Toſti having joyn'd with his Ships, ſet ſail with all ſpeed, and enter'd the River Humber, whence turning into the Ouſe, they landed; and being come before York took it by Storm. Harold with all his Forces march'd, gave 'em Battle, and cut off the greateſt part of 'em, with Harfager their King, and Toſti his own Brother; the reſt ſurrendring themſelves, he ſuffer'd freely to depart with 20 Ships, on Oath never to return as Enemies, and left Hoſtages for the performance of their Promiſe. Duke William, in the mean time, lay with a Fleet of 900 Sail ready at St. Valery, and waited only for a favourable Wind. At laſt he Lands at Haſtings in Suſſex, or as others ſay, at Pevenſy, Sep. 8th. 1066. King Harold was at Dinner when he receiv'd the firſt News of his Landing, little expecting the Duke would come out ſo late in the Year; and being puff'd up with the Thoughts of his late Victory, he contemn'd his Enemies. However, in great haſte, he marches to London, and thence into Suſſex, not tarrying for Supplies. Before the Battle, the Duke ſent him theſe Overtures, That he would either lay down his Scepter, or hold it of him, or try his Title by ſingle Combat in the ſight of both Armies, or refer it to the Pope. All which being rejected, both ſides prepar'd to fight next Morning: The Engliſh with ſinging and drinking all Night, the Normans by Confeſſion of their Sins, and taking the Communion. The 14th. of October was the Day of Battle; the Place, about nine Miles from Haſtings, ever ſince call'd Battle-field. The Fight was obſtinate and ſharp on both Sides, the Normans not being able to break the Main Body of the Engliſh Foot, till feigning a Retreat, the Engliſh broke their Ranks to purſue; when, on a ſudden the Normans turning back, got the Advantage: Yet the Valour of the Engliſh made the Victory a long time doubtful; for having got on an upper Ground, they beat the Normans down by Heaps, and fill'd a great Ditch with the Slain. At laſt, a fatal Arrow determin'd the Victory on the Normans ſide, killing King Harold, after he had maintain'd the Fight with unſpeakable Courage and perſonal Valour: For, he being ſlain, his Army fainted, and had not the Heart to ſtand any longer. With Harold fell alſo his two Brothers, Leofroin and Girtha, and the greateſt part of the Engliſh Nobility. The Duke himſelf eſcaped very narrowly, having had three Horſes killed under him. Thus England was Conquer'd again, which had ſo lately Recovered it ſelf from the Daniſh Yoke; and what the Danes could not do in 200 Years, the Normans did at one Blow, as may be ſeen more at large in the Reign of William the Conquerour. King Harold had married Aldgith, Daughter of Algar Duke of Mercia, whom Edwin and Morear her Brothers, hearing of the King's Death, ſent with all ſpeed to Weſtcheſter. As for the Body of Harold, the Conquerour ſent it without Ranſom to his Mother, who buried it at Waltham, in a Church built at his own Charge.

HARPAGUS, the great Confident and Favourite of Aſtyages King of Media, who inſtead of putting young Cyrus to Death (as commanded) ſaved him. In Revenge whereof the King cut Harpagus his Son in pieces, and cauſed him to be ſerved at his Father's Table; who thereupon kept a Correſpondence with Cyrus, aſſiſted him to overcome Aſtyages, and was made General of his Forces. Herold l. 1. & 2.

* HARPALICE, Daughter to Lycurgus King of Thracia. She was a great Huntreſs, and a warlike Woman. Hearing that her Father was taken by the Getes, ſhe preſently got together ſome Troops, fell upon the Enemy, and reſcued him. Virgil.

HARPALUS, a learn'd Aſtrologer, who lived about the 75 Olympiad. He corrected the Cycle of eight Years, which Cleoſtratus of Tenedos had invented, to fit the Sun's Courſe to the Moon's, and propos'd another of nine Years, which was followed for ſome time, till Meton, Pauſanias his Son, finding ſome Errors in it, publiſhed in the 86 Olympaid his Enneadecaterides, that is, his Cycle of 19 Years, call'd the Golden Number. Diodor. Sicul. l. 12.

HARPALUS, a Captain under Alexander the Great, who being made Governour of Babylon, plunder'd the Royal Palace in his Maſters Abſence, and came into Greece to raiſe a Rebellion there. But finding himſelf purſued by Antipater, he eſcap'd into Candia, where he was treacherouſly killed. Q. Curtius.

HARPIES, fabulous Monſters, Daughters of Neptune and the Earth; ſo called from the Greek ἁρπάζειν, to ſnatch or raviſh. They were ſaid to dwell in Iſlands partly by Sea and partly by Land. They are feigned to be Fowls with a Virgins Face and Bears Ears, their Bodies like Vultures, and Hands like their hooked Talons. Virgil mentions three of them, viz. Aello, Ocypete, and Celæno, which laſt Homer names Podarge. But Heſiod takes notice only of the firſt two. According to the Poets, they haunted Phineas's Houſe, infected his Meat, and ſnatched it from his Table. But Zetes and Calais, two famous Argonauts (Sons of Boreas by Orithya) being winged, were ſent thither, and drove them away to the Iſlands Strophades. The ſence whereof is this: Firſt, By the Argonauts are only meant Phœnician Merchants that went into Colchis to buy Sheep: And the Harpies were nothing but Locuſts, ἁρπύια in Greek, and Arbeh in Hebrew, ſignifying a Locuſt. And as the Locuſts in Egypt were driven away by the North Winds; ſo the Poets feign'd the Harpies to be driven away by Zetes and Calais, Sons of Boreas the North-wind. The Harpies cauſed a Famine in Phineas's Country, and 'tis well known that whole Provinces have been eaten up by Locuſts, as you may ſee more at large in Bochart's Hierozoicon. The Harpies caus'd a great ſtink, ſo will Locuſts; and when they die for want of Food, they ſo poiſon the Air, that it ſometimes brings the Plague. The Harpies infected what they touched; ſo do the Locuſts. Going to devour Phineas's Meat they made ſuch a Noiſe, that they were heard at a good diſtance; ſo do the Locuſts with their Teeth when they eat, and with their Wings when they fly. Phineas could not hinder their coming at him, agreeable to what the Prophet Joel ſays of the Locuſts wherewith he threatned the Jews. They ſhall, ſays he, run to and fro in the City, climb up upon the Houſes, and enter like a Thief at the Windows. The Harpies got away without any harm; and the ſame is ſaid of the Locuſts in Joel; When they fall upon the Sword, ſays he, they ſhall not be wounded. Biblioth. Univ. T. I.

HARPOCRATES, the God of Silence among the Egyptians, pictur'd with his Finger upon his Mouth. The Peach-Tree was Conſecrated to him, whoſe Leaf is ſhaped like the Tongue, and its Fruit like the Heart. Tho' 'tis likely the Story was taken from Harpocrates, a Greek Philoſopher, whoſe Precepts were moſt for Silence, and againſt Freedom of Speech; whence the Proverb mentioned by Catullus, Harpocratem reddere, that is, to ſtrike one Dumb, or make him hold his Tongue. Natalis Comes.

HARPSFEILD (Nicholas) Archdeacon of Canterbury, he appear'd very zealous for the Roman Catholick Religion, and to ſupport that Intereſt ſubmitted to twenty three years Impriſonment under Queen Elizabeth, and died under that reſtraint in 1582. He wrote ſix Dialogues againſt the Magdeburgenſes, publiſhed by Alanus Copus. A Hiſtory of England. An Account of Wicliff's Hereſie, &c. * Pits de Script. Angl.

* HARRINGTON (Sir John) one of the moſt ingenious Engliſh Poets of his Time, Born in Somerſetſhire, Bred in Cambridge, and Liv'd in the Reigns of Q. Elizabeth (who was his God-mother) and K. James I. He is particularly Noted for his Witty Book of Epigrams, and his ingenious Tranſlation of Orlando Furioſo out of the Italian. There are two noted Jeſts; one his own, and the other made upon him. The firſt happen'd at the Lady Roberts Houſe, his Wife's Mother, where they us'd to go to Dinner extraordinary late. A Child of his being there ſaid Grace, which was that of the Primmer, wherein are theſe words, Thou giveſt them Meat in due Seaſon; upon which Sir John ſtopt the Child as ſpeaking an Untruth; for here (ſays he) we never have our Meat in due Seaſon. The other happened at an Ord'nary in Bath, to which Sir John frequently repair'd, where he obſerv'd a young Woman that waited at Table, neglecting other Gentlemen who ſate higher, and were of greater Eſtates, but moſt officious to him. He ask'd her the Reaſon of it; and her Return was, That knowing him to be a witty Gentleman, ſhe was cautious not to diſpleaſe him, leſt he ſhould make an Epigram upon her, wittily referring to his Book of Epigrams.

HARRIOT (Thomas) a Man accompliſh'd in all kinds of Learning, eſpecially the Mathematicks, to which his Genius ſeem'd in a peculiar manner adapted. He was born at Oxford about the Year 1560, and had afterwards his Education there, in St. Mary Hall. He well merited his Degrees in Arts in that Univerſity, to which he was ſo great an Ornament. He was Contemporary with Mr. Oughtred, though ſome Years elder; Providence ſeeming to deſign this happy conjuncture of Time for the preſenting to the World thoſe two great Reſtorers of Mathematick Learning; and therefore it would be an Injuſtice to him, and to our Country where he was born, if we ſhould omit making an honourable mention of his Name; and the rather, becauſe a Neighbouring Nation has been in a fair way of Robbing him and us of his deſerved Praiſe. The great Des Cartes, in thoſe Works of his, which have made him moſt Renowned, ſhines with the light borrowed from this Illuſtrious Perſon, as will appear to any who ſhall compare their Books, and conſult the Learned Dr. Wallis in his Treatiſe of Algebra in Engliſh, (both in the Book, and the Preface) and alſo in the Latin Edition more fully, (at the end of the Preface, and after Chap. 53.) Where he accurately compares the Improvements that Harriot made in his Book called Artis Analyticæ Praxis, with what Des Cartes advanced after, as his own (without mentioning the Name of Harriot) in his Geometry; and gives it clearly of Harriot's ſide, upon fair and convincing Reaſons; as,

Firſt, Harriot's Book was publiſhed ſeveral Years before that of Des Cartes, viz. An. 1631; the other not till 1637.

Secondly, Des Cartes was in Holland when Harriot's Book was printed, where it was eaſie for him to have procured it; but he came into England from thence the ſame Year, viz. 1631. And a Man of his Curioſity can't be ſuppos'd to be a ſtranger to a Book which was ſo newly made publick, and writ upon a Subject on which his own thoughts were ſo deeply engaged.

Thirdly, He obſerves the ſame Method. Des Cartes ſeems to have been ſo well ſatisfied in theſe Improvements of Algebra to be found in Harriot, and the condition to which it was by him reduced, (they are the words of Doctor Wallis, Cap. 55. begin.) that in his Geometry (quam ego Algebram potius dicerem, as he ſays in another place, in his Epiſt. to Sir Sam. Morland, at the end of the 53 Chap. Lat. Edit.) firſt publiſhed in French An. 1637. and afterward in Latin by Fr. Van Schooten, An. 1649, & 1659. He doth perfectly follow Harriot almoſt in every thing, and adds very little of his own, if any thing (as to pure Algebra) to what we have before ſhewed out of Harriot. Without which Foundation (ſays he, Chap. 30.) that whole Superſtructure of Des Cartes (I doubt) had never been.

And in the Letter but now mentioned, he takes pains to compare them through the very particulars in ſix or ſeven Pages; and in his Letter to Preſtet of the ſame length, and next following, he hath confirmed this with great advantage on his ſide over his Adverſary. This truth appear'd ſo plain to his Country-man Monſieur Roberval, that when Sir Charles Cavendiſh being at Paris, ſhewed him Harriot's Book, he was convinced that Des Cartes had peruſed it; and being ſtartled he fell into this Exclamation, Il l'a veu! Il l'a veu! He hath ſeen it! He hath ſeen it! finding all that in Harriot which he had before admired in Des Cartes, and not doubting but that Des Cartes had it from thence, Cap. 53.

Notwithſtanding it muſt be granted, that Des Cartes added divers Geometrical Effections and Accommodations of Algebra to many Geometrical Propoſitions, as Vieta, Getaldus, Oughtred, and others, had done before, and many others have done ſince, (Ibid. Cap. 55.) but that was not Harriot's buſineſs here. The Learned Publiſher of this Book of his (Mr. Warner in his Preface and Epilogue thereto) informs us, that there were many other Mathematical Books written by this Author, and thoſe full of excellent knowledge (never printed, and now probably loſt) and that this Algebra was publiſhed as a neceſſary Prodromus to the intended Publiſhing thoſe others, and an Introduction for the better underſtanding of them, Cap. 53. begin.

Of this Treatiſe this Account given is the fuller, becauſe the Book it ſelf has been but little known abroad; poſſibly for the Reaſons before-mentioned, that the Author has had the misfortune to be Eclipſed by the great Name of Des Cartes, and the Improvements he had made upon it, and the ſucceſs his Book met with, where Harriot, by this means, had ſcarce the good fortune to be named.

Some little time after the Year 1579, leaving the Univerſity, he was taken into the Family of Sir Walter Rawleigh, that he might, at leiſure hours, inſtruct him in the Mathematicks. He accompanied him in his Expedition to Virginia; of which Country, Sir Walter encourag'd him to give a Deſcription, which is printed both in Latin and Engliſh. After his Return he was Invited into the Family of the E. of Northumberland; who, after he was Condemned to perpetual Impriſonment in the Tower, entertained him, and other eminent Mathematicians, allowing them both a ſplendid Table and large Penſions; to him particularly 120 l. per Annum.

He lived about ſixty Years, and died the 2d of July 1621. He was had in great Eſteem, as appears by the ſumptuous Funeral made for him by the eminent Men in that Learning, and by the coſtly Monument erected for him in the Church of St. Chriſtopher, London, where he was buried; with this Elogy, amongſt other things, ſaid in his Praiſe. (Dr. Wallis's Algebra at the end of his Pref. to the Lat. Edit.)

* HARRISON (Thomas) a Man of mean Extraction, advanc'd by the Parliament to be Major-General of their Army: But more particularly noted, for his being one of the Judges of King Charles I. and drawing up the Sentence of his Condemnation: For which (after the Return of King Charles II.) on Wedneſday the 10th of October 1660. he was Tried and Condemn'd; and on the Saturday following, Executed at Charing croſs.

HARTBEN, a famous Swediſh Giant, 9 Cubits high, who had always 12 Champions by him to tye him faſt, when he was taken with a Fighting-fit. There are many more fabulous Stories of him, which, for brevities ſake, I ſhall omit. Saxo Grammaticus.

* HARTFORD, Lat. Hartfordia, the chief Town of Hartfordſhire, twenty Miles North Weſt off London. It ſtands on the River Lea, and conſiſts of three Pariſhes; the turning of the High-way through Ware, has been much to its prejudice. Here however are kept the County Aſſizes; and here was held a Synod in the Dawning of Chriſtianity among the Saxons, in which St. Auſtin had a conſultation with the Britiſh Biſhops. Afterwards noted for giving the Title of Earl to the Illuſtrious Family Surnam'd De Clare; for being a goodly Patrimony, and an Addition of Honour to John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter; and now it gives the Title of Marqueſs to the Duke of Somerſet.

* HARTFORDSHIRE, ſo call'd from Hartford, the Chief Town thereof. In Latin, Hartfordienſis Comitatus. It is call'd the Garden of England, is an In-land County, and lies betwixt Bedford and Cambridgeſhire on the North, Middleſex on the South, Eſſex on the Eaſt, and Buckinghamſhire on the Weſt. The utmoſt length thereof from North to South, is 27 Miles; its breadth from Eaſt to Weſt, much the ſame. The whole is divided into 8 Hundreds, wherein are 120 Pariſhes, and 17 Market-Towns. The Ancient Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Bedford and Buckinghamſhire, were named Catieuchlani by the old Romans. The Country was divided betwixt the Kings of Mercia and the Eaſt Saxons in the Time of the Heptarchy, as it is at this day, betwixt the Biſhops of London and Lincoln, as to their Epiſcopal Juriſdiction. A Country ſo ſweet and healthful, that it is commonly ſaid of ſuch as purchaſe Houſes or Lands therein, that they pay two Years purchaſe for the Air thereof; which, together with its nearneſs to London, makes it to be very well Inhabited; eſpecially by Gentry and Merchants, who have here their Country Houſes, uſually term'd Buries, as in other Shires, Places, Courts, Halls, Mannors; and ſo great is their number, that from Ware to London, which is 20 Miles, the Road is full of neat Towns and Gentlemens Houſes, affording a pleaſant and diverting Proſpect all the way, beſides the conveniency of a large, dry and ſmooth Road. The Soil is abundantly Fruitful, yielding plenty of Graſs, Corn, Cattle and Wood, and wants nothing either for Conveniency or Delight. Laſtly, out of this County are Elected, beſides the two Knights of the Shire, four Members of Parliament, two for Hartford, and two for St. Albans.

* HARTLAND-POINT, Lat. Herculis Promontorium, upon the Southern Sea, in the North-weſt Parts of Devonſhire.

* HARTLE-POOL, a Market and Sea-Port Town in the Biſhoprick of Durham, noted only for its Situation upon a Neck of Land ſhooting forth into the Sea, which ſurrounds it on all ſides but the Weſt.

HARTMAN (George) a Mathematician, liv'd in the XVIth Cent. in 1540. He Invented the Bâton de l'Artillerie, or Baculus Bombardicus. * Voſſius de Mathem.

HARTMAN (Wolfgangus) wrote the Annals of Augsburg in 1596. * Stumphius, in Comment. Rec. Helvet.

* HARVEY (William) a famous Engliſh Phyſician, Born at Folkſton in Kent, and Bred in Cajus College in Cambridge, where he Commenc'd Dr. of Phyſick. He ſtudied five Years at Padua in Italy; from whence being return'd home, he made a good Compoſition of Foreign and Domeſtick Learning, and was for many Years Phyſician to K. Charles I. It was he that firſt diſcovered the Circulation of the Blood, which being ſtrongly oppos'd at firſt, was found at laſt to be grounded upon ſound Reaſon, and his Opinion ſubmitted unto by the Learn'd. He was a great Benefactor to the College of Phyſicians in London, and died in the 80th Year of his Age, Anno 1657. Tho' he died a Batchelor, he may be ſaid to have Immortaliz'd his Name beyond the Advantage of a Poſterity, by his Books De Circulatione Sanguinis, De Generatione, and De Ovo.

* HARWICH, Lat. Harviacum, a Market, Borough and Sea-Port Town of Tendering Hundred in the Eaſt of Eſſex. It lies at the Mouth of the River Stowr, almoſt ſurrounded with the Sea, and having the benefit of a ſafe and capacious Haven. Famous of Old for a Naval Victory the Engliſh got here over the Danes, Anno 884. The Town is ſtrong both by Art and Nature; Populous, but ſomething to ſeek for freſh Water. Being the readieſt Paſſage for Holland, 'tis therefore the Station for the Packet-Boats imployed for that purpoſe.

HASCORA, ASCORA, or ESCURA, a Province of Morocco in Africk. It lies betwixt Duccala on the North, Morocco on the South, and Tedles on the Eaſt. A fruitful Country, intermixt with rich Fields and pleaſant Gardens, furniſhed with moſt ſorts of choice Fruits, and amongſt others, Grapes of an extraordinary bigneſs. It has alſo good ſtore of Honey, and ſome Mines of Iron, and is inhabited by a more civil People than the reſt of the Country. The Chief City is Elmadina, otherwiſe called Haſcora, 80 Miles N. E. of Morocco, on a branch of the Atlas. It conſiſts of 2000 Families, and was liable to much Oppreſſion before it was ſubjected to the King of Fez. Leo Af. p. 90.

HASBAT, or HOBAT, a Province of the Kingdom of Fez in Affrick; 'tis ſcituate upon the Streight of Gibralter. It's Towns are Arzille, Tangier, Ceuta, &c.

HASEL, or VAL HASEL, a Valley and Bayliwick of the Canton of Berne in Swiſſerland, extending from the Lake of Brientz, to the Head of the River Aar, and Mount Grimſel; abounding with excellent Paſturage, and noted for its Iron Mines. Near unto it is a Hill called Engſtlen, out of which iſſues a Spring near that of the River Aar, always dry but in June, July, and Auguſt, when they turn the Cattel to the Mountains; and then it runs only Mornings and Evenings, at the time of watering the Cattel. 'Tis ſaid, that if any dirty thing be thrown into it, it dries up, and runs not till ſome days after. Simler and Plantin, Deſcr. of Swiſſerland.

* HASELMERE, a Market and Borough Town of Godalming Hundred in the South Weſt of Surrey, upon the Borders of Hampſhire.

* HASLINGDEN, a Market Town of Blackburn Hundred in the South Eaſt of Lancaſhire.

* HASSEN CHERIFF, a Numidian, Born in the Province of Dara. He underſtood Philoſophy and Magick. To get himſelf into Credit with the People, he made great ſhew of Sanctity, and ſaid, he was Deſcended of the Ancient Mahometan Princes. He had three Sons which he ſent to Meccha, after having Educated them in his own Mode; who returning Enthuſiaſtically zealous, drew great numbers after them, the People reckoning it a great Priviledge to kiſs the Tail of their Gowns. His two Youngeſt he Adviſ'd to go to Fez about the Year 1508, Mahomet Oatar then Reigning. There the one got a Pulpit in the College of Moderaſe, the other was made Tutor to the King's Children; in the mean time their Father demanded the Government of Morocco, Suſa, Tremeſen, and ſome other Places, on pretence to Defend them againſt the Chriſtians, which the Emperor granted. He was ſucceſsful enough at firſt, and the People followed him; but at laſt Taban Ben Juſuf, a Tributary to the King of Portugal, and the Cheriff's Mortal Enemy, fought him, and routed his Army; and Rallying a ſecond time, was ſlain himſelf. Thuanus.

* HASTINGS, a Market, Sea-Port, and Borough Town of Haſtings Rape in the South Eaſt of Suſſex. This is one of the Cinque-Ports, and conſiſts of two Streets, extending from North to South, with a Pariſh Church to each Street. Its Haven is fed by a ſmall River, and had once for its Defence a ſtrong Caſtle ſeated on a Hill, in whoſe Ruins Lights being now placed, it ſerves in the Night for a Direction to Sailers. The Earl of Huntington is Baron of Haſtings, that Title being Conferr'd upon Sir William Haſtings by Edward IV. This Town had a Pere of Timber, but is now deſtroy'd by the Sea. A Brief was granted by Q. Elizabeth to Collect Money for its Repair, which being miſpent, it was never perform'd, ſo that the Trade and Place is ſince decay'd.

* HASTINGS (Theophilus) the preſent Earl of Huntington, is the Seventh Earl of that Name from his Anceſtor George Lord Haſtings and Hungerford, created Earl of Huntington by King Henry VIII. Anno 1529. Which George was Grandſon to William Lord Haſtings, a Perſon of great Note for his eminent Imployment and ſingular Truſts, the Reward of his firm adhering to the Houſe of York. King Edward IV. made him Lord Chamberlain of the Houſhold, and Baron Haſtings of Aſhby de la Zouch, &c. But the King's Brother, Richard Duke of Glouceſter, perceiving him to obſtruct the way to his ambitious Deſigns, procured his Diſgrace, and caus'd him to be Beheaded without any Form of Trial: However his Son Edward ſucceeded him, and found ſo much Favour from K. Henry VIIth. that he was reſtored to his Father's Honours and Eſtate. This Edward was the Father of George aforeſaid, who firſt brought into the Family the Title of Earl of Huntington, to whom ſucceeded Francis his Son and Heir, An. 1544; Henry Son and Heir of Francis, 1561; George, Brother to Henry, 1595; Henry, Grandſon and Heir to George, 1604; Ferdinand, Henry's Son and Heir, 1643; and laſtly, Theophilus the now Earl, Son to the ſaid Ferdinand, 1655.

* HATFIELD, a Market Town of Harlow Hundred in the Weſt of Eſſex: And alſo a Town of Broadwater Hundred in Hartfordſhire, otherwiſe call'd Biſhops Hatfield. Noted for the ſtately Houſe of the ſame Name; formerly a Royal Palace, till it came, by way of Exchange, to the Poſſeſſion of the Earl of Salisbury.

* HATHERLEY, a Market Town of Black Torrington Hundred in the Weſt of Devonſhire, Seated on the Towridge.

* HATTEM, a ſmall Town in Guelderland, ſubject to the States of Holland. 'Tis Seated on the River Yſſel, about five Leagues from its fall into the Sea.

* HATTON (Chriſtopher) Lord High Chancellor of England in Q. Elizabeth's Reign, Born at Holdenby in Northamptonſhire; but deſcended from an ancient Family in Cheſhire, deriving its Pedigree from Nigel Baron of Hatton in that County. He was bred up to the Law in the Inns of Court, but more like a Gentleman, than one who pretended to raiſe himſelf by that Profeſſion. The Queen firſt took Notice of him for the comelineſs of his Perſon, and his graceful Dancing in a Mask at Court; but more afterwards for his great Abilities, which rais'd him to the high Degree of Chancellor, not without the Envy of thoſe who were much better Lawyers. Mr. Dugdale in his Baronage of England, ſays, That he became firſt one of the Queen's Gentlemen-Penſioners, then Gentleman of the Privy-Chamber, and next Captain of the Guard. From which Office he ſlept to be Vice-Chamberlain, one of the Privy-Council, and at laſt Lord-Chancellor, with the Addition of the Garter. The truth is, he had a large Proportion of Gifts and Endowments; his Features, his Gate, his Carriage, his Parts, and his Prudence, ſtrove how to ſet him off. But as his Abilities were much above his Experience, ſo was this above his Learning, and his Learning above his Education: What he did was ſo exactly Juſt and Diſcreet, and what he ſpoke ſo weighty, that he was choſen to keep the Queen's Conſcience as her Chancellor, and to expreſs her Senſe as her Speaker. The Courtiers that envy'd the laſt Capacity, were by his Power forc'd to confeſs their Errors, and the Serjeants that refuſed to Plead before him at firſt, could not but own at laſt his Abilities. His Place was above his Law, but not above his Parts, which were ſo very pregnant and comprehenſive, that he could command other Mens knowledge to as good purpoſe as his own. And whereas 'tis ſaid, the Civil Law is ſufficient to dictate Equity, he made uſe of Sir Richard Swale, Doctor of the Civil Law, as a Servant and Friend, whoſe Advice he followed in all Matters of Moment. His Station was great, but his Humility greater, giving an eaſie Acceſs to all Addreſſes. His Diſpatches were quick, but weighty. His Orders many, yet all conſiſtent. Being very ſeldom revers'd in Chancery, and his Advice oppoſed more ſeldom in Council. He was ſo Juſt, that his Sentence was a Law to the Subject; and ſo wiſe, that his Opinion was an Oracle with the Queen. Her Majeſty, who never forgave Debts, call'd him to an Account for an old one, and rigorouſly demanded preſent Payment. This ſtartled him, becauſe he could not do it at that time, and that Back-ſtroke went ſo deep to his Heart, that it caſt him into a Mortal Diſeaſe. The Queen ſorry for what ſhe had done, endeavour'd what ſhe cou'd to recover him, and brought him Cordials with her own hands, but all would not do. Thus he died a Batchelor, Anno 1591. and was Buried under a ſtately Monument in the Quire of St. Paul's. He adopted Sir William Newport his Siſters Son, for his Heir, who upon that chang'd his Name to Sir William Hatton; but in default of Iſſue-Male by him, he ſettled the greateſt part of the Eſtate upon his Godſon Chriſtopher Hatton, Son and Heir of John Hatton, his neareſt Kinſman of the Male-Line; which Chriſtopher, upon the Death of Sir Will. Newport without Iſſue Male, did accordingly enjoy it, and was made Knight of the Bath, at the Coronation of King James I. from whom is Deſcended the preſent Lord Viſcount Hatton.

* HATTON (Chriſtopher) the preſent Viſcount, takes his Denomination from the Lordſhip of Hatton in Cheſhire, and is Grandſon to that Sir Chriſtopher Hatton, who ſucceeded in the Eſtate of the Lord Chancellour Hatton, and left a Son of his Name, who was made Knight of the Bath, at the Coronation of King Charles I. and always ſtood firm to his Majeſty's Intereſt. In conſideration whereof he was by the ſaid King created a Baron, by the Title of Lord Hatton of Kirby in Northamptonſhire, and made Comptroller of his Majeſty's Houſhold. He died in July 1670, leaving two Sons and three Daughters by Elizabeth his Wife, the Eldeſt of the three Daughters and Co-heirs of Sir Charles Montague, a younger Brother to Henry late Earl of Mancheſter. Of his two Sons Chriſtopher and Charles, the Eldeſt, this preſent Lord, was afterwards advanced by King Charles II. to the Dignity of Viſcount, and made Governour of Garnſey, as his Father was before him. He married the Lady Chriſtian Tufton, Daughter of John Earl of Thanet; and by her has Iſſue one only Daughter named Anne, married to the preſent Earl of Nottingham.

HATTON, or HAYTON, one of the Premonſtratenſian Monks, liv'd in the Year 1300. He wrote a Book call'd Hiſtoria Orientalis, the laſt Edition of which was Printed at Cologne, in 1671. * La Croix du Maine, &c.

* HATWAN, or HADWAN, a fortify'd Town in Upper Hungary on the Zagyne, five Miles N. of Peſt, and ſix from Agria. It hath been ſeveral times Taken and Re-taken by the Turks and Germans, and was Abandon'd by the latter in 1604.

HAVANA, Lat. Havana, the chief Town of Cuba, one of the two great Iſlands in the Gulph of Mexico, well fortify'd. A noted Port of good Trade in the North of the Iſland, oppoſite to Florida, and the uſual Reſidence of the Governour of Cuba. 'Tis alſo the Rendezvous of the Ships bound for Spain, from all parts of the Gulph, tarrying here for one another, till all being met together, ſail hence by the Streights of Bahonia. Though this Place be well Fortify'd, yet the Buccaniers a few Years ſince, with a ſmall number of Ships ſurpriz'd and plunder'd it, making the Inhabitants pay a vaſt ſum to ſave it from being burnt. It is the beſt frequented Port of all the Weſt-Indies.

HAVELBERG, Lat. Havelburga, a Town of Brandenburg in the Lower Germany. Its Name expreſſes the ſituation of it on a Hill, near the River Havel; which falls a League lower into the Elbe, about 10 Leagues North Weſt of Berlin. Havelberg was formerly a Biſhop's See, ſuffragan to the Arch Biſhop of Magdeberg, till it was made Secular during the German Wars, and yielded up to the Elector of Brandenburg by the Treaty of Paſſaw.

* HAVERFORD WEST, a Market and Borough Town of Rowſe Hundred in the Cledbewen in Pembrokeſhire.

* HAVERILL, a Market Town of Risbridge Hundred in the South Weſt Parts of Suffolk, upon the Edge of Eſſex and Cambridgeſhire, ſituate near the Spring of the Stowr, which divides Suffolk from Eſſex.

* HAVILAH, a Town of old Arabia Petræa, ſo called from Havilah the Son of Chus. It was the fartheſt Border of the Amalekites and Iſraelites, on the Gulph of Perſia, as Sur was on the Red Sea, or Gulph of Arabia. The Land of Havilah is partly that which is now called Chuſeſtan or Suſiana, a Province of Perſia.

* HAVRA, a Seaport of Arabia Fœlix on the Red Sea, 20 Leagues N. of Algier. It is a wealthy Place, defended with a Caſtle, and noted for a Quarry, whence ſtone Pots were digged, and for the Neighbourhood of Mount Radua to the South of it, which affords the beſt Stones in the World. Nubienſis.

* HAURAN, a Town of Geſhur in the North parts of Paleſtine, mentioned by the Prophet Ezekiel Ch. 47. whence the North parts took the Name of Auranitis.

HAURE DE GRACE, Lat. Portus Gratiæ, or Franciſcopolis, a noted Sea-port of Normandy in France, ſituate between Harfleur and Feſcamp, at the Mouth of the River Seine (the ſame that runs through Paris) about 20 Leagues from Rouan. The Town is very pleaſant and well built, with the conveniency of a fine Harbour, which makes it capable of good Trade. Francis I. from whom it is called in Latin Franciſcopolis, began to fortifie it, in order to make it a Bulwark againſt the Engliſh; and his Succeſſor Henry finiſhed what he had begun. During the Civil Wars of France in the laſt Century, it was taken by the Proteſtants, Anno 1562, who deliver'd it up to the Engliſh. But the Year after the Engliſh loſt it again, the Place being then infected with a grievous Peſtilence. Lewis XIII. increaſed its Fortifications, and Built a Cittadel in it, with four great Royal Baſtions. It is a very important Place, and look'd upon as one of the Keys of France. It was ſeverely Bombarded by the Engliſh Fleet in the Year 1694, and a great part of it ruined. Thuanus. Du Cheſne.

HAUTE-COMBE, a Village in Savoy, a League from Bellay, with an Abby of Ciſtertian Friars. Of ſpecial Note for its wonderful Spring, which dries up and runs again twice in an Hour. Papyri Maſſon.

* HAUTE-RIVE, a Town of upper Languedoc in France, on the River Auriege, 13 Miles South of Tholouſe.

* HAWKWOOD (Sir John) Born at Sible Heningham in Eſſex, in the Reign of Edward III. His extraction was mean, his Education ſuitable, but his Improvement in Arms wonderful. His Father was Gilbert Hawkwood a Tanner, who bound him Apprentice to a Taylor in London; but he ſoon turn'd his Needle into a Sword, and Thimble into a Shield. Being preſs'd for the King's Service in his French Wars, he behav'd himſelf ſo valiantly, that it was not long before he became Captain of a Company of Foot Soldiers, and afterwards Knighted for ſome good Service. But a Peace being Concluded between the Two Crowns, and his Eſtate not able to maintain his Title, he went into Italy with ſome Engliſh Forces to advance his Fortunes. There he ſerv'd firſt with good Succeſs in the War of John Marqueſs of Montferrat, next under Galeaze Duke of Milan, being courted thereunto by Barnaby his Brother, with whom he got into ſuch Eſteem by his ſucceſsful Valour, that he gave him the Lady Domitia his Daughter in Marriage with a Portion ſuitable. This Alliance ſpread his Fame far and near, chiefly throughout Italy; yet upon farther hopes, or perhaps ſome Diſguſt, he quitted his Father-in-Law's Intereſt, and ſided with his Enemy. Afterwards ſeeking new Adventures, he went to Rome, where the Pope gave him the Command of his Forces for the Recovery of that part of Provence which had Revolted from him. Having effected this, he went to the Florentines, whom he ſerved ſo ſucceſsfully, that he was look'd upon as the beſt Soldier of the Age. This valiant Knight died in Florence, very Aged, Anno 1394. in the 18th. of Richard II. The Florentines, to perpetuate the Memory of his great Exploits, and faithful Service to the State, Honour'd him with the Statue of a Man of Arms, and a ſumptuous Monument. His Friends alſo rais'd him one of Stone at Sible Heningham, Arch'd over, with a Repreſentation of Hawks flying in a Wood in alluſion to his Name. But its ſince utterly deſtroy'd. He had a Son nam'd John, born in Italy, who was Knighted and Naturaliz'd in the Reign of Henry IV.

* HAY, a Market Town of Talgarth Hundred in the Eaſt of Brecknockſhire, ſituate on the South ſide of the River Wye.

* HAY, (James) a Scotſman, Earl of Carliſle. He liv'd in the Reign of King James I. who advanced him to that Dignity, and is particulary noted in Hiſtory for his Sumptuous way of Living and great Entertainments, the uſual Fruits of Peace; and particularly of that peaceable Reign, when Feaſting, Masks, and Noble Appearances were more in Faſhion than has been perhaps ever ſince. King James ſent him Embaſſadour into France, where he ſpar'd for no Coſt to repreſent the Wealth and Glory of this Nation. Never was Embaſſy, perhaps more ſuitable to the French Vanity, or to the Subject of it; which was not State Intereſt, or the intricate Conſultations of War, but a Treaty of a Royal Match. Amongſt his Entertainments he had Ante-Suppers, the manner of which was, to have the Table covered at the firſt entrance of Gueſts, with Diſhes as high as a tall Man could well reach, fill'd with the choiceſt and moſt expenſive Rarities that Sea or Land could afford. At one of which Suppers an Attendant eat for his own ſhare, a whole Pie reckoned at Twenty Pounds, being made of Ambergreeſe, coſtly Pearl, Musk, &c. Yet was ſo far from being ſweet the next Morning, that he almoſt poiſon'd his whole Family, and was not able to bear his own ill ſmell. * Osburn.

LA HAYE, a Town of France in Tourain, call'd in Latin, Haga Turonica, and the Birth-place of Des Cartes. It ſtands on the River Creuſes, 26 Miles South of Tours, and 28 North-Eaſt of Poictiers.

* HAYLSHAM, a Market-Town of Pevenſey Rape in the Eaſt part of Suſſex.

* HAYNBURG, commonly called Hamburg, Lat. Comagenum, an ancient Town of the Lower Auſtria in Germany, ſeated on the Danube, over againſt the Mouth of the River Moraw, upon the Borders of Hungary, ſix Leagues Eaſt of Vienna.

HAYTON, A King of Armenia, who in the Year 1256, finding his Kingdom overrun and plunder'd by the Sarazens, went in perſon to Cublay, the great Cham of Tartary, and having perſuaded him to turn Chriſtian, got a conſiderable aſſiſtance of him, which were ſo ſucceſsful, as to expel the Saraʒens out of Armenia, Syria and the Holy Land. * Kirtcher's China.

* HAZAEL, King of Syria, who killed his Maſter Benhadad, and Reign'd in his ſtead: After that he made War againſt the Kings of Iſrael, and ſucceſſively defeated Joram, Jehu and Jehoahaʒ. 2 Kings 8, 10, 13.

* HAZOR, a Town of Paleſtine, the Royal City and Metropolis of the Canaanites. Memorable for its being the Rendezvous of 24 Kings of Canaan, in the War with Joſhua, by whom it was taken, and burnt. But being afterwards Rebuilt, it became the Royal Seat of Jabin King of the Canaanites, who grievouſly afflicted Iſrael for the ſpace of 20 Years, till vanquiſhed by Deborah and Barak. It was deſtroyed in that War, but Repaired by Solomon, and continued in ſo good Eſtate in our Saviour's time, that it was then a Decapolis, or one of the Ten Cities, at that time known by the Name of Antiopia. Now only a vaſt heap of Rubbiſh.

* HEA, a Province of the Kingdom of Morocco in Africk, bounded Eaſtward by the River Ecifelmeli; Southward, by the Great Atlas; and North and Weſt, by the Ocean. The Country is Mountainous and Woody, yet Watered with many pleaſant Rivulets, and would be plentiful enough in all Commodities, if the People were induſtrious. They have neither Flax, Hemp, nor Corn, but Barly. Wax and Goats Leather are their chief Commodities, the Country yielding plenty of Bees and Goats, of whoſe Skins they make Maroquin Leather. They have a ſort of Thorny Tree, call'd Erquen, bearing a Fruit about the bigneſs of an Apricock, which is nothing but a Stone, covered with a Skin, ſhining when ripe like a Star in the Night, and noted for the Oil that comes out of its Kernel; which is the only Oil they uſe, though of no pleaſant Taſte. They have abundance of Deer, Roe Bucks, Boars and Hares in their Woods. The People are Mahometans, but as ignorant of their Religion as they generally are of all Arts and Sciences: So that the very Teachers of their Law can hardly read. To cure themſelves of any Hurt or Diſeaſe, their only way is Cauſticks and Faſting, having neither Phyſician, Apothecary, nor Chirurgeon. But Barbers they have which they only make uſe of to ſhave, and Circumciſe their Children. Their Young Men keep their Hair and Beards ſhav'd till they Marry, and then they let their Beards grow, with a Lock of Hair on the Top of the Head, to ſhew they are true Mahometans. They feed more upon Goats Fleſh than Mutton or Beef, pretending 'tis wholſomer. Their Religion allows them not to uſe Spoons, but they eat with their Fingers on the ground, without Cloth or Napkins. They uſe only the Right Hand to Eat with, and the Left to waſh themſelves before Prayers. When they waſh their Hands they do not wipe them, but hold them up in the Air till they dry. Linen is ſo ſcarce that none but thoſe of Quality wear Shifts. They have but a few Horſes, and thoſe little; yet ſo nimble, that unſhod as they are, they climb the Hills like ſo many Goats. They plough with Aſſes, having neither Mules nor Oxen. Their mutual Fewds are great, and yet they are ſo kind to Strangers, that in ſome places, the beſt of them caſt Lots who ſhall entertain them, Their Arms are three or four Darts, with croked Daggers like a Sickle. They uſe Slings alſo, and the Croſs-bow. The chief Places of this Province, are Tedneſta, Teculeth, Tefethna, &c. Marmol. l. 3. Heylin.

* HEADON, a Market and Borough Town of Holderneſs in the Eaſt-Riding of York-ſhire, ſeated upon a ſmall River, four Miles Eaſt from Hull, but very much Decay'd ſince the Riſe of this laſt.

* HEATH (Nicholas) Arch-Biſhop of York, and Lord Chancellour of England in Q. Mary's Time, born in London, Educated firſt in Chriſt's College, and was afterwards made Fellow of Clarehall in Cambridge. He was Almoner to K. Henry VIII. who created him firſt Biſhop of Rocheſter, then of Worceſter; and being depriv'd by K. Edward VI. he was reſtor'd by Q. Mary, who advanced him to the Archbiſhoprick of York, and made him Lord High Chancellour of England. He was a Wiſe and a Learned Man, of great Policy, and as great Integrity; more Devout to follow his own Conſcience, than Cruel to proſecute others. In ſhort, He was ſo moderate and free from violent Extreams, that in the Diſputation between the Papiſts and Proteſtants, in the firſt Year of Q. Eliʒabeth, he was choſen one of the Moderators, Sir Nicholas Bacon being the other. Yet he could not be prevailed upon to take the Oath of Supremacy, which made him be Depriv'd again; whereupon he went to his own Seat at Cobham in Surrey, where he ſpent his old Age, in a Studious and Religious Manner, free from any Faction or Revenge. There he found himſelf rather eas'd then depos'd; and like another Abiathar ſent home by Solomon to his own Field, he found, in his Retirement, the Fruits of his Moderation, abounded in all Neceſſaries, and received frequent Viſits from her Majeſty, who was ſatisfied, that he Acted from a true Principle of Conſcience. He died about 1566.

HEBE, the Goddeſs of Youth, Daughter of Juno, without a Father; for it was ſaid, that Juno being invited to a Feaſt by Apollo, did eat ſo freely of Lettuces, that ſhe Conceived and bare Hebe, who for her Beauty was made Cup-bearer to Jupiter. But it hapned, that Jupiter being at a Banquet with the Ethiopians, Hebe waiting upon him, her Foot ſlipt, ſo that ſhe fell down a little diſorderly, upon which ſhe was diſcharg'd, and ſhe was diſplaced, and Ganymede put in her room. However when Hercules was made a God, ſhe was Married to him, and then it was ſhe reſtored Iolaus to his former Youth. The Moral of the Fable is this, That when Juno (by whom is meant the Air) is warmed with the hot Rays of Apollo the Sun, ſhe that before was Barren, begins to Conceive and bring forth Hebe the Spring, with Herbs and Flowers, and ſhe miniſters duly to Jupiter; till at the end of Summer, Jupiter caſts her out, and takes in Ganymede the Winter, or watery Sign Aquarius. Cic.

HEBER, the Son of Selah, Grandſon of Sem, and one of the Anceſtors of Abraham, Born in the Year of the World 1754, and lived 464 Years. At the Age of 35 he begat Phaleg, which ſignifies Diviſion, that being the Year that Noah divided the World amongſt his Children. According to moſt Writers, the Jews got the Name of Hebrews from Heber, but others derive it from Abraham, as did Auguſtin (which he retracted afterward, becauſe Abraham himſelf is called an Hebrew, Gen. 14. 13.) Joſephus. St. Jerome.

* HEBREW. The Hebrew Tongue was the Language of the Jews, ſuppoſed by ſome to have been the firſt and only Speech in the World. It was Naturally and Originally the ſame with that which Abraham found in the Land of Canaan at his coming thither; uſed conſtantly by the Jews, till their ſubjugation by the Babylonians. When being led Captive to that Country, and conforming themſelves to the Speech and Dialect of it, they came at laſt to ſpeak a kind of broken Language, neither the Chaldæan, nor good Hebrew, but a compoſition of both, being Chaldee as to the main Body, but Hebrew as to the Affixes, Points and Conjugations, and is the ſame that we now call Syriack. So that the Jews at their coming home after 70 Years Captivity, were not able to underſtand the words of the Holy Scripture, when Eʒra read it unto them; ſo that he was fain to imploy the Scribes who were Learned in the Hebrew Tongue, to Expound it. Heylin, lib. 3. p. 60.

HEBRIDES: See the Weſtern Iſles of Scotland.

HEBRON, an Ancient City of Paleſtine, 6 Germ. Miles from Jeruſalem, ſuppoſed to be built a little after the Flood. It belonged to the Tribe of Judah, but is now ruin'd. Abraham purchaſed it for a Burial-place, in which his Wife Sarah was firſt buried, and after her four of the Patriarchs. Adjoyning thereto is the Plain of Mamre, where Abraham ſitting in his Tent was viſited from Heaven by God in the ſhape of a Man. This Town was the Seat of the Giants, the Sons of Anak, and was taken by Joſhua, given to Caleb, and called Hebron after the Name of his Son. Here K. David kept his Court after the death of Saul, and reſided ſeven Years before he took Jeruſalem. To this place came the Tribes to Anoint him King over Iſrael; and hither came Abſalom, under pretence of paying his Vows, to Uſurp his Father's Kingdom: And when the Chriſtians conquer'd Paleſtine, Hebron was made an Epiſcopal See. Numbers XIII. Joſh. XIV. *Bochart Belon. * HEBRUS, the moſt noted River of Thracia in Greece, having Gold in its Sand. It riſes out of Rhodope, falls into the Ægean Sea (now call'd Archipelago) near the Iſland of Samothracia, and is of ſo ſlow a Courſe that it is not eaſie to diſcern its running. It is alſo memorable for the Fable of Orpheus, who was torn in pieces by the Thracian Women, and thrown into it. Virg. Ovid.

HECALE, a very poor, but vertuous old Woman, noted for her Hoſpitality to Theſeus, whom ſhe entertain'd as well as her Condition would allow; and vow'd to Sacrifice her ſelf to Jupiter, if he return'd ſafe from the War. But ſhe dying before his return, Theſeus in her Memory inſtituted a Feſtival Dedicated to Jupiter, thence Surnamed Hecalius. Crinagoras. Ovid.

HECATE, a Goddeſs called Luna in Heaven, Diana on Earth, and Hecate (or Proſerpina) in Hell. She was repreſented with three Heads; a Nag's head on the right, a Dog's on the left, and a wild Boar's in the middle; therefore called Triceps in Ovid, and Tergemina in Virgil. Heſiod and Muſæus make her Daughter of the Sun; Orpheus of Ceres, and others of the Night. Her Name is derived (according to Servius) from the Greek Hecaton, a hundred, either becauſe 100 Sacrifices were wont to be offer'd her, or becauſe ſhe detained on this ſide Styx, the Souls of unburied People 100 Years. She was skilful in Poiſons and their Antidotes, having obſerved the Virtues of Herbs while a hunting. She poyſon'd her Father, and flying for the ſame to her Uncle, married him, by whom ſhe had Circes and Medea. * Ovid. Tibullus.

HECATOMB, a Greek word that ſignifies a Sacrifice of a hundred Oxen, Cuſtomary among the Lacedemonians, who having a hundred Towns, did yearly Sacrifice as many Oxen to their Gods. But in time they grew better Husbands, and to ſave Charges reduced them to 23. At laſt they turn'd their Sacrifice of Oxen (as being too Expenſive) to Goats and Lambs. And Pythagoras, who believed the Metempſycoſis, contented himſelf to offer a Hecatomb of Paſte. Spon. Recherche d'Antiquite.

HECATOMPHONIES, a Feaſt ſolemniz'd by the Meſſenians, in Memory of their Victory over the Lacedemonians, wherein he that had kill'd 100 Enemies, ſacrific'd a living Man to Jupiter.

HECHEN, the fourteenth Caliph or Succeſſor of Mahomet, Son to Jeʒid el Gelid, began his Reign in 748, but immediately upon his coming to the Throne, was diſturb'd by Marvan, Governor of Egypt, whom the Saraʒens elected for their Caliph: This competition was the occaſion of great commotions, the Saraʒens of Syria abetting the Intereſt of Hechen, and thoſe of Egypt and Arabia that of Marvan. This latter Prince made a League with the Emperor Conſtantine, to which he was admitted upon condition of paying three hundred thouſand Bezants of Gold yearly to the Emperor, three hundred Horſe and three hundred Slaves, reſtoring withal that part of Thrace of which the Arabians were poſſeſſed. Upon theſe Conditions the Emperor promis'd to aſſiſt him, which he did accordingly, and that ſo effectually, that Marvan defeated Hechen, put him and his Sons to death, and as many of the Houſe of Gualid, as he thought might be dangerous to his Government. * Marmole de l'Affrique, Lib. 2.

HECLA, a Mountain in Iſeland, which like Veſuvius in Naples, and Ætna in Sicily, throws up dreadful Flames of Fire with ſuch abundance of black Aſhes and Pumice-ſtones, that they darken the Sun, and lay the Country deſolate for ſix Miles round. And here the Superſtitious People have the ſame Opinion with thoſe about Ætna; viz. That Hell is underneath it. But the natural Reaſon of theſe Flames is obvious, being occaſioned by Veins of Brimſtone under the Hill (great quantities whereof are ſent from hence into Foreign Parts.) Here are alſo to be found many Baths and Fountains of hot Water, which have Sulphur ſwimming at the top: And ſometimes the Hill vomits out ſcalding Water. Divers who have attempted to go near the place, for a Diſcovery, have been ſwallowed up. Baudrand. Heylin.

HECTOR, famous for his ſtout Defence of Troy, againſt the Grecians. He was Son to Priam, the laſt King thereof, and ſlain by Achilles, who dragg'd his Body at his Chariot thrice round the City, and then ſold it to his Father for a great Ranſom. Ovid. Virgil. Homer.

HECTOR BOETIUS. See Boetius.

* HECUBA, Daughter of Dymas K. of Thrace, and Q. to Priam K. of Troy; who railing on the Grecians for ſacrificing her Daughter Polyxene, was turned into a Bitch. Ovid.

HEDE (William) born at Alphen near Leidan, was Dean of Vtrecht, and liv'd in the beginning of the XVIth Cent. He was ſent on ſeveral Embaſſies by the Emperor Maximilian Iſt. and afterwards Secretary of State to his Son Philip Archduke of Auſtria and King of Spain. Hede publiſh'd the Genealogy of Charles Vth. A Chronicle of Holland, and another of the Biſhops of Vtrecht. * Valer Andr. Bibl. Belg.

HEDELIN (Francis) Abbot of Aubignac, Eminent for his Wit and Learning in the XVIIth Cent. He was born at Nemours, where his Father was Lieutenant-General. This Abbot was a Favourite of Card. Richlieu, and to make himſelf the more agreeable to this great Miniſter, he apply'd himſelf to the ſtudy of Dramatick Poetry, ſo far as to quality himſelf for a Critick, upon the Performances of the Stage. It was upon this occaſion that he wrote his Treatiſe De la Pratique du Theatre, which in the opinion of the Learned was his Maſter-Piece. In this Tract he examines the Plays of Corneille with great niceneſs. He likewiſe wrote a Piece call'd Le Terence Juſtifie la Macariſe, and ſome other Pieces, which diſcover a great deal of Pains and Learning in the Ancient and Modern Comedy. He dy'd in the Year 1673. * Memoirs du Temps.

HEDWIGE or HEDUIGE, Queen of Poland, Daughter to Lewis King of Hungary, who held the Kingdom of Poland, after the death of Caſimir IIId. dying without Iſſue Male in 1370. The Poles, after the death of Lewis, which happen'd in 1382, deſired Elizabeth the Queen Dowager, to ſend them Hedwige her youngeſt Daughter to be their Soveraign; Elizabeth, at laſt, yielded to the importunity of the Poles, and the young Princeſs, upon her Arrival in 1384, was Crown'd Queen. However ſhe refus'd the Marriage propos'd between her and Jagello, Great D. of Lithuania, unleſs he would conſent to turn Chriſtian. Jagello comply'd with this Article, and was Baptiz'd in 1386, and call'd Vladiſlaus: After his Baptiſm he marry'd Hedwige, and was Crown'd King, and by this Intermarriage the Dominions of Poland and Lithuania were united. * John Herbert de Fulſtein. Connor's Hiſt. Poland.

HEEMSKIRK, the Name of two Dutch-Men; the one famous for Navigation, and the other for Painting: The one called James, the other Martin. James was born at Amſterdam, where is ſtill a conſiderable Family of that Name. Anno 1596, he went with William Barentſon, to find out a Northern Paſſage into China, which proved unſucceſsful: Barentſon died in the Voyage, but Heemskirk returned ſafe; and in 1607, was ſent Vice-Admiral, with a Fleet of 26 Sail, to fight the Spaniards in the Streights. He engaged them in ſight of Gibraltar, conſiſting of 20 Ships of War and 10 Gallions, under the Command of Don Juan Alvarez Davila, and got a compleat Victory over them. Davila was killed, and his Son taken Priſoner: The Admiral and Vice-Admiral Ships, with five of their Gallions burnt, and the reſt run a-ground. Heemskirk was alſo ſlain, and his Body brought home to Amſterdam, where he was honourably Interred in the old Church. Martin, the Painter, born in the Village of Heemskirk, died at Haerlem, in 1574. Having got much Wealth by his Art, he took care to perpetuate his Memory, by leaving a Fund to marry every Year a Maiden of Heemskirk, his Birth-place; with this Proviſo, That the new-married Couple, with all the Wedding-Folks, ſhould dance upon his Grave. Which has been ſo exactly perform'd, notwithſtanding the Reformation, which occaſioned the pulling down of Croſſes in all Church-yards, that this Painter's Croſs, being of Braſs, was alone preſerved, as their Daughters Title to enjoy his Legacy. Felibien Entretiens ſur les Vies des Peintres. Grotius's Annals. There is one of this Name, viz. the Sieur Heemskirk, Envoy of the States General at Conſtantinople, for Negotiating a Peace with the Turks, this preſent Year 1693.

HEGESIAS, a Philoſopher of the Cyrenaick Sect, contemporary with Plato. He expos'd the Miſeries of this Life with ſuch Eloquence, that many did thereupon kill themſelves: For which cauſe, Ptolomy forbad him to ſpeak any more on that Subject. There was alſo an Hiſtorian and Orator of this Name, born at Magneſia. He writ ſeveral Hiſtories, and introduced that way of Speaking called the Aſiatick Style. Cic. Dionyſius Halicarn.

HEGESIPPUS, the Name of ſeveral noted Men. One a Greek Author, who lived in the ſecond Age, and wrote a Church-Hiſtory, from our Saviour's Paſſion, to the time of Pope Anicetus, Anno 167. in five Books, which is often quoted by Euſebius, but unfortunately loſt. F. Halloix has collected the Fragments of it, and printed them with Annotations. As for the Books concerning the Jewiſh War, and the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, it is agreed, that they are writ by another Hegeſippus, who lived after Conſtantine the Great. Voſſius. Gronovius. Baronius. Euſeb.

HEGESISTATUS, of Elis in Peloponneſus, a famous Soothſayer, mentioned by Herodotus. The Lacedæmonians took him and fetter'd one of his Feet. To ſave himſelf he cut off his Heel, broke Priſon, and fled to Tegæa, where he was created High-Prieſt, and wore a wooden Heel; but being re-taken by the Lacedæmonians, was put to death. Herodotus.

HEGESISTRATUS of Epheſus being baniſh'd his Country for killing one of his Relations, travell'd into Greece, where he conſulted the Oracle of Delphos, about a proper place of Settlement. The Oracle told him, that his way was to fix, where he ſaw Country People Dancing with Olive Garlands upon their Heads: He happen'd to meet with this circumſtance, in the place where the Town of Elee ſtood, which City own'd him for their Founder. * Plutarch.

HEGETORIDES of Thaſſus, (a Thracian Iſland in the Ægean Sea,) noted in Hiſtory for ſaving his Country from an imminent Ruin, in this manner. Thaſſus was cloſely beſieged by the Athenians; and the Inhabitants were under a Law, which condemned to Death any that ſhould propoſe a Compoſition with the Enemy. Hegetorides ſeeing his Fellow-Citizens in a famiſhing condition, appeared before them in publick, with a Rope about his Neck, and prayed them either to aboliſh the Law, or ſave the City by his Death. The Thaſſians, moved by his Generoſity, aboliſhed the Law they had ſo raſhly made, and ſaved his Life, which he had offered to loſe for the publick Good. Polyenus.

* HEGIRA, the Mahometan's Epocha, or computation of Years from the flight of Mahomet, as we compute from Chriſt's Nativity. It begins about the Year of Chriſt 617, when Mahomet having conquered Medina, it ſo ſtartled the chief Men of Meccha, that they raiſed a conſiderable Power againſt him, and ſped ſo well in the beginning, that they forced him to fly. Therefore the Hegira is ſo called from the Arabick, Hegirathi, which ſignifies a Perſecution raiſed about Religion. But it was not long before he returned, carried all before him, and made Meccha his chief Seat. Heylin, Book III. pag. 109.

* HEGOW, a part of Suabia, in the Vpper Germany. See Suabia.

HEIDELBERG, the Metropolis of the Palatinate of the Rhine, ſeated at the foot of an Hill, on the Neckar, over which it has a wooden Bridge. It is a large and well-peopled City, the uſual Reſidence of the Elector, who had a noble, magnificent and ſtrong Caſtle here, till the French blew it up in the late War, when they were forc'd to leave it. It is three Miles N. E. of Spires, ten S. of Frankford, and twenty N. W. of Vlm. It is ſaid to have formerly belonged to the Biſhoprick of Worms, but was granted to Lewis Count Palatine, Anno 1225. It was enlarged by Robert Count Palatine, who was choſen Emperor Anno 1392. And Rupertus Count Palatine founded an Univerſity here in 1346, with great Priviledges; one of which is, Power of Life and Death over all that belong to it, without Power of Revocation or Infringement in the Prince himſelf. This Univerſity has been famous for many great Men, and had one of the beſt Libraries in Europe, which Count Tilly ſent to Rome, An. 1622. after he had taken the Town, which ſuffered exceedingly in the late German Wars. The Town-Houſe, and the Churches of St. Peter and the Holy Ghoſt are ſtately Buildings. The Wine of this place is much eſteem'd. The Town is alſo famous for a Tun, commonly called, The great Tun of Heidelberg. * An. 1561. Here was a great diſpute betwixt Tillemannus and Clebitius, about Conſubſtantiation; but Frederick III. Elector, willing to ſecure the Church's Peace, diſmiſs'd them both honourably; and having afterwards appointed a Debate betwixt the Calviniſts and the Saxon Lutherans, he determined in favour of the Calviniſts; and to take away the Schiſm, ordered the Heidelberg-Catechiſm to be publiſhed; which being oppoſed by Tillemannus, another Conference was appointed at Mulbrun in 1564, where the Calviniſts were thought to have the better again. The famous Pareus did manage a ſolemn Diſpute afterwards, upon the ſame Subject, in this place. Lætus Comp. Hiſt. Vniv. Some think this City to be the Budoris of the Ancients, but Morery thinks it rather to be Manheim. It was in the Year 1695 beſieg'd by the French Army under the Duke de Lorge, ſoon taken, and moſt miſerably and barbarouſly burnt by them.

* HEILA, a Town in the Royal Pruſſia, ſubject to the King of Poland. It ſtands about 16 Miles N of Dantzick, and is almoſt encompaſs'd with the Baltick. It was burnt in 1572. but ſince re-built.

* HEILICHLANDT, a ſmall Iſland belonging to the Duke of Holſtein, ſix Miles W. of the ſhoar of Dithmarſh. It was formerly four German Miles in compaſs, but An. 800. part of it periſh'd in a Tempeſt; and An. 1300. another part was ſwallowed up by the Ocean; ſo that now it is but one ſingle Pariſh, Lat. 66.

* HEILICK-ISLANDS, a Knot of Iſles on the Coaſt of Norway, extending many Leagues in length. Lat. 66. 40. Hackluit.

HEILSBERG, Lat. Heilsberga, a ſmall Town, with a Caſtle, in the Royal Pruſſia, a Province of Poland. It ſtands on the River Alle, about 8 Leagues from Koningsberg.

HEIN (Peter) Admiral to the States of Holland, but meanly deſcended, yet raiſed himſelf meerly by his Valour. He defeated the Spaniſh Fleet near the Coaſt of Brazil, An. 1626, took ſeveral of their ſhips, and got a great Booty, which he carried the next Year into Holland. The Year after he intercepted their Plate-Fleet, valued at twelve Millions of Livres at the leaſt. For which he was deſervedly raiſed to the Dignity of Admiral in 1629. and being not long after ſlain in an Engagement againſt ſome Veſſels of Dunkirk, his Body was conveyed to Delft, where it was buried with great Magnificence. Commelyn.

HEINSIUS, the Name of two eminent Scholars, Father and Son; the firſt named Daniel, the other Nicholas. Daniel was born in Ghent, An. 1580, or 81. He got ſo great a Reputation by his Parts and Learning, when Library-keeper at Leiden, that the King of Sweden made him a Councellor of State; and the Republick of Venice, a Knight of the Order of St. Mark. There are ſeveral Works of his extant, as, his Annotations on the New Teſtament, Poems, Satyrs, and his Encomium on the Aſs. He learned the Oriental Languages at a great Age. Nicholas, his Son, was an excellent Latin Poet; reviſed and corrected ſeveral ancient Poets, as Virgil, Valerius Flaccus, Claudius, and Ovid particularly, upon whom he made Annotations. He died, 1681. Valerius Andreas. Zeiller.

* HEIS, Lat. Herieus, Herue, a ſmall French Iſland on the Coaſt of Poitou, near the Borders of Bretagne.

HEITERSHEIM, a German Town of Briſgow, in Suabia, the uſual Reſidence of the Grand Prior of Malta for Germany, who is a Prince of the Empire. Heiſſius's Hiſtory of the Empire.

HELDING (Michael) Biſhop of Mersberg in Saxony, born at Eſſingen, raiſed himſelf by his Learning and Merit. He was firſt Suffragan to the Archbiſhop of Mentz, with the Title of Biſhop of Seide, or Seidon; whence he was called Sidonius. Charles V. employed him to draw up the Interim; upon which he was made Biſhop of Mersberg. Ferdinand the Emperor did likewiſe employ him in ſeveral important Negotiations; made him Aſſeſſor of the Imperial Chamber at Spire, and afterwards Preſident and Governor of Vienna. He died An. 1561. Thuan. Le Mire.

HELEN, Jupiter's Daughter by Leda, counted the moſt beautiful Woman in the World; which proved a Snare unto, and at laſt the Ruin of Troy. She was raviſh'd twice; firſt by Theſeus the Son of Ægeus, King of Athens; and the ſecond time by Paris, the Son of Priam, King of Troy. She was recover'd from the firſt by her Brothers Caſtor and Pollux, and afterwards married to Menelaus, the King of Mycene's Brother. Paris, upon the fame of her Beauty, came into Greece to ſee her, and Menelaus gave him Entertainment: He fell in Love with her, ſtole her away, and carried her to Troy, An. Mund. 2860. which occaſioned that famous Ten Years War betwixt the Grecians and Trojans, and the final Deſtruction of Troy. Beſides the aforeſaid Helen, I find one of that Name, who was Daughter to Conſtantine the Great, and Siſter to Conſtantius, who married her to his Couſin Julian the Apoſtate. And another, who was Queen of Adiabene, and lived in the firſt Age. Joſephus writes of her, that ſhe and her Son Izates embraced the Jewiſh Religion; but Oroſius affirms, that both turn'd Chriſtians. To which I ſhall add Helene, the Concubine of Simon the Magician, a Native of Tyre in Phœnicia; of whom he had the Impudence to ſay, that ſhe was the Holy Ghoſt, and that for her ſake he was come down from Heaven; that ſhe was the ſame Helen who cauſed the Trojan War, and that what Homer had written of her was a meer Allegory, under which he conceal'd the truth of another War her Beauty had kindled amongſt the Angels. S. Irenæus, l. 1. c. 10. Baronius, A. C. 34. Virgil.

S. HELEN, the Wife of the Emperor Conſtantius Chlorus, and Mother of Conſtantine the Great; born at Colcheſter in Eſſex, as all our Britiſh Authors do unanimouſly report. Baronius alſo is of the ſame Opinion; but Nicephorus, and the Greeks in general, aſſert that ſhe was a Bithynian born; and that Conſtantius, lodging at her Fathers, in the Borough of Drepani, near Nicomedia, as he went Ambaſſador into Perſia, left her with Child of Conſtantine. What they alledge in defence of their Opinion, is, That Conſtantius, in honour of his Wife, chang'd the Name of Drepani into that of Helenopolis, and that he cauſed the Sea about Bithynia to be called Helenapont. This is all they produce to rob Great Britain of the honour that ſhe glories in, to have given Birth to the firſt Chriſtian Emperor. But Baronius grounds his Opinion chiefly upon this Paſſage of the Panegyrick pronounced at the Wedding of Conſtantine; That his Father had freed Britain from Servitude, and that he (meaning Conſtantine) made Britain glorious by his Birth. Conſtantine having attain'd the Imperial Crown about the Year 310, order'd that ſhe ſhould be call'd Auguſta, and Imperatrix, both in his Court and Armies; and gave her Power to diſpoſe of the ſpare Treaſure at her Will. This Power ſhe made uſe of only for the good of the Church, and diſtreſſed People; and in that ſence is Paulinus to be underſtood, Epiſt. 11. ad Severum. Prompto (ſays he) filii Imperatoris adſenſu mater Auguſta, patefactis ad opera ſancta Theſauris, toto abuſa fiſco eſt: the Verb Abuti fixing no fault, and importing no more than uti; ſo that abuſa fiſco eſt, ſignifies no more than that ſhe made a free Uſe of the Exchequer. About the Year 326, ſhe viſited the Holy Places, and cauſed there ſeveral Churches to be built; where ('tis ſaid) ſhe found Chriſt's Croſs on Mount Calvary, which had remained buried in his Sepulchre, with the other Inſtruments of his Paſſion, above 300 Years. In Memory whereof, the Town of Colcheſter gives for its Arms, a Croſs ingrail'd, between 4 Crowns. But moſt Proteſtants are of Opinion, that our Saviour's Croſs was never found out; whoſe Reaſons may be ſeen in Salmaſius's Epiſtle concerning the Croſs. One of the ſtrongeſt is this, That Euſebius is ſilent in that Point, who gives a particular Deſcription of the ſacred Buildings, erected in Paleſtine, by Conſtantine and his Mother, whom ſome call Stabulatoria, an Hoſteſs, or Inn-holder; which might be, perhaps, becauſe her Father was Comes Stabuli unto the Emperor; an high Office, equivalent to that in France called Le Grand Conêtable: Or rather, ſhe might be ſo nick-named by the malice of the Heathens, for her officious Devotion in finding out the Stable of Chriſt's Nativity. She died at Rome, ſays the ſame Author, being 80 Years of Age, Anno 337. Stillingfleet Orig. Britan. p. 90.

* HELENE, now called Macroniſi, an Iſland in the Archipelago, and one of the Sporades. Alſo a Town of Catalonia in Spain, once a Biſhops See, but now tranſlated to Perpignan, from whence it is diſtant two or three Leagues.

HELENUS, one of King Priam's Sons, and an excellent Soothſayer, whom the Grecians therefore ſaved at the Deſtruction of Troy. Pyrrhus, after the Trojan War, gave him Andromache in Marriage, together with a part of his Kingdom; where he built a City like Troy, and entertain'd Æneas in his Travels. Virgil's Æneids.

HELIADES, Daughters of Sol and Clymene, and Phaeton's Siſters; who bewailing the Death of their Brother, were turned into Poplar-Trees, and their Tears into Amber. Ovid.

* HELICE, once a Town of Peloponneſus (now Morea) in Greece, on the Borders of Achaia, well nigh ſwallowed up by the Sea. This Name is alſo given to the Great Bear-Star, near the North Pole. The Remainder of this Town is called Niſra. Long. 49, 50. Lat 36, 45.

HELICON, a famous Hill of Phocis (part of Achaia) in Greece, conſecrated to Apollo and the Muſes: Hence called Heliconides. Helicon is by the Moderns called Stramulipa, and is alſo famed for the Fountains of Hippocrene and Aganippe; the Cities of Theſpia, Aſcra and Niſſa, now Zagaya. Of this Name there was alſo a River in Sicily, now Olivero, on the North ſide of the Iſland; and another in Macedonia, now called Faribo. Strabo. Natalis Comes.

HELIODORUS, the Name of ſeveral great Men. The firſt of Note was Captain to Seleucus Philopater King of Syria; whoſe ſtory is ſet down, 2 Maccab. ch. 3. He was ſmitten by two Angels as robbing the ſacred Treaſure at Jeruſalem, and afterwards cured at the Intreaty of the High-Prieſt. The 2d was a Biſhop of Tricca in Theſſaly, of whom Photius gives a very great Character. The 3d a Prieſt of Antioch, who lived in the IVth Century, and wrote a Book, De Naturis Rerum Exordinalium. The 3d likewiſe was a Prieſt of Antioch, who writ a Book, De Virginitate. The 4th was Author of a Book, De Sepulchris, mentioned by Plutarch, De Decem Oratoribus. The 5th, a Poet mentioned by Lelio Giraldi, and Voſſius. The 6th was that Heliodorus, whoſe Life is written by Philoſtratus. The 7th was Secretary to Adrian the Emperor. The 8th, a Friend of St. Jeroms, to whom he wrote that excellent Epiſtle concerning Solitude, which begins thus, Quanto amore & ſtudio contenderim. The 9th, a Methematician of Athens, who writ a Book, De Athenienſium Mathematicis, and another De Architectonicâ. The 10th was born at Lariſſa, and wrote a Treatiſe of Opticks. The 11th was a Stoick Philoſopher, who writ a Commentary upon Aratus, &c. Voſſius.

HELIODORUS, born in Phœnicia, and Biſhop of Tricca in Theſſaly, flouriſh'd in the Reigns of Theodoſius and Arcadius towards the end of the IVth Cent. In his Youth, he wrote a Romance of the Amours of Theagines and Chariclea. Nicephorus affirms, that a Synod of Biſhops in Thrace depos'd him, becauſe he could neither be brought to ſuppreſs nor diſown his Novel; but to ſpeak truth, Nicephorus is the only Author that mentions this Depoſition, for Cedrenus, who tells us Heliodorus wrote another Book about the Philoſophers Stone, or Tranſmuting of Metals into Gold, which he preſented to Theodoſius the Great, and Photius, who often mentions him with advantage, ſays nothing of this pretended Cenſure. * Nicephorus, Lib. 12. cap. 34. Socrates, Lib. 6. cap. 21. Photius, Cod. 72, 94, &c.

HELIOGABALUS (Marcus Aurelius Antonius Varus) Emp. of Rome; ſo called, becauſe he was Prieſt of the Sun before his Election: Son to Caracalla and Semiamira, and choſen Emperor by the Army, in room of Macrinus deceaſed. He carried his own God with him to Rome, forbidding the worſhip of any other. He built him a Temple, and continued Prieſt himſelf, commanding the Veſtal Fire, the Palladium, and conſecrated Bucklers, to be carried thither. This Emperor was ſo abominably vicious, that he was called the Roman Sardanapalus. His Luxury was ſo boundleſs, leſs, that when he was on the Sea-Coaſts he would eat nothing but Fowls from the remoteſt Mountains; and when fartheſt from the Sea, would eat nothing but Sea-fiſh. He fed his Lamps with Balſam, and his Fiſh-ponds with ſcented Water. He married Aquila Severa, a Veſtal Virgin, ſaying, That he being a Prieſt, their Off-ſpring muſt be altogether heavenly. He was extravagantly laviſh of his Treaſures, ſet all Honours and Offices to Sale, and uſurped an uncontrollable Power both to himſelf and his Servants. For a Bribe he would admit any body to the Dignity of a Senator, without regard to Age, Quality, or Merit; and diſpoſed of his Military Offices in the ſame manner. His two Coach-men, Protogenes and Gordius, were his chief Companions, and Fellow-Debauchees. He cut off abundance of the Senators, becauſe they would not allow of a Senate of Women, whereof his Mother was to be Preſident, and to determine all Female Controverſies. At length, becauſe of his deſign to cut off Alexander the Son of Mammea, whom the Senate had declared Cæſar in Macrinus's Time, and whom he himſelf had adopted for his Son, and being alſo hateful to his own Guard, he and his Mother were both ſlain in the Camp, and their Corps, after a thouſand Indignities from the Populace, firſt thrown into a Privy, and then into the Tiber, March. 10. An. Dom. 222. after a Reign of three Years, nine Months, and four Days: And though he was but 18 or 22 Years old at moſt, yet was he guilty of all manner of Villanies, enough to make ſuch as read his Hiſtory bluſh. When he was but a private Perſon, the Counterpanes of his Beds were embroidered with Gold, and the Utenſils of his Kitchin all enchas'd Plate. He had alſo Lotteries, which he diſtributed to thoſe who uſed to eat with him; which were either mark'd with ten Elephants, or ten Flies. Lampridius. Eutropius. Aurelius Victor.

* HELIOGABALUS, a Phœnician Idol, being a great black Pyramidical Stone, with ſome parts of it rough. They worſhipped it as an Image of the Sun, becauſe it had ſeveral Shapes on it, which they alledged to be above Humane Art. Hoffman.

HELIOPOLIS, a Greek Word ſignifying the City of the Sun, and was the Name of divers Cities: The principal of which was in Egypt, placed by Morery, ſix Miles Eaſt of Caire, near a Village called Matarea, famous for its Balm, and a Temple dedicated to the Sun, with a Looking-Glaſs ſo placed, that it reflected the Sun-Beams all day long, whereby the whole Temple was illuminated. This City Dr. Heylin takes for the City On, (Gen. 41. 45.) of which Potiphar, Joſeph's Father-in-Law, was Prieſt: Given, as Joſephus tells us, for an Habitation to the Sons of Jacob; and was one of the chief Cities of the Land of Rameſes, or Goſhen: Memorable in After-times for a Jewiſh Temple, built by Onias the High-prieſt; of which he was diſpoſſeſſed by Antiochus. This Temple was very much eſteemed by the Helleniſts, or Græcizing Jews, though not without the Imputation of being Schiſmatical, as to its firſt Original. It was built like that of Jeruſalem, about the Year of the World 3780, and continued 380 Years, even till the time of Veſpaſian. Among the Ruins of this place there is ſtill to be ſeen an Obelisk, with Hieroglyphicks on all Sides, and a Column named Pharaoh's Spire. The other Towns of this Name, the one in Phœnicia, the other in Syria, were both Epiſcopal Sees. In the Elect. of Brandenburg's Country there is a Town called Saltwedel, in Latin Heliopolus, ſaid to be built by Charles the Great, having firſt pulled down the Statue of the Sun, which was there worſhipped. Baudrand. Strabo.

HELLADIUS, There were two Egyptian Grammarians of this Name, one of the Town of Antinous, who liv'd under Conſtantine the Great; he wrote ſeveral Greek Poems, which are all loſt, excepting ſome Fragments of his Chreſto Mathia, preſerv'd by Photius. The other Helladius liv'd at Alexandria, who among other things, wrote a Greek Dictionary, which Suidas has inſerted in his own. * Photius. Suidas. Ser Meurſius's Notes in Chreſto math. Printed at Utrecht in 1686.

HELLE, Daughter of Athamas King of Thebes, who running away with her Brother Phryxus, from her Mother-in-Law, fell into the Sea, and gave Name to the Helleſpont. Ovid. Metam. l. 7.

HELLEN, Son of Deucalion, from whom, as ſome People fancy, the Greeks were called Helleniſts. He had three Sons, Æolus, Dorus and Xuthus. * Apollodorus Lib. 1. Diadorus Lib. 4*th. Porſanias in Attic.*

* HELLENISTS, or Græcizing Jews; ſuch as were Jews by Parentage, but lived diſperſed in moſt Provinces of the Roman Empire; reading the Scripture in the Septuagint-Tranſlation, and performing all publick Offices in Greek: Otherwiſe as ſtrict in their Sabbath-keeping, as tenacious of their Circumciſion,and of the other Rites and Ceremonies of the Law of Moſes, as the Jews of Palæſtine; and therefore ſcorn'd and derided by the Gentiles, among whom they lived. Credat Judæus appella, ſays one of their Poets, ſpeaking of the Jewiſh Circumciſion. Recutitaque Sabbata palles, ſays another of them, in deriſion to their Sabbaths. Novi illis Ritus cæteris mortalibus contrarii, ſays Tacitus (a graver Author) of the whole Body of their Rituals, or Acts of Worſhip. Heylin.

HELLESPONT, Lat. Helleſpontus, now called the Streights of the Dardanelles, or the Streights of Gallipoli, is a narrow Arm of the Sea, betwixt Europe on the Weſt, and Aſia on the Eaſt, the Propontis (or Sea of Marmora) Northward, and the Ægean Sea (now Archipelago) Southward. So called from Helle, Daughter to Athamas K. of Thebes, who was here drowned. Or otherwiſe Boſphorus Thracius, from Thracia a Province of Greece on the Weſt ſide of it; and Boſphorus, of Bos, an Ox, and the Greek Φέρω, to bear, or carry; for Oxen have ſwam over it, not being above half a League in breadth. Its length is about 25 Miles, both ſides being fortified by the Caſtles called the Black Towers, or the Dardanelles; under which Name you will find them deſcribed. Over this famous Streight did the Perſian King Xerxes, according to Herodotus, make a Bridge of Boats, about 2208 in number, to paſs into Greece; which being ſhrewdly battered by a ſudden Tempeſt, he cauſed the Sea to be beaten with 300 Stripes, and caſt a pair of Fetters into it, to make it know to whom it was ſubject. His Army conſiſted of 2164710 Men: But whilſt all the Perſians ſoothed him up with the greatneſs of his Forces, Artabanus told him, That he feared no Enemies but the Sea and the Earth; the one yielding no Harbour for ſuch a Navy, nor the other ſufficient Subſiſtence for ſo vaſt an Army. It happen'd at laſt, that his Fleet was ſo broken by the Valour of the Greeks, and the Fury of the Sea, that Xerxes was compelled to flee in a poor Fiſher-Boat; which being over-burthened, was ready to ſink, when the Perſians caſt away themſelves, to ſave the Life of their King. The loſs of which Noble Spirits ſo vex'd him, that, having given the Steers man a Golden Coronet for preſerving his Life, he commanded him to be executed, as the Author of his Servants Death. 'Tis alſo remarkable for its dividing Ceſtos from Abydos, now the Dardanelles, the Birth-places of the famed Hero and Leander. Heylin. Ovid. Grelot's Voyage to Conſtantinople.

* HELL-KETTLES, Three Pits of a wonderful depth, at Oxenhall, near Darlington, in the Biſhoprick of Durham; whoſe Waters are ſomething warm. Theſe Pits came by an Earthquake, that happen'd An. 1179; whereof the Records of Tinmouth (according to Speed) make mention in theſe Words: On Chriſtmas-day, at Oxenhall, in the Territories of Darlington, the Ground heav'd up aloft, like unto an high Tower; and ſo continued all that day, as it were immoveable, until the Evening; when it fell with ſuch an horrid Noiſe, that it put all the neighbouring Villages into an extream Fear: Upon which Fall, a deep Pit was made, remaining there to this Day. 'Tis ſaid, that Tunſtal, Biſhop of the Dioceſs, threw a marked Gooſe into one of theſe Pits, which came up again on the River Tees.

* HELMESLY, a Market-Town of York-ſhire, in the North-Riding, and Hundred of Ridal, on a ſmall River, which falls into the Derwent.

HELMONT (John Baptiſt,) commonly called Van Helmont, from a Burrough and neat Caſtle of that Name in Brabant, on the River Ade, three Leagues from Eindoven. He was a Perſon of Quality, and a Man of great Learning, eſpecially in Phyſick and Natural Philoſophy. He was born at Bruſſels, An. 1588. By his great skill in Phyſick, he performed ſuch wonderful things, that he was put into the Inquiſition, as a Man that did things beyond the reach of Nature: He cleared himſelf; but to be more at liberty, he retired into Holland. As he oppoſed the Principles of Ariſtotle and Galen, all the Peripateticks and Galeniſts became his profeſſed Enemies. However, he was followed by others, who became great Men in their Way; and his learned Works do eaſily increaſe the number of his Diſciples, particularly, his Diſputatio de Magneticâ Corporum Curatione, Febrium Doctrina inaudita, Ortus Medicinæ, Paradoxa de Aquis Spadanis, &c. which are printed together in one Volume, in Folio. He died in the Year 1644. Valer. Andr. Lorenzo Craſſo.

* HELMONT, a Town of the Low Countries, in the Dukedom of Brabant, the Metropolis of Kemperland, ſubject to the Hollanders. It ſtands on the River Aa, 21 Miles S. E. of Boiſleduc, 18. S. of Grave, and 60 N. E. of Bruſſels.

HELMSTADT, Lat. Helmſtadium, a Town of the Dukedom of Brunſwick, in Germany; formerly belonging to the Abbots of Werden, and by them ſold to William Duke of Brunſwick, An. 1490. It lies in the middle between Brunſwick and Magdeburg, and has an Univerſity, founded by Duke Julius, in the Year 1576. Alſo a Town in Halland belonging to the Suedes: It lies upon the Baltick, and formerly belonged to the Danes; till by the Treaty of Bromsbroo, in the Year 1645, it was yielded up to the Suedes. Bertius. Le Mire.

* HELMSTON, BRIGHT-HELMSTON, a Market-Town of Lewes Rape, in the South Parts of Suſſex, upon the Chanel.

HELSINGFORD, Lat. Helſingfordia, a Town of Finland in Sweden, and the principal of that part called Nyland. It ſtands on the Gulph of Finland, at the Mouth of the River Wanda, and has a good Harbour.

HELSINGRA, a Province in Sueden, W. of the Gulf of Boſnia, betwixt Medelpadia on the N. and Geſtricia on the S. Its principal Places are, Hudickswald, Heeda and Dilsbo.

* HELSTON, a Market and Burrough-Town of Kirrier Hundred, in the Weſt Parts of Cornwal.

* HELVICUS (Chriſtopher,) Author of the Hiſtorical and Chronological Theatre; being a compendious Account of the Hiſtory and Chronology of all Empires, Kingdoms, Governments, and famous Men, from the Beginning of the World, to 1666. Written originally in Latin, now tranſlated into Engliſh, with Additions, and printed An. 1688.

HELVIDIUS, Patriarch of the Antidica-Marianites, in the third Centry. He aſſerted, That after our Saviour's Birth, the Bleſſed Virgin had other Children by Joſeph, called in Scripture, the Lord's Brethren: And maintained, That Virginity was not to be preferred before Marriage. St. Jerome wrote againſt him. St. Epiphanius. St. Auguſtine.

HEMERO-BAPTISTS, a Sect among the Jews; ſo called, becauſe they bathed or waſhed themſelves every Day of the Year; making Holineſs to conſiſt in thoſe Daily Ablutions. They followed the Phariſees Opinions, only, with the Sadducees, they denied the Reſurrection. According to ſome Interpreters, theſe are the Men who found fault with our Saviour's Diſciples, (Mar. 17.) for eating with unwaſhen Hands. Epiphanius, l. 1. Pan. c. 17, 18.

* HEMID, HEMIA, AMID, or SIMISO, an Archbiſhop's Seat on the Euxine Sea, 100 Miles E. of Sinope, on the River Caſalmach.

* HEMID, or CARA HEMID, Lat. Amida, a City of Meſopotamia, which now gives Name to that Country, being its Metropolis; a great and populous City, the Reſidence of a Turkiſh Governor, and a Chriſtian Arch-Biſhop. It is 60 Miles Eaſt from Aleppo.

* HEMODES, the ſeven Daniſh Iſles, Zeland, Funen, Langland, Muen, Falſter, Laland and Femeren; ſo called by Pomponius Mela. Cluverius thinks they are Schetland.

* HEMSTED, a Market-Town of Broad-water Hundred, in the North of Hartfordſhire.

* HEMZ, Lat. Emiſſa, a City of Syria, called Haman by the Turks; an Arch-Biſhop's See under the Patriarch of Antioch, upon the River Orontes, 43 Miles N. of Damaſcus, and 80 E. of Antioch. 'Tis a pretty Town, wall'd with black and white Stone, half a Pike high, but the Ditch is fill'd with Rubbiſh. It has 25 Towers, ſix Gates, and five Churches, the chief whereof was built by St. Helen. The Turks took it about 160 Years ago, not without much Blood-ſhed, and therefore left it to be ruin'd. Thevenot, p. 223.

* HENGIST, the firſt Saxon K. of Kent, about the End of the V*th*. Century. He was deſcended in the 4*th*. Degree from Woden, a Saxon deified for his Valour; to whom the Day, from him called Wedneſday, was conſecrated. Hengiſt being intreated by Vortigern K. of the Britains, to aſſiſt him againſt the Scots and Picts, had firſt the Iſle of Thanet given him. His Aſſiſtance proving effectual, and having now a footing in the Iſland, which he admired for its Fruitfulneſs, he invited others of his Countrymen to come and ſhare of his good Succeſs. The Saxons, encouraged by his Invitation, flock'd hither in great Numbers, and were entertained without ſuſpicion, on theſe Terms, That they ſhould keep off the Picts. The Daughter of Hengiſt, a beautiful Lady, came over as a Bait for Vortigern; who being invited to a Feaſt by Hengiſt, Rowen (ſo was the Lady called) was order'd by her Father to preſent the King with a Bowl of Wine, and wait upon him during the Feaſt. The King, ſmitten with her Beauty, forgot that he was married, or thinking Bigamy lawful, begged her of Hengiſt for his Wife. Hengiſt ſtood off a little, to make him the more eager; and intimating to the King, that Thanet was too ſmall a place for the growing Numbers of his Men, Vortigern enlarged his Bounds, and gave him the whole Province of Kent; for which Hengiſt gave him his Daughter. Soon after this, Hengiſt incroaching ſtill on the King's Favour, got Leave to call-over Veta and Ebiſſa, his own, and his Brother's Sons, pretending, that, if the Northern Borders were beſtowed upon them, they would ſecure thoſe Frontiers againſt the Picts, whilſt he himſelf guarded the Eaſt Parts. Accordingly they ſailed with 40 Ships, and came to that Part, ſince called Northumberland, of which they poſſeſſed themſelves. The Saxons afterwards complained for want of Pay, and then that it was not proportionable to the Danger they underwent, threatning open War if it were not increaſed. The Britains finding what they aimed at, bent their utmoſt endeavours to drive them out. But they, on the other ſide, having made a League with the Picts and Scots, iſſued out of Kent, waſting the whole Land, as far as the Weſtern Sea, with little or no Reſiſtance. Soon after this, moſt part of the Saxon Forces returned home; but what might be the Cauſe, upon ſo eaſie a Conqueſt, is uncertain. However, this encouraged the Britains under the Conduct of Vortimer, the King's Son, to fall upon the Reſidue of them. Hengiſt died in the year 489. Fuller's Church Hiſt. Stillingfleet's Antiquit. Britt. Churches.

* HENLEY, a Market-Town of Barlichway-Hundred, in the Weſt of Warwickſhire; otherwiſe called Henly in Arden, to diſtinguiſh it from Henley in Oxfordſhire.

* HENLEY, a good Market-Town of Binfield-Hundred, in the South-Eaſt Parts of Oxfordſhire, ſituate on the Weſt ſide of the Thames, over which it has a fair Bridge.

HENNEBERG, a Caſtle and County in Franconia, on an Hill near the River Strew, eight Leagues from Schuinfort. It has Heſſe on the W. and Thuringia on the E. and gave Name to one of the moſt remarkable Earldoms in Germany, which Maximilian II. erected into a Principality. From Eaſt to Weſt it is two ordinary days Journey on Horſe-back. Its Earls and Princes have been as illuſtrious as any in the Empire; but the Family being extinct in George Erneſt, who died 1583. it went into the Family of Saxony. Its chief Towns are Minungen and Smalcald. Spener.

* HENNEBOUT, an ancient declining City of Low-Bretagne in France, on the River Blavet, 10 Miles N. of Blavet, and three from the Sea: Formerly very ſtrong, but now neglected.

* HENNETES, a People of Paphlagonia, whoſe Horſes were in great Eſteem, and to whom the Venetians owe their Original. Heſychius. Strabo, l. 5.

HENNUYER (John) a Dominican-Friar, Henry II. of France's Confeſſor; created Biſhop of Liſieux in Normandy, 1560. He generouſly oppoſed the King's Orders to maſſacre all the Proteſtants of his Dioceſs; ſaying, That they were his Sheep, though ſtrayed. The King admiring his Zeal for his Flock, revoked his Orders in that Dioceſs. Maimbourg.

HENOTICON, An Edict publiſh'd by the Emperor Zeno, at the Inſtance of Acacius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople; the deſign of it was, to procure an Union between the Catholicks and Eutichians; the Form of it carried a Face of Orthodoxy, but in reality, under a pretence of receiving the Confeſſions of Faith, made in the General Councils of Nice, Conſtantinople and Epheſus, of Anathematizing Neſtorius and Eutiches, and approving the 12 Chapters of St. Cyril, under theſe pretences, this Edict condemned the Council of Chalcedon. This was done in the Year 482, under the Pontificate of Pope Simplicius, who dying ſoon after, was ſucceeded by Felix III. who immediately upon his coming to the Chair, rejected the Emperor Henoticon, and Excommunicated thoſe that receiv'd it, as being an intollerable encroachment of the Secular Power, upon the Authority of the Church: This diſagreement of the Pope and Emperour, had troubleſome conſequences. * Evagrius, Lib. 1. cap. 17. Liberatus, cap. 18. Baron, A. C. 482. 483, &c.

HENEAGE, The Name of an Ancient, Wealthy and Worthy Family. Sir Robert de Heneage Knight, lived in the Reign of K. Henry I. Sir William de Heneage Knight was the next but one in Succeſſion, and gave Lands to the Church, upon condition that his Anceſtors might be pray'd for. John de Henerage of Haynton, Eſq; who died in the Reign of K. Edward III. was the laſt that ſtil'd himſelf de Heneage; from him the Family flouriſhed in Figure and Fortune, till the Reign of K. Henry the VIII, to whom Sir Thomas Heneage Knight, was chief Gentleman of the Privy Chamber, Privy Purſe, and Groom of the Stool, attended him at the taking of Bulloigne, and in conſideration of his good Services, had a Degree of a Baron offer'd him by that Prince, but declined that Honour, having no Iſſue but only one Daughter Elizabeth, who married William Lord Willoughby of Parham, and brought him a very fair Eſtate. Not to proceed any further upon the particulars of the Genealogy, the Ancient Seat of Haynton is at preſent in the Poſſeſſion of George Heneage Eſq; who married Mary the only Daughter and Heir of William Lord Petre Baron of Writtle in Eſſex, by whom he has Iſſue a Son. His Arms are: Or A Greyhound Current, Sable between three Leopards Heads Azure, within a Border Ingral'd Guiles, and in Right of his Lady Guiles, A bend Or between two Scallops Shells Ar.

Emperors of Germany of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY I. of that Name Emperour, Son of Otho Duke of Saxony, by Luitgarde the Emperour Arnulphus's Daughter. He ſucceeded Conrade his Brother-in-Law, in 119 or 20, and was ſurnamed the Fowler, becauſe thoſe that brought him the News of his Election at Fridlar, found him a fowling, which Sport he loved extreamly. He reduc'd Arnould D. of Bavaria, vanquiſhed the Hungarians, Bohemians, Sclavonians, and Danes in 931, and made their K. turn Chriſtian. He took the Provinces beyond the Rhine, nam'd the Kingdom of Lorrain, from Charles the Simple, defeated the Hungarians a ſecond time, and kill'd 80000 of their men; and for a perpetual Monument thereof, caus'd it to be painted in the Hall at Merſpurg. Deſigning to go into Italy, he died of an Apoplexy in 936 or 37. Luitprand. Genebrard in his Chronicle.

HENRY II. Canoniz'd for his Piety, ſurnam'd the Lame, and the Apoſtle of the Hungarians, was D. of Bavaria, and Son of Henry the ſhort of Saxony. He was elected in 1002. He reduc'd ſome German Princes who withſtood his Election; defeated Boleſlaus D. of Bohemia, and Boleſlaus King of Poland, and routed the D. of Bavaria in 1010. He defeated the Henetians, who had renounc'd Chriſtianity, and made them Tributaries; and having pacified Germany went into Italy, took ſome Places in Calabria and defeated Arduin created K. by a Party of the Lombards. Being taken Priſoner in this War, he jump'd down from the Top of a high Wall, broke his Leg, and was ever after lame, taking hence his Surname. In 1014 he and his Empreſs Cunegunda were crown'd at Rome by Benedict VIII. He order'd the Creed to be ſaid after the Goſpels. In 1022 he went again into Italy, defeated the Greeks and Saracens, and took Beneventum, Naples, Capua, Salernum, &c. He died in 1024, and was buried at Bamberg. It's reported that in a Council he ſpoke to the Biſhops on his knees: So much did he revere the Clergy. On his Death-bed he confeſs'd that he had liv'd in Continency with his Wife, who was canonized as well as himſelf. Herman. Baronius.

HENRY III. of Franconia, ſurnam'd the Black, ſucceeded his Father Conrade II. in 1039. He defeated the Bohemians that denied him Tribute in his ſecond Campaign, reſtor'd Peter to his Throne of Hungary, whence his Subjects had chas'd him in 1043; went to Rome in 1046, and there called a Council, where Benedict IX. Sylveſter III. and Gregory VI. were depos'd, and Sugger Biſhop of Bamberg, conſecrated under the Name of Clement II. (the Senate and People of Rome ſwearing that they would never admit of a Pope, but ſuch as the Emperour ſhould confirm) by whom He and Agnes his Wife were crown'd. Afterwards he reduc'd the Petty Princes of Italy, and made War on the Hungarians, who had put out their K. Peter's Eyes, Anno 1048. He held a Council at Worms to oppoſe Bennet IX, who had uſurped the Papal-chair the 4th. time, and procured the Election of his Couſin Bruno Biſhop of Toul to the Papacy; after which he died at Bottenfeld in Saxony, being choak'd with a piece of Bread, in 1056. Barnard Corius in his Life. Sigebert in Chron. Baronius, &c.

HENRY IV. call'd the Old and the Great, was born in 1051, and ſucceeded his Father Henry the Black in 1056. His Mother gave him good Education, under whom he reign'd till 1062, but ſome envious Grandees diſdaining to be under a Womans Government, took him from her. Having enticed him to the ſide of the River on Pretence of walking, and got him aboard a Pleaſure-boat; but their Amazement, the redoubled Efforts of the Watermen, and the Cries of the People from the Banks, frighted the young Emperour, ſo that he leap'd into the River, thinking to eſcape by ſwimming; but, Echert Marquis of Saxony, leap'd after, and catching hold of him, they were both taken up again into the Boat, and the Empreſs's Party having no means to purſue, they carried him to Cologne and ſet him upon the Throne at 13 Years of Age. In 1063 he defeated the Saxons, who had rebelled under the Conduct of Otho, Baſtard to the Marquis de Thuringia. In 1064 Otho D. of Bavaria, gave him Cauſe to ſuſpect that he aimed at the Crown, and it was not long e'er the Diſcontents came to open Hoſtilities betwixt them, and the D. was forced to retire into Saxony, that D. together with the Archbiſhop of Magdeburg, Biſhop of Halberſtadt, and other Prelates, pretending all their Reſpective Grievances, combin'd and ſent a Declaration to the Emperour, that if he did not demoliſh his Fortreſs, reſtore what he had taken from the States of the Country, ſwear to preſerve their Privileges inviolably, reſide ordinarily in their Provinces, turn away his Miniſters and Concubines, content himſelf with one Wife, and give to the Princes their due Share in the Government, they would make War againſt him; and accordingly they ſurprized him in the Caſtle of Wurtzberg: So that he was oblig'd to appeaſe them by fair Promiſes, till he and his principal Courtiers found Means to eſcape; after which they beſieged the Caſtle and baniſhed the Imperialiſts out of Thuringia. In the mean time one Regenger a Courtier, becauſe of a particular Grudge, accuſed the Emperour to the ſaid Princes, of having ſollicited him and another to join with his Favourites, and aſſaſſinate the Dukes of Suabia, Carinthia, and Bavaria, at the Diet at Wurtzberg, offering to make good the Challenge by Duel, even againſt the Emperour himſelf. The Princes laying hold on this Accuſation, ſent to the Emperour, that if he did not juſtify himſelf, they would renounce him. To which he anſwered, That Rodolph of Bavaria did cover his Deſign upon the Imperial Crown with that falſe Pretence, and that he was ready to fight him to juſtify the Charge. But this Challenge being neither accepted, nor rejected, Vlric of Coſheim, whom Regenger had alſo accuſed, obtained leave of the Emperour to declare himſelf his Champion, and to acquaint the oppoſite Party with the ſame, which Rodolphus remitted to the Diet aſſembled at Mentz, where they conſulted of depoſing the Emperour. But the Diet at Oppenheim referred it to the Deciſion of the Combat betwixt Regenger and Coſheim eight days after Epiphany. In the mean time the Emperour retired to Worms, deſerted and without Money, expecting the Iſſue of that fatal Day; on the Eve whereof Regenger, like one poſſeſſed with the Devil, fell into violent Fits of Madneſs; and was carried off by a terrible Death, which juſtified the Emperour, allayed the publick Heats, and in part reduced the People to their Allegiance: So that having rais'd an Army, An. 1074, by the Aſſiſtance of the Princes and Cities on the Rhine, he entered Saxony, encamped within ſight of the Enemy, with whom he concluded a Peace on the following Terms; That he ſhould diſmantle his Garriſons, govern the Country by a Council of the Natives, without liſtening to Strangers; and ſeek no occaſion of Revenge. But the Saxons having broke the Treaty, he defeated them in a bloody Battle, June 13. 1075, and reduced them, their Princes and Prelates humbling themſelves, and begging his Pardon at the Head of his Army, which made him redoubtable all over Europe.

But not long after Pope Gregory VII. in a Council held at Rome, An. 1075. ordered the Deprivation of all Biſhops who were married or inveſted by ſecular Princes; and accordingly turn'd out ſeveral German Biſhops, and ſent his Legates to the Emperour, commanding him to releaſe the impriſon'd Saxon Biſhops, to depoſe thoſe condemned by the ſaid Council, and to appear at Rome to anſwer what he was charged with by the Saxons on pain of Excommunication and loſing his Crown. Henry being amaz'd at this preſumption, by the Advice of the Eſtates ſent back the Legates with Diſgrace, call'd a Council at Worms, to which came all the German Biſhops, except thoſe of Saxony, wherein the Emperour depoſed Gregory as a Simoniack and Diſturber of the Peace of the Church and Empire: And accordingly ſent his Ambaſſadors, who read this Decree before the Pope, and commanded him to leave and ceaſe to profane the Holy Chair; of which the Emperour was Guardian. The Pope hereupon in a Council of 110 Italian Biſhops, declared, That by the Authority of God and St. Peter, he depoſed Henry from the Imperial Throne, delivered him over to Satan, and abſolv'd his Subjects from their Obedience. The Emperour proteſted againſt this Excommunication, and the Pope's Uſurpation over the Crown, alledging the Example of Charlemagne and others who had the Power of confirming the Popes, which ſeveral of them, and particularly Gregory himſelf, had acknowledged to be the Emperour's Due; but the German Prelates, and Princes abandoning Henry, whom they had engaged in the Cauſe, and threatening to dethrone him, he was forced in the Rigor of the Winter to paſs the Alpes with his Empreſs, Son; and one Gentleman, and almoſt famiſh'd with Hunger, and ſtarv'd with Cold, to caſt himſelf at the Pope's Feet, after he, his Empreſs, and Son had waited in Penitents Habit three days at his Gate with their Heads uncovered, Bare-feet and without eating. After which, and agreeing to the Pope's Terms, he was abſolv'd. The Princes of Italy did hereupon deſpiſe him as a Coward, and the Pope as a Tyrant and Simoniack, and ſo plotted againſt both: Whereupon the Emperour perceiving how much he had abaſed himſelf and fruſtrated thoſe Princes, who look'd for a Reformation of the Church through his Means, to retrieve himſelf he aſſembled the Princes of Italy, to whom he accuſed the Pope as the Cauſe of the Ruine of the Empire, and demanding their Aſſiſtance againſt him, pleaſed them, and kept the Pope in a Manner blocked up. The German Rebels in the mean time, choſe Rodolphus Duke of Suabia Emperour, and crowned him at Mentz, An. 1077, but were chaſed thence by the People that ſame day, Henry having Notice of it came into Germany by the way of Carinthia, the Rebels having ſtop'd the Paſſages of the City, and defeated the Uſurper Rodolph as beſieging Wurtzberg, which ſo terrified the Pope, that he was then for accommodating the differences betwixt the two; but the Rebels complaining that he deſerted them in that Cauſe wherein he himſelf had engaged them, he excommunicated Henry a ſecond time, confirmed the Election of Rodolphus, and ſent him a Crown with this Inſcription.

Petra dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho.

But the Emperour defeated the Rebels in two bloody Battles, in the laſt of which, Godfrey of Bologne Duke of Lorrain cut off the Uſurper Rodolphus's Right-hand, and wounded him mortally in the Belly; ſo that being on his Death-bed he ſent for his hand, and told the Biſhops who were about his Bed, that as by their Advice, and the Pope's Command, his right Hand had uſurp'd the Imperial Sceptre, his perfidy was juſtly puniſh'd by the Loſs of it, ſeeing he had given it as a Pledge of his Fidelity to the Emperour. He was buried in a Royal Manner, at the News of which the Emperour wiſh'd that all his Enemies were as nobly interred. Henry after this in a Council of 30 Biſhops at Tyrol, depoſed Pope Gregory, and ſet up Clement Arch-biſhop of Ravenna, in his Stead, paſſing the Alpes he defeated a Rebel Army at Parma, took Rome by Storm, and beſieged Pope Gregory in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, whence being delivered by the Duke of Pouilla, he died not long after. But the Popes Victor III. Vrban II. and Paſchal II. perſecuted Henry and his Antipopes ſtill, raiſed firſt Harman Count of Luxemburg whoſe end was unhappy, and then his own Sons, Conrade and Henry, to rebel againſt him: The firſt died while he attempted it, but the ſecond was ſucceſsful by his Cunning and Treachery; and having procur'd a Decree of the States againſt his Father, ſent to demand the Regalia, which he would not ſurrender, but inveſting himſelf with them, ſuffered the Arch-Biſhops of Mentz and Cologne and the Biſhop of Worms to take them from him by Violence, calling God to Witneſs againſt them. And being reduced to Extreme Neceſſity, deſired to be admitted a Canon at Spires, that he might have a Subſiſtence, which was denied him, becauſe of his Excommunication; which put him upon trying his Fortune once more, ſo that coming to Cologne he was well received, and being ſeconded by the Duke of Lorrain and other Princes, recruited and held out Cologne againſt his Son, over whom the Duke of Lorrain obtained ſome Advantage, but amidſt all his Troubles died at Leige Aug. 7. 1106 in the 46 Year of his Reign and 56 of his Age; and being buried in a Monaſtery, was three days after taken out of his Grave, and kept five Years without Burial, becauſe of his Excommunication. Thus was the laſt Scene of his Father's prophetick Dream fulfilled, who in his Sleep thought he ſaw Hildebrand, whom he had ſeen by way of Viſion among the Miniſters of Gregory VI. lift the young Prince upon Horns, which he ſeemed to have in his Forehead, as high as the Clouds, and then throw him down into a bottomleſs Pit in the Bowels of the Earth. He was a Prince of incomparable Wit, Valour, Solidity and Liberality; merciful to Exceſs, pardoning even thoſe who had lodged themſelves in his Palace to aſſaſſinate him. His Countenance was comely, his Body ſtraight and tall, and his mien Majeſtick. His Death was preſaged by two Suns, a Star near the Sun, cluſters of Stars together; one ſeeming to thruſt out another, and a prodigious Comet. Monſieur de Prade Hiſtorie d' Allemagne.

HENRY V. ſurnamed The Young, ſucceeded his Father Henry The Old in 1106. He deſtroy'd his Father out of Ambition to get into his Throne, having rebelled againſt him four Years before, at the Inſtigation of the Popes Victor III. Vrban II. and Paſchal II. who told him, That if his Father died excommunicate they would not ſuffer him to ſucceed, but transfer the Empire to another Family if he did not take it upon him, in his Father's Life-time; which had more effect upon him than his Father's Letters had to keep him in his Duty; for taking Arms, and dreading his Father's Valour, he corrupted the Marquis of Auſtria, by promiſing him his Siſter in Marriage, to deſert his Father in the day of Battel, which being accordingly performed, others followed his Example, which obliged Henry the Great to fly to Bohemia; whence marching with an Army to the Diet at Mentz, his Son, being afraid that his Father's Preſence might Influence the States to return to their Allegiance, flattered him to diſmiſs his Army, with an Oath that he would refuſe the Crown if tender'd to him, and uſe his utmoſt Power to Re-eſtabliſh him on the Throne, but perfidiouſly betrayed him, and procured his Depoſition; which being effected, he turned out all thoſe who had been faithful to his Father, and while that unfortunate Prince held out Cologne, ſummoned him to ſurrender himſelf on pain of being treated as a Rebel; but the Year after his Father's Death, he was ſtruck with a Thunderbolt, which wounded him in one of his great Toes, conſumed part of his Sword and Buckler, and filled him and the Diet, then ſitting at Goſlar, with ſo much horrour, that they broke up. He routed the Polanders, and other Princes; went into Italy with a ſtrong Army, An. 1110. and juſt as he thought to have been crowned by the Pope, it was refuſed in the very Church, except he would renounce the Right of Inveſting Prelates. Whereupon the Emperor immediately ſeized the Pope Paſchal II. and Cardinals, ſo that for three days Rome became a Slaughter-houſe, the Citizens eſpouſing the Pope's Quarrel. At laſt both Parties quit the Town, and fought it in a bloody Battel, wherein the Emperor was diſmounted, thrown upon the Ground, and wounded in the Face, which ſo terrified him, that he kept the Pope, &c. cloſe Priſoners in a ſtrong Caſtle, intrench'd his Army, and kept the Romans in continual skirmiſhing to their very Gates for two Months, without coming to another Battel, but brought the Pope to his Terms, by threatning to behead the Priſoners; and the Agreement was ratified by the Pope's dividing the Hoſtie betwixt himſelf and the Emperor, An. 1111, but in ſeveral Aſſemblies of the Clergy the Emperor was excommunicated, and the Treaty declared Null, and particularly the Council of Lateran, An. 1112, conſiſting of 23 Cardinals, 140 Biſhops, and a great many Abbots; diſanulled the Agreement, and excommunicated the Emperor, and ſtirred up the Saxons againſt him, ſo that all Europe ſounded with the Thunder of the Anathema's, there having never been ſo many known to fall upon one head. After this he was defeated by the Saxons with the loſs of 40000 Men, which ſo weakned his Authority, that when he called a Diet, the States would not meet; and the Archbiſhop of Mentz, who had been the Author of his Rupture with the Pope, turned his moſt bitter Enemy, procured the Revolt of moſt of the other Princes, and another Excommunication againſt him. And going to Rome, An. 1117, the Count of Tuſculum, finding the Pope irreconcilable, got the Archbiſhop of Bregna in Portugal to crown the Emperor. Whereupon the Pope excommunicated them all, and a little after died at Beneventum, whither he had retired An. 1118. He ſet up the Archbiſhop of Bregua as Antipope againſt Gelaſius II. who ſucceeded. The Emperor was again excommunicated, and had Rebellions kindled againſt him by Pope Calixtus II. ſo that being quite wearied, he left it to the Diet, An. 1123, to make an Agreement with the Pope, ſome Conceſſions being made on both ſides. After which the Emperor buried his Father honourably, tho' he had perſecuted him when alive. An. 1125. the Inhabitants of Rufach provok'd by the Inſolence of his Guards, chaſed him out of the Town, and deſpoiled him of the Regalia as he had ſerved his Father; for which he afterwards took the Town by Storm and burnt it. The ſame Year he Invaded France, but without ſucceſs, and died at Utrecht An. 1125. of an ulcerated Dragon in his Right Arm, which he concealed a long time, leſt it ſhould be thought a Judgment for his Perfidy, and was buried at Spire. He left no Children by his Wife Maud, Daughter of Henry I. King of England. Baronius, An. C. 1106, &c. Pandulph, &c. Monſieur de Prade.

HENRY VI. of Suabia, ſurnamed The Severe, Son of Frederick Barbaroſſa, was choſen Emperor in 1190, and married Conſtantia the K. of Sicily's Daughter, in Right of whom he was afterward poſſeſſed of that Kingdom. They were both Crowned at Rome, by Celeſtine III. in 1191. The Romans upon the Delivery of Tuſculum to them by the Emperor, ras'd and demoliſh'd the Town. On the other hand, the Emperor having taken Naples, in a general Meeting of the States, ſeized a great number of Counts and Barons who had conſpired againſt him, whom he had cauſed to be flea'd alive, their Eyes to be pull'd out, their Hands and Feet cut off, empaled, anointed with Honey and expoſed to the Flies, or roaſted them alive by a ſlow Fire, fixed a Crown of red hot Iron, faſtened with four Nails, upon the Head of him whom they had choſen King, and pulled out the Eyes of the Hoſtages whom they had given him for their Fidelity. Henry went and took Poſſeſſion of Naples and Sicily, and puniſhed ſo ſeverely thoſe of Palermo, who had delivered his Wife to Tancrede his Competitor and Enemy, that he was thence called Severe. He impriſoned Tancrede's Wife, and pluck'd out his Son's Eyes. He was Excommunicated for Impriſoning Richard King of England returning from the Holy Land, exacting a great Sum from him for his Ranſom, and diſpoſing of Church Lands, but was ſoon reconciled. In 1196, he forced the Princes of the Empire to elect his Son Frederick King of the Romans, though but three Years old. Afterwards he went into Italy with a ſtrong Army, and was ſo cruel there, that his Wife, being offended at his Severity to ſome of her Relations, armed againſt him, and confined him to a Caſtle. Being reconciled to her, and deſigning for the Holy Land, he died in Sicily, An. 1197, not without ſuſpicion of Poyſon given him by his Empreſs. Roger in Annal. Baronius ad An. 1186, &c.

HENRY VII. D. of Luxemburg, elected in 1308 after Albert I's Death. He was Crowned at Aix la Chapelle, An. 1309. He took the Iron Crown at Milan, and received the Golden Crown at Rome in 1312, but laboured in vain to re-eſtabliſh the Luſtre of the Empire, ravaging only ſome Provinces. He was more illuſtrious for his Vertue than Dignity, and died near Siena 1313. Some ſay he was poyſoned by Bernard Politian, a Dominican Friar, with a conſecrated Wafer; but Villani, who liv'd at that time, Albertinus Muſſatus of Padua, who gives a particular and exact Account of what happen'd to Henry; Conradus Vecerus, who wrote his Life, and a great many other Authors, are wholly ſilent about this matter of Poyſoning. Spondanus Rainaldi. Bzovius ad An. 1313.

HENRY, Earl of Reſpenburg, Landtgrave of Thuringia and Heſſe, Son of Herman I. and Brother to Lewis VI. was elected Emperor in 1245, in oppoſition to Frederick II. and crowned at Aix la Chapelle in 1246. He defeated Conrade, Frederick's Son, and died in 1247 of Grief, for the Loſs of a Battel; or as ſome ſay, of a Wound. His Enemies called him the King of Clerks, becauſe elected by the Archbiſhops of Mentz, Cologne and Treves, and the Biſhops of Straſburg, Metz and Spire.

Emperor of Conſtantinople.

HENRY, a French-man, Emperor of Conſtantinople, ſucceeded his Brother Baldwin VIII. who was alſo Count of Flanders. He took upon him the Government upon the News of Baldwin's Impriſonment, and was crowned in 1206. The Grecians being weary of the Latins, endeavoured to ſhake off their Government in this new Reign, but Henry vanquiſhed them. The Pope reprehended him An. 1210. for ſome Laws he had enacted againſt the Clergy. He died in 1216 at Theſſalonica, poyſoned as ſome ſay. Peter Courtenay Earl of Auxerre, who had married Joland his Siſter, ſucceeded him. Du Cange Hiſt. de Conſtant.

Kings of England by the Name of HENRY.

HENRY I. King of England, ſurnamed Beauclerc, becauſe of his Learning, was the youngeſt Son of William the Conqueror, and ſucceeded his Brother William II. ſurnamed Rufus, in 1100. Robert his eldeſt Brother, was in the Holy Land when their Brother William was by Accident killed in the new Foreſt; ſo that Henry taking Advantage of his Abſence, by his Intereſt got Poſſeſſion of the Crown. When Robert returned in hopes of being admitted to the Throne, he found himſelf fruſtrated of his expectations, as he was in the former Reign. However, to recover his Right, he Landed an Army at Portſmouth, many of the Engliſh flocking to him. Yet, after all, he was willing to part with his Claim on the ſame Terms he had done before with his Brother William, viz. That Henry ſhould enjoy the Crown during his Life, paying to Robert, by way of Tribute, 3000 Marks per Annum. Which being agreed to, Henry to ingratiate himſelf with his People, Reformed his own Court and Houſhold, for a Pattern to his Subjects; forgave all Debts to the Crown before his Time; reſtored to the Engliſh the Uſe of Fire and Lights, at their own Liberty, and introduced the Uſe of the Night-Watch. The Heirs of the Nobility he made free to poſſeſs their Inheritance without Redemption from him, ingaging the Nobles to do the like by their Tenants. He allow'd the Gentry to diſpoſe of their Daughters and Kinſwomen in Marriage without his Licence, ſo it were not to his Enemy. Moreover, he appointed a Meaſure adjuſted by the length of his own Arm, to be a Standard for Commerce amongſt his People. But that which pleaſed his Subjects moſt of all, was his Reviving the Laws of Edward the Confeſſor. Another thing which proved very acceptable, was his taking to Wife Maud, Daughter to the King of Scots, by Margaret, Siſter to Edgar Atheling; by whoſe Iſſue the Norman and Saxon Blood came to be united. The Sees of Carliſle and Ely, the Abbies of Hithe, Reading and Cirenceſter, and the Priory of Dunſtable, were erected and indowed by him. And, as the Saxon King Alfred had long before reſtored the Univerſity of Oxford, ſo did Henry reſtore that of Cambridge to its ancient Luſtre. The Normans forty Years before had conquered England, now England took its turn, and conquered Normandy, upon a Miſunderſtanding of the two Brothers, Robert and Henry, which broke out into a War. Whereupon Henry went twice over into Normandy, with a powerful and victorious Army. At the Battel of Finchebray, which was fought in 1106, Robert was taken Priſoner, and ſent to Cardiff-Caſtle in Wales, where he died after ſome Years Impriſonment, and was buried at Gloceſter. In the mean time Henry ſeized upon his Dukedom, and created William his eldeſt Son Duke thereof; which afterwards grew into a Cuſtom for the eldeſt Sons of England to be made Dukes of Normandy, till Normandy being loſt to the French, and Wales conquered by the Engliſh, the eldeſt Son of the Kings of England came to be ſtiled by Creation Prince of Wales. King Henry had two Wives, Maud aforeſaid, and Alice of Louvain; by this laſt he had no Iſſue, but by the firſt he had two Sons, William and Richard, and a Daughter called Maud. His Son William he matched with the Duke of Anjou's Daughter ; but coming over for England with Richard his Brother, they were unhappily caſt away, with all their Attendants. Maud was married firſt to the Emperor Henry V. and afterwards to Henry Plantagenet, Earl of Anjou, Tourain, and Main in France. After the Emperor's Death, the King ſent for her over into England, where calling a Parliament, he cauſed Stephen his Siſter's Son, with his Nobles, to ſwear Fealty to her as to his lawful and now only Heir. Afterwards the King had Occaſion to go again into Normandy, where he died of a ſurfeit by eating of Lampreys after Hunting, having reigned 35 Years. His Body was brought over, and buried at Reading-Abbey. There was a diſpute between this Prince and Anſelm Archbiſhop of Canterbury, concerning the Inveſtitures of Biſhops ; Anſelm refuſing to conſecrate ſuch as the King preferr'd, objecting, That he could not comply without giving up the Priviledges, and breaking the Orders of the Church. This conteſt went ſo far, that Anſelm was Baniſh'd, and his Biſhoprick ſeiz'd ; but afterwards, the King falling under ſome difficulties, recall'd the Archbiſhop, and gave up the point. We may likewiſe obſerve in this Prince, that he made thoſe puniſhments Pecuniary which were formerly Mutilations, and chang'd thoſe Proviſions which were paid in kind, by his Tenants, into a certain Rent, in Money, and gave his Subjects leave to make Encloſures for Parks, which, under him, ſeem to have had their Original. * Daniel Hiſt.

HENRY II. King of England, otherwiſe called Henry Fitz-Empreſs, ſucceeded King Stephen 1154. He was Son of Geoffry Plantagenet by Maud the Empreſs. Three things are obſervable in this Reign : Firſt, That in the Perſon of this King the Norman and Saxon Blood were happily united, his Mother being a Norman by her Father's ſide, and a Saxon by her Mother's, deſcended from the King Edmund ſurnamed Ironſide. Secondly, That with him began the Race of the Plantagenets, which ended with Richard III. Thirdly, That by his Means the goodly French Provinces of Anjou, Tourain, and Main, and afterwards by Marriage Poitou, Saintonge, Guienne, and Gaſcoigne, became annexed to the Crown of England. This King had his ſhare of Troubles, by the Rebellion of the arrogant Lord Hugh de Mortimer, the Irruptions of the Welſh, the Refractorineſs of the ungrateful Tho. Becket Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the outragious Jealouſy of his Queen, but moſt of all by the unnatural Rebellion of his Sons, whom ſhe ſet againſt him. All which he overcame, except the Biſhop. The King at his Acceſſion to the Crown, had advanced him to the Place of Lord Chancellor, and upon the Death of Theobald, made him Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Yet he made it his Buſineſs to contend with the King, as to his Prerogative, and ſtifly to maintain the Pope's Uſurped Power againſt the Rights of the Crown. In ſhort, ſome of the Courtiers, obſerving the King's juſt diſpleaſure againſt him, undertook without his Knowledge to rid the Kingdom of ſo troubleſome a Prelate, by murdering him in the Cathedral Church of Canterbury, as he ſtood in Service-time before the Altar, upon Chriſtmas-day, Anno 1170. This Biſhop was afterwards liſted in the Catalogue of Saints and Martyrs of the Church of Rome, upon a general Belief, that ſtrange Miracles were wrought by his Blood and Reliques. But the King hearing of the Murder was exceedingly troubled ; and, to take off the Imputation of Guilt from himſelf, proteſted that he would ſubmit to the Judgment of ſuch Cardinal Legates as the Pope ſhould ſend to inquire of the Fact. Two of them were ſent by the Pope, and the King went into Normandy to meet them, where he could get no Abſolution, (tho' he cleared himſelf of the Fact) without grievous Penances, and yielding to ſuch Articles as weakned the Prerogative, and ſtrengthened the Pope's pretended Authority. One of his Penances was to go three Miles barefoot to Canterbury, and receive at the Chapter-houſe eighty Laſhes with Rods from the Monks. As for the Queen's Anger on account of Roſamond his Concubine, whom ſhe poiſoned, nothing could allay it but her Husband's ruine ; to procure which, ſhe ſtirred up his Sons to Rebellion, aſſiſted by the Kings of France and Scotland, with ſeveral of the Engliſh Nobles. But K. Henry, by the Succeſs of his Arms, diſappointed their Deſign. The French King he made ſtoop to him for Peace. William King of Scots, was ſurprized at Alnwick as riding careleſly abroad, and taken Priſoner. To recover his Liberty, he was fain to do Homage (as our Hiſtorians ſay, but the Scots deny) for his Crown to King Henry, and to part with Cumberland and Weſtmorland, two Northern Counties, which had been in the Poſſeſſion of the Scots above 200 Years, ever ſince Malcolm I. His Sons met each of them with God's Judgments for their Undutifulneſs, ſome one way, ſome another ; and, as to Robert Earl of Leiceſter, the Leader of the Rebels, he was vanquiſhed and taken Priſoner, the Town of Leiceſter being burnt, its Walls and Caſtle demoliſhed, for its Rebellion. Before this, King Henry had made a Conqueſt of Ireland, (all the Iriſh Kings, excepting Rodorick King of Conaught, ſubmitting and taking the Oath of Allegiance to him and his Succeſſors) which he beſtowed, with the Title of Lord of Ireland, upon his youngeſt Son John, ſurnamed Lack-land. At laſt, after a Reign of 34 Years and better, he died at Chinon in Tourain, An. 1189, and was buried in the Abbey-Church of Fontevraut. His jealous Q. Eleanor was the ſole Heir of William V. D. of Aquitain, and Earl of Poitou ; firſt married to Lewis VII. King of France, and afterwards to Henry, who had by her ſix Sons and three Daughters. His Sons were William, Henry, Richard, Geoffry, Philip, and John ; among which, William and Philip died very young. All the reſt proved Rebellious to their Father, even John his Favourite ; and, amongſt theſe, Henry (who was crowned King in his Father's life-time) died before his Father ; Geoffry, in a Turnament at Paris, was trod to death under the Horſe's Feet ; ſo that none but Richard and John ſurvived their Father, and they enjoyed the Crown ſucceſſively. His Daughters were Eleanor, married to Alfonſo VIII. King of Caſtile ; and Joan, firſt married to William King of Sicily, and afterwards to Raymond V. Earl of Toulouſe. * Daniel, Speed, &c.

HENRY III. King of England, commonly called Henry of Wincheſter, becauſe born there, ſucceeded his Father King John 1216, being but nine or ten years old, and reigned 56 Years, which was longer than any before him ; but a great part of it he was embroiled in Civil Wars. At his firſt coming to the Crown he had a Foreign Enemy in the Bowels of the Kingdom ; I mean Lewis, the Dauphin of France, whom the Barons had called in againſt King John. The Nobles and Citizens of London had already ſworn Allegiance to Lewis, but he was ſoon diſliked, even by thoſe that brought him in, ſo that it proved no hard Task to ſhake him off again ; eſpecially after the Defeat of his Forces near Lincoln by the Earl of Pembroke, the King's Guardian and Brother-in-Law, upon which Lewis thought it beſt to quit his Claim, and ſo returned into France. One Reaſon among others, by which Lewis loſt his Intereſt in England, was the diſcovery of a ſecret by one Melun, a French Viſcount, who is ſaid to have declar'd upon his Death-Bed, that Lewis had privately reſolv'd to deſtroy and exterminate the Engliſh, whom he look'd upon as a vile and ſcandalous People, for their Treaſons, and never to be truſted, ſince they had forſaken their own Soveraign Lord. Henry, being thus ſettled upon the Throne, demanded of the French King that he might be wholly Reinſtated in his Anceſtors Poſſeſſions in France ; but he could get no Satisfaction. On the contrary, he was fain to Sign a Treaty, in 1259, by which, in conſideration of three hundred thouſand pounds, he was oblig'd to give up the Dutchy of Normandy, together with the Earldoms of Anjou, Poitou, Tourain, and Maine. After this he was involved in Civil Wars, by his Kindneſs to Foreigners, and the encroaching humour of his Barons, who bringing a Force with them to the Parliament at Oxford ; oblig'd the King to conſent, That the chief Juſticiary, the Chancellor and Treaſurer, ſhould be choſen by the Parliament, and got twenty four Conſervators of the Kingdom confirm'd ; twelve of which were choſen by the King, and twelve by the Lords. At Nottingham, both he and his Brother Richard were taken and kept Priſoners by the Barons, till, upon a difference betwixt the potent Earls of Leiceſter and Gloceſter, the laſt forſook them, and embraced the King's Intereſt. After this the Barons were utterly defeated at Eveſham, Leiceſter their General ſlain, and Henry ſet at Liberty. Who thereupon called a Parliament at Wincheſter ; with whoſe concurrence he ſeized the Charter of London, and other Places, for their Defection, diſinherited ſuch as were on the Barons ſide, and diſtributed their Eſtates amongſt the leading Men that had fought in his Quarrel. On pretence of going to the Holy War, he obtained large Subſidies from the Parliament ; upon which he ſolemnly confirmed Magna Charta, with a Curſe againſt all Infringers thereof. His Reign was long, but bleſſed in nothing ſo much as in the Hopes of his eldeſt Son Edward, who, with many of the Nobles, took the Croſs upon him for the Holy Land ; for, in a word, his Government was frequently embarraſs'd and imbroil'd, which diſturbances were partly occaſion'd by the inequality of this Princes temper, and partly by the ſtubborn untractableneſs of the Barons. At laſt he died at St. Edmundbury in Suffolk, and was buried at Weſtminſter, An. 1272. By Eleanor his Queen he had ſix Sons, viz. Edward his Succeſſor, Edmund ſurnamed Crouchback, Richard who died young, John, William, and Henry ; beſides three Daughters, Margaret married to Alexander III. King of Scots, Beatrix married to John D. of Bretagne, and Catharine who died young. His Brother Richard, Earl of Cornwal, was choſen King of the Romans ; who, having been employ'd ſix Years in the Affairs of the Empire, returned into England, where he died. Laſtly, The beſt Character I can find of this King, is his charitable Temper ; whereof he gave a large Proof in Founding and Indowing the Houſe of Converts, and an Hoſpital at Oxford. The firſt for ſuch as forſook the Jewiſh Religion ; the other for the Relief of poor diſeaſed People, Strangers, and Pilgrims. Nay, ſo remarkable was he for this Vertue, that Leoline Prince of Wales, being much threatned by him, if he would not live in Peace, was heard to ſay, That he feared more the Alms-deeds of the King than all his Forces, and his Clergy to boot. * Daniel Hiſt. Speed, &c.

HENRY IV. King of England, commonly called, from his Birth-place, Henry of Bullingbrook, ſucceeded Richard II. his Couſin, upon his Reſignation of the Crown, An. 1399. and was crowned at Weſtminſter, by Tho. Arundel Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury. He was Son of John of Gaunt, D. of Lancaſter, the fourth Son of Edward III. and the firſt King of that Line ; whoſe Inheritance being unjuſtly ſeized upon by K. Richard, it proved the chief Occaſion of his Fall, and Henry's Riſe ; as you may ſee in the Life of K. Richard. In ſhort, Henry came to the Crown by the Power of the Sword, the Iſſue of Lionel Duke of Clarence, third Son of Edward III. being laid aſide, though they had a precedent Right : But, as he got it, ſo he was forced to maintain it by the Sword ; moſt part of his Reign being ſpent in ſuppreſſing of Inſurrections, and maintaining a War in Scotland. In England, and Aquitain it ſelf, King Richard had ſtill a Party, whoſe ſecret Endeavours for his Reſtoration ſerved only to haſten his Death, who was Murther'd by Sir Pierce of Exton, who had broad innuendo's from Henry to encourage him in the Aſſaſſination. The Scots being diſcomfited, the Welſh began to ſtir under their notable Ring-leader Owen Glendower. Hereupon the Scots took Arms again, and received a great Overthrow at a place called Halidon-Hill. At Shrewſbury, the Rebels, under the Command of Henry Lord Piercy, (one of thoſe Conſpirators who had reſolved to dethrone Henry, and ſhare England and Wales among themſelves) were entirely defeated. To revenge Piercy's Death, who was ſlain in that Fight, his Father, the Earl of Northumberland, and the Lord Bardolph, raiſed an Army in the North; but it coſt them their Lives. Thus Henry, after a turbulent Reign of 13 Years and almoſt ſix Months, died at London, and was interred at Canterbury. On his Death-bed, he appeared plainly diſſatisfied with his Title to the Crown, but however gave no charge to his Son to relinquiſh his Claim. He had two Wives, Mary, the Daughter of Humphry de Bohun Earl of Eſſex, Hereford and Northampton, Lord High Conſtable of England; and Joan of Navarre, the Duke of Bretagne's Widow. By the firſt he had Iſſue Henry his next Succeſſor, Thomas Duke of Clarence, John Duke of Bedford, and Humphry Duke of Glouceſter; beſides two Daughters, viz. Blanch married to Lewis Barbatus Duke of Bavaria, and Philippa married to John King of Denmark. As for his ſecond Wife, he left no Iſſue by her. Before this Reign, no Man was puniſhed with Death for Religion. * Daniel, &c.

HENRY V. commonly called, from his Birth-place, Henry of Monmouth, was the eldeſt Son of King Henry IV. whom he ſucceeded An. 1412. As wild and unruly as he was in his Youth, before he came to the Crown, yet he proved a wiſe, as well as a warlike Prince after he attain'd it, and ſtands to this Day one of the greateſt Ornaments of our Engliſh Chronicles. Firſt he took care to chuſe himſelf a wiſe Council of State; and commanded all thoſe young Gentlemen who had been Companions of his Irregularities, either to change their Manners, or never to approach his Perſon. He revived the Engliſh Title to the Crown of France, and carried it at laſt, though he lived not to poſſeſs the Kingdom. But firſt he had fought the Battel of Agencourt, where, with a ſmall Army of 15000 Men, he routed the French 52000 ſtrong; which happen'd by the neceſſity our Men were reduced to, either to vanquiſh, or to die. To reconcile both Parties, the Emperour Sigiſmund came to France, and from thence into England; but his Endeavours proving ineffectual, he ſided with the Engliſh. There was then in France a great Miſunderſtanding betwixt the Houſe of Orleans, and that of Burgundy, which favoured the King's Deſign, who took part with the Houſe of Burgundy. The Weakneſs of Charles VI. then reigning in France, and the Diſtraction of that Court, upon the Q. and the Dauphin's being then at Variance, gave our Henry a fair opportunity to conquer all Normandy, after Rouen had fallen into his Hands. An. 1419. The Duke of Burgundy's Death happening ſoon after this, who was killed at Montereau, increaſed our Party. The French Queen her ſelf came in for one againſt her Son's Intereſt, and prevailed with the King, her Husband, to diſinherit him. Whereupon Catherine, their Daughter, was given in Marriage to Henry of England, who was declared Heir to the Crown of France, and, during Charles's Life, Regent of that Kingdom. The Treaty was concluded at Troyes in Champaigne, and the Marriage conſummated June 20. 1420. The whole ratified by the States of the Realm, and ſworn unto by the Nobles; all Men in Authority ſetting their Hands and Seals to an Inſtrument made for that purpoſe. But while the Dauphin (afterwards Charles VII.) beſtirred himſelf with Might and Main to ſupport his Claim, with the infallible Aſſiſtance of the Scots, always ſiding with France, againſt England; King Henry died at Vincennes, a Royal Palace near Paris, in 1422. leaving no Iſſue but a new-born Son, Henry, his Succeſſor: Whoſe Education he left to the Cardinal of Wincheſter, the Government of England (till he were of Age) to Humphry Duke of Glouceſter, and the Regency of France to John Duke of Bedford; both the King's Brothers. At the Siege of Baugé in Anjou, attempted by the King's Second Brother, Thomas Duke of Clarence, a valiant Prince, was unhappily ſlain, and his Forces defeated. Q. Catharine, after the King's Death, married again to Owen Tudor, by whom ſhe had three Sons; the eldeſt whereof, Edmund Earl of Richmond, was Father of Henry VII. This Henry Vth. was a Prince of great Courage and Juſtice in his Adminiſtration, Prudent in his Conduct, and Regular in his private Life, after his coming to the Crown; and in ſhort, wanted nothing but a better Title to make his Character every way ſhining and unexceptionable. Speed, &c.

HENRY VI. K. of England, commonly called Henry of Windſor, was the only Iſſue of K. Henry V. and ſucceeded An. 1422, being but eight Months old. This Prince was unſucceſsful both at home and abroad. His Misfortunes began in France; and the firſt Diſadvantage that befell him there, was, the Death of his Grandfather Charles, the French King, who lived not quite two Months after the Death of his Father: For, as, on the one ſide, the Weakneſs of that Prince was a ſtrength to the Engliſh; ſo, on the other ſide, the Infancy of Henry was an Advantage to the Dauphin of France, who ſtood in Competition with him for that Kingdom. Yet for ſome Years all things ſmiled upon the Engliſh, and Fortune ſeemed to promiſe them an entire Poſſeſſion of France. 'Tis true, the Dauphin, now called Charles VII. cauſed himſelf to be crowned at Poictiers, upon the Death of his Father; having on his ſide all the Princes of the Blood, (except the D. of Burgundy) and the brave Commanders at his Devotion. But then he had only thoſe Provinces that lie on the other ſide the Loire, except the Province of Guienne, which was Engliſh: And becauſe Berry was the Province where he moſt reſided, he was commonly called, in deriſion, by his Enemies, K. of Bourges, this being the chief place of it: Whereas the Engliſh were then poſſeſſed of the beſt Provinces of France, of all Normandy, and all the Countries reaching from the River Scheld to the Loire and the Soane, except a few Places which ſtood out for the Dauphin. In the ſeveral Battels of Crevant, Verneuil and Rouvroi, the French were ſtill worſted; and all the Hopes of the new French King ſeemed now reduced to the raiſing of the Siege of Orleans, carried on by the Earl of Saliſbury: Which was effected, the French ſay, by a Miracle; the Engliſh, by a Witch: I mean, Joan the Shepherdeſs, otherwiſe called, the Maid of Orleans; who began here her Warlike Exploits, ſo fatal to the Engliſh: Inſomuch that this Siege being raiſed, with the loſs of the Earl of Saliſbury, (which happened An. 1429.) our Intereſt in France declined ſo faſt, that in the Year 1451. we had nothing left there, except Calais, the neighbouring County of Guiſnes, and thoſe Iſles we are ſtill poſſeſſed of on the Coaſt of Normandy. After ſhe had raiſed the Siege of Orleans, which got her a great Fame amongſt the French, and had an happy Influence upon their King's Affairs, ſhe got him Crown'd at Rheims in Champaigne, the uſual place for the Coronation of the French Monarchs. Soon after this, ſhe was taken Priſoner at a Sally ſhe made at Compeigne, and conveyed to Rouen, where ſhe was tried for Sorcery, and other Crimes, and, upon her Conviction, burnt alive: Whereas the French magnifie her as a Perſon ſent from Heaven, with a Commiſſion to fight their King's Battels, and drive the Engliſh out of France. The Year after ſhe was executed, viz. An. 1432. K. Henry being gone over to Paris, was there crowned with a double Crown, by the Cardinal of Wincheſter. Then the Engliſh Affairs in that Kingdom looked with a better Face, the Earl of Arundel and Lord Talbot carrying about their victorious Arms, till the firſt happened to be mortally wounded at Gerbroy. This was An. 1435. an unfortunate Year to the Engliſh upon two other Accounts; firſt, by the Deſertion of the Duke of Burgundy; and ſecondly, by the Death of the Regent, a Prince of great Wiſdom and Moderation: Whoſe Death gave Life to the French King's Affairs, and ſtruck a Damp into the Engliſh; from whom ſeveral Towns immediately revolted to K. Charles. Richard Duke of York ſucceeded the Duke of Bedford in the Regency of France; but before he arrived there, Paris was loſt by the Citizens Treachery, Feb. 27. 1436. Five Years after this, a Truce was concluded for 18 Months between the two Kings: and then King Henry married with Margaret of Anjou, Daughter of Renatus King of Naples, the Source of all his Misfortunes in England; for the King being but an eaſie Prince, the Queen a high Spirited Woman, took (as it were) the Sceptre from his Hands, and undertook, with her Council, to rule all. To do it effectually, Duke Humphry, the King's Unkle, a Lover of his Country, and one that could not brook the violent Proceedings of the Queen, muſt by all means be removed. Therefore he was attainted of High Treaſon, and ſome Days after was found dead, and his Body ſhewed to the Lords and Commons, as if he had died of a Palſie, or an Impoſthume; when moſt were of Opinion that he had been made away. This happened in 1447. about which time the Affairs of France were neglected, and England it ſelf became a bloody Scene of War. Richard Duke of York, who had a precedent Right to the Crown, before the Houſe of Lancaſter, began to eye it for himſelf; and ſo diſpoſed Matters, that he made, at long run, his Party too ſtrong for the Queen: And, when he thought the Time fit for Action, then he puts in his Claim, and challenges the Crown as his Right. Nothing could be more favourable than the preſent Juncture: The Nation groaned under popular Diſcontents, not only from the manifold Loſſes and Diſhonours abroad, but alſo from the turbulent Condition of Things at home. Theſe popular Diſcontents Richard cheriſhed and improved to the utmoſt of his power, and, far from ſeeking to redreſs any Grievances, made it rather his buſineſs to encourage them. With which being charged by the Duke of Somerſet, he was put for a time under Reſtraint; but releaſed upon a ſolemn Oath he took in S. Paul's Church, in London, before the Chief of the Nobility, to be a true, faithful and obedient Subject to King Henry. But the Duke of Sommerſet being made Regent of France, and miſbehaving himſelf in the loſs of Normandy, and after an Impeachment of Treaſon, being ſet at liberty by the Queen's Party, the Duke of York was diſſatisfied with theſe proceedings and rais'd an Army, as he pretended for Redreſſing of Grievances in 1454, and with his Forces marched up towards London. The King having got an Army, advanced to St. Albans, where a ſharp Battel was fought, the Royal Party worſted, and the King taken Priſoner. This was the firſt Act of that bloody Tragedy, which made this Nation ſwim in Blood for ſeveral Years; the Yorkiſts, for diſtinction ſake, aſſuming the Name of the White, and the Royaliſts that of the Red Roſe. Upon this Battel a Parliament was called, in which the Yorkiſts were voted not guilty of Treaſon, as to their Taking up Arms; the Duke of York made Protector of England, and the Earl of Saliſbury, his Confident, Lord Chancellor. But ſome Years after, Things grew up again into a Fermentation, which came to a great Battel at Blore-Heath in Staffordſhire, in which the Red Roſe (or the Royaliſts) were beaten. And, not long after, there happened another Action at Ludlow; but here the Yorkiſts were put to flight. This was followed by a Parliament holden at Coventry, which fell heavy upon the Duke of York, and the chief of his Party; being attainted of High Treaſon, and their whole Eſtates confiſcated. But on July 9. 1460. another Battel was fought at Northampton, where the King's Forces were utterly defeated, through the Treachery of the Lord Grey of Ruthen, who quitted his Poſt, and fled to the Yorkiſts. Here many Nobles of the King's ſide loſt their Lives, and the King himſelf fell again a Prey to his Enemies, who carried him to London. A Parliament enſued upon it, in which Richard D. of York made his Claim to the Crown, as being the Son of Richard E. of Cambridge, by Ann his Wife, Daughter of Edmund E. of March, Son of Roger E. of March, Son of Edmund Mortimer E. of March, by Phillipa, Daughter of Lionel, Third Son of K. Edward III. And alledged, that the Deſcendants of John of Gaunt, Fourth Son of the ſaid K. Edward, and younger Brother of Lionel, had hitherto unjuſtly holden the Crown of England. Whilſt this great Point was under Debate, there happen'd an ominous Thing, two Crowns falling ſuddenly down; one from the Roof of the Houſe of Commons, where it hung for an Ornament; and the other from the Top of Dover-Caſtle. At laſt it was voted by the Parliament, that Henry ſhould enjoy the Crown during his Life, and then it ſhould remain to Richard Duke of York, and his Heirs; who was thereupon proclaimed Heir Apparent. Thus the Heirs of Henry were for ever excluded; who had then a Son called Edward, born in the Year 1453. But the martial and active Queen Margaret, who could not brook a Deciſion ſo prejudicial to her Son, was in the mean time gathering Forces in the North, to decide that Point by the Sword. Richard, with an Army, marches againſt her, and a Battel is fought at Wakefield; where Richard being ſlain, the Q. came off Victorious. This turn'd the Scale, and ſunk the Intereſt of the Yorkiſts: However, Edward Earl of March, the Son of Richard, inſiſted on his Claim, and revived the Quarrel, in which four Field-Battels had been already fought by his Father. The next happen'd at Mortimer's-Croſs, near Ludlow; where, about the time of the Fight, three Suns appeared, which ſuddenly joined into one. The Battel was furious, and both ſides very obſtinate, till Fortune favouring Edward, he at laſt got the Victory. But in the Year 1461. both Armies engaged again at St. Albans, where the Queen's ſide got the better, the greateſt Advantage whereof conſiſted in the Recovery of the King's Liberty: For the Londoners, with whom Prince Edward had ingratiated himſelf, did not only joyfully receive him, notwithſtanding the Diſadvantage he lay under, but proclaimed him King. What became of K. Henry, the Queen, and their Son Edward, you will find in the Reign of K. Edward IV. * Daniel. Speed.

HENRY VII. K. of England, ſucceeded Richard III. An. 1485. and got the Crown (as did Henry IV.) by the Sword, but ſtill with a Claim of Right, as being of the Houſe of Lancaſter by his Mother's ſide, Margaret Counteſs of Richmond, who was Daughter and Heir to John Beaufort Duke of Somerſet, Son of John Earl of Somerſet, Son of John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter, the fourth Son of Edward III. His Father was Edmund Tudor Earl of Richmond; and by his Marriage with Elizabeth, eldeſt Daughter of K. Edward IV. the two Houſes of York and Lancaſter became united. But his aſſuming the Crown in his own Name, did ſpin him a Thread of many Seditions and Troubles, ſuch as frequently diſturbed the Happineſs of his Reign, and required all his great Courage and Wiſdom to overcome. The firſt Diſturbance of any great moment was occaſioned by that famous Impoſtor, Lambert Simnel, a Baker's Son; who perſonated Richard Duke of York, King Edward V's Brother, then raiſed from the Dead, to give Life to this Cheat, wherein he was ſupported by the Lady Margaret, ſecond Siſter to King Edward IV. who became the Patronneſs of the Plot. She was the Widow of Charles, ſurnamed the Hardy, Duke of Burgundy, but had no Iſſue by him. In ſhort, this Plot was carried on ſo far, that Lambert was crowned King at Dublin, by the Name of Edward VI. and not a Sword drawn in King Henry's Quarrel. But being come over to England, in expectation of the ſame Advantages here, King Henry met his Forces at Stoke-Field, near Newark, and gave them a total Defeat, after a fierce and obſtinate Fight, in which 4000 of the Rebels fell upon the Spot, and amongſt them the Earls of Lincoln and Kildare. The ſtart-up King, now Lambert Simnel again, was taken Priſoner, with the crafty Prieſt, his Tutor; but the King ſpared both their Lives, and made of the New-crowned King a Turn-ſpit in his Kitchin: This Impoſture being thus blown over, another of the ſame kind, and to the ſame purpoſe, was raiſed ſome Years after by the ſame Lady Margaret, in the Perſon of Perkin Warbeck: A Youth well pick'd out by her private Agents, and as well framed by Nature, to perſonate the ſaid Prince. But the Plot being diſcovered before Perkin made any Attempt in England, ſeveral of the Conſpirators were put to death: Amongſt whom happened to be that great Man, Sir William Stanley, Lord Chamberlain to the King; to whom he owed not only his Life, but his Crown, at Boſworth-battel; but being convicted as a chief Manager of the Conſpiracy, the King left him to the Law, and nothing could ſave him againſt Reaſon of State. The Impoſtor however reſolved to make an Attempt, and coming from Flanders with a Body of deſperate Men of ſeveral Nations, landed ſome of them in Kent, to feel the Pulſe of the Kentiſh Men: Finding they were not for his turn, he ſteered his Courſe towards Ireland, and there he met but with little Encouragement. But in Scotland he had better Luck, where he was received as if he had been the Prince he repreſented; the King eſpouſing his Quarrel, and conſenting to his Marriage with Catharine Cordon, his near Kinſwoman, a young Lady both of great Beauty and Vertue; till, at laſt, having ſome ſuſpicion of him, he deſired him to withdraw. Upon which, Perkin returned from Scotland to Ireland; where he had not ſtayed long, before he was invited over by the Corniſh Rebels. Then he drew near to his tragical End, when he thought himſelf coming to the heighth of his Hopes. Being come over, he undertook with his Rabble the Siege of Exeter, but was fain, upon the Approach of the King's Forces, to raiſe it, and ſhift for himſelf. A Sanctuary ſaved his Life for the preſent, but Tyburn ended it at laſt. Beſides theſe two grand Impoſtures, which might have been of very ill conſequence to the King, had not his great Wiſdom prevented it, he was troubled with an other Rebellion in the Weſt, headed by the Lord Audley: But this was happily ſuppreſſed, and the Ring-leaders brought to condign Puniſhment. Hard was the Fate of Edward Plantagenet Earl of Warwick, Son to the Duke of Clarence, K. Edward IV's Brother; who, after a long Impriſonment in this and the former Reign, only becauſe he was of the Houſe of York, now loſt his Head for attempting to make his Eſcape with Perkin, out of the Tower: Which is looked upon as one of the greateſt Blemiſhes of this Reign. And ſo is the loſs of Bretagne in France, which Henry, with a faint Shew of oppoſition, let the French ſeize on, much to his Diſhonour, and the Prejudice of this Realm. Next to which, we may reckon the King's inſatiate Avarice, eſpecially at the latter end of his Reign; witneſs the great Extortions of Empſon and Dudley, employed by him to fill up his Coffers, by putting all the Penal Laws, even the moſt obſolete in Execution. But afterwards, being diſpleaſed with this method of Oppreſſion, he Order'd, in his Will, that the Money thus ſqueez'd from the Subjects, ſhould be repay'd. This Reign is memorable beſides, for the ſplendid Entertainment King Henry gave to Philip King of Spain, in his Way from Flanders, to take Poſſeſſion of that Crown: For his building the Royal Palace at Richmond, where he died; and the ſtately Chapel adjoining to Weſtminſter-Abby, where he was buried; beſides the Savoy-Hoſpital. In this Reign the Authority of the Star-Chamber, which before ſtood upon the Foot of the Common Laws, was confirm'd in certain Caſes by Act of Parliament. This Court my Lord Bacon calls one of the Wiſeſt and Nobleſt Inſtitutions of the Kingdom. This King reigned near 24 Years, and left but one Son alive, Henry, his next Succeſſor, beſides two Daughters, Margaret and Mary; the eldeſt whereof he wiſely married to James IV. King of Scots; and the younger to Lewis XII. King of France. The Band of Gentlemen-Pentioners was inſtituted by this King. * Lord Bacon, Speed, &c.

HENRY VIII. Heir to both the Houſes of York and Lancaſter, ſucceeded An. 1509, being about 18 Years of age. He reigned about 38 Years, and the greateſt part thereof with much Applauſe. But at laſt he began to grow Arbitrary and Severe; and Pleaſure and Paſſion had ſuch an aſcendant over him, that they obſcured his Vertues, and ſtained his former Glory. Then his Reign became unhappy to his Queens, fatal to his Favourites, uneaſie to his People, and cruel both to rigid Papiſts and Anti-Papiſts. His firſt warlike Attempt was upon K. Lewis XII. from whom he took Terouane and Tournay; in which Maximilian the Emperour ſerved under Henry. This Breach with France naturally drew on a War with the Scots; who were utterly routed at the Battel of Flodden-Field, and their K. James IV. ſlain. After this, the Emperour Charles V, and Francis I. K. of France, warring one againſt another, ſought after our King's Friendſhip with great Emulation. Firſt he ſtruck in with the Emperor, who came twice over in Perſon into England, but Cardinal Woolſey brought him over at laſt to the French Intereſt: Inſomuch that the two Kings had ſeveral Interviews near Calais, with great Pomp and Splendour; where they contracted a perſonal Love, to an unuſual Degree betwixt Crowned Heads. No Prince perhaps was ever fonder of a Conjugal Life, but none more greedy of Change. Six Wives he had, viz, Catharine of Spain, Ann Bullen, Jane Seymour, Ann of Cleve, Catharine Howard, and Catharine Parr. Two of them he Divorc'd, Catharine of Spain, and Ann of Cleve; the firſt as an inceſtuous Match, being the Widow of Arthur, his elder Brother; the laſt, for ſome natural Defects. Two he publickly beheaded, Ann Bullen for pretended, and Catharine Howard for real Adultery. For his Marriage with Catharine of Spain he had a Diſpenſation from the Pope, which took off the Odium of it: But after twenty Years ſtanding, the King pretended a Scruple of Conſcience about it; and queſtioning the Validity of the Pope's Diſpenſation, made his ſuit to the Court of Rome, to get the Match diſanulled. No leſs than ſix Years did he ſtruggle for it, till being abuſed with Delays, and ſatisfied with the Opinion of moſt Vniverſities, and the learnedeſt Men of Europe, about the Legality of a Divorce in his Caſe, he caſt off Q. Catharine, and married Ann Bullen, in defiance to the Pope. The Conſequence whereof was, a Declaration of his former Marriage (by Act of Parliament) to be inceſtuous and void, the Pope's Authority here abrogated, the King declared Supream Head of the Church of England, the Diſſolution of Monaſteries, and their Revenues (as well as the Firſt Fruits of Benefices) appropriated to the King; who therefore was excommunicated, with the Kingdom. But Henry was Proof againſt the Thunder-bolts of Rome, tho' he ſtill entertained moſt of the Popiſh Errors. Thus, by a ſtrange Providence, the Reformation began in this Kingdom, improved in the next Reign, and was happily ſettled in Queen Elizabeth's. The Alterations in the Church, in this King's Reign, were the occaſion of two notable Rebellions, both in the Year 1536, the one in Lincolnſhire, and the other in Yorkſhire; but they were ſoon ſuppreſſed. In Ireland alſo there broke out a Rebellion, which proved fatal to the Earl of Kildare, and almoſt to the whole Family. Memorable is the Riſe and Fall of this King's great Favourites, and Miniſters of State, Woolſey and Cromwel; the firſt a Butchers, and the laſt a poor Smiths Son. Woolſey a Cardinal, who lived in the greateſt State of any Prelate next to the Biſhop of Rome, fell under the King's Diſpleaſure about his firſt Divorce, and prevented a publick by a natural Death. But Cromwel fell under the Axe, ſoon after the King had made him Earl of Eſſex. The Learned Sir Tho. Moor, who had ſucceeded the Cardinal in his Chancellorſhip of England, and John Fiſher Biſhop of Rocheſter, were alſo Beheaded for denying the King's Supremacy. The King, before he fell off from the Pope, had writ a Book againſt Luther, the great Reformer of the Church in Germany; for which Pope Leo honoured him with the Title of Defender of the Faith, ſince made Hereditary to the Kings of England by Act of Parliament. Wales was in this King's Reign incorporated to England, and Ireland made a Kingdom: To unite Scotland to England, a Match was concluded between Prince Edward and Mary the young Queen of Scots, but afterwards broke off by the Power of the Hamiltons, influenced by the French, which occaſioned a new War with France and Scotland; in which the King was ſo ſucceſsful as to take Boulogne from the French, and to deſtroy with Fire Leith and Edinburgh in Scotland. Laſtly, By this King were erected ſix new Biſhopricks, viz. Weſtminſter, Oxford, Peterborough, Briſtol, Cheſter and Glouceſter; all which (except Weſtminſter) continue Epiſcopal Sees to this day. Thus reigned Henry VIII. the moſt abſolute King that ſwayed the Engliſh Scepter ſince William the Conqueror; who ſo awed his Parliaments, that they durſt not but obſerve his Directions, and comply with his Deſires; who alone had the Courage to ſhake off the Pope's Authority, and yet partly remain in the Communion of that Church, for he died as he lived ſince his Breach with Rome, half Papiſt, half Reform'd, and yet a Friend to neither Perſwaſion: A reſolute Prince, that neither ſpared Papiſts nor Proteſtants, hanging the firſt, and burning the laſt, that would not ſubmit to his Deciſions in matter of Religion. All the Iſſue he left at his Death, which happened January 28. 1547. were his three next Succeſſors, who all died without Iſſue, viz. Edward by Jane Seymour, Mary by Catharine of Spain, and Elizabeth by Anne of Bullen. In this King's Reign, the Sweating Sickneſs, a new ſort of Diſeaſe, began to break out with theſe two ſtrange Properties: 1ſt. That it ſeiz'd the Engliſh, not only in England, but in all Parts beyond Sea, without infecting the Natives, therefore it was call'd in Latin Sudor Anglicus. 2dly. That the Contagion faſten'd upon young ſtrong Conſtitution'd People, whom it diſpatch'd in 24 hours, and commonly paſſed by Women, Old Men and Children. * Lord Herbert, Speed, &c.

Kings of France of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY I. Son of Robert, was crowned at Rheims, in 1027. four Years before his Father's Death, and began his Reign July 20. 1031. His Mother Conſtance endeavoured the advancement of Robert, his younger Brother; but, with the help of Robert II. Duke of Normandy, he defeated the Queen's Army, and obliged his Brother to a Peace, and to content himſelf with the Dukedom of Burgundy, he being the firſt Duke of Burgundy of the Blood-Royal. In his Time Pope Leo IX. held a Council at Rheims in France, and the Normans, headed by Robert Guichard, took Naples and Sicily from the Saracens. He died of a Fever at Vitry in Brie, Aug. 4. 1060. By Anne of Ruſſia he had Philip I. who was crowned during his Father's Life, and ſucceeded him. Mezerai Hiſtoire de France, &c.

HENRY II. Son to Francis I. by Claude of France, Daughter to Lewis XII. was crowned July 25. 1547. He was a ſtout Prince, and commanded his Father's Army in 1537. in Piedmont, with great Succeſs againſt the Imperialiſts, taking Suſa and Veillane, &c. but not ſo ſucceſsfully in Rouſſilion, An. 1542. After his Coronation he took Boulogne in Picardy from the Engliſh, protected the German Princes againſt the Emperor, having taken the Biſhopricks of Metz, Toul and Verdun, and marched to the Banks of the Rhine in 1552. The Emperor making Peace with the Princes, beſieged Metz afterwards with 100000 Men, but was repulſed by the Duke of Guiſe, An. 1553. At laſt, after ſeveral Battels, with various Succeſs, they made Peace. Philip II. King of Spain, joining in a League with the Engliſh, brought 40000 Men into Picardy, and defeated 18000 French at the Battel of St. Quentin, on St. Lawrence's Day, An. 1557. The French were alſo defeated at Gravelin. They repaired the Loſſes before-mentioned, by the taking of Guines, Thionville, &c, and Calais, from the Engliſh in 1585, who had held it ſince the Reign of Philip de Valois in 1347. A Peace was made in 1559, called by the French the Unhappy Peace, becauſe 198 Places were thereby ſurrender'd to the Enemies, in lieu of St. Quentin, Ham and Le Catelet. The Conſtable de Montmorency being taken at St. Quentin, was ſuſpected to have managed this Treaty, to purchaſe his own Liberty. By that Peace were alſo concluded the Matches of Philip II. with Elizabeth of France, and Emanuel Philibert Duke of Savoy with Margaret, Henry II's Siſter. In a Tournament at the ſolemnizing the ſaid Marriages, the King running againſt Gabriel Earl of Montgomery, Captain of the Scotch Guards, was wounded in the Eye with a ſplinter of the Lance, June 29. 1559, and died eleven days after. The Wound put him to exceſſive pain. He left by Catharine de Medicis, Pope Clement VII's Niece, Francis II. Charles IX. and Henry III. who were all Kings ſucceſſively; Lewis, who died very young; Francis D. of Alenzon, Anjou and Brabant; Elizabeth, afterwards Q. of Spain; Claude; Margaret, Henry IV's firſt Wife; Victoire and Jane, who died both young; and two Natural Children, Henry D'Angolême, and Diana of Poictiers. * Montluc. De Thou. Mezerai.

HENRY III. Henry II's third Son, was Chriſten'd Edward Alexander, 1551, but his Mother made him take the Name of Henry when he was Duke of Anjou. He ſignalized himſelf in ſeveral Battels againſt the Proteſtants. He was elected King of Poland, May 9. 1573, whilſt beſieging Rochelle, and was crowned at Cracow, Feb. 15. following; but three Months after, hearing of his Brother Charles IX's Death, he returned from Poland ſecretly, and went through Auſtria and Venice, to be crowned at Rheims, which was done Feb. 15. 1575. To ſecure himſelf of the Grandees againſt the Proteſtants, he Inſtituted 100 Knights of the Order of the Holy Ghoſt in 1578, that being all Roman Catholicks they might ſtick to him. At firſt he granted Liberty of Conſcience, but the States meeting at Blois, in 1576, a War againſt the Proteſtants was reſolved on; and in 1580, a Peace was again concluded: But the King's only Brother dying, and Henry King of Navarre being the next Heir, and a Proteſtant, the Duke of Guiſe, chief of the Roman Catholicks, reinforc'd the League begun 1576, at Peronne, which was a ſecret Plot to exterminate the pretended Hereticks, back'd by Pope Sixtus Quintus, and the King of Spain. So France was divided into three Factions, called the War of the three Henries, viz. The Party of the League under Henry Duke of Guiſe, that of the Proteſtants under Henry King of Navarre, and that of the Royaliſts, call'd (by ſome) the Politicians, which was the weakeſt, under the King, his General Annas, D. of Joyeuſe, being defeated and killed by the King of Navarre, at the Battel of Coutras. And on the other hand, the Duke of Guiſe had the better of the Germans that came to the Aſſiſtance of the Proteſtants. After many Fights, Henry III. retired to Chartres, where he propoſed a Treaty of Union, out of Policy to bring the Duke of Guiſe to the States of Blois, the Pariſians having, in favour of the ſaid Duke, barricadoed their Streets, and denied the King Entrance; whereupon the Duke of Guiſe, after ſeveral Plots againſt the King's Life, (always diſcovered by Pollinius) became ſo inſolent as to think of forcing him to a Monaſtick Life: But the King cauſed him, and the Cardinal, his Brother, to be kill'd at Blois, An. 1588, in that very Chamber where the Duke contrived the Maſſacre of Paris before. The Duke of Mayenne, their third Brother, at the head of the Leaguers, took many of the beſt places of the Kingdom, ſo that the King was forced to have recourſe to the Proteſtants, who ſaved him from the Duke, ready to beſiege him in Tours. The King beſieging Paris afterwards with 40000 Men, James Clement, a Dominican Friar, ſtabb'd him in the Belly with a Knife at St. Cloud, whilſt reading ſome Letters which were ſent to amuſe him. The next Day, Auguſt 2. 1589, he died, having firſt Named the King of Navarre as his Succeſſor, and adviſed the States againſt perſecuting the Proteſtants. He had no Iſſue by his Wife Claude of Lorrain; ſo the Branch of Valois ended, after 161 Years Reign by thirteen Kings. Thuanus. Davila.

HENRY IV. called the Great, born at Pau, Decemb. 13. 1553, was Son to Anthony of Bourbon D. of Vendôme, Son of Charles, by Francis of Alenzon and King of Navarre, by his Wife, Daughter of Henry K. of Navarre, by Margaret, Francis I's Siſter. He deſcended lineally by the Males, from St. Lewis, Father to Robert E. of Clermont; and his Right to the Crown was ſo evident, that it was only diſputed becauſe he was a Proteſtant. After the Maſſacre of St. Bartholomew, he ſignalized himſelf againſt the Leaguers; and Henry III. dying, he ſucceeded him, taking the Title of King of France and Navarre. His Enemies endeavoured in vain to make Cardinal de Bourbon King, under the Name of Charles X. In 1589, with 4000 Men, he defeated 30000 commanded by the Duke of Mayenne; and in 1590, at Ivry, with 1200 Men routed 16000. He alſo ſignalized himſelf in ſeveral other Battels, and beſieged Paris, which held out at the Inſtigation of the Spaniards. In the mean time, the King appearing ſatisfy'd with the Roman Catholick Religion, Renounc'd the Communion of the Reform'd in France; he was afterwards crowned at Chartres. After that, Paris, and the moſt conſiderable Towns in France, return'd to their Duty. He defeated 18000 Spaniards in Burgundy, An. 1594, with 1500 Men, took Amiens, and reduced the Leaguers to their Duty, whom he generouſly pardoned. At that time a young Scholar, named John Chatel, ſtruck him in the Mouth with a Knife, with a deſign to have killed him, but miſſed: Whereupon the King ſaid, And is it ſo, that the Jeſuits muſt be condemned by my Mouth? And ſo they were baniſhed the Kingdom, a Column being erected where the Parricide's Houſe ſtood, whom the King would have pardoned, but the Parliament condemned him to death, as well as Peter Barriere convicted of the ſame deſign. 'Tis ſaid, that a Proteſtant Miniſter took the liberty to tell him, upon this Providence, That as he had denied God with his Mouth, he was ſtruck in the Mouth; but adviſed him to beware of forſaking

God in his Heart, leſt the next ſtroke ſhould be there. He ſent an Ambaſſador to Clement VIII. for an Abſolution, which he obtained, notwithſtanding the Spaniards Oppoſitions. The Dukes of Mayenne and Mercœur ſubmitted, a Peace with Spain was concluded at Vervins, 1598, and an Agreement with Savoy, 1601. The Duke de Biron's Execution in 1602, was the only Example of juſt ſeverity in his Reign; and France had enjoyed Peace for ten Years, when Ravillac, with a Knife, ſtabbed the King in his Coach at Paris, May 14. 1610, the Day after the Queen's Coronation, as he was preparing for a great Expedition. He was divorced from Margaret de Valois, Henry II's Daughter, his firſt Wife; and by his ſecond, Mary de Medicis, the Duke of Tuſcany's Daughter, he had three Sons and three Daughters, viz. Lewis XIII. who ſucceeded him; one that died young, without Name, and Gaſton John Baptiſt of France, Duke of Orleans: Elizabeth, married in 1615, to Philip IV. King of Spain; Chriſtina Dutcheſs of Savoy: and Henrietta Mary, married to Charles I. King of England. He had alſo eight Natural Children by four Miſtreſſes. Above fifty Hiſtorians, and five hundred Panegyriſts, Poets and Orators, have ſpoken of this Prince with Praiſe.

King of Bohemia of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY Duke of Carinthia, afterwards King of Bohemia, in 1307, his unacceptable Conduct made his Subjects Revolt, and chuſe John of Luxemburgh, Son of Henry the Emperor, in his room. This was done in 1320. * Dubrauv. Hiſt. Bohem. &c.

Kings of Caſtile of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY I. King of Caſtile, ſurnamed The Good, Son of Alfonſus IX. by Eleanor of England, ſucceeded his Father in 1214, being ſeven or eight Years of Age. He was killed by the Fall of a Tile, playing in a Tower, 1217. Roderic. Ver. Hiſt. lib. 8. Mariana, lib. 12. cap. 3. & 6.

HENRY II. called De la Merced, Count of Triſtemare, was the Natural Son of Alfonſus XI. and headed the People in their Inſurrection againſt Peter, his Brother, juſtly called The Cruel, being a great Tyrant, murthering his Wife, his Mother, one of his Brethren, and many others. He overcame Henry, who fled into France, from whence he was aſſiſted by Charles V. and ſubdued all Caſtile: Nevertheleſs, Peter was re-eſtabliſhed in 1367, and Henry routed by the help of the Engliſh. But beginning to tyrannize as before, Henry was called in again, and, aſſiſted by the French, purſued Peter as far as Montiel-Caſtle, where he put him to death in 1369. So the Crown of Caſtile came to Henry and his Succeſſors, who poſſeſs it to this Day. The Kings of Arragon, Navarre, Portugal, Granada, and John Duke of Lancaſter, the King of England's Son, who had married Peter's Daughter, endeavoured to diſpoſſeſs Henry; but he worſted them all, yet was at laſt poiſoned by the King of Granada. His Son John ſucceeded him. Garibai Hiſt. Hiſp. lib. 25. c. 20. Mariana, 11. 17. Froiſard, &c.

HENRY III. ſurnamed The Sickly, becauſe of his weak Conſtitution, ſucceeded his Father, An. 1390. being but eleven years old. He ſuppreſſed his rebellious Subjects, and repulſed the Kings of Portugal and Granada, but lived not to ſee the ſucceſs of his Army againſt the Moors. He died at Toledo, at 27 years of Age, 1406. Mariana, lib. 18. & 19.

HENRY IV. ſurnamed The Impotent and Liberal, ſucceeded his Father John II. in 1454. Having divorced Blanche of Navarre, he married Jane de Porta; but being impotent, he deſired his Wife to be kind to Bertrand de la Cuera, his Favourite. The Queen took his Advice, and was brought to Bed of a Daughter, called Jane Bertrand. For a Reward he was made Count of Ledeſma, Great Maſter of St. James, and preferred to the beſt Places of the Kingdom. The Lords murmuring at theſe things, endeavoured, but in vain, to dethrone Henry. He died at Segovia in 1474, and declared his aforeſaid Daughter Jane his Heir; which cauſed a War between her and Iſabella, his Siſter, married to Ferdinand of Arragon; but this laſt carried it. Mariana, lib. 2. &c. Hiſt. Hiſp.

HENRY of Caſtile, Son of Ferdinand III. took Arms againſt his Brother Alfonſus King of Caſtile and Leon, but was defeated, and forced to beg Aſſiſtance of St. Lewis, and Charles I. of France, and King of Sicily. The laſt ſhewed him a great deal of Friendſhip, and yet he ungratefully encouraged Conradin to rebel againſt him: But Charles defeating his Army, beheaded Conradin; and putting Henry into an Iron Cage, with a great Chain about his Neck, carried him in that manner through Naples and Sicily. Mezerai Hiſt. de St. Lewis.

Kings of Jeruſalem and Cyprus, and Earls of Champaigne, of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY I. of Champaigne, called the young King of Jeruſalem, was Eldeſt Son of Henry I. ſurnamed the Large, or Rich, Earl of Champaigne, by Mary of France. He went into the Holy Land, where he married Elizabeth Queen of Jeruſalem, and died of a Fall from a Window, An. 1197. Canut. lib. 3. pag. 200.

HENRY of Luſignan, the firſt of that Name, King of Cyprus, ſucceeded his Father Hugh I. and died in 1253.

Kings of Navarre of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY I. of that Name, ſurnamed the Fat, King of Navarre, was Son of Thibaud VI. ſurnamed The Poſthumus, The Great, and the Sonnet-maker. He died at Pampelune 1274. choaked with his own Fat; his only Son being alſo killed by a Fall from his Nurſe's Arms, out at a Window. Nangis in Chron.

HENRY D'Albret II. of that Name, King of Navarre, ſucceeded his Father in 1516, in a little part of his Kingdom, on this ſide the Pyrenæan Mountains, Ferdinand King of Arragon having uſurped the reſt. Henry conquered almoſt all Navarre, An. 1520. but loſt it again in 1527. He married Margaret of Orleans, Francis I's Siſter, and had Iſſue by her John, who died young, and Jane Queen of Navarre, Anthony of Bourbon's Wife, and Mother to Henry the Great.

Kings of Portugal of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY of Burgundy, Earl of Portugal, Grandſon to Robert of France, &c. went into Spain, 1089. or as others ſay, 1096. conquered Portugal from the Moors, aſſiſted by Alfonſus VI. King of Caſtile. He died in 1112. at the Siege of Aſtorga, and was ſucceeded by his Son Alfonſus. St. Marthe Hiſt. de la Maiſon de France. Vaſconcellos.

HENRY, Cardinal of Portugal, the fifth Son of K. Emanuel, by Mary of Caſtile; made Cardinal in 1542. by Paul III. In 1578. he ſucceeded his great Nephew Sebaſtian, who was killed, or made Priſoner in Africa, and died in 1580. Philip II. King of Spain uſurped the Kingdom, till John IV. Duke of Braganza was proclaimed King, An. 1640.

Princes, and other great Men, of the Name of HENRY.

HENRY of Bourbon, firſt of that Name, Prince of Conde, Duke of Anguien, Peer of France, &c. Son of Lewis of Bourbon I. Prince of Conde, by his firſt Wife Eleanor de Roye, born Decem. 29. 1552. ſignalized himſelf on ſeveral Occaſions; as, 1573. at the firſt Siege of Rochelle; and after that time, in defence of the Proteſtants, particularly at the Battel of Courtray, in 1587. He was poiſoned at St. John d'Angeli in 1588. By his ſecond Wife Charlotte Catharine de la Trimoville, he had Henry of Bourbon II. of that Name, and Eleanor, married to Philip William of Naſſaw, Prince of Orange. De Thou. Mezerai, &c.

HENRY of Bourbon II. of that Name, Prince of Conde, firſt Prince of the Royal Blood, Duke of Anguien, and Peer of France. He was born at St. John d'Angeli, Septemb. 1. 1588. Henry IV. took him from his Relations, to bring him up a Roman Catholick. He was made Knight of the Holy Ghoſt in 1610. Some time after he quarrell'd with the Queen Regent, but they quickly agreed. In 1616. he was committed Priſoner to the Baſtile, till 1619. Afterwards he ſignalized himſelf on ſeveral Occaſions againſt the Proteſtants, &c. After the King's Death, he was made Preſident of the Council, and Miniſter of State, under the Queen Regent, during the Minority of Lewis XIV. and died at Paris 1646. His three Children by Charlotte of Montmorency died young. De Thou. Mezerai.

HENRY of Lorrain I. of that Name, Duke of Guiſe, &c. Peer of France, General of the King's Armies, Governor of Champaigne and Brie, Eldeſt Son of Francis of Lorrain, Duke of Guiſe, by Anne D'Eſte; born 1550. He got great Repute in Hungary againſt the Turks, 1567. and in France againſt the Proteſtants. He was the handſomeſt Prince of his Time, eloquent, couragious and witty; and the Ladies, particularly Madam Margaret of France's, Favourite. Charles IX. offended at it, becauſe he deſigned her for the King of Navarre, to whom ſhe was afterwards married, ordered Henry D'Angoulême to quarrel with, and kill him; which was prevented, and the Duke appeaſed the King by marrying Catharine de Cleves, in 1570. Afterwards he managed the Maſſacre of St. Bartholomew. He defeated Toré in the Fight called De Dormans, in Henry III's Reign, where he was wounded in the Leg and Left Cheek; thence ſurnamed Le Balafré, or Slaſh-Face. He was ſucceſsful in his Undertakings, but his Ambition ruined him; for he formed that powerful Party called the League, and having been cunningly drawn to the States at Blois, he was ſtabbed at the King's Cloſet-door, in 1588. by His Majeſty's Order, for barricadoing the Streets of Paris againſt him. He had ſeveral Notices of the Deſign, which his Fate made him neglect. The Cardinal, his Brother, was alſo murthered: And Miron, the King's Phyſician, affirms, that their Bodies being burnt, the Aſhes were thrown into the River; others deny it. He had by his Wife, Charles Duke of Guiſe, Lewis Cardinal Claude, Duke of Chevreuſe, and many other Children. De Thou. Davila. Mezerai.

HENRY of Lorrain II. of that Name, Duke of Guiſe, &c. younger Son of Charles, born in 1614. was made Abbot, afterwards Archbiſhop of Rheims; but altering his Mind and Condition, he went to Sedan, thence into Italy, where he headed the Rebels at Naples, but, for want of help, was taken Priſoner by the Spaniards in 1647. He died in 1664. without Iſſue. He left Memoirs, in which he relates his Enterprize at Naples; wherein he is charg'd to write an Apology rather than a Hiſtory.

HENRY of Lorrain, Earl of Harcourt, &c. Second Son of Charles of Lorrain I. of that Name, Duke of Elbeuf, by Margaret Chabot. He fought againſt the Proteſtants, and won ſeveral Battels againſt the Spaniards, and particularly at the Siege of Turin in Piedmont, in 1640. The Beſieged were reduced to great Wants, nor did the French ſuffer much leſs in their Trenches; whereupon the Count was adviſed to a Treaty: To which he anſwered, That he would not raiſe the Siege, till his Horſes had eat up all the Forage of the Country, and his Soldiers his Horſes: So that he forced them to capitulate, after they had made 29 Sallies. He was ſent Ambaſſador into England in 1643. to attempt a Peace betwixt King and Parliament. He was afterwards made Vice-Roy of Catalonia, &c. and Governour of Alſace. He died ſuddenly in Royaumont-Abbey, in 1666.

HENRY Duke of Bar ſucceeded Charles II. Duke of Lorrain, 1608. He married Catharine, Henry the Great's Siſter, a Proteſtant, 1599. with the Pope's Diſpenſation; but his Confeſſor raiſed ſo many Scruples in his Conſcience about it, that he left his Wife, and went to Rome for Abſolution; which the Pope granted, but would give no Diſpenſation for the future to live with her, except ſhe would turn Roman Catholick. She died ſoon after. Mezerai Regne de Henry IV.

HENRY the Lion, of the Guelphian Family, was Duke of Bavaria and Saxony, and one of the moſt powerful Princes of his Time; for he commanded in Germany, from the Elbe to the Rhine, and from the Baltick Sea to the Borders of Italy. He built Bridges on the Danube; and at Ratisbonne and Lawenburg overcame the Henetes, and reſcued his Couſin Frederick Barbaroſſa from the ſeditious Romans: But afterwards he deſerted him at the Siege of Alexandria, under pretence that this Emperour was excommunicated by Pope Alexander III. Frederick, at his Return into Germany, cauſed Henry to be declared guilty of High Treaſon, An. 1180. and ſo the Dutchies of Bavaria and Saxony were taken from him; the firſt of which was given to Otto Count of Schiren, and the ſecond to Bernard, Son of Albert the Boar: At the ſame time other Princes laid Claim to the reſt of his Eſtate, ſo that he was forced to flee to his Father-in-Law Henry II. King of England; by whoſe Mediation the Dutchies of Brunſwick and Lunenburg were reſtored to him, and paſſed to his Son William.

HENRY of Savoy, ſecond of that Name, Duke of Nemours, Aumale, &c. Son to Henry I. Duke of Nemours; he commonly bore the Title of Marqueſs de S. Sorlin, and being deſign'd for a Church-man, he had ſeveral Benefices, and was nominated by the King for Arch-Biſhop of Rheims. He was acknowledg'd D. and Peer of France, before he receiv'd the Pope's Bulls in 1651, and preſided in the Aſſembly of the Clergy: But after the Death of his Brother, he thought himſelf oblig'd to provide Poſterity for his Family; and though his Inclination was much engag'd in his Profeſſion, yet being preſt by the Court of France and Savoy, he acquieſced, and in 1657 married Mary of Orleans, Daughter to Henry of Orleans, Duke of Longueville, but died without Iſſue. Guichenon Hiſt. de Savoy, St. Marthe, &c.

HENRY Duke of Glouceſter, youngeſt Son to King Charles I. born in 1640. A Prince of great Hopes, Capacity and Vertuous Inclinations. His Anſwer to the King his Father, when but eight Years Old, was ſurprizingly great and generous, for when His Majeſty charg'd him not to take the Crown, while his Brothers Charles and James were living. He reply'd, He would be torn by wild Horſes before he would do it. As for his Capacity, his Tutor Aſcham declar'd, That he could diſcourſe to him upon no Subject, but what, after one hearing, he would repeat to him with advantage. When Abbot Montague deſign'd to Educate him in the Roman Catholick Communion, he found the task more difficult than he expected, and at laſt, fail'd in the Attempt; for when the Abbot preſs'd him to comply with his Mothers Commands, the Duke, though but ten years Old, told him, That he would Obey his Mother, but he muſt his Sovereign: Neither did his Military Courage fall ſhort of the reſt of his Character, for in the Battel before Dunkirk in 1657, he charg'd with ſo much forwardneſs and Spirit, that Don John proteſted he fought like an Engliſhman. He died at White-hall, September 13*th.* 1660, and was buried at Weſtminſter, in Henry VII*th's* Chappel. Lloyds Memoires, &c.

HENRY of Eſſex, Baron of Raleigh in Eſſex, and Hereditary Standard-bearer of England. He lived in the Reign of Henry II. and is of ſpecial Note in our Engliſh Chronicles for his Want either of Loyalty or Courage in the great Battel fought betwixt the Engliſh and the Welſh, which proved fatal to the firſt. The Battel was fought at Coleſhill, in which this Henry (ſays Cambden) Animum & Signum ſimul abjecit, loſt both his Courage and Banner. Therefore he was challenged to a Duel, and worſted, by Robert of Montford, who had been an Eye-witneſs thereof. Whereupon, his Eſtate being forfeited to the King, he turned Monk, ſpending the Reſidue of his Life between Shame and Sanctity.

HENRY of Huntingdon, a famous ancient Writer of the Hiſtory of the Saxon Kings. So called becauſe of his being Archdeacon of that place. He lived in the XII*th.* Age, in the Reign of King Stephen. He was firſt a Canon of the Church of Lincoln, a Secular Prieſt, and had now and then a Touch in his Writings againſt the Pride of the pretended Perfection of Monks. He wrote the Hiſtory of England in Ten Books. A Continuation of Bede. A Chronological Table of the Kings of England, &c. Polydore Virgil and Leland give him a great Character.

HENRY, ſurnamed Wry-neck, the firſt Duke of Lancaſter, lived in the XIV*th.* Age, in the Reign of King Edward III. He founded the College called Corpus Chriſti in Cambridge; and tho' the Land was but little which he conferred thereon, yet great was the Countenance of ſo eminent a Perſon in procuring and ſetling their Mortmain. He founded alſo the Collegiate Church at Leiceſter, which was the place of his Sepulture. He died of the Plague, An. 1361. This is that noble Prince, whoſe Goodneſs was ſo eminent, that it got him the Name of The good Duke of Lancaſter. Blanche, his only Daughter which had Iſſue, was married to John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaſter.

HENRY of Melchtal, a rich Switzer, Native of Underwalden: From whom Landeberg, Governour of the Country for Albert of Auſtria, took ſome Yokes of Oxen by mere Arbitrary Power. Arnold, Henry's Son, could not bear with it, but pricked the Governour with the Goad, and then fled into the Canton of Uri. Landeberg thereupon ordered the Father's Eyes to be put out, and confiſcated the beſt part of his Goods. Which ſo incenſed Arnold, that he aſſociated with one Furſt and Stouffacher, who began the Helvetick Confederacy in 1307. that was afterwards the Ground of the Switzers Commonwealth. Simler.

HENRY Bullinger. See BULLINGER.

HENRY Stephens. See STEPHENS.

HENRY de Erford in Saxony, wrote a conſiderable Book de Factis Illuſtribus, containing the moſt remarkable Occurrences from the beginning of the World, to the Year 1255. to which he lived. Leand. Albert. Lib. 4th. de Vir. Illuſt. Ord. Præd. Poſſevin in Appar. Sac.

HENRY of Ghent, or Gandavenſis, was an Author of Reputation in the XIII*th.* Cent. He wrote a Treatiſe, De Viris Illuſtribus, which, ſtrictly ſpeaking, is no more than a Continuation of what St. Jerome and Sigebert had Publiſh'd before. He wrote likewiſe, Theologica Quodlibeta, & Summa Quæſtionum Theologicarum Ordinaria. Summa de Pænitentia. Quodlibetum de Mercimoniis & Negotiationibus. Bellarmin. Sixtus Senenſis, Voſſius, and ſeveral others ſpeak very much to the advantage of this Henry.

HENRY of Gorkum, a Dutch Doctor of Divinity, and Chancellor of Cologne, much eſteem'd in the XV*th.* Cent. His works are, De Caſibus ſeu Cæremoniis Eccleſiaſticis. De Celebritate Feſtorum. Concluſiones Concordantiæ Bibliorum ac Canonum in Libros Magiſtri Sententiarum. De ſuperſtitionibus. De Modo conjurandi Dæmones. De Sepultura & Proceſſionibus. Contra Huſſitas. De Sacramento Euchariſtiæ & Efficacia Miſſæ. Complementum tertiæ Partis Summæ D. Thomæ. De Bello juſto, &c. Trithem. De Script. Eccl. Geſner, Poſſevin, &c.

HENRY de Piro, one of the moſt knowing Lawyers of his Time, liv'd in the XV*th.* Cent. He acquitted himſelf to great ſatisfaction at the Council of Conſtance, and afterwards turn'd Carthuſian. He wrote IV Books upon Juſtinians Inſtitutes, and ſeveral other Treatiſes, and died about the Year 1470. Trithem. De Script. Eccl. Patreius Bibl. Carth. &c.

HEPBURN (James) Earl of Bothwel in Scotland; he is generally ſuppoſed to have been concern'd in the Death of Henry Lord Darnley, married to Mary Queen of Scots, and commonly call'd King Henry by the Scotiſh Hiſtorians. The ſuſpicion of this Murther was ſo ſtrong upon Bothwel, that he was try'd for it, but the Evidence being either defective, or the Proſecution cold, he was Acquitted by the Jury, conſiſting of Noblemen and Gentlemen. He afterwards had the boldneſs to Seize upon the Queen, and carried her, againſt her Will, to Dunbar: This force upon the Queen was interpreted a Rape, and had been reveng'd by the Nobility, but that they underſtood from her Majeſty, that ſhe was Courteouſly Us'd. This Earl, to make way for his Marriage with the Queen, got himſelf Divorced from his Wife, Siſter to the Earl of Huntley. Bothwel likewiſe at Edenborough, got a great many of the Noblemen to ſubſcribe a Paper of their Approbation of his Marriage with the Queen: But ſoon after, ſeveral Lords, raiſing Forces, publiſh'd a Declaration, That their Intention was to preſerve the Young Prince from falling into Bothwel's hands, and to reſcue the Queen from Durance and Reſtraint. The Queen, with Bothwel, levy Forces againſt theſe Noblemen, and Her Majeſty Declares them Rebels and Conſpirators. The Armies being drawn up, Bothwel offers to decide the Controverſie by ſingle Combat, upon which his Chalenge was accepted, but the Queen interpoſing, prevented the Duel; and when matters came to the Puſh, her Majeſty perceiving her Forces diſenclin'd to her Cauſe, adviſed Bothwel to abſcond, and ſurrender'd her ſelf to the Noblemen. Bothwel thus diſappointed, fled to Orkney and turn'd Privateer; but being purſu'd, he eſcap'd to Denmark, where being diſcover'd by ſome Scotch Merchants, he was confin'd in a very ill accommodated and offenſive Priſon, where falling into a Frenzy, which held him about Ten Years, he died Miſerably: Some Authors have had the Confidence to charge the Queen with a Scandalous Correſpondence with Bothwel, concerning the Murther of her Husband the Lord Darnley, but Cambden clears her of this Imputation; ſee Buchanan, Spotswood's Hiſt. Melvel's Memoirs, &c.

HEPHÆSTIANI, Mountains in Lycia, which being kindled with a Torch, the Flame cannot be quenched by Water: And if any one kindle a Stick, and draw Furrows with it, Pliny ſays, that Streams of Fire will follow him. They are therefore wetted with almoſt continual Showers.

HEPTARCHY. This is a Word of a Greek Original, and is commonly uſed to ſignifie the South Part of Britain, (ſince called England,) which was divided among the Saxons, before it came all under the Dominion of Egbert, the firſt Monarch of England. The Scheme whereof follows.

Kingdoms.	Counties.	Firſt Kings.	Laſt Kings.
1. Kent.	Kent.	Hengiſt.	Barldred.
2. South-Saxons.	Suſſex, Surrey.	Ella.	Ethelwolf.
3. Weſt-Saxons.	Cornwall, Devon, Sommerſet, Part of Wilts, Southampton, Berks.	Cerdic.	Egbert,	Who reducing the reſt of the Heptarchy, was crowned King of all England, Anno 819.
4. Eaſt-Saxons.	Middleſex, Eſſex, Pt of Hartford.	Erchenwin.	Suthred.
5. Eaſt-Angles.	Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge.	Offa.	St. Edmund.
6. Mercia.	Glouceſter, Worceſter, Hereford, Salop, Part of Wilts, Cheſter, Stafford, Darby, Nottingham, Leiceſter, Rutland, Lincoln, Huntington, Northampton, Warwick, Oxford, Buckingham, Bedford, Pt of Hartford.	Crida.	Bordred.
7. Northumberland.	York, Lancaſter, Durham, Weſtmorland, Cumberland, Northumberland, South Pt of Scotland, as far as Edinburgh.	Oſwy.	Ethelred.

This is the true Scheme of the Heptarchy of England, till they were reduced all into one by that moſt potent Weſt-Saxon King, Egbert, who firſt laid the Foundation of the Engliſh Monarchy.

HEPTATEUCH, The firſt part of the Bible, containing the two Books of Joſhua and Judges; with the Pentateuch, or five Books of Moſes: For Yves of Chartres, Epiſt. 38. ſaith, That they were commonly joined together, and quoted under that Name. Macri Hierolexicon.

HERAC, Lat. Petra, a City of Arabia Deſerta; ſuppoſed to be the Rabath of the Scriptures. It was formerly an Archiepiſcopal See, under the Patriarch of Jeruſalem; but of later Times, under him of Alexandria. It ſtands on the Borders of Palæſtine, on the Brook Zereth; Long. 66. 45. Lat. 30. 20.

HERACHIA, Lat. Heratia, a ſmall Iſland in the Archipelago, Eaſt of Sinuſa, not far from Heraclea.

HERACLAS, One of Origen's Scholars, to whom he ſucceeded in the Catechiſtical School at Alexandria, and was afterwards made Biſhop of that City, where he ſat from the Year 234 to 248. Euſeb. Lib. 6th. Hiſt. Cap. 12. &c.

HERACLEA, or HERACLIA, a City in Thrace, formerly called Perinthus, and Mygdonius, now frequently Araclea; an Archbiſhoprick under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, anciently its Superior; and Metropolis of Thrace from the time that Severus burnt and diſmantled Conſtantinople, and gave its Land to Heraclea; and ſo it continued until Conſtantine the Great's Time, but is now decaying. Sir Geo. Wheeler deſcribes it thus: That it has a good Harbour, turning about ſo as to make a Peninſula, on the Neck of which the Town lieth, having the Sea to the Weſt, and an Harbour to the Eaſt; which is five Miles round. There are abundance of ruinous Marble-Antiquities, neglected by the Turks; one of them having an Inſcription dedicated to Severus, their great Benefactor. It is a poor Place, but has the beſt Cathedral now ſtanding in Turkey, wherein Sir Edward Guits, an Engliſh Ambaſſador, lies buried, with a Greek Inſcription upon his Tomb. This City is 52 Miles Weſt from Conſtantinople. A great many other Cities were formerly called by this Name, but they are all now ruined. In this City Hercules is ſaid to have killed himſelf and Deianira his Wife. It is 10 German Miles W. of Eubæa, and 23 S. of Lariſſa. Long. 50. 50. Lat. 38. 30.

HERACLEA, a Town of Romania, on the Coaſt of Marmora, 25 Leagues from Gallipoli, with two Harbours; that on the Eaſt beſt frequented, but almoſt ſpoiled by the Ruins of the old Building, though in the Emperor Severus's Time it was capable of holding a whole Fleet. It has a very fine Proſpect, and the Ruins of the Amphitheatre of Heraclea are eſteemed one of the Wonders of the World. It was famous for other Buildings; as, Temples, Bathing-Places, &c. beſides Marble-Statues erected in honour of famous Men, moſt of whoſe Pedeſtals remain ſtill. The Trade is not conſiderable, nothing now but Cotton, Olives, Wool, and dried Fruits being exported. Grelot Voyage de Conſtantinople.

HERACLEON, an Hereſiarch, Valentine's Diſciple in the ſecond Century. He ordered his Clergy to anoint the Dead with a particular Oil and Balſam; affirming that this leſſened their Pains. Tertullian de Præſc. cap. 49.

HERACLEOPOLITES, Egyptian Kings ſo named, who reigned at Sethron, a Town of the Lower Egypt, ſince called Heracleopolis by the Græcians. Two Dynaſties, or Families, poſſeſſed this Principality; the firſt has had four Kings, and laſted 100 Years; the ſecond nineteen Kings, and laſted 185 Years. Paul Pezron Antiquité des temps.

HERACLIAN, Captain to Honorius the Emperour, who, for killing Stilicon at Ravenna, An. 408. was made Governor of Africa, where he defeated the Rebels, for which Honorius made him Conſul; which ſo puffed him up, that he aimed at nothing leſs than being Maſter of the World, prompted thereunto by Sabinus, who, from his Servant, became his Son-in-Law. To accompliſh his Deſigns, he retained the Ships which uſed to carry Corn to Italy, and ſailed thither with a Fleet of 3700 Ships; but Count Marinus making Head againſt him as he diſ-imbarked, routed him: So that fleeing in one Veſſel, which was all that was left him of his Fleet, he arrived at Carthage, where he was ſlain by the Soldiers, An. 414. Zoſimus. Oroſius.

HERACLIDÆ. This Name ſignifies in general Hercules's Poſterity; but particularly in the Greek Hiſtory, thoſe of his Progeny who dwelt in Peloponneſus. Their Return into that Country, whence they had been driven by Euryſtheus King of Mycene, is one of the moſt illuſtrious Epocha's among the Græcians. Petav. Rationar. temp. lib. 1. cap. 12. The Heraclidæ return'd to Peloponneſus a 100 Years after they were expell'd, being 80 years after the taking of Troy.

HERACLIDES, a Cyprian Monk, made Biſhop of Epheſus by St. Chryſoſtom, An. 402. He was accuſed of Origeniſm by Theophilus Patriarch of Antioch, and condemned in the Synod ad Quercum: Chryſoſtom returning from his Baniſhment, Heraclides was quiet for a while; but Chryſoſtom being baniſhed a ſecond time, the Perſecution againſt his Favourers was revived, Heraclides depoſed, An. 404. and thrown into a Priſon in Nicomedia, where he remained above four Years. He has left a Book intituled Paradiſe; or, The Lives of the Holy Fathers, which makes part of the Hiſtoria Lauſiaca, printed at Paris, An. 1504. Cave. Hiſt. Liter.

HERACLIDES, a Philoſopher, ſurnamed The Pontick, becauſe he was born at Heraclea in Pontus; as alſo The Pompick, becauſe his Fat and Corpulency gave him a grave, ſtately, pompous Gate. He left many Works, mentioned by Diogenes Laertius; all loſt, except the Allegories on Homer. Yet Voſſius believes that this Book is not his, becauſe ſome Authors later than he are quoted in it. His Vanity made him deſire a Friend to put a Serpent into his Bed juſt as he was dying, to perſwade the People that he was gone up to the Gods; but ſome Noiſe forcing the Serpent out, the Cheat was known, and his Vanity laughed at. Diogen. in Vita Philoſoph. Plin. lib. 7. cap. 57. Voſſius, lib. 1. Hiſt. Gr. c. 1. 9.

HERACLITUS, called The Dark, a Philoſopher, Son of Blyſon, or as others ſay, of Heracion, born at Epheſus, and lived in the 69th. Olympiad, 500 Years before Chriſt. 'Tis ſaid he had no Teacher, but acquired his Learning by continual Meditation. The Miſeries and Follies of Mankind made him ſo melancholick, that he wept always when he was abroad, and was thence called Heraclitus flens, or The Weeper; and becauſe his Expreſſions were Ænigmatical, he was alſo called The Obſcure. His Book of Nature being the Sum of his Philoſophy, was moſt eſteemed and read by Darius King of Perſia, which procured him an Invitation to his Court, but he returned an uncivil Anſwer. The Converſation of Men grew ſo odious unto him, becauſe he diſdained all but himſelf, that he told the Epheſians, who wonder'd at his Playing at Huckle-bone with little Children, That he had rather do ſo, than concern himſelf in their Affairs; and retired into a Mountain, to live among Beaſts, upon Herbs; which brought him into a Dropſie: So he went down into the Town, and conſulted the Phyſicians, asking if they could make a Rainy Seaſon fair; but they not being able to underſtand him, he incloſed himſelf in a Dung-hill, thinking to conſume this ſuperabundant Humour by a borrowed Heat, but to no purpoſe: So he died, being 60 Years old. Others relate this differently, viz. That having beſmear'd himſelf with Ox-dung, he ſat in the Sun to dry it; and there happening to fall aſleep, the Dogs tore him in pieces. His Doctrine was, That all Things are compoſed of Fire, and reſolved into Fire: That every thing is done by Chance: That what is contrary, is united by Alteration: That every Thing is full of Spirits: That every Thing that happens, is done by divers Changes: That all this Univerſe is finite: That there is but one World, formed of Fire; and that all Things, by frequent Revolutions ſhall become Fire. Heſiod, Pythagoras, Xenophon and Hecateus were his Diſciples. His Book of Nature being ſent to Socrates, the Judgment which he gave of it, was, That what he underſtood he found very excellent, and doubted not but what he underſtood not was ſo too; for his Expreſſions were ſo Ænigmatical, they were ſcarcely intelligible. Diogenes Laert. lib. 9.

HERACLITUS the Sicyonian, who wrote a Treatiſe of the Stones. Leo Allatius has publiſhed in 1641. a Book De Incredibilibus, under the Name of one Heraclitus, which he found in the Vatican Library. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. lib. 4. believes it may be the Heraclides, Author of the Allegories on Homer. See HERACLIDES.

HERACLIUS, Emperor, Son of Heraclius Governor of Africa, and born in Cappadocia. 'Tis reported of him, that being animated by the Clamours of the People againſt Phocas's Tyranny, he landed near Conſtantinople; and having defeated the Tyrant, cauſed him to be beheaded, and An. 610. was crowned with his Wife Eudoxa. After her Death he married Martine, his Niece, An. 612. Choſroes II. K. of Perſia, made a cruel War againſt him, deſpiſed his Offer of an Annual Tribute, and took Palæſtine, Cappadocia, Armenia and Jeruſalem, An. 614. or 15. carrying away Captives the Patriarch, and many Chriſtians, with that which was called the true Croſs, &c. Heraclius demanding a Peace the ſecond time, Choſroes refuſed to grant it, except he and his Subjects would renounce Chriſtianity, and adore the Sun; which incenſed the Chriſtians ſo, that the Clergy giving part of the Church-Revenues to maintain the War, the Emperor defeated the Infidels in ſeveral Battels, from 624. to 627. and forced them back into their own Kingdom. At laſt Syroe, Choſroes's eldeſt Son, put his Father (who would have diſ-inherited him) to death. After this Heraclius made a Peace with Syroe, provided the Croſs and Chriſtian Priſoners ſhould be reſtored; which was done in 628. and the Croſs was triumphantly carried back to Jeruſalem, the Emperor diſrobing himſelf of all his fine Cloths and Jewels to carry it in: Hence came the Feaſt of the Exaltation of the Croſs. Heraclius, at his Return to Conſtantinople, fell into the Errours of the Monothelites; and during the private Quarrels about Religion, Mahomet's Succeſſors took many Provinces of the Eaſt. He died of a Palſie in 641. Evagr. lib. 6. Suidas and Baron. A. C. 610.

HERACLIUS, Conſtantine IV's Brother, called Pogonatus, whom he made his Co-partner in the Empire, he had his Noſe afterwards cut off by Order of the Senate. See CONSTANTINE IV.

HERALDS at Arms are the Officers of a Prince, or Sovereign State; whoſe chief Office it is, to declare War, or proclaim Peace, to ſummon Places to ſurrender, to aſſiſt at the Cemonies of Coronations, Chriſtenings, Weddings and Funerals of Princes; at the General Meetings of States, the Renewing of Leagues, Solemn Oaths, Royal Feaſts, Publick Shews and Tournaments, Entries of Kings and Queens, and all ſuch Actions of State. In France they go before the King, when he goeth to the Offering of the Maſs at his Coronation; they aſſiſt at the Ceremonies of the Knights of the Holy Ghoſt; they diſtribute ſome Pieces of Silver and Gold to the People on Coronation-Days, and at the Chriſtening of the Children of France. At Funerals of Kings there are always two of them, Day and Night, at the Feet of the Bed of State, whereon the Corps of the Deceaſed, or his Effigies in Wax lieth, to preſent the Holy Water to Princes, Prelates, and other Perſons of Quality, to ſprinkle. There are 30 Heralds of Arms in France; whereof the firſt is called King of Arms, under the Title of Mont-joye St. Denys: The others have Titles taken from the different Provinces of the Kingdom, &c. Moſt Authors ſay, that the Name of Herald comes from the German Word Heer an Army, and Ald a Servant or Officer. Formerly Perſons dignified in Church or State were choſen for Heralds, who were ſacred among all Nations. They were called Κήρυκες by the Grecians, and Præcones or Caduceatores by the Latins, becauſe of the Rod or Caduceus they had, for a Token of their Employment. Among the Pagans they were conſecrated to Mercury, and reputed his Prieſts. The Victim's Tongue was their Fee. The Heralds that declared War, or proclaimed Peace among the Romans, were named Feciales: And it was not lawful to make War until four of them had demanded Satisfaction for the Injury received, and declared War upon the Refuſal; throwing into the Enemy's Country a tagg'd Spear, dyed in Blood, and burnt at the End. Nonius Marcellus ſaith, lib. 3. cap. 12. that they were 120. and that King Numa eſtabliſhed a College of them, under a Commander named Pater patratus. Tit. Liv. lib. 1. mentions the Ceremony uſed at the Creation of that Commander: And of the Heralds he ſaith, that they touched their Head and Hair with Vervein; with which they were alſo crowned when they performed their Office, that they might be known. Servius adds, That they wore Linen Cloathes. The Heralds at Arms, beſides their other Functions, have Power to regulate what concerns Heraldry, and the Genealogies of the Nobility. In Tournaments they blazon'd the Gentlemens Coats of Arms, ſounding their Trumpets, and crying aloud, That he that offered to come into the Barriers was a Gentleman by Name and Coat of Arms. They were alſo ſent as Ambaſſadors. Formerly their Rod was like Mercury's Caduceus, with two Serpents twiſted. As for the Name of King given to the chief Herald, it was common to other chief Officers; as, King of the Archers, &c. But there is a particular Reaſon for the Title of King at Arms, viz. That on the Day of his Inſtitution they put a Crown on his Head, and that he did wear it in many Ceremonies where he repreſented the King's Perſon; for which reaſon he was always a Knight. Among the Romans, he that preſided at Sacrifices and Ceremonies was alſo named King. Read Æneas Sylvius, Epiſt. 126. ad Inderbach. La Colombiere Science Heraldique. Fauchet traitè des chevaliers, &c. Anciently there were only two Heralds in England; one for the South Parts, called Clarencieux, and the other for the North, called Norroy. There were alſo two for that Part of France which was ſubject to England; to wit, Guyen, inſtituted by Edward I. and Agencourt, by Henry V. in Memory of the famous Victory obtained there. There was another for Ireland, called Ireland; but by Edward VI. called Ulſter. All theſe belonged to the King. Thoſe which appertained to the Queen were called Heralds ſimply, which are now quite aboliſhed; their whole Number being reduced to three Kings and ſix Heralds or Dukes at Arms. Richard III. was the firſt who formed the Heralds into a College, and endowed them with Privileges; and Edward VI. declared them free from all Subſidy, Taxes, and other Offices: Philip and Mary gave them greater Privileges, confirming the ſame by Letters Patents; in which the Titles and Order of the Heralds are thus publiſhed.

Garter, Principal King at Arms.
Clarencieux, King at Arms be-South Trent.
Norroy, King at Arms be-North Trent.

Garter was inſtituted by Henry V. whoſe Office principally reſpected the Ceremonies and Solemnities which concern the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, and to marſhal the Funerals of Knights of the Garter. Clarencieux was inſtituted by Edward IV. and his Office is, to regulate all ſuch ſolemn Funerals of all Degrees, under Peers, as happen be-South Trent. Norroy is to do the like be-North Trent; but this Original is uncertain. The ſix Heralds or Dukes of Arms are, York and Lancaſter, inſtituted by the Sons of Henry III. Windſor and Cheſter, inſtituted by Henry III. Somerſet, by Henry VIII. and Richmond, whoſe Original is not known. There are alſo four Purſuivants, called Portcullis, Blewmantle, Rouge-Dragon and Rouge-Croix. The Offices of all which Heralds and Purſuivants, beſides their Aſſiſting at great Solemnities with the Kings at Arms, are to proclaim War or Peace, carry Defiances, ſummon Forts, or Rebels, proclaim Traitors, and to ſerve the Nobility and Gentry in point of Honour and Arms. See Spelman's Gloſſary. In Scotland, the chief Herald is Lyon King at Arms; under whom are ſeveral other Heralds, Meſſengers, Purſuivants, &c.

HERBERSTEIN, a Barony of Carinthia in Germany, which gave its Name to Sigiſmond of Herberſtein.

HERBERT, the Name of an ancient and great Family in France, Counts of Vermandois, &c. who ſometimes matched with the Royal Family, but were extinguiſhed about 1059.

HERBERT the I. Lord of Peronne and St. Quintin, Son to Pepin II. Grandſon to Bernard King of Italy. He left two Daughters and Herbert the II. Count of Vermandois, who betrayed Charles, the Simple, King of France at St. Quintin, for having receiv'd this Prince with Proteſtations of Friendſhip, he made him Priſoner, and guarded him off to Peronne. Some Authors ſay, that Lewis de Outre-Mer reveng'd this Treaſonable Practice. However, this is certain, that in the Year 943, when Herbert lay agonizing upon his Death-bed, he cry'd out with great remorſe, There was a Douzen of us concerned in betraying King Charles. Flodoard Chron. Fauchier. Antiquit. de S. Quintin, &c.

HERBERT (Arthur) Earl of Torrington, Brother of Edward Herbert Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench in the late Reign, was advanced to that Dignity by the preſent King; being bred up for Sea-ſervice in the Reign of the late K. Charles II. he was accordingly employed by that King with the Command of a Fleet before Tangier, and afterwards againſt the Algerines; but when the late King James came to the Crown, becauſe he could not comply with the Meaſures of that Reign, he was turned out of all Commiſſion; whereupon, betaking himſelf to Holland, he came over with the Prince of Orange, now King, and was ſoon after ſent back into Holland to bring over the Princeſs, the late Queen; which he performed according to his Truſt. Being conſtituted Their Majeſties Admiral, he went in April, 1689. with a Squadron of Ships to the Iriſh Coaſt, to intercept a French Convoy bound thither with Men, Proviſions, Arms and Ammunition for the Iriſh Rebels: He met them in Bantry-Bay, where he fought them ſome Hours at a great Diſadvantage, againſt Wind and Tide, and ſo ended in a drawn Battel. Next Summer, in 1690. the French Fleet, under the Command of Tourville, had well nigh ſurprized our Fleet at St. Helens: They were indeed much ſuperior both in Strength and Number of Ships, yet it was reſolved to fight them; and the Order of Battel being agreed on, the Dutch Squadron began the Fight with great Courage and Bravery; but ours being hinder'd from giving them due Aſſiſtance, either by a Calm, or Neglect, the Dutch, over-power'd by the French, ſuffer'd very much; ſo that we were forced to retire with the Loſs of ſome Ships; whilſt K. William, having paſſed the Boyne, triumphed over the French and Iriſh in Ireland, and forced the late King James to an haſty Retreat into France. Upon this Miſcarriage of our Fleet, Admiral Herbert, being charged with it, was committed to the Tower, and at laſt brought to his Trial by a Court of Admiralty a-board the Fleet, (Sir Ralph De la Val being Preſident,) and acquitted; but his Commiſſion taken from him.

HERBERT de Boſham, an Engliſh Carmelite, preſent when Thomas Becket Archbiſhop of Canterbury was murther'd; but had the Diſcretion to make no Reſiſtance, leſt he had been ſent the ſame way with his Maſter. Going over into Italy, he was by Pope Alexander III. made Archbiſhop of Benevento; and in 1178. created Cardinal. He wrote the Hiſtory of Becket's Death.

HERBERT (George) a famous Engliſh Poet, a younger Brother of the Noble Family of the Herberts of Montgomery, born in 1593. He was a Man of a florid Wit, obliging Humour in Converſation, fluent Elocution, and great Proficiency in the Arts; which gain'd him ſo much Reputation at Cambridge, where he ſpent his more youthful Age, that he was choſen Univerſity-Orator. At laſt, taking upon him Holy Orders, not without ſpecial Encouragement from King Charles I. who took notice of his extraordinary Parts, he became Parſon of Bemmerton, near Salisbury, where he led a Seraphick Life, converting his Studies altogether to ſerious and divine Subjects, which in time produced thoſe divine Poems, intituled, The Temple, and his Country Parſon. He died about 1635.

* HERBERT (Henry) Lord Herbert of Cherbury, the Brother of Edward, who died in Decemb. 1678. without Iſſue, is deſcended from Sir Richard Herbert of Colebrook, younger Brother to William the firſt Earl of Pembroke. The firſt Riſe of this Collateral Branch was in the Perſon of Edward Herbert of Montgomery-Caſtle, Great-Grandſon to Sir Richard Herbert, ſecond Son to Sir Richard Herbert of Colebrook aforeſaid; which Edward, having firſt been a Fellow-Commoner of Univerſity-College in Oxford, and afterwards improved himſelf by Military Exerciſes, and his Travels into Foreign Parts, was made Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of King James I. and afterwards received to be of Council to the King for Military Affairs. Then he was ſent Ambaſſador to Lewis XIII. King of France, to intercede for the Proteſtants of that Realm, beſieged in ſeveral Places: In which Service he continued five Years; upon which he was created Baron of Caſtle-Iland in Ireland, where he had a fair Eſtate. Having likewiſe approved himſelf a faithful Servant to King Charles I. as well in Council as in Arms, he was by His Majeſty created a Baron of England, by the Title of Lord Herbert of Cherbury, An. 1630. This noble Lord was a Scholar, a Stateſman, and a Soldier; a Man well verſed both in Men and Books, and himſelf the Author of ſeveral; as, his Philoſophical Tract in Latin, De Veritate, written with ſome ſingularity of Notion. The Life and Reign of King Henry VIII. a Book De Cauſis Errorum, and De Religione Laici, another De Religione Gentilium, alſo De Expeditione in Rheam Inſulam. He died in 1648. leaving two Sons and a Daughter by Mary his Wife, the Daughter and Heireſs of Sir William Herbert of St. Julians, in the County of Monmouth; deſcended from Sir George Herbert, third Son to William, the firſt Earl of Pembroke of this Family. Richard, his eldeſt Son, was employed by King Charles I. with great Confidence in divers weighty Affairs, as a fit Perſon to ſerve him both with his Pen and Sword: And he was one of thoſe who, upon the Queen's Arrival from Holland, at Burlington, conducted her to the King, then at Oxford. He married Mary, Daughter to John Earl of Bridgewater; by whom he had four Sons, and four Daughters. His eldeſt Son Edward ſucceeded him, who followed the Steps of his Father in Readineſs to ſerve his Sovereign; but dying without Iſſue, as aforeſaid, both his Title and Eſtate fell to his Brother Henry, the late Lord Herbert of Cherbury; who formerly was Captain of a Troop of Horſe, under Sir Henry Jones, in the Service of the French King; and afterwards had the ſame Command in the Duke of York's Regiment.

HERBERT (Thomas,) Earl of Pembroke, Brother to Philip the late Earl, and Son of Philip, deſcended from Henry, eldeſt Son to William Earl of Bembroke, who died in 1569. in the Reign of Q. Elizabeth. So that the Branch of Pembroke is elder than that of Powis: However, both derive their Pedigree from Sir William Herbert Lord of Ragland in Monmouthſhire; who having been a ſtout Adherer to the Houſe of York, againſt the Houſe of Lancaſter, had ſeveral great Offices, and at laſt the Title and Dignity of Earl of Pembroke, conferred upon him by King Edward IV. An. 1468. As to his Parentage, ſome derive it from Henry, the Son of Herbert, Chamberlain to K. Henry I. Others from Henry Fitz-Roy, one of the King's Natural Sons. His End proved fatal; for being taken Priſoner by the Lancaſtrians at Dunſmoor-Fight, three Miles from Banbury, he was, with his younger Brother Richard, beheaded at Northampton, by the Command of the King's Brothers, George Duke of Clarence, and Nevil Earl of Warwick; both which had revolted not long before from K. Edward, to the other Side. He left a Son named William, his next Succeſſor; from whom the King procured a Reſignation of his Title, for his Son, Prince Edward; in lieu whereof he made him Earl of Huntington. In this William ceaſed the Legitimate Male Line, to keep on the Title of Earl; but his Father having left a Natural Son, Richard Herbert of Ewyas, and this Richard a Son named William, who was in ſo great Favour with King Henry VIII. as to be by him conſtituted one of his Executors, and appointed to be of Council to Prince Edward, his Son and Succeſſor. The ſaid William was by Edward VI. made Maſter of the Horſe, Knight of the Garter, and Lord Preſident of the Council in the Marches of Wales. The ſaid King made him alſo in 1551. a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Herbert of Cardiff, and the next Day created him Earl of Pembroke. He left two Sons; Henry, in whoſe Line the Title continues to this Day; and Sir Edward, from whom is deſcended the Marquiſs of Powis. Henry's Succeſſor was his eldeſt Son William; who leaving no Iſſue Male, the Title fell to Philip his Brother, in 1630. which William had been long before made Baron of England, by the Title of Lord Herbert of Shurland, in the Iſle of Shippey, in Kent; as alſo Earl of Montgomery, and inſtalled Knight of the Garter; and in the Reign of King Charles I. he was made Lord Chamberlain, and Chancellor of the Univerſity of Oxford. By the Lady Suſanna, his Wife, Daughter to Edward Earl of Oxford, he had Iſſue five Sons and three Daughters. Philip, his fourth Son, (the reſt being dead,) ſucceeded him; and Anna Sophia, his eldeſt Daughter, was married to Robert Earl of Carnarvan. This Philip had two Wives; Penelope, Daughter to Sir Robert Naunton; and Catharine, Sir William Villiers's Daughter. By the firſt he had Iſſue one only Son, called William, who ſucceeded him in his Honours, but died within five Years after, unmarried. By his ſecond Wife he had Philip, who ſucceeded next to William; and Thomas, the preſent Earl, who ſucceeded, his Brother dying without Iſſue Male. Dugdale's Baronage.

HERBERT (William,) Marquis of Powis, is deſcended from Sir Edward Herbert of Pool-Caſtle, afterwards called Red-Caſtle, and now Powis-Caſtle, in Wales; which Sir Edward was ſecond Son of William Earl of Pembroke, who died in 1569. This Sir Edward had four Sons and two Daughters by Mary, his Wife. His eldeſt Son William was made Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of King James I. and in the 15*th*. of Charles I. a Baron of England, by the Title of Lord Powis of Powis in the Marches of Whales. He took to Wife Eleanor, youngeſt Daughter of Henry Piercy, the 8*th*. Earl of Northumberland of that moſt noble Family; by whom he left Iſſue, Piercy Lord Powis, and Daughters. Piercy being created Baronet in his Father's Lifetime, by King James I. married Elizabeth, Daughter of Sir William Craven, Alderman of London, and Siſter to William late Earl of Craven; by whom he left Iſſue, William his only Son, and Mary a Daughter, married to George Lord Talbot, eldeſt Son to John late Earl of Shrewsbury: Which William was by King Charles II. advanced to the Title and Dignity of Earl of Powis, improved by King James the II. to that of Marquis. By the Lady Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter to Edward late Marquis of Worceſter, he has Iſſue one Son, called William, and five Daughters. Dugdale.

HERBIPOLI: See WURTZBURG, a City of Franconia.

HERBORN, a ſmall Town in Weſterwaldt, or Weteravia, on the Upper Rhine; and an Univerſity, founded by John Count Dillenburg, An. 1585. This Town ſent Divines to the Synod at Dort, and is ſubject to the Counts of Naſſaw, Princes of the Empire. It ſtands four German Miles W. of Marpurg.

HERCK, Lat. Archa, a Town or Caſtle in the Biſhoprick of Liege, in the Confines of Brabant, Mid-way betwixt Maeſtricht and Louvain. There is alſo a River of this Name, which runs by the Caſtle.

HERCLEM, Lat. Herculis Caſtra, a Town of Guelderland.

HERCULES, Son of Jupiter, by Alcmena, and born at Thebes in Bœotia. By the Envy of Juno he narrowly eſcaped Death; and two Serpents were ſent to kill him in his Cradle, but he overcame and pulled them in pieces. Being by the Malice of the ſaid Juno ſubjected to Euryſtheus, after having at his Order performed divers extraordinary Things, he commanded him the Twelve Labours following, which he performed happily: 1. He overcame the Lion of Nemæa, whoſe Skin he wore afterwards. 2. He deſtroyed the Hydra with ſeven Heads. 3. He conquered the Erymanthean Boar. 4. He catched an Hind, with Golden Horns and Brazen Hoofs, in the Foreſt of Parthenia, after a Years Hunting. 5. He deſtroyed the Harpyes. 6. He ſubdued the Amazons, took their Queen's Girdle, and obliged her to marry his Friend Theſeus. 7. He cleanſed Augea's Stables. 8. He overcame the Cretan Bull, Paſiphae's Gallant, who vomited Fire. 9. He killed Diomedes and his Horſes, which he fed with Men's Fleſh. 10. He ſubdued the Spaniſh Geryon, and carried away his Flock. 11. He took the Golden Apples from the Garden of the Heſperides, and killed the Dragons that kept them. 12. He brought Cerberus, with the three Heads, from Hell, whence he delivered the Wives of Theſeus and Admetus. Over and above theſe, he conquered the Centaurs, the Gyant Cacus, and Buſiris, who ſacrificed Paſſengers; cruſhed Antheus to death betwixt his Arms; carried the Axle-tree of the Heavens, to relieve Atlas; delivered Prometheus from Mount Caucaſus, and killed the Eagle which fed upon him; beſides a great many other Atchievements. He had many Friends, and divers Wives and Children. Deianira, one of his Wives, being jealous of him, ſent him a poyſon'd Shirt by miſtake, which killed him. After his Death he was taken into the Number of the Gods, and to appeaſe Juno, married her Daughter Hebe, the Goddeſs of Youth. The Ancients moralize this Fable thus: By Hercules, they mean the ſtrength of Reaſon and Philoſophy, which ſubdues and conquers our irregular Paſſions: And by his Marriage with the Goddeſs of Youth, they would intimate, that the Memory of Men of Learning and Courage is always freſh and fragrant. His Story is at large in Ovid, and other Poets. The Ancients did acknowledge many Herculeſes; ſome three, ſome four. Varro reckons 43; whereof the Ægyptian Hercules is ſo like Joſhua, by his Victories, and great Actions, that the Scripture ſaith of the one, and profane Hiſtory of the other, That Heaven, in their Favour, rained Stones to deſtroy their Enemies. The Ancients united the Labours of thoſe different Herculeſes into one; and the Grecian Hercules inſtituted, or, as others ſays, reſtored the Olympick Games near Piſa, a Town of Elis, on the River Alpheus, 442 Years before the firſt Olympiad. Concerning this famous Epoche, read Polydore Virgil, lib. 2. de rer. invent. Joſ. Scaliger de Emendat. Temp. lib. 1. A Modern Author in a Project of the fabulous Hiſtory, inſerted in the firſt Volume of the Univerſal Bibliotheque, ſays, It's diſcovered that all thoſe Herculeſes are owing to the Hyperbolical Adventures of ſome Phœnician Merchants who Traded in divers Places, and ſettled Colonies, Harokel, from whence came Hercules, ſignifying Merchant in the Phœnician Language. Ovid.

HERCYNIA, a famous Foreſt of ancient Germany named now the Black Foreſt, or Foreſt of Bohemia. Cæſar deſcribes it in the Sixth Book of his Commentaries as very large; in whoſe Time it was nine days Journey in breadth, and as for the length of it, it was diſcover'd, as far as ſixty days Journey, from Alſatia and Switzerland, where it began, to Tranſylvania, where notwithſtanding that vaſt Extent, the end of it was not found, but it's not ſo large now. Lewis de May Eſtat de l'Empire. Tit. Liv. Strab. Plin.

HEREDIA, (Ferdinand or Fernandez de) the 32d great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem, whoſe Convent was then at Rhodes. He was a Spaniard by birth, a great Politician and Soldier, made Governor of Avignon by the Pope, and imployed in Affairs of State by divers Kings. Gregory XI. ſent him as Ambaſſador to mediate betwixt Charles V. of France and Edward III. of England, who were juſt ready to give Battel, with a Power to take Arms againſt him that refuſed Peace; and the King of England not liſtning to him, he took part with the French, who being defeated, and their King's Horſe much wounded, Heredia gave him his, and rallying the Foot, retired with them grievouſly wounded. Some time after he ſent a Trumpet, with Defiance to the Engliſh Camp, challenging any Man that durſt reproach him with fighting for one Party, whereas he ought to have been Mediator. But Edward knowing he had power ſo to do, would not ſuffer any body to accept the Challenge, but made uſe of his Mediation for one years Truce. He alſo ſignalized himſelf againſt the Turks in the Morea, took Patras by Aſſault, and killed the Governor hand to hand, but falling into an Ambuſh, was made Slave for three years; and after this eſpouſing the Antipope Clement VII's Intereſt, was depoſed from his Office by Urban VI. but the Rhodians would never own any other Maſter during his Life, which ended in 1396. Boſco Hiſt. de l'Ordre de S. Jean de Jeruſalem.

HEREFORD, Lat. Herefordia, the chief Town of Herefordſhire, and a Biſhop's See in the Province of Canterbury, is pleaſantly ſeated amongſt rich Meadows and Corn-fields on the Banks of the River Wye, about 100 Miles W. N. W. from London. It was raiſed out of the Ruines of Ariconium, a Place of good account in the time of the Romans, which ſtood where Kencheſter is now, about three Miles from Hereford Weſtward, and it grew to a great Fame, through a ſuppoſed ſanctity by the Burial of Ethelbert King of the Eaſt-Angles, treacherouſly ſlain at Sutton, four Miles North of Hereford, by the Q. of Mercia his intended Mother-in-Law; which Ethelbert, being afterwards Canonized for a Saint, was removed into this City out of his Grave at Morden; then was the Cathedral built, in honour of him, by Milfrid a Nobleman of this County, which Griffith Prince of South-Wales, in Rebellion againſt Edward the Confeſſor, conſumed to Aſhes. That which now ſtands, was chiefly raiſed by Biſhop Reinelm in the beginning of the XIIth Century, and what he lived not to perform, was finiſhed by his Succeſſors. About the ſame time the City was ſurrounded with Walls, which have ſince continued in good repair, with ſix Gates and ſix Watch-Towers for defence. Here did alſo the Normans erect a ſtrong and ſtately Caſtle, ſince fallen into ruine. The Dioceſs contains Herefordſhire, and part of Shropſhire; in all 313 Pariſhes, of which 166 Impropriations for the Government; whereof, there are two Archdeacons under the Dioceſan, the one of Hereford, the other of Salop. In the Kings Books this Biſhoprick is valued at 768 l. 10 s. 6 d. the Tenth of the Clergy coming to 340 l. 2 s. 2 d. Two Years after the Norman Conqueſt this City was made an Earldom, afterwards a Dukedom, and now it gives the Title of a Viſcount to the Right Honourable Edward Devereux the preſent Viſcount Hereford, deſcended by the Bourchiers from the Bohuns Earls of Eſſex.

HEREFORDSHIRE, Lat. Herefordienſis comitatus, is an In-land County formerly reckoned within the Limits of Wales, before it was by Conqueſt annexed to the Crown of England. It's bounded on the North with Worceſter and Shropſhire, on the South with Monmouthſhire, Eaſtward with Gloceſterſhire, and Weſtward with Radnor and Brecknock-ſhire in Wales. Its length from North to South is about 35 Miles; its breadth from Eaſt to Weſt 20. The whole divided into 11 Hundreds, wherein are 176 Pariſhes and 8 Market-Towns, whoſe Inhabitants were called Silures by the Romans, the Country being part of the Kingdom of Mercia in the time of the Heptarchy, and making now, with part of Shropſhire, the Dioceſs of Hereford. Here the Air is temperate and healthful, and the Soil exceeding rich, being watered with ſeveral good Rivers, and particularly the Wye. A clear evidence of the healthfulneſs of its Air, is the long Lives of the Inhabitants; witneſs, amongſt others, the ſtory of Serjeant Hoskins, who at his Entertainment of King James I. provided ten aged People to dance before him, making up altogether above 1000 Years, ſome of them ſupplying what was wanting in others. And for its Fertility, Cambden gives this commendation of it, Secunda fertilitatis laude inter Angliæ Provincias acquieſcere haud facile eſt contenta; that is, ſhe is hardly contented to be accounted the ſecond Shire for matter of Fruitfulneſs. Two things this County excells in, viz. Its plenty of Fruit, and the fineſt Wooll of any part of England; and amongſt all ſorts of Fruits the Red-ſtreak Apple, which makes the beſt Cyder, thrives here to admiration. The Wooll, particularly that which is called Lemſter Ore, is the fineſt in all England, and equals, if it don't exceed, the Apulian in the South of Italy. Amongſt Fiſhes here is plenty of Salmons in the River Wye, and whereas in other Counties they are ſeaſonable only in Summer, here they are in ſeaſon all the Year long, the River Wye yielding Winter-Salmons fat and ſound, when they are ſick and ſpent in other places. In the South Weſt part of this County, is a famous Tract called the Golden Vale, not for the Gold it produces, but either becauſe gilded with Flowers in the Spring, or for the beſt of Moulds as Gold is of Metals. The Wonders of this County are, Bonewell, and Marcley-hill: See Bonewell and Marcley-hill. Laſtly, out of this County are Elected, beſides the two Knights of the Shire, ſix Members of Parliament, viz. From Hereford, Lemſter and Weobley, two each. Speed, Cambden.

HEREN, or Haran, now Charræ, Gen. 12. 4. Since Abraham's ſojourning there, it was a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Edeſſa, and afterwards Metropolis of the Province of Diarbeck near the River Chabor in Meſopotamia. It ſtands forty Miles from Edeſſa, and ſixty E. of Euphrates. It was almoſt quite deſtroyed by the Tartars under the Conduct of Tamerlan, and ſince that time has been in a declining condition. It is now under the Dominion of the Turks. This City was alſo memorable for the defeat of Craſſus near it; of which Lucan,

——Miſerando funera Craſſus
Aſſyrias latio maculavit ſanguine Charras.

HERENNIANUS, Son of Odenatus, who had Uſurp'd the Empire in the Eaſt: Zenobia, his Mother, us'd to carry him, and his Brother Timolaus, in her Arms, when ſhe Harangu'd her Forces; both of them carry'd their Claim ſo high, as to wear Purple, which makes ſome Authors affirm, that the Emperor Aurelian put them to Death in the Year 273. Trebellius Pollio de Triginta Tyrannis, cap. 26.

HERES-MARTIA, Martial Heireſs in Engliſh, among the Romans the Goddeſs of Heirs, reputed one of Mars's Companions, and Surnamed Martial, becauſe of the frequent occaſions given to War by Inheritances and Succeſſions: As ſoon as an Inheritance fell to any body, he went immediately to pay Homage and Sacrifice to that Goddeſs, and thank her. Feſtus.

HERESY, This word in its Original ſignifies only choice (αἵρεσις from αἱρέομαι to chuſe) and it was uſed formerly to denote a Sect; thus, St. Paul ſaid that he was of the Hereſy, that is, of the Sect of the Phariſees; but now Hereſy is taken in an ill Sence, and thereby is underſtood a fundamental Error againſt Religion. Neverthele ſs that Error muſt be followed by Obſtinacy, and no Man is called Heretick unleſs he be obſtinate in his Opinion. An Hereſiarch is the chief of ſome Hereticks, or the Author of an Hereſy, &c.

HERI, or Hera, in Latin Arca, a Province of Perſia, famous for the beſt Roſes of the World, and the City Heri, where the fineſt Perſian Tapeſtry is made, and on that account much frequented by the Indians. This City ſtands 90 German Miles W. of Candahar, and 120 South Eaſt of the Caſpian Sea. It hath alſo a River of the ſame Name which waſheth its Walls. Olearius his Travels.

HERIBERT, Clerk of Orleans, a Manichée, to convince whom and his Followers, King Robert called a Council there, An. 1017. but finding that this would not do, he cauſed them to be burnt near the Town. Baronius, A. C. 1017.

HERIBERT de BOSHAM, or BOSSENHAM, firſt Secretary to Tho. Becket Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and afterwards, as 'tis ſaid, made a Cardinal; he lived in the XIIth Century, and wrote the Life of that Archbiſhop. Baron. Annal. Voſſius, Lib. 2. de Hiſt. Lat. &c. Vid. Herbert de Boſham.

HERILLUS of Carthage, a Philoſopher, Zeno the Cynick's Diſciple, in the 125th Olympiad, affirm'd, That Knowledge was the end of Man, and that his only delight conſiſts therein. Diog. Laert. l. 7. vit. Philoſoph. in Zenone.

HERIT, a Province of Arabia Fœlix, called alſo Adramita.

HERLING, Eaſt Herling, a Market Town of Giltcroſs Hundred in the South parts of Norfolk.

HERMA, or Erma, anciently Germa or Therma, and now ſometimes Germaſte, a City on the River Sacrio in the Borders of Bithynia, two German Leagues Eaſt of Scutari, at preſent an Archbiſhoprick. There is alſo a City in Spain, and another in Judæa, of this Name.

HERMACHUS, born at Mitylene, one of Epicurus's Diſciples, who, as our Author words it, was poor in the Pocket, but rich in the Head. Epicurus, at his Death, nominated him for his Succeſſor, and Demis'd his Houſe and Gardens to him by his Will, for the convenience of Teaching. This Hermachus firſt apply'd himſelf to the ſtudy of Rhetorick, and afterwards to that of Philoſophy. He wrote againſt Plato and Ariſtotle, and was Author of ſeveral other Books; all which are now loſt. Diog. Laert. in Epicur. Gaſſend. Lib. 1. vit. Epicur. cap. 8.

HERMAN of Lorrain, Count of Solms, Son of Gilbert Earl of Luxemburgh, was elected King of the Romans in 1081, againſt Henry IV. He was preſent at the Senate of Quintilinburgh, where Henry was Excommunicated, but afterwards was deſerted by his own Party. Baronius.

HERMAN, Count of Meurs, Archbiſhop and Elector of Cologne, Excommunicated by Paul III. and removed from his Electorate by Charles Vth. for encouraging Bucer and Melancthon, and endeavouring a Reformation. He died in 1552. Sponde A. C. 1336. n. 16.

HERMAN or HERMANNUS, call'd Contractus, was Son of Wolferade Count of Weringen, and a Monk at Richenou. He wrote a Chronicle of the ſix Ages of the World, ending in 1654. to which a Continuation was added by Bertholdus a Prieſt of Conſtance. This Work is inſerted among the German Writers publiſh'd by Vriſtiſius, &c. Honorius Auguſtodunenſis, Lib. 4. Aventine, Bale, &c.

HERMAN (William) Canon Regular of the Order of St. Auguſtine, born at Goude in Holland, and living in the beginning of the XVIth Century. He was a good Linguiſt, and Eraſmus makes honourable mention of him. He wrote a Book of the Hiſtory of the War between the Guelderlanders and the Hollanders, Intituled, De Bello Gueldro Germanico. He wrote likewiſe ſome other Pieces in Proſe and Poetry. Adrianus Junius Bat. cap. 16. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

HERMANSTADT in High Dutch, Cibmum, or Hermanopolis in Latin, and by the Inhabitants called Zeben, the Capital of Tranſylvania, and Reſidence of the Prince; a large, populous, ſtrong and well-built City. It ſtands in a Plain on the River Cibin, fifteen Miles from Clauſenburg, and eight from Alba-Julia. It has no Biſhop at preſent, but is reckoned a Biſhops See, Suffragan to the Archbiſhop of Colocza. The Inhabitants of this City are Saxons, and five Juriſdictions of Saxons depend upon it. The Prince of this Country having formerly put himſelf under the Protection of the Grand Signior, the late Duke of Lorrain prevailed with the Prince Abafti to put himſelf under the Protection of the Emperor, and to receive a Gariſon of 3000 Germans in Nov. 1687. to keep their Winter Quarters there. Baudrand.

HERMANSTEIN, or Erenbreitſtein, Lat. Eremberti Lapis, one of the ſtrongeſt Citadels of all Germany, on the Rhine, over-againſt Coblentz, and the mouth of the River Moſelle, in the E. of the Territory of Triers. It is ſituated on a ſteep inacceſſible Rock. In the famous Siege of 1637, it could not be taken but by Famine. It hath a ſtately Palace belonging to the ſaid Elector under it, eight Leagues from Mentz, and ten from Cologne Weſtward. Baudrand.

HERMANUBIS, an Egyptian Idol compoſed of Mercury, called Hermes, and Anubis repreſented as a Man, having a Spar-Hawk's head and a Caduceus in his hand; or moſt commonly with a Dog's head, which ſignifies Hawking or Hunting, becauſe Anubis delighted much in thoſe Sports. Some are in Senators clothes, holding the Caduceus with the left hand, and the Egyptian Siſtrum in the right. Tertullian mentions it. Spon. Recherches curieuſes d'Antiquité.

HERMANVILLE, a ſmall Town in Picardy, not far from Calice in France.

HERMAPHRODITE, an Idol of the Ancients of both Sexes, compoſed of Mercury called Hermes, and of Venus named Aphrodite, to join Eloquence or Trading with Delights, or to ſhew that Venus was of both Sexes, as Theophraſtus affirms, that near Amathus in Cyprus her Statue was to be ſeen with a Man's beard. The Poets by the Fable of Salmacis being united to Hermaphroditus, whoſe Love ſhe could not obtain, would ſignifie the effects of Love, whoſe end is to unite Hearts, and did thereby alſo expoſe the weak and effeminate Nature of the Inhabitants of that Country, who lived idly and voluptuouſly. Ovid, Strabo.

HERMAS, an ancient Author, whom Origen, Euſebius, and St. Herom affirm, to be the ſame that St. Paul ſalutes at the end of his Epiſtle to the Romans. Some call him Hermes, which gave occaſion to Modern Authors to attribute his Book to a certain Hermes Pope Pius I's Brother; but all the Ancients name him conſtantly Hermas, and St. Hierom obſerves that the Author of that Book was a Grecian, and conſequently more known to the Grecians than to the Latins, which could not be, if Pope Pius's Brother were Author of it. Baronius diſtinguiſhes two Books, one Hermes's concerning the Celebration of Eaſter, and the other Hermas's divided into three Parts: The firſt Intituled Eccleſia, contains four Viſions which the Author ſaw. The ſecond call'd Paſtor, relates twelve Inſtructions or Commands, deliver'd by a Guardian Angel, in the ſhape of a grave Paſtor. The third contains Ten Similitudes, by which the Author was Inſtructed in the Precepts of Happineſs and Chriſtianity. The great Tribulation, mention'd in his fourth Viſion, is by Dr. Hammond, and Mr. Dodwel, ſuppos'd to refer to the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; by conſequence, it muſt be written before the Year 70, in which that City was ſack'd and demoliſh'd by Titus. The Greek Original of theſe Books is loſt, and there remains only a Tranſlation printed in Bibliotheca Patrum by Mr. Cotelier. The Author of the Tranſlation is unknown, but it ſeems to be faithful, becauſe conformable to the Greek paſſages quoted by St. Clement, Origen, Antiochus, &c. As for this Book's Authority, it's ſaid, That it has been received formerly in many Churches as a Canonical Book, and that St. Irenæus, St. Clement of Alexandria, Origen, Tertullian, quote it as a Book of the Holy Scripture, but it has not been ſo looked upon by many other Churches, but only as an uſeful and edifying Book. St. Proſper rejects it as of no Authority, and Gelaſius reckons it among the Apocrypha. Du Pin Nouvelle Bibliotheque des Eccleſiaſtiques. Cave Hiſt. Lit.

HERMATHENE, a Statue of Mercury and Minerva joined together, from Ἑρμῆς Mercury and Ἀθηνᾶ Minerva, to ſhew that Eloquence and Knowledge ſhould go together, the one without the other being uſeleſs. Spon. Recherches curieuſes d'Antiquité.

HERMENIGILDE, a Spaniſh Prince, Son of Leuvigilde King of the Goths, being perſwaded by his Wife Ingonde, a French Princeſs, he abjured Arianiſm. His Father diſpleaſed at it, made War with him and took him Priſoner; and becauſe he refuſed to communicate with an Arian Biſhop, he was murdered in Priſon by his Father's Order the day before Eaſter, An. 586. Iſidore in Chron. S. Greg. l. 3. dial. 31. His Name is inſerted in the Roman Martyrology the 13th of April.

HERMEROS, a Cupid's Statue which has ſomething of Mercury, from Ἑρμῆς Mercury and Ἔρως Love, having a Caduceus in his left hand, and a Purſe in the right, to ſhew that Eloquence and Money are neceſſary to a Lover. Spon. Recherches curieuſes d'Antiquité.

HERMES, were Mercury's Statues commonly of Marble and ſometimes of Braſs, without Arms and Feet: The Grecians and Romans uſed to ſet them in the croſs Ways and Porches of Houſes and Temples, becauſe Mercury did preſide over High-ways, and was the God of Eloquence and Truth. Therefore, ſaith Suidas, thoſe Statues were ſquare and cubical, to ſignifie that truth is always like it ſelf on all ſides. There are ſtill at Rome many of thoſe ſquare Statues brought out of Greece, and on them the Heads of illuſtrious Poets, Philoſophers and Captains. Spon. Recherches curieuſes d'Antiquité.

HERMES ſurnamed TRISMEGISTUS, or Three times great, an Egyptian Philoſopher, lived, as ſome think, in the Year of the World 2076, in the Reign of Ninus, after Moſes, He was the firſt that began to leave off Aſtrology, to admire the other Wonders of Nature. He proved there was but one God Creator of all things. He divided the Day into twelve hours, from his Obſervation of a certain Animal conſecrated to Serapis by the Egyptians, which made Water twelve times a day at a certain interval. He is alſo thought to be the firſt who divided the Zodiack into twelve Signs. Polydore Virgil de rerum inventione. The Egyptian Name of the old Hermes or Mercury was Thouth. He was Oſyris King of Egypt's Councellor, and is ſaid to have invented ordinary Writing and Hieroglyphicks, the firſt Laws of the Egyptians, and divers Sciences. There was another Hermes beſides this who Tranſlated the Works of the former concerning Phyſick, Aſtrology, and the Egyptian Divinity. Clemens Alexandrinus ſaith, That there were 32 Books of Divinity and Philoſophy, and ſix of Phyſick, but they are loſt, and thoſe that remain, and go under his Name, are thought to be Suppoſititious. Beſides the forenamed, there is one whoſe Title is Poemander: Caſaubon believes it written by a Chriſtian to aſſert Chriſtianity by a pious fraud, making Hermes ſay part of what the Chriſtians believe. This Book was counterfeited, as its thought, in the beginning of the ſecond Century. Caſaubon in Baronium, Marſham. Can. Ægyptiac.

HERMHARPOCRATES, a Statue compoſed of Mercury and Harpocrates the God of Silence, to ſignify that Silence was ſometimes eloquent, and that upon occaſion the Mind may be ſignified as well by the Eyes as by the Tongue. Spon. Recherches curieuſes d'Antiquité.

HERMHERACLES, a Statue of Hercules on a Hermes, to ſignify that Strength muſt be joined with Eloquence, and that Eloquence is ſtrong enough to ſubdue Monſters. The ancient Gauls repreſented their Hercules with Chains iſſuing at his Mouth, to ſignify the power of Eloquence. Spon. Recherches Curieuſes d'Antiquité.

HERMIAS, born in Caria, was the moſt powerful Miniſter of Antiochus the great King of Syria, and governed this Prince abſolutely, having abuſed him, and drawn the hatred of the Nobility upon himſelf, he was murthered, and his Wife and Children ſtoned to death by the People, who made publick Rejoycings at the death of that Miniſter. Dupuy Hiſt. des Favoirs.

HERMIAS, an Hereſiarch, the chief of the Hermians or Seleucians, about 170. He taught that God was Corporeal, &c. See Seleucians.

HERMIAS, a Chriſtian Philoſopher who apparently lived in the ſecond Century, tho' ſome ſay in the fourth. He wrote a Book of the diſagreement of Heathen Philoſophers, wherein he expoſes their contradictory Opinions concerning God, the Soul, &c. His Book is called Irriſio Philoſophorum. We have ſeveral Editions of it in Greek and Latin. Cave Hiſt. Liter.

HERMINE, an Order of Knighthood inſtituted by Ferd. King of Naples, An. 1463. with a Collar of Gold and Ermin hanging at it, with this Device, I had rather die, than live guilty of an ill practice. Malo mori quam fœdari. There was alſo another Order of this Name, inſtituted by John Duke of Britaigne, An. 1365, with Collars of Gold upon Ermin, and the Device was, A ma vie. Thuan.

HERMION, King of the ancient Germans, divided the Kingdom of his Father Mannus with his two Brothers Ingevon and Iſtevon. He was ſo much eſteemed for his Valour and Vertue, that he was placed amongſt the Gods after his death. His Statue was to be ſeen almoſt in all their Temples arm'd Cap-a-pie, having a Lance in his right hand, and a Balance in the other, and a Lion on his Buckler. Charlemaigne pulled down one of them which he found in Saxony to aboliſh Superſtition. Henninges Tom. 1*ſt.*

HERMIT (Peter) a French Gentleman, an Anchoret born at Amiens in Picardy. He went to Jeruſalem in 1093, and ſeeing the Chriſtians deplorable Condition there, he ſpoke with the Patriarch Simeon, and offer'd to carry Letters to all the Weſtern Princes to perſwade them to a Croiſade. Peter was a little Man, and of a very mean Preſence, but Witty, Prudent, Stout and Eloquent, therefore the Patriarch ſent him as a fit Man for the purpoſe. He viſited the Pope, and moſt of the Princes of Europe, particularly Godfrey of Bovillon, the Chief of thoſe that undertook the Holy War. This Prince ſeeing Peter followed by a great multitude of ordinary People, made him their Commander, and ſent him before at the head of about 40000 Foot, beſides Cavalry. He march'd in his Hermits habit, and alſo kept to the Abſtinence of the Order. He ſent another Body of 20000, under the Command of a poor French Gentleman, for that reaſon called, Walter without Eſtate. Theſe Troops could not be kept from plundering in Hungary and other Countries, the General having loſt his Authority. At laſt they came to Conſtantinople in 1096. Thence to Bithynia, where they were defeated by Solyman near Nicea. Of that great multitude, there returned but 3000 to Conſtantinople. This was the ſucceſs of Peter's Expedition, who then found the difference between a Preacher and a General. An. 1097, the Chriſtians ſuffering very much at the Siege of Antioch, and many of the Chief having fled from before the Place as deſpairing to take it, Peter was among them, but Tancrede forced him to return, and ſwear that he ſhould never abandon the Deſign whereof he had been the firſt Author; after which he continued very zealous for the Conqueſt of the Holy Land, and behaved himſelf bravely at the Siege of Jeruſalem in 1099. That Town being taken, he was left Vicar-General there in the abſence of the Patriarch, who went along with Godfrey againſt the Sultan of Egypt. Gul. Tyr. lib. 1. Rob. Monach. l. 1.

HERMITS, a Name given at the firſt to thoſe that retired to Deſart places to avoid Perſecution, and gave up themſelves to Prayers, Faſtings and Meditation. The word comes from Ἔρημος, a Deſart or Wilderneſs. They were alſo called Anchorets, from Ἀναχωρεῖν to withdraw; ſuch were St. Paul the Hermit, St. Anthony, &c. But ſince Perſecution ceaſed, the moſt part of theſe Hermits ſettled in Monaſteries, built in Towns, from whence came the Name of Monks. The firſt Hermit's life was very rigid, having but a dark Cave for Lodgings, nothing but Roots, Water and Palm-Leaves for Food, Drink and Clothes, and beſides faſted often. Some Monks have retain'd the name of Hermits, as the Hermits of St. Hierom and St. Auſtin. St. Hierom.

HERMODORUS of Epheſus, liv'd in Exile at Rome. He perſwaded the Romans, who were frequently embroil'd about Property, to ſend Ambaſſadors to Athens, and other Towns, to learn their Laws; which was accordingly performed, and out of that Collection were compoſed the Laws of the Twelve Tables. The Romans, in gratitude, erected a Statue to Hermodorus. Plin. lib. 34. cap. 5. Strab. lib. 14.

HERMOGENES, counted the moſt famous Architect among the Ancients, and Inventer of Things belonging to that Art; born in Caria. Vitruvius, lib. 3. cap. 1. Felibien, &c.

HERMOGENES and Philetus, converted, as 'tis thought, by St. James the Great; but afterwards relapſed, 2 Tim. c. 1. They denied the Reſurrection of the Dead.

HERMOGENES, a famous Orator in the II. Century; who being but 15 Years of Age, taught Rhetorick, compoſed Books at 18, and forgot all his Learning at 24. So that Antiochus the Sophiſt ſaid, he was an old Man in his Youth, and a Child in his old Age. Volateran. Vignier. A.C. 163.

HERMOGENES, an African Heretick about 170, who taught, That the Matter of the World was Co-eternal with God, and not made by him; with other Hereſies. Tertullian.

HERMOLAUS Barbarus, a learned Venetian, ſent Ambaſſador to Rome, and named by Pope Innocent VIII. to be Patriarch of Aquileia; but the Senate of Venice forbidding him to accept this Dignity, his Father and he died for grief. He publiſhed Pliny's Natural Philoſophy. G. Juſtiniani Hiſt. Ven. lib. 9.

HERMON, or Thermon, Patriarch of Jeruſalem in 298. died in 312.

HERMON, Son of King Creon; who abandoning his Country for fear of Darius, Captain of the Athenians, pretended he did ſo to ſave his Country from Trouble. Hence Hermonium Officium.

HERMON, called Chermon by the Hebrews, and Sanir by the Amorites, is an high Mountain of Palæſtine, beyond Jordan, where the Tribe of Manaſſes was: It is ſo high, that 'tis continually covered with Snow. St. Hierom ſaith, That in his Time they carried ſome from thence to Tyrus, to cool their Liquors. This Mountain is full of tall ſtately Firr-Trees, and has a great many Caves, one whereof is capable of holding 4000 Men. Adrichomus ſaith, That there was a Temple dedicated to Baal upon it. Euſeb. Nieremb. lib. de miracul. natur. terr. promiſſ. cap. 77.

HERMOTIMUS, Citizen of Clazomene, in Aſia the Leſs, has occaſioned many Fables. 'Tis ſaid his Soul uſed to leave his Body, wander about, and foretel things to come; and that having charged his Wife that none ſhould meddle with his Body during that time, ſhe could not forbear relating this Wonder to her Neighbours, who finding his Body without Life, burnt it as a dead Corps. The Inhabitants built a Temple to Hermotimus, wherein, becauſe of this Treachery, the Women were not to be admitted. Apollonius in Hiſt. de mirabil.

HERMUNDURI, an ancient People of Germany, who inhabited Voigtland, part of Auſtria, Thuringen and Higher Franconia. Alexander ab Alexandro, Gen. Dier. lib. 3. cap. 22. ſays, That their Generals, when ſtraitned, were wont to devote to Mars and Mercury the Enemy's Army; and then getting the Victory, deſtroyed Men, Beaſts, Arms, Spoils and all.

HERNANDEZ, or Ferdinand, Phyſician to Philip II. of Spain; who being ſent into America, wrote an Hiſtory of what Medicinals it produced, in two Folio's, beſides other Works.

HERNDAL, Lat. Herndalia, a part of Norway, on this ſide Mount Sevus, bordering on Jemplandt, yielded to the Swedes in 1645, by the Peace at Bromsbro, together with Nemedale, Helligelandt, Froſtena, Indera, Herva, and other of its Dependencies. Hoffman.

HERO, a Prieſteſs of Venus, liv'd near the Helleſpont: Leander was in Love with her, and us'd to ſwim over that Arm of the Sea every Evening to make her a Viſit. She us'd to direct him in his courſe by a Light-Houſe, but one ſtormy Night the Lights going out, Leander miſtook his Road and was caſt away; which, when Hero underſtood, ſhe threw her ſelf into the Sea. Ovid. Epiſt. Heroid.

HEROD, called The Great, or, The Aſcalonite, Son of Antipater, an Idumæan, was not barely 15 Years old, as Joſephus ſaith, but 25, or 27, when he had the Government of Galilee, and ſided with Caſſius and Brutus. After their Death, An. 712. of Rome, he went wholly to M. Anthony's Intereſt, and was made Tetrarch and Governor of Judæa, with his Brother Phazael. Anthony cauſed the Senate to name him King of the Jews, An. Rom. 714. and three Years after condemned Antigonus, Herod's Competitor, to death. Herod married Mariamne, Daughter of Alexander, Ariſtobulus's Son, made her Brother Ariſtobulus High Prieſt; but afterwards, out of Jealouſie, drowned him, and murdered Hyrcanus, his Grand-father, being 80 Years old. Anthony, Herod's Friend, being defeated at Actium, An. Rom. 723. Herod made his Court to Auguſtus, at Rhodes, who confirmed him in the Kingdom of Judæa. At his Return he put Sohemus to death, for revealing the ſecret Orders he had given him to kill the Queen, in caſe he ſhould be condemned by Auguſtus; and ſlew Mariamne, notwithſtanding his paſſionate Love to her. After her Death he was ſo much troubled, that he fell into a kind of Frenzy, and would often call for her. Soon after, without any colour of Law, he put Alexandra, Mariamne's Mother, to death, and ſpared not his beſt Friends, his Siſter Salom's Husband; and all thoſe that were of the Aſmonæan Family, or had any Authority among the People, were put to death without any Forms of Juſtice. Notwithſtanding, he ſhew'd ſome Humanity towards the Jews, when viſited with a Plague and Famine, for he order'd all his Plate to be Coyn'd, and the Jewels and Curioſities of his Cloſet ſold for the Relief of the Poor. Joſephus ſaith, that he re-built the Temple, An. Rom. 735. which he polluted by erecting a Theatre and Amphitheatre, where Fights were to be celebrated once in five Years, in honour of Auguſtus; whom it pleaſed ſo well, that the ſecond time he went into Syria he added three new Provinces to Herod's Dominions; who, to ſhew his Gratitude, built him a Temple in Trachonitis, a Town called Cæſarea, with a Coloſſus as big as that of Jupiter Olympius. He entertained Agrippa at Jeruſalem, rather like an Emperor than an Inferior Prince. In 740 he went to Rome, to viſit the Emperor; and his two Sons, Alexander and Ariſtobulus, returning from Rome, where they had been brought up, were put to death by his Order, becauſe of the Calumnies raiſed upon them by Mariamne's Enemies. He likewiſe cauſed his Son Antipater to be ſlain, about five days before his own Death, becauſe he attempted his Eſcape. Which Cruelty made Auguſtus ſay, That it was better to be Herod's Hog than his Son. Nevertheleſs, he was a Prince of great Parts, and a good Politician. He cauſed Judas and Matthias, two famous Doctors of the Law, to be burnt alive, for ſtirring up ſome young Men to pull in pieces a Golden Eagle which he had placed over the Gate of the Temple. Many wonder that Joſephus, who relates all Herod's wicked Actions, doth not mention the Order he gave for killing all the Children under two Years of Age, when Jeſus Chriſt was born, An. Rom. 753. Macrobius being the only Man among the Profane Authors that relates it. God puniſhed this cruel Prince's Impiety by an offenſive and painful Diſeaſe, for he was eaten up by Worms with the greateſt Torment imaginable, inſomuch that he would have killed himſelf; but, inſtead of acknowledging this to be a Judgment of God, he continued his Cruelties to the very laſt moment, ordering that all the Perſons of Quality, whom he kept Priſoners, ſhould be murdered at the time of his Death; that all the conſiderable Families of the Nation ſhould mourn at his going out of the World: But his impious Orders were not executed. He died the firſt or the third Year of Chriſt, which was the 71ſt of his Life, the 40th of his Reign ſince he was declared King by the Senate, and the 37th ſince the taking of Jeruſalem, and the death of Antigonus his Competitor. He had nine or ten Wives, and left three Sons, Archelaus, Herod Antipas and Philip, his Succeſſors, St. Matth. cap. 2. Joſeph. lib. 14. 16, 17. Ant. Jud. The ſame Author, ſpeaking of his Death, ſays, That a burning heat, which did not appear outwardly, conſumed him within; that he had an inſatiable hunger, his Entrails were ulcerated, he was attack'd with a violent Cholick, his Nerves ſhrunk, his Body ſwelled, the Lice ſwarmed from his Secret Parts, and his Breath ſtunk ſo intolerably that none could come near him; ſo that every one looked upon it as a viſible Judgment of God.

HEROD Agrippa: See Agrippa.

HEROD, called Antipas, Son of Herod the Aſcalonite, ſucceeded as Tetrarch of Galilee. He built Tiberias in honour of Tiberius. Having divorced the Daughter of Aretas King of the Arabians, he forcibly took away and married Herodias, his Brother's Wife; to whoſe Anger, at a Feaſt, he ſacrificed St. John the Baptiſt, for reproving the Inceſt. Aretas, to revenge the Injury done to his Daughter, made War upon Herod, and often defeated him; which the Jews looked upon as a juſt Judgment, for the Death of John the Baptiſt. At laſt, being charged with Rebellion, Caligula baniſhed him to Lyons, An. Dom. 40. and Herodias following him, they died there miſerably. This Herod is the ſame to whom Jeſus Chriſt was ſent by Pilate, St. Matth. 27. Joſeph. lib. 17. and 18. Ant. 2. de Bell.

HEROD, King of Chalcis, Brother to Agrippa the Great. The Emperor Claudius gave him Power over the Temple, and the Sacred Treaſury, and the Right of diſpoſing of the High-Prieſthood; which continued in his Family to the End of the Jewiſh War. He died the 8th Year of Claudius's Reign, about the 48th or 49th of Chriſt. Joſeph. lib. 20. Ant. cap. 1. & 3. & 2. de Bell. cap. 11.

HERODES the Athenian, an Orator in the ſecond Century, famous for ſpeaking readily, and admirably well ex tempore; ſo that he was called the Greek Tongue it ſelf. Vignier & Volateran in Auth. Jul. Capitol. in vero. A Greek Monument of this Orator, or a Marble Column with a Greek Inſcription, publiſhed by Claud. Salmaſius with Notes, was found in this Age.

HERODIAN, a Grammarian of Alexandria, in the III Century, Son of Apollonius, ſurnamed Dyſcolus. He paſſed moſt of his Time at Rome, in the Courts of the Emperors; where he wrote his Hiſtory, conſiſting of 8 Books, from the Death of Antoninus Philoſophus, to Balbinus and Maximus Pupienus, murdered by the Army, in favour of young Gordian, whom they ſet up in his place. Photius ſays, that Herodian's Stile is inferior to few Hiſtorians. 'Tis from him that we have the Ceremonies of the Apotheoſis of the Roman Emperors. He wrote in Greek, and was firſt tranſlated by Angelus Politianus. Voſſius, Geſner.

HERODIANS, a Sect of Jews who believed that Herod was the Meſſias promiſed by the Prophets, becauſe the Scepter was departed from the Tribe of Judah when he came to the Crown. S. Epiphan. Hær. 20. S. Hierom contra Lucifer.

HERODIAS. See Herod-Antipas.

HERODIUM, a Caſtle built by Herod the Great, very ſtrong both by Art and Nature, being raiſed upon an Artificial Hill reſembling a Loaf, and adorned with round Towers: The Aſcent is by 200 Marble Steps; and within were the King's Apartments, magnificently built, both for ſtrength and beauty. At the Foot of this Hill were abundance of ſumptuous Buildings, worth ſeeing if it were only for the excellent Aqueducts, brought from afar. And the neighbouring Plain being full of Buildings, it reſembles a City round the Caſtle. Hoffman.

HERODORUS of Megara; ſmall of Stature, but ſtrong and lively. His Appetite was ſo great, that at one Meal he would deſtroy ſix Hampers of Bread, twenty Pound of Meat, and two Gallons of Wine. He uſed to play on two Pipes together, with ſuch ſtrength, that the noiſe was heard a great way: Inſomuch that 'tis ſaid, Demetrius's Soldiers were ſo moved by the ſound of his Pipes, that with much Facility they carried the great Machine called Helepolis, which before they could not move; and ſo took the Town of Argiva. Leon. Thuan. lib. 3. 13.

HERODOTUS of Halicarnaſſus, an Hiſtorian, called by Cicero the Father of Hiſtory, and the Prince of Hiſtorians; he lived about 450 Years before Chriſt. He compoſed, at Samos, his Hiſtory, in nine Books; which were ſo well liked, that the Name of the Nine Muſes were given unto them, after publick Reading in the Olympick Games. He is ſuppoſed to have been Author of Homer's Life; but many are of another Opinion. Cic. lib. 1. de Leg. Strab. &c.

HEROE, the Name given formerly to illuſtrious Men, otherwiſe called Demi-Gods, becauſe the Heathens believed that their great Actions exalted them unto Heaven after their Death. There were two ſorts of them; ſome pretended no higher than a Human Original, as Julius Cæſar, &c. but others of a Nobler Extraction, having a God or Goddeſs by Father or Mothers ſide, as Hercules. The Worſhip the Heathens paid theſe Heroes after their Death, was Inferior to that given to the Cœleſtial Gods. Aurea Carmina Pythag. &c.

HEROPHILUS, a Farrier and Impoſtor, who in Julius Cæſar's Time pretended to be C. Marius's Grandſon. He contrived his Deſign ſo well, that moſt of the City believed him: But Cæſar baniſhed him from Rome, whither he returned again after the Emperor's Death, and attempted the Ruin of the Senate, who impriſoned and cut him off. Val. Max. lib. 9. cap. 16.

HEROPHILUS, a famous Phyſician, who lived about the 53d Olympiad: Of whom Tertullian ſaith, That he had diſſected above 600 Men, to know the Structure of Human Bodies. Plin. lib. 11. cap. 37. Tertull. lib. de anim. cap. 10.

HEROU, Heropolis, a Town at the fartheſt part of the Arabian Gulf in Egypt, 90 Miles from Peluſium, and 60 from the Mediterranean Shoar. Baudrand.

HERRERA Tordeſillas (Anthony,) Son of Roderic de Tordeſillas, by Agnes de Herrera. He took his Mother's Name, as it is uſual in Spain. Philip II. made him Hiſtoriographer of the Indies, and Secretary of State. He wrote the General Hiſtory of the Indies in 4 Volumes, in Folio; beſides other Hiſtories. He died in 1625. Voſſius de Scient. Mathemat. cap. 44.

HERSE, Daughter of Cecrops King of Athens, who, with her Siſter, opened the Oſier-Basket wherein Erichthonius was ſhut up; at which Minerva being offended, ſhe made them diſtracted, ſo that they threw themſelves down from the top of a Tower. Apollodorus.

HERSILIA, Romulus's Wife, ſurnamed Horta. Tit. Liv. lib. 11. See Horta.

HERSTAL, or Heriſtel; and Hariſtal, a Place on the River Meuſe, near Liege, famous in the French Hiſtory, in the Reigns of the Kings of the ſecond Race. Thence Pepin was ſurnamed Heriſtel, either becauſe he was born there, as ſome ſay, or becauſe he took ſuch delight in it, that he built a ſtately Palace there, which was deſtroyed by the Normans: It is now but an ordinary Borough. Mabillon de re diplom.

HERSTELD, a Town of Weſtphalia in Germany, on the River Weſer; famous in Hiſtory, becauſe once Charlemaigne's Winter Quarters. The Epiſcopal See was there for a while, but reſtored, An. 799. to Paderborn. It formerly belonged to the Lords of Falckemberg, but to the Biſhops of Paderborn ſince 1608. Monumenta Paderburnenſia 1672.

HERTA, a pretended Deity, adored by the ancient Germans in the Iſland Rugen. Tacitus ſaith, That there was a ſacred Cart, covered with a Carpet, in the middle of a Wood, with a Prieſt; who knowing the time of the Goddeſs's coming, the Cart was drawn by wild Oxen to the Temple, the Prieſt following all the way with profound Reverence, and the Officers of the Ceremony, who were ordinary Servants, were thrown into the adjoining Lake as Victims. There is to be ſeen ſtill a thick Wood, where there is a Lake full of Fiſhes, becauſe Fiſher-men dare not fiſh in it. 'Tis reported, that ſome Years ago the Fiſhers having brought a Bark thither in order to fiſh, they could not find it the next Morning. However that be, many Authors affirm, that in Rugen, and almoſt all Germany, they offered formerly ſuch Sacrifices to the Goddeſs Herta. Holland. Emb. to Japan. Hoffman is of Opinion, that it was the Earth which the Germans worſhipped, under the Name Hertha; whence the Name Earth: And that Stonhenge in Salisbury-Plain, was a Temple dedicated to her, and therefore made to hang in the Air like the Earth. He ſays, they repreſented her like a Woman, having a Caſtle or Town upon her Head, becauſe the Earth ſupports ſuch; and drawn in a Chariot by wild Oxen, or Lions, becauſe the Mother of ſuch. Her Feſtivals being generally ſolemnized in the Night, hence he alledges came the Engliſh Cuſtom of reckoning by the Night, as Sevennight, Fortnight. He adds, That the Earth being worſhipped under ſeveral Denominations, as, Iſis, &c. hence that Name was given to ſeveral Engliſh Rivers; as, Thamiſis, &c.

HERTFORD: See Hartford.

HERULI, People that ſettled in Italy in the Vth Century, being part of the Barbarians who formed ſome States out of the Ruins of the Roman Empire. They went naked to Battel, only covering their privy Parts. They offered Human Sacrifices to their Gods, for that end killing their Old and Sick. They plunged themſelves in all manner of Impieties: And if their Women ſurvived their Husbands, they were hated by his Friends, and deſpiſed by all; which obliged them to kill themſelves. Some Authors bring them from Scandinavia: Others ſay, that they were Goths. Their King Odoacer diſpoſſeſſed Auguſtulus, An. 476. and having reigned 16 or 18 Years, was killed by Theodoric King of the Oſtrogoths. Jornandes Hiſt. Goth.

HERULI, Ancient People of Germany, towards the Baltick Sea, in the Country now called Mekelbourg, according to Ferrarius and Refuge in his Geogr. Hiſt. and according to Procopius, lib. 1. & 2. Hiſt. Vandal. beyond the Danube. They made the Lombards Tributary, but were afterwards repulſed by them. Part of them went to Italy with the Goths, and the other part ſettled near the Gepides, who forced them over the Danube, in the Emperor Anaſtaſius's Time, whoſe Army defeated them afterwards. Juſtinian coming to the Throne, gave them very good Lands to inhabit; and in gratitude they adhered to him, and embraced the Chriſtian Faith, leaving off their barbarous way of Living, but kept their natural Perfidiouſneſs, and deſire of other Mens Goods; which was no Crime amongſt them. Hugo Grotius ſaith, That after Trajan's Reign the Heruli, with thoſe of Rugia, paſſed into Scandia, now the Country of Schonen, beyond the Sound, but were turned out of it by the Danes, before the Reign of Juſtinian.

Pantaleon, in his Chronicle, affirms, That their King Gethes was baptized, An. 528. Miſtevon, one of his Succeſſors, a great Enemy to Chriſtianity, ravaged Saxony, but was baptized in his Old Age, and died at Bardovic, where the Town of Lunenburg now ſtands. Among other Children, he left Udon, from whom the Princes of the Vandals and of Meklenburg are deſcended; and Boguſlaus, of whom came thoſe of Pomerania. Spener Hiſt. Genealog.

HERULO (Bernard) Biſhop of Spoleto, made Cardinal in 1460. was very learned, and a great Juſticiary, but full of conceited Opinions, as we may judge by this Example: Fredrick, ſecond Son to Ferdinand King of Naples, being at Rome, all the Cardinals viſited him but Herulo; who ſaid, that a Prince of the Church ought not to viſit the ſecond Son of a King who is Tributary to the Pope. Garimbert.

HERVORDEN, an Imperial and Hanſe-Town of Weſtphalia, in the County of Ravensberg, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg, 10 Leagues E. of Munſter. In 1673. it was taken by the French, but ſoon after reſtored to the Duke. It has a Nunnery, whoſe Abbeſs is a Princeſs of the Empire.

HERZEGOVINA, a Province of Servia, belonging to the Turks, formerly named Chulmia, Chelmum and Zachulmia; whoſe chief Town is Narenza. It is the upper Part of the Kingdom of Boſnia, lying upon Dalmatia, towards the E. and W. It was formerly under Dukes of its own, of the Family of Coſſa in Venice.

HESDIN, or HESDINFERT, Lat. Heſdina, or Heſdinum, a fortified Town of Artois in the Low-Countries, on the River Canche, and Frontiers of Picardy, eight Miles North of Abbevile, formerly ſituated a League from the Place where it ſtands now, for it was ruined during the Wars between Francis I. and Charles V. and rebuilt by Emanuel Duke of Savoy, the Emperor's General, in 1554. in a place called Meſnil: Therefore named Heſdinfert, alluding to the old Motto of the Houſe of Savoy, F. E. R. T. It was yielded to the French by the Treaty of the Pyrenees. Guichardin deſc. des pais bas. Thuan.

HESIOD, a Greek Poet, born at Aſcra, a Borough of Bœotia. He was a Shepherd, and 'tis reported that he dreamt he was made Poet all on a ſudden. Pauſanias writes, That in his Time his Poems were kept in the Muſes Temple, written in Lead. He wrote one, intituled, Opera & dies; another, called, The Shield of Hercules; another, Of the Generation of the Gods; beſides others that are loſt; as, The Encomium of illuſtrious Women, &c. Some make him ancienter than Homer; ſome, his Contemporary; and ſome, younger. 'Tis reported that he was killed by the Locrians, and thrown into the Sea; but his Corps being carried to Land by ſome Dolphins, his Murtherers were diſcovered, and burnt. Plutarch.

HESIONE, Laomedon's Daughter, delivered from a Sea-Monſter by Hercules. Ovid. Met. lib. 11. fab. 11.

HESITANTS, Hereticks. See ACEPHALI.

HESPER, or Heſperus, Son of Japhet, and Atlas's Brother; ſetled in Italy, which he named Heſperia. His three Daughters, called Heſperides, kept a Garden in Mauritania, full of Golden Apples, which Hercules took away, having laid the Dragon aſleep: Others ſay, That they kept Sheep with Golden Fleeces, taken away by Hercules. Some think that the Heſperides were a rich Merchant of Miletus's Daughters, kept by a Man called Dragon, becauſe of their great Beauty; and that Hercules killed or bribed him, to get them away: The Greek Word Μῆλον, ſignifying an Apple, or a Sheep, has given occaſion to the Fable. Hygin. lib. 2. The Ancients named the Iſlands near Cape Verd in Africa, Heſperides, or Gorgades.

HESPERIA, a Name given by the ancient Geographers to Italy, becauſe of Heſperus; and to Spain alſo, becauſe of the Star Heſperus, that appears in the Evening, towards the Weſt, Spain being in the moſt Weſterly part of all the Continent; from whence it is called by the Poets, The Fartheſt Land, to diſtinguiſh it from Italy. Horatius, carm. 1. od. 36.

HESPERUS, Son of Cephalus, by Aurora, as fair as Venus, was changed into a Star, called Lucifer in the Morning, and Heſperus in the Evening. Hygin. lib. 2. Diodorus Siculus ſays, The Fable was occaſioned by Heſperus going up to Mount Atlas, to obſerve the Courſe of the Stars, whence he never came down again. Hygin.

HESSE, or HESSEN, Lat. Haſſia, a Country of Germany, with the Title of Landtgraviate: But we muſt obſerve, that this Country, known under the Name of Heſſe, doth not only contain the Landtgraviate of that Name, but many other Principalities and Lordſhips beſides; as, Weteravia, the Earldoms of Naſſaw, Solms, Hanaw, Viedt, Sein, Waldeck, Battembourg, &c. the Abbies of Fuldes and Hirsfeldt, now belonging to the Family of Heſſe-Caſſel; the Imperial Towns of Geldenhauſen, Freiberg, Wetſlar, &c. This Country has the Higher Saxony on the Eaſt, Weſtphalia on the North, Franconia and the Archbiſhoprick of Mentz on the South, and the Territories of Treves, Cologne, and the Dukedom of Berg on the Weſt. The Limits of Heſſe in particular are more contracted. It was divided about the latter End of the XVI*th.* Century into three Parts, belonging to three Branches of the Houſe of Heſſe, viz. Caſſel, Darmſtadt and Marpurg. This laſt Branch being ended, the moſt part of its Eſtate is gone to the Branch of Caſſel the eldeſt Family, which was confirmed to it by the Treaty of Munſter. This particular Heſſe has two Landtgraviates, one about the Rivers Eder and Loen, and the other about the Rivers Werf and Fuld. Marpurg on the River Loen is the chief Town of the Firſt, formerly the Reſidence of the Landtgrave of that Name. Caſſel on the River Fuld is the chief Town of the other Landtgraviate. All this Country is full of Mountains and Foreſts, nevertheleſs fruitful in Paſtures, Corn and Wine near the Rivers Rhine and Loen. The Inhabitants are laborious, skilful, good Soldiers and Proteſtants. The Houſe of Heſſe is one of the moſt Illuſtrious in Germany for its Nobility, Antiquity, and the great Men it has produced. It comes originally from the Houſe of Brabant. For Henry the magnanimous Duke of Brabant had two Sons, Henry the Gracious, by Mary of Suabia, and another Henry called The Child, or The Young by Sophia of Thuringia, Daughter of Lewis VI. of that Name, Landtgrave of Heſſe and Thuringia; and theſe Landtgraves, as it's ſaid, deſcended from Lewis II. Son of Charles of France Duke of Lorrain by Agnes of Vermandois, as may be ſeen under the Article of Thuringia. Henry the Firſt-born in 1245, called The Child or The Young, becauſe he was in the Cradle when his Father died, had his Mother Sophia's Eſtate, becauſe ſhe was Heir to her Brother Herman II. poiſoned in 1241, without Iſſue. The Princes of Heſſe are deſcended from this Henry. The Length of this Country from Eaſt to Weſt is 33 German Leagues and a half, and the Breadth from South to North 23 and a quarter.

The Succeſſion of the Landtgraves is thus.

Henry I. Born An. 1245. Died in 1303. He Married thrice and Match'd with the Houſes of Brunſwick, Cleve, and the Palatinate. And was ſucceeded by his Son

Othon who Married the Counteſs of Ravensberg, and died in 1329. Succeded by his Son

Henry II. who Married twice, and Match'd with the Houſes of Thuringia and Cleve.

Herman his Nephew Succeeded, being a Great Captain. He Married twice, and Matched with the Families of Naſſaw and Nuremberg. He died, An. 1414.

Louis his Son, called The Debonnaire, Succeeded. He refuſed the Imperial Crown offered him, An. 1440. He Married into the Houſe of Saxony, and died in 1453. Succeeded by his Son

Henry III. who Married the Counteſs of Catzenellebogen, died in 1483.

Louis his Brother, called The Gay, Succeeded. Married with the Family of Wirtemberg, and died An. 1471. He was Succeeded by his Son

William the Elder, a Cholerick and Quarrelſome Prince, who was Impriſoned and Deſpoiled of his Eſtates. He Married into the Family of Brunſwick, died An. 1515. and was Succeeded by his Brother

William the Younger, who Married twice, and Match'd with the Houſe of Vaudemont and Mecklenberg, and died An. 1509. His Son

Philip, called The Magnanimous, Succeeded, being one of the greateſt Princes in his Time. He was Born, An. 1504, near his Father's Camp, as beſieging Chamb, whence it was preſaged that he would be a Warriour. He eſtabliſhed the Proteſtant Religion in his Country, finiſh'd the War of the Boors, and re-eſtabliſh'd Ulric Duke of Wirtemberg. He was alſo one of the Chief in the Smalcaldian League which was concluded, An. 1531. for the Liberty of Germany; and tho' he was defeated at the Battle of Mulberg, Apr. 24. 1547. he continued firm againſt the Emperor Charles V. But a little after being perſwaded by his Son-in-law, the Elector of Saxony, and the Elector of Brandenburg, and deceived by the Emperor's Promiſe and Writ of ſafe Conduct, he went to wait upon the Emperor, who impriſoned him, alledging there was a Miſtake in the Writ, which did not ſecure him from Impriſonment, but only from Perpetual Impriſonment. However he was reſtored to his Liberty in 1552. and afterwards lived peaceably at home. The only memorable thing he did afterwards, was the ſending of Forces to aſſiſt the French Huguenots. He was of a great and high Spirit, extremely Bold and Daring, but not without Prudence and Conduct; he was a lover of Learning, and Founded the Univerſity of Marpurg. He had by the Duke of Saxony's Daughter

William, called The Sage, who was very Learned, and publiſhed ſeveral pieces of Aſtrology and other things. He had alſo a great ſhare in the Publick Affairs of Germany in his time. He Match'd with the Family of Wirtemberg, and died, An. 1592. His Son

Maurice a Learned and Valiant, but Unfortunate Prince, Succeeded. He quitted the Lutheran or Proteſtant Religion, and turn'd Calviniſt, had War with the Emperor Ferdinand II. who took Marpurg from him, An. 1623. and made him emit the Government to his Son William in 1626. He Married twice, the firſt time into the Family of Solms, and the ſecond time into the Family of Naſſaw Dillenburg. He died March 15. 1632. and was Succeeded by his Son.

William the Conſtant, who made a great Figure in the German War. He Married Amelia Elizabetha of Hainaw, the Heroine of this Age; for after the death of her Husband, Sep. 1637. ſhe ſupported by Arms the declining Government, augmented her Son's Eſtates by the Treaty of Munſter, raiſed Fortifications, &c. and died An. 1651.

William the VI*th.* her Son, having Married the Elector of Brandenburg's Daughter, died July 26. 1663. His Son he continued his Cruelties to the very laſt moment, ordering that all the Perſons of Quality, whom he kept Priſoners, ſhould be murdered at the time of his Death; that all the conſiderable Families of the Nation ſhould mourn at his going out of the World: But his impious Orders were not executed. He died the firſt or the third Year of Chriſt, which was the 71ſt of his Life, the 40th of his Reign ſince he was declared King by the Senate, and the 37th ſince the taking of Jeruſalem, and the death of Antigonus his Competitor. He had nine or ten Wives, and left three Sons, Archelaus, Herod Antipas and Philip, his Succeſſors, St. Matth. cap. 2. Joſeph. lib. 14. 16, 17. Ant. Jud. The ſame Author, ſpeaking of his Death, ſays, That a burning heat, which did not appear outwardly, conſumed him within; that he had an inſatiable hunger, his Entrails were ulcerated, he was attack'd with a violent Cholick, his Nerves ſhrunk, his Body ſwelled, the Lice ſwarmed from his Secret Parts, and his Breath ſtunk ſo intolerably that none could come near him; ſo that every one looked upon it as a viſible Judgment of God.

HEROD Agrippa: See Agrippa.

HEROD, called Antipas, Son of Herod the Aſcalonite, ſucceeded as Tetrarch of Galilee. He built Tiberias in honour of Tiberius. Having divorced the Daughter of Aretas King of the Arabians, he forcibly took away and married Herodias, his Brother's Wife; to whoſe Anger, at a Feaſt, he ſacrificed St. John the Baptiſt, for reproving the Inceſt. Aretas, to revenge the Injury done to his Daughter, made War upon Herod, and often defeated him; which the Jews looked upon as a juſt Judgment, for the Death of John the Baptiſt. At laſt, being charged with Rebellion, Caligula baniſhed him to Lyons, An. Dom. 40. and Herodias following him, they died there miſerably. This Herod is the ſame to whom Jeſus Chriſt was ſent by Pilate, St. Matth. 27. Joſeph. lib. 17. and 18. Ant. 2. de Bell.

HEROD, King of Chalcis, Brother to Agrippa the Great. The Emperor Claudius gave him Power over the Temple, and the Sacred Treaſury, and the Right of diſpoſing of the High-Prieſthood; which continued in his Family to the End of the Jewiſh War. He died the 8th Year of Claudius's Reign, about the 48th or 49th of Chriſt. Joſeph. lib. 20. Ant. cap. 1. & 3. & 2. de Bell. cap. 11.

HERODES the Athenian, an Orator in the ſecond Century, famous for ſpeaking readily, and admirably well ex tempore; ſo that he was called the Greek Tongue it ſelf. Vignier & Volateran in Auth. Jul. Capitol. in vero. A Greek Monument of this Orator, or a Marble Column with a Greek Inſcription, publiſhed by Claud. Salmaſius with Notes, was found in this Age.

HERODIAN, a Grammarian of Alexandria, in the III Century, Son of Apollonius, ſurnamed Dyſcolus. He paſſed moſt of his Time at Rome, in the Courts of the Emperors; where he wrote his Hiſtory, conſiſting of 8 Books, from the Death of Antoninus Philoſophus, to Balbinus and Maximus Pupienus, murdered by the Army, in favour of young Gordian, whom they ſet up in his place. Photius ſays, that Herodian's Stile is inferior to few Hiſtorians. 'Tis from him that we have the Ceremonies of the Apotheoſis of the Roman Emperors. He wrote in Greek, and was firſt tranſlated by Angelus Politianus. Voſſius, Geſner.

HERODIANS, a Sect of Jews who believed that Herod was the Meſſias promiſed by the Prophets, becauſe the Scepter was departed from the Tribe of Judah when he came to the Crown. S. Epiphan. Hær. 20. S. Hierom contra Lucifer.

HERODIAS. See Herod-Antipas.

HERODIUM, a Caſtle built by Herod the Great, very ſtrong both by Art and Nature, being raiſed upon an Artificial Hill reſembling a Loaf, and adorned with round Towers: The Aſcent is by 200 Marble Steps; and within were the King's Apartments, magnificently built, both for ſtrength and beauty. At the Foot of this Hill were abundance of ſumptuous Buildings, worth ſeeing if it were only for the excellent Aqueducts, brought from afar. And the neighbouring Plain being full of Buildings, it reſembles a City round the Caſtle. Hoffman.

HERODORUS of Megara; ſmall of Stature, but ſtrong and lively. His Appetite was ſo great, that at one Meal he would deſtroy ſix Hampers of Bread, twenty Pound of Meat, and two Gallons of Wine. He uſed to play on two Pipes together, with ſuch ſtrength, that the noiſe was heard a great way: Inſomuch that 'tis ſaid, Demetrius's Soldiers were ſo moved by the ſound of his Pipes, that with much Facility they carried the great Machine called Helepolis, which before they could not move; and ſo took the Town of Argiva. Leon. Thuan. lib. 3. 13.

HERODOTUS of Halicarnaſſus, an Hiſtorian, called by Cicero the Father of Hiſtory, and the Prince of Hiſtorians; he lived about 450 Years before Chriſt. He compoſed, at Samos, his Hiſtory, in nine Books; which were ſo well liked, that the Name of the Nine Muſes were given unto them, after publick Reading in the Olympick Games. He is ſuppoſed to have been Author of Homer's Life; but many are of another Opinion. Cic. lib. 1. de Leg. Strab. &c.

HEROE, the Name given formerly to illuſtrious Men, otherwiſe called Demi-Gods, becauſe the Heathens believed that their great Actions exalted them unto Heaven after their Death. There were two ſorts of them; ſome pretended no higher than a Human Original, as Julius Cæſar, &c. but others of a Nobler Extraction, having a God or Goddeſs by Father or Mothers ſide, as Hercules. The Worſhip the Heathens paid theſe Heroes after their Death, was Inferior to that given to the Cœleſtial Gods. Aurea Carmina Pythag. &c.

HEROPHILUS, a Farrier and Impoſtor, who in Julius Cæſar's Time pretended to be C. Marius's Grandſon. He contrived his Deſign ſo well, that moſt of the City believed him: But Cæſar baniſhed him from Rome, whither he returned again after the Emperor's Death, and attempted the Ruin of the Senate, who impriſoned and cut him off. Val. Max. lib. 9. cap. 16.

HEROPHILUS, a famous Phyſician, who lived about the 53d Olympiad: Of whom Tertullian ſaith, That he had diſſected above 600 Men, to know the Structure of Human Bodies. Plin. lib. 11. cap. 37. Tertull. lib. de anim. cap. 10.

HEROU, Heropolis, a Town at the fartheſt part of the Arabian Gulf in Egypt, 90 Miles from Peluſium, and 60 from the Mediterranean Shoar. Baudrand.

HERRERA Tordeſillas (Anthony,) Son of Roderic de Tordeſillas, by Agnes de Herrera. He took his Mother's Name, as it is uſual in Spain. Philip II. made him Hiſtoriographer of the Indies, and Secretary of State. He wrote the General Hiſtory of the Indies in 4 Volumes, in Folio; beſides other Hiſtories. He died in 1625. Voſſius de Scient. Mathemat. cap. 44.

HERSE, Daughter of Cecrops King of Athens, who, with her Siſter, opened the Oſier-Basket wherein Erichthonius was ſhut up; at which Minerva being offended, ſhe made them diſtracted, ſo that they threw themſelves down from the top of a Tower. Apollodorus.

HERSILIA, Romulus's Wife, ſurnamed Horta. Tit. Liv. lib. 11. See Horta.

HERSTAL, or Heriſtel; and Hariſtal, a Place on the River Meuſe, near Liege, famous in the French Hiſtory, in the Reigns of the Kings of the ſecond Race. Thence Pepin was ſurnamed Heriſtel, either becauſe he was born there, as ſome ſay, or becauſe he took ſuch delight in it, that he built a ſtately Palace there, which was deſtroyed by the Normans: It is now but an ordinary Borough. Mabillon de re diplom.

HERSTELD, a Town of Weſtphalia in Germany, on the River Weſer; famous in Hiſtory, becauſe once Charlemaigne's Winter Quarters. The Epiſcopal See was there for a while, but reſtored, An. 799. to Paderborn. It formerly belonged to the Lords of Falckemberg, but to the Biſhops of Paderborn ſince 1608. Monumenta Paderburnenſia 1672.

HERTA, a pretended Deity, adored by the ancient Germans in the Iſland Rugen. Tacitus ſaith, That there was a ſacred Cart, covered with a Carpet, in the middle of a Wood, with a Prieſt; who knowing the time of the Goddeſs's coming, the Cart was drawn by wild Oxen to the Temple, the Prieſt following all the way with profound Reverence, and the Officers of the Ceremony, who were ordinary Servants, were thrown into the adjoining Lake as Victims. There is to be ſeen ſtill a thick Wood, where there is a Lake full of Fiſhes, becauſe Fiſher-men dare not fiſh in it. 'Tis reported, that ſome Years ago the Fiſhers having brought a Bark thither in order to fiſh, they could not find it the next Morning. However that be, many Authors affirm, that in Rugen, and almoſt all Germany, they offered formerly ſuch Sacrifices to the Goddeſs Herta. Holland. Emb. to Japan. Hoffman is of Opinion, that it was the Earth which the Germans worſhipped, under the Name Hertha; whence the Name Earth: And that Stonhenge in Saliſbury-Plain, was a Temple dedicated to her, and therefore made to hang in the Air like the Earth. He ſays, they repreſented her like a Woman, having a Caſtle or Town upon her Head, becauſe the Earth ſupports ſuch; and drawn in a Chariot by wild Oxen, or Lions, becauſe the Mother of ſuch. Her Feſtivals being generally ſolemnized in the Night, hence he alledges came the Engliſh Cuſtom of reckoning by the Night, as Sevennight, Fortnight. He adds, That the Earth being worſhipped under ſeveral Denominations, as, Iſis, &c. hence that Name was given to ſeveral Engliſh Rivers; as, Thamiſis, &c.

HERTFORD: See Hartford.

HERULI, People that ſettled in Italy in the Vth Century, being part of the Barbarians who formed ſome States out of the Ruins of the Roman Empire. They went naked to Battel, only covering their privy Parts. They offered Human Sacrifices to their Gods, for that end killing their Old and Sick. They plunged themſelves in all manner of Impieties: And if their Women ſurvived their Husbands, they were hated by his Friends, and deſpiſed by all; which obliged them to kill themſelves. Some Authors bring them from Scandinavia: Others ſay, that they were Goths. Their King Odoacer diſpoſſeſſed Auguſtulus, An. 476. and having reigned 16 or 18 Years, was killed by Theodoric King of the Oſtrogoths. Jornandes Hiſt. Goth.

HERULI, Ancient People of Germany, towards the Baltick Sea, in the Country now called Mekelbourg, according to Ferrarius and Refuge in his Geogr. Hiſt. and according to Procopius, lib. 1. & 2. Hiſt. Vandal. beyond the Danube. They made the Lombards Tributary, but were afterwards repulſed by them. Part of them went to Italy with the Goths, and the other part ſettled near the Gepides, who forced them over the Danube, in the Emperor Anaſtaſius's Time, whoſe Army defeated them afterwards. Juſtinian coming to the Throne, gave them very good Lands to inhabit; and in gratitude they adhered to him, and embraced the Chriſtian Faith, leaving off their barbarous way of Living, but kept their natural Perfidiouſneſs, and deſire of other Mens Goods; which was no Crime amongſt them. Hugo Grotius ſaith, That after Trajan's Reign the Heruli, with thoſe of Rugia, paſſed into Scandia, now the Country of Schonen, beyond the Sound, but were turned out of it by the Danes, before the Reign of Juſtinian.

Pantaleon, in his Chronicle, affirms, That their King Gethes was baptized, An. 528. Miſtevon, one of his Succeſſors, a great Enemy to Chriſtianity, ravaged Saxony, but was baptized in his Old Age, and died at Bardovic, where the Town of Lunenburg now ſtands. Among other Children, he left Udon, from whom the Princes of the Vandals and of Meklenburg are deſcended; and Boguſlaus, of whom came thoſe of Pomerania. Spener Hiſt. Genealog.

HERULO (Bernard) Biſhop of Spoleto, made Cardinal in 1460. was very learned, and a great Juſticiary, but full of conceited Opinions, as we may judge by this Example: Fredrick, ſecond Son to Ferdinand King of Naples, being at Rome, all the Cardinals viſited him but Herulo; who ſaid, that a Prince of the Church ought not to viſit the ſecond Son of a King who is Tributary to the Pope. Garimbert.

HERVORDEN, an Imperial and Hanſe-Town of Weſtphalia, in the County of Ravensberg, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg, 10 Leagues E. of Munſter. In 1673. it was taken by the French, but ſoon after reſtored to the Duke. It has a Nunnery, whoſe Abbeſs is a Princeſs of the Empire.

HERZEGOVINA, a Province of Servia, belonging to the Turks, formerly named Chulmia, Chelmum and Zachulmia; whoſe chief Town is Narenza. It is the upper Part of the Kingdom of Boſnia, lying upon Dalmatia, towards the E. and W. It was formerly under Dukes of its own, of the Family of Coſſa in Venice.

HESDIN, or HESDINFERT, Lat. Heſdina, or Heſdinum, a fortified Town of Artois in the Low-Countries, on the River Canche, and Frontiers of Picardy, eight Miles North of Abbevile, formerly ſituated a League from the Place where it ſtands now, for it was ruined during the Wars between Francis I. and Charles V. and rebuilt by Emanuel Duke of Savoy, the Emperor's General, in 1554. in a place called Meſnil: Therefore named Heſdinfert, alluding to the old Motto of the Houſe of Savoy, F. E. R. T. It was yielded to the French by the Treaty of the Pyrenees. Guichardin deſc. des pais bas. Thuan.

HESIOD, a Greek Poet, born at Aſcra, a Borough of Bœotia. He was a Shepherd, and 'tis reported that he dreamt he was made Poet all on a ſudden. Pauſanias writes, That in his Time his Poems were kept in the Muſes Temple, written in Lead. He wrote one, intituled, Opera & dies; another, called, The Shield of Hercules; another, Of the Generation of the Gods; beſides others that are loſt; as, The Encomium of illuſtrious Women, &c. Some make him ancienter than Homer; ſome, his Contemporary; and ſome, younger. 'Tis reported that he was killed by the Locrians, and thrown into the Sea; but his Corps being carried to Land by ſome Dolphins, his Murtherers were diſcovered, and burnt. Plutarch.

HESIONE, Laomedon's Daughter, delivered from a Sea-Monſter by Hercules. Ovid. Met. lib. 11. fab. 11.

HESITANTS, Hereticks. See ACEPHALI.

HESPER, or Heſperus, Son of Japhet, and Atlas's Brother; ſetled in Italy, which he named Heſperia. His three Daughters, called Heſperides, kept a Garden in Mauritania, full of Golden Apples, which Hercules took away, having laid the Dragon aſleep: Others ſay, That they kept Sheep with Golden Fleeces, taken away by Hercules. Some think that the Heſperides were a rich Merchant of Miletus's Daughters, kept by a Man called Dragon, becauſe of their great Beauty; and that Hercules killed or bribed him, to get them away: The Greek Word Μῆλον, ſignifying an Apple, or a Sheep, has given occaſion to the Fable. Hygin. lib. 2. The Ancients named the Iſlands near Cape Verd in Africa, Heſperides, or Gorgades.

HESPERIA, a Name given by the ancient Geographers to Italy, becauſe of Heſperus; and to Spain alſo, becauſe of the Star Heſperus, that appears in the Evening, towards the Weſt, Spain being in the moſt Weſterly part of all the Continent; from whence it is called by the Poets, The Fartheſt Land, to diſtinguiſh it from Italy. Horatius, carm. 1. od. 36.

HESPERUS, Son of Cephalus, by Aurora, as fair as Venus, was changed into a Star, called Lucifer in the Morning, and Heſperus in the Evening. Hygin. lib. 2. Diodorus Siculus ſays, The Fable was occaſioned by Heſperus going up to Mount Atlas, to obſerve the Courſe of the Stars, whence he never came down again. Hygin.

HESSE, or HESSEN, Lat. Haſſia, a Country of Germany, with the Title of Landtgraviate: But we muſt obſerve, that this Country, known under the Name of Heſſe, doth not only contain the Landtgraviate of that Name, but many other Principalities and Lordſhips beſides; as, Weteravia, the Earldoms of Naſſaw, Solms, Hanaw, Viedt, Sein, Waldeck, Battembourg, &c. the Abbies of Fuldes and Hirsfeldt, now belonging to the Family of Heſſe-Caſſel; the Imperial Towns of Geldenhauſen, Freiberg, Wetſlar, &c. This Country has the Higher Saxony on the Eaſt, Weſtphalia on the North, Franconia and the Archbiſhoprick of Mentz on the South, and the Territories of Treves, Cologne, and the Dukedom of Berg on the Weſt. The Limits of Heſſe in particular are more contracted. It was divided about the latter End of the XVI*th*. Century into three Parts, belonging to three Branches of the Houſe of Heſſe, viz. Caſſel, Darmſtadt and Marpurg. This laſt Branch being ended, the moſt part of its Eſtate is gone to the Branch of Caſſel the eldeſt Family, which was confirmed to it by the Treaty of Munſter. This particular Heſſe has two Landtgraviates, one about the Rivers Eder and Loen, and the other about the Rivers Werf and Fuld. Marpurg on the River Loen is the chief Town of the Firſt, formerly the Reſidence of the Landtgrave of that Name. Caſſel on the River Fuld is the chief Town of the other Landtgraviate. All this Country is full of Mountains and Foreſts, nevertheleſs fruitful in Paſtures, Corn and Wine near the Rivers Rhine and Loen. The Inhabitants are laborious, skilful, good Soldiers and Proteſtants. The Houſe of Heſſe is one of the moſt Illuſtrious in Germany for its Nobility, Antiquity, and the great Men it has produced. It comes originally from the Houſe of Brabant. For Henry the magnanimous Duke of Brabant had two Sons, Henry the Gracious, by Mary of Suabia, and another Henry called The Child, or The Young by Sophia of Thuringia, Daughter of Lewis VI. of that Name, Landtgrave of Heſſe and Thuringia; and theſe Landtgraves, as it's ſaid, deſcended from Lewis II. Son of Charles of France Duke of Lorrain by Agnes of Vermandois, as may be ſeen under the Article of Thuringia. Henry the Firſt-born in 1245, called The Child or The Young, becauſe he was in the Cradle when his Father died, had his Mother Sophia's Eſtate, becauſe ſhe was Heir to her Brother Herman II. poiſoned in 1241, without Iſſue. The Princes of Heſſe are deſcended from this Henry. The Length of this Country from Eaſt to Weſt is 33 German Leagues and a half, and the Breadth from South to North 23 and a quarter.

The Succeſſion of the Landtgraves is thus.

Henry I. Born An. 1245. Died in 1303. He Married thrice and Match'd with the Houſes of Brunſwick, Cleve, and the Palatinate. And was ſucceeded by his Son

Othon who Married the Counteſs of Ravensberg, and died in 1329. Succeded by his Son

Henry II. who Married twice, and Match'd with the Houſes of Thuringia and Cleve.

Herman his Nephew Succeeded, being a Great Captain. He Married twice, and Matched with the Families of Naſſaw and Nuremberg. He died, An. 1414.

Louis his Son, called The Debonnaire, Succeeded. He refuſed the Imperial Crown offered him, An. 1440. He Married into the Houſe of Saxony, and died in 1453. Succeeded by his Son

Henry III. who Married the Counteſs of Catzenellebogen, died in 1483.

Louis his Brother, called The Gay, Succeeded. Married with the Family of Wirtemberg, and died An. 1471. He was Succeeded by his Son

William the Elder, a Cholerick and Quarrelſome Prince, who was Impriſoned and Deſpoiled of his Eſtates. He Married into the Family of Brunſwick, died An. 1515. and was Succeeded by his Brother

William the Younger, who Married twice, and Match'd with the Houſe of Vaudemont and Mecklenberg, and died An. 1509. His Son

Philip, called The Magnanimous, Succeeded, being one of the greateſt Princes in his Time. He was Born, An. 1504, near his Father's Camp, as beſieging Chamb, whence it was preſaged that he would be a Warriour. He eſtabliſhed the Proteſtant Religion in his Country, finiſh'd the War of the Boors, and re-eſtabliſh'd Ulric Duke of Wirtemberg. He was alſo one of the Chief in the Smalcaldian League which was concluded, An. 1531. for the Liberty of Germany; and tho' he was defeated at the Battle of Mulberg, Apr. 24. 1547. he continued firm againſt the Emperor Charles V. But a little after being perſwaded by his Son-in-law, the Elector of Saxony, and the Elector of Brandenburg, and deceived by the Emperor's Promiſe and Writ of ſafe Conduct, he went to wait upon the Emperor, who impriſoned him, alledging there was a Miſtake in the Writ, which did not ſecure him from Impriſonment, but only from Perpetual Impriſonment. However he was reſtored to his Liberty in 1552. and afterwards lived peaceably at home. The only memorable thing he did afterwards, was the ſending of Forces to aſſiſt the French Huguenots. He was of a great and high Spirit, extremely Bold and Daring, but not without Prudence and Conduct; he was a lover of Learning, and Founded the Univerſity of Marpurg. He had by the Duke of Saxony's Daughter

William, called The Sage, who was very Learned, and publiſhed ſeveral pieces of Aſtrology and other things. He had alſo a great ſhare in the Publick Affairs of Germany in his time. He Match'd with the Family of Wirtemberg, and died, An. 1592. His Son

Maurice a Learned and Valiant, but Unfortunate Prince, Succeeded. He quitted the Lutheran or Proteſtant Religion, and turn'd Calviniſt, had War with the Emperor Ferdinand II. who took Marpurg from him, An. 1623. and made him emit the Government to his Son William in 1626. He Married twice, the firſt time into the Family of Solms, and the ſecond time into the Family of Naſſaw Dillenburg. He died March 15. 1632. and was Succeeded by his Son.

William the Conſtant, who made a great Figure in the German War. He Married Amelia Elizabetha of Hainaw, the Heroine of this Age; for after the death of her Husband, Sep. 1637. ſhe ſupported by Arms the declining Government, augmented her Son's Eſtates by the Treaty of Munſter, raiſed Fortifications, &c. and died An. 1651.

William the VI*th*. her Son, having Married the Elector of Brandenburg's Daughter, died July 26. 1663. His Son

William the VII*th.* the preſent Landtgrave, born June 21. 1651. Succeeded, Magnorum haudquaquam indignus Avorum,having been lately one of the Confederate Generals upon the Rhine. The Titles of this Family are, Landtgrave of Heſſe-Caſſel, Prince of Hersfeldt, Count of Catzenellebogen, Dietz,Ziegenhaim, Nide, Lord of Schawembourg, Prince of the Holy Empire, &c. The Branch of Heſſe d' Armſtadt begun in George the Firſt of that Name, called The Debonnaire, Son of Philip the Landtgrave, Born An. 1547. This Family hath alſo Married with thoſe of Wirtemberg, Brandenburg, and other Great German Families. Cluvier. Bertius. Thuan.

HEXAMILI. The Iſthmus of Corinth which joins the Morea to the reſt of Greece, and is ſo called becauſe but ſix Miles over. Demetrius, Julius Cæſar, Caligula, Nero, and Herodes Atticus, all of them attempted to cut it through and make the Morea an Iſland, but in vain. An Emperor of the Greeks raiſed a Wall a-croſs it againſt the Turks, An. 1413, as the Venetians had done before, but Amurath II. threw it down in 1463, and Mahomet II. ruined it intirely, in 1465. to the great damage of the Venetians who had been at exceſſive Charges to fortify it, having raiſed thereon 136 Towers and three Caſtles, but in 1687, the Venetians reconquering the Morea, are in poſſeſſion of it again. Baudrand.

HEXAPLA, a Book containing the Hebrew Text of the Bible written in Hebrew and Greek Characters, with the Tranſlations of the 70, of Aquila, Theodotion and Symmachus in ſix ſeveral Columns. There was added to it a Fifth Tranſlation found at Jericho without the Author's Name, and a fixth named Nicopolitan, becauſe found at Nicopolis. Origen join'd to it a Tranſlation of the Pſalms, and ſtill the Book retain'd the Name of Hexapla, becauſe the 5*th.* and 6*th.* Tranſlation were only of certain Books of the Bible, and ſo the ſame Work of Origen had but ſix Columns in many places, eight in ſome, and nine on the Pſalms. Others are of Opinion that the two Columns of the Hebrew Text were not reckoned, and that the Tranſlation of the Pſalms was not to be conſidered as to give the Book a new Name. Du Pin nouvelle Bibliotheque des auteurs Eccleſiaſtiques. When the Edition contained only the Tranſlation of the 70, Aquila, Theodotion and Symmachus, it was called Tetrapla, and the name of Octapla was alſo given ſometimes to the eight Verſions, that is, the Collections containing the Tranſlations of Jericho and Nicopolis. Ruffinus ſpeaking of this great Work, affirms that Origen undertook it becauſe of the continual Controverſies between the Jews and Chriſtians; and the Jews citing the Hebrew, and the Chriſtians the Septuagint in their Diſputes, this Father was willing to let the Chriſtians underſtand how the Jews read the Bible, and to this purpoſe, he laid the Verſions of Aquila, and ſome other Greek Tranſlations before them, which had been made from the Hebrew; but few People being able to buy ſo great a Work, Origen undertook to abridge it, and for that purpoſe publiſhed the Verſion of the 70, to which he added ſome Supplements taken out of Theodotion's Tranſlation in the places where the Septuagint had not render'd the Hebrew Text, and thoſe Supplements were marked with an Aſteriſm. He added alſo a ſmall Line like a Spit, where the 70 had ſomething that was not in the Hebrew. S. Epiphan. Petav.

HILDEFONSUS: See Ildefonſus.

HILDEGARDE, an Abbeſs of the Order of St. Benedict, ſo famous in the XIth Century for her Learning and Piety, that ſhe was conſulted by the greateſt Men then living, as the Patriarch of Conſtantinople and the Pope. She died 1181, being 82 Years old, and left ſeveral Tracts. Voſſius, Geſner, Poſſevin, &c.

HILDERIC, named alſo Huneric, King of the Vandals, ſucceeded Thraſimond in 523, who obliged him by Oath not to recal the Biſhops he had baniſhed; but not to break his Promiſe, he recalled them before he had aſſum'd the Name of King. He reigned ſeven Years, and was dethroned by the Intrigues of Gilimer: Whom ſee.

HILDERSHAM (Arthur) a worthy Divine, was born in Cambridgeſhire and Bred in Chriſt's College in Cambridge, by the Father-ſide a Gentleman of an ancient Family, and deſcended by the Mother-ſide from the Royal Blood, being Great Grand-child to George Duke of Clarence, Brother to King Edward IV. During his Miniſtry he received many checks; and being not altogether conformable, he was firſt ſilenc'd by the High Commiſſion, and afterwards reſtor'd by the ſame Court in Archbiſhop Abbot's Time. He died in 1631. Fuller's Eccl. Hiſt.

HILDERSHEIM, a large well-built and fortified Town of the Lower Saxony in Germany, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan to Mentz, in Latin Hildeſia and Hildeſheimum. 'Tis a new City, and therefore not likely that it ſhould be the Aſcalingium of Ptolemy, as ſome ſay. It is ſituated on the River Innerſte, 7 or 8 Leagues from Zell, and is the only Town that has kept the Roman Catholick Religion, which is alſo followed in the Dioceſs; larger formerly, but good part of it is now poſſeſſed by the Duke of Brunſwick, ſince the German Wars. The Biſhoprick is at preſent but 10 or 12 Leagues long, between the Dukedom of Brunſwick, the Principality of Halberſtadt, and the Dukedom of Lunenburg. Cluvier. deſcrip. Germ.

HILELA, one of the three Families of Arabians that went over into Africa in 999; the two other were Eſquequin and Mabequil; all three made about 50000 Men, who diſperſed themſelves into the Eaſtern Barbary, and many other Provinces. Marmol. lib. 1.

HILL (Sir Roger) Knight, the ſixteenth in Deſcent from Sir John Hill of Hounſton, in the County of Somerſet, Knight; who died in the Reign of King Edward III. as appears by Office of Inqueſt, taken the 15 Edward III. Robert Hill, Eſq; Son to the ſaid Sir John Hill, married Iſabella, Siſter and Heir of Sir Thomas Fitchet, of the ſaid County, Knight, by whom he had the Mannor of Spaxton. Sir John Hill of Spaxton, in the County above-mentioned, Kt. Grandſon to Robert aforeſaid, marry'd Joan, Daughter and Heir of William Banneſter by Elizabeth his Wife, Daughter and Heir of Philip Walleſleigh, Eſquire. John Hill of Spaxton, Grandſon to Sir John laſt mention'd, married Cecily, Daughter and Heir of Robert Aſton Eſquire; whoſe Son, John Hill, married Cecily, Daughter and Co-heir of John Sturton Eſquire, and of Catharine, Daughter and Heir of Thomas Fitz-Payne. This John left his Eſtate to his Heir Robert, who marry'd Dorothy, Daughter and Heir of Thomas Flamock, in the County of Cornwal, Eſquire. William, Grandſon to Robert laſt mention'd, remov'd to Yard, in the ſaid County of Somerſet; whoſe Son, Roger Hill, Eſquire, in the Time of King Henry VIII. remov'd to Poundesford, in the County aboveſaid, whoſe Lineal Heir, Roger, of Poundesford, Eſq; (by Catharine his firſt Wife, Daughter to Giles Green, of the County of Dorſet, Eſq;) had Iſſue William, and (by Abigail his ſecond Wife, Daughter of Brampton Gurdon, in the County of Suffolk, Eſq;) Sir Roger firſt mention'd, who in 22 Car. II. ſettled at Denham in the County of Bucks, and, upon the Death of his Brother William without Iſſue, became poſſeſs'd of the Eſtate of Poundesford. He bears Gules, a Cheveron Engrail'd, Ermin, between three Garbs, Or.

HILLELS, the Name of many famous Jews, which has deceived ſeveral Learned Authors of our Age, who believed that the Manuſcript Copy of Hillel's Bible, which is ſometimes marked in the Hebrew-Manuſcript Bibles, was written by an ancient Hillel. Skickardus was of Opinion, that it was written at the Return from the Captivity. Cuneus attributes it to another Hillel that lived 60 Years before Chriſt. The Jews alſo made it very ancient; but Father Morin, who had ſeen ſome Manuſcript Bibles, where the different Readings of Hillel's Bible were marked in the Margent, makes it but 500 Years old: However, this Hillel ſeems not to be one of thoſe ancient Hillels, ſince he ſpeaks of things not talked of then. There is alſo a famous Talmudiſt named Hillel, oppoſed to another Doctor named Samai. Theſe two Doctors divided the Jews, each of them having his Diſciples. St. Hierom mentions him ſometimes in his Works. P. Simon Hiſt. Cret. Old Teſt.

HILLSBOROUGH, a Borough-Town in the North of Ireland; it ſtands in the Province of Vlſter and the County of Doun, about three Miles from Liſburn in Antrim.

HIMERA, now Termini, an ancient City of Sicily at the mouth of a River of its own Name. It was built by the Zancleans Inhabitants of this Iſland, and deſtroyed 240 Years after by Hannibal General of the Carthagenians; and about two Years after the Carthagenians built another near its Ruines, called Thermæ Himerenſes, from its hot Baths. Steſichorus the Poet was born here. Cluverius.

HINCMAR, Archbiſhop of Rheims in 845, was admired for his Learning by all the great Men his contemporaries; he is alſo praiſed for his vindicating the Rights of the Gallican Church againſt the Pope's Encroachments: But ſome pretend that he appeared too paſſionate in the Affair of Godeſchalcus, and even againſt his own Nephew. The laſt Edition of his Works were publiſhed by Sirmundus at Paris, 1645. Hincmar.

HINCMAR, Biſhop of Laon in the IXth Century, Hincmar Archbiſhop of Rheims's Nephew, took the Pope's part againſt the Gallican Church and his King. He was blamed for it, and Depoſed in the Synod of Douzi by his Uncle in 871, and ſent to Priſon, where his Eyes were put out; but Pope John VIII. re-eſtabliſhed him in the Council of Troyes in 878, and gave him half of the Biſhopricks Revenue. We have ſome of his Works in Bibliotheca Pat. S. Marthe Gall. Ch. Flodoard. lib. 3. Hiſt. Rhem.

HINDEN, a Market or Borough-Town of Mere Hundred in the S. W. of Wiltſhire, 80 Miles from London.

HINGHAM, a Market Town of Forehowe Hundred in the South of Norfolk, called Little London by the Neighbourhood. Its Market is on Saturday. It lies 80 Miles from London.

HINGHAM (Sir Oliv.) Governor of Aquitain in France for King Edward III. was born at Hingham in Norfolk. His Poſt was honourable but very difficult, being with a few Men, to make good a great Country againſt a fierce and numerous Enemy. When the French lay before Bourdeaux, the Citizens, to abuſe their hopes, ſet open their Gates, diſplaying the Golden Lilies on their Towers: Upon which the French thinking all was their own, ſecurely enter'd the City; but Sir Oliv. who lay ready, gave them ſuch Entertainment, that they loſt their hopes, and left more Blood behind them than they drank Claret in the Town. Hereupon he was made Knight of the Garter. He lies buried at Hingham under a Tomb finely wrought, with his Coat-Armour, having a crown'd Owl in an Ivy-buſh for his Creſt, lying upon a Rock beholding the Moon and Stars, all lively ſet forth in Metal, and 24 Mourners about his Monument.

Hingham (Jeffrey) an Engliſh Lawyer, living in the XIVth Century, to the Year 1380, was a Perſon of great Probity, and conſiderable Learning. He wrote, Summa Juris Civilis. Super Actione Vendentis. De Hæreditario Jure. Pitſ. de Script. Angl.

HINGHOA, a great City of the Province of Fokien in China, the chief City of the Territory that goeth under the ſame Name; 'tis full of ſtately Buildings. The Land abounds in Silk and Rice. Near the Lake Chung is a famous Palace, wherein the noiſe of a great Bell is heard before bad Weather. At the top of the Mountain of Hucung, is a Well named Hiai, wherein the Water riſes and falls like the Sea-tide. M. Martin deſcript. de la Chine. Thevenot.

HINKLEY, a Market Town of Sparkenhoe Hundred in the Weſt of Leiceſterſhire.

HIPATIA, or HYPATHIA of Alexandria, the Philoſopher Theon's Daughter, ſo famous in the Vth Century, both for her Vertue and great Learning in Philoſophy, that ſhe ſurpaſſed all the Philoſophers of her time. She wrote many Books, and was killed in a popular Sedition in 415. Voſſ. de Philol. & Scient. Math.

HIPATIUS, or HYPATIUS, the Emperor Anaſtaſius's Nephew, a great General, who endeavour'd to be Emperor after Juſtin's Death; but being overcome by Juſtinian, was put to Death in 527. Marcellin. Chron.

HIPERIUS, or HYPERIUS, (Andrew Gerard) an eminent Miniſter, born at Ipres in Flanders in 1511. His Father was a Lawyer, after whoſe Death he ſtudied at Paris, and afterwards travell'd into Germany, and was Divinity Profeſſor at Marpurg. He wrote ſeveral Tracts in Rhetorick, Philoſophy and Divinity, particularly De Formandis Sacris Concionibus. De recte Formando ſtudio Theologico. Melchior Adam in vit. Theol. German. Bale Dictio. Hiſtor. &c.

HIPPARCHIA, Crates's Wife, ſo paſſionately in love with his Wiſdom, that all the conſiderations in the World, as his Poverty, the ill-will of her Friends, and other rich Proffers, could not hinder her Marriage with him; for ſhe was ſo Learned her ſelf, that her ſtile was like that of Plato, ſaith Diogenes, lib. 6. She compoſed ſome Tragedies.

HIPPARCHUS, Son to Piſiſtratus a Tyrant of Athens, was very Learned, and highly eſteemed Learned Men; as Anacreon, for whom he ſent a Galley of 50 Oars. He was killed by Harmodius and Ariſtogeiton, to whom Statues were erected, for delivering their Country from Tyranny. Athenæus Ariſt. Rh. lib. 1.

HIPPARCHUS, a Mathematician born at Nice in Bithynia, according to Strabo; or at Rhodes, as Ptolemy will have it. He liv'd under the Reigns of Ptolemy Philometor and Eergetes, Kings of Egypt, to the Year of Rome 625. He wrote ſeveral Aſtronomical Obſervations and Commentaries upon Aratus, and was one of the greateſt Men of his time in Mathematical Studies. Pliny, lib. 2. cap. 26. Voſſius de Scient. Math. cap. 33. ſect. 4.

HIPPARUS, Prince of Orchomene in Bœotia, was devoured by his Mother Leucippe. 'Tis reported, that all the Women of that Province fell into ſuch a Fury, that they could not have their fill of Humane Fleſh; and to ſtop their Cruelty, Plays were Inſtituted, and Dedicated to Bacchus, where it was lawful to purſue with Swords, and kill them. Plutarch. Pauſanias in Bœot.

HIPPO, in French Bonne, and in Latin Hippo Regius, a Town of the Kingdom of Algier in Africa, named by the Africans Bled El Vgneb, ſaith Marmol. 'Tis famous for having been St Auguſtine's Epiſcopal See, who died there when the Town was beſieged by the Vandals. A Council was held here in 393.

HIPPOCRATES, The Prince of Phyſicians, Born in the Iſland of Cos, in the 80th Olympiad, and 294 of Rome. He drew his Original from Hercules and Æſculapius, and was the firſt Man that gave Precepts concerning Phyſick. He foretold a Plague that was coming out of Illyria; which made him ſo famous, that the Græcians honoured him as a God. He is commended by all the ancient Authors. Macrobius ſays of him, That he neither knew how to deceive, nor be deceived. Fabius Calvus tranſlated his Works into Latin, and they were printed at Rome 1532. Hierom Mercurialis printed them at Venice, in Greek and Latin, 1588. They were ſince printed at Francfort, 1598. and at Paris, in Latin, in 1668. in two Volumes, 8°. Plin. lib. 7. cap. 37.

HIPPOCRATES the Geometrician, lived An. Rom. 255. Pythagoras baniſhed him from his School, becauſe he took Money to teach Mathematicks.

HIPPOCRENE, a famous Spring of Bœotia, near Helicon, found out by Cadmus, the Reſtorer of Letters; which made the Poets ſay, That it was the Muſes Fountain, raiſed by the daſhing of Pegaſus's Hoof into the Ground. Ovid. Metam.

HIPPODAME, Daughter to Oenomaus King of Elis and Piſa. This Prince having learned from the Oracle, that he ſhould be killed by his Son-in-Law, to be rid of his Daughter's Suitors, declared to them, that he only was to have her who ſhould overcome him in the Race, and that the vanquiſhed was to die. This Condition he propoſed, becauſe he had ſuch excellent quick Horſes, that the Fable ſays, They were born of the Winds. But how hard ſoever the Propoſals were, ſuch was the Beauty of Hippodame, that they could not diſcourage all her Lovers; and 13 had already tried their Fate, and loſt their Lives withal, when Pelops, Tantalus's Son, proffered to enter the Liſts: But the cunning Suitor had before corrupted Myrtilus the King's Coach-man, who purpoſely forgot to put a Lock to the Axle-tree, ſo that the Wheel broke, and the King fell, and hurt himſelf mortally. He had however time enough to curſe Myrtilus, and to command his Son-in-Law not to let his Death go unrevenged, which he alſo did, for when the treacherous Coach-man came to ask Pelops the promiſed Reward, he ordered him to be thrown into the Sea. Ovid.

HIPPODAMIA, Briſeus's Daughter, raviſhed by Agamemnon from Achilles. Another of the Name, Oenomaus's Daughter above-mentioned, married to Pelops; for whoſe ſake Hercules defeated the Centaurs that would have raviſhed her on the Day of her Marriage. Another was Pyrithous's Wife. Ovid. lib. 12. Metam.

HIPPOLYTA, Queen of the Amazons, had a Son by Theſeus, call'd Hippolytus; Phædra his Mother-in-Law, happening to fall in Love with him, and finding him incompliant with her Inclinations, delated him to his Father, as if he had attempted her Honour. Theſeus being over credulous in the belief of this Accuſation, expell'd Hippolytus his Family; who, at his going off, had the misfortune to loſe his Life, by falling from his Chariot, and was metamorphos'd into a Star call'd Auriga. Ovid. Metam. lib. 15. Eurip. Hippol.

HIPPOLYTUS, Biſhop and Martyr, a famous Author in the III. Century, was put to death in 230. Some make him a Biſhop in Arabia, and ſome of Porto, near Rome. Euſebius, and St. Hierom, attribute many Books to him; all loſt, but one concerning Antichriſt, and ſome Fragments. There was a Statue erected to him, which being found in the Ruins of an ancient Church, was carried into the Vatican Library, An. 1551. He is repreſented ſitting in a Chair, whereon is engraven in Greek Letters, a Cycle of Eaſter-Day for 16 Years. Scaliger, Gruterus, Petav.

HIPPOMENES, Prætor of Athens, cauſed his Daughter to be devoured by an Horſe, becauſe ſhe was a Whore. Read Dion. Chryſoſtom. orat. 23. and Suidas. One of that Name was turned into a Lion. Ovid. Metam.

HIPPOMENES: See Attalanta.

HIPPON, another Town of the Kingdom of Tunis in Africa. See Epone.

HIPPONAX of Epheſus, Son of Proteus, by Protis, the reputed Author of that kind of Iambick Verſes called Scazons. 'Tis reported that Anthermus and Bupalus, both Painters, having drawn and hung out an Antick Picture of his, Hipponax, to be revenged, wrote ſo ſatyrically againſt them, that they hanged themſelves. Euſebius ſaith he lived in the 23d Olympiad; but Pliny, lib. 26. cap. 5. affirms, that it was in the 60th.

HIPPOPODES, People towards the Scythian Sea, ſo call'd from ἵππος, an Horſe, and ποῦς, a Foot, becauſe their Feet were like Horſes Feet. This Fable was invented becauſe of their nimbleneſs in running.

HIPPOS, a City on the Eaſt of the Sea of Tiberias, in the Half-Tribe of Manaſſeh; being deſolate, it was re-peopled by Pompey the Great. Auguſtus gave it to Herod the Aſcalonite; and the Jews deſtroyed it again in their Wars. Gul. Tyr. de bell. Sac.

HIRAM, King of Tyre, David and Solomon's Friend, 1 Kings and 2 Chron. He was Son of Abibalus, or Abimalus, and reigned 60 Years, and not 34, as Joſephus ſaith. He died A. M. 3044. Bazorus his Son ſucceeded him. Theoph. lib. 3. ad Autol.

HIRAM, a famous Architect, and Carver. See Chiram.

HIRPIANS, ancient Families of Italy, in the Country of the Falisks, called now the Church-Territory, near Rome, were famous among the Romans, becauſe, in the Yearly Sacrifices to Apollo, or, as others ſay, to Feronia, Goddeſs of the Woods, on the Mount Soracte, now Il monte di S. Oreſte, they went upon the Fire, and were not hurt therewith: Wherefore the Senate exempted them from going to the War, and from all Taxes, &c. Plin. Hiſt. Nat. lib. 7. cap. 1.

HIRPINS, a People amongſt the Samnites, whoſe chief Town was Hirpinum, now but a Village, named Arpaia, according to Leander. The Hirpins Country is what we now call the farthermoſt Principality, a Province of the Kingdom of Naples; whoſe chief Towns are Benevento, Conza, Avellino, &c. Strab. lib. 5.

HIRSCHFELD, Lat. Herosfelda, a ſmall Town of Heſſe, upon the River Fuld, five German Miles N. of the Town of Fuld, and ſeven S. of Caſſel. It had formerly a famous Abbey, and was an Imperial Town, under the Juriſdiction of its own Abbot; but, by the Treaty of Munſter, it was given to the Landtgrave of Heſſe Caſſel, with the Title of Principality.

HIRTIUS (Aulus) a Roman, Conſul with Vibius Panſa: They died both in a Fight againſt Mark Anthony, An. Rom. 711. The Learned attribute to Hirtius the eighth Book of the Commentaries of the War againſt the Gauls, that goes under the Name of Julius Cæſar. Some attribute to him alſo the Commentaries of the Wars of Alexandria and Spain. Suet. in Cæſar. cap. 53.

HISIAM, Caliph of the Sarazens, ſucceeded his Brother Gezid II. on condition that Valid, Gezid's Son, ſhould reign after him. He was ſo prodigal, that he kept 700 Wardrobes full of the richeſt Cloaths in the World. In his Travels he was always followed by 600 Camels, loaded with his own Cloaths and Linen; and after his Death, 12000 fine Shirts were found in his Wardrobe; but Valid allowed nothing to be taken out, not ſo much as a Sheet to bury him in; ſo that his Valet de Chambre was forced to wrap him up in a pitiful Linen Cloth. This Hiſiam cauſed John Damaſcene's Right Hand to be cut off, for a treaſonable Letter which he was falſely accuſed of writing to the Emperor Leo the Iſaurian. See St. John of Damaſcus. Maimbourg Hiſt. des Iconoclaſtes.

HISPAHAN: See Iſpahan.

HISPANIOLA, or San Domingo, or S. Dominick, an Iſland of the Northern Sea, in America, between Cuba, Jamaica and Porto Rico. It was called Ayty and Quiſqueya by the Natives, when Chriſtopher Columbus diſcovered it in 1492. 'Tis near 400 Leagues round, 150 long, 60 broad in the wideſt Parts, and 30 in the narroweſt; extending from 299 to 307 Degrees of Lon. and between 18 and 20 Lat. as the Spaniards ſay. Some affirm, That the Air is very temperate there: Others ſay, that the Heat is extraordinary in the Morning, but leſſened in the Afternoon, by a Sea-Wind named Viraſon. The Soil is fruitful, well ſtocked with Horſes, Oxen, Kine and Hogs, &c. which they hunt and kill for their Skins, leaving the Fleſh to the Dogs. The Spaniards ſtocked the Iſland with Cattel, for there were but few Four-footed Beaſts before their coming, except one ſort called Hutias, which reſembled a Rabbet, and a kind of Dog, good enough for Hunting, but does not bark. There are ſome Snakes and Serpents, but without Venom: And what is reported of a kind of Beetle, named Cucuyo, is wonderful; their Eyes and Sides, where their Wings are, give as much Light as a Candle; ſo that one may read or write in the Night at its Light. The Paſture-Grounds are ſpoiled by ſome Trees named Guajabes, which bear Fruit like an Apple, with red Meat, and full of Seeds, which drop, and grow up ſpeedily. Sugar-Canes and Ginger have a wonderful Product there. Herbs and Carrots grow fit for eating in 16 Days. And many Gold and Silver Mines are found in the Province of Cibao, but ſo much neglected for want of Labourers, that the Inhabitants made uſe of no other but Braſs-Money. The Natives were numerous, but moſt of them killed by the Spaniards, or deſtroyed in the Wars. The Country was divided formerly into ſeveral little Provinces, governed by ſeveral Princes; and now 'tis divided into five Cantons, or Parts, viz. Bainora, Cubaho, Cajaba, Caſſimu and Guacayatima. The chief Town in the Iſland is in Caſſimu, and was named at firſt Nova Iſabella, and now S. Dominick, or San Domingo. 'Tis adorned with fine Building, and is the Reſidence of the Governor and the Archbiſhop. There are not above 2000 Inhabitants in all the Iſland, either Spaniards, Negroes, or Mulatta's. Sir Francis Drake took San Domingo in 1586. and a Month after left it again, having received a good Sum of Money for it. The other remarkable Towns are the Conception de la Vega, built by Chriſtopher Columbus, 20 Leagues off San Domingo, with a Biſhoprick. San-jago de los Cavalleros, ſituated in a ſweet Place: Puerto de la Plata, with a ſtrong Caſtle. There are many Iſlands about Hiſpaniola. Near one of them, named Navaza, which is between Jamaica and Hiſpaniola, is a wonderful Spring, which, tho' half a League in the Sea, from the Land, and about 16 Foot deep Water, nevertheleſs riſes with ſo much ſtrength, that they draw freſh Water out of it, in the middle of the Salt, De Laet. Hiſt. de Nov. Monde. There are ſeveral Monaſteries in this Iſland, one College with 4000 Ducats Revenue, and an Hoſpital with 22000. They Coined Money, and had a great Trade in the former Age; but ſince the Diſcovery of New Spain, it is abated. The Emblem which Sir Francis Drake found painted on the Wall, in the Governor's Houſe, is very remarkable, being an Horſe leaping out of the Globe, with this Motto, Non ſufficit orbis. De Laet. Hiſt. du noveau monde.

HISTRIA, or ISTRIA, an Italian Country, bounded by the Adriatick Sea on the E. W. and S. and Friuli on the N. It was a free Country, till finally ſubdued by the Venetians, An. 1190. having ſeveral times ſince endeavoured to ſhake off their Yoke, but in vain. It is 200 Miles in compaſs, and ſupplies the Venetians with Materials for Houſes and Ships; but the Air is very unwholſome, except at Juſtinopolis, and ſome few other Places. It is ſeparated from Germany by the Alps; and the Northern part of it belongs to the Emperor.

HITCHING, a Market Town of Hitching Hundred, in the Weſt of Hertfordſhire, 30 Miles from London.

HITHE, or HYTHE, a Market, Sea-Port, and Borough-Town of Heane-Hundred, in the South-Eaſt Parts of Kent. 'Tis one of the Cinque-Ports, lies from Dover Weſt-South-Weſt, and not far from Sangate-Caſtle. Its Haven is none of the beſt.

HIWORTH, or HIGHWORTH, a Market Town of Hiworth Hundred, in the North Eaſt Parts of Wiltſhire.

HOANGT, Third King or Emperor of China, ſucceeded Xinnung, and reigned 100 Years; which is likely enough, ſince Men lived then 200 Years. His Name is famous in China, becauſe he invented a Cycle of 60 Years; by which they have ever ſince regulated their Chronology. He made good Laws, and enlarged his Dominions. See Chineſe-Cycle. Paul Pezron antiq. de temps.

HOBBS (Thomas) born at Malmsbury in Wiltſhire, Apr. 5. 1588. was bred in Magdalen-Hall at Oxford, commenced Batchellor of Arts in 1607, and afterwards travelled with the Lord Cavendiſh, Grandfather to the preſent E. of Devon. He delighted much in the Greek and Latin Poets and Hiſtorians, particularly Thucydides, which he tranſlated to expoſe the Athenian Democracy. He travelled again with Sir Gervaſe Clifton's Son in 1631, but was recalled by the E. of Devon, to be Tutor to his Son, the late Earl; with whom he alſo travelled as Governor; and returned in 1637, and perceiving things tending to a Civil War, withdrew to Paris, where he wrote his Book De Cive, and the Leviathan; the latter of which was printed at London, and ſtartled moſt Divines, both Proteſtant and Popiſh, ſetting abundance of Pens at work againſt him. During his ſtay at Paris, he taught the Prince of Wales, afterwards Charles II. Mathematicks; and being called home after the Reſtauration, he was entertained by the E. of Devon, and publiſhed his Books, De Corpore & de Homine. King Charles II. who delighted in his Company, gave him a Penſion of 100 l. per Annum, and kept his Picture in his Cloſet. He was alſo famous for his Leviathan, &c. in Foreign Parts, and upon that Account viſited by Foreigners of Quality, when in England; particularly by the D. of Tuſcany. 'Tis generally agreed that he was a good Linguiſt, a great Philoſopher, and a Man of extraordinary Parts: But his Book called the Leviathan was condemned by the Parliament, in their Bill againſt Atheiſm and Profaneneſs, Octob. 1666. And the Convocation, by their Judgment, July 21. 1683. condemned both that, and his Book De Cive, as pernicious and damnable; and thereupon cauſed them to be burnt. His Behemoth contains things againſt Religion and Learning; and his other Writings are reckoned contrary to Divinity, Philoſophy and Policy; and yet his Followers are not aſhamed to ſay, (becauſe he was born on Good-Friday) That as our Saviour went out of the World on that Day, to ſave the Men of the World; ſo another Saviour came into the World that Day, to ſave them; or to that effect. He was at laſt ſeized with a Strangury, and then a Palſie, which deprived him both of Senſe and Reaſon ſeven Days e'er he died. The E. of Devon's Chaplain ſaid, he received the Communion ſeveral times, with ſeeming Devotion; but at his Death neither deſired that, nor the company of any Miniſter, which they impute to his want of Underſtanding. When the Phyſicians told him that his Diſeaſe was incurable, he ſaid, That he ſhould be glad to find an Hole to creep out of the World at. He died at Hardwick, Decemb. 4. 1679. at Ten at Night, in the 91ſt Year of his Age.

HOCEN, Eldeſt Son of Ali, Mahomet's ſecond Succeſſor according to the Sect of the Perſians, who believe that Mahomet's Succeſſion did belong to Ali, his Nephew and Son-in-Law, and not to Abubeker, as the Turks ſay. Huſſein was the ſecond Son of Ali, and killed in the Battel of Kerbella, near Babylon. Theſe two Brothers, Hocen and Huſſein, are much reverenced amongſt the Perſians, who keep their Holy-Day every Year, with great ſolemnity, till the Evening, the People crying out Huſſein Hocen, Hocen Huſſein. The manner of ſolemnity is thus: The People, divided into ſeveral Companies, march by the Gallery where the King is ſet to ſee the Ceremony: Each Company has a Litter, with a Coffin, carried by eight Men, and covered with Sattin, embroider'd with Gold: Before each are three Led-Horſes, whoſe Houſing is of the ſame, to repreſent the Horſes on which the Princes rode: The King graces the ſolemnity, by ſhewing the Elephants which have been preſented him, all covered with ſuch Houſing; an Officer, with the Royal Standard, being mounted upon one of them: The Elephants ſalute the Sophi by putting their Proboſcis to the Ground, and ſtradling out with their Feet: After which, the Doctor of the Law diſcourſes on the death of Hocen and Huſſein, and the Sophi preſents him with a magnificent Suit. Tavernier.

HOCHELAGA, the chief Town of Canada, when firſt diſcovered by the Europeans; encompaſſed with three Timber Ramparts, above two Rods high, ſharp at the top; having only one Gate, well fortified with Piles and Bars, after their manner. It contained 50 great Houſes, in the midſt of every one a Court, and there a place for their Fire. It was ſituated in the pleaſanteſt Place of the Country, far within the Land; and the Seat of their Kings, whom they uſed to carry on their ſhoulders, ſitting on a Carpet of Skins. Heylin, lib. 4. pag. 92.

HOCHIEN, a Town of China, in the Province of Pecken, having 17 Towns under it. Baudrand.

HOLDERNESSE, a Cape on the York-ſhire Coaſt, which lies N. of Saltfleet, a Town in Lincolnſhire. It lies a great way into the Sea, and hath many Towns on it. King James I. created John Ramſey Viſcount Hadington in Scotland, E. of Holderneſſe, and Baron of Kingſton upon Thames, An. 1620. Prince Robert had alſo this Title from King Charles I. in 1643. And 'tis now enjoyed by Conyers d'Arcy, by Creation of Charles II.

HOLEN, Lat. Holis, a Biſhop's See on the North of Iſeland, ſeated in a narrow and deep Valley, Lat. 65. 44. The ſhorteſt

Day in the Winter is two hours in this place. It was made a Biſhoprick in 1106. and Hialter, the 22d Biſhop, turned Proteſtant and Reformer in 1552. Hackluit.

HOLLAND, the chief of the United Provinces, with the Title of Earldom. The Name is generally given to all the other, and ſeems to come from theſe two Teutonick Words, Hol, and Land; that is, Hollow Ground, becauſe of the multitude of Rabbit-holes in ſeveral Places. However, 'tis a Peninſula, having the Sea on the Weſt, the Eaſt, and the North; and the River Meuſe, Brabant, and Biſhoprick of Utrecht on the South. It was formerly called Batavia, from Batton, King of the Catti's Son. The Soil is ſo ſoft and Mooriſh, that it cannot be plowed: In many Places there are nothing but Meadows, which the Sea would overflow if it were not for the Banks, which are carefully raiſed and kept: The chief of thoſe Banks are, that of Yſſel, the Meuſe, Sparendam, Medemblick, &c. The beſt part of North-Holland has been taken out from the Sea; and we may ſay with Scaliger, that this Province is of it ſelf barren, and yet abounds in all things. The Air is rather cold than hot. 'Tis divided into Southern, from Zeland Brabant and Utrecht, to the Bank of Sparendam; and Northern, from Amſterdam, to the Northen Sea. 'Tis about 60 Leagues in compaſs, though very narrow in ſome Places. There are in this Province 29 walled Towns, and many others formerly walled, which enjoy their Privileges ſtill; beſides 400 Villages: 18 of thoſe Towns ſend Deputies to the States. Holland was formerly erected into an Earldom by Charles the Bald, for Thierry D. of Aquitain, who was the firſt Earl, as Philip II. was the laſt: The States General having rejected him, and embraced the Proteſtant Religion, undertook the Government. The Dutch are naturally of good Humour, Laborious, Cunning Politicians, deſirous of Riches, and ready to undertake any thing for Gain or Liberty. They are grown very rich, and have had many learned Men amongſt them in the laſt Century; to which the Univerſity of Leyden hath not a little contributed. They have ſeveral kind of manufactures, and chiefly of Woollen and Linen Cloth. Their Trade of Butter, Milk, Cheeſe and Salt-Fiſh is great, but that of Herrings is moſt conſiderable. William Bueckeld was the firſt who found out the way to ſalt Herrings; for which Charles V. had the Curioſity to ſee his Tomb at Biervliet, where he was buried in 1347. Their Eaſt and Weſt-India Companies bring in Commodities, which they afterwards tranſport all over Europe. The vaſt number of Rivers and Canals are a great Encouragement to Trade, and a good Diverſion in Winter, to glide on with Scates, or in Sledges; ſome of which are hurled by Men, and others drawn by Horſes. Their Houſes are extraordinary neat: Their Fuel, Turfs; their Lime made with Shells. They love to drink and feaſt with their Friends; but for their private Families, they buy an Ox, or half an one, about November, according to their Number, which they ſalt, and dry in their Chimneys for Summer, and then eat it with Butter and Vinegar. In Winter they boil a piece of Beef every Sunday, which ſerves for the whole Week; with Fiſh, Milk, and all kinds of Garden-ſtuffs. All theſe Things pay Taxes, or Exciſe: And 'tis obſerved, that there is not a Cow of nine Years old ſold for 20 Crowns, but what has already paid 22 Crowns Exciſe; and that every Diſh of Meat pays the Exciſe above 20 times before it comes to the Table. The Exciſe is laid on Salt, Fruit, Wine, Servants; and very often they pay one or two in the Hundred for their Eſtates: And perhaps there is no Country in the World where the Inhabitants pay more Taxes, and live ſo comfortably, becauſe of their Trading, Sobriety, and laborious Genius. This Country had 35 Counts, from An. 863. that Thierry was created their firſt Count, to An. 1558 that Philip II. and III. of Spain were their laſt. Adrianus Junius deſcrip. Batav. Strada. Grotius de bello Belgico. Ortelius. Mercator, &c.

Of the Government of Holland.

Formerly ſix Towns only ſent Deputies to the States, viz. Dort, Harlem, Delft, Leyden, Amſterdam and Goude; but William I. Prince of Orange increaſed their Number to 18. adding Rotterdam, Gorcum, Schiedam, Schoonhoven, Briel, Alcmar, Hoorne, Enchuyſen, Edam, Monnikendam, Medemblick, and Purmerend. This laſt, tho' but a ſmall Town, has as many Votes in the States of the Province, as Amſterdam; as the Province of Over-Yſſel has as many Votes in the General States, as the Province of Holland. It was, as it is reported, a piece of Policy in the Prince of Orange, to diminiſh the Power of the Nobility, and to balance the Authority of great Towns, by making the little ones equal with them, which are eaſier to prevail with: The Nobles, all together, have but one Vote, and ſend 12 Deputies out of their Body, to the States of the Province; but they are nevertheleſs very conſiderable in the Government, becauſe intruſted with the beſt Places, Civil and Military, and the Church-Revenues all ſeized on by the State upon the Change of Religion. They alſo have the firſt Vote in the Aſſembly of the States, and Power to name a Counſellor in the two great Courts of Judicature. The Penſioner of Holland, who is a learned Man in the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Country, and able to make Speeches upon publick Occaſions, ſits next to the Deputies in all the Aſſemblies of the Province: He propoſeth the Affairs, receiveth Advices, and puts the Reſolutions taken into a Method. The Deputies of the Towns are choſen out of the Magiſtrates and Senators; their Number is uncertain, according to the Cuſtoms and Pleaſures of the Towns; becauſe each Town has but one Vote. The States of Holland meet in ſome Halls of the Palace at the Hague four Times a Year conſtantly, viz. in February, June, September and November: When they meet for extraordinary Occaſions, they name it a Committee, or the Council of Commiſſioners. Beſides the States, and the Council, there is alſo a Chamber of Accounts in the Province, to take care of the Domain and Revenue of Holland: The Civil Juſtice of the Country is compoſed of two Courts of Judicature; whereof, one is named The Great Council, and receives the Appeals from other Courts in caſes of Property. Becauſe under the Name of Holland, all the United Provinces are often comprehended, it is fit to obſerve here, that this kind of Commonwealth, compoſed of the ſeven Provinces above named, holds three ſeveral Aſſemblies, which are called, The States General, The Council of State, and The Chamber of Accounts. The States-General are compoſed of the Deputies of each Province: The Council of State repreſents all the Commonwealth, in the Abſence of the States-General; and is compoſed of the Deputies of all the Provinces, but not like the States-General, for a limited Number is ſent thither; from Holland, three; from Guelderland, Zeland and Utrecht, two each; from Frizeland, Groningen and Over-Yſſel, one each; which make twelve in all: And when they vote, their Perſons are reckoned, and not the Provinces; contrary to what is done in the States-General, where all the Deputies of a Province have never above one Vote, though they ſhould be ſix or 12 Perſons, their Number depending on the Provinces Pleaſure. The Council of State executes all the Reſolutions taken by the States-General, and propoſeth to them the beſt ways to raiſe Soldiers and Money. It takes care of the Militia, and of the Fortifications; raiſeth Contributions in the Enemy's Country, grants Paſſes, orders the Government of Places conquered ſince the Union, diſpoſeth of all the Money deſigned for extraordinary Affairs, rules the Expences of the State according to the Determination of the States-General. As for the Chamber of Accounts, it is compoſed of two Deputies of each Province; who are changed once in three Years. Beſides theſe Aſſemblies, there is alſo the Council of Admiralty: When the States-General have reſolved to ſend out a Fleet to Sea, this Council regulates all Affairs. And it is divided into five Aſſemblies, whereof three are in Holland, viz. The firſt at Amſterdam, the ſecond at Rotterdam, and the third at Hoorne; the fourth at Middleburg in Zeland, and the fifth at Harlingue in Frizeland. Each of theſe Aſſemblies is compoſed of ſeven Deputies, viz. Four of the ſame Province, and three named by other Provinces. The Admiral is always Preſident in thoſe Aſſemblies. Beſides his Allowance, he has his ſhare in all Prizes. The Stadt-holder or Governor of Holland, is General of the Army, and Lord Admiral, and diſpoſeth of all Places of Military Truſt. The States of each Province have Abſolute Power within their own Juriſdiction: They impoſe Taxes, &c. Nevertheleſs, being united with the other ſix Provinces, to form one Commonwealth, repreſented by the States-General, theſe laſt alone have Power to make Peace War and Leagues with Foreigners. This Diviſion was made at the firſt ſetling of the Commonwealth, to which the Prince of Orange contributed much. Then the States of each Province took Poſſeſſion of the Sovereign Rights belonging to the Kings of Spain, and preſerved to William of Naſſaw all the Power he had as Governor and Vice-roy of thoſe Provinces. Sir Will. Temple's Preſent State of the United Provinces. The Governor and Stadt-holder is not only General by Sea and Land, but Chief Juſtice; and has Right to chuſe moſt of the Magiſtrates in the Towns of Holland, Zeland and Over-Yſſel. Upon Nomination every Year, they name treble the Number, and he chuſes one third of them. His Allowance from the States is 10000 Livres a Month; and when he is with the Army he receives 40000 Livres more, beſides 100000 Livres for ſecret Services, which he can diſpoſe of without accounting. He directs the Army's Motions, though he ought not to undertake any thing conſiderable without the States Conſent. He has a conſiderable Eſtate, and many Privileges. Boxhornius's *Status fœderat. HOLLAND, or NEW-HOLLAND, a Country of Terra Auſtralis, diſcovered by the Dutch in 1644. 'Tis North of New-Guinea and the Molucca-Iſlands, and is commonly divided into the Country of Concord, Dieſmens and Pierre Nuits, &c. All little known.

NEW-HOLLAND, or NEW-NETHERLANDS, is a Country in the Northern America, near the Sea of Canada, S. W. of New-England, and E. of the Iroquois, between Virginia and New-France. The Dutch gave this Name to it, and had Towns there, called New-Amſterdam, and New-Naſſaw. But the Engliſh poſſeſs it ſince 1665.

NEW-HOLLAND, a little Country of Moſcovia, named thus by the Dutch. 'Tis on the Northern Ocean, near the Streights of Weigats, named The Streights of Naſſaw.

HOLLAND, a Diviſion of Lincolnſhire, in the South-Eaſt Parts: It lies towards the Sea, betwixt the Waſhes of Lincolnſhire Northward, and Cambridge and Northamptonſhires Southward: And 'tis called Holland, Hoyland, or Hayland, for the Plenty of Hay growing therein, or perhaps from its reſemblance to Holland in the Low-Countries. It is noted for giving the Title of Earl jointly with that of Warwick, to the Right Honourable Edward Rich, the preſent E. of Warwick and Holland.

HOLLAND (Philemon) was bred at Trinity-Colledge in Cambridge, where he commenced Doctor of Phyſick, and fixed himſelf in Coventry: A Man of ſpecial Note for his numerous Tranſlations, eſpecially of Hiſtory-Books; by whoſe Number one would think he had done nothing elſe, which occaſioned this Deſcant upon him.

> Holland with his Tranſlations doth ſo fill us,
> He will not let Suetonius be Tranquillus.

He Tranſlated Livy, Pliny's Natural Hiſtory; Plutarch's Morals; Ammianus Marcellinus; the Geographical part of Speed's Theatre; of Great Britain into Latin; Zenophon's Cyro-Pædia. Suetonius; but the moſt eminent of his Tranſlations, is Camben's Britannia; which, conſidering his material Additions to the Latin Original, is to be counted ſomething more than a Tranſlation: And that which is obſervable of him, is, one Pen would ſerve him to write a good large Book.

HOLLAND (Thomas) D. D. was born at Ludlow in Shropſhire, and Bred in Oxford, An. 1573. He was elected Socius Sacerdotalis (commonly called Chaplain-Fellow) of Baliol College. Succeeded Dr. Humphry in the Divinity Chair in 1589, and Dr. Glaſier in the Rectory of Exeter-College, An. 1592. In which Houſe, he continued almoſt 20 Years. Dr. Fuller ſays of him, That he was merſus in libris, drowned in his Books; ſo that the Scholar in him almoſt devoured all his other Relations. He was, ſays the Author of his Funeral Sermon, ſo familiar with the Fathers, as if he had been one of them; and with the School-men, as if he had been a Seraphical Doctor. Such was the quickneſs of his Parts, as well as depth of Learning, that his Extemporaries were often better than his Premeditations. He had a conſiderable hand in the Tranſlation of the Bible appointed by King James I. He died, March 17. 1611.

HOLLANDERS, People of the Low-Countries, Powerful in the Eaſt-Indies, eſpecially Java, one of the Sonda Iſlands in Aſia. Above 100 Year ago, the Engliſh took the Town of Jacatra from the Emperor of Mataran, and burnt it, then built a Fort there; but the Dutch in 1677, under pretence of Landing their ſick People and Goods, conveyed ſome ſhort Guns in their Bales, and on a Sunday cut the Engliſh to pieces, and ſettled there, fortifying themſelves by degrees in ſpight of the Natives, and built a Fort at great charge to defend the Haven; building afterwards Batavia, which was finiſhed 15 or 20 Years ago. They are now Maſters of Java, and keep the Kings of Bantam Priſoners in the Fortreſs of Batavia, where the two young Brothers are ſecured. The laſt Emperor of Mataran, having left Three Sons, the two youngeſt rebelled, and the Eldeſt demanded the Dutch Aſſiſtance, yielding them the Town of Japara, 60 Leagues from Batavia, where they built a Fort, and keep a ſtrong Garriſon. The War laſted until one of the Brethren was killed, and the other taken Priſoner. But the Emperor owing a great Summ of Money to the Dutch, he gave them the Town of Cheribon, 20 Leagues from Batavia; and with thoſe Towns, they are able to Maſter the Emperor. They are alſo Maſters of the Iſland of Sumatra, where they have a Fort, and two Exchanges. So that the Q. of Achen, and all the other Petty Soveraigns of the Iſland, dare not ſell their Pepper and Gold to any body elſe. They have alſo ſix general Governments in the Indies, where they are abſolute Soveraigns, viz. Firſt, the Coaſt of Coromandel, whereof Paliacate is the chief Town. Secondly, Ambona or Amboyna, one of the Molucca Iſlands, whereof Victoria is the chief Town; from whence they Export a vaſt quantity of Cloves. Thirdly, Banda Iſland, where Nutmegs grow. Fourthly, Ternate, one of the little Molucca Iſlands, whereof Gamalame is the chief Town; where they have deſtroyed the Clove-trees, to ſell the Amboyna Cloves the better. Fifthly, Ceylon or Ceylan, whoſe chief Town is Colombo. And, Sixthly, Malacca, in the Peninſula of India. They took Columbo from the Portugueſes, about 50 Years ago; and they have five Forts in that Iſle. In 1641, they took Molucca, and turned the Portugueſes out of it. Beſides theſe ſix General, they have ſome particular Governments, where the Governor is called Commander, viz. The Cape of Good-hope, Macaſſar in the Iſland of Celebes, Padan in Sumatra Iſland, Timot one of the little Molucca Iſlands, Andragiry in Sumatra Iſland, and many others on the Coaſts of Malabar. They have alſo ſome Exchanges in ſeveral places. As, at Iſpahan and Gaumaran, or Bandarabaſſi in Perſia, from whence they bring Silks; at Suratte, Agra and Amadabat in the Great Mogul's Dominions; at Bengala; at Palimbang and Jambi in Sumatra Iſland; at Banka, an Iſland near Sumatra; at Siam and at Ligor, in Tonquin and in Japan. They have none in China. Heretofore they carried their Commodities to Neighbouring-Iſlands, and the Chineſe took them ſecretly. In 1685, they ſent thither four Ships, with an Ambaſſador, and noble Preſents for the Emperor, and his Miniſters; becauſe they had notice, That the Chineſe reſolved to open their Ports. In theſe Governments, all is done by the Orders of the Council of Batavia; which is compoſed of the General, who doth nothing but gives Orders, without being accountable to any; of the General Director, who manageth all things, and is accountable; of ſix Ordinary Counſellors, and of ſome extraordinary, ſometimes two, ſometimes four, as it pleaſeth the 17 General Directors, who are always in Europe. This Council, diſpoſes of all the Preferments, with the Company's Conſent, who commonly approve their Decrees. The General, is only Elected for three Years, but is always continued for his Life; becauſe the Company would be a loſer, by enriching a Man every three Years. His Allowance, is 800 Crowns a Month, and 500 Crowns for his Table, all his Family beſides, being maintain'd by the Company: He having a Key of the Stores, where he takes what he pleaſes without being accountable. He never goes out, without 50 Life-Guard-men before his Coach, and a Company of Foot Guard-behind, and 12 Pages on both ſides, and he receives the Ambaſſadors of the Indian Kings, with extraordinary State. Beſides the Soveraign Council, there is the Council of Judicature, compoſed of a Preſident, a Vice-Preſident, and 12 Counſellors, which judge of all Civil and Military proceſſes without Appeal, and have Power to condemn the General, if convicted of High Treaſon. The Dutch Company maintains in all the Eaſt-Indies; but 12000 Diſciplin'd Men; but in every place where they have a Garriſon, they have a great many Men able to fight upon occaſion. The Major General Commands all the Forces under the General. They maintain always in the Indies 160 Men of War, from 30 to 60 Guns each; and in time of War, can eaſily Equip 40 of the biggeſt. Mr. l'Abbé de Choiſy journal du Voyage de Siam en 1685, & 86. Concerning the Genius of the Dutch, we may obſerve, That the moſt famous Authors amongſt them, till the beginning of the 16*th*. Century, are conſidered as ſimple and unpoliſhed: But within theſe 200 Years, the Hollanders have got a great Name in all ſorts of Learning, yet are not quite ſo acute as ſome of their Neighbours, alway remembring that Eraſmus, Lipſius, Grotius, Heinſius and ſome few others, are an Exception to this Rule.

HOLBEN, born at Bazil in Switzerland, in the Year 1498, was a Diſciple of his Father, by whoſe aſſiſtance and his own induſtry he made a wonderful Progreſs in the Art of Painting, and acquir'd ſuch a Name by his Piece of Death's Dance, in the Town-Hall of Bazil, that the famous Eraſmus, after having been drawn by him, ſent him over with his Picture into England, and gave him a Recommendatory Letter to Sir Tho. Moore, then Lord Chancellor, who entertain'd him with great reſpect, and imploy'd him for himſelf and Family. King Henry VIII*th*. was ſo pleas'd with Holben's Painting, that he took him into his Service, and brought him into eſteem with the Nobility and Gentry. One of his beſt Pieces, was that, of the King above mention'd, with his Queen, &c. at White-hall, which periſhed in the late dreadful Fire there, together with ſeveral other admirable Pourtraicts (as well in Water Colours as Oyl) which may come up to the moſt celebrated Italian Maſters. 'Tis particularly Remarkable, of Holben, that he Painted all his Pieces with his Left-hand. He died of the Plague in London in 1554.

HOLLES (John) Earl of Clare, is the Eldeſt Son of Gilbert the late Earl, the only Son of John, Son of Sir John Holles of Houghton, in the County of Nottingham, great Grandſon to Sir William Holles, Lord Mayor of London in 1540, under the Reign of Henry VIII. Which firſt John, the Raiſer of this Family being a Man of a large Eſtate, was firſt created Baron of England by King James I. An. 1616, by the Title of Lord Houghton of Houghton; and eight Years after, rais'd to the Dignity of an Earl, by the Title of Earl of Clare. By the Lady Anne his Wife, Daughter to Sir Thomas Stanhop of Shelford in the County of Nottingham, he had Iſſue ſix Sons and three Daughters. John, his Eldeſt, ſucceeded him upon his deceaſe, An. 1637. and married Elizabeth, Eldeſt Daughter, and one of the Co-heirs to Horace, Lord Vere of Tilbury; by whom he had two Sons, John, who died in his Infancy, and Gilbert; beſides 13 Daughters, moſt of which died young, and unmarried. Departing this Life in 1665, he was then ſucceeded both in his Eſtate and Title, by his remaining Son Gilbert, whoſe Son John having married one of the Daughters of the late Duke of Newcaſtle, has by His Majeſty K. William the III. been inveſted with the Honour of Duke of that place. Dugdale.

HOLLES (Francis) a Baron of England, is Son and Heir of the late Lord Denzil Holles, ſecond Son to John Holles, the firſt Earl of Clare. Which Denzil, though a great Oppoſer of King Charles I. in the Parliament of 1640, yet having been eminently active in the Reſtauration of the Royal Family, was created Baron of this Realm, by King Charles II. by the Title of Lord Holles of Iſield in Surrey; after which he was Employed in ſeveral great and weighty Affairs of State: Being ſent Ambaſſador-Extraordinary into France in 1663, where he continued above the ſpace of three Years; and afterwards to Breda, as Plenipotentiary to the Treaty there, with the Ambaſſadors of France, Denmark, and the United Provinces. In all which publick Imployments, he came off with ſingular Honour and Reputation. He married three Wives, and the third a French Lady of Colombiers in Normandy, but had Iſſue only by Dorothy, his firſt Wife. She was the ſole Daughter and Heir of Sir Francis Aſhley of Dorcheſter in the County of Dorſet, by whom he had Iſſue four Sons, but none that lived beyond their Infancy, except Sir Francis his Eldeſt, the preſent Lord Holles of Iſield, who has had two Wives. Firſt Lucy, the youngeſt Daughter to Sir Robert Carr of Sleford, in the County of Lincoln. Secondly, Anne the Eldeſt Daughter and Co-heir to Sir Francis Pile of Compton Beauchamp in the County of Berks. By this laſt, he had a Son named Denzil, who died a Batchelor, the Eſtate has devolved upon the preſent Duke of Newcaſtle. Dugdale.

HOLOBOLUS, a Greek Divine, who had the Courage whilſt he was yet Student, to declaim againſt the Emperor Michael Palæologus, who, to ſecure the Crown to his Family, had pluck'd out Laſcaris his Pupil's Eyes: Whereupon the Emperor commanded his Lips to be bored, and his Noſe cut, and then put him into a Monaſtery; ſome Years after, his Noſe, which out of pity was cut but lightly, being cured, the Patriarch of Conſtantinople eſteeming his Wit and Learning, begg'd him from the Emperor, and made him Preacher in his own Church; where he obtained ſo much Credit, that the Emperor took him for his own Chaplain, though but 22 Years of Age, and required his aſſiſtance in re-uniting the Greek and Roman Churches; which, he ſaid, was not warrantable, and declaimed againſt it. Codin cap. 1. Maimbourg hiſt. de Schiſm.

HOLOFERNES: See Judith.

HOLSTEIN, a Province of the Lower Saxony in Germany, which belongs to the King of Denmark, and partly to the Duke of Holſtein. It is divided into four Parts, whereof one keeps the name of Holſtein, which is properly attributed to it. The ſecond, is Stomaren. The third, Ditmarſen or Ditmarſh. The fourth, Wagheren. The chief Towns are Lubeck and Hamborough (which are Hanſe Towns.) Gluckſtadt, Brusbuttel, Meldrop, Pinnemberg, Rensberg, with the whole Earldom of Segeberg, belong to the King of Denmark. Kiel, Oldenberg, Lunden, &c. belong to the Dukes of Holſtein. This Country, has the Dukedom of Lawemburg and the Baltick-Sea on the Eaſt, the German-Sea on the Weſt, the Dukedom of Sleſwick on the North, and on the South the River Elbe, which divides it from the Dukedoms of Bremen and Lunenburg. Frederick Duke of Holſtein and Sleſwick, built Frederickſtadt on the River Leider, to ſettle the Trade of Silks there. For that purpoſe, he ſent in 1633, a famous Embaſſy to Perſia and Moſcovia, related by the Secretary Olearius. Holſtein is well watered, and its Riches conſiſts in Fiſhing and Selling of Hogs. Its chief Town is Kiel on the Baltick. The Dukes of Holſtein's Family, come, as they ſay, out of the Ancient Houſe of Saxony; Founded by Witikind the Great, whoſe Line ended in Frederick, who being Condemned by his Father Huno the Glorious, to fight a terrible Lion, did ſo, and killed him. Elimar his Couſin ſucceeded, from whom deſcended Theodorick the Fortunate, who gathered the whole Eſtate of the Family into one, about 1432. Chriſtian the Firſt, his Son was King of Denmark, whoſe Daughter Margaret, was married to James III. of Scotland. John, his Son ſucceeded. Chriſtian the Second, his Son, ſucceeded him, and died in Priſon, An. 1559. Frederick the firſt Son of Chriſtian I. was choſen King of Denmark, and died in 1533. His Son Chriſtiern the Third, ſucceeded, leaving Frederick the Second, choſen alſo King of Denmark, whoſe Daughter Anne was married to James VI. of Scotland, and his Son Chriſtian IV. ſucceeded, and died in 1648. Frederick III. ſucceeded him, and died in 1679. Chriſtian V. his Son, the late King of Denmark, ſucceeding him, who died September 4th. 1699. was ſucceeded by his Son Frederick the 4th. now Reigning. There are ſeveral Branches of this Family of Holſtein, viz. The Branch of Holſtein, Sunderburg, Gluckburg, Arnsbeck, Sleſwick, or Gottorp and Ottingen. That of Holſtein Gottorp, or Sleſwick, being the moſt conſiderable and known to the World, becauſe of the late Controverſy between the preſent Duke, and King of Denmark. Take this brief Account of his Hiſtory and Genealogy. Adolph, Son of Frederick I. and Brother to Chriſtian III. King of Denmark, born An. 1526. was the firſt Duke of Holſtein, and ſubdued Ditmarſh, and by a Daughter of Heſſe-Caſſel, had John Adolph, to whom the Hamburghers did homage, as Duke of Holſtein. By Frederick II. the King of Denmark's Daughter, he had Frederick, who ſent an Embaſſy into Moſcovy and Perſia, An. 1663, and had alternatively with the King of Denmark the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, the Right of Seſſion in the Aſſemblies of the Empire, and of the Regalia. By a Daughter of Saxony, he had Chriſtian Albert, born Feb. 13. 1641. to whom the King of Swedeland, by a Treaty, An. 1658. obliged Frederick King of Denmark, to quit the Soveraignty over the Dutchy of Sleſwick, which was alſo confirmed by the Treaty at Copenhagen, An. 1660. But ſince the War was over, Chriſtian V. King of Denmark, having, under the pretence of a Treaty, ſeized the Duke of Holſtein and his Officers, he obliged him to renounce the ſaid Treaty; but when the Duke was at liberty, he proteſted againſt thoſe Violences, and in 1689, the Matter was accommodated by neighbouring Princes; the Duke being repoſſeſſed in moſt of his Country, and the King of Denmark retaining the reſt. But the Differences having broke out a freſh, on pretence of ſome Forts built by the Duke of Holſtein, the ſame were not accommodated till this preſent Year 1700, when the Engliſh, Dutch and Sweediſh Fleets in Aug. 1700. appeared before Copenhagen, the Swedes at the ſame time landing ſome Forces in Zealand to act in Concert with the Holſteiners and other Confederates, obliged the King of Denmark to a Peace at Travendahl, which was quickly after ratified. Cluvier. Bertius. Peterſon in Chron. Holſat. The late Duke founded the College of Kiel, and married the King of Denmark's Siſter, and his Son the preſent Duke married Hedwig Sophia, Siſter to Charles the 12th. now King of Swedeland.

HOLSTINIUS (Lucas) The Pope's Library Keeper, was a Perſon much valued at Rome for his Learning and Parts; he wrote divers Tracts, was a good Linguiſt, and ſet up for a Critick. In the Year 1655, he went to meet the Queen of Sweden, and admitted her to the Roman Catholick Communion at Inſpruck. He died at Rome, 1601.

HOLT, a Market-Town of Holt Hundred in the North Parts of Norfolk, 97 Miles from London.

HOLY-CROSS, a Town in the County of Tipparary in Ireland, once much frequented by Pilgrims, to ſee a Piece of the Croſs, as they call it: Whence the Town took its Name, and the County obtained the Rights of a County Palatine. Heylin.

HOLY GHOST, an order of Knighthood in France, Inſtituted by King Henry III. who celebrated its firſt Feſtival the 31ſt. of December 1578, and the 1ſt. of January 1579. The number of Knights was limitted to a Hundred, without including thoſe of the Clergy, viz. Four Cardinals, and four Biſhops, together with the great Almoner, and the Officers of the Order, viz. A Chancellor, Treaſurer, Regiſter, and King at Arms, and ordered the Knights to wear a Croſs of Malta, having a Dove in the center of it. To which King Henry IV. in 1598. added a Collar made of Trophies, from whence proceed Flames intermixed with crown'd H's. The King allowed every one of the Knights a Penſion of 1000 Crowns. 'Tis ſaid, That the occaſion of Henry III's. inſtituting this Order of the Holy Ghoſt, was, becauſe on the Day of Pentecoſt, or Witſunday, he had received two Crowns, viz. That of Poland, and that of France: And, others ſay, that the ſame was alſo his Birth-day. Some pretend, That this Order was invented by Lewis of Tarante King of Jeruſalem and Sicily, &c. in 1382. but that being fallen by the Troubles of the Civil Wars of thoſe Kingdoms, it was renewed by Henry III. upon reading the original Conſtitution of that Order, which had fallen into the hands of the Venetians, and was preſented to him by them. See Laboureurs's Additions to the Memoirs of Caſtlenau. Mezeray Dupleix, &c. See St. Eſprit.

HOLY-HEAD, a Sea Town of Talibollian Hundred, in the Weſt Parts of the Iſle of Angleſey. 'Tis the uſual Station of the Iriſh Packet, to carry our Mail thither, or bring us the Iriſh.

HOLY-ISLAND lies near the Coaſt of Northumberland, ſome Miles South and by Eaſt of Berwick. It is an Iſland only in Flood-time, for during the Reflux, the Shore lies bare, and makes it, till the next Tide, Continent to the Land. This is the Iſland, anciently called Lindesfarne, when a Biſhop's See. The firſt Biſhop, whereof was Aidan the Scot, the Apoſtle of thoſe Parts; who being very much delighted with the ſituation of this Iſle, fixed upon it for the place of his Reſidence, as a ſolitary Retreat from the World, and fitteſt for Devotion. Thus it continued an Epiſcopal See, from the Year 637, the ſpace of 353 Years under 22 Biſhops, hence called Biſhops of Lindesfarne: But by reaſon of the religious Lives of ſo many pious Biſhops, Monks, and others of the Clergy, as did inhabit here, it got by degrees, the Name of Holy Iſland, by which it's called to this Day. The See was from hence Tranſlated to Durham, An. 990. upon occaſion of the Danes; who in that time, kept all the Coaſt in awe with their conſtant Robberies. As to the Air of this Iſland, 'tis not only very bleak, but ſubject to Fogs ariſing from the Sea; ſo that 'tis neither pleaſant nor healthful, the Soil being Rocky, and very full of Stones. It is watered only by one River, that riſes from a Standing-Pond Eaſtward, and is ſo much the worſe, either for Corn or Paſture. In ſhort, Fiſh and Fowl is the beſt Accommodation of this Iſland, which being but of ſmall Account, is accordingly but thinly peopled, there being but one Town, which has a Church and a Caſtle, and under it a commodious Haven, defended by a Block-houſe, ſituate on a Hill. Bohun Geog. Dict.

HOLYOAK (Francis) Author of the learned Latin Dictionary, became Rector of South-Ham in Warwickſhire, in 1604. Being looked upon as a great and learned Man, he was elected Member of the Convocation, 1 Car. I. He died a great Sufferer for the King's Cauſe in 1653, aged 87, and left a Son, named Thomas, by whom the aforeſaid Dictionary was very much enlarged and improved; which appeared An. 1677. in a thick large Folio.

HOMAR, or OMAR, related to Mahomet, and Interpreter of his Laws: Oppoſed Ali, Mahomet's Son-in-Law's Opinions concerning the Interpretation of the Alcoran. From whence aroſe two chief Sects; the one of the Arabians, who followed Homar; and the other of the Perſians, who followed Ali. About 1370, Sophi King of Perſia took the Red Turban, to be diſtinguiſhed from the Sect of the Turks, and other Homariſts, who wear the White. Hornius Orb. Imp. See Omar.

HOMBURG, a Town of Heſſen, where the Landtgrave Philip Indicted a Convocation of the Clergy, An. 1525, and the Romans having been overcome in a fair Diſpute, their Religion was aboliſhed, and the Proteſtant Religion ſet up. This Town was afterwards given in Appanage, or for a Portion, to George, Grand-child to Philip; in whom began the Line of the Princes of Heſſen Darmſtadt. Spener. There is another of this Name in the Palatinate, with a Caſtle on an high Hill, of which the French made themſelves Maſters in 1679. It ſtands two French Leagues from Bipont, to the Northward.

HOMEDES (John) the 46th Great Maſter of St. John of Jeruſalem; in whoſe Time Henry VIII. of England aboliſhed the Order in his Dominions. He defended Tripoly; but the Diviſions of the Chriſtian Princes hindring the promiſed Succour, he was forced to ſurrender it to the Turks in 1551.

HOMER, Prince of the Greek Poets, was named Meleſigines, but took the Name of Homer from his Blindneſs. He was ſo poor that he was forced to beg. His Iliads and Odyſſea have immortalized him. Some Hymns to Apollo, Diana, Mercury, &c. are attributed to him; but the moſt Learned think, that he was not the Author of them. He was very famous amongſt the Ancients. Many commented on his Works; as, Ariſtarchus, who corrected the Faults of the Copyiſts; yet we have but three Greek Scholiaſts left on Homer, viz. Euſtachius Archbiſhop of Theſſalonica, Spondanus, and Didymus; and this laſt is ſuppoſititious too. Seven Cities pretended to Homer's Birth, but nothing can be decided about it, or the Time he lived in. Some modern Authors affirm, he was contemporary with Pythagoras, but 'tis more probable that he lived when Smyrna was built, in Aſia, by the Æolians, viz. 168 Years after the ruin of Troy. St. Hierom adds, that Homer flouriſhed A.M. 3179. 124 Years before the Foundation of Rome. Solin. cap. 42. Petav. lib. 9. de doct. Temp. cap. 30. Salian A. M. 3039. *Scaliger. HOMMES d'Intelligence; in Engliſh, Men of Underſtanding; the Name of a Sect of Hereticks, who appeared in Picardy, An. 1412. Fr. William de Hilderniſſen, a German Carmelite Friar, and a Lay-Singing-Man named Gilles, were the chief of them. This laſt affirmed that he was the Saviour of Men, and that by him the Faithful ſhould ſee Jeſus Chriſt, as by Jeſus Chriſt they ſhould ſee God the Father: That the bodily Pleaſures being natural Actions, were no Sins, but ſome Fore-taſtes of Paradiſe: That the ancient Law was the Time of the Father; the new Law the Time of the Son; and that there ſhould be ſhortly a third Law, which was to be the time of the Holy Ghoſt, who would put Men into a full Liberty. The Friar recanted his Errors at Bruxels, Cambray and St. Quintin, and this Sect ended. Mezeray hiſt. of France.

HOMMIUS (Feſtus,) a famous Divine, Secretary to the Synod of Dort in 1618. He wrote ſome Books of Controverſie. Meurſius in Ath. Bat.

HONAN, a Province of China, between that of Nanquin on the Eaſt, and that of Xenſi to the Weſt. The Chineſe affirm this Province to be in the Middle of the World; and call it their Pleaſure-Garden, becauſe it is extreamly fruitly in all kind of Fruits, Corn, Paſtures and Trees. It contains eight great Cities, beſides 100 great Towns, Forts and Caſtles; and 589296 Families. Martin Martini.

HONDURAS, a Province of the Northern America, in Mexico, or New-Spain, between the Northern Sea, the Gulph of Honduras, and the Provinces of Nicaragua and Jucatan. This Country is near 100 Leagues long, and above 80 broad. It abounds in Honey, Cotton Wool called Vigoion, &c. The Land is ſo fruitful in Mayz, that they have three Crops a Year in many Places. There are alſo ſome Gold and Silver-Mines. The Rivers overflow like Nilus, and enrich the Land. Valadolid, named by the Natives Commajagua, is the chief Town, ſituated in a Plain; the Reſidence of the Governor, the Biſhops, &c. The Air is good: The Vineyards bear twice a Year; for immediately after the Vintage they cut them again, and the ſecond Grapes are ripe before Chriſtmas. Truxillo is a fine Town, and impregnable, becauſe of its ſituation on a ſteep Hill, acceſſible only by a narrow Paſſage, which is fortified. De Laet. hiſt. de Nouveau Monde.

HONESTIS (Peter Damianus de) Cardinal and Biſhop of Oſtia, deſcended of a Noble Family in Ravenna. He turn'd Benedictin, and was a Perſon of great Piety and Learning, and did the Church ſeveral Services, both by his Writings and Intereſt. He died in the Year 1072. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works. That of Lyons, in 1623. is in three Parts. In the firſt there are Eight Books of his Epiſtles; the ſecond conſiſts of Sermons, and the Lives of ſeveral Saints; the third gives a Relation of his Voyage into France, when the Pope's Legate; A Hymn of the Glory of Paradiſe, beſides ſeventy other Religious Treatiſes. Baron Tom. 11*th. HONETON, a Borough and Market-Town in the County of Devon, and Hundred of Axmiſter, upon the River Otter. It ſends two Members to Parliament, and is 126 Miles from London.

HONFLEUR, a Town of Normandy in France, at the Mouth of the River Seyne, over againſt Harfleur. In Latin Honflevius, and Honflorium.

HONGRIMAN de Janſay: See Hangriguen de Genſan.

HONORATUS, founder of the Monaſtery of Lerina or Planatia, now call'd St. Honore de Lerin; was Archbiſhop of Arles, and ſucceeded Patroclus in the Year 426. Caſſian dedicated ſeveral of his conferences to him; and Eucherius, and Sidonius Apollinaris give him a great Character.

HONORIAS, a Tract of Aſia Minor, part of Pontus; in which are Heraclea, Claudiopolis, and Hadrianople.

HONORIUS I. of that Name was Pope in 626. and died in 638. Anaſtaſ. Platina. Baronius, &c. 'Tis worth obſerving, that the Magdeburg-Centuriators, who are Proteſtants, Cen. 7. cap. 10, & 11. Col. 553. Melchior a Roman Catholick, Canus de Locis, cap. ult. and others, have believed that Pope Honorius I. was a Monothelite Heretick, in approving Sergius Patriarch of Conſtantinople's Letters againſt Sophronius afterwards Patriarch of Jeruſalem. The chief Reaſons they give for it are, That the VI*th.* General Council condemns the Pope's Letters, as full of Hereſies: That the VII*th.* and VIII*th.* are not more favourable to him: That Pope Agatho ſpares him not: And that Leo II. Anathematizeth Honorius, and the Monothelites. Baronius and Bellarmine make his Apology; the firſt ſaying, He was condemned by the Fathers of the VI*th.* Council, only becauſe they did not underſtand his Letters. But this ſeems a very ſlender Defence; Honorius governed 12 Years, 11 Months, and 17 Days. Hiſt. Monothelit. Edit. An. 1678.

HONORIUS II. called Lambert, ſucceeded as Pope after Calixtus II's Death. The Cardinals elected Thibaud, who took the Name of Celeſtin; and whilſt they were ſinging the Te Deum for Thankſgiving after the Election, Lambert was proclaimed Pope by Rob. Frangipani's powerful Party. Celeſtin abdicated willingly, and Honorius did the ſame out of a pretended Humility, to get his Election approved; which was done, and he governed above five Years. Platina condemns the unfair Methods of his Election; but ſays, he was an Encourager of Learning. He ſate five Years, two Months, and one Day; and died, An. Dom. 1130.

HONORIUS III. a Roman, made Pope in 1216. died in 1227. He confirmed the Order of St. Dominick at his Deſire, and alſo that of St. Francis, and ſeveral others. He crowned Peter Emperor of Conſtantinople, and encouraged the War in the Holy Land. He excommunicated Frederick II. Emperor of Germany, who waſted his Territories, and died after 10 Years, 17 Months, and 13 Days Reign. Five Thouſand Perſons periſhed by an Earthquake in Monti Salvi after his Death. Platina. Baron. An. C. 1124

HONORIUS IV. a Roman, named James Savelli; elected Pope in 1285. died in 1287. He confirmed Pope Martin's Interdictions againſt Peter King of Arragon, for endeavouring to ſubdue the Kingdom of Sicily; and excommunicated his Son upon the ſame Account. He oppoſed alſo the King of England in his Deſign to levy the Tithes on his Clergy. There were ſuch terrible Earth-quakes after his Death, and ſuch a Mortality amongſt Cardinals, that the Election of another was ſuſpended. Platina. Spondan.

HONORIUS, Anti-Pope: See Cadalous.

HONORIUS, Emperor of the Weſt, Son of Theodoſius the Great, by Flacilla, and Arcadius Emperor of the Eaſt's Brother, began his Reign in 395. Theodoſius had truſted Stilico with the Government during Honorius's Minority, and made Gildon Governor of Africa: Gildon rebelled firſt, but was ſoon puniſhed; and Stilico, whom the Emperor had made twice his Father-in-law, endeavoured to dethrone him, to crown Eucherius, his own Son, with the help of Alaricus's Army; but having betrayed this Prince of the Goths, in Revenge he purſued him, and plunder'd Rome in 409. Before this, the Emperor knowing Stilico's Treacheries, ſent Heraclian to kill him; which he effected An. 408. While the Goths deſtroyed Rome, the Emperor, either for want of Courage or Strength, ſtayed at Ravenna, and did nothing; whilſt at the ſame time Attalus declared himſelf Emperor at Rome; Gratian, Conſtantine, with Conſtans his Son, Maximus and Jovian did the like in England, and amongſt the Gauls; whilſt Heraclian did the ſame in Africa, beſides others elſewhere: Nevertheleſs, Honorius ſubdued them all by his Captains, eſpecially Conſtantius, to whom he married his Siſter Placidia. He died of a Palſie at Ravenna, An. 423. without Iſſue. Some ſay, he had little Wit, and leſs Courage: Others ſpeak of him as a religious and juſt Prince. Proſper. Caſſiodor. in Chron. Socrat. lib. 7. Baron. in Annal.

HONORIUS Auguſtodunenſis, ſo call'd becauſe he was a Prieſt at Autun in Burgundy. He flouriſh'd about the Year 1120, and left ſeveral Pieces behind him, which are ſufficient Proof both of his Learning and Piety. The moſt conſiderable of his Works are, A Chronicle, A Book of Church Writers, intituled, De Luminaribus Eccleſiæ. A Dialogue concerning Predeſtination and Free-will. Commentaries upon the Books of Solomon. The Office and Ceremonies of the Maſs, which he calls Gemma Animæ, &c. Voſſius Lib. 2. Cap. 18. hiſt. Lat. St. Marthe Gal. Chriſt. &c.

HONOUR, a Divinity, to whom the Romans erected ſome Statues, commonly joined with Vertue: Their Temples were ſo built, that it was impoſſible to enter the Temple of Honour, without going through the Temple of Vertue. Marius, that built them, ordered, that they ſhould not be too much raiſed; either to pleaſe the Southſayers, or to teach Humility to the Worſhippers. Cicero 2 Tuſc. Tit. Liv. lib. 29. &c.

HOOD (Robert) commonly called Robin Hood, a famous Robber in the Reign of King Richard I. Had his principal Reſidence in Sherwood-Foreſt, in Nottinghamſhire; but had another Haunt near the Sea, in the North-Ridings of Yorkſhire, where R. Hood's Bay ſtill retains his Name: Not that he was any Pirate, but a Land-Robber, who retreated to thoſe unſuſpected Places for his Security. As great a Robber as he was, being rather a merry than a miſchievous Thief, and for the moſt part robbing none but the Rich. He had the good Luck to eſcape the Hand of Juſtice. In ſhort, he never murther'd any thing but Deer; and then he feaſted his Neighbours with the Veniſon.

HOOFDEN, the Name which ſome Authors give to the Streights betwixt Calis and Dover.

HOOKER (Richard) born in Exeter, and bred in Corpus-Chriſti-College. His Parts and Learning are evident in his Book of Eccleſiaſtical Policy, in which he fully juſtifies the Engliſh Liturgy from the exceptions of the Nonconformiſts, and overthrows their main Principle, Aſſerting that nothing is Lawful in Religious Worſhip, but what is expreſly Commanded in Scripture. This Book King Charles I. recommended to the Reading of his Children. He was made Maſter of the Temple by Archbiſhop Whitgift, but retired thence to a Benefice in Kent, where he died, An. 1599.

HOOPER (John) Biſhop of Glouceſter, and one of the Martyrs in the Reign of Q. Mary; was born in Somerſetſhire, bred firſt in Oxford, and then beyond the Seas. The occaſion of his going thither was the Suſpicion he lay under of being infected with Lutheraniſm, as the Roman Catholicks uſed to ſay, in the Reign of Henry VIII. Inſomuch that being ſought after to be apprehended, upon the coming forth of the Statute of the ſix Articles, he fled in a Diſguiſe into Ireland, and thence into Switzerland, where he became acquainted with Bullinger, Scholar and Succeſſor to Zuinglius; and by his Advice married a Burgundian Wife. When King Edward VI. came to the Crown, he returned into England, in 1549. became an Accuſer of Biſhop Bonner, when he was to be deprived of his Biſhoprick; which made him fare the worſe when

Q. Mary came to the Crown. The next Year he was elected Biſhop of Worceſter; but Cranmer Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Ridley Biſhop of London, refuſed to conſecrate him, unleſs he would conform himſelf in Apparel and Opinion unto them. The Rochet he refuſed; upon which he was confined. At laſt by the Earl of Warwick's Interceſſion to Cranmer, and the King's Letters to diſpenſe with thoſe Matters as Ceremonies, he was conſecrated Biſhop of the ſaid See. Being ſetled in the See of Glouceſter, which was looked upon as a poor Pittance for ſo great a Divine, who had ſuffered ſo much. The Earl of Warwick got him the Biſhoprick of Worceſter in Commendam; Heath, the Biſhop thereof being then a Priſoner in the Fleet. Whilſt he was Biſhop he preached often, viſited his Dioceſs, kept good Hoſpitality for the poorer ſort of People, and was beloved by many. But when Q. Mary began to Reign, which was in July, 1553. he was ſent for up to London, and committed to the Fleet; where remaining ſome Months, he was at length examined ſeveral times, and required to recant his Opinions; which refuſing to do, he was condemned to be burnt; and accordingly, being conducted to Glouceſter, ſuffered in that City with great Courage, An. 1554. He was a Perſon of good Parts, well verſed in the Greek and Hebrew Tongues, a good Philoſopher, but a better Divine. Biſhop Latimer and he, who had been at variance about the Ceremonies before, were reconciled during their Sufferings; the former having writ an obliging and condeſcending Letter to the other. Fox Act. and Mon.

HOPE (Cape) or The Cape of Good Hope, in the Country of Caffraria in Æthiopia Inferior; ſo called by the Portugueſe, who doubling the ſame, An. 1597. had hopes of a proſperous Voyage, as it was indeed, for thereby they diſcovered the way to the Wealth of the Indies. On the top of it is a large Plain, called The Table of the Cape, adorned with Flowers and Graſs, and yielding a fair proſpect into the Sea. This place hath ſo often proved fatal to the Spaniards, that one of their Captains expoſtulated with God, Why he ſuffered his good Catholicks to endure ſuch torments, and yet ſuffered the Engliſh Hereticks to paſs ſafe. Heylin.

HOPPER (Joachim) an eminent Lawyer, born at Incek in Weſt-Friezeland, in 1523. His Learning preferred him to Philip IIds Favour, who made him one of his Council for the Affairs of the Low-Countries. His Works are, De Juris Arte, Lib. 3. ad Juſtinianum. Diſpoſitio in Libros Pandectarum, Diſpoſitio in Lib. 4. Inſtitutionum. Iſagoge in Veram Juris-prudentiam νομοθεσία de Juris ac Legum condendarum Scientia. De Jure publico. De Jure privato. De Tabula Regum Friſiæ, &c. Suffridus Petri, de Script. Friſ. Decad. 12. cap. 9. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

HOPTAIN-Heath in Staffordſhire, memorable for a Battel in 1643. betwixt K. Charles I. and the Parliament's Forces; the Valiant Spencer, E. of Northampton, being ſlain on the King's ſide.

HOPTON (Sir Ralph) but afterwards Lord Hopton, Son of Robert Hopton, Eſq; a famous Soldier in our Civil Wars, was born An. 1601. in Monmouthſhire, where his Mother had Relations; his Education was in Somerſetſhire, where his Father had his Seat. From whence he was ſent to Lincoln-College in Oxford, and proved a good Proficient; but his Genius ſoon ſhewed, that he was born more for Action than Speculation. The Low-Countries were then the School of War, and Nurſery of Martial Diſcipline. Thither he went as Voluntier; where he learned in one Camp what he put afterwards to good Practice. From Holland he went into the Palatinate, to ſerve the Q. of Bohemia, and was at the fatal Battel of Prague; after which he carried the ſaid Queen forty Miles behind him. Being returned home, he found all Things tending to an open War, and took Part with the King. His Province was in the Weſt of England; where having the chief Command of the King's Forces, he did two conſiderable Actions, wherein he came off victorious; the one at Liſcard, the other at Stratton; for the particulars whereof I refer you to the Hiſtories of thoſe Times. Therefore K. Charles raiſed him to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Hopton of Stratton; but dying without Iſſue at Bruges in the Low-Countries, An. 1652. the Title fell with him. Upon the Reſtauration his Corps being carried to Sluys, was brought over into England, and Interred at Wytham with his Anceſtors.

HORACE, called Cocles, a Roman Captain, reſiſted Porcenna's Army on the Bridge of the Tyber, till that part of it behind him was cut down by his own Order, to ſtop their march; and then threw himſelf into the River, and got into the City with his Arms, where they erected him a Statue, and gave him as much Land as he could run through with a Plough in one Day. Liv. lib. 2. Flor. lib. 5. cap. 10.

HORACE Giovangoni: See Giovangoni.

HORACE (Quintus Flaccus) a Latin Poet, born at Venuſium, he fought at the Battel of Philippi, for Brutus and Caſſius. His Wit and Merit, made him Auguſtus's and Mæcenas's Favourite. Quintilian ſaith, That amongſt the Latin Lyricks, Horace is almoſt the only one worth reading. He died An. Rom. 746, or 747. Aged 57.

HORACES, or HORATII, the Name of three Roman Brethren, who fought againſt the three Curiatii of Alba, An. Rom. 85, under the Reign of Tullus Hoſtilius; the two firſt were killed, but the third, joining Policy to his Courage, overcame his three Adverſaries. Returning to Rome, and meeting his Siſter in great affliction, for one of the Curiatii, to whom ſhe was contracted, he killed her becauſe of that unſeaſonable ſorrow. Tit. Liv. lib. 1. See Curiatii. The Horaces Family was ancient at Rome, where they ſettled with Romulus. It was divided into three Branches, and ſeveral of them were Conſuls and Tribunes of that City.

HORBATII: See Croats.

HORBURGH, Lat. Argentuaria, a Caſtle near Colmar in the Upper Alſatia. See Colmar.

HORDA, a King of the Hunns, who, with his People, received the Chriſtian Faith, An. 529. Pantal.

HORDALES, Feaſts amongſt the ancient Romans, ſo called, becauſe they then ſacrificed Cows with Young, named by the Latins, Hordæ. Thoſe Feaſts might be Celebrated, even in the days which they called Unhappy; during which, all other Sacrifices were forbidden. Alexand. ab Alex. lib. 3. cap. 20.

HORDE, a Name given to the Tribes or Companies of the Tartars in Tartaria deſerta. Figuera Relation de Perſe.

HORDONIENSES, a People of Apulia, whoſe chief Town was Erdonia.

HOREB, a Mountain of Arabia Petræa, part of Mount Sinai, over-againſt the Land of the Midianites. Kircher ſays, That at the foot thereof, there was found an Inſcription in an old Aſſyrian Character, importing, amongſt other things, That God would make a Virgin conceive. By this Mountain it was, that Moſes fed Jethro's Sheep, and received the command from the Angel in the Burning-buſh not conſumed, to bring Iſrael up out of Egypt, Exod. 3. Here the Law was promulgated, if, according to St. Jerome, it be the ſame with Sinai. Here Elijah heard the ſmall ſtill voice, 1 Kings 19. 12. It is ſaid to extend from Petra in Arabia to Ælan on the Red-Sea. The Name given to it by the Arabians, is Gibel Mouſa, and the Europeans call it Sinai. There are abundance of Chapels, Hermitages and Cells upon this, and the neighbouring Mountains poſſeſſed by the Greek and Latin Monks, who have delicate Gardens, that not only ſupply themſelves, but furniſh Grand Caire with the beſt of its Fruit. This Mountain is aſcended by Steps, and hath an Oratory and Spring on the top, which all Paſſengers drink off. Thevenot. See Sinai.

HORIGUELLA, but more ordinarily Gribuella, an Epiſcopal City in Spain, ill inhabited, tho' pleaſantly ſituated in a Valley under a Caſtle, built on a Rock, and honoured with the Title of a Dukedom. It ſtands on the River Segura, 6 Leagues South of Alicant.

HORIZON, one of the great Circles of the Sphere, which divides the uppermoſt Hemiſphere from the inferior, that half we ſee from that which is hidden from us. There are two ſorts of Horizon, the one Rational or Intelligible, and the other Senſible. The firſt divides the Terreſtrial Globe into two equal parts, whereof one is above, and the other below the place we inhabit. The Intelligible Horizon is divided into Streight, Oblique and Parallel. The Streight goes through the two Poles of the World: The Oblique has always one of its Poles elevated. The Parallel anſwers the Equator, and has one Pole for Zenith, and the other for Nadir. The Streight Horizon, ſhews the continual Equality of Day and Night; the Oblique the Inequality; and the Parallel, that under the two Poles, they have ſix Months Day together, and then ſo much Night. The Senſible Horizon, is what bounds our ſight in an open Country, and ſerves to ſhew the Riſing and Setting of the Sun, Moon and Stars, and the Length of each Artificial Day. Boulanger de la Sphere. 'Tis derived from the Greek ὁρίζω, to bound, becauſe it terminates our Sight, and the Length of the Day.

HORMISDAS, a Roman, Elected Pope in 514, died in 523. He condemned the Eutychians in a Provincial Council at Rome, and ſent Legates to John Biſhop of Conſtantinople, admoniſhing him to renounce that Hereſy, but without effect. Anaſtaſius, the Emperor of the Eaſt, uſed Hormisdas's Legates contumeliouſly, ſending them back in a leaky Veſſel, and bidding them tell the Biſhop, That it was the Emperor's part to Command, and not to Obey the Dictates of the Biſhop of Rome, or any other. But the Pope had better ſucceſs with the Emperor Juſtin, who baniſhed the Acacians, becauſe they would not ſubmit to the Pope. Hormisdas alſo baniſhed the Manichees from Rome, and burnt their Books. This Pope reigned nine Years, and eighteen Days. Platina.

HORMISDAS, Third of that Name, the other two having done nothing remarkable, King of Perſia, ſucceeded his Father Choſroes the Great, in 580. He was often beaten by the Romans; and the laſt time, in a great Fury, ſent Womens Clothes to Varanes his General, which the Perſians look upon as an irreparable Diſgrace. Varanes rebelling thereupon, took Hormisdas Priſoner, cauſed his Wife to be murthered before his face, pluck'd out his own Eyes, and Crown'd his Son Choſroes II. who cauſed Hormisdas his Father to be Cudgelled to death in 592. Agathias, lib. 4. Nicephor. lib. 18.

HORMISDAS the Fourth, the ſame as Yesdegerde, Son of Siroes, came to the Crown of Perſia, An. 630, and was turned out by the Saracens in 632. Sigebert, Chron. hiſt. Sarac. lib. 1. cap. 3.

HORNBERG, a City of Germany in the Circle of Swabia, and Dutchy of Wirtemberg, on the River Gulach, 14 Miles N. W. of Rotweil, and 23 E. of Friburg.

HORNBY, a Market Town of Lancaſhire, ſeated on the River Lun, about ſeven Miles E. and by N. from Lancaſter, noted for its Caſtle, the ancient Seat of the Lord Morley and Mounteagle.

HORNE-CASTLE, a Market Town of Lincolnſhire, about 20 Miles Eaſt of Lincoln, upon the River Bane, 104 Miles from London.

HORNE, a ſmall City of North-Holland, very well fortified; has a Vote in the General Aſſemblies. It was formerly an Imperial City. It ſtands upon Zuder Sea, four Leagues Eaſt of Almaer, and ſix North from Amſterdam. It has a very good Harbour, which brings it a great Trade. It was Wall'd in 1426, and almoſt drowned in 1557, the Dikes being broke by a Tempeſt. It was repaired in 1577, and is now the Place where Money for North-Holland is Coined; and has given Birth to ſeveral Learned Men, as Adrian and Peter, Junius, Hogebert, Foreſt, &c.

HORNE, a little Town in Brabant in the Low-Countries, with the Title of Earldom, and a great Domain. It is ſituated near Ruremonde on the R. Meuſe, with a good Caſtle. It is an Imperial Mannor, tho' ſubordinate to the ancient Earldom of Lontzs, in the Dominion of Liege, but having its dependency on Brabant. The Earldom of Horne came into the Family of Montmorency, about the end of the XVth Century. Two of theſe Counts of Horne being Brothers, viz. Philip de Montmorency, and Florent de Montmorency, were very popular and well beloved in the Netherlands, becauſe of their love to their Country. The firſt was cut off by the Duke of Alva, upon that account; and the other had the ſame Fate in Spain, whither he was ſent, as Deputy, by the Flemiſh Nobility in 1570. Du Cheſne, hiſt. de la Maiſon de Montmorency. Thuan.

HORNE, or Cape of Horne, a Cape of the Southern America, in the Land of Fire, towards the Magellanick-Sea, diſcovered in 1616, by James Le Maire, born at Horne in Holland, who gave his Name to it. Some Spaniards call it, The Cape of St. Saviour.

HORNEDEN, a ſmall Market Town in Eſſex, 21 Miles from London.

HOROLOGION, the Name of one of the Græcian Eccleſiaſtical Books, which is to them inſtead of a Common-Prayer Book, wherein all their Services are marked, viz. That which they call MeſonyEticon, or of Midnight, that which they uſe very early, Prime, Tierce, Sexte, None, Veſpres, &c. The Græcians have a great number of Books, which they are obliged to have recourſe to in their Services.

HORROXIUS, a great Mathematician, wrote ſeveral Treatiſes; particularly, Venus in Sole Viſa. He was ſo exact at Aſtronomical Calculation, that he predicted this Poſition of the Planet Venus long before it happen'd, to the great ſurprize of all the Learned Aſtronomers in Europe.

HORSHAM, a large Market Town in the County of Suſſex, in Bramber-Rape; ſends two Members to Parliament.

HORSLEY, a ſmall Iſle, South of Harwich in Eſſex.

HORTA, was amongſt the ancient Romans a Goddeſs; who, as they believed, took care to exhort, and by ſecret motions, inclined People to laudable Actions. She was alſo the Goddeſs of Youth, it may be, becauſe Youth is full of Vigour, which is neceſſary to do good. Her Temple at Rome was never ſhut up, to ſhew, That Men ought to be encouraged to Vertue, all the time of their Life. Horta, comes from Hortari, To Exhort.

HORTENSIA, a Roman Lady, Hortenſius the Orator's Daughter. The Senate having impoſed a heavy Tax upon the Women of Rome, and no Advocate daring to ſpeak for them, ſhe pleaded for her Sex, with ſo much Eloquence and Succeſs, before the Triumvirs, that the greateſt part of the Tax was forgiven. Val. Max. lib. 2, 3.

HORTENSIUS (Q. Ortalus) a famous Roman Orator, who was Military Tribune in 664 of Rome, Prætor in 681, and Conſul in 685. Cicero mentions him as a Man of prodigious Memory. He had ſo much Action in his Speeches, that he was called Graſhopper, Dionyſia Saltatricula. Hortenſius's Family was illuſtrious at Rome, for having produced divers Magiſtrates. Pliny, lib. 15. cap. 27. Plutarch in Caton. Sueton. in Tiber.

HORTUS DIABOLI, or the Devils Garden, a Country in Germany, in the Province of Carniola, amongſt the Alps. Baudrand.

HORWOOD, a Market Town of Grombaldaſh Hundred, in the South parts of Gloceſterſhire.

HOSANNA, this word ſignifieth, Save now. The Jews call their Feaſts of the Tabernacles, Hoſanna Rabba, the great Hoſanna. The Original of that word is, Becauſe on that Day they pray for the Salvation and the Forgiveneſs of all the People's Sins; therefore in all their Prayers, they uſe the word Hoſanna, which ſignifies, Save I pray. Buxtorf explains it ſo, in his Talmudick and Rabbinical Dictionary. Anton. Nebriſſenſis obſerves, after R. Elias, That the Jews called Hoſanna, the Willow-Branches which they carry in that Feaſt, becauſe they ſing Hoſanna, ſhaking them every where in Ceremony, which the ſame Nebriſſenſis applieth to the Jews, who received Jeſus Chriſt as the Meſſias, ſinging Hoſanna, thereby ſignifying, That they did carry before him ſome Willow Palm, and other Branches. Grotius on St. Matth. cap. 21. v. 9. obſerves, That the Feaſts of the Jews did not only ſignify their going out of Egypt, whoſe Memory they Celebrated, but alſo the Expectation of the Meſſias. And that ſtill, on the Day when they carry thoſe Branches, they wiſh to Celebrate that Feaſt at the coming of their Meſſias; from whence he concludes, That the People carrying thoſe Branches before our Saviour, ſhewed their Joy, acknowledging him to be the Meſſias. M. Simon.

HOSEA, Son to Beeri, of the Tribe of Iſſachar, the firſt in Order amongſt the ſmall Prophets, flouriſhed under Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah, and Jeroboam ſecond King of Iſrael; that is, from 3260, of the World, to 3316. He reproaches the Jews with their Idolatry; foretold the Captivity both of Iſrael and Judah, and lived about 100 Years. Epiphan.

HOSHEA, Son to Ela, the laſt King of Iſrael, aſcended the Throne by the Murther of his Predeceſſor Pekah, in the 20th Year of Jotham, or the 3d of Ahaz, his Son, whom he had aſſociated to the Throne of Judah, 2 Kings 15. 30. However, 2 Kings 17. 1. 'tis ſaid, That Hoſhea began his Reign in the 12th Year of Ahaz, that is, nine Years after, and conſequently the holy Scripture aſcribes him but nine Years Reign, Samaria its Capital City, having been taken by Salmaneſer, the Aſſyrian King, the 6th Year of Hezechiah. The reaſon of this difference may be, that during the nine firſt Years, Hoſhea was not ſo firmly eſtabliſhed, as to take upon him the Title of King, tho' he had the Kingly Power in his hand, and might be ſaid to Reign.

HOSIUS (Staniſlaus) a Cardinal Biſhop of Warmia, born at Cracow in Poland, one of the moſt illuſtrious Prelates of the XVIth Century, the Pope's Legate in the Council of Trent, died in 1579, and left many Works againſt Proteſtants. Genebrard. in Chron. Sponde in Annal. &c.

HOSMAN: See Melchior Hoſman.

HOSPITAL (Michael de l') Chancellor of France. A Man of great Parts and Learning, born at Aigueperſe in Auvergne, in 1503, was ſuſpected to favour the Proteſtants, his Daughter and her Husband profeſſing that Religion, and he took care to breed up his Grand-children ſo. He hated violent Counſels, and was always a moderate Councellor to the King, which diſpleaſing Queen Catharine de Medicis, ſhe, upon ſuſpicion, cauſed the Great Seal to be taken from him, and to be given to Morvillier, Biſhop of Orleans; ſo he retired to his Country-houſe near Eſtampes, where he died in 1573. We have many Works of his, and his Picture is very like the Medal we have of Ariſtotle. Thuan. hiſt. lib. 24.

L'HOSPITAL, the Family of L'Hoſpital in France, is Illuſtrious for many great Men, both in Civil and Military Reſpects, as Francis and Nicholas L'Hoſpitals, Marſhals of France.

HOSPITALERS: See Maltha.

HOSPODAR, the Name of the Princes of Tranſylvania, Valachia and Moldavia, who are Tributary to the Grand Seignior, and ſometimes to the Emperor of Germany.

HOSTASIUS, a Soldier of Ravenna in Italy, who ſignalized himſelf at the Siege of Pavia, taken by the French in 1527. He was the firſt that entred the Town, and begged of his General for Reward, the Emperor Antoninus's Statue on Horſeback, formerly tranſported out of Ravenna to Pavia, which was granted him: But the Inhabitants, unwilling to part with it, preſented him with a Crown of Maſſy Gold, which he took at laſt, and hanged in the Church of Ravenna, to be for ever a witneſs of his Courage. Jovius hiſt. lib. 25.

HOSTILINA, a Goddeſs to whom the Pagans attributed the care of Corn, when the laſt Ears did grow up as high as the reſt, and the ſurface of the Harveſt did become even. Hoſtire, in old Latin, ſignified to equal, and Hoſtimentum, equality. Varro S. Auguſt. de Civit. Dei.

HOSTON, a Market Town of Grombaldaſh Hundred, in the South of Gloceſterſhire.

HOSTUNIUM, or OSTUNI, a large and well-inhabited City in the Kingdom of Naples; a Biſhop's Seat, ſuffragan to the Archbiſhop of Brunduſium, dignified alſo with the Title of a Dutchy. It is two Miles from the Adriatick Sea, and ſixteen miles Eaſt of Brunduſium. Baudr.

HOTMAN (Francis) born at Paris, Son of Peter Hotman Councellor in the Parliament of Paris, was ſo famous a Lawyer, that he became Cujacius's Rival. He wrote many Books which were highly approved; and at the time of St. Bartholomew's Maſſacre, he being a Proteſtant, was forced to retire to Baſil in Germany, where he died in 1591. Aged 65. St. Marthe, lib. 4. Elog. doct. Gall.

HOTTENTOTS, a People living on the Cape of Good Hope. See Cafres.

HOTTINGER (John Henry) born at Zurich in Switzerland in 1620, was drowned, with part of his Family, in the River Lemit, in 1667. He taught the Oriental Languages, and was called to profeſs them at Leyden. He left divers Works behind him, as the Oriental Hiſtory of Mahumetiſm, Saraceniſm, Chaldaiſm, De Statu Chriſtianorum, Theſaurus Philologicus S. Scripturæ, Hiſtoria Eccleſiaſticæ novi Teſtamenti, Promptuarium ſive Bibliotheca Orientalis, &c. He was acquainted with all the great Men of his Time, as the famous Archbiſhop Uſher, Selden, Pocock, Grotius, Drelincourt, &c. and had an univerſal correſpondence with all Learned Men. He was coveted by the Cities of Amſterdam, Bremen, Leyden, Landtgrave of Heſſe, and other Princes. He was called Fortiſſimus Religionis vindex, abyſſus Eruditionis, & Literatorum facile Princeps. He wrote alſo, Lexicon Harmoniacum Pentaglotton, Bibliotheca Theologico-Hiſtorico-critica, and abundance more. Hoffman.

HOUAMES, otherwiſe Hhouames, a Sect of wandering Mahometans in Arabia, dwelling in Tents, as the Arabians. They have a particular Law, by which they are commanded to perform their Ceremonies and Prayers, under a Pavilion, without any light; and afterwards they couple with the firſt Woman or Maid they can meet. There are ſome of them at Alexandria, but hide themſelves, becauſe they are burnt alive, if they be known. Houame, or Chováme in Arabick, ſignifies a wicked, laſcivious and abominable Man. Thevenot's Voyages, 2 part. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

HOUDAN, a little Town of the Iſle of France, in Latin Hodanum, on the River Vegre, near Beauſſe, 12 Leagues Weſt from Paris, and 3 N. E. from Dreux.

HOVEDEN (Roger) one of our ancient Hiſtorians, of an eminent Family in Yorkſhire, and ſervant to King Henry II. the chief, if not the ſole Lay-Hiſtorian of his Age. He writ a Chronicle of England, beginning where Bede ended, and continuing the ſame till the 4th of King John. When King Edward I. laid Claim to the Crown of Scotland, he cauſed the Chronicles to be diligently ſearch'd, and carefully kept many Paſſages, tending to his advantage.

HOULME, or La Houlme, a ſmall Diſtrict in Normandy, bordering on the Territory of Le Mans, and the River Orne.

HOUNSLOW, a Market Town in Middleſex, noted for a large Heath, where King James II. uſed to Encamp his Armies.

HOUR, the 24th. part of the Civil-day, containing 12 Hours from Midnight to Noon, and 12 from Noon to Midnight, divided according to the Equinoxial Circle, into 24 equal Parts. Theſe are called Equal Hours; but then according to the diverſity of Seaſons, there are thoſe called Unequal, viz. 12 for the Natural-day, from the Sun's Riſe to its Setting, and 12 for the Night: So that in Summer, the 12 Hours of the Day, are longer than thoſe of the Night, and the contrary in Winter, becauſe the Sun ſtayeth leſs above our Horizon. Theſe Hours are named Ancient, Judaical and Planetary, that is, wandering. The 1ſt. commences with the Riſing-ſun, the 6th. ends at Noon, and the 12th. at Sun-ſet. Then begins the 1ſt. hour of the Night, the 6th. ends at Midnight, and the 12th. at the Sun's Riſing. The ancient Romans, uſed a Day of Unequal Hours, and amongſt them, Hora hyberna ſignified a ſhort hour, underſtood of the Day. Hours are alſo diſtinguiſhed according to the difference of Days amongſt Nations: See DAY. The Dial in King Ahaz's Palace at Jeruſalem, in a publick Place, ſo famous in Holy Writ, may challenge the Invention to the Hebrews, or it may be attributed to the Chaldæans, ſo much addicted to Aſtronomy. Pliny ſaith, that Anaximenes was the firſt Dialiſt at Lacedæmon, An. Mun. 3477. An. Rom. 177. Some think, that in An. Rom. 429. Papyrius Curſor Dictator cauſed one to be fixed upon Romulus's Temple. Petav. de Doct. Temp. See CLOCK. For the right underſtanding the Scripture, obſerve that the Word Hour, is ſometimes taken for one of the four Parts of the Day. Cenſorinus, and other ancient Authors teach us, That the Day was divided into four parts, as the Night into four Vigils or Watches; and as the firſt Watch, did comprehend the three firſt Hours of the Night, and the ſecond continued from the end of the former, till Midnight; ſo the firſt Hour of the Day, comprehended the three Ordinary Hours after the Sun's Riſing, the ſecond commencing upon the Period of the Ordinary third Hour, laſted till Noon. Then began the ſixth Hour of the Day, after which, the Ninth, that ended at Sun-ſet; according to this explication, it is eaſy to reconcile the Text of St. John, cap. 1. 9. v. 14. ſaying, That Pilate Condemned Jeſus Chriſt almoſt at the ſixth Hour, with the Text of St. Mark, 15. 25. ſaying, That the Jews crucified him at the third Hour, for this happened about the end of the ſecond part of the Day, named the third Hour; and about the beginning of the third part of the Day, named the Sixth, that is, about half an Hour before Noon. When St. Peter ſaith in the Acts, That it was not yet the third Hour of the Day, he underſtands the Ordinary Hour; and the meaning of it is, that the Sun had not yet Riſen three Hours. And they might know how to diſtinguiſh theſe two kinds of Hours, according to the time they ſpoke of; the Great Hours, or Parts of the Day, were named Hours of Prayer, or Hours of the Temple; and the little Ordinary Hours, Hours of the Day. The following Table, will ſhew this plainly.

The Riſing of the Sun.

Cenſorin. cap. 90. Nicol. Abram. in 11 Philip. Ricciol.

HOWARD (Bernard) Uncle to Henry Duke of Norfolk. Sir William Dugdale in ſetling the Pedigree of this Noble Family, begins with William Howard a Learned and Reverend Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, in part of King Edward I's. and the beginning of King Edward II's. Reign. This William had a fair Eſtate in Wigen-hall, in the North-weſt part of Norfolk, and in divers other places thereabouts: He was Succeeded by John his Son and Heir, who was one of the Gentlemen of the Bed-Chamber to King Edward I. and in the 4*th.* of Edward II. went in the Expedition made into Scotland. He was alſo Sheriff of the Counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, for ſeveral years together; Governor of the Caſtle of Norwich, and enjoy'd divers other Imployments of Honour and Truſt, during that King's Reign. This John died in the 5*th.* of Edward III. leaving a Son and Heir of the ſame Name, who in the 10*th.* of Edward III. was made Admiral of all the King's Fleet. Sir Robert Howard Knight, was Son and Heir to this John, who died in the 12*th.* of Richard II. leaving Iſſue by Margaret his Wife, Daughter to Robert Lord Scales, John his Son and Heir. This John had Iſſue, John his Son and Heir, who left Iſſue, Elizabeth his ſole Daughter and Heir, marry'd to John Earl of Oxford: His Father Sir John Howard marry'd his ſecond Wife Alice, and by her had Iſſue Robert, who being Knighted, marry'd Margaret Daughter and Co-heir to Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, leaving Iſſue John, which John in 31 Henry VI. being then a Knight, after the recovery of Bourdeaux, accompanied John Talbot Viſcount Liſle, to Blay, and ſoon after march'd with John Earl of Shrewsbury to the relief of Chaſtillon, and was made Sheriff of the Counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, in 1ſt. Edward IV. Conſtable of the Caſtle of Norwich, and one of the King's Carvers; having likewiſe in conſideration of his great ſervices, ſeveral Mannors granted him, in the Counties of Norfolk, Suffolk, Eſſex and Dorſet. This John with the Lords Faulconbridge, Clinton, &c. had the Command of the King's Fleet; and in the 10*th.* of Edward IV. being advanced to the Title of Lord Howard, was made Captain General of all the King's Forces at Sea, to oppoſe the Attempts of the Lancaſtrians. In the 12*th.* of Edward IV. he was firſt ſummon'd to Parliament amongſt the Barons of this Realm. In the 1ſt. of Richard III. he was made Earl Marſhal of England, and the ſame day created Duke of Norfolk (Thomas his Son, being about that time made Earl of Surrey,) beſides other Honours; and the grant of a great many Lordſhips from that Prince, with whom he was ſlain in Boſworth-Field in 1485. And ſoon after Attainted in the Parliament, the 1ſt. of Henry VII*th.* Thomas his Son and Heir, was in 4*th.* of Henry VII. reſtor'd to his Title of Earl of Surrey, and to all thoſe Lands which were his Wife's Inheritance, and was ſeveral times ſent to reſtrain the Incurſions of the Scots, whom at laſt he overthrew in Floden-Field: James IV. of Scotland being ſlain upon the Place, for which Service, this Earl of Surrey had an honourable Augmentation to his Arms, and was made Duke of Norfolk, and having enjoy'd ſeveral other honourable Offices, died in 16*th.* Henry VIII. Anno 1524. He had Eight Sons by Elizabeth his firſt Wife, Thomas created Earl of Surrey in his Life-time, being the Eldeſt, who in the 5*th.* of Henry VIII. was made Lord Admiral: This Earl, at the Fight of Floden-Feild above mention'd, commanded the Van-guard with his Brother Sir Edmond, whom he ſupported, being preſs'd by the Enemy; and in general, behav'd himſelf with great Bravery, in conſideration whereof, he was created Earl of Surrey, and upon his Father's Death, was made General of the Army raiſed againſt the Scots, was ſent Ambaſſador by King Henry VIII. into France, and made Lieutenant-General of all the King's Forces beyond Trent; but after all theſe great Services and Honourable Charges, he had the misfortune to fall under the King's Diſpleaſure, and was committed to the Tower, and had part of his Eſtate ſeiz'd, and 'tis thought, had not the death of the King prevented it, he might have loſt his Head, for both Himſelf and Son were Attainted, by ſpecial Bills in Parliament; in conſequence of which, his Son, the Earl of Surrey, was immediately Beheaded; the Duke was excepted in the General Pardon, publiſhed at the beginning of Edward VI's Reign, and continu'd Priſoner till diſcharg'd by Queen Mary. Henry Earl of Surrey, who was beheaded on Tower-hill, left by Frances his Wife, Daughter to John Earl of Oxford, two Sons, Thomas and Henry, beſides three Daughters; which Thomas upon the Death of his Grandfather, Thomas Duke of Norfolk, ſucceeded him in his Honour and Eſtate. The Act of his Grandfather's Attainder being Repeal'd, the firſt Mariæ; and in the ſecond Year of that Queen he was ſent againſt the Inſurrection, headed by Sir Thomas Wiat. In the firſt of Elizabeth, he was Inſtall'd Knight of the Garter, and two Years after conſtituted Lieutenant General for the Northern parts of the Realm; but in the 11*th.* of Elizabeth, the Queen began to ſuſpect him, as too much enclin'd to the Queen of Scots, whom it was reported he deſign'd to Marry; to which Marriage, the Queen being averſe, the Duke retir'd into Norfolk, with a reſolution notwithſtanding, to purſue his Courtſhip, which being diſcover'd, he was Impriſoned in 14*th.* Elizabeth. And the next Year, viz. 1572. he was brought to his Tryal, his charge amounted to High Treaſon, viz. That he conſpir'd the Dethroning of the Queen, and the bringing in Foreign Forces, That he had apply'd to the Pope and Spaniard for this purpoſe, and that he had endeavour'd the Enlargement of the Queen of Scots. He was found guilty by his Peers, and beheaded on Tower-hill, in the 15*th.* of Elizabeth; Philip his Eldeſt Son was call'd Earl of Arundel, as Owner of Arundel-Caſtle by deſcent from his Mother, which being adjudg'd a local Dignity, he was ſummon'd to Parliament by that Title, held the 23*d.* of Elizabeth, and afterwards by Special Act, reſtor'd in Blood by the ſame Parliament, but not long after by the Contrivance of Robert Earl of Leiceſter, and Secretary Walſingham, this Earl was confin'd to his Houſe, and endeavouring to go beyond Sea for Security and Devotion, being at his Embarking betray'd by ſome of his Servants, was apprehended and ſent Priſoner to the Tower, and ſoon after a Charge was brought againſt him in the Star-

Chamber, for ſupporting Romiſh Prieſts, and holding correſpondence with Jeſuits, for which he was Fin'd Ten Thouſand Pounds, and to ſuffer Impriſonment during the Queen's Pleaſure; but it ſeems this ſeverity was not ſufficient, for in 32 Elizabeth, he was try'd for High Treaſon by his Peers; the particulars of the Treaſon were his contracting a ſtrict Friendſhip with Cardinal Allen, and Parſons the Jeſuit, for reſtoring the Romiſh Religion: That he was privy to the Excommunicating Bull of Pope Sixtus Quintus, and that he caus'd Maſs to be ſaid, for the Succeſs of the Spaniſh Armado; being found guilty, he had Sentence of Death pronounc'd againſt him, but being remanded to the Tower, his Execution was reſpited: He is ſaid to have ſpent the remainder of his Life, in the exerciſes of Auſterity and Devotion, and dy'd a Priſoner in 1595, leaving by Ann his Wife, Daughter to Thomas, and Siſter and Co-heir to George Lord Dacres of Gilleſland, Thomas his only Child; which Thomas was Parliamentarily reſtor'd in Blood, 1ſt Jac. to all the Titles of Honour and Precedence, loſt by his Father Philip's Attainder, and was Inſtall'd Knight of the Garter, 9th. Jac. and in 19th Jac. was conſtituted Earl Marſhal of England for Life. This Noble Earl, a little before the Coronation of King Charles I. was joyn'd in Commiſſion with William Earl of Pembroke to make Knights of the Bath; and in 9 Car. 1ſt. was conſtituted Chief Juſtice of all the Foreſts, North of Trent, being made General of the Army rais'd to march againſt the Scots, 16 Car. 1. and in the 20*th.* Year of the ſame King's Reign, advanc'd to the Title of Earl of Norfolk; afterwards obtaining leave of the King to Travel, he died at Padua in Italy, in 1646. leaving Iſſue by the Lady Alathea, his Wife, one of the Daughters and Co-heirs to Gilbert Earl of Shrewsbury, two Sons. The Firſt, Henry call'd Lord Moubray and Maltravers; The Second, Sir William Howard Knight of the Bath. Henry ſucceeding his Father in his Honours, marry'd Elizabeth, Daughter to Eſme Steward Lord d' Aubignie, and Earl of March, afterwards Duke of Lennox, and by her had Iſſue 9 Sons, viz. Thomas, Henry, Philip, Charles, Talbot, Edward, Francis, BERNARD abovemention'd, and Eſme. Thomas the Eldeſt ſucceeded his Father Henry in his Honours and Titles of Earl of Arundel, Surrey and Norfolk, and 13 Car. II. was reſtored to the Title of Duke of Norfolk, which Honour upon his Deceaſe without Iſſue, deſcended upon his Brother Henry Lord Howard of Caſtleriſing, and is now continued in the Perſon of his Eldeſt Son Henry, the preſent Duke. The Arms of this Illuſtrious Family are, Ruby, a bend betwixt ſix Croſs Croſletts Fitche, Pearle, with an Augmentation in the midſt of the Bend on an Eſcutcheon Topaz, a Demi Lyon Rampant (pierc'd through the Mouth with an Arrow) within a double Treſſure Counter Flory, Ruby.

HOWARD (Henry) youngeſt Son of Henry Howard Earl of Surrey, and Brother to Thomas Duke of Norfolk, beheaded in Queen Elizabeth's Reign; was born at Shoteſham in Norfolk. He was bred in King's-College in Cambridge, and then in Trinity-Hall. Where he became a great and general Scholar; witneſs his large and learned Work, intituled, A Preſervative againſt the Poiſon of ſuppoſed Prophecies, and dedicated to Sir Francis Walſingham. His Fortune left him by his Father being not great, he lived privately all the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, but was at laſt advanced both to Honour and Wealth by King James I. who made him Baron of Marnhill in Dorſetſhire, Earl of Northampton, Lord Privy Seal, Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports, and at laſt Knight of the Garter. He was alſo choſen Chancellor of that Univerſity where he had his Education. In Return whereof he founded and endowed no leſs than three Hoſpitals; one for 12 poor Women and a Governour, at Riſing in Norfolk: Another for 12 poor Men and a Governor, at Clun in Shropſhire: The third at Greenwich in Kent, for a Governor and 20 poor Men, of whom eight are to be choſen out of Shoteſham, his Birth-place. He died without Iſſue, June 15. 1614. and was buried in the ancient Chapel of the Caſtle at Dover. I conclude with the Elogy given him in his Days; That he was the Learnedeſt amongſt the Nobility, and the moſt Noble amongſt the Learned.

HOWARD (Henry) the preſent Duke of Norfolk, Earl of Arundel, Surrey and Norwich, and Earl-Marſhal of England, has inherited all theſe Titles and Dignities upon the Deceaſe of his Father Henry the late Duke of Norfolk, &c. Of whom more at large under Bernard Howard, where you will find the Pedigree of this Noble Family ſtated. He marry'd the Earl of Peterborough's Daughter, by whom he has no Iſſue; and from whom (after he had been married near 20 Years) he procur'd a Divorce in Parliament this preſent Year 1700. See the Tryal of the Dutcheſs of Norfolk. He has a Brother, the Lord Thomas Howard.

HOWARD (Henry) the preſent Earl of Stafford, is the Son of William the late Viſcount Stafford, ſecond Son of Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey, who was the Son of Philip, the eldeſt Son of Thomas Duke of Norfolk. Which William, Knight of the Bath, having to Wife a Daughter of Henry Stafford, who died without Iſſue, was by King Charles I. created Viſcount Stafford in 1640. who being found guilty of High Treaſon in the Heat of the Popiſh Plot, Decemb. 7. 1680. was beheaded upon Tower-Hill, Dec. 29. following. But the Title was by King James II. rais'd to that of Earl in the Perſon of Henry, his Son and Heir, the preſent Earl of Stafford.

HOWARD (Philip) Earl of Arundel and Surrey, was the eldeſt Son of Thomas Duke of Norfolk, and Nephew of Henry his Brother aforeſaid. One thing he is of ſpecial Note for; which is, his being a Patron of Antiquaries and Antiquity: Of whoſe old Pieces he was the greateſt Hoarder in Europe, ſetting aſide Ferdinand de Medicis; from whom he borrowed many an antick Sculpture, to make up what Selden calls Marmora Arundeliana. The Lord Burleigh ('tis ſaid) had the moſt compleat Library for a Politician; the Lord Bacon for a Philoſopher; Mr. Selden for an Hiſtorian; Archbiſhop Uſher for a Divine; Henry Howard Earl of Northampton for a Poet; Mr. Oughtred for a Mathematician; Dr. Hammond for a Grammarian, or Univerſal Critick; and the Earl of Arundel for an Herald, or Antiquary.

HOWARD (George) the preſent Earl of Suffolk, Brother of James the late Earl, is the Grandchild of Thomas, ſecond Son to Thomas the late Duke of Norfolk, who before the Reſtauration of the Title, in 27. Eliz. he was by Act of Parliament reſtored in Blood, and in 39. Eliz. ſummoned to Parliament, by the Title of Lord Howard of Walden. King James I. upon his coming to the Crown, made choice of him for one of his Privy Council, and next Year created him Earl of Suffolk. After this he was made Lord Chamberlain of the King's Houſhold; and next, Lord Treaſurer. In which great Office he continued ſix Years, and was ſucceeded by Sir Henry Montague, Lord Chief Juſtice of the King-Bench. He was alſo Knight of the Garter: And by him was built the ſtately Houſe, called Audley-End, near Walden in Suffolk. He departed this Life, An. 1626. leaving his Eſtate and Title to his eldeſt Son Theophilus, the ſecond Earl of Suffolk; who was inſtalled Knight of the Garter in the Beginning of King Charles I's Reign. He married Elizabeth, Daughter and Co-Heir to George Lord Hume of Berwick, Earl of Dunbar in Scotland. He died in 1640. and was ſucceeded by James, his eldeſt Son: Who dying without Iſſue Male, as did alſo his Brother Thomas, the Title and Eſtate fell to George, the preſent Earl of Suffolk.

HOWARD (Thomas,) the preſent Earl of Berkſhire, Brother of Charles the late Earl, is the Son of Thomas, ſecond Son of Thomas Howard Earl of Suffolk: So that the Earls of Berkſhire are a ſecond Branch of the Houſe of Suffolk. Thomas, the Father of the preſent Earl, was advanced to that Dignity by King James I. who firſt conferred upon him the Titles of Lord Howard of Charlton and Viſcount Andover, and afterwards that of Earl of Berkſhire. He was likewiſe inſtalled Knight of the Garter, died in July, 1669. and was ſucceeded by his eldeſt Son Charles: Who departing this Life 10 Years after, without Iſſue Male, left his Eſtate and Title to Thomas, his next Brother, the preſent Earl of Berkſhire.

HOWARD (Catharine) Daughter to the Lord Edmund Howard, Son to Thomas Duke of Norfolk, was the fifth Wife of King Henry VIII. She was Couſin-German to Ann Bullen, his ſecond Wife; ſhe was one of the two Queens that were beheaded, and her Incontinency (if all be true) was that which coſt her her Life. Such as deſire to know, in few Words, what became of that King's ſix Wives, may conceive him thus ſpeaking on his Death-bed:

Three Kates, two Nans, and one dear Jane I wedded;
One Spaniſh, one Dutch, and four Engliſh Wives:
From two I was divorc'd, two I beheaded,
One dy'd in Child-bed, and one me ſurvives.

HOWARD (Charles) the preſent Earl of Carliſle, Son of Edward lately deceaſed, is deſcended from William, the third Son of Thomas Duke of Norfolk, who was beheaded in Queen Elizabeth's Reign; and being reſtored in Blood by Act of Parliament, 1 Jac. I. had Iſſue Sir Philip, his eldeſt Son; who dying in his Father's Life-time, left his Son Sir William, whoſe Son Charles ſucceeded next; and having been highly inſtrumental for the Reſtauration of King Charles II. was in conſideration thereof, created by that King Lord Dacres of Gilleſland, Viſcount Howard of Morpeth, and Earl of Carliſle: He was alſo made one of His Majeſty's Moſt Honourable Privy Council. In the Year 1663. the King ſent him in three ſplendid Embaſſies; to the late Czar of Moſcovy, Charles IX. the preſent King of Sweden, and Frederick III. the late King of Denmark. Some Years after he was ſent again with the ſame Character to the King of Sweden, to whom he then carried the Order of the Garter. Afterwards he was made Governor of Jamaica, where he continued ſome Years. Being returned from thence, he died, leaving both his Eſtate and Title to his eldeſt Son Edward, the late deceaſed Earl of Carliſle; ſucceeded by Charles his Son, the preſent Earl of Carliſle, lately married to a Daughter of the late Earl of Eſſex.

HOWARD (Francis) Lord Effingham, a Baron of England, is the eldeſt Son of the late Sir Charles Howard of Great Buckham in the County of Surrey, Son and Heir to Sir Francis Howard, Brother and Heir to Sir Edward Howard, Cup-bearer to King James I. Son and Heir to William Howard of Lingfield in Surrey, ſecond Son to William Lord Howard of Effingham, Son to Thomas the ſecond Duke of Norfolk of this Houſe. Which Lord William being both valiant and loyal, was ſent twice by King Henry VIII. Ambaſſador to the King of Scots; and was one of his Attendants to Calais, and ſo to Boulogne, at ſuch time as he was magnificently received there by Francis I. King of France. He was alſo ſent Ambaſſador into France: From which Embaſſy being newly returned, upon the Diſcovery of the unhappy Deportment of his Niece, Queen Catharine Howard, he and his Wife, and the old Dutcheſs of Norfolk, were all indicted for Miſpriſion of Treaſon, in concealing what they knew of that Queen's Behaviour therein, and condemned to perpetual Impriſonment; but were at length, through the King's Favour, enlarged. In the Reign of King Edward VI. he was made Deputy of Calais: And Queen Mary had him in ſuch Eſteem, that in the firſt Year of her Reign he was made by her a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Howard of Effingham; and afterwards Lord Admiral of England, Ireland and Wales, and Lord Chamberlain of her Houſhold: In which laſt Office he was continued by Queen Elizabeth, upon her coming to the Crown; who employed him in great Places of Truſt, both Civil and Military; and made him Knight of the Garter. To him we owe, in a great meaſure, the Diſcovery of the North-Eaſt Paſſage by Sea to Archangel in Moſcovy; the Attempt whereof he encouraged very much, both with his Purſe and Countenance. He married twice, and by Margaret, his ſecond Wife, had Iſſue (amongſt others) Charles, who ſucceeded him, not only in his Honours, but alſo in the Queen's Favour; for he was conſtituted his Succeſſor in the Office of Lord Chamberlain of her Houſhold, and (upon the Death of Edward Earl of Lincoln) Lord High Admiral of England. After the Spaniſh Invaſion was over, Her Majeſty, in conſideration of his eminent Services in the Defence of this Realm againſt the Spaniſh Armada, in ſacking of Cadiz in Spain, and deſtroying the Spaniſh Fleet there in Port, created him Earl of Nottingham, as deſcended from the Mowbrays, whereof ſome had been Earls of that County. In the firſt Year of King James I. he was made Lord High Steward, for the ſolemnity of that King's Coronation: And the next Year, upon renewing the Commiſſion unto ſeven of the great Lords for the Office of Earl Marſhal, he was conſtituted one of that Number. His next Succeſſor was Charles, his ſurviving Son by Catharine, his firſt Wife; who left but one Son, alſo Charles by Name, the laſt Earl of Nottingham of this Family. Upon whoſe deceaſe, his Title of Baron fell to Francis the preſent Lord Effingham.

HOWARD (William) Lord Howard of Eſcrick, younger Brother of Thomas, who died without Iſſue Male, is the ſecond Son of Sir Edward Howard, Knight of the Bath; who was the ſeventh Son of Thomas Howard, the firſt Earl of Suffolk of this Family. So that the Howards of Eſcrick are the youngeſt Branch of the Houſe of Suffolk. Which Sir Edward was by King Charles I. made a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Howard of Eſcrick in the County of York, by reaſon he had that Lordſhip from his Father the Earl of Suffolk. He married Mary, a Daughter of John Lord Butler of Bramfield in Herefordſhire, by whom he had Iſſue three Sons, Thomas, William and Cecil; beſides Ann, his Daughter, who was married to Charles Howard, the firſt Earl of Carliſle of that Family. He died in April 1675, and was buried at the Savoy in the Strand. To whom ſucceeded Thomas, his eldeſt Son; who dying without Iſſue, the Title fell to his next Brother William, now Lord Howard of Eſcrick.

HOWDEN, a Market Town of Howden-Wapentake in the Eaſt-Riding of Yorkſhire; which gives Name to the adjacent Territory, from hence called Howdenſhire.

HOWSON (John) firſt Biſhop of Oxford, and afterwards of Durham; is famous for his learned Book, treating, in which Caſe a Divorce is lawful; his Sermons againſt Sacrilege, and the Pope's Supremacy; which were enjoined on him by King James I. to clear himſelf of the Aſperſion of favouring Popery. He died Anno 1631.

HOYE, a Town of Weſtphalia in Germany, on the River Weſer, chief of a little Country belonging to the Duke of Brunſwick, with the Title of an Earldom. This is alſo the Name of one of the Orkney-Iſlands.

HOZIER (Peter) of Provence in France, the King's Councellor and Genealogiſt, Judge and Intendant-General of the Heraldry of France; was illuſtrious for his Learning, and prodigious Memory; which was ſuch, that he ſtudied about fifty Years, and ſcarcely ever forgot any thing that he had learned. He died in 1660.

St. HUBERT, Biſhop of Maeſtricht and Liege, Son of Bertrand Duke of Aquitain, married Floribane, and had Iſſue by her Floribert, who ſucceeded him in his Biſhoprick. His delight in Hunting, for which he would neglect Divine Service, was the occaſion of his Converſion, as the Story goeth: For a Stag, having a Crucifix betwixt his horns, appeared to him; and he heard a Voice foretelling his Eternal Damnation, except he ſhould be converted. This happened in the Foreſt of Ardenne; or, as others ſay, near the River Seine, when he was ſtill at Court. However, he reſolved to become a Church-man, and went to Rome, where Pope Sergius I. made him Biſhop of Maeſtricht, after Lambert's Death. His Veneration for Lambert, his Predeceſſor, who was buried at Liege, obliged him to remove the Biſhop's See to that little Borough, which is become ſince one of the moſt powerful Cities of Lower Germany. This See had formerly been removed from Tongres to Maeſtricht, and Hubert transferred it to Liege, which he begun to enlarge with new Buildings; and giving the Name of City unto it, he ordered its Seal to be St. Lambert's Image, with this Inſcription, Sancta Legio, Romanæ Eccleſiæ filia; that is, The holy Liege, the Roman Church's Daughter: Therefore he was called by ſome, The Founder, and firſt Biſhop of Liege; tho' of this Biſhoprick, as a continuation of that of Tongres and Maeſtricht, he was the Thirtieth. He died in 727, or, as others ſay, in 730, and about 100 Years after his Death, by the Order of a Council held at Aix-la-Chapelle, his Body was removed to a famous Monaſtery of St. Benedict, in Ardenna-Foreſt, named Ardain; and that Place has kept ever ſince the Name of St. Hubert. Thither are all thoſe carried that have been bitten by mad Dogs, or other mad Creatures; and their Foreheads being cut, a little piece of this Prelate's Stole is ſhut up in the Inciſion, which after cures them, if we may believe ſome currant Reports, which alſo inform us, That all this Biſhop's Relations have the Faculty of healing Madneſs; as it is reported, that the Falling-ſickneſs is cured by St. Martin's Poſterity. But Moreri brands theſe things with Superſtition. Thiers Traité des ſuperſtitions.

HUBERT de Burgo, Lord Chamberlain to King John, and Lord Chief Juſtice of England; famous in our Chronicles for defending the Caſtle of Dover valiantly, againſt Lewis the French King's Son; and defeating alſo, in a Sea-Fight, a new ſupply of Soldiers that were ſent him.

HUDSON (Henry) one of our great Navigators, who, in 1609, was ſent to the North Parts of America, in order to find out a ſhorter Paſſage that way to the Eaſt-Indies. 'Tis from him that Hudſon's-Streights and Bay are denominated, which he diſcovered An. 1612. The firſt called a Streight, not for the Narrowneſs of it, for it is of a large Extent, but as a Paſſage leading into the Bay. The Streight runs from Eaſt to Weſt, North of Eſtotiland, or Terra di Laborador; and the Bay runs Southward from it, to the very Borders of Canada, or New France.

HUDSON's Streights: See Hudſon (Henry.)

HUDWICKWALDT, a City or Town in the Province of Helſing, in the Kingdom of Sweden, on the Baltick Sea, towards the Province of Middlepad.

HUED-IL BARBAR, a great River of Barbary in Africa, whoſe Fountain is in the great Atlas, near Lorbus, in the Kingdom of Tunis. It runs with ſo many windings and turnings through thoſe Mountains, that Travellers going from Bone to Tunis, muſt croſs it 25 times without Bridges and Boats. It abounds in Coral, and falls into the Mediterranean Sea near the Haven of Taburc. Marmol.

HUESCA, a Town of Arragon, on the River Iſuela, with a Biſhoprick ſuffragan to Terragona, and now to Saragoſſa. It was formerly called Oſca Illergetum; and is different from Hueſca, a Kingdom of New Caſtile. The Council of Hueſca was held in 598. Read the XIVth Volume of the Councils of the Louvre-Edition.

HUGH de Balſham, Biſhop of Ely in the XIIIth Century, took the Name of Balſham, an ancient Village in Cambridgeſhire, where he was born, according to the Cuſtom of Clergy-Men in that Age. He founded Peter-Houſe in the Univerſity of Cambridge, beſtowing ſome Lands upon it, which are ſince much augmented by other Benefactors. This foundation he finiſhed, An. 1284. and died in 1286. having ſate 28 Years in the See. Peter-Houſe is ſaid to be the firſt built College in England, but not firſt endowed.

HUGH Capet, Count of Paris and Orleans, Duke, and afterwards King of France, was the Son of Hugh the Great; who dying, left him under the Protection of Richard I. Duke of Normandy. They deſcended by the Males from Pepin the Great, by the Count Childebrand, and by the Females from Clovis. Lothaire K. of France, pleaſed with this Hugh's Prudence and Generoſity, gave him in 960 the Dukedom of France, with the Earldom of Paris and Poitou. When he was dying, he recommended to him his Son Lewis V. named The Lazy; who dying 15 or 16 Months after his Father, Hugh Capet, being beloved by the French, was proclaimed King at Noyon, and crowned at Rheims, An. 987. Charles I. Duke of Lorrain, Son of Lewis IV. called D'Outre Mer, was the only Man left of the Royal Blood of France; but his Love for the Germans, and the Homage he had payed the Emperor, made him odious to the French. So endeavouring to recover his Right, he was taken at Laon, and ſent to Orleans by Hugh, who by his Prudence pacified the Kingdom. Six Months after his Coronation, he aſſociated his Son Robert to the Crown, and they governed conjointly till An. 997. that he died. He was named Capet for his good Head-piece, as ſome Authors ſay; and was the Head of the Third Race of the Kings of France, named The Capetans. His Piety got him the Title of Defender of the Church; and his Prudence the Title of Reſtorer of the State. Read the Authors of the French Hiſtory, quoted by Du Cheſne, Dragon, &c. See Charles I. Duke of Lorrain, and Childebrand.

HUGH, Earl and Marquis of Provence, King of Arles, and afterwards of Italy. The Italians being weary of Rodolphus crowned him; but having reigned 20 Years, he was forſaken by his Subjects, becauſe of his ill Conduct; for he had married Marozia, his Siſter-in-Law, and pluck'd out his Brethren's Eyes, &c. He went back into Provence, An. 940. and died a Year after in a Monaſtery. Lothaire, his Son, was alſo King of Italy. Luitprand. lib. 4. & 5. Flodoard in Chron.

HUGH, called the Abbot, the White, and the Great, Duke of France and Burgundy, Earl of Paris, &c. Son of Robert III. famous in the Hiſtory of France. He endeavoured to call in Lewis D'Outremer, whom he met at Boulogne, and cauſed him to be crowned at Laon. He aſſiſted Richard I. Duke of Normandy, againſt his rebellious Subjects. Afterwards he joined the King againſt the ſame Duke; and took the Duke's part again, whom he obliged in 945 to ſet the King at liberty. Lewis being reconciled to him, made him Duke of Burgundy and Aquitain: So without Scepter he reigned above 20 Years, lov'd by ſome, fear'd by others, and admired by all. He died at Paris in 956, leaving, by his laſt Wife, Haduvige or Avoie, Hugh Capet King of France, before-mentioned; Othon and Eudes, and two Daughters. He was ſurnamed the White, for his Complexion; the Great, for his Power and Stature; and the Abbot, for holding the Abbies of St. Denys, nys, St. Germain des Prez, and St. Martin of Tours. Flodoard. in Chron. &c.

HUGH, called the Baſtard, Natural Son of Lothaire King of Lorrain, by Valdrade, invited the Normans into France, ravaged Lorrain, and plagued the Nation. Charles the Fat put out his Eyes in 885, and confined him to the Monaſtery of St. Gall, and thence ſent him to Prum, where he died.

HUGH, Biſhop of Die, afterwards Archbiſhop of Lyons the Pope's Legate, one of the moſt illuſtrious Prelates of the XIth Century, was Preſident in eight Councils held in ſeveral Places. He died about 1106. Baronius in Annal.

HUGH, of St. Victor of Saxony. A regular Canon of St. Auſtin, was called a ſecond Auſtin, becauſe of his great Wit and Learning. He compoſed many Books, and died in 1139. Pleſſis Mornay, and other Proteſtant Authors, cite him, as an enemy to Tranſubſtantiation.

HUGUENOTS, a Nick-name given to the French Calviniſts, by the Papiſts: Some ſay, from Hugos-Gate, in the City of Tours, where they uſed to meet at firſt; or from King Hugo's Ghoſt, which was ſaid to appear often by Night in that Town, becauſe they met in the Night. But Charles IX. forbad this Name by an Edict. Hoffman.

HUGUES (William) Archbiſhop of Ambrun, born at Pajols in Languedoc, employed by Henry the Great, in ſeveral Negotiations in Italy, Germany and England, died in 1648. He was very ſerviceable in the Match of Elizabeth of France with the King of Spain; and of the Princeſs Henrietta Catharine, with Charles I. of England, whither he accompanied her, and was ſo acceptable to King James I. that Morery ſays, he gave him leave to Confirm 10000 Roman Catholicks. St. Marth. Chorier.

HUGUES de St. Cker, Cardinal, flouriſhed in the XIIIth Age, and is much eſteemed for his Commentaries on, and Concordance of the Bible. He was born in Provence.

HULL, the Name of a Town and River in the Eaſt-Riding of Yorkſhire. The River, which gives Name to the Town, runs from North to South into the Humber. The Town, otherwiſe called Kingſton upon Hull, is ſeated upon the Weſt Bank of the River, and on the North-ſide of the Humber, about 12 Miles from the Spurn-head, where the Humber diſimbogues it ſelf into the Sea. This is one of the chief Places in the whole County of York, tho' of no great Antiquity. It was built by Edward I. and by him called Kingſton. He made the Harbour to it, and granted the Town a Charter, with ſuch Privileges as made it quickly flouriſh. A large Town to this day, tho' containing but two Pariſh Churches. Graced with fair Buildings, and well-adorn'd Streets, beſides a Key and Cuſtom-houſe by the Water-ſide; and ſo well fortified with Walls, Ditches, Forts, and a Caſtle, that it is look'd upon as one of the ſtrongeſt Holds in the Kingdom. 'Tis a Borough-Town, and a County of it ſelf. Its chief Magiſtrate from a Warden, became a Bailiff, and from a Bailiff, a Mayor, in the Reign of Henry VI. Here King Charles I. laid up a Magazine of Arms and Ammunition for the North in 1642. But when the King came to take Poſſeſſion of it, Sir John Hotham, then Governor, traiterouſly deny'd him Enterance, and his Conduct was juſtified by the rebellious Parliament. Robert Pierpont, Baron of Holm, and Viſcount Newark, was created Earl of Kingſton upon Hull by King Charles I. An. 1628. To whom ſucceeded in 43, Henry Pierpont his Son, and next to him Evelyn, the preſent Earl of Kingſton.

HULST, in the Earldom of Flanders. The chief Town of the Country of Waes, four Leagues from Ghent and Antwerp, under the Dutch, and well fortified.

HUMA, or UMA, a Town of Sweden, at the Mouth of a River of the ſame Name, which gives denomination to the adjacent part of Lapland, which is called Vma Lapmark. Baudr.

HUMAGO CISSA, an Iſland near Iſtria in Italy.

HUMAIN SIGA, a City of Mauritania in Africa.

HUMBEL, or HUMBLE, Lat. Homelia, a ſmall River in Hantſhire, which has its Source near Buſhwaltham; and taking its courſe by Botely, forms the Haven called Humble Haven, Eaſt of St. Andrew's Caſtle, over-againſt the Iſle of Wight.

HUMBER, a large River that parts Yorkſhire from Lincolnſhire. This River has no Spring of her own, but is a compound, or rather the Mouth of ſeveral Rivers joined in one ſtream, called the Humber. The chief place ſeated upon it, is Hull in Yorkſhire, and Barton on the other ſide in Lincolnſhire, where it is of a great breadth, and widens it ſelf more and more, till it falls into the Sea.

HUMBERT I. of that Name, Dauphin of Viennois, of the Family de la Tour du Pin, maintained a War againſt Savoy, and was eſteemed by all the Princes of his time. He died in the Carthuſian Habit in 1307. John his Son ſucceeded him. Du Cheſne hiſt. de Dauph.

HUMBERT II. Dauphin, ſucceeded his Brother Guigues XII. killed in 1333. John, Son of Humbert I. was their Father. Humbert II. had by Mary de Baux, Andrew; but playing with him at a Palace-window at Grenoble, he let the Child fall down into the River Iſere. He was afterwards declared General of a Croiſade, againſt the Infidels, but had no ſucceſs; for he was a Man of no great Conduct, tho' courageous. At his return, he gave Dauphiné to Philip de Valois in 1343, which Gift was confirmed in 1349, on condition, That the Eldeſt Sons of France ſhould be called Dauphins. Afterwards he retired into a Dominican Monaſtery, and turn'd Monk in 1351. After which he was made Prieſt, and then Patriarch of Alexandria, Prior of the Dominicans at Paris, and Perpetual Adminiſtrator of the Archbiſhoprick of Rheims, and died at Clermont in Auvergne in 1354. Du Cheſne hiſt. des Dauphins.

HUMBERT I. ſurnamed White-hands, Count of Maurienne and Savoy. Reigned about 1021 or 1025, and founded the Royal Houſe of Savoy. Some Hiſtorians derive his Pedigree from Bozon King of Provence, others from Hugues of Italy; others from the ancient Earls of Macon, or from the Marquiſſes of Ivre; others, as Mr. Guichenon, from Beroald of Saxony; others from the Emperor Lewis, &c. See Savoy. He died in 1048, and left by Ancilie or Hancille, Amedeus I. Odo who ſucceeded his Brother Amedeus, and a Daughter. Paradin and Guichenon hiſt. de Savoy.

HUMBERT II. of Savoy, ſucceeded his Father Amedeus II. in 1095. He inlarged his Dominions, went into the Holy Land, and died in 1103. He left Amedeus III. who ſucceeded him. Guichenon hiſt. de Savoy.

HUMBERT III. Duke of Savoy, named the Saint, ſucceeded his Father Amedeus III. had War with the Princes of Dauphiné, and took part with Pope Alexander III. againſt the Emperor Frederick I. He died in 1188, and left, by his third Wife, Beatrice. Thomas, who ſucceeded him. Guichenon hiſt. de Savoy.

HUMBERT, call'd by others Hubert, was, for his Learning and Abilities, made a Cardinal, by Pope Leo IX. and ſent as his Legate to Conſtantinople. 'Tis ſaid, he drew up the Form of Abjuration made by Berengarius, at a Council held at Rome in 1059. Humbert wrote ſeveral Treatiſes againſt the Greek Church, as De Azymo & Fermentato, An Anſwer to the Monk Nicetas, &c. Lanfranc in Lib. de Corp. & Sang. Domini. Sigebert de Vir. Illuſt. cap. 150.

HUMBLED, a Religious Order, founded by ſome Gentlemen of Milan; who returning from the Captivity, wherein they had been kept by the Emperor Conrade; or, as others ſay, by Frederick Barbaroſſa, in 1162, liv'd in Community under the Rules of St. Benedict, which Congregation was approved by the Pope. And in the laſt Century, Charles Borromee their Protector, perceiving many Abuſes amongſt them, as ninety Monaſteries, containing not above 170 Religious Perſons, endeavoured to reform them, but was ſhot at by one Hierom Donat, ſurnamed Farira, at the inſtigation of the Order; which attempt cauſed Pius V. to aboliſh it in 1570. Spon. An. C. 1199. Thuan. lib. 50. Godeau lib. 1.

HUME, or HUME-CASTLE, in Scotland, not far from the Borders. Gariſoned in the Reign of King Edward VI. by the Engliſh, who annoyed the Neighbourhood by their Excurſions: But the Scots, obſerving that the Caſtle was but careleſly guarded by Night, got up to the top of a Rock, where the confidence of the unacceſſibleneſs of the place, made thoſe within leſs watchful; and ſo killing the Centinels, they ſurprized the Caſtle. There is alſo a Caſtle of that Name in Vlſter, a Province of Ireland.

HUME, the Name of a Barony, and ſtrong Caſtle of Berwickſhire, or the County of the Mers in Scotland; the Seat of an Ancient Noble Family, which aſſumed it for Surname, according to the Cuſtom of thoſe Times; being, originally, a Branch of the Earl of March's Family, vide MARCH. The Lord Hume was the Primary Lord Baron of Scotland, by the Right of the Heireſs of the Lord Lendall, which ſee. The Family of Hume became very potent and numerous, having many conſiderable Branches. Two Lords of Hume were in the Times of King James III. and King James IV. Great Chamberlains of Scotland, an Office of High Power and Grandeur, and Lord Wardens of the three Marches of Scotland; the Family being Hereditary Wardens of the Eaſt March, until the Kingdoms came under one King. It continued in the Rank of Lords, till Alexander was created Earl of Hume, by K. James VI. when he came to the Crown of England. This King, ſpeaking of the Power of the Scots Nobility, uſed to ſay, That albeit many of them had great followings of Men, yet he had obſerved none, who upon his Call could, in 24 hours time, bring 1200 Horſemen, well Armed and Mounted, to the Abbey of Holyrood-houſe, the ordinary place of his Court, in the City of Edinburgh, ſave the Lord Hume only. There are, beſides the Earl of Hume, Nobility of that Surname, the Earl of Dunbar: Vide DUNBAR. And the Lord Polwarth: Vide POLWARTH.

HUNAIM, a Sea Port of Barbary, W. from Oran, and fourteen Miles from Tremeſen. It was built by the Africans. Hath a ſmall Haven, ſecured by two Turrets, and a high and beautiful Wall next the Haven. It was the chief Port of the Kingdom of Tremeſen, after Oran was taken by the Spaniards, and much frequented by the Venetians and Genoeſe for Cotton, Linen, &c. The Houſes are ſtately, each having a Fountain, and plenty of Bowers made by their Vines. The adjacent Fields abound with Cherries, Peaches, Figs, Olives, and other Fruits. Leo Africanus.

HUNDESFELDA, a Town of Sileſia in Germany, on the River Weida, in the Dutchy of Olſnen, a German League from Vratiſlavia to the Eaſt. Memorable for the defeat of the Emperor Henry V. by Boleſlaus King of Poland in 1109. Baudr.

HUNERIC, HONORIC, or UGNERIC, King of the Vandals in Africa, ſucceeded his Father Genſeric in 476. He was an Arian, and very cruel to the Orthodox. He baniſhed in all 4966 Churchmen, and put near 400000 Perſons to death very barbarouſly, at the Inſtigation of the Arian Biſhops: Theodorick, his Brother, and his Children, the Patriarch of the Arians, and all thoſe whom he ſuſpected were the Victims of his Cruelty. He died An. 485. eaten up with Worms that came out of all Parts of his Body, as Victor Vticenſis ſaith. Gregory of Tours writes, that being frantick, he eat up his own Hands. And Iſidorus adds, that his Entrails came out of his Body, and that he ended like Arius whoſe Sect he would have eſtabliſh'd by ſo many Maſſacres. Greg. de Tours, lib. 2. cap. 3. Hiſt.

HUNGARY, an Elective Kingdom of Europe, now partly under the Turks, and partly under the Houſe of Auſtria, that has made it almoſt Hereditary. It lies between the 39th. and 47th. Degree of Longitude, and from the 45th. to the 49th. of Northern Latitude.

Its Names, Bounds, Diviſions, Lakes and Mountains.

This Kingdom, part of the ancient Pannonia, is called Magiar, by the Turks; Wiergieska, by the Sclavonians; Hungarland, by the Germans; Onberia, by the Italians and Spaniards, and Hongrie, and Hungary, by the French and Engliſh. 'Tis bounded by Tranſilvania on the Eaſt, by Poland and Ruſſia on the North, by Moravia, Auſtria and Styria on the Weſt, and by Servia and Boſnia on the South. It is ſquare, and its four Corners front the four Parts of the World. 'Tis divided into High and Low Hungary; the High is beyond the Danube, towards Poland and Tranſilvania; the Low is on the other ſide of the Danube. There were formerly above 77 Earldoms, and now there are not above 50 in it. The chief Rivers are, the Danube, the Drave, the Save, the Teys or Tibisk, of which, 'tis commonly ſaid, that two Parts are Water, and the third Fiſh; the Raab, the Vag, the Gran, the Sarvibze, &c. The higheſt Mountains, are Crapach or Carpathian, Mountains towards Poland and Tranſilvania. The richeſt are betwixt Buda and Strigonia.

The Towns, Countries and Inhabitants.

Buda, is the chief Town of Hungary. The Air is unhealthful, chiefly to Strangers; ſo that it is not ſafe to encamp in one place above a Month; and it breeds abundance of Vermin. The Waters, except that of the Danube, are not good; and the Author de Mirabilibus Hungariæ obſerves, That there are ſome Springs whoſe Water is Mortal, increaſing and decreaſing with the Moon, and is quite dried up when the Moon is full. There are alſo ſome Springs which change Wood to Stone, and Iron to Mud, whence is afterwards made the beſt Copper; hot in Winter, frozen in Summer. Others whoſe Water is ſowriſh and ſalt. They have alſo Baths and Medicinal Waters. In the Country of Zolien there is alſo a Gulph, whoſe Peſtilential Vapours kill the very Birds that fly over it. There are many Salt, Gold, Silver, Copper and Iron Mines. The Soil is very fruitful, ſo that 'tis thought, Hungary could ſupply all Europe with Corn. The Paſture Grounds are wonderfully good, and there is ſuch plenty of Fowls, Fiſhes, Veniſon and Cattle, that Country People live commonly on Wild Boars and Stags; a Thouſand Carps have been ſold under eight Shillings, and more than 80000 Oxen have been driven, in one Year, out of Hungary to Vienna. The Hungarians, are good Soldiers, but cruel, proud, revengeful; and ſo divided amongſt themſelves, that it is no wonder, if they be expoſed to the Barbarians. They ſpeak all kind of Languages, and chiefly Latin, which is familiar to them. The Gentlemen are very Noble and Great lovers of Horſes, Hunting and Feaſting. They hate the Germans, though the Nobles ſeem to ſtick to the Houſe of Auſtria, to ſave themſelves from the Oppreſſions of the Turks, who value a Peaſant as much as a Gentleman. Their greateſt ſtrength conſiſts in Light-horſe, which are called Huſſars, and their Foot Soldiers Heiduques.

Their Government and Religion.

Julius Cæſar, was the firſt Roman that attacked Hungary, and Tiberius ſubdued it. The Goths afterwards took it, and this Kingdom became a Prey to the Huns and Lombards, who were turn'd out of it by the Hongres, a People of Scythia, who lived moſtly on Blood. Thoſe that ſpeak of Hungary, reckon Balamer or Balamber, among its Kings. They reckon alſo Aptar, and the two Brothers, Bleda kill'd in 444, and Attila, named the Plague of God, who died An. 453, having left ſeveral Remains of his Expeditions into others Parts of Europe, with his Huns (who were Scythians mixt with Turks, Tartars, Avares and Alans) as Huningen, Hunaldſtein, and many other places of Germany, beginning with the Word Hun. Attila's Children, by their Diviſions, loſt their Father's Conqueſts. About 744, the Huns made another Incurſion into Pannonia, now Hungary, under one Alme, who had Arphad for Succeſſor, Theſe gave the name to Hungary. Zultan deſcended from Arphad, is ſaid to have been Toxis's Father, who begot Geiza, Father to St. Stephen, Crowned in 1000 or 1020, by whom begins the Chronological Succeſſion of the Kings of Hungary. Since that, they were peaceably governed by their own Kings, until Lewis the Great's Death, whoſe Daughter and Heireſs married Sigiſmond of Luxembourg, Emperor, but his Government being not liked, they called in Charles Duras King of Naples, and Stephen Vayvode of Tranſilvania, combined with Bajazet I. Emperor of the Turks. Thus Hungary's Misfortunes began, and ſince 1394, it has almoſt all along been the Seat of War; and became a Prey to the Turks, chiefly under Amurath, Solyman, &c. This Elective Kingdom, is almoſt made Hereditary, ſince the death of Lewis the Young, killed at the Battel of Mohacs in 1526. At which time, the Turks rifled Buda, and burnt the Library of Matthias. John de Zapol, Earl of Scepus, was ſaluted King by part of the Hungarians, and Ferdinand of Auſtria, by the other part, but the laſt carried it. The Clergy, the Barons, the Nobles, and the Royal and Free-Towns, make four Bodies or States. In 1687, when Joſeph the Emperor's Son was Crown'd King of Hungary, the States conſented that the Crown ſhould be Hereditary in the Auſtrian Family, and gave up an Article of the Declaration of King Andrew, by vertue of which, each of the three States had a Right to oppoſe the King, when he contraven'd the Laws of the Kingdom, without being reputed Offenders, for taking up Arms and not ſubmitting to his Orders. Now the States, (ſays the Author of Count Tekeley's Life) by relaxing upon this Article, made the King abſolute Maſter of the Goods and Lives of the Hungarians. Memoirs of Count Tekeley, Lib. 3. p. 81. Their Religion is as different, as their Manners fantaſtical. Roman Catholicks, Proteſtants of all Communions, beſides Jews and Mahometans live there. The Hungarians were converted to Chriſtianity by Giſle, St. Henry's Siſter, married to their King St. Stephen.

Authors that ſpeak of Hungary.

The Chief are, Bonfinius, Æneas Sylvius, Goretius, Shodel, Peter Ranzan, Theuet, and Paul Jove in Matt. Corv. and Huniad. The Emperor has lately re-taken great part of what the Turks did poſſeſs in Hungary. The States are to meet once in three Years, according to the Laws of the Country; and they have Right to Elect the Palatine, who by the Laws of the Land, is to be a Hungarian, and has the whole direction of the War and Judicature. Nevertheleſs, Croatia, Dependent of Hungary, has a Vice-Roy, who has as much Authority as the Palatine. Styria has alſo a peculiar Governor. The Inhabitants are more inclined to War than Trading, or Arts. The Nobles are only ſtately in their Gardens and Baths, and provided their Palaces be large, they care not how ill furniſhed they be. There are two Archbiſhopricks, viz. Strigonia and Colonitz, and 16 Biſhopricks, five under that of Strigonia, eight, whoſe Biſhops are ſuffragan, to Colonitz, and three under the Archbiſhop of Spalatro in Dalmatia. The Arch-Duke Joſeph, the Emperor's Son, was Crowned King of Hungary in 1687. And in caſe the Houſe of Auſtria ſhould fail, the Branch of Spain is to ſucceed to the Crown. The moſt remarkable things at the Coronation of the Arch-Duke Joſeph (their 50th. King from St. Stephen, who begun his Reign An. 1000.) were that 10 Hungarian Lords went before him, each carrying a Standard repreſenting the 10 Provinces which depend on that Crown. The Arch-Duke made an open Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Faith, then was covered with St. Stephen's Royal Cloak, and had the Crown put on his Head, he taking an Oath to preſerve the Privileges of the Kingdom. Mounting his Horſe afterwards, he rode full Career to another Theatre, where, taking his Cimitar in his hand, he made four Croſſes therewith, toward the four Corners of the World; to ſignify, that he would defend the Kingdom of Hungary againſt all its Enemies.

HUNGERFORD, a Market-Town of Kentburg Hundred, in the S. W. parts of Barkſhire. It borders upon Wiltſhire, ſeated upon the S. E. of the River Kennet; chiefly noted for the excellency of its Trouts and Cray-fiſh.

HUNIADES (John Corvin) Vayvode of Tranſilvania, General of Ladiſlaus King of Hungary's Armies, was one of the beſt Captains of his time, and fought bravely againſt the Turks, beating them in 1442, and 43, and forcing them to retire from before Belgrade, after ſeven Months Siege. He was at the Battel of Verna, ſo fatal to Chriſtianity, where Ladiſlaus was killed in 1644. Afterwards, he was made Governor of Hungary, and his Name became ſo formidable to the Turks, that their very Children could not hear it without trembling. They called him commonly Jancus Lain, that is, John the Wicked. He was over-come by the Turks, the 17th. 18th. and 19th. of October in 1448. However, he hindred the taking of Belgrade, beſieged by Mahomet II. in 1458, and died the ſame Year at Zemplen. 'Tis reported, That he would never Receive the Communion in his own Chamber, but went to Church to receive it, ſaying, That he did not deſerve ſuch an Honour from the King of Kings. Mahomet II. was much troubled at his Death, called him, The greateſt Soldier in the World; and eſteemed himſelf Unfortunate, that there was no other perſon of his Figure left, againſt whom he might recover the Glory which he had loſt. Pope Calixtus III. wept; and all Chriſtendom was afflicted when he died. Thuroſius in Chron. Hungar. Æneas Sylvius. Europe, &c.

HUNNANBY, a Market-Town of Dickering Wapentake, in the Eaſt-Riding of Yorkſhire.

HUNNIBALDUS an Author living in the time of King Clovis the Great. He wrote a Hiſtory of the Francks and Gauls, which he collected out of ſeveral Memoirs of the Druids; but this Work, which Trithemius has abridg'd in Twelve Books, is undoubtedly ungenuine. Pontanus de Origine Francorum. Cluver. lib. 3. Antiq. Germ. &c.

HUNNINGEN, a German Village, a quarter of a League below Baſle in Swiſſerland, ſituated on the Rhine, where the French have lately erected a ſtrong Caſtle, which gives Umbrage of Jealouſie to the Cantons of Swiſſerland. Baudr. This Fort is a Pentagon, with Lodgings for 3 or 4000 Men. The Baſtions have all Orilons, and in the middle of them is a void ſpace, with a Magazine ſo ſtrongly Vaulted, that it is proof againſt Bombs. The Ramparts are ſtrongly faced, and there is a large Ditch before the Courtin; and in the middle of the Ditch, there runs all along, a Horn-work, which is but 10 or 12 Foot high; and from the bottom of the Rampart, to the Horn-work, there is a Vault to convey Men for its Defence. Before this Horn-work, there is a Half-Moon, in which there is a Ditch, which cuts the Half-Moon in an Angle, and makes one Half-Moon within another. Beyond that, there is a Counterſcarp 12 Foot above the Water, with a Glacis deſigned, but not finiſhed. There is alſo, another great Horn-work, whoſe out-parts run a great way toward Baſle. Here is alſo, a Bridge over the Rhine, lodged partly on an Iſland, which is alſo fortified by a Horn-work. The Buildings of this Fort, are very handſome, and the Square within capable of 4000 Men. There is a Cavalier on one or two of the Baſtions, and Half-Moons before each; ſo that, when finiſhed, it will be one of the ſtrongeſt Places in Europe, being Seated in a great Plain, and commanded by no Riſing-ground. Burnet p. 14. Lett. 5.

HUNNOCURIA, HUNNICURIA, or HONNECOURT, a little Town of Picardy in France, on the River Scheld, three Leagues from Crambray. Here was a fierce Battel betwixt the French and the Spaniards, An. 1642.

HUNNORUM-TRACTUS, or HUNDSRUCK, a German Country, in which the Elector Palatine, Triers, and Landtgrave of Heſſe, and Prince of Baden have each a Share. Coblentz and Baccharach are amongſt its moſt noted Places. Baudrand.

HUNQUANG: Some reckon him among the Emperors of China, after Zunchin's Death, in 1644. whilſt the Tartars were conquering the Empire. He reſiſted thoſe Barbarians ſome time; but being taken in 1645. he was ſtrangled in the City of Pekin, having not reigned a whole Year. Jeſuit. Martin. Hiſtoire de la Guerre des Tartares contre La Chine.

HUNS, Lat. Hunni, People, inhabiting about the Marſhes of Mæotis, who left their Country, and ſetled in Pannonia. Their King Attila, who named himſelf The Plague of God, led them into Germany, Italy and France; where Merovius and Ætius, General of the Romans, defeated them, and killed 200000 of his Army, An. 450. After this loſs they retired into Pannonia, and defended themſelves there until the Hongres, the very ſame ſort of People, came out of Scythia, and diſpoſſeſſed them in Charles the Fat's Reign. Ammian. Marcellin. ſaith, That they were continually on Horſe-back, whether Eating, Sleeping or Trading. Agathias, Claudian, Lib. 1. in Ruff. Hoffman adds, That following a Stag through the Marſhes, they found the Way into Scythia, and, like a Deluge, over-ran the Scythians, the Alans, Oſtro-Goths and Viſi-Goths; putting them to flight by the very Terrour of their Countenances. They deſtroyed alſo Italy, and great part of France, till defeated by Merovius the French King, and Ætius the Roman, under Attila, in 450. as aboveſaid. They were altogether unlearned, and knew not ſo much as the Names of Letters; and uſed to divine by the Entrails and Veins of Beaſts. Hoffman.

HUNTCLIFFE, a noted Place on the Coaſt of Yorkſhire, where the Seols ſleep, and ſun themſelves in great Numbers, one of them being always obſerved to keep Watch, and on the Approach of any Man, either to throw a Stone down from the Rock where he lies, or fall into the Water with a great Noiſe, as if he deſigned a Signal to the reſt; who thereupon return to the Sea, throwing with their hinder Feet ſuch a Cloud of Sand, Gravel, or Stones, as gives their Purſuers a Repulſe. But they are not ſo much afraid of Women: So that they are often taken by Men in Womens Habit. In that ſame place are found many yellow and red Stones, and others covered with a rough Cruſt, which in ſmell and taſte reſembles Copperas, Nitre and Brimſtone. Here are alſo abundance of Marqueſites, reſembling Braſs. Camb. Brit. pag. 720.

HUNTINGTON, Lat. Huntingtonia, the chief Town of Huntingtonſhire, is 48 Miles North-by-Weſt from London; a pretty Town, pleaſantly ſeated upon the Banks of the River Ouſe. This Town was formerly ſo large and populous as to conſiſt of 15 Pariſhes, now reduced to three. 'Tis ſtill however a good Place for Inland Trade, well inhabited and frequented, as being a Thorow-fare for Travellers to and from the North. Here are yet to be ſeen the Ruins of an ancient Caſtle, built by King Edward the Elder, and an Abbey, founded here by Maud the Empreſs and Euſtace Loveloft. Noted beſides for the Title of Earl it has given to ſeveral Families ſince the Norman Conqueſt; amongſt which were ſeveral Kings and Princes of Scotland. The ſame is now enjoyed by the Right Honourable Theophilus Haſtings Earl of Huntington.

HUNTINGTONSHIRE, Lat. Huntingtonienſis Comitatus, is an In-land County of England, ſurrounded with Northampton, Bedford and Cambridgeſhires; ſo ſmall in extent, that it hardly ſtretches 20 Miles out-right, though meaſured to the moſt Advantage. The whole is divided into four Hundreds, wherein are 79 Pariſhes, and ſix Market-Towns. The Inhabitants were called Iceni by the Romans: The Country part of the Kingdom of Mercia, in the Heptarchy; and is now part of the Dioceſs of Lincoln. This was formerly a very Woody Country, generally flat, only in ſome Places it riſes into little Hills. It afforded excellent Game for Hunting, whence it was called Huntingtonſhire; but in the Beginning of Henry II's Reign it was diſ-foreſted. The little Hills are beſt for Corn, as the Valleys are for Paſture; but in the Eaſt part, towards Cambridgeſhire, 'tis ſomething troubled with Fens. The 4th. part of that Country was Abbey-Land. Amongſt its Buildings of chief Note are Kimbolton-Caſtle, and Hinching-Brook; the firſt belonging to the Earl of Mancheſter, the laſt (in which is one of the moſt ſtately Rooms in England) to the Earl of Sandwich. Near St. Niots is a Village called Hale-Weſton, with two Fountains not far aſunder; the one ſweet, helping the Dimneſs of the Eyes; and the other brackiſh, good againſt Scabs and Leproſie. Huntington is the only Place of this County which ſends Parliament-Men, beſides the two Knights of the Shire.

HUNTLY-NABB, a Place upon the Coaſt of Yorkſhire, abounding with craggy Rocks, at the Roots of which lie Stones of different Sizes, as round as Globes, reſembling Bullets for great Ordnance; which being broke, within them are found ſtony Serpents, enwrapped round like a Wreath, but without Heads. Cambd. Brit. pag. 721.

HUQUANG, a Province of China, almoſt in the Middle of the other Provinces. The River Kiang divides it into Northern and Southern. The Chineſe name it alſo Jumichiti; that is, The Country of Fiſh and Rice; becauſe it abounds with them. 'Tis named China's Granary; and their Proverb is, That the Province of Kiangſi can ſupply China with a good Breakfaſt, but that Huquang can wholly maintain it. There are 15 great Towns, and 180 Cities; beſides Fortreſſes, Burroughs and Villages. The great Towns are, Unchang, Hanyang, Siangyang, Tegan, Hoancheu, &c. M. Martini Deſcript. de la Chine.

HURLERS, ſo are called 17 huge Stones, to be ſeen in Cornwall, at a competent diſtance one from another; moſt probably ſet up as a Trophy, or for Bounds; though Tradition reports them to have been Men metamorphoſed into theſe Stones, for hurling upon the Lord's-Day: This Hurling being a Sport peculiar to Cornwall.

HURONS, People of the Northern America, in Canada, or New-France. They were very wild, and now are become Friends to the French. They bury their dead Bodies by Heaps. They never take their Fathers Name. They dreſs their Corn above 20 different Ways, uſing nothing but Fire and Water. They are mightily inclined to Theft, and will ſteal with their Feet as well as Hands. Their Women wear ſome Neck-laces, Bracelets, &c. And their Cuſtoms are like thoſe of the other Natives of Canada.

HURPOIX, or HUREPOIX, a Country in the Iſle of France. 'Tis almoſt ſituated at the South of the River Seine, where are Melun, Corbel, La Ferté, Alais, &c. Sometimes the Country about Mantois, or Mantoan, is comprehended in it. Du Cheſne hiſt. de Hurepoix.

HURTADO (Thomas) a Minorite of Toledo in Spain. He was very Eminent for his Writings, and died in 1659. There is a Syſteme of Philoſophy and Divinity of his Extant, upon the Principles of Thomas Aquinas, viz. Reſolutionum Moralium Libri VI. De congrua Suſtentatione Eccleſiaſticorum. Reſolutionum Moralium de Reſidentia Sacra, Libri XII. Reſolutiones de Unico Martyrio, &c. This laſt Treatiſe was written againſt a Book, Intituled, De Martyrio per Peſtem, publiſh'd by Theophilus Reynaldus a Jeſuit, who reply'd to Hurtado, in a very excellent Defence. Nicholas Anton. Bibl. Hiſp. Mir. de Script. Sæc. 17.

HUS (John.) His Name, which ſignifies Gooſe, was the Name of a little Burrough in Bohemia, where he was born of mean Parents. He maintained Wickliff and the Waldenſes Opinions, in 1407. with wonderful Zeal. Jerom of Prague was his Contemporary. King Winceſlaus did not oppoſe him; but the Emperor Sigiſmond, his Brother and Heir, ſent to John Hus, to perſuade him to defend his Doctrine before the Council of Conſtance; which he did, An. 1414. having obtained a Paſs-port, and Aſſurance of ſafe Conduct from the Emperor. Seven Months were ſpent in examining him, and two Biſhops were ſent into Bohemia, to inform themſelves of the Doctrine he preached; and for his firm Adherence to the ſame he was condemned to be burnt alive, with his Books: Which was executed, An. 1415. contrary to the Emperor's Promiſe of Safe-Conduct, which the Council of Conſtance ſaid he was not obliged to keep to an Heretick. As to the complaint which the Proteſtants make about the ſafe Conduct, Morery believes it proceeds from their not ſeeing the Form of it, as it ſtands in Coclæus, Bzovius and others; for, firſt, he aſſerts the Council had no hand in the granting it, and beſides that, this ſafe Conduct was no more than a bare Recommendation of John Hus, to the Towns through which he was to travel, for his convenience of good reception, and free paſſage. Morery adds further, that notwithſtanding the oppoſition of John Hus, to ſome of the Doctrines of the Church of Rome, he believ'd Tranſubſtantiation, and maintain'd it in his Writings. He died, as 'tis ſaid, with great Piety and Courage.

HUSSEIN, a Shepherd; who feeding his Flock near Ibrahim's Priſon, took care to divert him with his Songs and Flagelot. Ibrahim coming to the Throne, made Huſſein his Confident; who abuſing his Maſter's Favours, and cauſing the Grand Viſier Mehemet to be ſtrangled, the People tore him in pieces, An. 1648. Hiſt. des Grand Viſiers.

HUSSITES, the Followers of John Hus of Bohemia. Amongſt other things, they believ'd that the Church conſiſted only of the Predeſtinated to Glory, and that the Reprobates were no part of it: That the condemnation of the five and forty Articles of Wickliff, was wicked and unreaſonable. Morery adds, That their party afterwards ſubdivided, and oppos'd both their Biſhops and Secular Princes in Bohemia, where, as he goes on, they were the occaſion of great Diſorders and Civil Commotions in the XVth Century. Coclæus Hiſt. Huſſit. Dubravius, Lib. 26. Puffendor. Hiſt. Swec. Lib. 1.

HUSUM, Lat. Huſumum, and Hoſumum, a Town of Holſatia, or Holſtein in Denmark, on a Gulf, two Leagues from Frederickſtadt, and five from Sleſwick. It has a ſtrong Caſtle.

HUTTEN (Ulrich) a German, born in Franconia in 1488. Being but eighteen Years of Age he publiſhed many Works in Verſe, and travelled afterwards into Italy. At his Return he declared himſelf for Luther, and wrote againſt the Papiſts. He was taken at Mentz, and being ſet at liberty again, he retired into Switzerland, where he died, An. 1523. in the 36th Year of his Age.

HUY, Lat. Hugum, and Hugonum, a Town and Caſtle of the Temporal Lordſhip of Liege, on the River Meuſe, near the Place where the River Huy runs into it, which gives the Name to the Town. 'Tis divided by the Meuſe into two parts, and is reputed very ancient. It had particular Earls, who gave it to the Biſhops of Liege. It has fine Churches, and a Caſtle; but the Town has ſuffered much in the late Wars. It ſtands five Leagues from Liege, and thirteen from Bruſſels, N. E. It was taken by the French under the Command of the Duke of Luxemburgh in 1693, beſieged and re-taken by the Confederates, under the Duke of Holſtein-Ploen, the following Year. Heriger. Valer. Andr. in Topogr. Bel.

HYACINTHIDES, were ſix Daughters of Erichtheus, Succeſſor of Pandion King of Athens. They got this Surname from a Village called Hyacinthus, where they ſuffered themſelves to be immolated for the good of their Country: The Oracle having foretold, That the Athenians ſhould get the better of Eumolpus King of Thracia, if King Erichtheus ſhould ſacrifice one of his Daughters: They ſo willingly conſented to it, that none of them would yield the Honour to the other; ſo that they all ſix fell a Sacrifice for their Country, and were therefore placed in the number of the Goddeſſes, with their Father, and called The Maidens, by Excellency, becauſe they died Virgins. Their proper Names are Protogenia, Pandore, Procris, Creuſa, Orithyia and Chthonia. Some ſay, that but one or two of them were immolated. Voſſius.

HYACINTHUS, Prince of Amycles in Peloponneſus, was loved by Apollo and Zephyrus at the ſame time. The Poets ſay, that Apollo playing at Coits with him, Zephyrus, out of Jealouſie, blew the Coit ſo violently againſt Hyacinthus's Head, that he died immediately. Apollo being extreamly grieved at it, the Earth, to comfort him, turned the young Prince's Blood into a Flower of his Name, which is of a Purple colour. The Lacedæmonians did celebrate Nocturnal Feaſts, called Hyacinthia, in his Honour. Ovid. Metam.

HYADES, Seven Stars in the Bull's Head, ſo called from the Greek ὕειν, to rain. The Poets made them Bacchus's Nurſes. The Latins called them Suculæ, becauſe when they riſe they commonly cauſe Rain and Dirt, which they ſeem to delight in, like Hogs; which the Latins call Sues. Suetonius, Aulus Gellius.

HYBLA, a Mountain in Italy, famous for Honey. Hence Hyblææ apes. Heylin.

HYBREAS, a famous Orator of Milaſſis, in Caria; who from the meaneſt of the People, did, by his Application to Learning, attain the higheſt Places in the Government; and became a check to the Tyrant Euthydemus. Strabo.

HYDE (Henry) the preſent Earl of Clarendon, is the eldeſt Son of the late Edward Hyde Lord Chancellor of England, deſcended from an ancient Family of that Name in Cheſhire. Which Edward, having been trained up to the ſtudy of the Laws, in the Middle-Temple, was by King Charles I. made Chancellor of his Exchequer, and one of his Privy-Council. Having likewiſe attended King Charles II. beyond Sea, upon the Reſtauration he was raiſed firſt to the Degree of Baron, by the Title of Lord Hyde of Hindon in Wiltſhire, and ſhortly after to the Dignity of Viſcount Cornbury in the County of Oxon, and Earl of Clarendon, a Park near Saliſbury in Wiltſhire. He was alſo raiſed to the Office of Lord High Chancellor, which he held till the end of Auguſt, 1667. when the Great Seal was taken from him, and committed to the Cuſtody of Sir Orlando Bridgeman, upon a Charge brought in againſt him in Parliament by the Lord Digby. Whereupon he withdrew himſelf into France, making his chief Reſidence at Montpelier, but died at Rouen in Normandy, An. 1674. To whom ſucceeded in his Titles Henry the preſent Earl of Clarendon, his eldeſt Son by Frances his Wife, Daughter to Sir Tho. Aylesbury Knight and Baronet. He had alſo by her three other Sons, namely, Lawrence the preſent Earl of Rocheſter; Edward, who died unmarried; and James, who was drowned at Sea, going to Scotland with the Duke of York: And of his two Daughters, the eldeſt, the Lady Ann, was married to his Royal Highneſs James Duke of York, ſince King of England. This preſent Earl was by King James II. advanced to be Lord Privy Seal, in the room of the Earl of Angleſey, deceaſed; and afterwards ſent Lord Lieutenant to Ireland. He married firſt Theodoſia, a Daughter of Arthur late Lord Capel, by whom he had Iſſue one only Son, Edward, commonly called Lord Cornbury. By his ſecond Wife Flower, the Daughter and ſole Heir of Sir William Backhouſe of Swallowfield in Berkſhire, he had two Daughters; whereof the youngeſt is married to the preſent Duke of Ormond.

HYDE (Lawrence) Brother to the preſent Earl of Clarendon, created firſt Viſcount of Kenelworth, and afterwards Earl of Rocheſter, by Charles II. whom he ſerved as Ambaſſador Extraordinary to Poland, and Plenipotentiary at the Treaty of Nimeguen.

HYDE (John) of Kingſton-Liſle Eſq; of a very ancient Family in Berkſhire; one of this Family was Sheriff for Berkſhire and Oxfordſhire in the Reign of King Edward VI. His Arms are Gules, two Chevrons Argent. Fuller's Worthies.

HYDRA, a Serpent of Lerna-Marſh in Peloponneſus, repreſented by the Poets with 50 Heads; one of which being cut off, many others were produced in the room of it. He was deſtroyed by Hercules. Ovid. lib. 9. Metam.

HYDRUSA, or TENOS, a Græcian Iſland, ſubject to the Venetians; which hath a Fountain called Dypnoſius, whoſe Waters will not mix with Wine. Heylin.

HYEMS, the Winter; was a Divinity of the Romans, to whom they ſacrificed a black Sheep. Virg.

HYGINUS, an Athenian Philoſopher, ſucceeded Telophorus as Biſhop of Rome. He was the firſt who inſtituted the Conſecration of Temples, and Godfathers at Baptiſm. He ordained Polycarp Biſhop of Smyrna. Platina.

HYGINUS, a famous Grammarian; ſome ſay a Spaniard, others an Alexandrian by Birth. All his Works, beſides his Mythology, are loſt.

HYLAS, Son of Theodamas, was raviſhed by the Nymphs of a Fountain where he took ſome Water for Hercules, whoſe Favourite he was, and who built afterwards a Town of his Name. Strab. lib. 12. The Fable runs, That Hercules going to Colchis with the Argonauts, ſtayed at Myſia to look for Hylas, raviſhed by the Nymphs. Ὕλη, which comes from Ela, or Allon, in the Phœnician Language, that is, the Oak, may ſignifie Wood in general. Hercules ſtayed in Myſia to fell ſome Trees to build Ships, but was not permitted to fell any in Foreſts conſecrated to the Nymphs. This is the Original of Hylas's Fable. See The Eſſay upon fabulous Hiſtory in the firſt Volume of the Univerſal Bibliotheque.

HYLLUS, Son to Hercules and Deianeira, marry'd his Mother-in-Law Iola; He was afterwards expell'd his Country by Euryſtheus, and retiring to Athens, was aſſiſted by Theſeus. Being thus reinforc'd, he return'd into Peloponneſus, and challenging thoſe Heroes, who oppos'd the Settlement of the Heraclidæ, he was ſlain by Echemus King of the Tegialæ. Ovid Metam. lib. 9. Pauſanias in Maſſen.

HYLOBIANS, a kind of Philoſophers amongſt the ancient Indians; ſo named by the Græcians, becauſe they delighted to be in thick Woods, retired from Company for Speculation-ſake. The word comes from ὕλη, Wood, and βίος, Life. Voſſius de Sectis Philoſoph.

HYMANTES, the Name of thoſe Penitents in the Latin Church, who were excluded the Chriſtian Aſſemblies, and ſtood before the Door, wearing an Hair-Cloth, and intreating thoſe that went into the Church to intercede for them. Balſamon.

HYMENEUS, an Heretick, excommunicated by St. Paul, 1 Tim. ch. 1. & 2. He affirmed, That the Reſurrection was already accompliſhed.

HYMENEUS, Bacchus's Son by Venus; a Divinity which the Ancients fanſied to preſide over Marriage. He was repreſented in the ſhape of a young Man, with a Torch in his hand.

HYMETTO, a Mountain of Achaia in Greece, a League from Athens, and ſeven or eight in compaſs; the top is neither inhabited nor cultivated, but on the Deſcent Northwards there is a Monaſtery of Caloyers, or Religious Greeks, named Cyriani, and by the Turks, Cosbachi. There they make abundance of Honey, much eſteemed at Conſtantinople, becauſe it is neither ſharp, nor occaſions thirſt, as other Honey. Its goodneſs proceeds from the great quantity of Thyme, and other ſweet Herbs, growing there. This Convent paid but one Sequin to the Vayvode, becauſe when Athens was taken by Mahomet II. in 1455, the Abbot of this Monaſtery preſented him the Keys in the Name of the Town; and for Reward, Mahomet freed his Convent from all Taxes, the Sequin being but a kind of Homage. There are five other Convents of Caloyers on that Mountain, out of which was formerly dug Marble, much eſteemed by the Athenians; who believed alſo that there were ſome Golden Mines in it, upon report that ſome ſcrapings of Gold were kept there by large Ants. They went very well armed, with Proviſions for three days, to bring this Treaſure away; but finding nothing, they returned, having made themſelves Laughing-ſtocks. J. Spon. Voyage d'Italie.

HYPATA, the Metropolis of Theſſaly, not far from Mount Æta, famous in ancient Hiſtory, becauſe the Ætolians held their publick Conventions there. Liv.

HYPERBOREAN, a Name given by the Ancients to ſome Seas, Mountains and People, the true ſituation whereof they could hardly diſcover; nevertheleſs they agree in this, that they were in a very far Country towards the North. From thence, among the Latins, to ſend one to the Hyperborean Mountains ſignified, to ſend him to the Worlds End. The Scythian Abaris has deſcribed their Oracles, their Manners, and the Original of their Gods, &c. Pherenicus ſaith, That they are deſcended from the Titans, and that they retired thither with Saturn after their defeat. The Romans have recourſe to the Hyperboreans, to find out the Original of their Mount Palatine; and, according to Feſtus's Abbreviator, the Daughter of one of thoſe Hyperboreans, named Phalanta, or Pallanta, came to thoſe Parts when Rome was built, and conceived Latinus by Hercules. Pind. Pyth. 10. jeering their Religion, ſaith, That they ſacrificed Aſſes to Apollo, who could not forbear laughing when he ſaw their Ears dreſſed. But Selinus ſaith ſeriouſly, cap. 21. That they ſent their Firſt-Fruits by chaſte Virgins to Apollo Delius, &c. Claudian. lib. 6. Conſulat. Honor. obſerves, that Griffins were particularly conſecrated to the Hyperborean Apollo. Caſſiodor. lib. 9. pag. 3. Roſin. Antiq. Rom. lib. 2. As for what the Ancients ſay of the continual Rejoycings of thoſe People, their Conſorts of Muſical Inſtruments, their Feaſts and Dancings, and their pleaſant Condition, free from War, Works, Old Age, and Diſeaſes, is a Fiction. To omit Fables; By the Hyperborean Seas, we commonly underſtand the Northern Ocean, which bounds Europe and Aſia on the North. By the Hyperborean Mountains, thoſe which were formerly named Riphean, and now, according to Baudrand, the Stolp-Mountains, and Kameni Poyas, in the Northern Part of Ruſſia, towards the Streight of Veigats, and the Mouth of Oby. And by the Hyperborean People, thoſe of the Northern Sarmatia, and thoſe that live near the Sea-Coaſts, which are now the Laplanders, under the Swedes, the Danes, and the Ruſſians. And when the Ancients named them Hyperboreans, their meaning was not that they did live beyond Boreas, or the North Wind, but only that they lived very far towards the North; for Hyperborean ſignifies very much North, as Strabo obſerves.

HYPERIDES of Athens, an Orator, put to death by Antipater, An. Rom. 430. who upon the Rack bit his Tongue off, for fear of revealing what he knew. Plutarch. in Vit. Decem. Orat.

HYPERION, the Sun's Father; or, as others ſay, the Sun himſelf; ſo named, becauſe he walks over the Earth: From the Greek ὑπὲρ, over, and εἴω, to go, or to walk. Diodorus makes him Saturn's Brother; and ſays, that he firſt obſerved the Courſe of the Sun, Moon, and other Stars, and diſtinguiſhed the Hours. Homer often gives this Epithet to the Sun.

HYPERMNESTRA, one of the fifty Daughters of Danaus King of Argos, married to Lynceus, one of Egyptus's fifty Sons. She would not obey her Father's Command, as the reſt of her Siſters did, to kill their Husbands the firſt Night of their Marriage. Danaus knowing this ſent her to Priſon, but ſoon after reſtored her to her Husband. Apollodor.

HYPOSTASIS, in Greek ὑπόστασις. The knowledge of the meaning of this word is requiſite to underſtand the Councils. The Greeks took it for the Perſon, and the Latins for the Subſtance. So the Greeks ſaid, there were three Hypoſtaſes, that is, three Perſons in one Eſſence; and the Latins, that there was but one Hypoſtaſis, that is, as they pretended, but one Subſtance in three Perſons. St. Athanaſius ſhewed them in the Council held at Alexandria in 362, That they all ſaid the ſame thing; and that all the difference was, That they gave to the ſame word two different ſignifications: And thus he reconciled them together. In this place the word Hypoſtaſis ſignifies two things: Firſt, The Exiſtence of a thing, conſider'd by way of Abſtraction. Secondly, The ſame thing, which ſubſiſts by it ſelf, by a ſort of particular and peculiar Exiſtence. Now when the Fathers ſay, there are three Hypoſtaſes in the Godhead, their meaning is, That the Godhead has three ſeveral Modes of Exiſtence, in the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, notwithſtanding they are equal: But when they ſay there is but one Hypoſtaſis, they give us to underſtand, that the Nature of the Son and Holy Spirit is not different from that of the Father; and then it is, that they take the term of Hypoſtaſis in the latter ſenſe.

HYPSICRATEA, King Mithridates's Wife, loved her Husband ſo intirely, that ſhe cut her Hair, put on Man's Apparel, learn'd to Ride, and uſed her ſelf to wear Arms, to follow him in his eſcape from Pompey. Plut. in vit. Pomp.

HYPSICREON of Miletum in Ionia, married Neæra, who cauſed the War between the Mileſians and the Naxians; for Promedon having ſeduced her, and being diſcovered, he carried her away into the Temple of Veſta in Naxos Iſland. Hypſicreon demanded his Wife, but was denied by the Naxians, becauſe ſhe was under the Goddeſſes Protection; which cauſed a War between thoſe two Nations. Pauſanias.

HYPSIPILE, Queen of Lemnos, was turned out of the Iſland by the other Women; who having killed all the Men, even Fathers and Husbands, could not endure Hypſipile, for ſparing her Father Thoas. She was taken upon the Sea by ſome Privateers, and ſold to Lycurgus King of Nemea, who gave her his Son Archemorus to Nurſe; for a little before ſhe was brought to Bed of Twins, which ſhe had by Jaſon in his Voyage to Colchos. Leaving her Nurſe-child under a Tree, to ſhew the Argives where the Spring Langia was, a Serpent killed him; whereupon Lycurgus would have put her to death, but Adraſtus, and the other Argives, ſaved her life. Statius lib. 4, & 5. Thebais. Ovid in Ep. Heroid.

HYPSISTARIANS, Hereticks in the IVth Century, according to St. Gregory Nazianzen, who made a mixture of the Jewiſh Religion and Paganiſm; for they Worſhipp'd Fire with the Pagans, and obſerved the Sabbath and Legal Abſtinence from Meats, with the Jews. St. Greg. Nazian. Orat. de fun. Patris.

HYRCANIA, formerly a Province of Perſia, 600 Miles long, and 300 broad, where Tabareſtan, Gilan and Georgian are now, was properly part of the Parthians Country, which had Parthia on the South, Margiana on the Eaſt, Media on the Weſt, and the Caſpian Sea on the North. The chief Town was Hyrcania, afterwards Amaruſe. The neighbouring Sea has now different names, viz. Bachu Sea, Sala Sea, Tabareſtan Sea, &c. Strabo, Pliny, Cluvier, Olearius. This Province is ſo fruitful, that one Vine is ſaid to produce above eleven Gallons of Wine, and one Fig-tree ſixty Buſhels of Figs. Their Corn is bred by a Seed which falls out of the Stalk, and Honey flows out of their Olive-trees. Hoffman. The Hyrcanian, called alſo the Caſpian Sea, and otherwiſe according to the Countries, which lie upon it, hath no Communication with any other Sea. Its extent from the Kingdom of Aſtracan in Muſcovy on the North, to Ferabath on the South, is 480 Engliſh Miles. Its breadth from the Province of Chuareſin, to the Mountains of Circaſſia or Shirwar, is 360 Engl. Miles. In the middle the Waters are Salt, as thoſe of other Seas, but it neither Ebbs nor Flows. It hath no good Harbour upon it, but the beſt is Minkiſchlack or Manguſlave, on the Coaſt of Tartary the Greater. 'Tis of the ſame colour with other Seas. Has only one Iſland on the Perſian Coaſt, and that uninhabited. 'Tis generally ſhallow, and therefore dangerous in Tempeſts; on which account, the Perſians never venture from ſight of Land. On the Weſt-ſide of it from Georgia, it receives there above a hundred Rivers, many of them very great. Olearius gives a large Deſcription of this Sea, having ſailed all over it, and ſays, That in 20 days Travel, betwixt Reſchal and Schamakap, he croſſed above 80 Rivers, which fall into it.

HYRCANUS (John I.) of that Name, or rather Surname, John being his true Name, Son of Simon Macchabæus, Prince and High-Prieſt of the Jews, killed by his Son-in-Law Ptolemy, An. Rom. 619. An. Mund. 3919. Hyrcanus, to revenge his Father's Death, beſieged Ptolemy; but his Mother and Brethren, being then Ptolemy's Priſoners, hindred his forcing of him. He ſuſtained a great Siege in Jeruſalem againſt Antiochus Sidetes, with whom agreeing afterwards, he followed him againſt the Perſians. At his return he took many Towns in Judæa, ſubdued the Idumeans, forced them to be Circumciſed, An. Rom. 628. He demoliſhed the Temple of Gerizim, and made a League with the Romans. He took Samaria, Scythopolis, &c. Thus he governed the Jews 31 Years, without taking the Title of King, and died in 650, leaving five Sons. Joſephus lib. 13. Antiq.

HYRCANUS II. the eldeſt Son of Alexander I. ſucceeded his Father in the High Prieſthood, An. Rom. 676. He had Right alſo to the Crown as being the eldeſt, but his Brother Ariſtobulus, took it by force from him; and Hyrcanus, by a Treaty in 688, was ſatisfied with the Prieſthood. Afterwards, with Aretas King of Arabia's aſſiſtance, he beſieged Ariſtobulus in the Temple, who prevailing with Scaurus, Pompey's Lieutenant, Aretas and Hyrcanus was defeated. Hyrcanus falling afterwards into his Nephew Antigonus's hands, had his Ears cut off; this piece of Cruelty was practis'd upon him to put a blemiſh upon his Perſon, and make him uncapable of executing the Prieſts Office, Levit. cap. 21. And being perſwaded by his Daughter Alexandra, Mariamne's Mother, to retire into Arabia, Herod, Mariamne's Husband, put him to death, An. Rom. 724, the 80th Year of his Age. Joſephus lib. 1. Antiq.

I, This Letter is ſometimes a Vowel, and ſometimes a Conſonant. Several Nations, chiefly the Italians, Spaniards, Engliſh and Flemings, pronounce the I Vowel and Conſonant two or three different ways. The Ancients ſometimes changed I into U. JABAJAHITES, a Sect of Mahometans, who ſay, That God's Knowledge extends not to all things, but is perfected by Experience. They alſo hold, That God governs the World according to the Chance of the divers Events; as not having, from Eternity, a perfect Knowledge of all particular Futurities. *Ricaut, concerning the Ottoman Empire. JABESH-GILEAD, a Town of Judæa, in the Country of Gilead, whoſe Inhabitants were put to the Sword, for their unwillingneſs to help the Iſraelites againſt thoſe of the Tribe of Benjamin. Nevertheleſs, 400 Virgins were preſerved, and married to the Remnant of Benjamin. About 400 Years after, Nahaſh K. of the Ammonites, having ravaged the Country of Gilead, preſſed Jabeſh extremely, An. Mun. 2963, and would grant no better Articles to the Beſieged, than that they ſhould ſurrender the Town, with the loſs of their Right Eyes; but Saul defeated the Ammonites, and delivered the Place. Judges 21. 1 Kings 11.

JABIN, King of Canaan, that kept Iſrael in Bondage twenty Years. His Army, commanded by Siſera, was routed by Barak in An. Mun. 2740. The Scripture obſerves, that Jabin had 900 Chariots of Iron. Joſh. cap. 11. Judg. 4, & 5.

JACATRA, a Town of the Eaſt-Indies in Java Iſland, taken by the Dutch, and named Batavia. See Batavia.

JACAYA, a Turkiſh Prince, Son to Mahomet III. Some think him an Impoſtor; others own him to have been a lawful Prince, and relate his Story thus. Mahomet III. who died in 1603, had three Sons, by three different Sultaneſſes, viz. Muſtapha, ſtrangled by his Order; this Jacaya, and Achmet, who came to the Crown. Lapara, Jacaya's Mother, a Chriſtian born, foreſeeing her Son like to be Sacrificed, out of Policy to ſecure the Crown to his Elder Brother Muſtapha, then living, ask'd the Sultan leave to go to Magneſia, to take the Air, and prevent a Sickneſs ſhe feared. Being got thither with Jacaya, ſhe gave out, that he was dead of the Small-Pox, and cauſed another to be buried in his room, with the uſual Ceremonies. She truſted an Eunuch with her Son, who carried him to Macedonia, in the Habit of a Greek Monk, and diſcovered his Quality to the Archbiſhop of Theſſalonica, who educated him, till he was 17 Years old, and then Baptized him. This young Prince, deſirous to know his Fortune, diſguiſed himſelf in the Habit of a Dervis, or Religious Turk, and leaving Theſſalonica, he privately view'd the Chief Towns of Greece. At Scopea he was entertained with the News of the Death of his Father, and his Elder Brother Muſtapha. Seeing himſelf now the lawful Heir, and hoping to poſſeſs the Throne, he went into Aſia, where he knew, ſome Baſſas had rebelled againſt the new Emperor. To them he diſcovered himſelf to be Mahomet's Second Son, and at the Head of their Army fought Achmet's General: But being wounded, he was forced to retire into Greece. Having ſollicited Baſſa Druis, a Man very powerful at the Port, and a ſecret Friend to the Baſſa's of Aſia, he went to Conſtantinople in a Perſian Religious-Habit. So a Conſpiracy was formed againſt Achmet; but his Friend Baſſa Druis dying, the Prince Jacaya was forced to eſcape out of Conſtantinople, in the Company of the Poliſh Ambaſſador, as far as Cracovia. Having been ſome time in the Service of this Polander, he diſcovered himſelf to an Envoy from Tuſcany, who conducted him to the King. The Proofs he gave of his Quality, were ſome Declarations of the Sultaneſs his Mother, the Eunuch, and the Biſhop of Theſſalonica, with ſome Letters from the Baſſa's of Aſia. At that time alſo, a Chiaus from Achmet, ſent formerly to the Baſſa's of Aſia, whilſt Jacaya was with them, arrived at the Court of Poland, knew this Prince, demanded him to be delivered up to his Maſter Achmet; but his Majeſty refuſed it. Jacaya, thinking himſelf not ſecure in that Country, becauſe the Chiaus corrupted ſome Tartars to murther him, retired to Vienna in Auſtria, where the Emperor Matthias received him kindly. But Jacaya ſtill aiming at his Father's Crown, and finding the Emperor not diſpoſed to aſſiſt him with an Army, went for help to the Duke of Tuſcany, who kindly gave him a conſiderable Allowance, and endeavoured to perſuade the King of Spain, and other Chriſtian Princes, to embrace ſo favourable an opportunity of Dethroning Achmet, and pulling down the Turkiſh Empire; but all to no purpoſe. Jacaya went afterwards into France, with Charles de Gonzague, Duke of Nevers, and ſince Duke of Mantua, with whom having quarrelled, he became expoſed to many Affronts. It is not known, whether this Lord did lie in wait for him, or not; but 'tis certain, that he vaniſhed away, no body ever finding out what became of him. Some think, that he retired into a Charter-houſe, but if the Carthuſians had concealed him, when alive; yet, after Death, they would have ſpoken of him, as an Example to Poſterity, and a Glory to their Order. De Rocoles Les impoſteurs inſignes.

JACCA, a Spaniſh Town in the N. of Arragon, with a Cittadel, and Biſhoprick ſuffragan to Saragoza. It ſtands upon the River Arragona, at the foot of the Pyrenæan Hills, 16 Spaniſh Miles from Saragoza to the North, eight from the Confines of France, and eight from Hueſca in Arragon to the North Weſt. This City is the Capital of the County of Arragon.

JACHEN, a famous Phyſician in Egypt, in the Reign of Sannis, viz. about An. Mun. 3300. His making uſe of Charms and Magical Spells to cure Diſeaſes, gained him great Repute. 'Tis ſaid, that hereby he put a ſtop to a Plague, that did waſte Egypt, and that the Egyptians, in gratitude, dedicated a Temple, wherein in publick Diſtempers, they ſacrificed unto him, and then with Fire from his Altar, kindled ſome Wood-piles in the City, to clear it from the Infection of bad Air. Suidas.

JACKSON (Thomas) was born at Witton in the Biſhoprick of Durham in 1579, and deſcended from a conſiderable Family. He took his Doctors Degree in Oxford in 1622, and not long after was made Vicar of St. Nicholas Church, in New-caſtle upon Tine, from whence he was choſen Preſident of Corpus Chriſti College; upon which Promotion he quitted the ſaid Vicaridge, and was afterward made Chaplain in Ordinary to His Majeſty, Prebendary of Wincheſter, and Dean of Peterborough. As to his Character, he was a good Linguiſt, a general Scholar, particularly well read in the Fathers, and very ſolid and judicious, as appears ſufficiently by his Writings. As to his Life and Temper, he was very extraordinary, being ſtrictly Regular and unexceptionable, Generous, Charitable and Humane; much diſengag'd from the World, and very conſtant and exemplary in his Devotions. His performance upon the Creed is a very learned and valuable Piece; this Work and all his other Writings, being publiſhed at ſeveral times, were Collected and Printed together in 1673, in three Volumes Fol. David Lloyd Memoirs. Athenæ Oxonienſes. His Life before his Works.

JACOB, Iſaac's Son, by Rebeccah, born An. Mun. 2199. His Story is to be found from Gen. 25. to 47. This is added by Joſephus, Torniel, Salian, &c. That the Birth-right, which Eſau ſold him for a Meſs of Pottage, was, beſides other Privileges, the Prieſt-hood, exerciſed in thoſe Days, by the Eldeſt Son of every Family, and therefore Eſau is called Prophane by the Apoſtle, becauſe he ſet Holy Things to ſale. They add, that he was particularly well verſed in Aſtrology, and taught it to his Children.

JACOB, Matthan's Son, mentioned by St. Matthew in the Genealogy of the Son of God, according to the Fleſh. Luke 3. Torniel A. M. 3962. n. 2.

JACOB, an Hungarian, and Chief of the Sect of the Shepherds. 'Tis ſaid, that in his Youth, he entred into the Order of Ciſtercians; and afterwards turned Mahometan. Others deny this, and ſay, he only promiſed the Sultan of Egypt to depopulate France. He ſpoke very good French, German and Latin, and was wonderfully induſtrious in cajoling the Mobile. Aſſuming to himſelf the name of a Prophet, he preached up an Holy War, for the Deliverance of the Holy Land, and to revenge the Quarrel of the King St. Lewis: in which War, he affirmed poor People only were to be employed, for the greater manifeſtation of the Power of God, in confounding Worldly Powers by the weakeſt means. He boaſted of converſing with the bleſſed Virgin, and Angels in Viſions, and repreſented them on Banners, which his Company carried; and upon his own, was printed a Lamb holding a Croſs. Being followed by a great number of Shepherds and Husband-men, he divided them into Companies and Regiments, and appointed Officers over them, which he called Maſters, he himſelf being named the Maſter of Hungary. They entered into Amiens in Picardy 30000 ſtrong, An. 1251. Jacob went afterwards to Paris, where he inſolently conſecrated Holy-water in St. Euſtache's Church, and preached in Sacerdotal Veſtments. Being increaſed to near 100000, they pretended to ſeparate, in order to take Ship in different places. Jacob, with his reſerve, was received in Orleans as a Prophet, in ſpite of the Biſhop's Prohibitions, whoſe Name was William de Buſſy. Thence he went to Bourges, where he endeavoured, in vain, to ſeduce the People. And, becauſe the Queen Blanche had diſpatched Orders to all the Prelates and Magiſtrates, to exterminate theſe Fanaticks, the Inhabitants of Bourges armed themſelves, purſued, and about two Leagues from the Town, over took them. Jacob was killed by a Butcher, and all his Men ſlain upon the place, or carried to the Magiſtrates, to be Condemned and Hanged. The other Shepherds were likewiſe killed or hanged at Marſeilles, Aiguemorte, Bourdeaux, and other places; ſo that this Faction ſcarce ſurvived Jacob's Death. See Shepherds. Hiſt. de St. Louis in 1688.

JACOB BARDEUS, commonly called Zanzalus, the Author of the Sect of the Jacobites, compoſed a kind of Catechiſm containing an Explanation of his Opinions. At leaſt the Syrians aſcribe unto him this Work, quoted by Abraham Ecchellenſis, from a Copy which is at Rome in the Maronites College. M. Simon.

JACOB-BEN-HAJIM, a Rabbi, famous for the Collection of the Maſorah, printed at Venice in 1625. with the Text of the Bible, the Chaldaick Paraphraſes, and Rabbinical Commentaries. This Edition of the Bible in Hebrew, and thoſe that have followed the great and little Maſorah, compiled by R. Jacob-Hajim, are eſteemed by the Jews. Nothing before him was exact upon the Maſorah, which is properly a Critick upon the Bible, eſtabliſhing and fixing the reading of it. This Rabbi, has prefixed a Preface to the great Maſorah, wherein he ſpeaks of the benefit of his Work, and withal explains, what the Keri and Ketib are, which are different Readings of the Hebrew Text. He won't allow different Readings, to have been marked in the Margins of the Copies, and in the Collection of the Maſorah, becauſe there were good grounds to doubt about the manner of reading. He obſerveth alſo, that the Talmudiſt-Jews agree not always with the Authors of the Maſorah. Beſides the different Readings collected by the Maſorets, and by this Rabbi put in the Margin of his Edition, ſome others are ſuper-added, which are not in the Maſorah, but are his own Collections out of ſome Manuſcripts. This ought to be obſerved, becauſe ſome Learned Men have not diſtinguiſhed them from the Maſorah. M. Simon.

JACOB-BEN-NAPHTALI, a famous Rabbi in the V. Century. He was one of the chief Maſorets, and in an Aſſembly at Tiberias in Palæſtine, ſummoned by the Jews in 476, under Pope Simplicius, he and Ben-Aſſer, are ſaid to have invented the Hebrew Points to ſerve as Vowels, and the Accents to make the Reading eaſy. Genebrard, and many learned Men, think ſo, tho' others are of another Opinion. *Geneb. in Simpl. & in not. JACOB (Florent) an Auſtin Friar, and Batchelor of Arts in the Sorbonne, about the end of the XVI. Century. 'Tis he, that in a Theſis, boldly aſſerted the Pope to be Maſter of the King of France's Temporalities; for which he was condemned with his Preſident Thomas Blanzi. *Spon. A. JACOB-JAN, an Armenian, born at Zulfa, was in 1641. Negeach-Bachi, or chief of the King of Perſia's Joiners. He had the beſt Mechanic Head in all the Kingdom, and is Author of many fine Inventions. Travelling into Europe, he ſo well learned the Art of Printing, that he erected a Printing-houſe at Iſpahan, and made the Mattreſs himſelf. They printed in Armenian, St. Paul's Epiſtles, and the ſeven Penitential Pſalms, and their deſign was to print the whole Bible; but they were at a loſs, for the way of making good Ink; and the Librarii or Tranſcribers perceiving their Imployment in danger, made continual Complaints too, to hinder the Settlement of that new Art, that would deprive them of their Subſiſtence. None may execute the Office of the chief of the Joiners, but a Mahometan; only Jacob-jan had a particular Privilege, becauſe of the excellency of his Genius. The King often ſollicited him to renounce Chriſtianity, and embrace Mahometaniſm, but no Advantages propoſed to him, could make him Apoſtatize. Tavernier's Voyage de Perſe.

JACOB (Lewis) a Carmelite Friar, Councellor and Almoner to the French King, Author of Bibliotheca Pontificia, *Traité des plus belles Bibliotheques. JACOBITES: Eaſtern Chriſtians, ſo denominated from Jacob Bardeus, a Syrian, Diſciple to Eutyches and Dioſcorus, whoſe Hereſy he ſpread ſo much in Aſia and Africa, in the beginning of the VI. Century; that at laſt, in the VII. Century, the different Sects of the Eutychians, were ſwallowed up by that of the Jacobites, which alſo comprehended all the Monophyſites of the Eaſt, i. e. Such as acknowledge one only Nature, and that the Humane, in Chriſt, in which Latitude it included the Armenians and Abyſſines. They deny the Trinity, and make the Sign of the Croſs with one Finger, to ſhew there is but One Perſon. They Baptize, by applying a hot-iron to the Childrens Forehead, after they have Circumciſed them; founding that Practiſe upon the Words of St. John Baptiſt, quoted by St. Matthew, Chap. 3. He will Baptize you with the Holy Ghoſt, and with Fire. Their Patriarch in Aſia reſides at Caramit in Meſopotamia. Their African Patriarchs See, is Alexandria, and he follows the Errors of Dioſcorus, together with the Cophti's. Their Aſiatick Patriarch has the Title of Antioch, though a Schiſmatical Græcian, whoſe See is at Damaſcus, pretends a Right to it. So their Patriarch in Egypt claimed the Title of Alexandria, and another for the Græcians loſt it not for want of Pretenſions. But ſince the Schiſm, the Jacobites have all along ſo far prevailed, as to make themſelves Maſters of that See, in ſpite of the Græcians, and upon that See, that of Æthiopia depends; where the Chriſtians are Eutychians, and Jacobites, or Papiſts, according to the Relations of Æthiopia, which tell us, That the Emperor David ſubmitted himſelf to Pope Clement VII, that Pope Pius IV. ſent thither the famous Andrew Oviedo Jete in the Reign of Claudius, David's Son; and that Gabriel Patriarch of Alexandria, ſent in 1595. his Arch-Deacon and two Monks to Pope Clement VIII, to aſſure him of his Obedience, and Deſire to re-unite his whole Church to the Roman See. Thoſe Deputies, acknowledged the Roman for the Mother-Church, but yet we ſee no Fruits of any ſuch recognition; and either through the alteration of the Patriarch's mind, a thing uſual amongſt Eaſtern Prelates, or the unwillingneſs of his Succeſſors to approve his Actions; 'tis certain, that the Cophti's Patriarchate of Alexandria is ſtill infected with the Hereſie of the Jacobites. Maimbourg, Hiſt. du Schiſme des Grecs. M. Simon thus relates the preſent State of the Jacobites. Under that Name muſt be included all the Monophyſites of the Eaſt, whether Armenians, Cophti's, or Abyſſines, acknowledging but one Nature in Chriſt. He adds, That the Number of Jacobites, properly ſo called, is very ſmall, there being not above 40 or 45 Thouſand Families, which principally inhabit Syria and Meſopotamia. They are divided amongſt themſelves, one part embracing, and the other diſowning Communion with the Church of Rome. Theſe laſt alſo are not well united, having two oppoſite Patriarchs; one at Caramit, the other at Darzapharan. Beſides theſe two, there is one of the ſame Opinion with the Latins, named Andrew, reſiding at Aleppo. The Jeſuit Sacchini, in the Hiſtory of his Society, alledges a Conference between Father Chriſtopher Roderick, the Pope's Envoy in Egypt, and the Jacobite Cophti's, concerning a Re-union of the two Churches. But it appears by that Conference, that the moſt learned of that Sect differ from the Roman Catholicks merely in Expreſſions, which they uſe only to ſhew themſelves to be far from owning the Sentiments of the Neſtorians. See Syrians.

JACQUELINA, a Woman in Italy, poſſeſſed by the Devil, in the XV*th*. Century; whom Cælius Rhodiginus ſaith he ſaw in his Country. This Author relates, That ſhe had within her a Devil that ſpoke intelligibly. Many Perſons of Credit cauſed her to be undreſſed, to try if there were any Cheat. The Devil's Name was Cincinnatulus: He rejoyced when he was named, and returned wonderful Anſwers to Queſtions concerning hidden and difficult Things, paſſed or preſent; but his Anſwers were always falſe concerning the time to come, or he covered his Ignorance with a buzzing, confuſed Noiſe; as ſaith the above-named Author, in the 8*th*. Book. De Antiquis Lectionibus, Cap. 10.

JACQUELINA of Bavaria, Counteſs of Hainault, Holland and Zeland, Lady of Frizeland, &c. the only Daughter of William IV. of Bavaria, Earl of Hainault, &c. by Margaret of Burgundy, was born in 1401. and married by a Treaty of June 30. 1406. with John of France, Dauphin of Viennois, Son to Charles VI. The Marriage was conſummated in 1417. This Prince was poiſoned, and died at Compiegne, coming from Holland. Her ſecond Husband was John of Burgundy, Duke of Brabant, &c. her firſt Couſin. 'Tis ſaid, this was by Diſpenſation of the Council of Conſtance. One of her Uncles, John Biſhop of Liege, ſurnamed Pitileſs, excepted againſt it, by the Emperor Sigiſmond's Inſtigation; and warred againſt her in 1419. Jacquelina had no Reaſon to be ſatisfied with her Husband's Conduct, and her own made her deſpicable; for from Valenciennes ſhe went over into England, in 1423. and there, her ſecond Husband being yet alive, ſhe was married again to Humphrey Duke of Glouceſter, brother to Henry V. King of England. Afterwards ſhe returned to Holland, and was taken by Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, who reſtored her to her Husband, and her third Marriage was declared void. Shortly after, two of her Gentlemen conveyed her in Man's Cloths, out of the Priſon at Ghent. Then ſhe went into Holland, where hearing of the Death of the Duke of Brabant, in 1426. ſhe was married again to Francis of Borſelle, Governor of Zeland. Afterwards the Duke of Burgundy made War againſt her, and took Borſelle Priſoner. Jacquelina gave up all her Dominions, to have her Husband again; and died for Grief in 1436. without Iſſue. *Petit. LA JACQUERIE, the Name given to a Company of rebellious Peaſants in 1358. when King John of France was Priſoner in England. That Mutiny began in Beauvoiſis. The Leader was a Country-man, named Caillet. It was named La Jacquerie, becauſe the Gentlemen called him, by way of Deriſion, Jaques Bonhomme, James Goodman. They ruined divers little Caſtles, and took Senlis: But their Cruelties made them odious. The Dauphin killed above 20000. of them. Charles le Mauvais King of Navarre defeated Caillet, beheaded him, and ſo this Mutiny was appeaſed. Froiſard. Mezeray, &c.

JADDUS, or JADDUA, ſucceeded Jonathan in the High-Prieſt-hood. In his time, about An. Mund. 3721. or 22. An. Rom. 421. in the CXII*th*. Olympiad, and 332 Years before Chriſt, Alexander the Great being angry with the Jews for their Unwillingneſs to furniſh his Army with Neceſſaries during the Siege of Tyrus, in Revenge reſolved to beſiege Jeruſalem. Jaddus met him in his Pontificalibus: And God ſo changed that Prince's Heart, that, inſtead of proſecuting his Deſign, he adored God's Name, written on the Golden Plate on the Prieſt's Forehead. Nay, Joſephus, and divers other Authors, mention Alexander's offering Sacrifices to God in Jeruſalem, to intreat his Favour. Jaddus enjoyed the High-Prieſt-hood about 10 Years, and Onias the firſt of that Name, ſucceeded him.

JADON, according to Joſephus, is the Name of the Prophet ſent againſt Jeroboam; who being deceived by a Falſe Prophet, was killed by a Lion, about An. Mund. 3064. Joſephus, lib. 8. cap. 3.

JAEN, a Spaniſh City in Andaluſia, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan to Sevil. It had formerly the Title of a Kingdom. 'Tis ſituated upon the River Frio, nine or ten Leagues from Granada. 'Tis the Giennium, Gienna, or Oningis of the Latins. Its Inhabitants were alſo named Aurigi, Gyriſoenni, and Iltulgi. The Spaniſh Authors nevertheleſs ſpeak variouſly of it. Ferdinand recovered this City from the Moors in 1466. It is now great and populous, and ſtands upon the River Guadalbollon, where it receives the Suſanna; twelve Miles from Guadalquivir, to the South, towards the Borders of Granada; and eighteen S. E. of Alcala. Long. 13. 48. Lat. 37. 50. Bartholomew Ximenes Paton, Hiſtoire de la Cividad de Jaen. Franciſco Rus de la Puerta, Hiſtoire del Reino de Jaen.

JAFANAPATAN, a City and Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Iſland Ceylon. It lies upon the Northern Coaſt, towards Coromandel. It belongs to the Dutch, who have a good Fortreſs there. Long. 110. 00. Lat. 10. 7.

JAFER-EL-SCADEK, the ſixth High Prieſt, Mahomet's Succeſſor, in the Sect of the Perſians, or Schiai's. He ordered, That any Chriſtian, Jew, or Idolater, turning Mahometan, ſhould enjoy the whole Eſtate of his Family, and might allow his Father or Mother only what he pleaſed. Thence it happens that many Armenians, Georgians, and other Chriſtians, living in Perſia, turn Mahometans for filthy Lucre ſake. Tavernier's Travels into Perſia.

JAFFA, in Latin Joppa, a Town of Palæſtine, on the Mediterranean, 24 Miles from Jeruſalem. Many Authors certifie it to be one of the moſt ancient Towns in the World, as deriving its Name from Japhet, Noah's Son, who founded it ſome Years before the Flood. The conveniency of its Harbour, the neareſt to Jeruſalem, has ever made it famous. The Ships ſent by Hiram to Solomon, unladed their Timber and Marble there. Here the Prophet Jonah embarked for Tarſus a Town of Cilicia; and many think, that near that very place he was thrown up again by the Whale. The Inhabitants, who adored the Idols of the Sidonians, were converted to Chriſtianity by St. Peter, who raiſed Tabitha to Life, and had his Viſion, relating to Cornelius, here. It was deſtroyed by Judas Macchabæus, and afterwards by the Emperor Titus. The Infidels having conquered the Holy Land, ruined all the Sea-Ports, to exclude the Chriſtians. But Godfrey of Bouillon, the firſt King of Jeruſalem, re-fortified the Caſtle of Joppa, and put a ſtrong Garriſon into it. The Saracens made many vigorous Attempts upon this Town, but all in vain, till Saladin took and demoliſhed it in 1188. Richard I. King of England repaired it, and St. Lewis King of France re-built it, and its Fortreſs, in 1252, but being returned into France, the Sultan of Egypt retook it in 1268. And ſince that, the Turks have conquered and reduced it to its preſent Condition. As to the Church Government, it had a Biſhop Suffragan to the Patriarch of Jeruſalem. For the Temporal, it was under Earls; but that Title was loſt with the Town, as all other Titles created in the Holy Land, in the Reign of the Franks. It conſiſts now only of ſome pitiful Houſes, and a little Fort of two Towers joined together by a Stone-Wall, guarded by ſome Turks and Arabians for the Baſſa of Gaza, in whoſe Power it is. The ancient Buildings are ſo decayed and demoliſhed, that it is next to impoſſible to know where either St. Peter's Chapel, Simon the Tanner's, or Tabitha's Houſe ſtood. Doubdan, Voyage de la Terre Sainƈte.

JAGELLO, Duke of Lithuania, afterwards King of Poland. See Ladiſlaus.

JAGERNDORFF, Lat. Carnovia, Capital of a Diſtrict of its own Name in Sileſia, in the Kingdom of Bohemia, formerly under the Elector of Brandenburg. It ſtands upon the River Oppa, four German Miles from Ratibor, and about three from the Confines of Moravia. This City is beautified with a magnificent Caſtle, which together with that Dukedom, was made over to Joachim II. Elector of Brandenburg, in 1538, by Ferdinand King of Bohemia, in Confirmation of a former Grant made to him by Lewis King of Hungary, in 1522. This Joachim aſſigned it to Joachim Frederick, his Kinſman; and he to George, his Son, who took Poſſeſſion in 1607, but being proſcribed in 1623, by Ferdinand II. it was given to the Prince of Leichtenſtein, who ſtill enjoys it, notwithſtanding the Pretences of the Houſe of Brandenburg. Long. 37. 50. Lat. 50. 00.

JAGO-CAVALLERO, or St. JAGO-CAVALLERO, a little Town in the Iſland of Hiſpaniola in America, 20 Leagues from San-Domingo, towards the Eaſt. There is a Mountain very near, from whence the Rains waſh down into the Rivers little pieces of Gold, ſome of four ſhillings value, which the Slaves pick up a little while after. The Inhabitants are all Buccaneers; that is, they ſell at San-Domingo Ox-Hides and Tallow. Wytfelt des Indes Occidentales. P. du Tertre, Hiſt. des Antilles.

JAGODNA or JAGNIERO, a City in the Kingdom of Servia, and Principality of Raſcia, ſubject to the Turks. It ſtands 47 Miles N. W. of Niſſa, and 94 S. E. of Belgrade. Long. 44. 24. Lat. 44. 26.

JAGOS, Inhabitants of the Kingdom of Anſico, in the Lower Æthiopia, or, as others ſay, in Congo; ſtrong, and very nimble, but cruel, having publick Shambles where they buy Man's Fleſh for Food. 'Tis ſaid, the Father eats his Son's, and the Son his Father's Fleſh, without horrour. Their Bellies are the living Graves where they bury their Dead. They wander, like Arabians, from Place to place, armed with an Ax, a Bow, and Arrows; living only by Theft and Slaughter. They adore the Sun, Moon, and many other Idols. They are ſpread almoſt through all Africa, but the moſt part of them make Incurſions into the Kingdom of Anſico. Dapper Deſcription de l'Afrique.

JAGUANA, or Sanƈta Maria del Porto, a ſmall Town on the Weſt-ſide of Hiſpaniola, 50 Leagues from Domingo. It has a convenient Port, which was frequented by the Engliſh and Dutch, till the Spaniard forbad all Trade. It was taken and almoſt ruined by the Engliſh, under the Earl of Newport, in 1591.

JAHEL, or JAEL, Heber the Kenite's Wife, who, An. Mun. 2740, ſtruck a Nail into the Temples of Siſera, General of Jabin's Army, as he ſlept in her Tent, whither, being defeated by the Iſraelites, he fled for Refuge. Judg. 4. See Siſera.

JAICS, and JAICZA, Lat. Gaitia, and Jaitia; a Town of the Lower Boſnia, under the Turk; formerly the Place of Reſidence for the Kings or Deſpots of Boſnia. It ſtands on a Mountain, having a good Caſtle, and a River at the bottom, towards the Frontiers of Croatia, between Bagnaluca and Wits. Long. 38. 15. Lat. 45. 22.

JAIR, a Judge in Iſrael, born in Gilead, of the Tribe of Manaſſes. He ſucceeded Thola, the ſixth Judge, An. Mund. 2827, about 1227 Years before Chriſt. Under him the People were enſlaved by the Philiſtines and Ammonites eighteen Years for their Idolatry. Jair judged them 22 Years, reckoning the Time of their Oppreſſion. He died An. Mund. 2848. He had 30 Sons, Governors or Lords of as many Cities. This Jair is different from Segub's Son. Judg. 10. Joſephus, lib. 5. Ant. Judaic. Torniel, An. Mund. 2853. n. 27. & 2827. n. 1.

JAKETIN, a Town of Ukrain, beyond the Nieper, in the Palatinate of Kioſia, ſituate on the River Supoi, and defended with a ſtrong Caſtle belonging to the great Czar of Muſcovy.

JALA, a City and Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Eaſtern Part of the Iſland Ceylon. The Air is very infectious, and therefore the Country little inhabited.

JALAC, a City of Nubia, built in an Iſland of the Nile, ten days Journey N. from Ghalva. This is the loweſt that any of the Nubian Boats can paſs upon that River, to the Northward, by reaſon of the Mountain Ganadel, which here forms the firſt Cataracts of the Nile. So that all Merchandices are here loaded upon Camels, and carried by Land to Aſuan, the moſt Southern City of Egypt, upon the Nile. Which is from Ilac about twelve Days Journey to the South. Nubienſis, pag. 17.

JALOFES, Inhabitants of Nigritia in Africa, between the two Arms of the River Niger, named Senega and Gambea. Their Country is alſo called the Kingdom of Senega. Its Length from Eaſt to Weſt is 115 Leagues, and its Breadth, all along the Coaſts, 60 Leagues. The Emperor is called The Great Jalof, and he writes himſelf Sovereign of thirteen or fourteen Kingdoms. The Kings of Baool, Cayor, Juala and of Alé, are his Vaſſals; and his Dominion is extended from Cape Verd, as far as Caſſan. In all this Empire there is no walled Town, but only open Boroughs or Villages. The chief City of the Kingdom of Senega, where The Great Jalof keeps his Court, is called Tubacatum. The heat is ſo extraordinary, that January there is hotter than May in Provence. That Country produces no Grapes, ſo they make Wine of Dates. The Corn, that they call Mayz, is a kind of Millet. Tobacco grows well there, but they neglect to improve it. The Paſture-Grounds abound with great Cattel. The Inhabitants of the Northern Part are only tann'd, but thoſe towards the South are perfect Blacks. They are all addicted to Witchcraft and Charms. Moſt of them are Husband-men, Fiſher men, or Shepherds; few Merchants or Tradeſmen. The chief Commodities are Bullocks Hides, Ivory, Wax, Gum-Arabick, Amber-greaſe, Gold and Silver. The greateſt Gain to the Merchants is by their Importing Iron, Copper, Coral, Cryſtal, Laces and Brandy. Their ordinary Weapons are a Turkiſh Scymiter, and Bows and Arrows. Some hold a Zaguaye or Lance in the Right Hand, a great Shield in the Left, with a Scymiter by their ſide. Their Horſe-men are very nimble, and can ſtand on the Saddle, their Horſe running full ſpeed, and dart before and behind in the twinkling of an Eye. They loſe no time in beſieging Towns, but preſently burn their Enemies Villages. Among them it is the ſign of an entire Defeat when they loſe the Royal Drum, called Omlambe, which they preſerve as carefully as the Romans did their Eagles. The Crown is hereditary; and yet in this the manner of its Deſcent is ſo particular, that all the King's Brethren muſt ſucceed, before that any of his Sons can pretend to it. The Great Jalof taxes none but Foreign Merchants. His greateſt Revenues are Preſents from the other Princes, and Slaves taken Priſoners in the Wars againſt his Neighbours, whom he ſells. But the King of Juala impoſes a little yearly Tax upon every ſubject. Theſe People greatly reſpect their Sovereigns; but the Great Jalof, as he is the moſt powerful, ſo he is the moſt reſpected by them. His ſubjects never approach him, but with Duſt upon their heads, their Bodies naked, and creeping on their Knees. Their Religion is Mahometiſm, but the majority have neither Temples, Meetings, nor Divine Service. Juſtice is very ill adminiſter'd there, for thoſe who bring the greateſt Preſents are uſually ſaid to have the beſt Right. They have this ſtrange Cuſtom, That the Brethren and Siſters of the Deceaſed inherit the whole Eſtate, the Children being excluded; for this ſilly Reaſon, That they are his neareſt Relations, and that it is uncertain whether the Children belong to the Deceaſed, or not. Dapper Deſcription de l'Afrique.

JAMAGOROD, Lat. Java, a ſtrong Caſtle, built by the Moſcovites, upon a ſteep Rock, over the River Nava, which parts Livonia from Moſcovy. It was accounted the Key of the Kingdom, and thought impregnable, until taken by Guſtavus Adolphus, in 1617. Long. 50. 52. Lat. 59. 8.

JAMAICA, an Iſland of North-America, ſituate between the Tropicks, 17 or 18 Degrees N. Latitude, upon the Sea, uſually known by the Name of Mare del Nort, about 140 Leagues N. of the main Continent of America, 15 Leagues S. from the great Iſland Cuba, and 20 Leagues Weſtward from Hiſpaniola, from Porto Bello Northwards 160, and from Carthagena 140. It is in Length 170 miles, and in Breadth 70, containing between four and five Millions of Acres, 900000 whereof were planted in 1675. A continued Ridge of Mountains divide the whole, from E. to W. Beſides which, there are ſome other Hills and Woods, intermixed with large Savanes, or Plains, ſuppoſed to have been formerly Fields of Indian Wheat, until the Spaniards, having deſtroyed the Natives, to the number of 60000, converted them to Paſture, and ſtocked them with Horſes, Cows, Hogs, &c. which thrive ſo well, that there are now great Herds of Horſes, and other Cattel, that run wild in the Woods. The Air is as temperate here as can be expected in a Place of its ſituation, being continually fanned and cooled by freſh Eaſterly Breezes, and refreſhed with frequent ſhowers of Rain, and great Dews, which fall in the Night. But not in the leaſt ſubject to the violent Storms and Hurricanes wherewith the Caribbees, and other Places in thoſe Parts, are peſter'd. Their Eaſterly Winds begin to blow about Nine in the Morning, and continue till Six or Seven in the Afternoon, and then change to the Weſt; which the Iſlanders call Land-Breezes. There is no apparent Winter, only they have ſomewhat more Rain and Thunder in the Winter-Months than at other times. Nor doth the Length of the Days and Nights vary much, but continue all the Year round of an equal Length, viz. about 15 Hours Day. The chief Towns are St. Jago, Port-Royal and Paſſage. The whole Iſland is divided into 14 Pariſhes, whereof the ſeven on the South-ſide are Port-Royal, St. Katharine's, St. John's, St. Andrew's, St. David's, St. Thomas's and Clarendon: In which are 5000 Families, and about 45000 Inhabitants. On the North-ſide are St. George's, St. Mary's, St. Ann's, and St. James's. On the Eaſt is St. Elizabeth, with two Pariſhes more; all which begin to grow very populous, and are ſuppoſed to contain near 6000 Inhabitants. Beſides the People of the 14 Precincts, there are 4000 ſtout reſolute Privateers, and Water-men, that Ply up and down about the Iſle. Its Products are good Sugars, abundance of extraordinary Cacao, Indico, Cotton, Tobacco, Tortoiſeſhells, ſhells, Hides, Wood, Salt, Ginger, Cod-Pepper, Piemento, or Jamaica-Pepper, Guajacum, China-Roots, Sarſaparilla, Caſſia-fiſtula, Tamarind, Vinello's, Achiats, Alloes, Benjamin, Cochinele. Their Cows and Sheep are large. They have Aſnegroes and Mules, both wild and tame, in great Numbers. The Iſland abounds in Goats, Hogs, and Rabbets; but has neither Hare nor Deer. In all its Rivers, Bays, Roads and Creeks, are variety of excellent Fiſh: Nor does it want tame or wild Fowl of any kind. Here is a certain Creature called an Alligator, which, in many of their Rivers and Land-Ponds, lives by preying upon ſuch Beaſts and Fowls as come thither to drink; which they catch with the more facility, by lying ſtretched forth upon the Brinks of the Rivers, like a piece of dried Wood, which, in that poſture, they very much reſemble. They are 10, 15, and ſome 20 Foot long, having four Feet, or rather Fins, wherewith they both walk and ſwim. They move forward with great ſwiftneſs and ſtrength, but cannot turn quick, nor without trouble. Their Backs are ſo covered with Scales, that they are impenetrable, and ſcarcely to be killed, unleſs the Weapon pierce their Eye or Belly; yet they are rarely known to ſet upon a Man. They breed like a Fowl, by Eggs, no bigger than thoſe of a Turkey; which having laid in the ſand, not far from the Water, ſhe leaves the Sun-beams to hatch them, without ever looking after them more: And the young, as ſoon as they have broke the ſhell, creep into the Water, and ſhift for themſelves. This Creature's Fat is a Sovereign Balm for Internal Aches and Pains in the Joints and Bones. They have alſo in them Musk-Cods, ſtronger ſcented than thoſe of the Eaſt-Indies; by which ſcent they are diſcovered and avoided. Here are alſo ſome Muskettoes, and Merry-Winds. The Dropſie, Calentures, Fevers and Agues, are the Maladies moſt incident to the Inhabitants. The Laws of the Country, as near as the circumſtances of the Places admit, are the ſame with thoſe of England. The Spaniards having diſcovered this Iſland, under Chriſtopher Columbus, ſettled in the South ſide, in 1590, where they built St. Jago; which they enjoyed peaceably, until it was ſurprized by one Jackſon, with a Fleet of Engliſh Privateers, in 1638, who, when he had plunder'd the Town, ſurrender'd it again to the Spaniards for 1000 Bevers. The Engliſh being diſappointed in their Deſign upon Hiſpaniola, landed here 20000 ſtrong, in 1655, under the Command of Penn and Venables, ſent by Cromwel, to be reveng'd on the King of Spain for entertaining King Charles II. The Spaniards, unable to reſiſt ſo great a Force, retired into their Woods and Faſtneſſes, hoping to retrieve what they had thus left by a Treaty, but it proved otherwiſe; for part of the Engliſh fell to Plant, and the reſt to Privateer on the Spaniards, by which they got great Wealth. And the Fame of this did ſo ſpread, that many going over to them, it became in a few Years a powerful Colony, now able alone to manage a War againſt all the Forces the Spaniards have in the Weſt-Indies. The Earl of Inchequin, and the Duke of Albemarle, two late Governors, died both here. Port-Royal in this Iſland, with a great number of the Inhabitants, was deſtroyed by one of the moſt terrible Earthquakes that was ever heard of in Summer, An. 1692. It hath ſeveral other good Harbours. See Port.

JAMAISOIT, a great part of Japan, in the Weſtern Coaſt of Niphon-Iſland. They commonly divide that Country into twelve great Provinces, or Kingdoms. viz. Aqui, Bingo, Bitco, or Bitcou, Foqui, Nangato, Tomo, &c. with ſome Towns of the ſame Name.

JAMAMA, a City and Province of Arabia Fœlix, in Aſia, near the River Aſtan, towards the Limits of Arabia Deſerta, going up to the Gulf of Balſera, or the Elcatif Sea, 250 Miles W. of the Perſian Gulf, and 70 German Miles from Balſera, to the S.E. Long. 77. 30. Lat. 27. 00.

JAMBA, a City and Kingdom of the Indies, in the Peninſula, on this ſide the River Ganges, in the Dominions of the Great Mogul, between Patna to the E. Naugracut to the N. Labor to the W. and Bakar to the S. The City ſtands near a River, between the Ganges and the Mountains, which divide this Kingdom from that of Labor. Calſeri is alſo a good Town in that Country.

JAMBIS, a City and Kingdom of the Indies in the Iſland Sumatra. It is ſituated about five or ſix Miles from the Sea, towards Palimban, and is famous for Trade.

JAMBLICHUS, a Platonick Philoſopher in the IVth Century, born in Chalcis a Town of Syria, and Scholar to Porphyry. They were both excellent Philoſophers, tho' ſuſpected to have diſhonoured that Science by Magical Superſtitions. Jamblichus flouriſhed in the Reigns of Conſtantine the Great, and his Sons, and Julian the Apoſtate, who wrote three Letters to him, ſtill extant. He compoſed divers Works; as, The Life of Pythagoras and of Alypius, with ſome Orations, exhorting to the Study of Philoſophy, &c. Eunapius wrote his Life. Conſult alſo Suidas. A Greek Author alſo of the ſame Name, lived in the IId Century, in the Reign of Antoninus Philoſophus, who wrote the Hiſtory of Rhodis's and Sinonides's Amours. Babylon was his Country; and he had the vanity to brag of his being a Magician, as Photius tells us.

JAMBOLI, Lat. Jambole, a Province in the Kingdom of Macedonia, bounded to the North by Thrace, to the Eaſt by the Archipelago, and to the Weſt by the Gulf of Theſſalonica in part, and by the Province of Macedonia, properly ſo called, in part; and to the South, by the ſaid Gulf and Sea. The Capital of it is Theſſalonica. It was the beſt Stud in all Greece; ſo that Alexander the Great, kept about Pella and this place, 30000 Mares for breeding.

S. JAMES, called The Great, Zebedee's Son, was called with his Brother John, by Chriſt, to the Apoſtleſhip, who named them both Boanerges, that is to ſay, The Sons of Thunder. Herod Agrippa, to pleaſe the Jews, cauſed this Holy Apoſtle to be Beheaded. Some ſay, his Accuſer was Converted, to ſee this holy Man die with ſo much Conſtancy; and others add, that he Baptiz'd Phygellus and Hermogenes, both Magicians, tho' afterwards they alter'd their Faith, as St. Paul ſaith in his 2d Epiſtle to Timothy. St. James was the firſt Martyr among the Apoſtles. He ſuffer'd An. Ch. 41. Acts 12. The Spaniards, upon ſome Traditions, pretend this St. James to have been their Apoſtle, tho' no ancient Author mentions it. The Biſhop of Compoſtella, alledging this pretended Travel in the Great Lateran Council under Innocent III. to prove his Churches Independency upon that of Toledo, he found the Reaſons, which Roderick Ximenes his Archbiſhop produced to the contrary, unanſwerable. Cardinal Baronius, in his Remarks upon the Roman Martyrology, aſſerted this Chimerical Tradition; but being convicted by many ſolid Reaſons, grounded upon ſeveral Epiſtles of Popes, and divers Evidences of famous Authors, he retracted his Opinion in his Annals, which coſt him dear, being handled very unworthily by the Spaniſh Writers; who to confirm their Opinion, ſay, They have the entire Body of that Apoſtle, which cannot be ſo, if there be a part in St. Saturnine's Church at Tholouſe, as the Clergy of that City pretend. Nay, Mr. Corier in his Hiſtory of Dauphine, makes out, That the Reliques, ſo much boaſted of by the Spaniards, are the Remains of the Body of a Holy Man of that Province called James, and not the Apoſtle. The curious may conſult Innocent I's Letter to Decentius, and thoſe of Gregory VII. to the Kings of Spain. In Jeruſalem may be ſeen a Church dedicated to his Name, about 300 Paces from Sion Gate. 'Tis one of the fineſt and largeſt in the Town; the Dome in the middle is raiſed upon four large Pillars, and is open at the top, like that of the Holy Sepulchre, for the conveniency of light. There are three Altars a-breaſt, in three Quires towards the Eaſt. At the Left-hand-entrance into the Body of the Church, may be ſeen a little Chapel, the place, where 'tis thought, this holy Apoſtle was Beheaded, becauſe it was formerly the publick Market-place. The Church belongs to the Armenians, who have there a well-built Monaſtery, where is always a Biſhop, and twelve or fifteen Monks upon the place, to perform Divine Service. The Church and Lodgings are ſaid to have been founded by the Kings of Spain, to receive the Pilgrims of that Nation. Near that place is the reputed dwelling-houſe of St. Thomas the Apoſtle, according to the Tradition of the Country. They ſay, neither Mahometan nor Jew can enter this place, but it coſts him his life; and therefore keep the Doors continually ſhut, to prevent the Diſaſter. Doubdan Voyage de la Terre Sainte.

St. JAMES, called The Leſs, in Scripture The Juſt, and The Brother, that is to ſay, Couſin German of the Lord, an Apoſtle, was Alphæus's Son, and the Apoſtle St. Jude's Brother. He is ſaid to have been choſen Biſhop of Jeruſalem, and in that Quality was Preſident in the Council held by the Apoſtles at Jeruſalem in 49 or 50. St. Paul calls him one of the Pillars of the Church; and his Life was ſo holy, that Joſephus looks upon the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, as a Puniſhment inflicted on the Jews, for putting him to death. Ananus II. High-Prieſt, condemned him, and delivered him up to the People. Euſebius reports from Hegeſippus, That the Jews compelling him to renounce publickly the Doctrine of Jeſus Chriſt, he defended it on the ſteps of the Temple with ſuch wonderful Conſtancy, that the enraged Phariſees, his chief Enemies, threw him down head-long, where his Brains were daſh'd out with a Fuller's Club. So having govern'd his Church about 29 Years, he receiv'd the Crown of Martyrdom in 62. We have an Epiſtle of his, Addreſſed to the Faithful diſperſed amongſt the Jews; beſides this, there is a Liturgy in ſeveral Editions of the Works of the Fathers, which bears his Name, and is ſaid to have been authorized by the Teſtimony of St. Cyrillus, Proclus of Conſtantinople, &c. but thought to be counterfeit. There is alſo a Goſpel attributed to him, placed amongſt the Apocryphal Books.

St. JAMES of Niſibis ſurnamed The Wiſe, was Biſhop of Niſibis a City of Meſopotamia, and liv'd in the IVth Century. For his Zeal to defend and propagate the true Faith, he ſuffer'd much from Idolaters and Hereticks. He was preſent at the Council of Nice in 325. He preſerved his City from the Perſians, who beſieged it in 339 or 350. When 'tis ſaid, That having Curs'd their Army, at St. Ephrem's requeſt, God ſent ſuch ſwarms of Flies againſt it, that forced it to withdraw. Baronius will have this to be in 339, ſoon after the death of Conſtantine; others ſay, it happened in 350, at the ſecond Siege. He wrote divers Commentaries in Syriack; and Gennadius, beginning his Book of Illuſtrious Men with him, ſaith, That he compiled 26 different Treatiſes. Theod. lib. 2. Hiſt. St. Hieron. Chron. Gennad. in Catal. c. 1.

Kings of Scotland of the Name of JAMES.

JAMES I. the 102d King of Scotland, having been detained as Priſoner in England, as he landed to refreſh himſelf at Flamborough in Yorkſhire, in his way to France, while Prince, there being then a Truce betwixt the two Nations, was Ranſomed, and returned home in 1423. On his arrival, many were the grievances preſented to him, which the People had lain under ſince his Father's Death, by the Neglect or Male-adminiſtration of the Governors; ſo that to pacify the Commons, he committed ſome of the Nobility accuſed, till the Meeting of Parliament, which was appointed for May 27. 1423. In the mean time, he and his Queen were Crowned, Apr. 20th. that ſame Year. When the Parliament met, many good Laws were made, eſpecially againſt Robberies. In the next place, they conſulted how to pay the King's Ranſom, which the Treaſury being exhauſted, was not able to defray. It was puſh'd on by the Nobles, whoſe Sons were left for Hoſtages: And for that end, a Tax of the 20th. part, was impoſed upon all Moveables, which the People reckoned intolerable; both in regard of the want of Money, becauſe of the extraordinary cheapneſs of all things; being alſo unaccuſtomed to Taxes, and, that it was like to be a Precedent for time to come; ſo that the King finding the firſt Payment come in very hardly, he remitted the reſt. The Parliament committed Murdo, Duke of Albany, the late Governor of the Kingdom, and two of his Sons, the Earl of Lenox, with his Son-in-law, and 24 more of the prime Nobility. The Governor's youngeſt Son James, enraged at the Diſaſter of his Family, burnt Dumbarton, and killed John Howard the King's Uncle, with 32 of his Men, and then together with his Counſellor, the Biſhop of Liſmore, fled into Ireland, where he died. This ſame Year, in a Parliament at Sterling, Murdo above-mentioned with his two Sons and Son-in-law, were Condemned and Beheaded, and their Heads ſent to Iſabella, one of their Wives, to try whether Grief would make her reveal her mind; yet, ſhe was ſo compoſed, as to anſwer, That if the Crimes objected, were true, the King had done juſtly, and according to Law. And in a little time, ſuch Places as held out for the Rebels, were reduced. In 1426. John Stuart of Dernly, General of the Scots Cavalry in France, and the Archbiſhop of Rheims, were ſent Ambaſſadors to Scotland, to renew the ancient League with France, and to propoſe a Match betwixt King James's Daughter, and Charles VII's Son, both Children, which was agreed. Two Years after, he went to Adminiſter Juſtice in the High-lands, and repaired the Caſtle of Innerneſs, to curb the thieving Clans, who put the Country under Contribution, committed 40 of the Ring-leaders, hanged Mac-Rory and Mac-Arthur, and purſuaded the reſt, by fair Words, to behave themſelves as they ought, threatning them ſeverely, if they did otherwiſe. Alexander of the Iſles, the greateſt Man of the Kingdom, next to the King himſelf, being in like manner guilty, yet made his Peace, by the Intereſt of his Friends, and was favourably receiv'd at Court; but returning home, aſſembled his Comrades, plundered and burnt the Town of Innerneſs, and beſieged the Caſtle; but on the approach of the King's Forces, retired to Loghaber, and having 10000 Men with him, reſolved to hazard a Battle; but the Cattans and Camerons, two of the Clans, deſerting him, he diſmiſſed his Army, retired to the Weſt Iſles, and thought of flying to Ireland, but finding that he could not be ſecure there, he ſubmitted to the King's Mercy, who at the Queen's deſire, pardoned, but impriſoned him. A little after this, the Cattans and Camerons fought among themſelves, to the mutual Ruine almoſt of both Clans; and Donald Balock, a Couſin of Alexander's, pretending to revenge him, ſurprized and defeated the King's Forces in Loghaber, commanded by Alexander and Alan Stuarts, Earls of Caithneſs and Mar, waſting the Country with Fire and Sword, but fled with his Plunder to the Iſles on the King's approach, who reſolved to purſue him thither; but that the Clans humbly petitioned him, not to ruin the Country for the fault of one: So that, on their delivering up 300 of the chief Robbers, whom he hanged every Man, he deſiſted. Duffus and Murdo, two of the Captains of the Highlanders, whom the King had releaſed at the Deſire of his Nobles, falling out with one another, and meeting with 1500 on a ſide, they fought ſo eagerly, that only 12 were left of the one Party, and nine of the other. Yet all thoſe Calamities, did not reſtrain one Mac Donnald of Roſſe a notable Robber, who, with his Gang, plundered the Neigbouring Country; and, amongſt others, a Widow, who told him, ſhe would complain to the King; whereupon, he cauſed a Smith to nail Horſe-ſhooes to her Feet, telling her, that would enable her the better for the Journey: The Woman, aſſoon as recovered, did actually go and acquaint the King with it, and Mac Donald being then in Cuſtody, his Majeſty ordered him, and 12 of his Accomplices to be ſo ſhod, and led through the City, a Herald going before to acquaint the People with the cauſe of that unuſual Puniſhment; after which, the Captain was beheaded, and his Aſſociates hanged on Gibbets by the Road-ſide. His Majeſty's next care was, to find out Donald of the Iſles, and hearing that he lay conceal'd in a Noble-man's houſe in Ireland, he ſent to Demand him; the Noble-man fearing leſt he ſhould eſcape by the Way, and the cauſe be imputed to him, cut off his Head and ſent it to the King. Robbery being thus ſuppreſſed, he took care to have Juſtice adminiſtred through the Kingdom, and Weights and Meaſures adjuſted; for which end, many uſeful Laws were Enacted. Oct. 14. 1430. The Queen being delivered of Twins, publick Rejoicings were made, and during the ſame, he pardoned Archibald Douglas and John Kennedy, who had been committed for Speaking raſhly concerning the Government. He admitted Douglas to be Godfather to his Children, and Knighted his Son. After this, the King applied himſelf to reform the Eccleſiaſticks, and prevent their ſtretching their Power too far. He erected publick Schools for Learning, encouraged learned Men, and would be preſent at their Diſputations; and gave charge to the Rectors of Univerſities, to preſent none but Scholars of Merit to him for Church-Preferments. And conſidering that his Kingdom had been a Scene of War for 150 Year together, and Trade neglected; he ſent for Artificers from Abroad, and encouraged Commerce, by which means the Towns were Re-peopled. Upon the Complaints of the People, that the riotous Way of Living, as Drinking, Masks, Balls and expenſive Dreſſing, brought in Faſhion at Court by thoſe who followed him from England, infected the Country, he reformed that expenſive Way of Living among his Nobles, by Reproof, his own Example and wholſome Laws. By the Death of the Valiant Alexander, Earl of Mar, a Natural Son of the Royal Family, (who ſignalized himſelf at Home and Abroad, routed the Dutch Fleet, and brought them to beg a Truce) the King was poſſeſſed of Buchan and Mar, becauſe this Alexander had no Iſſue, and having moreover taken abundance of Wards from the Nobility, who held of him, (i. e. the Profits of their Eſtates, during their Nonage, after the death of their Parents, the Charges of Education excepted) which former Kings uſed to remit, or at leaſt quit for ſome Gratuity; having alſo revoked ſome Grants made by the former Governors, particularly of the Forfeiture of George Earl of March, and alſo the Eſtate of Meliſs Graham Earl of Strathern, then a Hoſtage in England; the Earl of Athol laying hold of theſe things, ſtirred up Diſcontents againſt the King which brought him to an untimely Exit, as we ſhall hear anon. This was the State of Affairs, when Ambaſſadors arrived from France, to carry home the King's Daughter Margaret, who was formerly betrothed to the Dauphin. At the ſame time, came Ambaſſadors from England, to prevent Renewing of the League with France, and ſollicite a perpetual League Offenſive and Defenſive with themſelves; which being referred to the Parliament, the Eccleſiaſticks were divided in Opinion, but the Nobility were altogether for France; alledging, That it was only a Trick of the Engliſh, to deprive them of the Aſſiſtance of their ancient Allies, and render them the more obnoxious to themſelves; ſo they carried the Point, and the Princeſs was ſent to France, having narrowly eſcaped from the Engliſh Fleet, who lay in Wait for her. Here Buchanan wipes off the Calumnies thrown upon this Lady, and the King her Father, by the Engliſh Hiſtorians. King James prepared for War with England, and trying to raiſe a Tax from the People to rig out his Navy, he found them ſo averſe, that he reſtored what he had Levied. In the mean time, Piercy of Northumberland invades the Scots Borders, and was oppoſed by William Douglas Earl of Angus, who fought him with an equal Number, defeated and took 1500 of his Men, loſing none of Note, but Alexander Johnſon, a Noble and Valiant Perſon. A little after, King James attacked the Caſtle of Roxbourgh held out by the Engliſh, and was like to have carried it, but was obliged to disband his Army on Notice from the Q. who came poſt to inform him of a Conſpiracy againſt his Life, which the Earl of Athol, the chief of the Conſpirators, did alſo improve againſt him, to make him hateful to the People; as if by the Story of a Woman, he had been frightned from the Siege. And in the mean time, by his Spies at Court, while the King was enquiring into the Plot, he had information of every thing that paſſed; ſo that puſh'd on by fear of his own danger, having brib'd ſome of the King's Servants; he, with the reſt of his Aſſociates, came to the very Chamber-door, as one of the Servants came out, whom they murdered, and breaking open the Door, which one of the Ladies ſtood againſt, putting her Arm inſtead of the Bar, which one of the Traitors had taken away, they broke the ſame; and ruſhing in upon the King, the Queen threw her ſelf upon him, but having forced her away, after ſeveral Wounds, they murdered him barbarouſly, and eſcaped by the darkneſs of the Night, but were afterwards apprehended, and condignly puniſhed. See Stuart Walter. This Exit had James I. being much lamented by the Nobility and People, the former Aſſembling voluntarily, purſued the Murderers with utmoſt diligence, to teſtify their Love to the Memory of their Prince, whom they lamented, as cut off in the Flower of his Age, and midſt of his Endeavours to ſettle good Laws. He was a little Man, but very ſtrong and nimble, of a quick Wit, well learned, a good Politician, and every way well accompliſh'd for Government. He was Slain Feb. 12. 1437. in the 13th. of his Reign, Aged 44. Succeeded by the Youngeſt of his Twins, the Elder being Dead. His Wife was Joan Daughter to the Earl of Salisbury, of the Royal Blood of England, the moſt beautiful Woman of her time, having fallen in Love with her whilſt he was Priſoner in England. So that the Engliſh Court thought it would prove a happy Opportunity of engaging him to their Intereſt. Buchanan.

JAMES II. the 103*d* King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Father James I. at ſeven Years of Age, which occaſioned a great diſpute among the Nobility, who ſhould be Elected Vice-roy. The Competitors were, Archibald Earl of Douglas, the greateſt Man at that time in Scotland for Wealth and Power; and Alexander Levingſton and William Creighton, who were both of good Families, and had obtained great Repute and Authority, by their prudent Management of Affairs under the former King. The Nobility were moſt for them, and declined the Earl of Douglas, as being too formidable even to the Kings themſelves, ſo that Alexander Levingſton was choſen Regent, and William Creighton Chancellor; the Convention was ſcarcely diſſolved, when the Peace was broken by Factions, ſo that the Chancellor kept with the King in Edinburgh Caſtle, and the Regent with the Queen at Sterling. Douglas being fretted at his diſappointment, was pleaſed to ſee theſe Diſorders, and the Men of Anandale, who were under his Command, plunder'd the Neighbouring Countries, which he was ſo far from Redreſſing on the Regent and Chancellor's Letters, that he forbid any under his Command, to Anſwer, if ſummoned to the Courts of Juſtice; alledging, That he alone had the Power of judging them according to Royalties granted to his Predeceſſors, ſo that all on this ſide the Forth was in a Flame, the Regent and the Chancellor iſſuing Proclamations againſt one another. In the mean time, the Queen cunningly got her Son, the young King, out of the Chancellor's hands, thus: Coming to Edinburgh-Caſtle on pretence of giving him a Viſit, ſhe inſinuated ſo far into the Chancellor, as to learn all his Deſigns, and have free Converſation with her Son, whom ſhe perſwaded to leave the Chancellor; in order to which, pretending that ſhe was going to a Country-Church, to perform a Vow, ſhe deſired that ſhe might have leave to go out of the Caſtle betimes; which being granted, ſhe carried her Son with her in a Trunk, and before his Servants miſs'd him, ſhipp'd him off at Leith, and ere Night arrived at Sterling, were they were joyfully received, the Queen's Wiſdom commended, and the Chancellor's former Reputation blaſted. He was accuſed as the Author of all the Diſorders; and it was agreed in Council, to beſiege him in Edinburgh-Caſtle; whereupon he craved Aid of Douglas, who returned him Anſwer, That if both he and the Regent fell in the Conteſt, the Publick would loſe nothing; by which, both parties being terrified, they clapt up an Agreement, and the Chancellor ſurrendred the Caſtle. But in a little time after, Douglas died opportunely for them all, tho' his Son William gave them no little Diſturbance, as may be found in his place. At the ſame time, the Iſlanders invaded the Continent, deſtroying all before them, in a moſt barbarous manner: To all theſe Miſeries, there was an acceſſion of Famine and Peſtilence, ſo violent, that it killed thoſe whom it ſeized on in a days time, and continued two Years. The Queen, and her ſecond Husband, James Stuart, with others, were thrown into Priſon, as plotting againſt the Regent, but quickly releaſed, and grievous things were, at the ſame time, laid to the Regent's Charge. Not long after, the Chancellor ſurprized the King near Sterling, and brought him to Edinburgh with 4000 Horſe, where he was received with much joy. The Regent finding himſelf out-witted, he came to an Agreement with the Chancellor. In the mean time, the Country groaned under the Robberies of the Douglaſſian Faction, the Earl himſelf being too Potent to be dealt with by force. The Chancellor, &c. flattered him and his Brother to Court, where, by his, and the Regent's procurement, they were ſurprized at the King's Table, and immediately beheaded, and ſome of their chief Followers alſo put to death; the King being almoſt of Age, did weep at the Misfortune of this great Man, for which the Chancellor rebuked him. Robberies and Murders were not however, by this means, ſuppreſſed; and ſtill, all was charged upon the Douglaſſes by their Enemies. About this time, the King took the Government upon himſelf, and William then Earl of Douglas, acknowledged his Offences, threw himſelf at the King's feet, obtained Pardon, and became a Favourite, which he improved to be avenged on the late Regent and Chancellor, then out of Office; and procured their being Summoned to give an account of their Adminiſtration, which they refuſing to do, becauſe they alledged that their Enemies were to be Judges, he obtained that they ſhould be declared Rebels, and confiſcated, ſo that it broke out into an open War between the Factions, ſeveral Noble-men being engaged on both ſides; Douglas beſieged Creighton in the Caſtle of Edinburgh, but came at length to an Accommodation, and Creighton was made Chancellor again. In the mean time, bloody Feuds betwixt divers Noble Families continued to the diſturbance of the Peace of the Kingdom. Douglas procured the publick Diſgrace of the Levingſtons, the Father, who had been Regent, being impriſoned, and one of his Sons beheaded. The Truce being expired, there were mutual Incurſions betwixt the Engliſh and Scots, almoſt with equal loſs. and then the Truce was renewed for ſeven Years, but the publick miſerably haraſs'd by the Factions of Douglas and others, and the Nation expos'd to the Mercy of any foreign Enemy; nor could they have eſcap'd ruine, had not the Engliſh laboured under Factions at home. The Borderers however broke the Truce, and drove great Booties from Scotland, which occaſion'd a War, becauſe the Scots in revenge, laid Cumberland almoſt deſolate. So that an Army being rais'd under the Conduct of the Earl of Northumberland, and one Main, who had gain'd much Reputation for Conduct and Valour againſt the French, they paſs'd the Rivers Solway and Annan, and Encamped by the River Sark in Scotland, ſending out Parties to plunder the Country. The Day of Battle being come, the Earl of Northumberland commanded the main Body of the Engliſh, Main commanded the left, and Pennington the Welſh, who made the Right. Douglas Earl of Ormond commanded the Body of the Scots. Wallace of Craig encounter'd Main, and Maxwell and Johnſton attack'd Pennington. Wallace finding his Men much gall'd by the Engliſh Archers, call'd upon them to follow him, and ſo ruſhing in upon the Engliſh, came to a cloſe Fight, and put them to the rout. Main loſt his life fighting gallantly, and the Engliſh loſt abundance of Men on the Banks of Solway, the River being ſwoln with the Tide. So that the Engliſh loſt about 3000, and the Scots 600. The chief Priſoners were Pennington, Robert Huntington, and the Earl of Northumberland's Son taken, as aſſiſting his Father to eſcape. The Scots got a great Booty, but loſt their Commander Wallace, who died about three Months afterwards of his Wounds. After this, a Truce was made with England for three Years. This was An. 1448. Next year, the King married Mary of Guelderland of the Blood Royal of France. Some new Diſturbances happen'd with Earl Douglas, whom the King ſuſpected of a Plot with the Engliſh, and a Combination with others of the Nobility; but being potent, and not to be dealt with by open force in that Juncture, the King ſent for him to Court, under a promiſe of ſafe Conduct ſigned by many of the Nobility. And being come, took him aſide, told him of his Miſcarriages, particularly that Combination which he adviſed him to break. Douglas though he had anſwer'd ſubmiſſively in all other things, did heſitate on that, and deſired time to conſult his Aſſociates, whereat the King being enraged, ſtabb'd him with his own hand, uttering theſe Words. If thou wilt not break the League, I will. This happen'd Feb. 1452. The Earl's Eldeſt Brother ſucceeded, and, with the reſt of his Brethren and Friends, took to Arms, Declaring the King perjur'd, and tying the ſafe Conduct, ſigned by him and his Council, to a Horſe's Tail, declared War, which was carried on in ſeveral parts of the Kingdom, by thoſe who adhered to the different Parties. The King calling a Convention of States, had the Douglaſſes proclaimed Rebels. And there happen'd Bickerings on both ſides, but no pitch'd Battle. But ſome of Douglas's Party deſerting him, he applied for help to England, but in vain. Douglas at length, being urg'd by his Friends to a Battle, diſcourag'd them by his Cowardice, ſo that more deſerted; whereupon he fled into England, whence he invaded the Borders, and then joined with Donald of the Iſles. The Engliſh took the opportunity, and Invaded Scotland under Peircy of Northumberland, but were defeated by George Douglas Earl of Angus, which haſten'd the Submiſſion of Donald of the Iſles. So that Tumults being compoſed at home, the King was preparing for War againſt England for their Breach of Truce, when Ambaſſadors came from the Duke of York, and others of the Engliſh Nobility, to deſire his Aſſiſtance againſt their own King; in order to which, he march'd with a great Army, but was diverted, and obliged to disband the ſame, by a counterfeit Legate from the Pope, ſent by the King of England, threatning Excommunication, if he proceeded: But being inform'd of the Cheat, he rais'd the Army again, and took Roxborough Town, and juſt as he was laying Siege to the Caſtle, received freſh Ambaſſadors from the Duke of York, ſignifying that he was Conqueror, and thanking him for his Good-will, but deſired him to withdraw the Siege, though he had promiſed to reſtore that, and other places to him. The King being nettled at this, puſh'd on the Siege, and was unhappily Slain by the Wedge of one of his own Guns, as he was directing a Battery. The Nobles, though aſtoniſh'd at his death, concealed it, and the Queen coming into the Camp that ſame day, did with a Manly Courage, preſs the Nobles to carry on the Siege. Brought her Son of ſeven Years of Age into the Camp, where he was ſaluted King, and at laſt the Engliſh Surrendred, after a gallant Defence, and the Caſtle was demoliſhed, leaſt it ſhould occaſion a new War. This end had James II. An. 1460. Aged 29. Being exerciſed all his time with Wars Foreign or Domeſtick. He was much lamented, becauſe of his Moderation in Proſperity and Adverſity; his Valour againſt his Enemies, and Clemency to thoſe that ſubmitted: But chiefly, that he was killed, when great things were expected from him, and that his Succeſſor was ſo young, viz.

JAMES III. the 104*th.* King of Scotland, who began his Reign about ſeven Years of Age, the Nobles ſwearing Fealty to him in Kelſo. After which, he was carried to Edinburgh-Caſtle, under the Tutelage of his Mother, till the Meeting of the States. But the firſt thing that the Nobles did, was, to invade England, which they ravaged as far as they could, in that Seaſon of the Year, and returned with great Booty, having demoliſhed many Caſtles. That ſame Year King Henry of England being overcome by the Duke of York, fled into Scotland, and ſought Aſſiſtance, delivering up Berwick to the Scots at the ſame time, the better to engage them; and treated of a Marriage betwixt the Prince of Wales and King James's Siſter, which took no effect. The States of Scotland being met, there was a great Diſpute, who ſhould be Regent during the King's Minority. The Queen claimed it as her due; but James Kennedy Biſhop of St. Andrews, a popular Man and Perſon of great Gravity, together with Douglas Earl of Angus, thought it fit, that the States ſhould chuſe one, and of this Opinion, were moſt of the Nobility. The matter was like to have ended in a War, the People diſdaining it, as a thing Unpreſidented, to be under the Government of a Woman: But it was at laſt taken up, thus, The Parliament choſe a certain number for Regents, of which, one half were the Queen's Friends, and the other Kennedy's and Douglas's; things being thus compoſed, Ambaſſadors came from England to deſire a Truce, which was granted for 15 Years. The Queen died the Year after, viz. 1463. Alexander Duke of Albany the King's Brother, was taken by the Engliſh in his return from France, but ſet at Liberty again, upon the Scots repreſenting it as a Breach of Truce, and threatning a War. Shortly after this, the Kingdom was diſtracted, by an Invaſion of Donald of the Iſles, who proclaimed himſelf King of them, invaded the Continent, and took the Earl of Athol, who had fled for Sanctuary to a Church, which he alſo plundered; but his Fleet being Shipwrackt in his return, he thereupon fell diſtracted, which moved his Friends to reſtore the Booty and Priſoners, and to offer Expiatory Gifts to the Churches which they had robbed. After this, publick Matters were managed with great Prudence and Conduct by James Kennedy, to the Univerſal ſatisfaction. About the 6*th.* of the King's Reign, the Boyds came in favour at Court, the chief of the Family being employed to train up the King in Military Arts. He got the aſcendant ſo much over the young Prince by Flattery, that he perſwaded him to take his Family, as his principal Favourites, and ſhake off his Tutors, and eſpecially Kennedy, whom they affronted in the groſſeſt manner. This venerable Prelate dying a little after, the Nation lamented him as a Common Father. About this time, the Archbiſhop of York revived his Claim of Juriſdiction over the Church of Scotland, but the ſame was annulled by a Decree of the Pope. In the mean time, the power of the Boyds encreaſed, and Robert the chief of them was made Regent, and his Son Thomas was married to the King's Eldeſt Siſter. In the mean time, the King ſent Ambaſſadors to demand Margaret, Daughter to the King of Denmark, in Marriage, which was ſpeedily granted, and the Danes reſigned their Claim to the Iſlands of Orkney, Shetland, and all others about Scotland, in lieu of her Dowry. But while Thomas Boyd was abſent about this Matter, their Faction was undermined. The King and Queen were married, July 10. 1470; and after that, underſtanding the indirect practices of the Boyds, was very deſirous to call them to an account for't, inſomuch, that he purſued them to the Courts of Foreign Princes, and perſwaded his Siſter to be divorced from Thomas Boyd, and entirely ruined their Family: A pregnant inſtance of the inſtability of Humane Affairs, and how little the Favour of Princes is to be relied on when unhandſomly gained. After this, the Courtiers perſwaded the King, that it was fit all Men ſhould depend upon him, and therefore that he alone ought to have the power of Puniſhing, Pardoning and Rewarding; whereupon he nominated Biſhops and Abbots, which were formerly choſen by their Canons and Societies, but Patrick Graham having obtained the Pope's Bull to be Legatus à Latere, and Primate of all Scotland, the King ſent an Order of Council to hinder the Execution of his Office, and at laſt, outed him of his Biſhoprick, and kept him Priſoner to his death. In 1476, John of the Iſles took Arms, and ſeized ſome Provinces, but ſubmitted at laſt. After this, a War was like to happen betwixt the Scots and Engliſh, who had rifled a Ship belonging to James Kennedy, the biggeſt which ever had been ſeen upon the Ocean, but upon Reſtitution the Matter was made up. The King after this, liſtning to Wizards, who told him, that he ſhould fall by his own Subjects; he rejected the Council of his Nobles, and governed all by the Advice of mean Perſons, particularly one Robert Cockrain, who for his great ſtrength of Body, and extraordinary Courage, was of a mean Tradeſman made a great Courtier. The Nobility conſulting how to rid the Court of ſuch Minions were diſcovered, and John, the King's youngeſt Brother, ſpeaking too boldly of the State of Affairs, was ſeiz'd by the King's own Domeſtick Council, and Ordered to be bled to Death. Alexander, his Brother, was alſo impriſoned, but eſcaped to France. A little after, an Agreement was made, That Cecilia, Daughter to Edward of England, ſhould be married to King James's Son, and accordingly Hoſtages were exchang'd; but a War quickly followed, the Scots being ſtirred up to it by the French, and the Engliſh by Douglas, and Alexander, the King's Brother, both then in England: So that King James levied an Army, and marched as far as Lauder, to Invade England, much againſt the Mind of the Nobility, highly diſſatisfied with his Government and Favourites; whereupon Archebald Douglas Earl of Angus, having aſſembled the Nobles in the Church, about Midnight, made a long Speech to them, complaining of the Councellors and the State of Affairs, and adviſed them to drive thoſe Fellows from about the King, which was agreed on; and as the chief of the Nobility, with their Friends, were marching towards the King's Pavilion, to ſeize his evil Councellors, and judge them before the Army, the King, upon notice of their meeting, ſent Cockrain to know what was the matter, but in his way, Douglas taking him by his gold Chain, delivered him to the Marſhal, and going forward to the King's Bed-Chamber, where his Authority met with no oppoſition, he took the reſt of the Councellors, carried them out, and tried them before the Army; where the Soldiers were ſo eager for their Execution, that they offered their Bridle-reins to hang them. The principal things laid to their Charge were, That they adviſed the King to Coin baſe Money, To cut off his Kindred, and conſult Wizards. The Execution being done, the Army was Disbanded, the King having no confidence in them, nor they in him. Alexander, the King's Brother, perſwaded the King of England to Invade the Scots during theſe their diſſentions; and he, with Richard Duke of Gloceſter, the King's Brother, came with an Army as far as Edinburgh, Berwick having ſurrendred to them in their march. The King ſhut himſelf up in the Caſtle, but the Nobility, concerned for the publick Safety, raiſed an Army, and begun a Treaty with the Engliſh General, whom a great many Scots had join'd, out of love to the King's Brother; and deſired, That the Marriage, ſo long promiſed, betwixt King Edward's Daughter and King James's Son, might be conſummated. To which, the Duke of Gloceſter anſwer'd, That his Commiſſion was to have the Dowry repaid, and the Caſtle of Berwick reſtor'd, which was agreed to, and the Caſtle accordingly ſurrendred, Aug. 26. 1482. and Alexander the King's Brother was, by Interceſſion of the Nobility, reconciled and made Regent. But the Courtiers accuſing him of too much Popularity, he was forced to retire again, and was condemned in his abſence. A little after, he and James Douglas invaded Scotland with 500 Horſe, but were defeated. A ſeven Years Truce being concluded betwixt the Engliſh and Scots, and James III. having buried his Queen, and loſt his Brother Alexander the ſame Year, he returned to his former Courſes, excluding the Nobility, and advancing Upſtarts. The chief of the Court-Faction was John Ramſey, who had eſcaped the Fate of his Comrades at Lauder becauſe of his Youth, and was become ſo intolerably proud, that the Nobility could not endure him. The King endeavoured to cajole ſome of the Nobles, that he might ſeize and cut them off one by one, and diſcovered his deſign to George Douglas Earl of Angus, thinking to engage him in it. The Earl diſſwaded him from ſo treacherous and baſe an attempt, and pretending to put him in a Method of revenging himſelf legally, he acquainted the reſt of the Nobility with their danger. The King finding himſelf diſcovered preſently took Arms, and the Nobles did the like, chuſing the King's Son their General, who was eaſily perſwaded, leſt the Kingdom might be given up to the Engliſh. The King by this time had re-paſſed the Forth, and Encamped at Blackneſs, having writ to the French King and Pope for aſſiſtance: But the Nobility preſs'd on to a Battel, wherein they had the diſadvantage at firſt, but at length gained the Victory, the King himſelf being ſlain in the flight; after which the Nobility aſſembled, and created his Son King. This happen'd in 1488. Buchanan.

JAMES IV. ſucceeded his Father at Sixteen Years of Age. He ſummoned the Governor of Edinburgh Caſtle to ſurrender it, which he did. Then paſſing to Sterlin, that Caſtle was delivered him by the Gariſon. Andrew Wood alſo ſubmitted; and with his two Ships brought into Leith five Engliſh Men of War, ſent by King Edward to plunder the Coaſts; and ſoon after engaged Sir Stephen Bull, ſent by the ſame King to repair the former Affront; and after an obſtinate Fight, the Engliſh Ships drawing more Water than his, ſtranding at the Mouth of the River Ty, he made himſelf Maſter of them, and towed them to Dundee, Aug. 10. 1490. The People of the North of Scotland, upon the News of this ſecond Victory, returned to their Homes. Whereupon the young King called a Parliament, wherein he ſhewed ſo much Moderation, that the formerly diſaffected Parties ſtrove to ſhew him their Love and Duty; who, to ſhew his Grief for his Father's Death, wore an Iron Chain round his Waſte, to which he added a Link every Year. About this time Perkin Warbeck arrives in Scotland, and cajol'd the Council, with a cunning Harangue, into a Belief that he was the Prince he pretended, lawful Heir to the Crown of England: Whereupon he was honourably treated, and King James gave him his Kinſwoman, Daughter to the Earl of Huntley, in Marriage, and aſſiſted him with an Army to invade England, wherewith he plunder'd Northumberland; but King James perceiving that the Engliſh did not join him, began to ſmell the Cheat. King Henry of England prepar'd to revenge this Injury, but was prevented by an Inſurrection at Home. King James invades England again, but to little purpoſe; and a little after, Hialas, a Spaniſh Ambaſſador, who came to treat of a Marriage with Prince Arthur of England, was deſired to mediate a Peace: About which they had a Meeting at Jedburg in Scotland, where the Engliſh demanded the ſurrender of Perkin Warbeck, which King James refuſed; ſo that it ended in a Truce for ſome Months, during which Warbeck was ſent out of Scotland. A little after a Peace was made, and, Anno 1500. Margaret, Daughter to Henry VII. of England, was betrothed to King James. After the Marriage the King ſpent his Time in Tournaments, to which reſorted many Foreigners; and then applied himſelf to Building of Ships, three of which were of an extraordinary Bulk, beſides many of a middle Rate. One of the great ones was the biggeſt that, until then, ever appeared in the Ocean; wherein the Kings of England and France ſtriving to outvie him, built each of them one, ſo great, that they were perfectly uſeleſs. King James having thus exhauſted his Treaſures, he revived the old Cuſtom of Wardſhip, which was, to have the diſpoſal of Minors Eſtates until they were of Age, which, tho' a great Grievance to the Country, yet ſo great was their Love to this Prince, that they did not take Arms. The King, that he might honourably lay by this Exaction, and abridge his Expences, reſolved on a Voyage to Jeruſalem, to atone for having carried Arms againſt his Father; but was hinder'd on this following Occaſion. The Emperor, Venetians and Switzers, having enter'd into a League againſt France, the King of England joined in the Confederacy, and renewed his Pretenſions on Normandy, &c. King James reſolved to ſide with neither, yet was more inclined to the French, and ſent his Fleet, as a Preſent, to Ann Queen of France, that it might ſeem rather a Mark of Friendſhip, than a deſigned real Aſſiſtance. But the Scotch Clergy, bribed with French Gold, endeavoured to alienate his Mind altogether from the Engliſh. And Forman Biſhop of Murray was ſent into England, to pick a Quarrel, in demanding a Legacy of great Value, left by Prince Arthur to his Siſter the Queen of Scots; but this Deſign miſcarried by Henry VIII's mild Anſwer. In the mean time, James Earl of Arran being ſent Admiral of the Fleet for France, did purpoſely linger until the French laid aſide their Naval Preparations; but at length arriving at Breſt, the great Ship above-mentioned was unrigged, and left there to rot. In the mean time, the Murder of Robert Carr, Lord-Warden of the Middle-Marches of Scotland, by the Engliſh, at a ſolemn Border-meeting; and the Affair of Andrew Barton, a famous Scotch Sea-Captain, who was killed, and his Ship taken by Howard, Admiral of England, in a Time of Peace, occaſioned a perfect Rupture. So that the Earl Hume invaded the Borders of England, and brought thence a rich Booty, but loſt a great Number of his Men in an Ambuſh: And La Motte, the French Ambaſſador, with the Aſſiſtance of the Clergy, prevailed with the King to declare a War with England by Sea and Land, upon the Accounts above-mentioned, if Henry VIII. did not deſiſt from his War againſt France and the Duke of Guelderland. To which that Prince returned a fierce Anſwer. Whereupon King James raiſed an Army; but as he was at Veſpers, at Linlithgow-Church, an ancient Man, his Hair of the colour of Amber, with a very venerable Aſpect, cloathed in a Country Habit, with a Linen Girdle round his Waſte, preſſed through the Crowd, and coming to the King told him, That he was ſent to warn him not to proceed, and to abſtain from the Familiarity and Council of Women: Otherwiſe, that he and his Followers ſhould not proſper. Having ſpoken thus he diſappeared, no Body knew how, ſays Buchanan, who had the Relation from David Lindſey of the Mount, an Eye-witneſs. The King notwithſtanding marched on; tho', according to others, he had a ſecond Warning at Jedborough, from a Spectre, which entring the Hall where he and his Nobles were drinking, wrote thus upon the Mantle-piece;

Læta ſit illa dies, neſcitur origo ſecundi
Sit labor an requies; ſic tranſit gloria Mundi.

He enter'd England, and took the Caſtles of Norham, Werk, Etel, Foord, &c. by Storm, and waſted the neighbouring Country; but falling in Love with Hern of Foord's Lady, whom he had taken Priſoner, he neglected his Affairs; ſo that his Army wanting Proviſions, deſerted a-pace, none but a few of the Nobility, with their Friends and Vaſſals, and thoſe alſo diſguſted, ſtaying in the Camp. The greater part adviſed him not to ſpend his Time ſo diſgracefully, but to attack Berwick, which he might eaſily take; but he was deaf to their Council. Whilſt Matters were thus, the Engliſh challenged them to fight; and they calling a Council of War, the Major Part were for his returning home, and not venturing a Battel with ſo ſmall a Force; alledging, that he had done enough already to oblige France: But the French Ambaſſador, and the bribed Courtiers, prevailed with him to ſtay. The Engliſh not coming on the day appointed, the Scotch Nobility deſired the King again to return home, ſeeing now he might do it with Honour, telling him, that the Engliſh delayed on purpoſe, becauſe they knew his Army would moulder away through Diſcontent: Or, if he would not take that Advice, they preſs'd him to ſeize a neighbouring Bridge, which might eaſily be defended by his great Guns, and would prevent the Engliſh paſſing the River Til. To all which he anſwered furiouſly, That he would fight the Engliſh were they 100000 ſtrong. Whereat the Nobility being offended, Douglas Earl of Angus, ſuperior to the reſt in Age and Authority, endeavoured to perſwade him, but in vain, the King in great Anger bidding him go home if he was afraid. Upon which the ancient Noble-man wept; and having acquainted him, that his former Behaviour had evidenced to the World he was no Coward, forewarned him of the hazard he ran, and took his Leave, leaving his Sons and Vaſſals Pledges of his Fidelity to his King and Country. The reſt of the Nobles finding themſelves inferiour in Number, prevailed at laſt with the King to encamp his Army advantageouſly; which the Engliſh perceiving, marched as if they intended to invade Scotland, and ſo drew King James from that Poſt, and at laſt they met at Flodden-Hill. The Engliſh divided into two Armies, either almoſt equal to the Scots: One of the Bodies was commanded by Admiral Thomas Howard, Edward Howard, and Marmaduke Conſtable; the other by the Earl of Surrey the General, Edward Stanley, and the Lord Dacres. King James led on the main Body of the Scots, the Earls of Huntley and Hume commanded the Right Wing, the Earls of Lenox and Argyle the Left, Hepburn, with the Nobility of Lothian, being left Reſerve. The Gordons ſoon routed the Left Wing of the Engliſh, and Lenox and Argyle, encouraged by their Succeſs, broke their Ranks, and fell on in great Diſorder; which occaſioned not only their own, but the Ruin of the whole Army, tho' the King's Body and Hepburn's Brigade fought ſtoutly. The Battel continued till Night, that both Armies withdrew, neither knowing who had the Victory; ſo that the Lord Hume and his Men, who remained entire, gathered the Spoil at leiſure. But next Morning the Lord Dacres being ſent out with a Party, to get Tidings of the Enemy, finding the Scots Cannon left, publiſhed the Victory with great Joy. Concerning the King of Scotland, the Engliſh ſay he was killed in Battel, but the Scots, and particularly one of his Servants, from whom Buchanan had it, ſays, That he paſſed Twede after the Fight, and was killed by the Lord Hume's Order; who was Tried for this, but acquitted for want of good Proof. The Common People flatter'd themſelves, that he was gone to perform the Vow he had made to go to Jeruſalem, and would return again. The Scots loſt 5000 Men, as appeared by the Pariſh-Regiſters; the Engliſh an equal Number, but moſt Common Soldiers, whereas abundance of the Scots Nobility fell, having followed Alexander Elphinſton, who in Countenance, Stature and Habit, was very like the King, and fell with him; whoſe Body being found, was given out to be the King's. The Scots were more ſenſible of this Loſs for the Quality than Number of the Slain, having ſcarce any left to govern their Country in their then Diſtreſs. Buchanan.

JAMES V. the 106th King of Scotland, was proclaimed by the Parliament's Order, after his Father's Death, when he was but two Years of Age. The Regency was nominally in the Queen, according to her Husband's Deſire in his Will, before he went to the Battel, ſo long as ſhe lived unmarried; which, tho' contrary to Law, was ſubmitted unto for Peace-ſake in that juncture. She writ to her Brother, King Henry VIII. of England, deſiring that he would rather protect her and her Son, than invade their Country; which he granted. But ſhe ſoon loſt her Regency, by her Marriage with Archibald Douglas Earl of Angus, and the Nobility were divided about chuſing another in her Room; but at length pitch'd upon John Duke of Albany, then in France, being Son to Alexander, Brother to King James III. and accordingly he was ſent for, and May 20. 1515. he arrived, nobly equipped by Francis I. King of France, and in a full Aſſembly of the Nobility was conſtituted Regent. The Kingdom was quickly diſtracted into Factions; Archibald Douglas Earl of Angus being reckoned dangerous, becauſe popular, and allied with England: The Lord Hume called in Queſtion for his Behaviour at Flodden: So that they, together with the Queen, fled into England; which obliged the Regent to excuſe himſelf to King Henry VIII. whereupon the Queen and her Husband went back again. Hume raiſing an Inſurrection did afterwards ſubmit; but breaking the Peace again, he and his Brother were taken and executed. The Regent, after this, deſired Leave to paſs into France, leaving ſeven Deputies to govern in his Abſence; and carried the Sons of the principal Nobility with him as Hoſtages. Theſe Deputies fell out among themſelves, and the Nobility of the Weſt conſpired againſt Archibald Douglas, but were worſted. The Regent returned after five Years abſence, and raiſed an Army againſt England, but was oppoſed by the Nobility, and obliged to a Truce. Whereupon he went for France, and during his Abſence, and the Inteſtine Diviſions, the Earl of Surrey, with 10000 Men, beſides a great number of Volunteers, over-ran the South of Scotland; whence he returned with a great Booty. The Scots plunder'd the Northern Counties by way of Repriſal; and the Earl of Surrey invaded them again. But 500 of his Horſe, frightned in the Night, no body knows how, ran through and diſordered his Camp ſo, that he retired without any farther Attempt. The Regent arrived from France with 50 Ships, 3000 Foot, and 100 Curaſſiers, having narrowly eſcaped the Engliſh Fleet, which lay in wait for him. The Scots were divided, the Queen and her Faction perſwading to a Breach with France; but the French Faction prevailed, by inſiſting on this, That the Engliſh deſigned to make a Conqueſt of the Scots, as Edward I. had done when ſworn to decide the Controverſie betwixt Bruce and Baliol, according to Law and Equity. So that the Regent marched with another Army againſt England, but the Soldiers refuſed to enter it; ſo that he was forced to content himſelf with the taking of one Caſtle, and plundering the Borders. After which, he undertook a third Voyage into France. During his Abſence, the young King took the Government upon himſelf. After this, Archibald Douglas Earl of Angus, returned from France, through England, with Henry VIII's Leave, who was well pleaſed that the Duke of Albany was degraded, becauſe an active Perſon. But the Earl in a little time ſeized the young King, and by the Aſſiſtance of two more, whom he quickly outed, managed the Government: At which the Nobility being diſcontented, they endeavoured to deliver the King out of his hands; but ſome of them were defeated in the Attempt, July 23. 1521. After this, John Stewart E. of Lenox renewed the Deſign, with the King's Conſent; but his Party was worſted, and he himſelf ſlain. But at length the King eſcaped from the Douglaſſes by Night, and by Proclamation forbad them the Adminiſtration of the Government, or to come within twelve Miles of the Court, upon pain of Death. After which, calling a Parliament, he Out-lawed the Earl, and others of the Douglaſſes; who thereupon took Arms, but not able to make Head againſt him, retired to England, whence they procured Ambaſſadors to mediate an Agreement. April 24. 1532. the King appointed fifteen Judges for deciding Law-Suits; which was looked upon as arbitrary and tyrannical, that the Eſtates of the Subjects ſhould be committed to the Pleaſure of fifteen Men. However, theſe Judges, to gratifie the Pope, were ſevere againſt the Lutherans: And the Pope, to gratifie the King, gave him a Years Tithes of all Parſonages. This ſame Year the Engliſh invaded Scotland, having made a Peace with France, wherein the Scots were not included. The main Cauſe pretended for the War was, to have the Douglaſſes reſtored. King James, that he might prepare againſt this Storm, divided his Kingdom into four Parts, ordering them to relieve each other, and manage the War by Turns. Whereupon, King Henry finding himſelf diſappointed, dealt with the French to mediate a Peace; which was effected. After which, King James treated with the Emperor and French King about a Match, which the Hamiltons endeavoured to hinder, becauſe they were next Heirs to the Crown. The King of France's eldeſt Daughter being dead a little before, whom he was obliged to have married to King James, by the League, he refuſed him the ſecond, under pretence of Infirmity. The Emperor Charles made him an Offer of Mary Queen Dowager of Hungary, Mary of Portugal, or Mary of England, his Niece by his Siſter Catharine. K. James anſwered, Tho' the laſt was moſt advantageous, it would be incumber'd with ſo many Delays, that it was not for him, being the laſt of his Family, to live ſo long unmarried; and therefore demanded another of his Nieces, the Daughter of Chriſtian King of Denmark; but ſhe was promiſed to another. In the mean time the French King offered him Mary of Bourbon; but King Henry, to put a ſtop to that Match, ſent him Ten Books of Controverſie in Divinity, and by his Ambaſſadors deſired an Interview; promiſing to make him Duke of York, to give him his Daughter in Marriage, and to declare him Vice-Roy of England. Being allured with ſuch fair Promiſes, he appointed a Day for the Interview; but the Hamiltons, for the Cauſe above-mentioned, and ſome of the Glergy, for fear of their Religion, then on the declining hand in Scotland, prevailed with him to break the Appointment, frightning him with the Carriage of the Engliſh to King James I. whom they kept Priſoner 18 Years, tho' he Landed in their Country in a Time of Peace: And their having enticed William King of Scotland to London, and then carried him over to France, as if he had come to aſſiſt them againſt his ancient Allie the French King. Henry VIII. took the Diſappointment in great diſdain, as juſtly he might. In the mean time, King James, weary of a ſingle life, ſailed on a ſudden into France, and having ſeen Mary of Bourbon in a diſguiſe, did not like her, ſo made ſtraight for the French Court, (which tho' ſurprized at his coming, entertained him honourably) and on the 26th of November, married Magdalen Daughter of Francis I. almoſt againſt that Prince's Will; but they had contracted ſuch Friendſhip by Meſſengers, that when they had ſeen one another, there was no diverting them. Being married, he arrived in Scotland on the 28th of May 1537, where the Queen died of a Hectick Fever in July after; at which, all but ſome of the Clergy, who dreaded her, as being brought up by the Queen of Navarre, were ſo exceeding grieved, that they went in Mourning, not uſed until then in Scotland. The King whilſt in France, preſaging the loſs of his Wife, had caſt his Eye upon Mary of Guiſe, for whom he ſent Ambaſſadors, and on the 12th of June the enſuing Year, ſhe arrived in Scotland, and was publickly Married. In 1539, ſome were Burned, ſome Baniſhed, and others Impriſoned, for Lutheraniſm; amongſt the later was George Buchanan, who when his Keepers were aſleep, made his eſcape out at a Window; the Muſes, according to a certain Author, letting him down by a Cord. In two Years time, the Queen was Mother of two Sons, and the King finding the Succeſſion eſtabliſhed, began to ſlight the Nobility, applying his Mind to Expenſive Building; for which, ſtanding in need of Money, the Nobles and Clergy both afraid of him, endeavoured to ward off the Tempeſt, each complaining of their Poverty, and magnifying the others Riches; the King liſtned to both, and ſo kept them in ſuſpence betwixt Hope and Fear. In the mean time, King Henry VIII. deſired another Interview at York, the conſequence of which the Clergy being afraid of, prevented, by promiſing him 30000 Ducats in Gold Annually, and their whole Eſtates, if need required; adding moreover, that he might quickly fill his Treaſure, by proſecuting the Lutherans according to Law, ſo that he conſtituted James Hamilton, Baſtard-Son of the Earl of Arran, Judge upon the Lutherans; but he being accuſed of a Deſign on the King's Life, was ſoon after executed. From that time forward, the King being ſuſpicious of the Nobility, was much troubled with frightful Dreams; one of them very remarkable, viz. That he ſaw James Hamilton above-mentioned, run at him with his Sword, and firſt cut off his Right, then his Left Arm, threatning alſo to take away his Life in a little time. Being awaken'd by the fright, and pondering on his Dream, News was brought him that his two Sons were dead; one at St. Andrews, the other at Sterling. At the ſame time, Henry VIII. being affronted at the Diſappointments above-mentioned, ſent to invade the Borders of Scotland without denouncing War, and Reparation, tho' demanded, was not made. Hereupon King James prepared for War, and yet ſent to Treat about a Peace, but without effect. The Engliſh received a ſmall defeat on the Borders, and King James was very eager to give their Army Battel, but the Nobles were againſt it; whereat the King was ſo incenſed, that he called them Cowards, adding, That they were unworthy of their Anceſtors, and had betrayed him. He was alſo highly enraged againſt George Gordon Earl of Huntley, whom he had ſent with 10000 Men to obſerve the Enemy's motions, becauſe when the Engliſh, on his Approach, had re-paſs'd the Twede in Diſorder, leaving ſeveral of their Colours behind them, he did not purſue them. Maxwell, to appeaſe the King's Anger, offer'd, if he might have 10000 Men, to invade the Weſtern Borders of England, he would do conſiderable Service; which doubtleſs he had effected, if the King, incenſed againſt the Nobility, had not given a ſecret Commiſſion to Oliver Sinclare, a private Gentleman, to be General when he came into the Enemy's Country, deſigning thereby to deprive the Nobles of the Glory of the Victory. And accordingly, when the Army had enter'd England, and 500 Engliſh Horſe appeared on the neighbouring Hills, Oliver was proclaimed General by his Party; at which the Army, eſpecially Maxwell, was ſo much diſguſted, that they broke their Ranks, and fell together by the Ears. The Engliſh perceiving their Diſorder, attacked them with a Shout, and drove Horſe, Foot and Baggage, into the next Marſhes, where many were taken Priſoners by the Engliſh, but more by the Scotch Moſs-Troopers, who ſold them to the Enemy. This News being brought to the King, his Mind was diſtracted between Anger and Grief; and complaining of the Perfidiouſneſs of his People, died in a manner of a Phrenzy, having a little before his Death, which was Decemb. 13. 1542. had the News of the Birth of his Daughter Mary, who ſucceeded him.

JAMES VI. the 108th King of Scotland, was placed on the Throne, after his Mother's forc'd Reſignation, July 25. 1567. being little above a Year old. Whereupon the Earl of Morton, and Lord Hume, took the Oaths in his Name, That he ſhould govern according to the Laws, and the then Settlement in Church and State. His Uncle, the Earl of Murray, Natural Son to King James V. was choſen Regent by the Faction againſt the Queen. His Mother eſcaped out of Priſon, raiſed an Army, to recover her Right, againſt the Regent, then at Glaſgow with a ſmall Force; by whom ſhe was defeated, and, with the French Ambaſſador, fled for England; whence Queen Elizabeth ſent to demand an Account of the whole Affair, ſaying, She could not bear with the Injuries done her neighbouring Queen and Kinſwoman. Whereupon the Regent, with ſeveral other Perſons of Quality, went for England, and at York met Thomas Howard Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Earl of Suſſex, and Sir Ralph Sadler Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, having Commiſſion from the Queen of England, to determine all Queſtions, Controverſies, &c. between the Queen of Scots and the Earl of Murray's Party: And about two days after, John Leſley Biſhop of Roſs, William Lord Levingſton, Robert Lord Boyd, &c. being Commiſſioners for the Queen of Scots, came to the ſame Place, and the next Day preſented a Declaration againſt James Earl of Murray, and his Adherents, Charging him with Uſurping the Royal Authority, raiſing an Army in the Queen's Name againſt the ſaid Queen, Impriſoning her Perſon, and treating her in a rough, undutiful and barbarous manner; and after a great many Injuries, forcing her to fly into England, where ſhe now requeſts the Protection and Aſſiſtance of Queen Elizabeth to Re-eſtabliſh her in her Kingdom of Scotland, and compel her Rebellious Subjects to their Duty. The day following, the Earl of Murray, and the reſt of the Commiſſioners of that ſide, deliver'd in an Information againſt the Queen of Scots, in which they Charge her with Ill Conduct, and Male-Adminiſtration; the particulars of which are not neceſſary to be here repeated. To this Accuſation, the Commiſſioners of the Queen of Scots made a large Reply, anſwering it from Point to Point; which Anſwer appear'd ſo clear and ſatisfactory, that the Engliſh Commiſſioners having perus'd the Plea of both ſides, declar'd Murray's Impeachment not ſufficiently grounded. The Regent was afterwards ſent for up to London, where he preſented another Declaration in Writing to the Council at Weſtminſter; in which he pretends, it was in his Power to Charge the Queen further, and afterwards produc'd ſome Evidence, which (as Spotſwood thinks) might amount to Conjectures and Preſumptions, as if ſhe was privy to Bothwel's Murder of the King. The Queen of England having examin'd this Impeachment, did not appear ſatisfy'd with the ſtrength of it; neither, on the other ſide, did ſhe pronounce in favour of the Queen of Scots; but taking a middle courſe, ſuſpended her Judgment, and declar'd neither way. Upon this the Regent returns for Scotland, and not long after, was ſhot in the Streets by one Hamilton, who having been very ill us'd in his Perſon and Fortune, by the Earl of Murray, reſolv'd upon this way of Revenge. Spotſwood's Hiſt. Church of Scotland. Cambden's Eliz. &c. The Nobles aſſembled to chuſe a new Regent, but the Hamiltons, and Maitland of Lethington, with others of the Queen's Friends, prevented it; ſo that the Face of Affairs look'd very unſettled, and another Revolution might have happen'd, had not Queen Elizabeth ſent two Armies into Scotland, againſt his Mother's Party, under the Command of the Earl of Suſſex and Lord Scrope; who waſted the Lands of thoſe ſuppos'd concerned in the Regent's Murder, or that entertained the Engliſh Rebels. And at laſt Matthew Stuart Earl of Lenox, the King's Grandfather, was choſen Regent. The Marquis of Huntley Levied Forces in the North, and Garriſon'd Brechin, which the Regent took afterwards. The Queen's Party ſollicited the French and Spaniard for Aſſiſtance to reſtore her Majeſty, and were continually Active and Enterprizing, but ſeveral of the Great Ones ſubmitted to the Regent, who in a little time after ſurprized Dunbarton-Caſtle. In the mean time, the Earl of Morton and others, who had been ſent Ambaſſadors into England, to juſtifie the Proceeding againſt Queen Mary, returned, and their Tranſactions were approved by the States. A Parliament being Summoned, the Queen's Party Garriſon'd Edinburgh, to prevent its Sitting; which occaſioned divers Skirmiſhes, attended with various Succeſs; but the Queen's Friends received a conſiderable Overthrow between Edinburgh and Leith. Queen Elizabeth and the French King were blamed by both their Parties, for not being quick enough in their Supplies. The former was put upon by ſome of her Council who favoured the Duke of Norfolk, to demand the Scotch King as an Hoſtage from his Party: And the King of France demanded from the Queen's Party the Caſtles of Edinburgh and Dunbarton, as Pledges of their Fidelity. The King's Party abſolutely refuſed to part with him, nor was it in the Power of the Queen's Party to deliver up thoſe Places demanded of them. After this, thoſe for the Queen had another Repulſe at Leith, but ſurprized the Convention at Sterling, and killed the Regent to prevent his being reſcu'd, but were driven out of the Town again, and John Earl of Marr was choſen Regent. He aſſaulted Edinburgh without Succeſs; and the King's Party being worſted by the Queen's in the North, ſeveral Attempts were made by thoſe of the South, wherein they ſtill came off with Loſs. Hereupon the Regent ſtraitned the Queen's Party in Edinburgh. After the Earl of Marr's death, the Earl of Morton was choſen Regent; and becauſe the Miniſters complained that the Church-Revenues were all ingroſſed by the Nobility, ſo as there was not a Competency left for their Maintenance, and other Pious Uſes, he introduced a ſort of Biſhops without Juriſdiction, who contented themſelves with the Title and ſome additional Allowance, whilſt the Nobility ſtill enjoyed the Revenues. He preſſed alſo for a Conformity with the Church of England, thereby to advance the King's Intereſt in that Nation, but could never effect his Deſigns; and the Nobility being diſſatisfied to him, he was obliged to quit the Regency, and the King enter'd upon the Government, March 12. 1578. After which, the firſt Aſſembly of the Church declared againſt Biſhops. In 1579. Mr. D'Aubigny, of the Family of Lenox, arrived from France, ſent, as it was thought, by the Guiſes, to endeavour an Alteration in Religion, and to procure a Joynt-Adminiſtration of the Government by the young King and his Mother. And being His Majeſty's Kinſman, he was in a little time created Earl of Lenox. A Parliament being called the ſame Year, the Confeſſion of Faith was eſtabliſhed. In December 1580, the Earl of Morton, formerly Regent, was committed to the Caſtle, for concealing the Deſign againſt the King's Father's Life; for which he was Beheaded, June 1. 1581. declaring upon the Scaffold that he concealed it, becauſe of the danger of revealing it. The Earl of Lenox got the beſt part of his Eſtate, and the Guiſes were ſuppoſed to be the chief Promoters of his Fall, becauſe he was a principal Inſtrument in dethroning Q. Mary. The Earl of Lenox was in a little time made Duke; and in May 1582, one Seignior Paul, an Italian, concerned in the Maſſacre at Paris, came from the Duke of Guiſe with a Preſent of eight Horſes to the King, with whom he obtained great Credit by the Duke of Lenox's means. The Guiſes at the ſame time were raiſing Forces on pretence of aſſiſting the Duke of Anjou in the Low Countries, but really to deliver Q. Mary out of Priſon, by the help of the Engliſh Roman Catholicks. The Duke of Lenox in the mean time endeavoured to raiſe new Troubles in the Church, by means of Mr. Robert Montgomery Titular Achbiſhop of Glaſgow, who was Excommunicated for going with ſome of the Guard, and pulling a Miniſter out of the Pulpit at Glaſgow; for which, and offering to plead at the Bar, contrary to the Laws, the Magiſtrates of Edinburgh came to put him out of the Town, being ſcarce able to ſecure him from the incenſed Rabble: Upon which, the D. of Lenox obtained a Special Commiſſion from the King, to hold a Court, and puniſh the Actors in this Affair; but it being diſcovered, that he deſigned to bring in many of the Popiſh Nobility, and others of the Queen's Faction, to poſſeſs themſelves of the City by Force, while he ſhould ſummon and puniſh by Death, or otherwiſe, ſuch as he pleaſed, the Earls of Marr and Gowry, with others of the Nobility, met the King as returning from Hunting, and conveying him to Ruthwen-Caſtle, acquainted him with the imminent Danger both to Church and State, from the D. of Lenox and E. of Arran, who had baniſhed ſuch as had been moſt ſerviceable to him in his Infancy, reſtored ſome of thoſe concerned in the Murder of his Father, excluded the Nobility from his Council, and governed all by the Advice of the Biſhops of Glaſgow and Roſs, declared Rebels, with the Aſſiſtance of the Pope's Nuncio, Spaniſh Ambaſſadors, and French Papiſts. Whereupon they obtained a Charge for the Duke to depart the Country, and that the Earl of Arran ſhould be confined. September 12. 1582. Proclamations were iſſued by the King, diſcharging the Commiſſions which he had formerly given to the Duke and Earl of Arran; and declaring that he did not act thus by Compulſion. The Nobility publiſhed a Declaration at the ſame time, charging the ſaid Duke and Earl of Arran, that by the Influence of France and Spain, they deſigned to overturn Church and State, and diſſolve the Amity between His Majeſty and the Queen of England. The Duke left the Country, Decemb. 21. 1582. and the Enterprize of the Nobility was approved by a Solemn Convention; but in January 1583, La Motte the French Ambaſſador arrived, to promote Q. Mary's Intereſt, and intercede for the Duke of Lenox. On the 20th of that ſame Month, Manningvile, another French Ambaſſador, one of the chief Leaguers againſt the Proteſtants, arrived alſo at Leith. In April 1583, the King made a very great Change at Court, turned out thoſe who had been Enemies to the Duke of Lenox, and reſtored the Earl of Arran, and charged all thoſe concerned in conveying him to Ruthwen-Caſtle to crave Pardon, on pain of rigorous Proſecution. On the 2d of March following, they were all commanded to leave the Kingdom, and forbidden to go either to England or Ireland. After this, the E. of Marr, and others of the Nobility concerned, ſeized the Caſtle of Sterling, and iſſued a Declaration, April 22. 1584. charging the E. of Arran and the Courtiers with impoſing upon the King, creating Diviſions betwixt him and his beſt Subjects, bringing to Court known Papiſts, and Favourers of the Council of Trent, Subverting the Laws, and Oppreſſing the Subjects; but the E. of Gowry being ſeized, and the Forces of the Lords being but ſmall, they were forced to abandon the Enterprize, and retire to England. Gowry was brought upon his Trial, and being likely to be acquitted, the E. of Arran produced a Letter under his Hand, intimating that he had been engaged in a Conſpiracy againſt the King: Whereupon he was Condemned and Executed, May 2. 1584. declaring at his Death, that he was innocent, and trepann'd by the E. of Arran and Sir Robert Melvill, to write the above-mentioned Letter to the King, which they told him was the only way to have acceſs to him to vindicate himſelf; and if he did not, that his Death was determined. May 20. 1584. Francis Throgmorton was condemned at London, having confeſſed a Plot in England and France, managed by the Duke of Guiſe, for reſtoring the Q. of Scots, and dethroning Q. Elizabeth; and to engage the K. of Scots in it, by pretending that they only deſigned his Mother's Liberty. Upon which, many of the Subjects in England enter'd into an Aſſociation to defend Q. Elizabeth. In 1585, the baniſhed Rebels returned, and ſeized Sterling-Caſtle, publiſhing a Declaration, that their only Deſign was againſt the Evil Councellors, and to conſerve the Amity with England. And having got together about 12000 Men, the King ſent to Parley with them: Whereupon an Agreement was made, and they preſented themſelves to the King, who received them chearfully; and the E. of Arran, and others of the Councellors, fled. In 1588, the Spaniſh Deſigns taking Air, a Bond was ſubſcribed by the States for the Defence of His Majeſty, Country and Religion, againſt the pretended Holy League; and ſeveral Popiſh Noblemen were Impriſoned. In February, the ſame Year, a Conſpiracy was diſcovered, by a Packet of Letters intercepted in England, and ſent to the King by Q. Elizabeth, with Inſtructions to her Reſident in Scotland, to give the King her Advice concerning the ſame. Among the Papers was an Invitation by the Earl of Huntley, and others, in Name of all the Popiſh Nobility of Scotland, to the K. of Spain and Prince of Parma, to invade the Nation. About this Time the Earl of Huntley's Friends began to riſe in the North, but could effect nothing. On the King's Marriage the Popiſh Nobility were ſet at Liberty, to wait on the Queen at her arrival; but while he went to Norway for Her Majeſty, ſhe being driven thither by ſtreſs of Weather, the Deſigns of the Conſpirators were fruſtrated by the Care of the Nobility and Miniſters; for which the King particularly thanked the latter, when he arrived on May 1. 1590, and declared his particular Satisfaction in his Church of Scotland, as the beſt Reformed Church in the World, and gave Orders to proceed againſt Huntley's Friends, who had rebelled in the North. December 27. 1591, the Earl of Bothwell, with his Accomplices, aſſaulted Holyrood-Houſe, threatned to burn the King's Doors, and break open the Queens, with a Deſign to ſeize the King, and Chancellor who had made the King his Enemy; but the City riſing in Arms, he was forced to flee; and ſome of his Company being taken, were hanged. In May 1592, Preſbytery was Eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament. On June 27, Bothwell made a ſecond Attempt upon the Palace of Falkland, but was repulſed. December 17, a new Plot was diſcovered betwixt the Popiſh Nobility and the King of Spain; whereupon ſeveral were Impriſoned, but ſlowly Proſecuted, Chancellor Maitland being a Friend to the Queen's Party. Inſomuch, that on March 18. following, an Ambaſſador arrived from England, to demand that a War ſhould be denounced againſt Spain, that the Conſpirators might be proſecuted with all Rigour, that the League betwixt the two Nations ſhould be renewed, and that the King would chuſe none but Proteſtants for his Council: To moſt of which the King aſſented. On the 24th of July, E. Bothwell came on a ſudden to the Palace, caſt himſelf at the King's Feet, and obtained his Promiſe to be reſtored to his Honour and Eſtate. A Commiſſion was given to Try the Plotting Lords, but afterwards put off; ſo that Jan. 13. 1592. an Ambaſſador was ſent from England, to crave that they might be more vigorouſly proſecuted; which His Majeſty referred to the Parliament that was to meet in April following. On Feb. 19. 1529. Prince Henry was born at Sterling. The 3d of April following, E. Bothwell, with a Body of Horſe, came to Leith; at which the King being alarm'd, made a publick Harangue to the Citizens, promiſing to proſecute the Popiſh Lords, if they would aſſiſt him againſt Bothwell, who declared, that the Cauſes of his Inſurrection were, to have Juſtice againſt thoſe Councellors who endangered a Rupture with England, and favoured the Deſigns of the Spaniards. Upon this, a ſmall Encounter happened between Bothwell and the King's Guards, the latter being worſted. In Auguſt the Prince was baptized, there being preſent at the Solemnity the Ambaſſadors of England, Denmark, Holland, Brunſwick and Mecklenburg. The E. of Argyle having Commiſſion to invade Huntley, who had murdered the E. of Murray, after a ſharp Fight in the North, by the Treachery of ſome who had joyned Argyle, the Expedition was more fatal to Huntley's Party, than honourable to his Lordſhip. After this, the King marched with an Army to the North, againſt the Rebels, who abſconded on his Approach. The Popiſh Lords continued ſtill in the Country, tho' Proclamations were iſſued out againſt them which were very acceptable to Q. Elizabeth. And Q. Ann being brought to Bed of a Princeſs, ſhe was named after Her Majeſty of England. After this there happen'd many Conteſts between the King and the Miniſters, about the Power of Church-Judicature, and the Favours ſhewn to the Popiſh Lords, who were reſtored to their Eſtates and Honours, December 12. 1597. In July 1598, Mr. Bethune arrived from France, to renew the ancient League with Scotland; and by Means of Beaton, His Majeſty's Ambaſſador in France, the Biſhop of Vaizon was conſtituted a kind of Agent at Rome, to mitigate Pope Clement's Hatred againſt the King, and to withdraw him from aſſiſting the King of Spain, to advance the Infanta's Title to the Crown of England: In order to which, His Majeſty wrote a Letter to the Pope, dated Septemb. 24. 1599. and ſent it by Sir Edward Drummond; who had alſo Commiſſions to the Great Duke of Tuſcany, and other Princes of Italy. Auguſt 5. 1600. the Earl of Gowry, and one of his Brethren, were ſlain in the Earl's Lodgings at Perth, endeavouring to murder the King in the ſame Houſe. There were univerſal Rejoycings for His Majeſty's Deliverance; and in an Aſſembly of the Eſtates of the Realm, the Goods and Lands of the Ruthwens were Confiſcate, their Houſe levell'd with the Ground, their Bodies Quarter'd and ſet upon

Poles, and all the Ruthwens commanded to change their Surname. The laſt of March 1603, on Notice of Q. Elizabeth's Death, His Majeſty was Proclaimed at Edinburgh K. of Scotland, England, France and Ireland. On the 3d of April afterwards, he made an Harangue in the great Church at Edinburgh, promiſing his Endeavours to eſtabliſh Religion, and to viſit his ancient Kingdom once in three Years for due Adminiſtration of Juſtice; telling them, That he had ſettled both Church and State ſo, that he never intended to alter them. He ſet forward for England, April 5. 1603. accompanied by many of the Nobility of both Nations; and being received with extraordinary Reſpect and Joy every where on the Road, he arrived at London the 7th of May following, and thus became the firſt Monarch of Great Britain and Ireland. 'Tis fit to acquaint the Reader, that his Title to the Crown of England was by Margaret, Henry VII's eldeſt Daughter; who being married to K. James IV. of Scotland, had by him K. James V. who was ſucceeded by his Daughter Mary, Mother to K. James VI. of Scotland, and I. of England, by Henry Lord Darnley, Son to Matthew E. of Lenox, by Margaret Douglas, Daughter to King James IV's Widow, the above-mentioned Lady Margaret of England, by the E. of Angus her ſecond Husband. So that he was of the Royal Families of England and Scotland too, both by Father and Mother. St. James's Day was appointed for his Coronation at Weſtminſter, but a grievous Peſtilence happening in the mean time, did very much diminiſh the Glory of the Solemnity. Some Weeks before his Coronation, a Plot was diſcovered, to have ſeized him and Prince Henry; for which, Watſon and Clark, two Prieſts, the Lord Cobham, Lord Grey of Wilton, Sir Walter Rawleigh, with ſeveral others of Quality, were apprehended and indicted. In January 1604. a Conference was appointed at Hampton-Court, about reforming ſome Things in the Church, which ended without any Alteration therein. There are different Relations of this Conference: That printed by Barlo at London ſays, It concluded in the King's Vindication of the Church of England. That printed in Scotland, and ſaid to be ſent thither by the King, inſinuates, That the Biſhops did ſollicit His Majeſty not to alter any thing, leſt the Popiſh Recuſants and Puritans ſhould inſult. November 5. 1604. was diſcovered the Powder-Plot, carried on by ſome Papiſts, to have blown up His Majeſty, with the Prince and Parliament, tho' in his Speech to both Houſes, March 19. that ſame Year, he had ſpoken very ſharply of the Puritans, and moderately of the Church of Rome; and in a Proclamation in February before, againſt Prieſts and Jeſuits, he owned, That the then Pope had done him many private good Offices, which he ſhould be ready to requite as a Temporal Prince. The other moſt remarkable Occurrence in his Reign, as to Church-Affairs, was, His Settling of Biſhops in Scotland, by a Parliament at Perth, An. 1606. which occaſioned many Conteſts with the oppoſite Party. The moſt obſervable of what happen'd afterwards were, The Peace with Spain; The Inſurrections in ſome Counties about throwing down Incloſures; Two Royal Viſits from his Brother-in-Law Chriſtiern IV. King of Denmark; The Death of Prince Henry, his eldeſt Son, and the Peoples Darling, November 6. 1612. The Marriage of his Daughter, the Lady Elizabeth, with Frederick V. Elect. Palatine, afterwards K. of Bohemia, but outed of both by the Emperor Ferdinand; The Voyage of Pr. Charles to marry the Infanta of Spain, but without effect; The Inſtitution of Knights Baronets; And Quitting for Money the Cautionary Towns which we had in Holland, viz. Brill, Fluſhing, &c. The Riſe of his two great Favourites, Sir Robert Carr, afterwards Duke of Somerſet, and Sir George Villers, created Duke of Buckingham, who raiſed and pulled down the Learned Sir Francis Bacon, Viſcount of St. Albans, and Lord High Chancellor of England. To which may be added, the Fall of Sir Walter Rawleigh, who, tho' he had lived 15 Years after Sentence of Condemnation, for the Conſpiracy above-mentioned, and Served the King at Sea in that time, was at laſt Executed upon that Sentence, by the Influence of Gundamore, the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, then very Potent at Court. The King died at Theobalds, in the 23d of his Reign, and 59th of his Age, and was Interred at Weſtminſter. By his Q. Ann, Daughter of Frederick II. K. of Denmark, and Siſter to Chriſtern IV. he had two Sons and three Daughters; of all which, none ſurvived him but Charles his Succeſſor, and Elizabeth married to the Elector Palatine. 'Tis agreed by all, that this Prince was of a peaceable Temper, and in regard of his Carriage to the Houſe of Auſtria, ſome blamed him, as being ſo to exceſs; but he coveted to anſwer his beloved Motto, Beati pacifici. He is no leſs noted for his Learning, the Proteſtant Nobility having had ſpecial care of his Education, and appointed the famous Buchanan for his Tutor; his Baſilicon doron, Commentary on the Revelation, and Writings againſt Bellarmine, are ſufficiently known. He was, without all queſtion, the learnedeſt Prince of his time, and perhaps, that ever ſate upon the Engliſh Throne.

JAMES II. of England, VIIth of that Name in Scotland, and their 111th King, ſecond Son of K. Charles I. by Henrietta Daughter to Henry IV. of France, born at London, Octob. 14. 1633. and immediately declar'd Duke of York. The Rebellion breaking out not many Years after this Princes Birth, he was ſometimes in the Camp, being from his Childhood delighted with the Profeſſion of Arms: And when Oxford was ſurrender'd, the Duke march'd out with the Gariſon, and was convey'd to St. James's, from whence he making his Eſcape Incognito, paſs'd into Holland, and from thence into France, to the Queen Mother; and, upon notice that the King his Brother was come to Jerſey, he ſet Sail thither to meet him, and accompany'd him to Breda. And now the French and Spaniards being upon Terms of Hoſtility, the Duke took a Command from the former, and was made Lieutenant-General to the Famous Marſhal Turenne. This Poſt was manag'd by his Royal Highneſs with ſo much Bravery and Conduct, that Turenne, being dangerouſly ſick, and his recovery deſpair'd of, he recommended his Royal Highneſs to the French King as the fitteſt Perſon to ſucceed him; but Cardinal Mazarine, having then the Adminiſtration of Affairs in France, and a Peace being patch'd up between that Kingdom and Cromwell, the Duke is diſcharg'd of his Command, and had a Ceremonious notice given him to quit France, his removal being regretted by ſome of the firſt Quality, and braveſt of that Nation. From France his Royal Highneſs Travels into Flanders, meets the King at Bruſſels, is magnificently Entertain'd there, and takes the Field for the Spaniard. And Dunkirk being Beſieged by Cromwel's Forces and the French, in 1658, Don John of Auſtria, who Commanded the Spaniſh Army, endeavour'd to relieve it with a Body of fifteen thouſand Horſe and Foot: And here his Royal Highneſs had the Command of thoſe Loyal Engliſh, Scotch, and Iriſh, who follow'd the Fortune of His Majeſty. The Engliſh Rebels advanc'd, and begun the Fight with great Reſolution, but were charg'd with ſuch bravery by the Duke at the Head of his Regiment, that the advantages they were gaining had a conſiderable Check; but at laſt, the Spaniſh Infantry being Routed by Cromwel's Men, and their Horſe by the French, tho' His Royal Highneſs did his utmoſt, charging in Perſon through the Enemies Squadrons, till the Field was almoſt quite loſt: notwithſtanding, I ſay, theſe Efforts, it was not in his power to Rally the Spaniards; and therefore all that he could do, was to make a ſtand with a few Engliſh Troops, and cover the Retreat. And now, after twelve Years Uſurpation, the King being invited into England, and reſtor'd to his Crowns, his Royal Highneſs return'd with him, is Preſented by the Parliament, and Choſen Captain of the Artillery Company of London; and not long after was Marry'd to the Lady Ann, Daughter to the Earl of Clarendon. In 1665, the War breaking out between the Crown of England and the Dutch, His Royal Highneſs being made Lord High-Admiral ſome time before, undertook the Command of the Engliſh Fleet, and with a hundred and fourteen Sail ſtood over to Holland and made for the Texel, where the Dutch lay in their Harbours, and not daring to come out, had ten rich Merchant-men taken by the Engliſh; but ſoon after, upon the 3d of June, His Highneſs gain'd an opportunity of Engaging the Enemy. During this Fight, which for a conſiderable time was very ſharp and obſtinate, the Duke behav'd himſelf to all the Advantages of Bravery and Conduct; and notwithſtanding, the Earl of Falmouth, and other Perſons of Quality, fell, as it were, at his Feet, he continued to urge the Fight, and give out his Orders, without the leaſt mark of ſurprize. This Fight ended in an intire Victory over the Dutch, who, beſide a conſiderable loſs of Men, had a great many Ships ſunk and taken. The Engagement being over, His Royal Highneſs leaving the Fleet under the Command of the Earl of Sandwich, comes to Court, is mightily regarded by the People, and look'd upon as the great Ornament and Protection of the Engliſh Nation. In the Year 1666, a dreadful Fire happening to break out in London, the King and Duke did their utmoſt in Perſon to extinguiſh it; and after it had been once Maſter'd, and broke out again in the Temple, the Duke watching there all Night, put an effectual ſtop to it, by blowing up of Houſes. In 1671, Her Royal Highneſs Ann Dutcheſs of York died, and the next Year, the Dutch having broke the Articles of Peace, the King Proclaims War againſt them; and the Duke, offering to Command the Fleet, goes Admiral, and upon the 28th of May 1672, Engages the Enemy at Southold-Bay. In this Fight, His Royal Highneſs, according to his uſual manner, gave the utmoſt Proofs of Courage; and having, after a whole Days diſpute, oblig'd the Dutch to ſheer off, gave Chaſe to their Fleet, with a deſign to engage them the next day, but a Miſt falling, his Reſolution became impracticable. In 1673, His Royal Highneſs married the Princeſs of Modena, and in 1677, the Lady Mary was married to the Prince of Orange. Not long after, the Earl of Shaftsbury's Faction growing high, their Royal Highneſſes Embark for Flanders, and are well receiv'd by the Governor of the Spaniſh Netherlands, and by His Highneſs the Prince of Orange. After ſome ſtay in the Low Countries, the Duke and Dutcheſs return to England, and ſoon after ſet forward for Scotland, where they are receiv'd with all imaginable marks of Regard. Here they continued till the latter end of February 1679, and then came back to Whitehall. Some time after, the King intending to call a Parliament in Scotland, to ſettle that Nation, the Duke is ſent thither as High Commiſſioner, and receiv'd with all Demonſtrations of Duty and Satisfaction: And here, by His Royal Highneſſes Preſence and Adminiſtration, the State of that Kingdom is compos'd and put into good Order. Upon notice of the Death of the Princeſs Iſabella, he returns for England, leaving her Royal Highneſs at Edinburgh; and ſoon after goes again for Scotland, on Board the Glouceſter Frigot, which, tho' loſt, the Duke arrives ſafely in Scotland, and the May following comes back to the Court at Whitehall. And having now outrid the Storm, and defeated the deſigns of his Enemies, he liv'd in great Splendor at Court, and, upon the Death of King Charles II. ſucceeded to the Throne February 6. 1684, and was ſolemnly Crowned with the Queen upon the 23d of April following.

ing. But here it may not be improper to break off, for to carry on the Hiſtory to its juſt length, would exceed the deſign'd Period of this Work: And I think it more excuſable not to attempt the Reign of ſo great a Prince, than to leave it imperfect. *Bates Elenchus Motuum, Motus Compoſiti. Kings of Arragon of the Name of JAMES.

JAMES I. of that Name, K. of Arragon, being Six Years old, ſucceeded his Father Peter II. Surnamed The Catholick, killed at the Siege of Muret near Toulouſe, in a Battel in 1213, againſt Simon of Montfort. Being 13 Years old, he married Eleanor, Siſter to Ferdinand K. of Caſtile; and ten Years after, by a Diſpenſation from the Pope, he was divorced from her. He took Majorca and Minorca, Valentia, and other Dominions, from the Moors. He defeated the Princes who rebelled, during his Minority, and acquired the Title of Warlike. He exchanged the County of Montpelier, which deſcended to him by his Mother, Mary of Montpelier, with K. St. Lewis in 1238, for ſome Territories in Languedoc, and promiſed to undertake a War againſt the Eaſtern Infidels; but he performed little. His love to Women, made him often quarrel with the Popes, who refuſ'd to connive at his Licentious Practices. He died July 27. 1276, being 70 Years old, having Reigned 63 Years. Mariana.

JAMES II. Peter III's Son, ſucceeded in 1291, to his Brother Alphonſus III. called The Bountiful, and was Crowned at Saragoſſa the 24th of September. He ſubjected Sicily, which he pretended to, by his Mother Conſtance of Sicily, Peter III's Wife; he aſſumed alſo the Title of Duke of Apulia, and Prince of Capua. He left his Brother in Sicily, who made himſelf King thereof. In the beginning of his Reign, he made a Peace with France, but proved unfortunate in a War againſt the Moors, and the Navarrois. In a General Aſſembly of the States of the Kingdom, he cauſed them to Decree, That Arragon, Valentia, and Catalonia, ſhould never be parted. He died at Barcelona, Novemb. 2. in the 36th Year of his Reign, and the 65th of his Age, in 1327. Mariana.

Kings of Cyprus of the Name of JAMES.

JAMES of Luſignan, K. of Cyprus, was Son of Peter I. and Eleonor of Arragon. His firſt Title was Prince of Tabaria. Having ſignalized himſelf upon divers occaſions, he was taken in a Fight by the Genoeſe, who kept him till 1383. In that Year, Peter II. or Petrin, his Nephew, being dead, the Genoeſe releaſed him, on condition, That he ſhould yield to them Famaguſta and its Territory. He was Crowned at Nicoſia, and Succeeded Leon or Lionel K. of Armenia, and died in 1410.

JAMES the Natural Son of John III. K. of Cyprus, by Mary Patra, was deſigned by his Father for a Church man, and thereupon he cauſed him to take Sub-deacons Orders. But upon his Father's death in 1458, James took Arms againſt Charlotte, the only Daughter and Heir of John III. and by the Soldan Melec-Ella's help, turned her out, and Uſurp'd the Kingdom. In 1470, he married Catharine Cornaro, Daughter to Marc Cornaro, a Noble Venetian, whom the Commonwealth of Venice adopted, and ſo ſhe received a Portion, as Daughter of St. Mark. James died June 5. 1473. leaving his Wife with Child.

Other Princes called JAMES.

JAMES of Arragon, K. of Majorca, a good Prince, lived in the XIVth Century. Peter K. of Arragon, called The Ceremonious, diſpoſſeſſed him of his Dominions with ſtrange Cruelty, about the Year 1343 or 44, tho' Pope Clement VI. and other Contemporary Princes, oppoſed that Tyranny. This King had a Son alſo named James, the third Husband of Jane I. Queen of Naples, Counteſs of Provence, &c. That Marriage happened in 1363. This Princeſs, being unwilling to give him the Title of King, James not induring ſuch Contempt, left her three Months after Marriage, and died of Grief, in 1375. Noſtradamus Hiſt. Provence.

JAMES of Savoy, P. of Achaia and Morea, Earl of Piedmont, Lord of Yvree, &c. was Son of Philip of Savoy, E. of Piedmont, by Iſabella of Ville-Hardouin, Princeſs of Achaia and Morea, his firſt Wife. He entred Turin in 1344, and was afterwards concerned in the Wars of the Earls of Milan and Savoy, and had good Succeſs, chiefly againſt the Marquiſs of Saluces. Theſe happy Omens ſo fluſhed him, that thinking nothing could oppoſe his Deſigns, in 1359, he undertook to impoſe in Piedmont a Tax upon the Commodities to be Imported into Savoy. Amedæus VI. E. of Savoy, Surnamed The Green, diſguſted at it, ſent Commiſſioners into Piedmont, one of whom, James cauſed to be Executed. The Green Count provoked thereat, Armed againſt the Earl of Achaia, took him Priſoner, and ſeized his beſt Places. So that this unhappy Prince ſubmitted to his Conqueror's Demands for his Liberty, and died May 17. 1366. Guichenon, Hiſt. Savoy.

JAMES of Savoy, Governor of Dauphine and Lionnois, &c. Son to Philip of Savoy Duke of Nemours, by Charlotte of Orleans, was born October 12. 1531. Two Years after, he loſt his Father. His Mother educated him with great Care, and by her Prudence and Intereſt kept her Son's Eſtate, who at 15 Years old went to the French Court, and ſignalized himſelf in ſeveral Sieges and Battels. The moſt remarkable was that of four Frenchmen againſt four Spaniards, fought in Piedmont in 1555. The French were, the D. of Nemours, the young Claſſé Vaſſé, Gaſpar of Bolliers of Manes, and Montcha of the Houſe of Simiane. Their Enemies were, the Marquis of Peſcaro, the Marquis of Meleſpine, Francis Caraffa, Nephew to Pope Paul IV. and Arboreo of Cende. The D. of Nemours, and the Marquis of Peſcaro, Tilted twice without reaching one another, the third time they broke their Lances. Vaſſé and Manes were killed; and Montcha, with his Lance, ran Caraffa through, ſo he died immediately. This Prince was of comely Preſence, generous, civil, witty and learned; ſpoke ſeveral Languages, and wrote Verſe and Proſe with a great deal of facility. This Duke of Nemours ſerv'd afterwards under the Duke of Guiſe in Italy, and was Col. Gen. or General of the Cavalry. He was Inſtrumental in the taking of Bourges in the Year 1562, and was afterwards ſent into Dauphine, where he took Vienne, and defeated the Baron of Adrets, whom he likewiſe brought over to his Duty to the King. In 1566, he was at the Meeting of the States-General, held at Moulins, and help'd to preſerve King Charles IX. at Meaux, where he was in danger of being ſeiz'd by the Hugonots. Of this Service the King was ſo ſenſible, that he declar'd at Paris, That had it not been for the aſſiſtance of his Couſin the D. of Nemours, and the Swiſs, he had run a great Riſque either in his Life or Liberty. He died at Anneci, June 15. 1585. Guichenon, &c.

JAMES of Savoy, E. of Romont, Baron of Vaud, was the younger Son of Lewis D. of Savoy, by Ann of Cyprus. His Father gave him his Appennage at Quiers, Feb. 26. 1460. He was ſtout and courageous, but paſſionate, and an Enemy to Peace. He greatly loved Charles the Raſh, or the Bold, laſt D. of Burgundy, whom he ſerved againſt Lewis XI. He was included in the Peace, An. 1475. but did not long enjoy it. 'Tis ſaid, a Switzer driving a Cart loaded with Sheeps-skins, and being abuſed in the Country of Vaud, complained to the Confederacy; the Switzers demanded Satisfaction, which the E. of Romont neglected to make, and thereupon they took Arms. The D. of Burgundy eſpouſed his Friend's Quarrel, but was defeated in the two famous Battels of Grandſon and Morat, in 1476. After this Duke's Death, James of Savoy ſtuck to Maximilian of Auſtria, who married Mary, Heireſs of Burgundy, created him Knight of the Golden Fleece, in 1478. and afterwards made him one of the chief Counſellors to Philip his Son. James did him good Service at the Siege of Therouane, in 1479. in the Battel of Guinegaſte, &c. He was included in the Treaty of Peace in 1482, and died in the Caſtle of Ham in Picardy, Jan. 30. 1486. Guichenon, &c.

JAMES Paleologus, a Greek Gentleman, deſcended from the Emperors of Conſtantinople. When that City was taken by the Turks, in 1453. he went to Rome, and became a Dominican; but being of a fickle Temper, and calling in queſtion Orthodox Truths, he was put into the Inquiſition; whence eſcaping, he went into Germany, where he pretended to be a Proteſtant; thence into Poland, where he adhered to the Arrians. The Emperor Maximilian II. having notice of it, cauſed him to be brought back to Rome, where he abjured his Errors; but publiſhing them again, he was condemned and burnt in 1565. Socinus has wrote a Treatiſe againſt him, printed among his Controverſial Pieces, by which it appears that Paleologus and Socinus differ'd in ſeveral Points. Spondan, &c.

JAMES Heraclides, or Baſilides. Many think him an Impoſtor. He gave out himſelf to be deſcended from the ancient Deſpotes, or Vaivodes of Moldavia and Valachia, Lord of Samos-Iſland, and Marquis of Paros in the Archipelago. He had a very noble Countenance, and underſtood well the Greek, Latin, Italian and French Tongues. Many Poliſh Lords ſo zealouſly eſpouſed his Cauſe, that by Force they eſtabliſhed him Deſpote of Moldavia and Valachia, having vanquiſhed the Deſpote Alexander in 1561. James bribed the Baſſa's and Vizier, and ſo got himſelf confirmed in his Principality by Solyman II. Emperor of the Turks. But he reigned but three Years, for the Valachians having ſome Suſpicion about his Quality, attacked him in his Palace; where taking to himſelf the Ornaments of his Dignity, he underwent Death with a great deal of Conſtancy. De Rocoles les impoſteurs inſignes.

St. JAMES of the Sword, a Military Order of Spain. 'Tis affirmed, that ſome Regular Canons obſerving how the Moors abuſed the Pilgrims, going to viſit the Relicts of St. James at Compoſtella, built divers Hoſpitals to receive them; and that thirteen Gentlemen offered themſelves to protect them. This properly gave a beginning to this Order, approved by Pope Alexander III. in 1175, and by Pope Innocent III. in 1198. The Knights obſerved the Rule of St. Auſtin, and the Vows of Religion, but they were ſince permitted to marry. The Knights wore formerly on their Breaſts, and on the Left Side, a Scallop-ſhell, about their Necks three Chains of Gold, from which hung the Form of a Sword, being of Red Satin embroider'd, and a Scallop-ſhell upon the Sword. The Red Sword denotes their Victory over the Arabians, with whoſe Blood the Sword was died. The Scallop-ſhell is a Mark of their Pilgrimage to the Sepulchre of St. James: And the Motto, Rubet enſis ſanguine Arabum. At preſent they wear a Croſs in the ſhape of a Sword, the Pommel made like an Heart, and the ends of the Guard like Flower-de-Luces. A modern Author ſaith, That the moſt part of the Orders of Spain have ſome ſuch reſemblance in their Arms, to denote how the French aſſiſted the Spaniards againſt the Moors. This is the moſt conſiderable Order in Spain, and was eſtabliſhed in Caſtile and Portugal: The King is the Soveraign of it, ſince the Reign of Ferdinand and Iſabella, who obtained it of Pope Alexander VI. Roderic of Toledo. Mariana and Favin. Theat. d'honn. &c de chev.

JAMES, or JACOBUS de Vitri, born at a little Town of that Name, near Paris, was a Perſon of great Reputation in the XIIIth Century. He followed the Chriſtian Army to the Holy Land, and was Biſhop of Ptolemais: Afterwards, Pope Gregory IX. made him a Cardinal and Biſhop of Freſcati. He wrote three Books of Eaſtern and Weſtern Hiſtory, which is reckon'd his moſt valuable Piece. He wrote likewiſe a Book againſt the Saracens; and one, De Fœminis Illuſtribus Leodicenſibus. He died at Rome, in the Year 1244. Hoius in Vita Jacob de Vitri. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. Poſſevin in Appar. Sac.

JAMES, or JACOBUS de Voragine, Archbiſhop of Genua, a Perſon of great Note in the XIIIth Century, and particularly commended for his extraordinary Humanity and Charity to the Poor. He was the firſt who Tranſlated the Bible into Italian, but his Verſion is not Printed. 'Tis ſaid he wrote a Chronicle of Genua, and ſome other Pieces. He died in 1298. *Leandr. Albert. JAMES-Town, ſo called from King James I. is the principal City of Virginia, ſituate upon the River Pauhatan, near its Fall into the Northern Sea. It was built by the Engliſh about 1607.

JAMES-Town, a Town of the Country of Letrim, in the Province of Connaught in Ireland: So called from King James I. who founded it. It ſtands upon the Shannon, and is well Walled; but its Buildings were for the moſt part ruined during the Wars in King Charles I's Time.

JAMETS, a little Town of Lorrain, towards the Borders of Luxemburg, belonging to the French, and lately fortified. It is ſituated on a ſmall River, between Montmedi, Damvilliers, Stenai and Longvi. Long. 24. 43. Lat. 49. 30.

JAMNIA, or JABNIA, a Sea-Port, 30 Miles from Jeruſalem, and about 6 S. from Joppa. The Inhabitants of which being Syrians, and deſigning to murder the Jews, as they of Joppa had done Judas Macchabæus, fell upon them by Night, and burnt all the Ships in their Haven, the flame of which was ſeen at Jeruſalem; and thus he prevented their Treachery, Macch. 2. 12. Uzziah King of Judah, before this, ruined its Walls, and Judas Macchabæus overthrew an Army of the Arabians near it. 1 Macc. 4. 5, 10, 15. 2 Macc. 11.

JANCIRE, King of the Scythians. See Idathyrſe.

JANCOMA, a Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Peninſula beyond Ganges, in the Kingdom of Pegu. The River Mecon bounds it on the Eaſt, and the River Menan on the Weſt.

JANEIRO, RIO DE JANAIRO, or Ganabara Januarius, a River of Braſil in America, running into the Sea in the South of the ſame Country. It gave its Name to a Province, or Capitany. Its Towns are, St. Sebaſtian, which has a good Harbour; Angra de Los Reges, Caza de Piedro, &c. The Country is under the Portugueſe. It was firſt diſcovered by a French Proteſtant, in 1515, but Outed by the Portugueſe in 1558.

JANICULUM, a Mountain of Rome, on the other ſide Tyber, where Janus K. of Italy was formerly adored, and where was the Sepulchre of Numa II. King of Rome. Here Porſenna King of Hetruria encamped when he beſieged Rome, the Proſpect whereof is very fine from this Place, becauſe of its heighth. Here St. Peter is ſaid to have ſuffered Martyrdom. 'Tis now called Montorio, or The Golden Mountain, becauſe of its Colour. Tit. Liv. lib. 1. Plin. lib. 16.

JANISARIES, Foot-Soldiers in the Turkiſh Army. The Name is derived from Jegni, which ſignifies New, and Tcheri, Soldier; out of which is formed Jegnitcheri, A new Soldier; which we pronounce Janiſary. [See the Reaſon for this Name under the Head Bectaſchites.] This Militia was formerly compoſed only of Chriſtian Children, whom their poor Fathers gave up for the Carach, or Tribute, exacted by the Grand Signior of all Chriſtians that deſire Liberty of Conſcience in his Dominions, or elſe ſuch as were taken Priſoners from the Chriſtians. But the Cuſtom of Tribute-Children is aboliſhed, except in Mingrelia, and other Places towards the Black-Sea, where they cannot pay the Carach in Money. The Number of them is more or leſs, according as the Turks are routed. Formerly it was fixed to 33000. Lately they were near 100000. But now this Number is much leſſened, tho' we ſhould reckon all thoſe who buy ſuch Places of the Kiaia and Serdars, or of the Aga of the Janiſaries, only to become formidable, or be exempted from Tribute, or for other particular Reaſons. Their Pay is from two to twelve Aſpers a Day, beſides the Doliman, or the Coat of Theſſalonick Cloth, given them Yearly, the firſt Day of their Ramezan, or Lent. Particular Service, or extraordinary Valour, increaſeth a Janiſary's Pay ſome few Aſpers. Beſides, it gives him Security that his Pay ſhall be continued, tho' he ſhould become lame; becauſe he ſhall be made Otourac, and Aſarela, Soldier in Pay during Life. At Conſtantinople they are obliged to Lodge in their Oda, or common Chambers: (For all the Janiſaries there are in Conſtantinople 160 Chambers, where they muſt Lodge, or be ſeverely puniſhed.) Theſe Chambers ſometimes hold two or three hundred Men, more or leſs, as the Times are. And they are obliged to retire at a certain Hour; after which, the Odabaſchi, or Governor of the Chamber, or, in his Abſence, the Aſhgi, or Cook, mark the Abſent, that they may be puniſhed if they had not Leave to ſtay out, or rebuked only if an extraordinary Accident prevented their Return. Each is bound to give to the Treaſury of his Chamber, or to the Janiſaries common Treaſury, in Time of Peace, One and an half per Cent. of all his Pay; and in Time of War, 7 per Cent. But in conſideration, he is allowed in the Chamber a Place three Foot broad, and ſix foot long, for his Quilt; beſides a Diſh of Rice, a Piece of Mutton, and ſome Bread and Water, at Dinner and Supper. So that ſtill out of his Pay he may be a Saver. Their Apparel is a Doliman, or a long Coat with ſhort Sleeves: About the middle part of their Body 'tis girded with a Couſſac, or Linen-Cloth Girdle, ſtriped with many Colours, with Gold and Silver Fringe at the ends. Over their Doliman they wear a Spahi, or Veſt of Blue Cloth, careleſly, like our Campagne-Coats. Inſtead of a Turban, they wear a Zarcola, or a kind of Felt Cap, with a long Felt Hood hanging on their Shoulders. On high Days they deck their Zarcola with a Quill full of many long Feathers, tied on the fore-part of their Cap. In Conſtantinople they ſeldom have any thing in their Hand but a long Stick, or Indian Cane. But their Arms for War in Europe are, a Scimiter, and the Gun, or Musket: They have alſo a Caſe for Powder hanging on their Left Side by a Leather-ſtring; and they twiſt their Right Arm with Match, as with Bracelets. In Aſia, for want of Powder, they uſe Bows and Arrows, and have always a Dagger, or Knife, wherewith they threaten thoſe who refuſe to grant their Demands. Bows and Arrows are provided for them by the Alkitefterdars, or Under-Treaſurers-General. The Janiſaries rarely marry, becauſe they think there, as elſewhere, that a married Man is not ſo reſolute as one that takes care only for himſelf. Yet the Law rather encourages it, than forbids it: For when they do it with their Officer's Conſent, they are exempted from lodging in the common Chambers; only every Friday they muſt appear, and ſhew themſelves to their Wekilharg, or Treaſurer of the Chamber, otherwiſe they loſe their Pay. When they have a Child born, the Emperor allows them ſome few Aſpers a Day more. Their Body is not ſo conſiderable as formerly. They have been ſo formidable, that they preſumed to diſpoſe of the Government, depoſed Sultan Ibrahim in 1648, and ſtrangled him in the Caſtle of Seven Towers. But ſince, the Grand Viſiers, to maintain their Soveraigns and their own Authority, have endeavoured to humble them, deſtroying the ſtouteſt at the Siege of Candy, and permitting others to marry, or exerciſe Trades, againſt their old Cuſtom and Diſcipline: So that their Body now conſiſts only of unexperienced and idle Men, not knowing how to ſupport their Predeceſſors Pride; and yet, in 1687, they had Boldneſs enough to join with the Spahies, to Dethrone Mahomet IV. and make his Brother Solyman III. Emperor. During which Troubles, they put the chief Officers of the Empire to death, plunder'd the richeſt Citizens, and burnt part of the City. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

JANISAR-AGA, the General Commander of the whole Body of the Janiſaries; the firſt of all the Aga's, or Officers of Turkiſh Infantry. The Name comes from the Turkiſh Word Aga, which ſignifies Maſter, or Lord, or a Stick, the Token of Command, which he holds in his Hand on extraordinary Days. This General was formerly choſen out of the Janiſaries; but ſome Intrigues being perceived among them, and his Election being followed with Jealouſie and Hatred, the Sultan chuſes him now out of the Icholans of his Seraglio. He has a conſiderable Allowance aſſigned upon ſome Timars annex'd to his Place, and he often receives Preſents from the Sultan, eſpecially when the Janiſaries have behaved themſelves bravely. Many bring him Preſents, in order to obtain Military Preferments; for in Turky, not Merit, but the Number of Purſes, (their Way of reckoning great Sums) each Purſe being about 500 Crowns, is reſpected. This Commander ſeldom goes through Conſtantinople without a great Number of Janiſaries, eſpecially in ſuch Revolutions as that in 1687. for then they take opportunity to demand their Pay, or to have it augmented, or to plunder the City, as they have done many Places of that Empire, murthering all that reſiſted. This Aga, to quell Inſurrections, and to be Obeyed on ſuch Occaſions, takes with him thirty or forty Mungi's, or Officers of the Janiſaries, with five or ſix hundred of that Militia, to ſeize the Guilty, and carry them to Priſon. Yet the Aga, and Officers, have often been deſerted by the Militia, who have joined the Rebels to ſhare the Booty. The Janiſaries Lives are wholly at the Diſpoſal of the Janiſar-Aga; yet they are only executed in the Night, for fear their Companions ſhould rebel to reſcue them. The Falaca, or Baſtinado on the Sole of the Foot, is for leſſer Crimes. But when they deſerve Death, he cauſes them to be ſtrangled, or ſowed up in a Sack, and caſt into ſome Lake. When the Janiſar-Aga dies, all his Eſtate goes to the Janiſaries Publick Treaſury, and none to the Sultan. Memoires Hiſtoriques. See Aga.

JANNES, Mambres or Jambres's Companion, mentioned by St. Paul, in 2 Tim. 3. They were both Pharaoh's Magicians, and oppoſed Moſes, though he mentions not their Names. They lived, An. Mund. 2540. Exod. 7. 11.

JANNIZARI, a Cape in Aſia, at the Entrance of the Streights of Gallipolis, or the Dardanells, formerly called the Sigean Promontory. There is a Village named Troiaki, or Leſſer Troy, inhabited by Chriſtian Greeks. The Turks name it Giaourkioi, a Village of Infidels; calling all Places ſo, where there are no Moſques, and giving the Name of Giaours to all Chriſtians. Travellers find there plenty of good and cheap Proviſions: As Chickens, twelve for fifteen Pence; Eggs, Partridges, Rice, Butter, and excellent Fruit: And good Muſcat-Wine from the Iſland Tenedos, about a League off, is ſold there for five Shillings a Barrel. From this Cape may be ſeen almoſt all the fine Country of Troas, with the Rivers Zanthus, or Scamander, and Simois; both which deſcend from the famous Mount Ida, two Leagues diſtant from the Greater Troy. Theſe two Rivers, ſo famous in Hiſtory, are not much larger than that of the Gobelins of Paris, or Shore-ditch here. And they are even ſometimes dried up in Summer. Meeting below the Ruins of Troy, they run under a Wooden Bridge, ſupported by Stone-Pillars, and thence into the Streights, about half a League above the Cape of Jannizari, near the new Caſtle of Aſia. Grelot, Voyage de Conſtantinople.

JANOEZ (Bartholomew) a Spaniard, lived in the XIVth Century, in the Time of Pope Urban V. He compiled a Book containing theſe three Errors: 1. That Antichriſt was to come that very Year he wrote in, viz. 1360. Nay, he fixed the Time of his Coming to Whit-Sunday. 2. That all the Adult Faithful were to be perverted, without Hopes of Repentance. 3. That all Jews, Pagans and Mahometans, perverted by Antichriſt, ſhould be converted. The Archbiſhop of Toledo cauſed this Book to be burnt, and the Author abjured his Errors. Prateole, Bzovius, A. C. 1359. n. 9. Sponde, ibid. n. 4.

JANOWITZ, a Town in Bohemia, remarkable for a great Victory obtained by the Swedes againſt the Imperialiſts near it, in 1645. It is ſix German Leagues North Weſt from Prague, towards the Confines of Moravia. Long. 35. 14. Lat. 49. 48.

JANSENIUS (Cornelius) firſt Biſhop of Ghent, born at Hulſt in Flanders. The Publick is obliged to him for many fine Books, eſpecially for the Concordance upon the Goſpel, Commentarii in totam Hiſtoriam Evangelicam, in Proverbia Salomonis & Eccleſiaſticum, Annotationes in Pſalmos Davidis & in Sapientiam, &c. He died at Ghent, April 10. 1576. being 66 Years old.

JANSENIUS (Cornelius) Biſhop of Ipres, born in 1585, at Leerdam, a little Place in Holland. He ſtudied at Utrecht, then at Louvain, where he became a Doctor; and afterwards was made Divinity-Profeſſor by the King of Spain, after having been employed by the Univerſity in three Embaſſies into Spain. He ſpent twelve Years in France before he was Profeſſor at Louvain. He was made Biſhop of Ipres, October 28. 1635, which was his Birth-day; and was conſecrated the Year following, on the ſame Day. He died May 6. 1638. He left ſome Commentaries on the Five Books of Moſes, and on the Four Evangeliſts, with many other Works. His Book concerning Grace, intituled Auguſtinus, has been the moſt famous, and gave the firſt Occaſions to the Controverſies between the Jeſuits, and many illuſtrious Clergy-men of France and the Low-Countries. In which Book, he endeavours to explain St. Auguſtine's Scheme concerning Grace. Thoſe who look to the bottom of this Subject, will find, that there can be but two oppoſite Opinions in the Caſe; one of which conſiſts in affirming, That all the concurrent Cauſes or Principles, diſtinct from the Soul, leave her at liberty to Act or not Act; whereas the other Opinion maintains, That theſe concurring Principles do ſo far force and determine the Will, that ſhe is plainly over-ruled by them. The firſt of theſe Aſſertions is held by the Moliniſts, and the other by the Thomiſts, Janſeniſts, and Calviniſts of Geneva. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor. Valer. Andr. Sanderec. St. Marth.

JANSON (Nicholas) a French-man, a famous Printer. In 1486, he went to Venice, where he firſt began to bring that Art to Perfection, which the Germans only invented. His fine Characters excelled all before him; and the Venetian Printers ſeem indebted to him for the Honour they have gained ſince, by the Means of the Manutii. Sabellic. Cocc. Hiſt. Venet.

JANSON or JANSONIUS, (James) born in Amſterdam, Dr. in Divinity, was much eſteemed for his Learning in the XVIth and beginning of the XVIIth Century. He died at Louvain in 1625. His Works are, Inſtructio Catholici Eccleſiaſtæ. In Sacrum Miſſæ Canonem. Enarrationes in Job, &c. Mir. de Script. Sæc. 17. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

JANSON (Abraham) an eminent Flemiſh Painter of the XVIIth Century, Contemporary with Sir Paul Rubens. His Genius led him chiefly to Hiſtory Painting, in which his Talent was conſiderable; and particularly, his Colouring was extraordinary. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

JANUS, Firſt King of Italy, who by his Prudence and Vertue civilized the People of that Country, and received Saturn, and gave him a Part of his Kingdom, when his Son Jupiter had turned him out of Arcadia. After his Death he was adored like a God, and repreſented with two Faces, becauſe, ſaith Plutarch, he had given a new Face to his Kingdom, introducing a Civil Life amongſt thoſe Savages. Others ſay, It was to ſignifie his reigning with Saturn: Therefore on one ſide of their Coin there were the Images of two Heads, and a Ship on the other ſide, ſignifying Saturn's Coming into Italy by Sea. This God preſided at the Beginning and End of all Things, and therefore was ſaid to open and ſhut up the Year. And when a War begun, the Gates of his Temple at Rome were opened, but ſhut in Time of Peace. 'Tis obſervable this Temple was ſhut up three times; the firſt in Numa's Reign, the ſecond after the ſecond Punick War, and the third after the Battel of Actium, between Auguſtus and Mark Anthony. Becauſe he preſided at the beginning of things, they put a Stick in his Right Hand, and a Key in his Left. Thoſe who ſeek Truth in Fable, ſay, That old Janus is Noah; ſo called from the Hebrew Jain, which ſignifieth Wine, becauſe he firſt planted Vines. That his two Faces ſignified him to have ſeen the old World before, and the New after the Flood. That his Ship was the Emblem of his Ark. That he preſided at the Beginning and End; as having ſeen the End of the firſt World, and the Beginning of the ſecond, which he as it were opened, and therefore had a Key in his Hand. Voſſius de Theologia Gentili. Dempſter, Antiq. Rom.

JAOCHEU, a great City in the Province of Kiangſi, in China. 'Tis the chief City of a Country of that Name, and is over ſix Cities. It is famous for fine Porcelain, made in the City of Feuleang, of a kind of Earth brought out of the adjacent Parts of the Town of Hoiecheu, in the Borders of the Province of Nanquin, where the Porcelain cannot be made, the Water being not proper for it. Near the City of Tikan, is the Mountain Xebung, whence a Brook runs down, whoſe Waters always repreſent a Rain-bow. Martin Martini, Deſcription de la Chine dans le Recueil de M. Thevenot, Vol. 3.

JAPAN, an Iſland of Aſia in the China-Sea. 'Tis Eaſtward from China, between thirty one and thirty four Degrees of Latitude, and one hundred ſeventy one and one hundred eighty eight of Longitude. It is properly a Number of many Iſlands, which all together have that Name. Three of the moſt conſiderable are, Niphon, containing fifty three Kingdoms: Ximo, the next, has nine, as its Name intimates: Nicoco, the third, contains but three. All theſe Iſlands have a great Compaſs. William Adams, an Engliſh Man, who lived long there, ſaith, That Niphon is near ſix hundred Leagues about: From the neareſt part of China to it are ſixty Leagues, and three hundred from New Spain, Eaſtward. Some Modern Writers divide Japan into ſeven Parts. Niphon contains five principal Parts, viz. Jamaiſoit, Jetſengo, Jetſengen, Quanto and Ochio. Jedo is at preſent the chief City, as Meaco was. The other moſt famous Cities are, Amucuſa, Buomy, Ximano, Suranga, Satzuma, Tonſa, Amanguchi, Arima, Ava, Bungo, Dungo, Farina, Firando, Cyama, Ozaca, &c. Pearls are found there. Elephants, Camels, and other ordinary Creatures, they have; but horned Beaſts are ſcarce. There are many Rivers, Lakes, and good Harbours. The Inhabitants Manners are ſtrange enough. A Modern Author rightly calls them our Antipodes in Manners and Cuſtoms: For Men and Women are always bare-headed; and as we ſalute with the Hat, ſo they paſs a Slip-ſhooe-Complement upon thoſe they meet. To receive Viſitants, they ſit down in their Parlour. They rejoice in Black, and mourn in White. The Beauty of their Teeth conſiſts in their Blackneſs; and they never drink, but what is hot. Our Muſick is as unpleaſant to them, as theirs to us. They deſpiſe our Food. They admire ſweet Phyſick, never let Blood, and give nothing but Salt Meat to their Sick. They love War ſo well, that they wear their Swords even in their Houſes. They are ſo miſtruſtful, that they ſuffer no Outlandiſh Ship, except Dutch, to Trade with them. 'Tis reported, Commiſſioners examine ſeverally all in the Ship, asking, What News, and whence they come? And the Liars are ſeverely puniſhed. Then, having cauſed the Cargo to be taken out, and valued it, they give in Exchange Gold and Silver, which muſt be taken without chuſing; but they never cheat. Their Language is copious, as having many Names for every thing; ſome honourable, others ſcornful; ſome Dialect proper for Princes, and ſome for the People. A great Number of each Sex are conſecrated to the Service of their Idols, and profeſs a kind of Religious Life. They are called Bonzes, and are of two very different Sorts, known by the Names of Gray and White, the Colours of their Clothes. The Women's Liveries are alſo different: And the Number of both is ſo great, that in a ſmall Province there were above eight hundred Houſes of Bonzes, as appears by Francis Xavier's Letters. They have nine different Sects; the moſt famous are, Xaca and Amida: But not one of thoſe Sects ſpeaks of the Creation of the World, or the Original of the Soul. To gain the People's Eſteem, they tell them, That five Commandments of their Law cannot be kept by any but the Bonzes, who in obſerving of them, atone for the People. Thoſe Precepts are, 1. Not to kill, nor eat any Fleſh killed. 2. Not to ſteal. 3. Not to be guilty of Fornication. 4. Not to Lye. 5. Not to drink Wine. They have a great many Univerſities, and had formerly ſome abſolute Emperors, having many Kings and petty Princes under them; and 'tis ſaid they have ſtill one, called Cube, whoſe Government is deſpotical. The People adore him like a God; dare not look on him, nor ſpeak to him, but with their Faces proſtrate to the Ground. The Lords there have Power of Life and Death over their Subjects. The Portugueſe diſcovered Japan in 1542; and Francis Xavier, in 1549, preached the Chriſtian Religion there with ſo much Succeſs, that the Jeſuits pretended they had made 200000 Converts; but the Chriſtians have been miſerably harraſs'd there, ſince that time, for a Knaviſh Flandrican of Bruſſels, being jealous and diſſatisfied with the Intereſt of the Portugueſe, perſwaded the Emperor of Japan, that the Portugueſe had a deſign to make themſelves Maſters of his Country by the Aſſiſtance of the New Converts. This Helliſh Calumny was ſo far believed, that the Emperor Maſſacred all the Chriſtians, without diſtinction of Age or Sex; and now 'tis not ſo much as permitted to mention that Religion. Thus Chriſtiznity was deſtroy'd by Trade, and the curſed Idolatry of Money. This Empire belonged, by right, to a Prince named Dairo, but he loſt it thus, in 1550. He had two Sons, the eldeſt was to ſucceed him, and the youngeſt was General of his Armies. The eldeſt, through his Mother, gained upon his Father, that he ſhould Command the Army, alternatively with his Brother, from three Years to three Years. His time being expired, he refuſed to deliver up his Power to his younger Brother, and being ſtrengthned privately, with the help of ſome Kings and Princes of the Country, he thought himſelf able enough to ſeize the Crown. But his Father routed him, and put him to a cruel death. After the Emperor's death, the General, who commanded his Army againſt his eldeſt Son, Uſurped the Crown. But the ſecond Son, to maintain his Right, raiſed a powerful Army, and made Cubo General, who defeated the Uſurper, and put him to death. So this young Prince enjoyed his Father's Crown. A few years after, Cubo rebelled, and made himſelf Emperor, but was killed in 1564, as was Nabunanga, his Brother, and Succeſſor, in 1573. Taiſcoſama ſucceeded them, and died in 1598. He left a Son, named Fideri-Samma, under the Guardianſhip of Daifuſama, who cheated his Pupil of the Crown, about 1599. And being declared Emperor, took the name of Goriſſio-Samma. He perſecuted the Chriſtians, and died in 1616. Camboſama, otherwiſe Xogunſama, ſurnamed Combotama, Son of the Emperor Daifuſama, ſucceeded him in 1616, and perſecuted the Chriſtians in 1617. His Son Chiongon, ſurnamed Toſogunſiama, ſucceeded him in 1631. He alſo perſecuted the Chriſtians, and died without Iſſue in 1650. Quane, his Relation, ſucceeded him, and ſince that time the Names of the Emperors have been unknown. The Emperor of Japan bears for Arms, In a Field Sable Three Trefoils Argent. The Air of thoſe Iſlands is very healthful, commonly cold, and full of Snow. The Country is Mountainous, and abounds with hot Springs; but generally, the Soil is not very fruitful. They reap Rice in September. They are commonly dextrous, and very ſtrong. They are generally Tall and Haughty. The Young Men's Foreheads are ſhaved. Citizens and Peaſants ſhave but half, but the Nobles, and Perſons of Quality, ſhave the whole Head, except a ſmall Lock left on the back-ſide. Their Clothes are ſtately; they wear ſhort Gowns, with very large Sleeves, well embroidered with Gold and Silver; under it, they have a ſilk Doublet, tied with a Girdle. They commonly wear two large Scimeters. Their Breeches are ſo long, that they almoſt touch the Ground. Nothing is richer than their Women of Quality's Apparel. In Japan, are ſeveral kinds of Mines, which enrich it; and one may gueſs at thoſe Riches, by the Expences of the Emperor's and his Concubine's Tables, which amount yearly to four Millions of Livres. Their Arms are the Harquebuze, the Scimeter, Bows and Arrows, and the Spear. They handle the Pike very dextrouſly, and make it lighter and longer than ours. Their Religion may be reduced to three chief Sects. The Firſt is that of the Bonzes, and called Xenxui; they disbelieve a future Life. The Second, call'd Amida, aſſert the Soul's Immortality, and the Metempſychoſis; the followers of this Sect adore an Image named Amida. The Third, is called Foqueux; its followers adore the Idol Zaca, and believe, that the often repeating ſome words, ſhall make them happy. In Writing, inſtead of a Pen, they uſe a braſs or ſilver Pencil, and their Ink is not liquid, but a thick ſtuff, black or red, and very dear. Their Paper is finer and ſmoother than ours, but not ſo white. They write only on one ſide, the other being blue, and covered, in ſome Places, with ſilver Lozenges. They uſe four ſorts of Writing. The Firſt and Ancienteſt is, from the Right Hand to the Left, after the way of the Hebrews, Chaldæans, Syrians, Arabians, and Ægyptians. The Second is, from the Left Hand to the Right, like that of all the Europeans. The Third is, like that of the Ancient Græcians, who began the ſecond Line at the end of the firſt, turning always from the Right to the Left, and from the Left to the Right. Their Fourth way is, to write in Columns, from the top to the bottom, after the Chineſes, and the moſt part of the Indians way, beginning at the Right ſide. As the Japaneſe originally came out of China, ſo they have imitated their Characters and Hieroglyphicks. Their Language is very Emphatical and Stately, like the Genius of the Nation, whoſe Manners are all great and haughty. The Houſes of Japan, for the moſt part, are built with Timber, and covered within with fine Mats, which are their Beds, Couches, and Tables. Three or four hundred years ago, it was ſubject to one Prince, but now divided into 66 Kingdoms, which occaſions endleſs Wars. Hackl. T. II. P. II. p. 82. Embaſſy of the Hollanders in 1643.

JAPARA, a City and Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies in Java-Iſland, on the Northern Coaſt, having a good Harbour.

JAPHET, Noah's Son, and companion in the Ark, An. Mun. 1656, according to the Hebrews Opinion, which agreeth with that of many Modern Authors. He was elder than his Brother Sem, tho' ſome, following St. Auſtin, make Sem the eldeſt, as the Vulgar Edition intimates. His Father dying, gave him this Bleſſing, God ſhall enlarge Japhet, and he ſhall dwell in the Tents of Sem, and Canaan ſhall be his Servant. Which Interpreters explain differently, finding in it conſiderable Myſteries. Japhet had Seven Sons, and two of them only, viz. Gomer and Javan had Children. They are ſaid to have extended themſelves from Mount Taurus and Amanus in Cilicia, to the River Tanais in Aſia, and from thence to the Streights of Gades, now Gibraltar, Gen. 5. 10, &c. Joſephus, l. 1. Ant. Genebrard in Chron. Lyranus, in c. 5. Gen. Salian and Sponde in Annal. Sacr. vet. Teſt. Torniel An. Mun. 1656. Num. 2. 1666. Num. 4. 9, 10. 1931. n. 20, 21. From this Japhet, the Poets have borrowed their Iapetus, Son of Heaven and Earth, and very powerful among the Theſſalians, who by the Nymph Aſia, had Heſperus, Atlas, Epimetheus, and Prometheus.

JARCHAS, the moſt Learned of the Indian Philoſophers, called Brachmans, a great Aſtronomer, according to St. Hierom, who tells us, That Apollonius Tyanæus went to the Eaſt-Indies to ſee him, and found him in a Golden Chair, teaching his Scholars Aſtronomy. Philoſtratus ſaith, That Jarchas preſented Apollonius with ſeven Rings, to which he had given the Names of the ſeven Planets, that he might wear one every Day of the Week, and that theſe Rings had a Magical Power to perform Wonders. St. Jerom. ad Paulinum. Philoſtratus.

JARCHI (Solomon) a Jewiſh Rabbi, was born in Troyes in Champaigne, in the XIIth Century. He wrote Commentaries upon the Bible and the Talmud. Buxtorph. Biblioth. Rab. R. Simon Crit. Hiſt. Old Teſt.

JARED, the Son of Mahalaleel, born An. Mun. 461. his Father being 65 Years old. He was the Father of Enoch, ſo famous in Scripture in 623, which was the 162 of his Age, and died in 1422, being 962 Years old. Gen. 5. v. 15, 18, 20. Salian and Torniel. A. M. 46. 1422.

JARETTA, Lat. Terias, the greateſt River of the Iſland of Sicily, falls into the Sea three Miles S. W. of Catanea.

JARNAC, a Borough of France in Angoumois, with the Title of an Earldom, ſituated on the River Charente, between Chateauneuf and Cognac. It is famous for the Battel, wherein Henry of France, Duke of Anjou, afterwards Henry III. Commander of the Roman Catholicks in 1569, defeated the Hugonots, Commanded by the Prince of Condé, who was then killed by Monteſquiou, a Captain of the Duke's Army, tho', as ſome ſay, he offered 100000 l. for his Ranſom. The Fight continued 10 Hours. Long. 24. 16. Lat. 45. 48.

JAROMITZ, a Town of Bohemia, 30 Miles Weſt of Glatz, and 56 Eaſt of Prague. Long. 36. 2. Lat. 50. 18.

JAROPOL, Duke of Kiovia, a Town of the Ukrain in Poland, wickedly perſwaded the Princes of Ruſſia to conſpire againſt Boleſlaus III. K. of Poland, about 1126. Thoſe Princes on pretence of Friendſhip, ſent Ambaſſadors to this King, who ſuſpecting nothing, found himſelf ſurrounded with his Enemies. The Palatine of Cracovia, who commanded the moſt part of the Poliſh Cavalry, withdrew at the firſt noiſe of this Surprize; whereupon Boleſlaus, no leſs diſpleaſed at this baſe Action, than at the Traytor's perfidiouſneſs, ſent him an Hare's Skin, a Diſtaff with ſome Flax, and a Rope; intimating, by theſe Tokens, That he was as timorous as an Hare, That Women's Arms were fitter for him than Men's, and, That his baſeneſs deſerved hanging. The Palatine thus reproached, hanged himſelf in a Bell-Rope; and ever ſince, the Chatelan of Cracovia takes place of the Palatine, in Dignity and Authority. Gaguin. in vit. Boleſlai.

JAROSLAW, a City and Province of Muſcovy, with the Title of a Dukedom. The Province is conſiderable enough towards the River Volga, and the Country of Roſtow. The City on the Volga is great, and has a wooden Fortreſs. The other Towns of the Province of Jaroſlaw, are, Roma nova, Ribiena, &c. There were formerly ſome particular Princes here, whom John-Baſilius, Great Duke of Muſcovy, diſpoſſeſſed; ſince which time, it gives Title unto the Duke's Eldeſt Son, and is his uſual Reſidence.

JAROSLAW, a Town in Poland, in the Palatinate of Lwow in Black-Ruſſia, ſituated on the River San, having a ſtrong Fortreſs, and famous for a Fair held there Yearly, Aug. 15. the day of the Aſſumption of the Bleſſed Virgin. 'Twas almoſt all burnt down in 1625. The Swedes obtained a great Victory over the Poles near this Place in 1656. Long. 43. 27. Lat. 49. 52.

JARROW, a Town in the Biſhoprick of Durham, on the South-ſide of the River Tine, about three Miles from its fall into the Sea; noted for being the Birth-place of Venerable Bede.

JARS DE GOURNAY (Mary) famous for her Learning in the XVIIth Century, Daughter of William de Jars, Lord of Gournay. She corrected and reprinted Montaigne, her Father-in-Law's Eſſays, and dedicated her own Book, Intituled, Le Bouquet de Pinde, to the Viſcounteſs her Siſter-in-Law. Divers other Books written by her, were printed after her death, under the Name of L'ombre de la Demoiſelle de Gournay, and afterwards in two Volumes, with the Title of Avis. Moſt of the Learned and Illuſtrious Perſons of her Time, convers'd with her by way of Letters. She died at Paris, 80 Years old, July 13. 1645. Louis Jacob. Arla Bibl. des Femm. Sçavants, &c.

JARSEY, or JERSEY, Lat. Caſarea, an Iſland of the Britiſh Sea, five Leagues W. of the Coaſts of France, and thirty S. of England. It belonged formerly to the Dutchy of Normandy, as did Garnſey, but they are both reckoned within the Juriſdiction of Hampſhire, ever ſince the untimely death of Robert Duke of Normandy, eldeſt Son to William the Conqueror. Its Form is ſomewhat Oval, being ten Miles in length from Sentwon-Pool to Mount Orguil-Caſtle, and ſix in breadth from Dubon-Point to Plimouth-Bay; in which compaſs, are ten Pariſhes and two Caſtles, viz. Montorgual and Elizabeth. The Country is pleaſant, and the Soil is fruitful, bearing good Corn and Graſs. The neighbouring Seas yield plenty of Fiſh in Summer, eſpecially Conger and Lobſters, the fatteſt and biggeſt that are to be found on the Coaſts of England. The Inhabitants of this, and the Iſle of Garnſey, are Originally Normans and Britains: Speak a corrupt French, and drive a great Trade in Stockings, their Wooll being very fine and white, and moſt of the Sheep bearing four Horns a-piece. Jerſey was one of the laſt places that held out for K. Charles II. not yielding to the prevailing Party, until he withdrew into France, after Worceſter Fight; in conſideration of which, that Prince, after his Reſtoration, ſent the Inhabitants a Silver Mace in 1663, to be carried before their Chief Magiſtrates.

JASON, Æſon's Son, K. of Theſſaly, who dying, left him under the Guardianſhip of Pelias, who entruſted him with Chiron to be inſtructed, and then to be rid of him, (becauſe forewarned by the Oracle, That he would be in danger of loſing his life, by him that came to him with one Shooe, as Jaſon happened to do, having loſt the other in a River, as carrying over Juno in the likeneſs of an old Woman,) ſent him to Colchos, to fetch the Golden Fleece, about An. Mun. 2824. Upon which deſign, he rigged out the famous Ship Argo; touching at the Iſland Lemnos in his way thither, he was entertained by Hypſipile the Queen with Hoſpitality and Freedom; and going thence for Colchos, by Medea's help, Daughter to the K. of the Country, who fell in Love with him, ſlew the Dragon that guarded that rich Booty, and, for Reward, married her; to whom afterwards he proved falſe, and married Creuſa, Daughter of Creon K. of Corinth; which ſo vexed Medea, that ſhe burned them both in the Royal Palace. Some give this farther account of Jaſon, That he received from Venus a little Bird call'd Iynx, which had the Vertue to procure Love, and Medea being thus Enchanted, gave him an Ointment to preſerve him from the Bulls which vomited Fire at their Mouths and Noſtrils; and being thus ſecured, he goes to her Father Æetas, and demands the Golden Fleece, which he promiſed, on condition, That he yoked thoſe Bulls, ſow the Teeth which he ſhould deliver him, and conquer the armed Men which ſhould ſpring from them; all which he performed. But Æetas, unwilling to ſtand to his Promiſe, deſigned to murder him and his Companions. Others ſay, he gave him his Daughter Medea, and planted Gardens near Pontus, which ſtill bear his Name. Hyginus. Euſebius in Chron. Apollodorus. Ovid l. 7. Metam. Seneca. Med. Valerius Flaccus, de Argon.

JASON, a Jew, Brother of Onias the High-Prieſt. He courted Antiochus Epiphanes ſo well, that he bought his Brother out of his Office. And afterwards he endeavoured to aboliſh the Judaical Cuſtoms, to introduce thoſe of the Gentiles, An. Mun. 3879. And two Years after, Menelaus, Simon's Brother, of the Tribe of Benjamin, ſupplanted him. Some time after, upon the Report of Antiochus's death, he entered Jeruſalem by force, drove out Menelaus, and put many Citizens to death, but could not be re-inſtated in the Dignity he procured ſo baſely. So he left the City, and fled into Arabia for Sanctuary, but Aretas, K. thereof, expelled him, and he found no more favour in Ægypt; ſo that he retired to Sparta, where he died miſerably, and was left unburied, a Favour never denied to the greateſt Malefactors. 1 Macchabees, c. 1. 2 Mac. c. 4 & 5. Joſephus, in Antiq. & de bello judaico. Torniel & Salian in Annal. Sacr.

JASON of Cyrene, an Hiſtorian of the 150th Olympiad, An. Rom. 547, in the time of Ptolomæus Philometer. He wrote five Books of the memorable Actions of the Aſmonæans or Macchabees, which the Author of the 2d Book of Macchabees acknowledgeth himſelf to have abridged.

JASQUE, a Principality in the Kingdom of Perſia, on the Coaſt of Kerman. The Country between the Cape of Jaſque, and the Cape of Guadel, the two moſt Southern Points of Perſia, and from the Sea-ſide as far as the Province of Kerman, is poſſeſſed by three Petty-Princes, one a Mahometan, and the other two, whoſe Dominions are towards the Eaſt, Idolaters. The firſt is the moſt powerful, and the neareſt the Territories of Ormus. He aſſumes the Name of Prince of Jaſque, which his Anceſtors had. The K. Cha-Abas I. having conquered Ormus, exacted from this Prince a yearly Tribute. But Cha-Sephi ſucceeding his Grand-father very young, the Prince of Jaſque took occaſion to refuſe payment. Cha-Abas II. to be revenged, ſent 20000 Men under the Kan of Ormus, who was drowned in a Fen: But his Command was given to his Brother, who enter'd into the Prince of Jaſque's Dominions. The Prince proved victorious, and thinking himſelf ſafe, reſolved to go to Mecca, to return Thanks. The Kan having notice thereof, ſent 20 armed Barks to wait for him on the Coaſts of Arabia, where he was taken, and thence carried to Ormus. To avoid the Heat, the Kan had retired to the Mountains 10 or 12 Leagues from the Town, and the Prince of Jaſque was conducted to the Kan's Tent. In the interim, this Prince's Wife, a ſtout Woman, knowing his Misfortune, went ſpeedily and ſecretly with 600 Horſe, commanded by her Huſband's Lieutenant-General, and about Midnight, ſurprizing the Kan in his Tent, killed him with her own hand, cut to pieces the moſt part of his drouſy Men, and delivered her Husband before the face of the amazed Perſians. The K. ſent a new Kan with 30000 Horſe, to ſubdue this Rebel: But the Prince, aſſiſted by his Neighbours, the two Idolatrous Princes, obtained a ſecond Victory; only loſt his Lieutenant-General, who fell into the Enemies hands. The King hearing thereof, delivered him up to the Kan, that he might revenge upon him the death of his two Brethren. The Kan invented the moſt cruel Puniſhment that ever was known, cauſing the Lieutenant's Body to be Larded with Wax-Candles lighted, and then carried every day on a Camel, in this deplorable condition, through the City, from Eleven to One in the Afternoon. This was done for three days together, and the brave Captain, enduring this Roaſting with a wonderful Conſtancy. At laſt, the Chief of the Dutch Company, abhorring ſuch Barbarity, entreated the Kan that they ſhould ceaſe to torture this unhappy Man. So they carried him to the Sea-ſhoar, and beheaded him. Tavernier, Voyage de Perſe.

JASSI, or YASI, a Town of Moldavia, on the River Pruth, 25 or 30 Leagues from the Borders of Poland. It has a good Fortreſs, and is ſometimes the Seat of the Vaivodes of Moldavia. It was formerly taken by the Coſſacks. The Turks kept a ſtrong Garriſon in this Town, yet it was taken by Sobieski K. of Poland in 1686, in his March againſt the Tartars, and then Garriſoned; but a Fire happening before his return, that conſumed moſt of it, he withdrew his Men, and left the Walachians to rebuild it.

JATRE, or JATREUS (Matthew) a Monk of the Greek Church, living in the XIIIth Century. We have two conſiderable Pieces of his, written in Greek Verſe, the Numbers of which are more proper for Muſick than a Poem. One of them treats of the Offices of the Church of Conſtantinople, and the other of thoſe of the Emperor's Court. They were printed at Paris in 1648, in Greek, together with the Latin Verſion of James Goar, who wrote Notes upon the latter Treatiſe, and inſerted Codinus upon a reſembling Subject, by way of Addition. Hankius, part. 2. cap. 8.

JAVA, a great Iſland of Aſia in the Indian Ocean, ſeparated from Sumatra, by an Arm of the Sea, called, The Streights of the Sund, which gives its Name to the neighbouring Iſlands. Java is above 200 Leagues long, and about 50 in breadth; it was formerly ſubject to many Princes, when divided into Nine Kingdoms, viz. Bantam, Jacatra, Japara, Tuban, Jortan, Paſſarvan, Panarucan, Balambuan, and Materan, whereof each had a City of its own Name. Now there are but two Princes, one of Bantam, the other of Materan, who is Stiled Emperor of Java. The Country is extreamly fruitful, eſpecially in Spicery, abounds with Pepper, Benzoin, Sugar, and Mines of Gold and Copper. The chief City of the whole Iſland is Materan, much frequented by the Engliſh and Dutch; which laſt, made themſelves Maſters of Jacatra in 1617, and called it Battavia, now the Reſidence of the chief of the Company, and the beſt Bank in the Indies. Moſt of the Inhabitants of this Iſland are Mahometans. In 1684, the Dutch joining with a Son of the K. of Bantam, then in Rebellion againſt his Father, ſeized the City of Bantam, took Poſſeſſion of the Engliſh Factory, and all their Effects, and kept the old King Priſoner in the Caſtle: But finding that there were Deſigns to reſtore him, they perſwaded the young Prince in 1686, to remove him to Battavia. The Southern Parts of this Iſland are ſtill undiſcovered. In 1331, Odericus, a Friar Minor, was here; he ſaith, it was in Circuit 3000 Miles, divided into eight Kingdoms, but all ſubject to one Supreme Prince; full of People, and one of the richeſt Kingdoms in the World. The Palace-Royal being paved with Bricks of Gold and Silver chequered; and that this Prince always beat the Tartars when they invaded him. Hackl. T. 2. p. 45. It lies between 130 or 140 Degrees Long. and 5 and 10 Southern Lat. Texeira. Maffee.

JAVAN, Japhet's Son, born about four or five years after the Flood. The Ionians were his Poſterity. He left four Sons; Eliſhah, Chief of the Æolians, Tarſhiſh, the Founder of Tarſus, and Head of the People of Cilicia; Kittim, Chief of the People of Cyprus; and Dodanim, of thoſe of Rhodes. Geneſis, cap. 10. Torniel, An. Mun. 1931, n. 22.

JAUREGUI (John.) At 23 Years of Age he went to Antwerp, by the Advice of his Maſter John de Anaſtro, Merchant in Biſcaia, and being got into the Prince of Orange's Caſtle, he diſcharged a Piſtol at him, and wounded him, March 28. 1582. endeavouring to eſcape he was killed upon the place by ſome of the Prince's Gentlemen. Emanuel de Meteren Hiſtoire des pais-bas.

JAWER, a Town of Germany in Sileſia, having the Title of a Dukedom, ſituated five or ſix Leagues off from Breſlaw, and it is the chief Town of a little Country, where are Schonaw, Schmitberg, Greiffemberg. This Town Jawer, tho' but ſmall, is populous. The Dutchy is bounded with Luſatia to the W. Bohemia, properly ſo called, to the South, the Dukedom of Lignitz to the N. and that of Swejednitz to the Eaſt, &c. Long. 36. 25. Lat. 51. 4.

JAYCK, a vaſt River, which riſeth in Siberia, towards the Frozen-Sea, and running Southward between the Nogai Tartars, and the Kingdom of Tumen; the Zavolhenſii Hord, and that of Calmuczk, falls into the Caſpian Sea. The Country is called Paſcatir, or Siberia. The People, to this Day, ſpeak the Hungarian Language, for this was the Seat of the Huns. Wil. de Ruberquis in Legatione, p. 88. Hackl. T. 1. p. 327.

JAYCZA, GIESA, JAYTZA, or GAITIA, the Capital City of Boſnia. This City was recovered by the King of Hungary in 1463, from the Turks, and they endeavoured to retake it, without Succeſs, the ſame Year; but took it afterwards, and made it the Seat of a Sangiack or Governor.

JAZIGES, People of Sarmatia in Europe, which Boleſlaus the Chaſte, K. of Poland, in 1264, and Leſcus in 1282, almoſt wholly extirpated, as Cromer and Michovius tell us. Many of thoſe People retired into Upper Hungary, and not into Tranſilvania, as others ſay, and they are thoſe that were called Jaziges Metanaſtes.

IBAS, Biſhop of Edeſſa, whoſe Name was ſo famous in the IVth and Vth General Councils, was one of the chief Protectors of Neſtorius. Wrote a Letter to Maris a Perſian, wherein he blames Rabula, his Predeceſſor, for Condemning Theodorus Biſhop of Mopſueſta, upon whom he beſtows great Commendations. This Letter contains moſt of the Tenets of theſe Hereticks. Being afterwards reconciled to the Church, he Excommunicated four Prieſts of his Dioceſs, who Appeal'd from his Sentence; and the reſt of his Clergy accuſed him of ſeveral Crimes, which occaſioned a Synod at Tyre, and after at Berytus, where the Accuſers being found falſe, he was Abſolved in 448. But Dioſcorus, and his Party, depoſed him the Year after, in the Sham Synod of Epheſus, caſt him into Priſon, and uſed him cruelly. The Council of Chalcedon Annulled the Depoſition, and reſtored him once more to his See. His Letter to Maris, was the occaſion of much trouble in the following Century, for Theodorus Biſhop of Cæſarea, in Cappadocia, a well wiſher of Origen, and an Acephalian Heretick, adviſed Juſtinian to procure the Church's Peace, in Condemning the Works of Theodorus Mopſueſtenus, and the Anathema's of Theodoret Biſhop of Cyprus, oppos'd to the Anathema's of St. Cyril, together with the Letter of Ibas, as containing ſeveral Erroneous Tenets, and contrary to the Council of Chalcedon. The credulous Prince effected this in the Vth General Council, held at Conſtantinople in 553. This was called the Affair of the three Chapters; which occaſioned the Schiſm of divers Prelates and Churches, that was not extinguiſh'd a long time after. Baronius, A. C. 448.

IBERIA, the Name given by Strabo and Pliny to Spain, either becauſe of a King named Iber, or of the River Iberus, which is the Ebro.

IBERIA, a Country of Aſia, which is properly Georgia, or Gurgiſtan.

IBRAHIM, Emperor of the Turks, Son of Achmet, ſucceeded his Brother Amurat IV. in 1640. When this laſt was dead, the Officers of the Port could hardly draw Ibrahim out of a Place where he had lived like a Priſoner for three or four Years, fearing it was a Pretence to make him guilty. The Sultaneſs, his Mother, ſhewing him his Brother's Corps, perſwaded him of the Reality. He came out, and being Crowned, plunged himſelf in all manner of Voluptuouſneſs, to his Ruin. The loſs of one of his Sultaneſſes, taken by the Knight de Boi-Baudrand, in 1644, between Rhodes and Alexandria, made him reſolve to puniſh Malta for it; but altering his Mind, he ſent his Army to Candia, and took Canea in 1644. In the mean while, through Cruelty and Voluptuouſneſs, he became intolerable. The Militia and the Officers conſpired againſt him, ſent for the Mufti, and other conſiderable Perſons of the Law, and began this Attempt by putting the Grand Vizier to death. Then they proceeded to Depoſe Ibrahim; who ſhewing Haughtineſs and Scorn, it ſo much provoked theſe faſtious Men, that they ſtrangled him, Aug. 18. 1649, and crowned Mahomet his Son. Mezerai, contin. de Chalcond. Relations de cette mort.

IBRAHIM, Vizier, and Solyman II's Favourite. 'Tis ſaid he was born at Genoua, and that turning Turk, he gained that Prince's Favour. Having always a Kindneſs for the Chriſtians, he perſwaded the Sultan to War againſt the Perſians; but ill Succeſs therein vexing Solyman, and many envying Ibrahim's Authority, among whom Roxana was the moſt powerful, ſhe perſwaded the Sultan to diſpatch Ibrahim. But becauſe he had ſworn his Favourite ſhould never be executed during his own Life, he was prevailed upon to let him be diſpatched whilſt he himſelf was aſleep, Sleep being a kind of Death. This was performed, the Sultan having firſt charged Ibraham with divers Treacheries, and ſhewed him ſome Letters written by him to the Emperor Charles V. This happen'd in 1546. Contin. de Chalcondyle en Solyman II.

IBYCUS, a Greek Lyrick Poet, famous in the LXth Olympiad, An. Rom. 214. He wrote many Books, out of which Henry Stephens hath collected ſome Fragments. He is ſaid to have been murdered by Thieves; and that dying, he deſired the Cranes flying about him to bear witneſs. Some time after one of the Aſſaſſins ſeeing ſome Cranes, ſaid to his Companions, Here are the Witneſſes of Ibycus's Death. This being reported to the Magiſtrate, he ſent thoſe Robbers to the Rack; where they confeſſed the Fact, and were hanged. Thence came the Proverb, Ibyci Grues, againſt wicked People, whoſe Crime is diſcovered.

ICARIA, a Mountain of Attica, whoſe Inhabitants were of the Ægean Tribe, the firſt that Sacrificed to Bacchus a She-Goat, it having ravaged the Vineyards. Amongſt them ancient Comedy and Tragedy took their Riſe. J. Spon. Voyage d'Italie, &c. en 1675.

ICARIUS, Father of Erigone, made ſome Country-men drunk, was killed by them, and caſt into a Well. His little Bitch diſcovered him to his Daughter, who hanged her ſelf for Grief. But Jove, to immortalize them, transformed Icarius into the Star Bootes, Erigone into the Sign Virgo, and the Bitch Mera into the Dog-Star. Hygin. lib. 2. Aſtron.

ICARUS, Dædalus's Son. They were both impriſoned by Minos King of Crete; but eſcaping by Sea in two Skiffs, that wherein Icarus failed was loſt. This gave occaſion to the Report, that they flew away, if we believe Palephatus, de incredibilibus, cap. 13. Virgil has expreſſed it in two words, ſaying, That they eſcaped, Remigio alarum. Bochart looks for another Etymology of Icaria, to which, as the Poets ſay, Icarus gave his Name, when approaching too near the Sun, his Waxen Wings were melted, and he dropped into it. Canaan, lib. 1. cap. 8.

ICENI, whom Cambden ſuppoſeth to be the ancient Inhabitants of Suffolk, Norfolk, Cambridgeſhire, and Huntingtonſhire. A ſtrong and warlike People; made an Alliance with the Romans, but at laſt fell out with them; and having raiſed an Army, entrenched themſelves; but were attacked by the Romans in the only Place where their Camp lay open, and defeated, after a ſtout Reſiſtance. P. Oſtorius was the Roman Lieutenant in Britain at that time. Camb. Brit.

ICHOGLANS, the Grand Signior's Pages, lodged in the Seraglio. Ich or Itch ſignifies in, and Oglan, a Page, as if we ſhould ſay, Pages of the Inner Palace. The Turks, out of Policy, affect to uſe only Chriſtian Slaves, rather than Turkiſh Servants; becauſe theſe unhappy Slaves, having loſt the Thoughts and Love of their Parents and Country, they ſhall aim at nothing but their Maſter's Intereſt; which is rarely found in a free Servant, who commonly ſerves his Maſter only for Gain. For this reaſon alſo the Sultan, to make Subjects wholly devoted to him, has eſtabliſhed the Ichoglans, whom he raiſeth to the greateſt Places in the Empire, according as he finds them true to his Intereſts. Some of them have been made Spahiler-Agaſi, or General of the Cavalry; which, after the Places of Grand Vizier, Mufti and Boſtangi, is the moſt conſiderable amongſt them. The Ichoglans are carefully educated in the Seraglio's of Pera, Adrianople, or Conſtantinople; and in thoſe three Palaces they have ſome Oda, where, according to their different Genius's, there are Maſters, who teach, ſome the Turkiſh, Arabick, Perſian Languages, &c. others the Subtilties of the Alcoran; others the Exerciſe of Fire-Arms; others to throw the Gerit, or Dart; others to bend a Bow, and let Arrows fly off nimbly; others to ride without a Saddle: Briefly, all that can make a young Man accompliſhed. Their Commander is commonly an old Officer of the Seraglio, named Capa-Aga, who keeps them to their Exerciſes with incredible Severity, ſeverely puniſhing the ſmalleſt Faults with the Falaka, or Cudgel, upon the Soles of the Feet, or tireſome and baſe Works: For their Maxim is, That he cannot well Command, who has not learned firſt to obey. Their Garment is of plain Engliſh Cloth, neither courſe nor fine. When they begin any violent Exerciſe, they tuck up their Doliman under their Girdle, uncovering their Drawers made of a kind of Buckram, or of ſome Skin dreſſed like Shamoy. Their chief Food is Rice. They are not preferred before the Age of Forty, except the Sultan favour them with a particular Diſpenſation. Memoires Hiſtoriques.

ICOLUMKILL, one of the Weſtern Iſlands of Scotland, not far from the Iſle of Mull, ſeven Miles in length, and not above one in breadth, is very pleaſant and fruitful, and famed for many Monuments of Antiquity, but eſpecially as having been the Reſidence of St. Columbus, who had a Monaſtery there, in which he lived in great Sanctity, keeping ſtrict Diſcipline over his Monks. Here was alſo a Nunnery, a Pariſh Church, and great Number of Chapels, magnificently built; ſome by the Kings of Scotland, others by the petty Kings of the Iſlands. The Biſhops of the Iſles did alſo reſide here, after that the Engliſh had taken the Iſle of Man. Amongſt the ancient Ruins is ſtill to be ſeen a Burying-place, where not only all the Nobility of the Iſles were Interred, but as appeared by three more eminent Tombs, 44 Scotch, 4 Iriſh, and 8 Norwegian Kings. There are ſix other ſmall Iſlands adjacent to this, with which the Nunnery was endowed. Buchanan.

ICONOCLASTES, or Image-breakers, a Name given to the Enemies of Image-worſhip in the VIIIth Century. Sarentapechis, a Jew, perſwaded Ezide K. of the Arabians, to take the Images of Saints out of the Churches that belonged to the Chriſtians. And ſome time after, Bazere, born of Chriſtian Parents, becoming a Mahometan in Syria, where he was a Slave, inſinuated himſelf ſo much into the Emp. Leo Iſauricus's Favour, that this Prince, at his, and the Perſwaſion of other Jews, who had foretold him his coming to the Empire, declared againſt Images about 726, ordering the Statue of Jeſus Chriſt, placed over one of the Gates of the City, to be thrown down; and being enraged at a Tumult that this occaſioned, iſſued a Proclamation, wherein he aboliſhed their Uſe, and threatned their Worſhippers with ſevere Puniſhments: Nor could the Sollicitations of Germanus the Patriarch, nor the Biſhops of Rome, do any thing with him in their Favour. Conſtantine, his Son and Succeſſor, forbad Praying to Saints, or to the Bleſſed Virgin, laughed at Pope Stephen III. and Paul I. who would fain have diſſwaded him from ſo doing, and aſſembled a Council, wherein his Proceedings were approved; but this Council being condemned at Rome, the Emperor ſtrove more than ever to have his Doctrine received. Leo IV. ſucceeded in 775, reigned but four Years, leaving his Son Conſtantine under the Tutelage of the Empreſs Irene. In her Time, in 787, was held the IId. Council of Nice, where it was decreed, That the Image of Jeſus Chriſt, and of Saints, ſhould be re-eſtabliſhed, to move Chriſtians to the Imitation of their Vertues, &c. Thus Baronius, Bellarmine and Maimburg. But the learned Spanheim relates it thus: Philip the Emperor, and John Patriarch of Conſtantinople, having rejected the VIth. General Council, againſt the Monothelites, in 712. took away the Pictures of the Fathers of that and the former Councils, hung up by the Emperor Juſtinian in the Portique of St. Sophia; whereupon the Pope, in a Synod at Rome, ordered the like Images to be placed in St. Peter's Church, and thenceforth worſhipped, their Uſe being to that Time barely Hiſtorical; and here begun the Debate of the Uſe and Worſhip of Images. The Saracens, ſcandalized at that Superſtition, perſecuted the Chriſtians; and Leo, calling a Synod, iſſued a Proclamation condemning their Worſhip, but granting that they might be hung up high in Churches, the better to prevent Idolatry. And upon farther Diſtaſte with Pope Gregory II. who excommunicated him, and abſolved his Subjects from their Obedience, in 730. he commanded they ſhould be quite taken down, and deſtroyed. Conſtantine Copronymus followed his Father's Example, and in the 13th Year of his Reign, An. 744. aſſembled the VIIth. General Council of the Greeks, wherein Images and their Worſhippers were condemned. His Son Leo IV. followed his Steps; who at his Death, leaving the Empreſs Irene to rule during Conſtantine VII's Minority, ſhe, to gain the Monks, made uſe of them to reſtore Images; advanced Taraſius, from a Laick, to be Patriarch of Conſtantinople; and managed the Council which ſhe called at Nice ſo, that they decreed ſeveral ſorts of Worſhips to Images; as, Salutation, Incenſe, Kiſſing, Wax-Lights, &c. but neither approved Images of the Trinity, Statues, nor any carved Work. Conſtantine being of Age, and oppoſing this, was cruelly deprived of Sight and Life by his Mother Irene. Which unnatural Fact is commended by Baronius; as alſo Gregory II's declaring the Emperor Leo uncapable of the Crown, which he calls a rare Example to Poſterity not to ſuffer Heretical Princes to reign. On the other Side, the ſucceeding Popes imitated their Predeceſſors Gregory I. and II. in their Hatred to the Greek Emperors, whom they deſpoiled of the Exarchate of Ravenna and their other Poſſeſſions in Italy, which, by the Help of the French, was turned into St. Peter's Patrimony. But that the French, Germans, and Northern Countries abhorred Image-worſhip is plain by Charlemagin's Capitulare againſt Images, and the Acts of the Synod of Francfort, under that Prince, who alſo wrote four Books to Pope Adrian againſt Image-worſhip, and the illegal Council of Nice above-mentioned. This Image-worſhip was alſo oppoſed by other Emperors who ſucceeded; as alſo by the Churches of Italy, Germany, France and Britain; particularly by the learned Alcuin. Spanheim's Hiſtory of Images.

ICTINUS, a famous Architect. He lived about the LXXXIVth. Olympiad, in the Caſtle of Athens. He built the Temple of Minerva named Parthenone, i. e. The Temple of the Virgin. He alſo built the Temple of Apollo, ſurnamed Epicuros; that is, The Succourer, near Mount Cotylius, in Arcadia, within the Peloponneſus. This Fabrick was vaulted over with Stone, and paſſed for one of the greateſt Rareties of Antiquity. Pauſanias, lib. 8. Arcod. Vitruv. lib. 7.

IDA, the firſt King of Bernicia, which together with Deira, made up afterwards the Kingdom of Northumberland. Under the Word HENGIST you will find how that King ſent for Octa and Ebiſſa, his own and his Brother's Son, to ſeek them Seats in the North; and by warring on the Picts, to ſecure the South Parts; which they ſo prudently effected, that they and their Succeſſors kept the North quiet well nigh 180 Years, acknowledging the Kings of Kent for their Superiors, as being the elder Branch, until King Ida aſſumed the Title of Monarch, An. 47. as Ella ſome Years after called himſelf King of Deira; which two Kingdoms grew up in one in the Perſon of Oſwy, and then it began to be called the Kingdom of Northumberland. Ida was a Prince well qualified for a Crown; in War undaunted, and in Peace temperate. He reigned about 12 Years.

IDA, a Mount of Troas, in Aſia Minor. Paris's Judgment made it famous. Diodorus, who gives a Deſcription of it in the 17th. Book of his Hiſtorical Library, aſſures us, that it was the higheſt in the Neighbourhood of Helleſpont. And Athenæus adds, that Nine Rivers ſpring thence. And it was for this Reaſon, doubtleſs, that Horace ſtyles it Ida Undoſa. Troy ſtood at the Foot of Mount Ida. Strabo ſpeaks of the Idean Gulph, which takes its Name from this Mountain, and lies between Myſia and the Iſland Lesbos. They alſo call it Adramyttenus Sinus; and to this Day, the Gulf Adramytti.

IDA, a Mountain in Candia, the Foreſts upon which were burnt by Lightning from Heaven 73 Years after the Deluge of Deucalion. And the art of Melting Iron was diſcovered firſt on this Occaſion, by the Dactyls inhabiting this Mountain.

IDACIUS, ITHACIUS, or HIDATIUS, a Spaniard born at Lamego. He lived in the IVth. Century, and was Biſhop of Chaves. He compoſed a Chronicle, which began with the firſt Year of the Empire of Theodoſius, where St. Jerom left off; and continued to the 8th. Year of the Reign of Leo, which was in 464. The Conſulares Faſti, which were ſo often publiſhed, are alſo attributed to this Author; and it is believed that 'tis he that is mentioned in St. Leo's Epiſtle to Thuribius. Bellarmine. Le Mire.

IDACIUS Clarus, lived about the Year 380, and it is thought that he was Biſhop of Vich in Catalonia. He oppoſed the Apollinarians with a furious Zeal, and wrought an Apology againſt them, in which he diſcovers their Witchcrafts, and horrible Luſts. In the 4th. Tome of the Bibliotheca Patrum, we have three Books in his Name, againſt Varimond an Arian Deacon; but the Ancients did not believe them to be his, but written by Vigilius Taſpenſis: And ſeeing the Author of his Preface ſays, that he compoſed it in the City of Naples, it might be ſome other Idacius. If it be the ſame which Sulpicius Severus mentions, he was put out of his Biſhoprick, and baniſhed after Priſcillian's Death. Bellarmin. Voſſius. Baronius. Cave.

IDATHYRSES, King of the European Scythians, Son of Saulius, governed after his Father, and Calvida, his Uncle; or, as ſome ſay, immediately after Thomyris. He had a very beautiful Daughter, whom Darius, Son of Hyſtaſpes, K. of Perſia, demanded in Marriage. Idathyrſes denied him: Which Darius ſo reſented, that he declared War againſt him, and raiſed an Army of 700000 Men to fight him. Darius, to make a Paſſage for his Army from Perſia to Scythia, built two wonderful great Bridges; the one upon the Boſphorus of Thrace, and the other upon the Danube; and committed the Keeping of them to the Ionians. Idathyrſes met Darius, gave him Battel, ſlew 90000 of his Men, and put him to Flight. Suidas. But Juſtin, who calls this King Jancirus, ſays, That Darius miſtruſting the Ionians, whom the Enemy ſollicited to break down the Bridges, to hinder the Return of the Perſians, came back without fighting, leaving 70000 of his Men under the Conduct of Megabazes, one of his Generals, who reduced Thrace and Macedonia.

IDES, the 15th. or 13th. Day of the Month. This Word comes from the ancient Latin Word Iduare, which ſignifies to divide, ſhare, &c. The Ides divide the Months almoſt into two equal Parts: For in the Months of March, May, July and October the Ides are the 15th. Day; in the reſt they fall on the 13th. Day: For they always follow Eight Days after the Nones. Roſin. Antiq. Rom. lib. 4. cap. 4. See KALEND.

IDOLATRY, its Birth, Progreſs and Deſtruction. See IDOLS, which follows.

IDOLS, a Name taken from the Greek Word εἴδωλον, which ſignifies an Image, or the Statue of ſome falſe God. From this Word Idols the Pagan Religion was called Idolatry; but that is no Reaſon why this falſe Religion may not be more ancient than Idols. For the Gentiles worſhipped the Stars before any Statues were made for Adoration, and even before Jupiter was ſpoke of, or any other of the Pagan Gods. This Opinion, which is the ſame with that of Rabbi Moſes, Maimonides agreeth with what we find in Deut. 4. and 7. and Job 31. To this the Rabbins add the Tradition of Abraham's Voyage, who fled his Country, (ſay they) rather than he would worſhip the Stars. In Proceſs of Time Kings were made Gods; and becauſe Star-worſhip was admired moſt by the People, Kings were therefore Deified under the Name of ſome particular Star. As you may ſee by the Example of Ilus, whoſe Memory, according to the Report of Sanchoniathon, is worſhip'd under the Star Saturn. Hyginus ſays, that Perſeus was taken up into the Number of the Stars, and Deified. They alſo look'd upon as Divine Beings, all the Beaſts that had any Reſemblance or Reference to any of the Stars, or which they thought did partake of their Nature, Virtue and Force, in any Degree above the reſt. Thus an Ox was conſecrated to the Sun, under the Name of Apis, according to Macrobius: To the Moon, according to Ammianus and Porphyrius: To the Sign Taurus according to Lucian. And the Egyptians, according to Ælian's Report, attributed to this Beaſt 29 Marks, which did ſignifie the Number of the qualities and properties of the Stars it reſembled. They did alſo worſhip (as Gods) ſeveral Men that had done ſignal Services for the People. Thus they adored Hercules, and thoſe famous Heroes ſo much ſpoken of in Hiſtories. Voſſius treats of it largely, and ſays a great many curious Things touching the Worſhip of Idols; but he ſeems too much enclined to Myſterious and Allegorical Interpretations in his Explication of theſe Matters. Divers Authors affirm, that Ninus, from an immoderate Paſſion for his Father Belus, began firſt to countenance Idolatry, in cauſing the Statue of this Prince to be adored after his Death. Clemens Alexandrinus ſays, That the firſt Pagans who would have Gods of their own Handy-works, erected Pieces of Wood of an extraordinary ſize, or Columns of Stone, which they worſhipped, and which they called Ξόανα, that is to ſay, Poliſhed Statues; from Ξέω, to poliſh: Which being afterwards improved by Art, Men began thence to make Idols which had Humane Shapes, and were called Βρέται, from the Word Βροτὸς, which ſignifies a Man. To this Day there are Places in the Indies where they worſhip high Columns, whereof they have little portable Figures, which are probably the Remains of this ancient Idolatry. Beſides the Idols ſet up in Temples, and other holy Places, the Pagans had alſo little Figures repreſenting theſe Idols in little Niches. Each of their Gods had his Images made with ſome Diſtinction, rendring them peculiar to that God. So Jupiter was repreſented by Lightning, Mars by a Lance and Spear, &c. There were alſo Gods, whoſe Idols were not to be ſeen, but in particular Countries: Thus the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans, and other People, had theirs in peculiar. There were other Gods which were adored univerſally; and therefore called the Azonian Gods: But as Nations differed, ſo did their Adorations, and Ceremonies of Worſhip. The 14th. Chapter of the Book of Wiſdom informs us, that the firſt Statue of Humane Form, adored by Men, was erected by a Father for his dead Son; who alſo inſtituted Sacrifices to his Honour, to divert his Grief for the Loſs; and ordered, that none of his Domeſticks ſhould preſume to ask him any thing, if they had not adored it that Day. Hence, by degrees, it became cuſtomary to pay Veneration to the Images of Conſiderable Perſons. Theſe were firſt of all made of Stone, of divers ſorts of Wood, and Ivory, though the Art of Caſting Metal Statues is very ancient, as appears by Pſal. 113. wherein it is ſaid, that the Idols of the Nations were all Gold and Silver: And by the Books of Moſes, where there are ſeveral Proofs of this Art, by which the Iſraelites formed the Golden Calf, and which it is probable they learned from the Egyptians. This ſhews Pliny's Miſtake, who attributes the Invention to Phidias's Time, viz. about the LXXXIIId. Olympiad. Beſides the Idols placed in the Temples, and other ſacred Places, the Pagans had alſo little Images repreſenting the Idols, in Niches. We read in Cicero's Oration againſt Verres, that one of theſe, repreſenting Minerva, was offered at Apollo's Temple. Demetrius the Goldſmith, that raiſed the Tumult againſt St. Paul at Epheſus, did it chiefly becauſe that Saint's Preaching the Goſpel begun to ſink his Trade, which conſiſted chiefly in the Sale of Diana's Images; for Faciens ædes argenteas Dianæ, ſignifies nothing elſe but the Figures of that Goddeſs, as Baronius renders it. See Grotius in loco. Several amongſt the Pagans were ſenſible of the Vanity of their Idols; as, Maximus Tyrius, Celſus, the Emperor Julian, and they of whom St. Ambroſe ſays, that they did not worſhip the Wood, but as the Image of God: But the Common Sort believed that the Statues of Gold, Silver, &c. were really divine. The Devil contributed much to confirm them in the Errour, by the ſtrange things he did in them, and the Anſwers he gave by them, as, by that of Juno ſurnamed Moneta, that of Fortune called Feminine. Pythagoras, tho' a Pagan, ſaw, and maintained by the ſtrength of his Natural Reaſon, That we cannot receive the Idea of a God by our Corporeal Senſes; That it was only intelligible, and therefore forbad the making of any Figure to repreſent the Gods. Numa received and eſtabliſhed this Doctrine at Rome; ſo that the Romans for 170 Years, had no Statue in the Fine Temples they built their Gods; but, in ſucceeding Ages, People were ſo buried in Ignorance, That they rendered Divine Worſhip to inſenſible Statues, the Workmanſhip of their own hands. The Roman Emperors Statues called Laureatæ, ſent into the Provinces, as ſoon as the Princes aſcended the Throne, were Worſhipped; and all People obliged to pay them the Honours due to the Perſons they repreſented: And 'tis notorious, how ſeverely Theodoſius revenged the Affront done his, by the Inhabitants of Antioch, upon the Impoſition of a new Tax. Euſebius reports that the Woman, cured of her Flux of Blood, by touching the Hem of our Saviour's Garment, made his Statue in Braſs, with a leſſer one upon the Baſe of this, repreſenting herſelf, and the manner of her Cure, and placed both at her door. This Euſebius ſaw, and ſays, That an unknown Plant grew upon its Baſis, which when it reach'd the Hem of the Brazen Robe, was cut up, and proved a Soveraign Remedy againſt all Diſtempers. Julian the Apoſtate broke this, and put his own in its place, which, 'tis ſaid, was immediately Thunder-ſtruck, and ſevered in two. Sozomen with Origen and others affirms, That when our Saviour was carried into Egypt to avoid the Perſecution of Herod; the Idols of this Country, which were very numerous, and worſhipped to the greateſt degree of ſtupidity and exceſs, were moſt of them ſhaken off their Baſis. This Author obſerves further, that when our Saviour came to Hermopolis, a Town of Thebais, a Tree, called, Peſec, conſecrated, as Plutarch reports, to Iſis, bent its branches to the Ground, in Adoration of the true God, then corporally preſent; and Sozomen continues that from that time forth, its Fruit, Leaves and Bark, had a peculiar Virtue to Cure. However Idolatry was not perfectly ſuppreſſed, but was ſtill kept a foot, in ſome meaſure, even in Rome. This is certain that Idol-Worſhip begun to be laid by, after our Saviour's Birth. The Emperor Claudius, aboliſhed many Sacrifices and Feaſts dedicated to the Falſe Gods. In the IId. Century their Worſhip ſunk more, for Alexander Severus beſtowed but very little upon the Temples. Maximin, his Succeſſor, took the Idols, their Ornaments and Treaſure, and melted them down. Whilſt the blind and carnal Pagans, becauſe they could not conceive any other but that groſs Idea of a Deity, gave out, That the Chriſtians adored the Idol of a Man, having Aſſes Ears, a long Robe, a Book in one hand, and ſhewing one of his Feet reſembling that of an Aſs, and expoſed his Picture thus with this Inſcription, Deus Chriſtianorum Ononychites. They founded this Calumny upon what Cornelius Tacitus has in the fifth Book of his Hiſtory, viz. That the Jews, from whom the Chriſtians ſprung, Adored the Head of an Aſs; becauſe, ſays he, being in deſperate want of Water to quench their Thirſt in the Deſarts of Arabia, when baniſhed out of Egypt, they were led to a Spring by Wild Aſſes that went thither to drink, which Fable is aſſerted by Plutarch and other Pagans, as a well-grounded truth, but is learnedly refuted by Joſephus. Conſtantine carried himſelf with a Zeal, becoming a new Converted Chriſtian, in Demoliſhing the Temples of the Falſe Deities, and over-throwing their Idols. Above all, he made it his Endeavour to Aboliſh entirely all thoſe Impurities conſecrated to Venus, and other infamous Gods, which the Pagans had introduced, meerly to authorize their Debaucheries. Conſtantius his Son, publiſh'd ſeveral Edicts to the ſame purpoſe, and Ordered, That the Temples of the Gods that remained ſtanding, ſhould be ſhut up. All which Edicts were Executed in part. The Emperor Julian the Apoſtate, who came to the Crown ſoon after, endeavoured by all means to reſtore it; and the better to compaſs his Deſign, cauſed the Images of Jupiter, Mars and Mercury, to be placed, with his own, in all publick Places; the Firſt, as putting on his Crown and Purple, and the other two, as Admirers of his Valour and Eloquence, thinking thus to lead the Chriſtians inſenſibly back again to Idolatry, by ſhuffling his Images with thoſe of the Gods; becauſe, as it has been obſerved, the Statues of the Emperors were honoured by the Chriſtians themſelves. The Emperor Theodoſius, who began to Rule An. 392. deſir'd nothing more, than to deſtroy Idolatry throughly, and particularly at Rome. Prudentius ſays, That upon his coming to the Empire, he required of the Romans, that all the Pagan Sacrifices and Feaſts ſhould be Aboliſhed, and the Idols pulled to pieces; thoſe only excepted, that were extraordinary Work, which he would have kept, not for any Worſhip that was due to them, but only for the Ornament of the City. Accordingly, the Goths deſtroyed moſt of them. St. Proſper, St. Auguſtin, and St. Ambroſius make mention of this Piety of Theodoſius; and, St. Jerom ſays, That at Rome, not an Idol was to be ſeen in all the Capitol. This Emperor continuing his Care for the extinguiſhing Idolatry, ordered, That the famous Temple of Serapis at Alexandria ſhould be levelled, which was executed, to the great regret of the Pagans, and built a Church in its room. Clemens Alexandrinus, ſays, That the great Idol of Serapis, Worſhipped in this Temple, was made in Ancient time, by an excellent Artiſt named Briaxes, at the charge of King Seſoſtris, who unwilling that this Idol ſhould be made either altogether of one Metal, or one Stone; amaſſed a Heap of all ſorts of precious Stones, cauſed them to be ground into Powder, and then running down together a quantity of the moſt rich Metals, he mixt therewith the ſaid Powder of Precious Stones, and of this Compoſition made the Idol. Amongſt other Idols, which Theodoſius cauſed to be broke in Egypt, was that of Canopus. The Gentiles in many places, occaſioned great Diſorders in defence of their Idols; but could not ſtop Theodoſius in the purſuit of a Work ſo well begun. In France, a great quantity of Idols were pull'd down by St. Martin, who obtained Theodoſius his Order for it. St. Jerom teſtifies, That there was as much Zeal uſed to deſtroy theſe Inſtruments of the Devil at Rome, as in any other part of the World. The Pagans had one only hope remaining, viz. That their Oracles fore-told them, that the Year 398, would be very fatal to the Chriſtian Religion. But it fell out otherwiſe; for Chriſtianity was ſo far from being extinct in 398, that it rather flouriſh'd by the Edicts of the Emperors Arcadius and Honorius, who did Order the final Deſtruction of the Temples, and to break all Idols. But, becauſe the Deſtruction of ſo many fine Buildings, would, in a manner, have disfigured the Cities, and made them deſolate, Honorius, by other Edicts, forbad the pulling down any more of thoſe ſtately Temples: And Arcadius Ordered in the Eaſt, That they ſhould be pulled down in the Country, but that in Cities, the Idols only ſhould be deſtroyed, but the Temple conſecrated and converted into Chriſtian Churches; and this was practiſed in the Weſt too. But for all the care which the Emperors had taken to deſtroy Idolatry, yet there remained ſome Idols at Rome ſtill: There were a great many of their Prieſts, as well as of their Senators, that continued Pagans, tho' there was no publick Pagan-Worſhip. But in 409, in the time of the Empire of Honorius and Theodoſius Junior, the Goths having beſieged Rome, under the Conduct of their King Alaric, the Romans were put to that Extreamity, that certain Idolatrous Prieſts, taking advantage of the general Conſternation, pretended that they could drive away the Beſiegers, by the help of their Deities, provided they were ſuffered to offer Sacrifices. All the Pagans that were remaining in the Senate, liſtened to this Propoſition, and accordingly it was performed, as well in the Capitol, as in other places of the City; but all to no purpoſe. The Goths, in the mean time, preſſing the Romans extreamly, forced them to buy a Peace; and, to pay 10000 Marks of Gold, and 60000 Marks of Silver, beſides ſundry other things, which they promiſed them. A Fund was raiſed upon the Remains of the Silver and Golden Idols, which raiſed Zoſimus deplored, as a great Calamity; but, Alaric inveſting Rome a ſecond time, and having taken the City, it was then, that the Pagans and their Idols were cruſh'd, and entirely deſtroyed, for three Days together, as we underſtand from Oroſius. In 420, the Tribune Urſus (as St. Proſper writes) deſirous to take away from the Africans, all the Hopes which they had in their Falſe Gods, cauſed the Remains of the Idol-Temples in Africa to be pulled down, and made Burying-places of the Ground where they ſtood; and, three Years after, the Emperor Theodoſius Junior, deſirous to put a final end to the great Work of Aboliſhing Idolatry, publiſhed very ſevere Edicts, whereby he Ordered, That all things belonging to Idolatry, in any Senſe, ſhould be Deſtroyed, to all Intents and Purpoſes, throughout the Roman Empire. And thus Idolatry was extinguiſhed. Others write, That the Ancient Inhabitants of the Eaſt, being perſwaded that there were Intelligent Beings above Men, which were the Miniſters of the Supream God, in the Conduct of the Univerſe, came to eſteem them by degrees equal with him who was their Maſter; or, at leaſt, to pay them as much Worſhip, as they did to him. They likewiſe believed, That ſome of thoſe Intelligences were in the Stars, ſo that they ought to honour them, as the Bodies of the Gods. They alſo imagined, That the Souls of Illuſtrious Men did aſcend after their Deaths, amongſt thoſe Superiour Beings, and did take care of the Country where they lived. Hence it came to paſs, that of this great multitude of Deities, they knew not whom to regard as the Principal, and that divers People, look'd upon the Souls of their ancient Kings and Queens, as Supreme Deities. So Iſis and Oſiris paſs'd in Egypt, for the Chief Gods; and Jupiter and Juno were the ſame thing among the Greeks. This is it that makes the Pagans ſpeak ſometimes of the Deity worthily, and according to the Impreſſion which they received from Tradition, or, which they had formed from the Works of the Creation; and why they ſpeak, at other times, of the King of Gods, as of a Man. They confound two Idea's together; the one of an Inferiour, and the other of a Supream God-head, which has made all things. This is, indeed, the moſt dangerous Idolatry, which conſiſts, Firſt, In confounding God with an Inferiour Being. Secondly, In giving it the ſame Inward and Outward Honour. After that Men came to make Statues, or to repreſent theſe Deities under Emblems or Symbolical Figures; and then People believed, That after having Conſecrated them with certain Ceremonies, the Gods inhabited them, ſo that they honoured them as the Manſions of the Gods. At preſent Idolatry flouriſhes moſt in China, but of the three different Sects of Religion, in that Country, the Principal, is that, of thoſe they call the Learned Chineſe: This Sect admits of no Idols, nor acknowledges any object of Worſhip, but the Supream deity, to whom, notwithſtanding, they build no Temples, nor aſſign him any Prieſts or Ceremonies for his Worſhip. They ſing no Hymns in honour of him, nor ſo much as pray to him either in publick or private; their Reaſon of this ſingularity is ſomewhat odd, for they hold, that it belongs only to the King to worſhip the Supream God and pray to him, imagining theſe Offices of Religion, too great a Preſumption in a Subject. *Maimonides, Lib. IDOMENEUS, a Captain, who aſſiſted the Greeks at the Siege of Troy. Coming thence, in a great Storm, he made a Vow to Sacrifice the firſt thing he met with, when he came home to his Houſe. He repented him of this indiſcreet Vow, his Son being the firſt thing that came in his way, and he would have Sacrificed him accordingly; but his Subjects driving him from his Kingdom, he retired into Calabria, where he built a City. Servius in 3 Æneid.

IDRIS, an Arabian Lord, of the Houſe and Sect of Ali. He ſaved himſelf in Africa from the Perſecution of Abdala, a Califf of Syria about 770. He was received very kindly in Mauritania Tingitana, or Weſtern Barbary, and becauſe he deſcended from Mahomet, all the People eſteemed him as a Saint; and therefore acknowledged him for a Prince or Califf. He was the firſt that brought Mahometaniſm thither. He left one Son born of a Chriſtian Slave, and of the Race of the Goths. He went by the ſame Name of Idris, and became one of the powerfulleſt Monarchs of Africa. He built Fez in 793. Marmol. de l' Afric. lib. 2.

IDSARCUS (Gravius) a Weſt-Freezland Prieſt. He wrote a Chronicle of his Country, which he continued from the Year 763, to 1514. wherein he lived. Suffridius Petri de Script. Friſ dec. 9. cap. 7.

IDUMEA, a Province of Palæſtine, named Edom in Scripture. It lies between Arabia Petræa, Judæa, the Red-Sea, and the Mediterranean. It contains divers Cities. Strabo and Pliny ſpeak of the Idumeans, who are deſcended from Eſau, youngeſt Son of Abraham; and, for this Reaſon, God forbid the Natural Jews, to abhorr them, as the reſt of the Uncircumciſed Nations, becauſe they were their Brethren. David vanquiſhed them, and having Revolted afterwards, King Jehoſophat reduced them and the Ammonites, in a very wonderful manner. After that, they Rebelled again, under the Reign of Joram, and were again Reduced. But when the Chaldæans beſieged Jeruſalem under Nebuchadnezzar, they joined with the Enemies againſt their Brethren. Hence aroſe thoſe Complaints in the Prophets, who threaten them in their Writings with approaching Puniſhment. Nor did they miſs it, as St. Jerom tells us, for they fell into the ſame Servitude, which they endeavoured to bring the Jews under. In proceſs of time, Hyrcanus made War againſt them, and made them turn Jews. They called Jeruſalem their Country, the Holy City, the Common City, and their Metropolis. Joſephus. Philo ſays, That this ſort of Jews, who called themſelves Proſelytes, to diſtinguiſh them from other Jews, were equalized by Moſes in all things, except this, That the Natural Jews ſhould be admitted into the Council called the Sanhedrin, and no Stranger, that did not come from a Jewiſh Mother, could have that Privilege. Torniel. Salian. Spon. Joſeph. Philon.

JEBUS, or JEBUSEUS, Son of Canaan, and Chief of the People called the Jebuſites, who gave Jeruſalem the Name of Jebus, as we are informed by St. Jerom. They could never be driven out of Jeruſalem, before the time of David; and we do not hear, whither they went, after that time, tho' Eſdras ſeems to mention them. Joſh. 15. 18. Judg. 1. 19. 2 Sam. 5. &c.

JECHONIAS, or JEHOJACHIM, King of Judah. The Books of Kings and Jeremiah, give him this laſt Name; and he is called by the other, in St. Matthew. He was the Son of Joachim, who ſhared the Royal Authority with him, the Second Year of his Reign; which ſolves the apparent Contrariety between Kings 24. & 8. where it is ſaid, That he was 18 Years old when he began to reign; and Chronicles 36. & 9. which make mention but of 8. He began to Reign alone, An. Mun. 3435. But the Year after, Nebuchodonoſor took him, and his Mother; as alſo his Wives, Eunuchs, and other Grandees of the Kingdom, and carried them all Captives to Babylon, and ſo they continued in Captivity, till about 3472. When Evil-merodach having Succeeded his Father, ranked him amongſt the Chief Princes of his Court.

JEDO, the Capital City of Japan, and the Emperor's Seat. It is ſituated upon the Borders of the River Tonkaw, or Toukon, near a great Gulf, which is very ſhallow becauſe of Sand, and that is the reaſon, that none but ſmall Barques can ride there. It is a good Fiſhing-place for Soles, Smelts, Eels and Oyſters, &c. The Houſes of this City are built of Mud, but covered over with Wood, to keep out Rain. There is a great ſtore of Noble-men's Houſes there, of very magnificent Structure with Gates curiouſly wrought, but principally the great Gate, called The Emperor's, becauſe the Emperor paſſeth through it to his Palace, which, as thoſe of other Kings of Japan, are, for the moſt part, built upon the higheſt Places of this City. Upon one of the ſides of this high Ground, there ſtands a Tower of Pleaſure, called The Emperor's Tower, and at the Foot of the Mountain, a Temple very richly ornamented. This Temple is held in ſuch Veneration, that none but the Emperor, Thoſe of the Blood Royal, and the Archibonze, or High-Prieſt, have the privilege of going into it. The Streets of this City are numerous, and moſt of them are 180 Fathom long. There is one near 4 Leagues in length. They provide ſo well againſt Fire and Thieves, that in every Street, there is one, or more Magazines, or Ware-houſes whither they carry their beſt things, when any Fire happens. And at the end of every Street, there are Watch-houſes, where Guard is kept in the Night, to hinder thoſe of one Street from running to another, in time of Fire, and to prevent the Eſcape of Thieves. The Imperial Palace of Jedo, is compaſſed round with three Ramparts and three Ditches. In it are many magnificent Apartments; the Firſt of which is two Stories high, diſtinguiſhed the one from the other by a Line of golden Apples. Between the firſt Apartment, and the firſt Rampart, ſtand the Life-guards, conſiſting of 3000 Men, which Relieve each other every Day. The Front of the Emperor's Apartment, is a great Pavillion, flanked by two others of the ſame Structure. They are all three Nine Stories high, and end in a Pyramidal Figure; on the tops whereof are to be ſeen two great Dolphins covered with Plates of Gold. The Hall for Audience, which ſtands upon gilded Pillars, lies right over againſt the Pavillion, which ſerves for a Front to this ſtately Edifice. The Fretting is Plates of Gold, whereon are drawn Figures and Landskips. Firſt, There it is the Emperor ſitteth upon his Throne, glittering in Gold and Jewels, either when he gives Audience to foreign Ambaſſadors, or receives Homage from the Kings and Princes of his Empire. The Garden belonging to this Palace, is a vaſt thing, and full of fine Trees, Flowers, &c. The Temple of Amida, is one the ſtatelieſt of the City of Jedo: But their Idol there, does not become the Magnificence of the Place. This Monſter is placed upon an Altar, covered over with Plates of Silver half an Inch thick. Upon this Altar, there are golden Cups, before and behind the Statue, which is mounted upon a Horſe with Seven Heads, each of them denoting a thouſand Centuries. This Statue is made with a Man's-body, and a Dog's-head. The Horſe's Houſings are all embroidered with Pearls, Gold and Diamonds. The Characters painted upon the fore-part of the Altar, explain the Signification of the whole Equipage of the Idol. The Relation of Father Frejus imports, That the Wife of Cubus the Emperor, had a Temple in her Palace, where ſhe adored this very God Amida, in the ſhape of a young Man, having a Crown upon his head, environed with Beams of Gold. The Hollanders Embaſſy to Japan. Father Frejus's Relation of 1565.

JEHOVA, is the great Name of God, which we commonly call Tetragrammaton, for that this Name conſiſts of Four Letters in the Hebrew Tongue. The Jews retain ſo great a Veneration for this Holy Name, That they are forbid, upon pain of death to pronounce it. In former times, it was only the High-Prieſt that might pronounce it, and that but once a Year, at the ſolemn Benediction of the People in the Feaſt of Expiation. Euſebius, in his Evangelical Preparation, and Theodoretus, in his Queſtions upon Exodus, did acknowledge, That the Jews were forbid to pronounce this Name. Joſeph, who was of the Race of the Prieſts, teſtifies, That he was not permitted, to divulge the pronunciation of it, under pain of Eternal Damnation; alledging, That it contained the Myſtery of the Trinity. It appears, by the Fragments which we have remaining of the Hexapla of Origen, where the Hebrew Tongue was written in Greek Characters, That he wrote Adonai, in all places, where was Jehova in the Hebrew; a thing, which is confirmed by the Pronunciation of the Jews now at this Day. We do not find, that St. Jerom either makes uſe of this Word Jehova in his Tranſlation of the Bible, or in his Works. He follows the ancient Greek Interpreters; Tranſlating it, for the moſt part, Lord. The Maſſoret Jews deſirous to conceal it, point it with other Vowels than its own. Nevertheleſs it is manifeſt, That this Name was formerly pronounced with Vowels proper to it, and Ancient Authors prove it. Diodorus. Siculus, and divers other Pagan Writers, have remarked, That the God of the Jews was called Jao; which, very Word, we find in the Works of St. Irenæus, St. Clemens Alexandrinus, and Theodoret. This laſt obſerved in his Diſputes upon Exodus, that the Jews pronounced Jao, and the Samaritans, Jave. The learned Gataker in his Book, Intituled De Nomine tetragrammato diſſertatio, defends our uſing the Name Jehova, againſt the weak and unjuſt Cavils of thoſe who oppoſe it.

JEHU, Tenth King of Iſrael. Was the Son of Joſaphat, and Grand-child of Nimſhi. He was, An. Mun. 3151. by the Order of God, and by a Diſciple of Eliſha, Anointed to be King of Iſrael, to cut off the Houſe of Ahab, which he did. For he killed Joram with an Arrow, put Jezabel to death; and after that, the Grandees of Samaria themſelves maſſacred 60 of Ahab's Children, for fear of having this new King for their Enemy. After theſe Executions, the eaſier to exterminate Baal's Prieſts, favoured ſo much by Jezabel, he feigned, as if he would honour this Baal much more than this Princeſs ever did. In this Deſign, he exhorted all the Prieſts of that Idol to meet together for a ſolemn Sacrifice; and when they were all in the Temple, he made his Soldiers put them all to Death; and cauſed the Statue of Baal to be broke to pieces. God himſelf commended this Zeal. But Jehu did not continue it long, nor did he pull down the Calves of Dan and Bethel, and therefore God puniſhed him by Hazael King of Syria, who ravaged his Provinces. He died An. Mun. 3178. after having reigned 28 Years. 2 Kings c. 9. & ſeq. 2 Chron. c. 22. Joſeph. l. 6. antiq. Jud. Torniel. A. M. 3150, 51, 78.

JEHU, a Prophet of the Lord, was the Son of Hanani. He told Baaſha King of Iſrael, of all the Evils that befell his Houſe. Some believe, That Ela Son of Baaſha, cauſed him to be put to death, in the beginning of his Reign, about An. Mun. 3105. But others do not think ſo, becauſe a Prophet of this Name wrote the Acts of Joſaphat. And ſome ſay, that there were two of this Name.

JEHUDA, or BEN-DAVID-FESSEAN, ſurnamed Hijug, a Rabbin. He lived in the XIth. Century. He was the firſt Hebrew Grammarian in the Weſtern World, according to Genebrard, who talks of another Jehuda, a Jewiſh Levite, who lived in the XIIth. Century.

JELPHEE, or ZULPHA, a Suburb to the City Iſpahan, the Capital of Perſia, Inhabited by Armenian Chriſtians, who have many Privileges granted them by that Crown. They have a Patriarch in this Place, much reſpected by the King of Perſia, though a Mahometan Prince, and twelve Biſhops. In 1609. a Thouſand of theſe Armenian Chriſtians were at one time martyr'd by Abbas King of Perſia, on a Pretence that they had ſubmitted to the Pope. Herbert pag. 68.

JEMPTERLAND, which the Latin Writers call Jemptia; a Province in Norway formerly belonging to the King of Denmark, but now belonging to the King of Swedeland, ever ſince the Peace concluded at Bromsbroo, in 1645. There are no conſiderable Towns in it, but only three Caſtles, which are Reſſund. Docre and Lith. It hath on the Eaſt Angermania, on the Weſt Helſingia, on the South Medelpadi, on the North Norway.

JENA, a Town of Thuringia in Germany, belonging to the Duke of Saxon-Weimar, with an Univerſity. It is ſituated upon the River De la Sala, in a fertile Vale. There is plenty of Vines about it. It is well built, but ſmall, walled about, and hath a Bridge over the River. This City was of no Conſideration till after the Dukes of Saxony built the Univerſity in it, which was founded Jan. 25. 1555. Bertius lib. 3. in Comment. Germ. It is 14 Miles E. of Weimar, and 12 S. W. of Naumburg. Long. 31. 41. Lat. 51. 2.

JENECOPING, or JONEKOPING, Lat. Jenekopia, a Town of Swedeland, in Smau-landt, a Province of Oſtro-Gothia. It is ſituated in the middle of the Lake Wether, and all built of Wood, 68 Miles W. of Colmar. Long. 34. 30. Lat. 57. 42.

JENISCEY, or JENCI, a River of North-Muſcovy, in Lopia, near to the People called Tingoeſes. It has great Mountains on the Eaſt, and on the Weſt a great and very fertile Plain. It is ſaid, that its Courſe is as long as that of Obi, and that in former Times it over flowed the Country almoſt 70 Leagues.

JENIZA, or JENIZZA, a ſmall City built by the Turks in Macedonia, out of the Ruins of Pella, the Birth-place of Alexander the Great, upon the Bay of Theſſalonica, between the Rivers Bevoda and Caſtora; 28 Miles South of Theſſalonica, and as far Eaſt of Edeſſa.

JENTIVES, a ſort of Heathens in the Indies, principally in the Kingdom of Golconda, and that of Cambaya. They believe one only God, and the Immortality of the Soul; but they admit of the Metempſycoſis, or Tranſmigration of Souls, and therefore abhorr the Effuſion of Blood, and the Murther of Animals, for fear of killing their Father, or any of their Friends. Mandeſlo, Tom. 2. Olearius.

JENUPAR, a City and Kingdom of the Indies, within the Peninſula on this ſide Ganges, and in the Grand Mogul's Country. This City lies upon the River Coul, near to the Foot of the Mountains, between Delli and Lahor. Beſides this City, it has that of Nicondat, and ſome others.

JEPHTHA, the IXth. Judge, of the Hebrews, ſucceeded Tola and Jair in this Office. He came out of a Country called Gilead, and was the Son of a Concubine, and therefore his Brothers would not own him. 'Tis ſaid that then he withdrew into a certain Country which is called Tob in Scripture, where he was made Captain of a Troop of Thieves. The Jews, oppreſſed by the Ammonites, had recourſe to the Courage of Jephtha; who gathered Forces from all Parts, marched againſt the Enemies of God's People, A. M. 2849. and made a Vow, that if he got the Victory he would ſacrifice the firſt Thing he met upon his Return home. He defeated the Ammonites, but had Reaſon to repent very quickly of the Raſhneſs of his Vow; for when he returned, his only Daughter, whom Philo-Judæus calls Sela, tranſported with Joy, came to him firſt. Jephtha, extreamly afflicted, told her the Vow he made: She preſſed her Father to fulfil it; and in effect, at the end of two Months, which ſhe demanded to bewail her Virginity, he fulfilled it. In the mean time, thoſe of the Tribe of Ephraim, offended that Jephtha had not taken them to the War, after having diſcovered their Diſpleaſure at it, they revolted againſt him. Jephtha ſlew 42000 of them, A. M. 2850. The ancient Fathers differ in their Opinions of this Vow: Some holding that it was raſh, and unlawfully accompliſhed. Others maintain, that it was pleaſing to the Almighty, and done by the Direction of the Holy Ghoſt, wherewith, the Scriptures ſay this Judge was repleniſhed. There were ſome alſo of Opinion that the Daughter of Jephtha was not ſacrificed, but only conſecrated to the Service of God; and was ſhut up in a particular Place, where ſhe lived a Virgin. But however that was, the young Women of Iſrael uſed to meet every Year, and bewailed her for Forty Days together. Agamemnon lived about this Time; and ſome Authors are perſwaded, that it was in imitation of this that he ſacrificed his Daughter Iphigenia for the Greek Army. He died, A. M. 2854. which was in the ſixth Year of his Government.

JERAPOLI, an Epiſcopal City of Aſia Minor in Phrygia. The Turks name it in their Language, corruptedly, Seldeſcheber: The Greeks and Latins name it Hierapolis. About the Year 185. in the Pontificate of Pope Eleutherius, a Synod was held here againſt Montanus and Theodorus.

JEREMIAH, a Prophet of the Sacerdotal Family, was the Son of Hilkiah the Prieſt. He began to propheſie in the 13th. Year of the Reign of Joſiah, A. M. 3406. or 7. But the Evils which Jeremiah and the Propheteſs Hulda threatned the Jews with, did not come to paſs in that King's Reign. When his Prophecy was ſhewn Joachim, whom the King of Egypt had ſet upon the Throne of Judah, this Prince ſeeing the Miſchief that was foretold him, cut the Writing with a Pen-knife, and threw it into the Fire. But God commanded the Prophet to tranſcribe the very ſame Menaces in another Volume, and to make a great many Additions thereto. In the mean time, this holy Boldneſs, wherewith the Spirit of God inſpired him, provoked the Jews againſt him. He was put in Priſon three or four times before; and the Courtiers of Zedekiah, not able to endure that, notwithſtanding his Impriſonment, he ſhould ſtill reproach the Jews with their Crimes, and fore-tell them the Miſeries which hung over their Heads, they threw him into a deep Ditch, full of Mire; where he had been certainly ſtifled, if an Æthiopian, named Ebed-meleck, whom his Merits had raiſed in Zedekiah's Court, had not obtained Leave from this King to take the Prophet out of that Place. After this, the Babylonians, according as Jeremiah foretold it, took the City of Jeruſalem, A. M. 3428. Nebuzaradan, Nebuchadnezzar's General, gave him Liberty, either to go to Babylon, or to ſtay in Judæa. The Prophet choſe the latter, to look after the Safety of the Handful of People who dwelt there. He gave good Advice to Gedaliah, who was left Governor of Judæa; but he neglecting it, was killed with all his Men. After which, the Jews, who dreaded the King of Babylon's Fury, ſought their Security by a Flight into Egypt. Jeremiah oppoſed it all he could, but they carried him and Baruch with them. In Egypt he blamed them for their Idolatry, with his ordinary Zeal and Conſtancy, to that degree, that being unable to endure his Reproaches any longer, they are ſaid to have ſtoned him at the City of Taphneas, A. M. 3447. of Rome, 147. and in the XLIIId. Olympiad.

JEREMIAH I. of this Name, a Greek Patriarch of Conſtantinople. He ſucceeded Theoleptus, about 1520. The Year after he went to Jeruſalem to viſit Chriſt's Sepulchre, and the Clergy that accompanied him being divided amongſt themſelves, one Part of them returned to Conſtantinople, where one Joannicus had obtained Jeremiah's Place, by promiſing a greater Tribute to the Grand Signior. Jeremiah, upon his Return, played his Game ſo well, that he was continued, and his Competitor expelled. Ibrahim, Grand Viſier to Solyman, who was his Friend, did him good Service in this Affair. 'Tis ſaid, that the Turkiſh Prince would have him obliged to pay him as much as Joannicus offer'd; and that Jeremiah would rather quit the Patriarchal Chair than comply: But the Greeks, who were charmed with the Modeſty and Sweetneſs of their Prelate, oppoſed his Deſign, and freely payed the Remainder of the Tribute for him. After that he prevented a fatal Blow that was deſigned to be given his People, whom the Turks would have expell'd their Cities which had made an obſtinate Reſiſtance againſt the Ottoman Forces. He died in 1545. Emanuel Malaxes, lib. 2. Turcogr. Genebrard & Onuphrius in Chron. Sponde in Annal.

JEREMIAH II. Metropolitan of Lariſſa, being but 36 Years of Age, was preferred to the See of the Græcian Patriarch, in 1572. ſome Time after that Metrophanes had freely abdicated it. He was afterwards accuſed before the Grand Signior of having correſponded by Letters, and other Friendſhip, with the Roman See; and was, by this Prince's Order, committed to Priſon, and afterwards baniſhed, about 1585. Emanuel Malaxes, Poſſevinus, and others, cited by Sponde in Annal.

JERICO, or JERICHO, a City of Palæſtine, called formerly The City of Palms, becauſe it is in the midſt of a Plain full of Palm-Trees. The laſt Kings of Judæa took pleaſure in adorning this City with magnificent Fabricks: And Herod the Aſcalonite, ſurnamed The Great, made it his Place of Abode, in a very fine Palace. There was alſo an Hippodrome there, which was as a Royal Academy, where the Nobility uſed to Ride the Great Horſe and run Races; there was alſo a very ſtately Amphitheatre for publick Games. The Plain of Jericho is about Nine Leagues long, and five broad. Joſephus ſays, That it was the Place where the true Balm was found; from whence the City took its Name of Jericho, which ſignifies, a good Smell. But there are no Trees to be ſeen there now that produce Balm, and but few Palm-Trees, becauſe they are not cultivated. There are ſome wild Trees and Brakes, and, amongſt others, the Zacon, which bears little Plums, from which is drawn a certain Oil, or Balm, of admirable Effect for all ſorts of Wounds. Amongſt the Groves of this Plain there are little wild Trees, which bear a Fruit like little Round Apples, and of a yellow Colour, which contain, in lieu of the Kernels, little Nuts, round as Peaſe, and very well taſted. Others bear Apples painted, as it were, with a gilded Vermilion; very pleaſant to the Sight, but full of ill-taſted Water; and when dried, nothing remains but the Core. It ſeems very probable that the Authors meant theſe, when they ſpoke of Apples that grew about the Banks of the Dead Sea, called Apples of Sodom and Gomorrah; which were of a charming Colour, but within full of dirty, ſtinking Aſhes. About the North Side of Jericho lies the Mountain Quarantine; ſo called becauſe Jeſus Chriſt faſted there Forty Days. It is extream high and ſteep; and it is very difficult to get up to the Cave, whither our Saviour retired. A little farther there is another Grotto, painted with various Figures, of the Annunciation of the Virgin, of Angels, and of the Apoſtles, with very ancient Greek Characters; a little defaced, but the Colours very viſible. Some ſay, that it was to this Place that the Angels carried Suſtenance to our Saviour, after his Faſt, and his Victory over the Devil's Temptations; whereof the laſt was, according to St. Matthew, upon the Top of a Mountain, (meaning this, as it is believed,) whither he carried the Son of God, to ſhew him the Kingdoms of the Earth. Some think it more probable, that our Saviour was rather in the Wilderneſs of Jordan when he faſted Forty Days, in regard St. Mark ſays, that he was with the Beaſts; and that this Mountain was ſo unapproachable, that even Wild Beaſts themſelves could not come near it, as being altogether barren, without either Road or Path, Herb or Buſh. But this their Opinion is diametrically oppoſite to common Report, it being ſaid that Beaſts frequented the Foot of this Mountain; and that in ſome Places, amongſt the Rocks, there were Porcupines ſometimes to be ſeen. Four or five hundred Paces off this Mountain was to be ſeen the Fountain of Eliſha; ſo called, becauſe this Prophet ſweetned its Waters, which were bitter before. This River runs by Jericho, then divides into many ſmall Streams which water the Country, and diſcharges it ſelf into Jordan. Doubdan's Voyage to the Holy Land.

JERMYN (Henry) Second Son to Sir Thomas Jermyn of Ruſhbroke in Suffolk, Treaſurer to King Charles I. and Maſter of the Horſe to the Queen. He attended that Princeſs into England, landing her at Burlington in Yorkſhire; whence he conducted her ſafely through the Enemy's Quarters, unto His Majeſty at Oxford; who for that, and other Services, by his Letters-Patent, bearing Date Septemb. 8. in the 19th. Year of his Reign, advanced him to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Jermyn of St. Edmondsbury in Suffolk. After which, the Lord Jermyn attending the Queen out of England, and governing her ſmall Family for ſixteen Years, being alſo of King Charles II's Privy Council in Foreign Parts, and employed by him in ſeveral Embaſſies to the King of France; in conſideration of all theſe Services, that Prince, by Letters Patent, bearing Date at Breda in Brabant, April 27. 1660. in the 12th. Year of his Reign, and but few Weeks preceding his Reſtauration, created him Earl of St. Albans in Hertfordſhire, and afterwards conſtituted him Lord Chamberlain of his Houſhold. Dugdale.

JEROBOAM I. of this Name, King of Iſrael, was the Son of Nebat. Solomon was the Cauſe of his Riſe: And after he underſtood he was to ſucceed in his Kingdom, becauſe the Prophet Abijah promiſed him Ten Tribes thereof, by cutting his Garment into Twelve Parts, whereof he gave him Ten, he endeavoured to deſtroy him, and ſo conſtrained him to retire into Egypt. Solomon dying, A. M. 3059. Jeroboam preſented himſelf to Rehoboam, with the reſt, humbly praying him to eaſe them of the exceſſive Taxes which they lay under; and having received the King's Anſwer, which was not very Politick, Ten of the Tribes fell off to Jeroboam. This was the Diviſion of the Kingdoms of Judah and Iſrael. Jeroboam being eſtabliſhed King, fearing that if the People did go to Jeruſalem, they would by degrees return to Rehoboam, their lawful Prince, cauſed two Golden Calves to be made, placing the one at Bethel, and the other at Dan, and made his Subjects to worſhip them; endeavouring in the Worſhip of theſe Idols, to imitate the Worſhip of the true God in Jeruſalem. This was, A. M. 3061. A little after God ſent him a Prophet, who ſpake to one of the Altars, in Jeroboam's Preſence, and propheſied, That there ſhould be a Son born of the Race of David, named Joſias, who would deſtroy upon that Altar all the Prieſts who offered Incenſe there: And as a Token of the Truth of what he had ſaid, the Altar clove in two at the very Inſtant. Which Joſias performed 250 Years after this Propheſie. Jeroboam not able to bear with this Prophet's Freedom, ſtretched out his Hand to order one of his Officers to ſeize him; but it withered inſtantly. The Prince deſired him to pray for the Recovery of his Arm, which was done, but he did not grow better by it. He died ſome Time after in his wickedneſs, A. M. 3081. having reigned about 21 or 22 Years. 1 King. 11. 12, 13. & Seq. 4. 9. 10. 13. 14. 2 Chron. 9. 10. Joſeph. lib. 8. Antiq. Torniel. Salian & Sponde in Annal. Veter. Teſtam.

JEROBOAM II. ruled with his Father Joaſh, and began to rule alone in Iſrael about A. M. 3211. according to the Supputation of Torniel and Salian. This was a valiant and proſperous Prince in War. He alſo beat the Syrians often, re-took from them all that they had ſeized of his Kingdom, and added to it the Cities of Damaſcus and Hamath: So that under him his Kingdoms had almoſt the ſame Frontiers which they had in Solomon's Time. God did not favour him with all theſe Succeſſes for his Piety, ſeeing he was an Idolater; but to fulfil the Promiſes made to his Grandfather Jehoahaz. He died in the 41ſt. Year of his Reign, A. M. 3251. 2 King. 14. Joſeph. lib. 9. Antiq. Genebrard lib. 1. Chron. Torniel. & Salian Annal. Sacr. Vet. Teſtam.

St. JEROM, Son of Euſebius, born at Stridon, a City upon the Confines of Dalmatia, in the ancient Pannonia. He ſtudied at Rome, under Donatus the Grammarian, who commented upon Virgil and Terence, and was baptized in this City. He came afterwards into France, where he tranſcrib'd St. Hilary's Book de Synodis, for which he had a great Eſteem. He alſo ſpent ſome Time in Aquileia, where he got acquainted with Heliodorus, who, obliged by his Example, accompanied him to Thrace, Pontus, Bithynia, Galatia and Cappadocia, and at length to Syria, where Heliodorus, who came but for Company-ſake, tarried but a very ſhort Time: St. Jerom wrote him very preſſing Letters to make him come back. The Orthodox of Meletius's Party perſecuted him in his Solitudes; treating him as if he had been infected with the Errors of Sabellius, for his uſing the Word Hypoſtaſis, as the Council of Rome applied it, An. 309. This made him go to Jeruſalem, where the Study of the Hebrew Tongue took up moſt of his Time, in order to his better underſtanding of the holy Scripture. And his Name was become already ſo famous in the Church, that Pope Damaſus conſulted him in his Difficulties. In the mean time Paulinus of Antioch ordained St. Jerom Prieſt; who conſented conditionally, that he ſhould not be confined to any Church, and that he ſhould not quit the Monaſtick Profeſſion. The Reputation of St. Gregory Nazianzen being ſpread every where, St. Jerom came about the Year 381. to Conſtantinople to hear him. He ſpent the Year following at Rome, where he was Secretary to Pope Damaſus. He publiſhed a Book againſt Helvidius, and another afterwards againſt Jovinian, about Celibacy. At the ſame time he inſtructed ſeveral Roman Ladies in Piety, having for Scholars in Vertue and Letters Marcella, Albina, Læta, Aſella, Paula, Bleſila, Euſtochium, and ſome others, who became, under his Diſcipline, rare Examples of Sanctity. This Deſign, together with the Calumnies of the Origeniſts, raiſed ſuch Enmity againſt him, that he was conſtrained to depart Rome, and to return to his Beloved Solitude. He went thence to Alexandria, to hear Didymus. When he was at laſt upon returning to the Grotto of Bethlehem, he made it his whole Study and Buſineſs to write againſt thoſe whom he called Hereticks; and more particularly againſt Vigilantius and Jovinianus. In a Work written by him againſt this latter, in praiſe of Virginity, he ſeems to have too much leſſen'd that of Marriage. His Enemies made ſuch a Stir about the Matter, that Pammachius, a Friend of St. Jerom, adviſed him to make an Apology in defence of his ſaid Work. He did it in his ordinary Stile, where, amidſt his eloquent Flouriſhes, he mixes ſome Satyrical Expreſſions againſt thoſe who condemned his Labours. He was the firſt that wrote againſt Pelagius, whom he oppoſes in his Dialogues. This Hereſiarch revenged himſelf by the Enemies which he raiſed againſt St. Jerom, ſuch as John of Jeruſalem, and Ruffinus, who was his intimate Friend. Theophilus of Alexandria reconciled them; but that did not hold long. This Diviſion of theſe two great Men, which got to a Head, proved very ſcandalous; and many charged St. Jerom with too much Heat about it. He had a Diſpute with St. Auguſtin, but theſe two great Doctors kept within the Rules of Charity; and this laſt demanded of St. Jerom himſelf his Sentiment touching the Original of Souls. He died in 420. aged about 78 or 80 Years; or, according to Cave, 91. He choſe for Maſters in all Faculties the learnedſt Men of the Time. Eraſmus ſays of him, that he was, without Controverſie, the learnedſt and moſt eloquent of all Chriſtians, and Prince of Divines; and for Eloquence, ſaith, that he excelled Cicero. He is nevertheleſs blamed for his Satyrical Way of Writing, and that againſt very great Men, and on light Occaſions. Nor could he forbear to accuſe St. Paul himſelf of Soleciſms, and Errors in Grammar, alledging, that he ſpoke truly of himſelf when he ſaid that he was rude in Speech. We have beſides his Works carefully gathered by Marianus Victorius: And another Edition, printed at Paris, in 9 Tomes, An. 1623. Vid. Petav. Doctr. Temp. Eraſmus's Edition, Cav. Hiſt. Liter. Pars 1.

JEROM of Prague; ſo called, becauſe he was a Native of that City, being the Capital of Bohemia. He was the Scholar of Wicliff and John Hus; and began to publiſh their Doctrine in 1408. He was Maſter of Arts, and had given ſufficient Proof of his Parts, Learning and Elocution; and taught thoſe Doctrines in the Schools, which John Hus preached in the Pulpits; for which he was impriſoned in Bohemia. The Council of Conſtance cited him before them, to give an Account of his Belief. Jerom of Prague came thither, An. 1415. when John Hus was Priſoner there; and publiſhed, That he came to defend the Doctrine of his Maſter. But he fled quickly after, and was met upon the Frontiers of Bohemia, and carried back to the Council, where he abjured, Septemb. 23. 1415. and a little after diſappeared. After this he was re-taken near Bohemia, and conducted to Conſtance, where all was done that could be to make him renounce again; but having perſiſted ſtill in his Opinion, he was delivered into the Handsof the Magiſtrate, and burnt upon Saturday, May 30, 1416. He is ſaid at his Execution to have behaved himſelf with great fortitude. Æneas Sylvius. Picolomini, or Pope Pius II. ſpeaks of him in his Hiſtory of Bohemia, where he mentions his Relapſe. *Æneas Sylvius & Dubravius Hiſt. Bohem. Cochlæus Hiſt. JEROM of Holy Faith, firſt a Jew and then a Chriſtian, was in great Eſteem for his Knowledge in the Jewiſh Controverſies, in the Beginning of the XVth. Century: And for his Books againſt the Errors of the Jews, and Talmud, which converted 5000 Jews. Theſe were printed at Francfort, under the Title, Hebræo Maſtix.

JERONYMITES, alſo ſurnamed Hermites of St. Jerom: A Religious Congregation, eſtabliſhed in Italy and Spain. Peter de Piſa laboured for it with extream Zeal in Italy, and one Thomas in Spain, whither he paſſed with ſome of his Companions. Pope Gregory XI. confirmed this Inſtitution in 1373. or 74. under the Rule of St. Auguſtine. The Chief of the Order is at Lupiana, in the Dioceſs of Toledo. The Congregation of St. Iſidore, whereof the Monaſtery is at Seville, belongs to it; with that of St. Lawrence at the Eſcurial, built by the Liberality of Philip II. and that of St. Juſt; whither Charles V. retired about the Latter End of his Days. Theſe Monks are thus called, becauſe their Rule is drawn from the Works, and principally from the Letters of St. Jerom: Not becauſe this holy Doctor inſtituted them; for St. Jerom founded no Order, nor left any particular Rule. The Jeronymites never appeared, either in Italy or Spain, before the XIVth. Century; and firſt followed St. Auguſtine's Order. But Father Loup D'Olivet, or Dolmedo, their General, projected a Rule made up of St. Jerom's Sentiments, which was approved of by Pope Martin V. who diſpenſed with the Jeronymites not obſerving that Rule of the Auguſtines. Nevertheleſs, it is to be obſerved, that the Hermites of the Congregation of St. Jerom of Italy follow St. Auguſtine's Rule to this Day. There was one Rule inſerted in the Works of St. Jerom, for the Nuns, which was not of this holy Doctor's making; as Haſten has demonſtrated in his Monaſtick Diſquiſitions. *B. de la Congregation de St. Maur. JERSEY, in Latin Cæſarea, an Iſland on the Coaſt of Normandy, and anciently part of the Dukedom of Normandy, but annexed to the County of Southampton; this and Guernſey being all that is left to the Kings of England of their large Dominions in France, from the Shoars of which it lies about five Miles to the Weſt, and thirty from thoſe of England to the South: The Inhabitants ſpeak a Norman kind of French: There are in it twelve Pariſhes and two Caſtles: King Charles II. for the Loyalty of this Iſland, did in 1663. ſend them a Silver Mace, to be born before their Chief Magiſtrate. His preſent Majeſty King William III. has been pleaſed to Dignifie the Right Honourable Edward Lord Viſcount Villiers, now Principal Secretary of State with the Title of Earl of Jerſey.

JERUSALEM, the Capital City of the Holy Land, which the Turks call Cuts. It has divers other Names; as, The City of David, The City of Peace, beſides thoſe expreſſed in the following Diſtich.

Solyma, Luſa, Bethel, Jeroſolyma, Jebus, Ælia,
Urbs Sacra, Jeruſalem, dicitur atque Salem.

It belonged to the Tribe of Benjamin, but was looked upon as in Judæa; and ſo peopled with Prieſts, that in the Time of David and Solomon there were no leſs than 36000 of them there. It was commonly believed that Melchiſedech, who was King and Prieſt, founded this City, and called it Salem: That the Jebuſites took it afterwards, and built a Fort therein, called Jebus; and of theſe two Names Jebus and Salem, called it Jeruſalem. Be it how it will, this Fort of Jebus did not hinder Joſhua's Taking it, about A. M. 2484. and putting King Adonizedeck to death, with four other Princes, his Allies, who withſtood his Arms. After the Death of Joſhua, the Jebuſites re-took it, but could not keep it long, becauſe the Iſraelites took it preſently, all but the Fort of Jebus, which was the high Part of the City, and called The Citadel of Zion: For the ſame Jebuſites held it till the Time of David, who took it, A. M. 2986. and gave it the Name of The City of David. Whence it was, that although it belonged to the Benjamites, as being of their Dividend, it was counted to belong to that of Judah. The Iſraelites lived in it, with the Natives of the Country, all the Time preceding this laſt Conqueſt; either becauſe they were not able to drive out the Inhabitants, or becauſe they would not be at the Trouble of doing it. Solomon cauſed to be built ſeveral noble Structures at Jeruſalem; as, The Temple, a Royal Palace called The Houſe of Lebanon, and ſome others. After his Death, Shiſhack, or Seſoſtris, King of Egypt, took the City, and plundered it, during Rehoboam's Reign, A. M. 3064. Joaſh King of Iſrael took it again, under the Reign of Amaziah King of Judah, A. M. 3210. As did the Aſſyrians in the Time of Manaſſeh, about 3361. And by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, under the Reign of Jehoiachim, A. M. 3436. This Babylonian King left Zedekiah in it, whom he ſettled as Sovereign. But, diſſatisfied with his Conduct, he came back again to Jeruſalem with a formidable Army; and beginning the Siege on the 10th. Day of the 10th Month, A. M. 3446. the City was taken the fifth of the fourth Month. The Aſſyrians getting in through the Fiſh-Gate, made themſelves abſolute Maſters, and put all to the Sword. Nebuzaradan cauſed the King's Palace to be fired, as he did the Temple, and other Buildings; demoliſhed the Walls, and ruined the whole City. Seventy Years after, A. M. 3516. Cyrus ſent the Captive Jews back to Judæa, who rebuilt Jeruſalem and the Temple, under the Conduct of Zerobabel and Eſdras: Nehemiah finiſhing the Work in 3560. In 3619. Alexander the Great came up againſt Jeruſalem, and had it delivered to him without Reſiſtance by Jaddus the High Prieſt. In 3629. Ptolemæus Lagus took it by Surprize, and carried many of the Jews into Egypt. This City was again re-taken and pillaged by Antiochus Epiphanes, An. Rom. 586. and A. M. 3886. But a little after, Judas Macchabæus recovered it. Other Princes of Syria did their utmoſt to reduce it, but to no purpoſe. Pompey, provoked by the Jews, ſuffered his Soldiers to commit great Diſorders in it, An. Rom. 690. And Herod the Aſcalonite, having got it in 717, did the like. 'Tis true that afterwards he repaired the Damages, by the magnificent Buildings which he cauſed to be built in it. The laſt Misfortune that befel this City was, A. C. 70. Titus beſieged Jeruſalem at the Time of the Solemnity of Eaſter, which drew an infinite Number of People from all the Parts of Judæa. Four Months after he ſeized the Temple on Sunday the fourth of Auguſt. But before this Seizure, Proviſions grew ſo ſhort, that, after having been forc'd to a moſt offenſive and nauſeous Diet; Man's Fleſh was made uſe of to feed the People. The Mother killed the Babe that hung upon her Breaſt, to prolong Life for a few Days. The Temple was burnt, and Titus gave the Soldiers Liberty to burn the City, which then felt the utmoſt that Flame and Plunder could inflict. The higheſt Part of the City, called The Fort of Sion, could have held out a long Time, but God delivered it to the Beſiegers. So that upon Septemb. 8. being the Sabbath, Titus was abſolute Maſter of Jeruſalem, which the Flames devoured afterwards. There was ſcarce any Mark left of the Place where this great City ſtood, and which was the Queen of the Eaſt, and the Seat of Religion for above 1100 Years, that David fixed his Throne there. Titus cauſed to be abſolutely ruined, this Murthereſs of the Prophets, fulfilling what the Son of God fore-told; namely, That there ſhould not be one Stone left upon another. Anno Chriſti 132. the Emperor Adrian began to rebuild Jeruſalem, and called it Ælia Capitolina; and ſent out ſome Forces againſt the Jews, who revolted, and liſted themſelves under the Command of a notorious Impoſtor, called Barchochebas. They had a ſecond Subterranean City to retire to upon Occaſion, but their Pre-cautions availed them not; for the Romans beat them ſo vigorouſly, that Judæa was in a manner wholly deſerted. Adrian forbad the Jews the Entry of Jeruſalem: And Euſebius adds, That they were forbidden even to look upon it from a-far, or from any high Place; ſo much was this rebellious and opinionative People deſpiſed. And to profane it to all Intents and Purpoſes, he cauſed to be cut, and put upon Bethlem-Gate the Figure of a Swine, which of all Beaſts, this Nation abhors moſt. The Emperor, not contented with that Mark of Slavery, built a Temple to the Honour of Venus, upon Mount Calvary; one for Jupiter, in the Place where our Saviour's Tomb was; and one for Adonis, in Bethlehem: All which ſtood till the Time of Conſtantine. 'Tis ſaid, that then Mount Calvary was incloſed within the Walls of the City, as were the Mountains of Sion, Gion, Acra and Moria, before its Ruin; this laſt being that whereon Abraham went to ſacrifice his Son Iſaac. The Emperor Conſtantine the Great re-peopled Jeruſalem, and adorned it with divers ſacred Edifices. Under the Empire of Heraclitus, Jeruſalem was taken by Choſroez II. King of Perſia, in 614. Afterwards, in the VIIth. or VIIIth. Century, this City, and all the Holy Land, were almoſt ſubject to the Saracens, Mahomet's Succeſſors, down to the Time of Charlemaigne; to whom Aaron King of Perſia gave this Land, and Chriſt's Sepulchre, in 807. reſerving only to himſelf the bare Title of his Lieutenant. But after the Death of this great Monarch, who was the firſt King of the Weſt that was made Lord of the Holy Sepulchre, the Infidels continued their Tyrannies with the ſame Barbarity as before. The French Princes, who took the Croiſade at the Council of Clermont, An. 1096. undertook the Conqueſt of this Holy Iſland, about the Latter End of the XIth. Century: And having Godfrey of Bouillon for their Chief, ſubdued Jeruſalem on July 15. 1099. This gave Beginning to the Kingdom of Jeruſalem, whereof the ſame Godfrey was the firſt Monarch. Divers ſucceeded him, whom the Saracens diſquieted continually. Under the Reign of Guy of Luſignan, Sibylla's Husband, in whoſe Right he held that Kingdom, Saladine King of Syria and Egypt, after having obtained ſeveral Victories over the Chriſtians, at length took Jeruſalem from them on Octob. 2. 1187. and all the Holy Land; Tyre, Tripoly, Antioch, and ſome Forts excepted. So that, after 88 Years ſtanding, the Kingdom of Jeruſalem came to a Period; whoſe Title, after having paſſed through divers ambitious Hands, fell at laſt into the Poſſeſſion of the Grand Signior, who keeps it to this Day. Alfir, Sultan of Egypt, in 1288. took a great many Cities from the Chriſtians; ſo that they had nothing remaining there at laſt, ſaving St. John d' Acre, or Ptolemais; which the Sultan Melec-Araſe, Alfir's Succeſſor, beſieged in 1291. and after Forty Days cloſe Siege, carried it by Storm, May 29. and maſſacred all the Beſieged, ſuch only excepted, as made their Eſcape in Boats. Since the Loſs of Acre, no Chriſtian Forces had paſſage into Jeruſalem, but Pilgrims only. By this Misfortune, the holy Inheritance remained under the Power of the Califfs, or Princes of Egypt, until 1517. that Selim, the Turkiſh Emperor, made himſelf Maſter of it. Our Modern Accounts aſſure us, That Jeruſalem is thinly Peopled, That the greateſt part of the People conſiſts in the Soldiery and Officers of the Cadi, and that there is a great number of Dervis, Santons, and other religious Turks, who ſerve their Moſques there. The other Inhabitants, beſides the Turks, are Arabians, Jews, Greeks, Armenians, Maronites, Abyſſinians, Neſtorians, &c. an dof the Latins, ſome of the Order of St. Francis, who have there the fair Monaſtery of St. Saviour, and another Habitation in the holy Sepulchre. The Turks call it Elkodi, that is, the Holy City. It is ſtill the principal Place of Palæſtine, ſeated on a rocky Mountain, acceſſible on every ſide but the North, yet naturally ſtrong, by the ſteep Deſcents and Vallies that ſurround it. Other neighbouring Mountains make the City look, as if placed in the midſt of an Amphitheatre. On the E. is Mount Olivet, parted from the City by the Valley of Jehoſaphat, which ſtretching to the N. affords a Paſſage to the Brook Kidron. On the S. the Mountain of Scandal and Valley of Gebinnon on the W. It was formerly fenced with the Mountain and Valley of Gihon. Mount Sion lay within the City, which ſtood on the S. ſide of it, and on the E. of this ſtood the famous Temple, between which, and the City, was the King's Palace. Mount Calvary, which formerly lay without the City to the N. W. is now well nigh the heart of it. It ſtands 40 Miles from Joppe and the Mediterranean-Sea, 160 from Damaſcus to the South, 300 North Eaſt from Grand Caire, and 400 from Alexandria.

Church of JERUSALEM.

The Church of Jeruſalem, eſtabliſhed by the Apoſtles, was the Chriſtian Church. It was dignified by our Saviour's death, by the Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt, by the Apoſtles Preachings, and by the Martyrdom of St. James the Leſs, its firſt Biſhop. Notwithſtanding it was under that of Cæſarea, and the Seventh Canon of Nice made this Ordinance. [Mos antiquus obtinuit ut Æliæ, id eſt, Jeroſolymæ Epiſcopus honoraretur, ſalva Metropolis propria dignitate.] But in the fifth General Council, which is the ſecond of Conſtantinople, Aſſembled in 553; Gulielmus Tyrius tells us, That after the Condemnation of the Three Chapters, the Biſhops ſubjected to the Church of Jeruſalem, the Metropoles of Cæſarea in Palæſtine and Scythopolis, which before depended upon the Patriarch of Antioch; and thoſe of Berytus, and of Rubenſa in Syria, which were under the See of Alexandria. In the Council of Nice, as I have inſinuated before, they gave it the Title, 'tis true, and Rank of Patriarch, as to its Seat; but reſerved the Juriſdiction to the Metropolitan of Cæſarea; ſo that it was a Patriarch without Suffragans. The Biſhops of the fifth General Council judging, That that was contrary to Decency, and willing to honour the Firſt Church of the World, ſubmitted thereto all the Sees above-mentioned. The Emperor to make Cæſarea amends, for the Loſs it ſuſtained, gave it the Dignity of a Pro-Conſular City, which it enjoyed before. This Church has had Biſhops of great Reputation, and ſuffered divers Perſecutions by Idolaters, Hereticks, Saracens, and Turks.

Councils of JERUSALEM.

The Church of Jeruſalem, has not only the Advantage of being the moſt Ancient; but alſo of being the place, where the Apoſtles and the Faithful ſat in Conncil. Not to inſiſt upon ſeveral Councils held there in the Apoſtles time. Vid. Acts. Nareiſſus, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, ſat in Council there, where there were Aſſembled Forty other Biſhops, about 197. This was under the Papacy of Pope Victor I. to regulate the Celebration of the Feaſt of Eaſter. About 335, the Emperor Conſtantine the Great, ſent Notice to the Eaſtern Prelates aſſembled at Tyre, to Embark for Jeruſalem, to attend the Dedication of a Magnificent Temple, which he cauſed to be built near our Saviour's Tomb there. Euſebius tells us, That it was Celebrated with all the Circumſtances of Religious Solemnity, and that during the Feſtival kept on this Account, ſome of the Biſhops Aſſembled, Preached, and others Diſputed and Explained the Scriptures. Such as were not ſo well qualified for Preaching and Conference, performed the Myſtical Conſecrations. When the Orthodox Biſhops departed Jeruſalem, the Arian Party who were called Euſebians, being Maſters, met in a Synod, and received Arius into the Church Communion. Others think, That this Aſſembly was either the ſame, or the continuation of that of Tyre, which Athanaſius calls Exordium, Synodorum Arianarum. In 350, Maximus, of Jeruſalem aſſembled a Synod, where thoſe who Suffered at Tyre, at the Depoſition of St. Athanaſius, declared publickly their Recantation of all they did, or ſaid, againſt his Honour and Character, attributing the ſame to the Violence of the Arians and Euſebians: This, St. Athanaſius aſſures, in the Epiſtle, ad Solitariam vitam Agentes, to convince the Impoſtor Socrates, who ſaid the contrary. Juvenal, Biſhop of this City, Celebrated a Provincial Council, An. 454, there to Eſtabliſh the Catholick Faith, and to cauſe the Council of Chalcedon to be received. The Biſhops wrote a Synodical Letter to the Prieſts and Monks of Palæſtine, to let them know what was Ordered, and to Exhort them to ſtand firm to the Catholick Doctrine. We have a Synodical Letter from a Council held at Jeruſalem in 518, being the beginning of the Empire of Juſtin. An. 526. Peter, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, after having received Letters from Mennas Patriarch of Conſtantinople, intimating, That Severus of Antioch, Peter de Apamea, and Zoara. had been Condemned, together with the other Acephali, in a Council held in his City, Aſſembled one, where all thoſe Things were Received and Confirmed, which were concluded upon before in that at Conſtantinople. In 533, there was a Council held at Jeruſalem, where the fifth General Council was approved of; ſo that in this laſt Council, the Dignity of the Patriarchſhip of Jeruſalem was added to their Biſhoprick. Sophronius being choſen Patriarch, in 633, after Modeſtus, held a Council againſt the Monothelites, and ſent their Acts to Pope Honorius and Sergius of Conſtantinople. We find in the Collections of Councils, a Synod held at Jeruſalem, about 726, againſt the Hereticks called the Agonyclites, who always prayed ſtanding. Gulielmus Tyrius makes mention of that held after the taking of Jeruſalem by thoſe of the Croizade, under Godfrey of Bouillon, in 1099, when Daibert was made Patriarch. This Author ſpeaks of another, Celebrated for the ſame purpoſe, An. 1107; Of another, Called againſt the Emperor Henry IV. who Uſurped the Church-Revenue, in 1111; Of another, held againſt Arnold, obtruded upon the Patriarchal See, in 1115; And, of another that was called in 1136, or 1142, by Alberic, the Pope's Legate, for the Dedication of a Church. Where there was a Diſpute raiſed againſt Maximus, an Armenian Biſhop. The number of the Patriarchs of Jeruſalem from St. James the Leſs, (who was the firſt Biſhop, An. 33. to Amery II. in 1194, who was their laſt) are reckoned about 70. Thoſe of Note will be found in their proper places. Travels into the Holy Land.

JESSELMERE, or GISLEMERE, a City and Kingdom in the Indies, in the Peninſula on this ſide of Ganges in the Mogul's Country, among the Mountains. The City is great and well Peopled, 120 Miles from the River Indus to the E. and about the ſame diſtance North of Guzurat. There are other very conſiderable Places, as Radimporus, &c.

JESSENIUS (John) a very learned Bohemian, who being ſent Ambaſſador to Hungary, was taken in his Return and carried Priſoner to Vienna, whence being Exchanged ſoon after for a certain Italian, as he was coming out of the Priſon, he wrote upon the Wall theſe five Letters, I. M. M. M. M. which, when many had eſſayed to interpret, but in vain, Ferdinand of Auſtria hit the Matter, and Explained them thus, Imperator Matthias menſe Martii morietur. In oppoſition to which, he wrote on the ſame Wall, Jeſſeni, mentiris, mala morte morieris; which being related to Jeſſenius, he anſwered, That as it would be found his was no Lye; ſo Ferdinand would endeavour to make himſelf a true Prophet, which happened accordingly, for the Emperor died in March; and Jeſſenius being taken, after the Defeat of the Bohemians, in 1620, was, by Ferdinand's Order, put to death. Lætus comp. Hiſt. Univ.

JESSO, or YEZO, a Continent of great extent North of Japan, from which it is ſeparated by the Streight of Sungar. Some doubt whether it be an Iſle or Continent. If we believe thoſe of China, 'tis part of Tartary, which holds with the Kingdoms of Yupi and Niulhan; as appears by P. Martin's Chart of China and Japan. Moreover, it is Recorded in the Annals of China, That on the other ſide of the Land of Leaotung towards the N. E. there are Countries of Six Thouſand Stadiums, that is near 24 Degrees. But in late Voyages, Diſcovery has been made of a Streight, between Tartary and the Land of Jeſſo, called The Streight of Jeſſo, which doth not agree with the Opinion of the Chineſes. The Inhabitants of Jeſſo, wear Beaſts-skins for Cover; and, as it is ſaid, Stomachers of Braſs able to withſtand an Arrow. They are Warriors, and dreaded by the Japans. They obſerve no Religion, without it be to Worſhip the Sun and Stars; nor, have they any Policy or Government amongſt them. The Hollanders have obſerved, that this People were not ſo barbarous as they appeared, for that they came amongſt Strangers in their beſt Habits. Tho' this Land lies near Japan, and is only divided by the Streight of Sungar, yet the Emperor of Japan could never know the Places remote from the Shoar, tho' they often ſent Perſons well provided, to make Diſcoveries; for they could meet with nothing but rude Mountaineers, which could not anſwer their Expectations. It is thought, That this Land reacheth to North America, and joins to the famous Streights of Anian, ſo long ſought but never found. Martin's deſcription of China. M. Thevenot's relation of the Land of Eſo, Tom. III. Holland Embaſſy to Japan, Part I.

JESUA, a Rabbin, of the Tribe of Levi, a Spaniard, who lived in the XVth. Century. He compoſed a Work, very uſeful for all ſuch as would ſtudy the Talmud. This Work is Entituled, Halicoth Olam, the way to Eternity, therein he neatly explains the manner how the Talmud-Doctors ſpeak, how they make their Objections, and how they anſwer them; for there is nothing ſo intricate as that in the Book of the Talmud. There are many Editions in Hebrew of this Work. Conſtantine l'Empereur, Profeſſor of the Jewiſh Controverſies at Leyden, Printed a Latin Tranſlation thereof at the ſame Town, An. 1634, where he alſo added the Hebrew Text. Vide Buxtorf. in his Rabbinical Library.

JESUAL, an Indian Kingdom in the Great Mogul's Country. 'Tis between Patna, with the River Ganges on the Weſt, and that of Udeſſa on the Eaſt, near the Mountains. Raiaporus is its head City.

JESUATES, a Religious Order, Founded by St. John Columbinus of Sienna, in the XVth Century. They were alſo called Jeronymites from St. Jerom. Pope Urban V. approved this Inſtitution in 1367; and other Popes granted it fine Privileges. They gave thoſe of the Order, beſides the Names I denoted, that of the Apoſtolick Clerks. Clement IX. aboliſhed this Order in 1668. The Jeſuates made three Religious Vows, and wore a Cap of an Aſhy colour, without a Cowl or Hood. They wrought for their Livelihood, and meddled with neither Civil nor Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. Moſes Jeſuat. in vita S. Johan. Columb. & Hiſt. Relig. Spon. A. C. 1367. n. 6. &c.

JESUITES, or Monks of the Society of Jeſus, which the Council of Trent calls Regular Clerks. They own Ignatius Loyola for their Founder, who eſtabliſhed the Society, An. 1534. Pope Paul III. confirmed it Viva voce, in 1539; and the Year following, approved it by an Authentick Bull, dated Sept. 27. But becauſe their Number was not to exceed ſixty, that Clog was taken off, March 14. 1543, by another Bull. The Popes Julius III. Pius V. Gregory XIII. and divers others, have confirmed and granted ſuch Privileges to that Society, as renders them exorbitantly powerful and numerous. Jeſuites, beſides the three ordinary Religious Vows, make a fourth to the Pope, for the Miſſions. Their General is perpetual, and reſides always at Rome. He hath four Aſſiſtants General of Italy, France, Spain and Germany, who yet have no deciſive Voice, but only Conſultative. Ignatius their Founder was their firſt General; James Lainez, a Spaniard, ſucceeded him in the place. He was a great Divine, and aſſiſted in that Quality in the Council of Trent. He was 53 years old when he died, Feb. 19. 1565. Francis Borgia, formerly Duke of Gandia, was their third General. Everard Mercurien de Liege came next, and Claudius Aquaviva, of the Houſe of the Duke of Atria of Naples, ſucceeded him. Mutio Viteleſchi, of a Noble Family of Rome, was the fourth General. He died in 1645. Vincent Caraſſa of Naples, and Francis Picolomini, of an ancient Noble Family in Siena, governed the Company ſucceſſively; and afterwards Alexander Godfrey, Goſwin Nickel a German, and John Paul Oliva. The Members of this Company are conſidered four ways; either as Profeſſors of the four Vows, or, as Spiritual Coadjutors, who are Prieſts, and Temporal Coadjutors, being Lay-Brothers; or as Regents and Students whom they call Maſters; or laſtly, as Novices. The Fathers of this Society have had two great Diſputes with other Popiſh Doctors; Firſt, Concerning Predeſtination and Grace, with the Thomiſts and Janſeniſts, who accuſe them of being Pelagians, or at beſt Semipelagians, whilſt they call them Manichees, and Aſſertors of Predeſtination. Their Reaſons Pro and Con are inſerted in Tome XIV. of the Univerſal Bibliotheque. The ſecond is about Morals, which, the Janſeniſts ſay, they corrupt. Many Books have been written by both Parties on this Subject, the whole may be ſeen in the Provincial Epiſtles; and the Jeſuites Intrigues have ſucceeded ſo far, that they now are the moſt powerful Religious Society of the Roman Church. If they had obſerved their Rules publiſhed by them at Lions, in 1607, they had not been ſo odious to the World, as now they are. Their Privileges are contained in the Pope's Bull, and Apoſtolical Letters printed at Rome, in 1568. Their preſent Power may be conjectured from the Account given of them by Ribadeneira in 1608, viz. That in 75 Years time, they had 293 Colleges, beſides 123 Houſes, and their number was then reckoned 10581; and the yearly Revenues raiſed from their Colleges two Millions of Crowns. Thuan. lib. 131. ſays, That they defended publickly at Rome, and elſewhere, That it was no Article of Faith to believe, that Pope Clement VIII. was Peter's lawful Succeſſor, and People might deliver their Confeſſions by Meſſengers and Letters, which had well nigh ruin'd their Society, had not Philip King of Spain interceded. In Henry IVth's Time they were expell'd France, ſome of their Order being found guilty of encouraging an Attempt upon that Prince's Life: For this reaſon, at their expulſion, there was an Ignominious Monument erected againſt them at Paris. The Seditious Principles of ſome of their Writers, has been the occaſion of their being deeply cenſur'd and diſcountenanc'd by ſeveral other Governments in Chriſtendom. Thoſe who would ſee more of them, may conſult the Morals of the Jeſuites, by a Dr. of the Sorbon. The Myſtery of Jeſuitiſm, by Jairigius, &c.

JESUS, Son of Syrach of Jeruſalem, about An. Mun. 3798. He gathered Solomon's Sentences together, and compoſed in Hebrew the Book of Eccleſiaſticus, called by the Greeks Πανάρετος, that is to ſay, repleniſhed with all Vertue. A Grandſon of this Author's, of the ſame Name with himſelf, Tranſlated it ſince. I will only add here, That Authors do not agree upon the Year when this laſt died; though they unanimouſly allow it to be thirty Years after Ptolemæus Euergetes, or Phyſcon King of Egypt.

JESUS CHRIST. The Authors who Treat of the Birth of the Son of God, are of different Opinions, as to the Year of the World, of Auguſtus, of the Olympiads, and of the Foundation of Rome; and who were Conſuls when it happened. Cardinal Baronius, Torniel, Spondanus, Gordon, Scaliger, Calviſius, Voſſius, Langius, with many others, believe him born under the Conſulſhip of Cn. Cornelius Lentulus, and of M. Valerius Meſſalinus, which, ſome ſay, was An. Rom. 751; and others fix it in 752. Onuphrius, Pererius, Sigonius, Cuſpinian, Salian, &c. chuſe rather to place his Birth at the latter end of the Month of December, 752, under the 13th Conſulſhip of Auguſtus with M. Plautius. As to the Year of the World, Sixtus of Siena puts it in 3962, Torniel in 4051, Salian in 4052, Genebrard in 4089. Pererius, whom Baronius follows, in 4022, Cornelius à Lapide in 3951, Petavius in 3985, Capellus in 3999, Calviſius in 3947. The Greeks differ from the Latins 1500 Years. The moſt common Opinion, places this Birth under the Conſulſhip of Cornelius Lentulus, and C. Calpurnius Piſo, An. Rom. 753, An. Mun. 4052, the 4th of the CXCIVth Olympiad, and the 42d of Auguſtus. I add, That this Year is the firſt of the Cycle from 532, Eſtabliſhed by Dionyſius Exiguus, as I hinted before in its proper place; altho', in truth, the Church did not begin the Year of Our Lord, which we call The Chriſtian Account, till the following Year, which is the 46th ſince the Kalendar made by the Command of Julius Cæſar, and the 4714th of the great Period, vulgarly called The Julian. As to what concerns the Year, the Month, and the Day of his death, ſome, without reaſon, would have it be the 25th of March, for the Learned have demonſtrated, that in a whole Paſchal Cycle of 532 Years, there was but the 12th, the 259th, and the 449th, on which the 25th of March could fall upon Friday. They who fixed it upon April 3. make good their Opinion by the Arguments of Toſtatus, and divers others; which is alſo further proved by the wonderful Eclipſe of the Sun, mention'd by St. Luke, deſcribed by St. Denys, the Areopagite, an Eye-witneſs, with his Companion Apollophanes, and alledged by Origen, Tertullian, Julius Africanus, Euſebius, St. Lucian the Martyr, St. Auguſtin, Suidas, &c. Talents, in his Tables, ſays, That Chriſt was Born, according to Archbiſhop Uſher, Petav. &c. in 4709, of the Julian Period, and according to the common Opinion, on December 25. Scaliger reckons two Years after, that he was Born in Autumn. The Vulgar Account begins in January 1, the 4714th of the Julian Period. The Account from Chriſt's Birth was firſt begun by Dionyſius Exiguus, An. Ch. 527. but was not uſed in the Weſt until 870. but never in the Eaſt; where they ſtill count from the Creation, and place the Birth of Chriſt, according to the Septuagint, An. Mun. 5508. This is enough for thoſe who would know the Subſtance of Things. M. Dodwell in his Diſſertations upon Irenæus, endeavours to prove, That our Saviour was in his 38th Year when Crucified, and that he was born, An. Rom. 748. This Opinion being new, its Proofs are to be ſeen in the Original.

JESUS CHRIST, a Military Order of Portugal. Vide CHRIST.

JESUS CHRIST, the Name of an Order of Knighthood, Inſtituted at Avignon by Pope John XXII. in 1320. JETHRO, or RAGUEL, Moſes his Father-in-Law. He was a Prieſt in the Deſart of Madian; and Artapanus in Euſebius, calls him K. of Arabia, becauſe in this Country, the Royal Dignity was annex'd to the Prieſthood. Moſes, who quitted Egypt, married in Madian, An. Mun. 2503, Zippora, Jethro's Daughter, who lived with him forty Years. Afterwards, this ſame Jethro, having heard of the Wonders which God did for his Son-in-Law, in Delivering the Children of Iſrael from their Bondage under Pharoah, viſited him in the Deſart, about 2545, and adviſed to divide the People into ſeveral Subdiviſions, and appoint Colonels, Captains, and other under-Officers, to decide Civil Controverſies, and Command in the Field. Exod. 4.18. *Euſeb. JEVER, Lat. Jeveria, Dominium Jeverenſe, a ſmall Town and Territory in Weſtphalia, between Eaſt-Friezeland to the Weſt, and the Bay called The Die Jade to the Weſt and North, on the South-ſide of the Weſer, and it is a part of Eaſt-Friezeland, tho' in after-times it was annexed to the Earldom of Oldenburg. Upon the failing of that Line, it was poſſeſt by the Prince of Anhalt Zerbſt, as being a Female-fee. In 1682, by the procurement of the French King, it was again annexed to the Earldom of Oldenburg, and is now poſſeſs'd by the K. of Denmark. It lies from Embden ſeven German Miles to the N. E. and the ſame diſtance from Carolſtadt to the W.

JEZABEL, was Daughter of the King of the Sidonians, whom Sulpicius Severus calls Baſa, and others Ethbaal. She was married, An. Mun. 3117, to Achab K. of Iſrael, who was himſelf very Impious, but his natural Wickedneſs increaſed yet more by his alliance with this Woman, who was wholly devoted to the Worſhip of Idols; for ſhe perſwaded him to give Divine Honour excepted. So that, after 88 Years ſtanding, the Kingdom of Jeruſalem came to a Period; whoſe Title, after having paſſed through divers ambitious Hands, fell at laſt into the Poſſeſſion of the Grand Signior, who keeps it to this Day. Alfir, Sultan of Egypt, in 1288. took a great many Cities from the Chriſtians; ſo that they had nothing remaining there at laſt, ſaving St. John d' Acre, or Ptolemais; which the Sultan Melec-Araſe, Alfir's Succeſſor, beſieged in 1291. and after Forty Days cloſe Siege, carried it by Storm, May 29. and maſſacred all the Beſieged, ſuch only excepted, as made their Eſcape in Boats. Since the Loſs of Acre, no Chriſtian Forces had paſſage into Jeruſalem, but Pilgrims only. By this Misfortune, the holy Inheritance remained under the Power of the Califfs, or Princes of Egypt, until 1517. that Selim, the Turkiſh Emperor, made himſelf Maſter of it. Our Modern Accounts aſſure us, That Jeruſalem is thinly Peopled, That the greateſt part of the People conſiſts in the Soldiery and Officers of the Cadi, and that there is a great number of Dervis, Santons, and other religious Turks, who ſerve their Moſques there. The other Inhabitants, beſides the Turks, are Arabians, Jews, Greeks, Armenians, Maronites, Abyſſinians, Neſtorians, &c. an dof the Latins, ſome of the Order of St. Francis, who have there the fair Monaſtery of St. Saviour, and another Habitation in the holy Sepulchre. The Turks call it Elkodi, that is, the Holy City. It is ſtill the principal Place of Palæſtine, ſeated on a rocky Mountain, acceſſible on every ſide but the North, yet naturally ſtrong, by the ſteep Deſcents and Vallies that ſurround it. Other neighbouring Mountains make the City look, as if placed in the midſt of an Amphitheatre. On the E. is Mount Olivet, parted from the City by the Valley of Jehoſaphat, which ſtretching to the N. affords a Paſſage to the Brook Kidron. On the S. the Mountain of Scandal and Valley of Gehinnon on the W. It was formerly fenced with the Mountain and Valley of Gihon. Mount Sion lay within the City, which ſtood on the S. ſide of it, and on the E. of this ſtood the famous Temple, between which, and the City, was the King's Palace. Mount Calvary, which formerly lay without the City to the N. W. is now well nigh the heart of it. It ſtands 40 Miles from Joppe and the Mediterranean-Sea, 160 from Damaſcus to the South, 300 North Eaſt from Grand Caire, and 400 from Alexandria.

Church of JERUSALEM.

The Church of Jeruſalem, eſtabliſhed by the Apoſtles, was the Chriſtian Church. It was dignified by our Saviour's death, by the Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt, by the Apoſtles Preachings, and by the Martyrdom of St. James the Leſs, its firſt Biſhop. Notwithſtanding it was under that of Cæſarea, and the Seventh Canon of Nice made this Ordinance. [Mos antiquus obtinuit, ut Æliæ, id eſt, Jeroſolymæ Epiſcopus honoraretur, ſalva Metropolis propria dignitate.] But in the fifth General Council, which is the ſecond of Conſtantinople, Aſſembled in 553; Gulielmus Tyrius tells us, That after the Condemnation of the Three Chapters, the Biſhops ſubjected to the Church of Jeruſalem, the Metropoles of Cæſarea in Palæſtine and Scythopolis, which before depended upon the Patriarch of Antioch; and thoſe of Berytus, and of Rubenſa in Syria, which were under the See of Alexandria. In the Council of Nice, as I have inſinuated before, they gave it the Title, 'tis true, and Rank of Patriarch, as to its Seat; but reſerved the Juriſdiction to the Metropolitan of Cæſarea; ſo that it was a Patriarch without Suffragans. The Biſhops of the fifth General Council judging, That that was contrary to Decency, and willing to honour the Firſt Church of the World, ſubmitted thereto all the Sees above-mentioned. The Emperor to make Cæſarea amends, for the Loſs it ſuſtained, gave it the Dignity of a Pro-Conſular City, which it enjoyed before. This Church has had Biſhops of great Reputation, and ſuffered divers Perſecutions by Idolaters, Hereticks, Saracens, and Turks.

Councils of JERUSALEM.

The Church of Jeruſalem, has not only the Advantage of being the moſt Ancient; but alſo of being the place, where the Apoſtles and the Faithful ſat in Conncil. Not to inſiſt upon ſeveral Councils held there in the Apoſtles time. Vid. Acts. Nareiſſus, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, ſat in Council there, where there were Aſſembled Forty other Biſhops, about 197. This was under the Papacy of Pope Victor I. to regulate the Celebration of the Feaſt of Eaſter. About 335, the Emperor Conſtantine the Great, ſent Notice to the Eaſtern Prelates aſſembled at Tyre, to Embark for Jeruſalem, to attend the Dedication of a Magnificent Temple, which he cauſed to be built near our Saviour's Tomb there. Euſebius tells us, That it was Celebrated with all the Circumſtances of Religious Solemnity, and that during the Feſtival kept on this Account, ſome of the Biſhops Aſſembled, Preached, and others Diſputed and Explained the Scriptures. Such as were not ſo well qualified for Preaching and Conference, performed the Myſtical Conſecrations. When the Orthodox Biſhops departed Jeruſalem, the Arian Party who were called Euſebians, being Maſters, met in a Synod, and received Arius into the Church Communion. Others think, That this Aſſembly was either the ſame, or the continuation of that of Tyre, which Athanaſius calls Exordium, Synodorum Arianarum. In 350, Maximus, of Jeruſalem aſſembled a Synod, where thoſe who Suffered at Tyre, at the Depoſition of St. Athanaſius, declared publickly their Recantation of all they did, or ſaid, againſt his Honour and Character, attributing the ſame to the Violence of the Arians and Euſebians: This, St. Athanaſius aſſures, in the Epiſtle, ad Solitariam vitam Agentes, to convince the Impoſtor Socrates, who ſaid the contrary. Juvenal, Biſhop of this City, Celebrated a Provincial Council, An. 454, there to Eſtabliſh the Catholick Faith, and to cauſe the Council of Chalcedon to be received. The Biſhops wrote a Synodical Letter to the Prieſts and Monks of Palæſtine, to let them know what was Ordered, and to Exhort them to ſtand firm to the Catholick Doctrine. We have a Synodical Letter from a Council held at Jeruſalem in 518, being the beginning of the Empire of Juſtin. An. 526. Peter, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, after having received Letters from Mennas Patriarch of Conſtantinople, intimating, That Severus of Antioch, Peter de Apamea, and Zoara. had been Condemned, together with the other Acephali, in a Council held in his City, Aſſembled one, where all thoſe Things were Received and Confirmed, which were concluded upon before in that at Conſtantinople. In 533, there was a Council held at Jeruſalem, where the fifth General Council was approved of; ſo that in this laſt Council, the Dignity of the Patriarchſhip of Jeruſalem was added to their Biſhoprick. Sophronius being choſen Patriarch, in 633, after Modeſtus, held a Council againſt the Monothelites, and ſent their Acts to Pope Honorius and Sergius of Conſtantinople. We find in the Collections of Councils, a Synod held at Jeruſalem, about 726, againſt the Hereticks called the Agonyclites, who always prayed ſtanding. Gulielmus Tyrius makes mention of that held after the taking of Jeruſalem by thoſe of the Croizade, under Godfrey of Bouillon, in 1099, when Daibert was made Patriarch. This Author ſpeaks of another, Celebrated for the ſame purpoſe, An. 1107; Of another, Called againſt the Emperor Henry IV. who Uſurped the Church-Revenue, in 1111; Of another, held againſt Arnold, obtruded upon the Patriarchal See, in 1115; And, of another that was called in 1136, or 1142, by Alberic, the Pope's Legate, for the Dedication of a Church. Where there was a Diſpute raiſed againſt Maximus, an Armenian Biſhop. The number of the Patriarchs of Jeruſalem from St. James the Leſs, (who was the firſt Biſhop, An. 33. to Amery II. in 1194, who was their laſt) are reckoned about 70. Thoſe of Note will be found in their proper places. Travels into the Holy Land.

JESSELMERE, or GISLEMERE, a City and Kingdom in the Indies, in the Peninſula on this ſide of Ganges in the Mogul's Country, among the Mountains. The City is great and well Peopled, 120 Miles from the River Indus to the E. and about the ſame diſtance North of Guzurat. There are other very conſiderable Places, as Radimporus, &c.

JESSENIUS (John) a very learned Bohemian, who being ſent Ambaſſador to Hungary, was taken in his Return and carried Priſoner to Vienna, whence being Exchanged ſoon after for a certain Italian, as he was coming out of the Priſon, he wrote upon the Wall theſe five Letters, I. M. M. M. M. which, when many had eſſayed to interpret, but in vain, Ferdinand of Auſtria hit the Matter, and Explained them thus, Imperator Matthias menſe Martii morietur. In oppoſition to which, he wrote on the ſame Wall, Jeſſeni, mentiris, mala morte morieris; which being related to Jeſſenius, he anſwered, That as it would be found his was no Lye; ſo Ferdinand would endeavour to make himſelf a true Prophet, which happened accordingly, for the Emperor died in March; and Jeſſenius being taken, after the Defeat of the Bohemians, in 1620, was, by Ferdinand's Order, put to death. *Lætus comp. JESSO, or YEZO, a Continent of great extent North of Japan, from which it is ſeparated by the Streight of Sungar. Some doubt whether it be an Iſle or Continent. If we believe thoſe of China, 'tis part of Tartary, which holds with the Kingdoms of Yupi and Niulhan; as appears by P. Martin's Chart of China and Japan. Moreover, it is Recorded in the Annals of China, That on the other ſide of the Land of Leaotung towards the N. E. there are Countries of Six Thouſand Stadiums, that is near 24 Degrees. But in late Voyages, Diſcovery has been made of a Streight, between Tartary and the Land of Jeſſo, called The Streight of Jeſſo, which doth not agree with the Opinion of the Chineſes. The Inhabitants of Jeſſo, wear Beaſts-skins for Cover; and, as it is ſaid, Stomachers of Braſs able to withſtand an Arrow. They are Warriors, and dreaded by the Japans. They obſerve no Religion, without it be to Worſhip the Sun and Stars; nor, have they any Policy or Government amongſt them. The Hollanders have obſerved, that this People were not ſo barbarous as they appeared, for that they came amongſt Strangers in their beſt Habits. Tho' this Land lies near Japan, and is only divided by the Streight of Sungar, yet the Emperor of Japan could never know the Places remote from the Shoar, tho' they often ſent Perſons well provided, to make Diſcoveries; for they could meet with nothing but rude Mountaineers, which could not anſwer their Expectations. It is thought, That this Land reacheth to North America, and joins to the famous Streights of Anian, ſo long ſought but never found. *Martin's deſcription of China. M. JESUA, a Rabbin, of the Tribe of Levi, a Spaniard, who lived in the XVth. Century. He compoſed a Work, very uſeful for all ſuch as would ſtudy the Talmud. This Work is Entituled, Halicoth Olam, the way to Eternity, therein he neatly explains the manner how the Talmud-Doctors ſpeak, how they make their Objections, and how they anſwer them; for there is nothing ſo intricate as that in the Book of the Talmud. There are many Editions in Hebrew of this Work. Conſtantine l'Empereur, Profeſſor of the Jewiſh Controverſies at Leyden, Printed a Latin Tranſlation thereof at the ſame Town, An. 1634, where he alſo added the Hebrew Text. Vide Buxtorf. in his Rabbinical Library.

JESUAL, an Indian Kingdom in the Great Mogul's Country. 'Tis between Patna, with the River Ganges on the Weſt, and that of Vdeſſa on the Eaſt, near the Mountains. Raiaporus is its head City.

JESUATES, a Religious Order, Founded by St. John Columbinus of Sienna, in the XVth Century. They were alſo called Jeronymites from St. Jerom. Pope Vrban V. approved this Inſtitution in 1367; and other Popes granted it fine Privileges. They gave thoſe of the Order, beſides the Names I denoted, that of the Apoſtolick Clerks. Clement IX. aboliſhed this Order in 1668. The Jeſuates made three Religious Vows, and wore a Cap of an Aſhy colour, without a Cowl or Hood. They wrought for their Livelihood, and meddled with neither Civil nor Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. Moſes Jeſuat. in vita S. Johan. Columb. & Hiſt. Relig. Spon. A. C. 1367. n. 6. &c.

JESUITES, or Monks of the Society of Jeſus, which the Council of Trent calls Regular Clerks. They own Ignatius Loyola for their Founder, who eſtabliſhed the Society, An. 1534. Pope Paul III. confirmed it Viva voce, in 1539; and the Year following, approved it by an Authentick Bull, dated Sept. 27. But becauſe their Number was not to exceed ſixty, that Clog was taken off, March 14. 1543, by another Bull. The Popes Julius III. Pius V. Gregory XIII. and divers others, have confirmed and granted ſuch Privileges to that Society, as renders them exorbitantly powerful and numerous. Jeſuites, beſides the three ordinary Religious Vows, make a fourth to the Pope, for the Miſſions. Their General is perpetual, and reſides always at Rome. He hath four Aſſiſtants General of Italy, France, Spain and Germany, who yet have no deciſive Voice, but only Conſultative. Ignatius their Founder was their firſt General; James Lainez, a Spaniard, ſucceeded him in the place. He was a great Divine, and aſſiſted in that Quality in the Council of Trent. He was 53 years old when he died, Feb. 19. 1565. Francis Borgia, formerly Duke of Gandia, was their third General. Everard Mercurien de Liege came next, and Claudius Aquaviva, of the Houſe of the Duke of Atria of Naples, ſucceeded him. Mutio Viteleſchi, of a Noble Family of Rome, was the fourth General. He died in 1645. Vincent Caraffa of Naples, and Francis Picolomini, of an ancient Noble Family in Siena, governed the Company ſucceſſively; and afterwards Alexander Godfrey, Goſwin Nickel a German, and John Paul Oliva. The Members of this Company are conſidered four ways; either as Profeſſors of the four Vows, or, as Spiritual Coadjutors, who are Prieſts, and Temporal Coadjutors, being Lay-Brothers; or as Regents and Students whom they call Maſters; or laſtly, as Novices. The Fathers of this Society have had two great Diſputes with other Popiſh Doctors; Firſt, Concerning Predeſtination and Grace, with the Thomiſts and Janſeniſts, who accuſe them of being Pelagians, or at beſt Semipelagians, whilſt they call them Manichees, and Aſſertors of Predeſtination. Their Reaſons Pro and Con are inſerted in Tome XIV. of the Vniverſal Bibliotheque. The ſecond is about Morals, which, the Janſeniſts ſay, they corrupt. Many Books have been written by both Parties on this Subject, the whole may be ſeen in the Provincial Epiſtles; and the Jeſuites Intrigues have ſucceeded ſo far, that they now are the moſt powerful Religious Society of the Roman Church. If they had obſerved their Rules publiſhed by them at Lions, in 1607, they had not been ſo odious to the World, as now they are. Their Privileges are contained in the Pope's Bull, and Apoſtolical Letters printed at Rome, in 1568. Their preſent Power may be conjectured from the Account given of them by Ribadeneira in 1608, viz. That in 75 Years time, they had 293 Colleges, beſides 123 Houſes, and their number was then reckoned 10581; and the yearly Revenues raiſed from their Colleges two Millions of Crowns. Thuan. lib. 131. ſays, That they defended publickly at Rome, and elſewhere, That it was no Article of Faith to believe, that Pope Clement VIII. was Peter's lawful Succeſſor, and People might deliver their Confeſſions by Meſſengers and Letters, which had well nigh ruin'd their Society, had not Philip King of Spain interceded. In Henry IVth's Time they were expell'd France, ſome of their Order being found guilty of encouraging an Attempt upon that Prince's Life: For this reaſon, at their expulſion, there was an Ignominious Monument erected againſt them at Paris. The Seditious Principles of ſome of their Writers, has been the occaſion of their being deeply cenſur'd and diſcountenanc'd by ſeveral other Governments in Chriſtendom. JESUS, Son of Syrach of Jeruſalem, about An. Mun. 3798. He gathered Solomon's Sentences together, and compoſed in Hebrew the Book of Eccleſiaſticus, called by the Greeks Πανάρετος, that is to ſay, repleniſhed with all Vertue. A Grandſon of this Author's, of the ſame Name with himſelf, Tranſlated it ſince. I will only add here, That Authors do not agree upon the Year when this laſt died; though they unanimouſly allow it to be thirty Years after Ptolemæus Euergetes, or Phyſcon King of Egypt.

JESUS CHRIST. The Authors who Treat of the Birth of the Son of God, are of different Opinions, as to the Year of the World, of Auguſtus, of the Olympiads, and of the Foundation of Rome; and who wete Conſuls when it happened. Cardinal Baronius, Torniel, Spondanus, Gordon, Scaliger, Calviſius, Voſſius, Langius, with many others, believe him born under the Conſulſhip of Cn. Cornelius Lentulus, and of M. Valerius Meſſalinus, which, ſome ſay, was An. Rom. 751; and others fix it in 752. Onuphrius, Pererius, Sigonius, Cuſpinian, Salian, &c. chuſe rather to place his Birth at the latter end of the Month of December, 752, under the 13th Conſulſhip of Auguſtus with M. Plautius. As to the Year of the World, Sixtus of Siena puts it in 3962, Torniel in 4051, Salian in 4052, Genebrard in 4089. Pererius, whom Baronius follows, in 4022, Cornelius à Lapide in 3951, Petavius in 3985, Capellus in 3999, Calviſius in 3947. The Greeks differ from the Latins 1500 Years. The moſt common Opinion, places this Birth under the Conſulſhip of Cornelius Lentulus, and C. Calpurnius Piſo, An. Rom. 753, An. Mun. 4052, the 4th of the CXCIVth Olympiad, and the 42d of Auguſtus. I add, That this Year is the firſt of the Cycle from 532, Eſtabliſhed by Dionyſius Exiguus, as I hinted before in its proper place; altho', in truth, the Church did not begin the Year of Our Lord, which we call The Chriſtian Account, till the following Year, which is the 46th ſince the Kalendar made by the Command of Julius Cæſar, and the 4714th of the great Period, vulgarly called The Julian. As to what concerns the Year, the Month, and the Day of his death, ſome, without reaſon, would have it be the 25th of March, for the Learned have demonſtrated, that in a whole Paſchal Cycle of 532 Years, there was but the 12th, the 259th, and the 449th, on which the 25th of March could fall upon Friday. They who fixed it upon April 3. make good their Opinion by the Arguments of Toſtatus, and divers others; which is alſo further proved by the wonderful Eclipſe of the Sun, mention'd by St. Luke, deſcribed by St. Denys, the Areopagite, an Eye-witneſs, with his Companion Apollophanes, and alledged by Origen, Tertullian, Julius Africanus, Euſebius, St. Lucian the Martyr, St. Auguſtin, Suidas, &c. Talents, in his Tables, ſays, That Chriſt was Born, according to Archbiſhop Vſher, Petav. &c. in 4709, of the Julian Period, and according to the common Opinion, on December 25. Scaliger reckons two Years after, that he was Born in Autumn. The Vulgar Account begins in January 1, the 4714th of the Julian Period. The Account from Chriſt's Birth was firſt begun by Dionyſius Exiguus, An. Ch. 527. but was not uſed in the Weſt until 870. but never in the Eaſt; where they ſtill count from the Creation, and place the Birth of Chriſt, according to the Septuagint, An. Mun. 5508. This is enough for thoſe who would know the Subſtance of Things. M. Dodwell in his Diſſertations upon Irenæus, endeavours to prove, That out Saviour was in his 38th Year when Crucified, and that he was born, An. Rom. 748. This Opinion being new, its Proofs are to be ſeen in the Original.

JESUS CHRIST, a Military Order of Portugal. Vide CHRIST.

JESUS CHRIST, the Name of an Order of Knighthood, Inſtituted at Avignon by Pope John XXII. in 1320. JETHRO, or RAGUEL, Moſes his Father-in-Law. He was a Prieſt in the Deſart of Madian; and Artapanus in Euſebius, calls him K. of Arabia, becauſe in this Country, the Royal Dignity was annex'd to the Prieſthood. Moſes, who quitted Egypt, married in Madian, An. Mun. 2503, Zippora, Jethro's Daughter, who lived with him forty Years. Afterwards, this ſame Jethro, having heard of the Wonders which God did for his Son-in-Law, in Delivering the Children of Iſrael from their Bondage under Pharoah, viſited him in the Deſart, about 2545, and adviſed to divide the People into ſeveral Subdiviſions, and appoint Colonels, Captains, and other under-Officers, to decide Civil Controverſies, and Command in the Field. Exod. 4. 18. *Euſeb. JEVER, Lat. Jeveria, Dominium Jeverenſe, a ſmall Town and Territory in Weſtphalia, between Eaſt-Friezeland to the Weſt, and the Bay called The Die Jade to the Weſt and North, on the South-ſide of the Weſer, and it is a part of Eaſt-Friezeland, tho' in after-times it was annexed to the Earldom of Oldenburg. Upon the failing of that Line, it was poſſeſt by the Prince of Anhalt Zerbſt, as being a Female-fee. In 1682, by the procurement of the French King, it was again annexed to the Earldom of Oldenburg, and is now poſſeſs'd by the K. of Denmark. It lies from Embden ſeven German Miles to the N. E. and the ſame diſtance from Carolſtadt to the W.

JEZABEL, was Daughter of the King of the Sidonians, whom Sulpicius Severus calls Baſa, and others Ethbaal. She was married, An. Mun. 3117, to Achab K. of Iſrael, who was himſelf very Impious, but his natural Wickedneſs increaſed yet more by his alliance with this Woman, who was wholly devoted to the Worſhip of Idols; for ſhe perſwaded him to give Divine Honour to the Idol Baal, for whom an Altar was erected, and Groves dedicated. Achab, to pleaſe his Wife, was tranſported to ſuch an exceſs of falſe Zeal, that he put the Lord's Prophets to death. Elijah withdrew from the Perſecution, and after a Drought of three Years, he obtained Rain. But Jezabel could not endure the death of 450 of Baal's Prophets, which Elijah cauſed to be deſtroyed, as a puniſhment of their Impiety, having by his Prayers procur'd Fire from Heaven, which conſumed the Sacrifice, and the Wood which he put upon the Altar. She let him underſtand, That before one day were expired, ſhe would treat him as he did her Prophets, which made him fly; in the mean time, the ſins of Achab and Jezabel grew greater every day. But that which made them intolerable in the ſight of God, was, the Murder of innocent Naboth, whom the Queen put to death, that Achab might have his Vineyard, in 3137. Elijah foretold the puniſhment which God would inflict for this Crime; which Prediction was verify'd in Achab's being ſlain in 3138, and when Jehu came to be King of Iſrael, they took Jezabel, in 3151, and threw her out through a Window, where her Corps was eaten up by Dogs, 1 Kings 16. 18, 19, 21, 4, 9. *Torniel. JEZDEGIRD, King of Perſia, youngeſt Son of Choſroez. He was ſlain by Otman, Prince of the Sarazens, in 632. This his Name was given to an Epocha, very famous among the Arabian Aſtrologers, called the Æra of Jezdegird, and begins at the Day of his Death, being June 16. 632. The Perſians made uſe of this Computation, down to 1079; that Albu Arſalan, a Saracen, King of Coraſan, Meſopotamia aud Perſia, got together eight very knowing Aſtronomers, and reformed the Year of Jezdegird, and fix'd another Epocha, which commenced the 14th Day of this Year. This Epocha was called Tzelafca, that is to ſay, the Auguſt Computation, from the Word Tzelaf, which ſignifies Majeſty. The Perſians make uſe of the Arabian Calendar at this day. Olearius's Voyage to Perſia. Scaliger de Emend. temp.

JEZID I. the 5th Califf, or Succeſſor to Mahomet. He Ruled after the Death of his Father Moavia, An. 682, but did not imitate his Courage and Undertakings. All his Delight was in making Love Verſes. In the ſecond Year of his Reign, the Arabians of Cufa choſe Huſſein, the Son of Ali, for Califf. This made Jezid raiſe a great Army, and gave the Command of it to his Brother Abdala, who got Huſſein to be killed treacherouſly, as he was ready to give Battle upon the Plain of Carabala about Cupa. Jezid then perſecuted all the Race of Ali, and deſtroyed a great part of the Nobility of Arabia, which made him hated of all the People. At this time, Muctar, who was of the Family of Ali, raiſed all Perſia, cauſing himſelf to be Stiled Califf, and publiſhed, That Jezid was fitter to be a Poet than a King. The Reign of this weak Prince held but three Years; and that of his Son Maala, who ſucceeded him, ended ſix Months after. Marmol. of Africa, lib. 2.

JEZID II. of the Name, 11th Califf, or Succeſſor of Mahomet. He Reigned after the Death of Omar II. being his Eldeſt Brother, he was Elected after the Death of Solyman Huſſein; but, apprehending the Inſurrection of the Army, which wiſhed for Omar, he reſign'd his Crown to his younger Brother, whom he ſucceeded afterwards. He began to Reign, An. 723, and was at firſt oblig'd to ſend an Army againſt another Jezid, who called himſelf Califf of Perſia, and came to beſiege Damaſcus. Marvan, Jezid II's General, march'd againſt this Uſurper, and having killed him, reduc'd Perſia under the Obedience of their lawful Prince. In 724, he Commanded all the Images to be taken away out of the Chriſtian Churches. He died the beginning of 727, before this Order was executed. Marmol.

JEZID, or GELID, 13th Califf, or Succeſſor of Mahomet, Reign'd after his Father Gualid, who died in 746, but his Reign held only a Year and half. He was ſurnamed Gelid, becauſe he was fair. This Califf poſſeſs'd himſelf of Cyprus, which he ſubdued, and carried away all its Inhabitants to Syria. He cauſed the Patriarch of Damaſcus's Tongue to be cut out, for preaching againſt the Manichees and Arabians, and baniſhed him to Arabia-Fœlix, where the Infidels put him to death. St. Peter, the Martyr, died alſo upon the ſame Account. Some time after, Jezid was ſlain treacherouſly by the Saracens. Marmol of Africa, lib. 2.

JEZIDES, is a Sect of People inhabiting Turkey and Perſia, ſo called from their Head Jezid, an Arabian Prince, who ſlew Huſſan and Huſſein, Sons of Ali, Mahomet's Father-in-Law, and was, for this very Reaſon, reckoned a Parricide and Heretick by the Mahometans, who ſince beſtowed this Name of Jezides, to another Sect than theirs. There are about 200000 Jezides in Perſia and Turkey. They uſe the ſame Language with that of the Curds, or People of Curdiſtan, which comes very near that of the Perſians. The Jezides are of two ſorts, Black and White. The White are clad like Turks, and diſtinguiſhable only by their Shirts, which are not ſlit at the Neck, as others be, and which have but a round hole to run the Head through. A thing, which paſſes for a Myſtery amongſt them, and is (ſay they) in Memory of a golden Ring or Circle of Light, which deſcended from Heaven into the Neck of their Chek or Prince, and Head of their Religion, after a Faſt of forty Days. The Black are as the Monks or Religious of their Sect, tho' married. They call them Fakirs, that is, poor; but for all that they love Riches well, and hate Poverty. The Turks abhor them, as well upon the Score of their Religion, being contrary to Mahomet's, as, that becauſe they formerly killed the Relations of the two falſe Prophets, Haſſan and Huſſein. The greateſt Injury you can do one of them, is to call him Jezide, Son of Jezid. They call them Aſſes, whoſe Duty is to carry the Jews to Hell, at the Day of Judgment. They exact exceſſive Taxes from them, and reduce them almoſt to deſpair; and therefore the Jezides reciprocally hate the Turks, as their Mortal Enemies; and when they Curſe any Creature in their wrath, they Nick-name it Muſulman, that is as much as to ſay, Turk. The Jezides are great Lovers of the Chriſtians, and call them their Godfathers, from a Belief they have, that Jezid is the ſame with Jeſus Chriſt; or elſe, becauſe that their Chief Jezid ſided formerly with the Chriſtians, and made Alliance with them againſt the Mahometans, whom he defeated in a pitched Battle, where were killed the two Generals, Haſſan and Huſſein. Neverthеleſs they are neither Turks nor Chriſtians, tho' more inclined to the Meſſiah than to Mahomet. They glory in drinking Wine and eating Pork, which the Turks and Jews abhor. They ſhun Circumciſion as much as they can, and never receive it but when the Turks force them to it. They are extream ignorant, and uſe no Books to regulate their Faith. They believe in the Bible and Goſpel without reading it, and ſome of them in the Alcoran; and therefore they ordinarily ſay as the Turks do, That theſe three Books came from Heaven. They alſo believe many Miracles of Jeſus Chriſt's that are not in the Goſpel; That he ſpoke at the Day of his Birth, That he raiſed one from the Dead, which died 1000 Years before, and many other things. They make Vows and Pilgrimages in imitation of the Chriſtians and Turks, but have no Temples to Worſhip or Pray to God in, and never enter the Moſques, without it be out of curioſity; but they would frequent the Chriſtian Churches, were it not for fear of being ill uſed by the Turks. They obſerve no Feaſts nor Solemnities; and all the Adoration they give God, conſiſts in ſinging Spiritual Songs in the honour of Jeſus Chriſt, of the Holy Virgin, of Zachary, Moſes, and ſometimes of the falſe Prophet Mahomet. When they pray, they face to the Eaſt, as Chriſtians do, and contrary to the Turks, who face to the South. It is a principal Point of their Religion not to curſe the Devil, and not even to pronounce his Name, for fear he ſhould reſent the Injury, if ever after he ſhould be in favour with God again, as they believe it poſſible; and beſides, they fear falling into his hands after Death, leaſt he being the Executioner of Divine Juſtice, might chaſtiſe them the more rigorouſly to revenge himſelf. When they talk of the Devil, they call him The Angel Peacock, or him whom the ignorant Curſe. The Jezides bury their Dead without any Ceremony, in the firſt place they come at. The richer ſort, nevertheleſs, Bury in certain places of Devotion; and as they bury them, they play and ſing ſome Song upon the Guittar, tuning their Voice to the ſound of the Inſtrument. They may not cry at the death of a Black, but then muſt rejoyce, as at a Feſtival, to celebrate the Entry of the Dead into Heaven. Theſe Blacks are held in ſuch Veneration, that when they take occaſion of ſpeaking of one of their Garments, they give it a particular Name, tho' they differ only in Colour from others. As for example, They do not call a Shirt by its common Name, but by another Name, as if they would ſay Surplice; they will not ſay his Cloak, but his Cape; not his Turban, but his Mitre. Yet the greateſt part of theſe black Jezides are but Shepherds, and their nobleſt Employments are to keep Goats upon the Mountains. A Jezide-Black may not kill a Sheep, Pullet, or any other Living thing; but eat them they may, after the White have killed them. The Jezides, in general, are ſtrong People, and indefatigable. They go in Companies, as the Arabians do, changing their Habitations every fifteen Days. They inhabit under black Pavillions, woven of Goat's Hair, fenc'd in with great Reeds and thorny Buſhes faſtened together. Their Tents ſtand round, ſo that within, in the middle, there is an open place, as it were, where they lodge their Cattel for Security. In Summer they encamp upon Downs, and all along River-ſides: In Winter they retire to Mountains. Their Arms are Bows and Arrows, Slings, &c. and a Turkiſh Scymetar. Their Employs are to keep Flocks, and ſow the Land; but the Turks take the Crop, leaving them ſcarce enough to ſubſiſt upon. They do not ordinarily cultivate Vines, nor Gardens, living for the moſt part upon Fleſh and Salleting. Their Bread is very thin, which they Bake upon an Iron Plate, with a clear Fire. When they can have Wine, they ſuck it in to Exceſs; and, which is wonderful, they dare ſometimes call it the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt: For in their Feaſts, as they hand their Glaſſes or Cups to each other, they ſay thus, Take the Chalice of the Blood of Chriſt; and he that receives it, kiſſeth his Hand that offers it, and drinks with Reſpect. This, and many other Ceremonies, which they uſe conformable in ſome ſenſe to, and in imitation of Chriſtians, makes us believe they came from the Arians, or from ſome other Heretick Sectaries, but corrupted by the Succeſſion of Time; or, at leaſt, that they have formerly contracted ſome Union with Hereticks. As to their manner of Marriages, it is their Cuſtom to buy their Wives for 200 Crowns, paid commonly to the Daughter's Father. This is the ordinary Price of Women, be their Quality what it will, Poor or Rich, Beautiful or Deformed. Whence it is, that the Husbands commonly treat the Wives as Slaves: Nay, they may turn them away, that they may become Superiors of their Friars, or elſe Hermits; but for no other Motives. Thoſe that ſhave their Beards among them, paſs for Hereticks; they may not cut, be it never ſo little, off; And it is reckon'd even a Sin, not to let it grow as long as it can. Michael Fevre's Theatre of Turkey.

IGLAW, Lat. Iglova, or Iglavia; a populous City of Moravia, on the Confines of Bohemia, ſituate upon the River Iglaw, 24 German Miles from Prague, and 10 from Lentz. Long. 35.42. Lat. 49. 13.

St. IGNATIUS, Biſhop of Antioch, and Martyr, ſucceeded Evodius, whom St. Peter is ſaid to have eſtabliſhed there, as he went to found the Church of Rome, An. 66. This holy Prelate, who, with Polycarpus, was a Diſciple of the Apoſtles, and particularly of St. John, exerciſed this Office forty Years, with Gifts worthy of the Apoſtolick Times. But during the third Perſecution, which was that of Trajanus, in 107. St. Ignatius having maintained the Chriſtian Faith, even in the preſence of this Emperor, he was condemned to be expoſed to the Beaſts in the Amphitheatre at Rome. Whilſt they were carrying him thither, loaded with Chains, &c. he wrote thoſe Letters which we ſtill have of his. It was at Smyrna that he writ thoſe to the Epheſians, Magneſians, Trallians and the Romans: And at Troas that he compoſed others for the Faithful of Philadelphia, Smyrna, and that to St. Polycarp. Euſebius and St. Jerom, make no mention ſave of ſeven Epiſtles, which we therefore call Originals. Iſaac Voſſius, and Uſher Archbiſhop of Ardmagh in Ireland, both Proteſtants, have furniſhed us with a new Edition of theſe Epiſtles. The firſt publiſhed them in 1646, and made uſe of a Greek Manuſcript, judged to be 1100 Years old, and taken out of the Library of the Great Duke of Tuſcany. He eſteems none Authentick, but ſeven Epiſtles which are in the MS. of Florence. Uſher, who printed them at Oxford, An. 1645, and at London in 1647, made uſe of two Manuſcripts which he found in England. He puts in but ſix, and rejects the laſt, addreſſed to St. Polycarp, who was not in his MS. of the ancient Latin Tranſlation, but which is in that of Florence. This Edition is thought the beſt. St. Ignatius ſuffered Martyrdom at Rome, Feb. 1. 108. Others, deceived by the Martyrology of Ado, ſay, his Death happened in 104, under the Conſulſhip of Atticus Suranus, and of Marcellus. We have other Editions of his Epiſtles; as, that of Vedelis at Geneva, in 1623. Of Father Hugo Menard of Paris. The beſt Edition is that of Amſterdam in 1697, where beſide the beſt Notes, there are the Diſſertations of Uſher and Pearſon. We have likewiſe divers Diſcourſes upon the Subject matter of theſe Epiſtles. The Reaſons uſed by Salmaſius, Blondel, Dalæus, &c. are ſufficiently confuted by Dr. Hammond, in his Diſſertations upon this Subject; to which we may add the extraordinary Performance of John Pearſon Biſhop of Cheſter, who in his Vindiciæ Ignatianæ, has ſo evidently proved the genuineneſs of theſe Epiſtles, that nothing but ignorance, or prejudice againſt Epiſcopacy, can doubt of it. *Spanheim Epit. IGNATIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, third Son of the Emperor Michael the firſt Curopalates, called Rangabeus, whom Leo the Armenian expell'd from his See, An. 813. This Uſurper made Eunuchs of the two Sons of Michael, Theophylactus and Nicetas. This laſt was ſent into a Monaſtery, and took the Name of Ignatius, which he owned ever after. His Vertue and Merit made him conſidered in this Retreat. Likewiſe, under the Empire of Michael III. An. 847, after the Death of Methodius Patriarch of Conſtantinople, the Biſhops choſe Ignatius to fill this high Station. The Empreſs Theodora, who was Regent during the Minority of her Son, approved this Election. This Princeſs had a Brother, called Bardas, who made inceſtuous Love to his Daughter-in-Law. Ignatius reproved him for it; and growing incorrigible, he drove him out of the Church as he came upon the Day of Epiphany, An. 858, to partake of the holy Myſteries. To be revenged of this, Bardas perſwaded the Emperor to reign alone thenceforward, and therefore to order the Patriarch to cut his Mother's and Siſter's Hair, in order to their being confined to a Monaſtery. This Prelate refuſed it, and was baniſhed into the Iſle of Terebinthus, and Photius put in his Room, Decemb. 25. of the ſame Year, but when Baſilius Macedonicus came to the Empire, in the Year 867, Ignatius was reſtor'd to his See with all imaginable reſpect and ſolemnity, and Photius was baniſh'd to a Monaſtery. Ignatius died in 878.

IGNATIUS Loyala, the Founder of the Jeſuits; a Gentleman of Biſcay, where he was born in 1491. He was bred a Soldier, and was at Pampelune when beſieged by the French in 1521. Being lame of both his Feet by the Wounds he received there, he was oblig'd to keep his Bed; during which time, he read the Lives of the Saints, which gave him an inclination for a retir'd way of Living. Afterwards he went to Rome, and thence to Jeruſalem. At his Return, being 33 Years of Age, he began his Studies at Barcelona; which he continued at Alcala, Salamanca, and at Paris, whither he came in 1528. Here he aſſociated himſelf to eight or nine more; and then going to Rome, he eſtabliſhed the Society of the Jeſuits, confirmed by Pope Paul III. and was its firſt General, and made its Rules and Conſtitutions. He died in 1556, and was Canonized by Pope Gregory XV. in 1622. Spond. in Annal. Ribadeneira. Maffée.

IHOR, a City and Kingdom of the Indies, within the Peninſula on the other ſide the Ganges. It is ſituated in the moſt Southerly part of the Indies, near Malaca, which King Ihor often attacked. The City which gives its Name to this Kingdom is built upon Piles, near unto a River which runs into the Sea near the Promontory of Syncapura. There is a good Port; and the greateſt part of the City is named Batuſaber, and the leaſt Cota-Sabran.

IKSWORTH, or ICKWORTH, a Market-Town of Twingo-Hundred, in the County of Suffolk, derives its Name from the ancient Iceni, who inhabited hereabouts. The Remains of a Priory founded by Gilbert Blunt, and of a Guild-Hall yet to be ſeen, ſhew it has been formerly conſiderable. A Pot of Roman Coins, bearing the Inſcriptions of divers Roman Emperors, dug up here not many Years ago, do farther confirm this. Camden Brit.

ILA, Lat. Ila, or Epidia, one of the Weſtern Iſles of Scotland, over-againſt Cantyr. 'Tis counted 24 Miles long, and 16 broad: Plentiful in Corn, Cattel and Deer. The principal Towns of this Iſland are Kilmany, Dunveg and Crome; beſides which, there is a great number of well-peopled Villages. It is ſituated in the 56th Degree of Latitude.

ILCHESTER, Lat. Iſchalis, a Market and Borough-Town of Martock-Hundred, in the South of Somerſetſhire. So called from the River Ill, or Evil, on the South ſide whereof it is Seated. A place of great Antiquity, and formerly of great ſtrength. So populous, that it contained 16 Pariſh Churches, now reduced to two. However, this is the place where the County-Gaol is kept.

ILFORDCOMB, a Market-Town of Branton-Hundred, in the Northern Parts of Devonſhire, ſituate on the Severn-Sea.

ILLUMINATI, or ALUMBRADO's, Spaniſh Hereticks, who began to appear in the World about 1575. But as the Authors were puniſhed at Cordova, by the Inquiſition, this Sect was kept under until 1623, and then awaken'd with more Vigour in the Dioceſs of Seville. The Biſhop Don Andrew Pacheco, Inquiſitor-General of Spain, having ſurprized ſeven of the Ring-leaders, cauſed them to be all burnt, and conſtrained their Diſciples either to abjure their Errors, or to depart the Kingdom. The Edict in favour of them ſpecifies 76 different Errors; whereof the principal are, That with the Aſſiſtance of Mental Prayer, and Union with God, (which they boaſted of) they were in ſuch a State of Perfection, as not to need either Good Works, or the Sacraments of the Church: And that they might commit the groſſeſt Crimes without Sin. Sponde, A. C. 1623. n. 7. Gualter. Chron. Mundi, cap. 28.

ILLYRIA, or ILLYRICUM, a great Country in Europe, between Pannonia on the North-ſide, and the Adriatick-Sea on the South. The Ancients divided it into Liburnia and Dalmatia. The firſt was reduced by the Romans, ten Years before the ſecond Punick War; and Dalmatia, not before the Time of the Emperor Auguſtus. The People were cruel, and great Pirates at Sea. But now this Country, which is all in the Hands of the Venetians and Turks, Raguſa, and ſome other places excepted, is all, almoſt, comprehended under the Name of Sclavonia, or Dalmatia, as is obſerved in its due place. John Lucius, in his Book De Regno Dalmatiæ. Cluvier. &c. The Gulph of Illyria, which is the Gulph of Drin, is called the Gulph of Venice.

ILMEN, a Lake of Moſcovia, near the great Novogrod. They ſay, that it runs into the Lake Ladoga, which is one of the greateſt of the Country; and that there is a City of the ſame Name upon its Banks.

ILMISTER, a Market Town of Abduk-Hundred, in the South of Somerſetſhire.

ILUS IV. King of the Trojans. He was the Son of Tros and Callirrhoe, and Brother of Ganymedes and Aſſaracus, who was Capis's Father, and Grandfather to Archiſes. He reigned 54 Years, from A. M. 2740, to 2794, that Lacinedon, his Son, ſucceeded him. Some ſay, that he vanquiſhed and chaſed Tantalus out of his Kingdom. Apollodorus, lib. 3. Diodorus, lib. 4. Homer, Virgil, &c.

ILZ, or IZIL-LIZA, a City of Poland, within the Palatinate of Sendomir. It is ſituated at the foot of the Mountains; and there is a Fortreſs, which the Biſhop of Cracovia is Maſter of.

IMAN, a Name which the Mahometans give their Prieſts. Theſe Imans, who look after their Moſques, muſt be well verſed in the Alcoran, which is written in Arabick, wherein it is read all over Turkey, tho' not underſtood by half the People.

IMAUS, a famous Mountain of Aſia. In the Deſart Tartary, it is called Mothegar; and in the other, Belgian, and Althai, where the Kings of Tartary are Entombed. In the Great Mogul's Country, it is called Delanguer, and De Naugracut. Pliny, Strabo and Ptolemy, mention it. It begins at Mount Taurus, near the Caſpian Sea; and running Southward through the whole Continent of Aſia, divides the Aſiatick Tartary into two Parts, and ends at the Source of the Ganges, where it ſpreads again Eaſt and Weſt, and becomes a Northern Boundary to the Empire of the Great Mogul, or Indoſtan.

IMBRAEL, the 21ſt Caliph, or Succeſſor of Mahomet, began to reign in 834, after Mahomet his Father's Death. As he hated the Chriſtians, he always warred with the Emperor of Conſtantinople, and had often the Advantage of him. Having ruined the City Amorium in Phrygia, he took the chiefeſt of the Enemy's Army Priſoners, whom the Emperor Theophilus prayed him to deliver, offering to pay him the Ranſom of 250000 Beſans, or Double Ducats of Gold. But he made Anſwer, That that Sum was not ſufficient. Which the Emperor ſo reſented, that he died, An. 842. Imbrael reigned until 849, and left his Kingdom to Memon. Marmol. de l'Afr. lib. 2.

IMERETE, or IMIRETE, a Kingdom which the Geographers reckon a part of Mingrelia. The Turks call this Country Pachea-Tchouch, or Pacha-Koutchouc; that is to ſay, a Prince, or ſmall Principality. It is incloſed by Mount Caucaſus, Colchis or Mingrelia properly ſo called, The Black Sea, the Principality of Guriel, and Georgia, or Gurgiſtan. It is 126 Miles long, and 60 broad. On the South it has Guriel; on the North the Black Circaſſians, or Huns, who anciently haraſſed the Roman Empire in its Declenſion. Imerete is a Woody and Hilly Country, but mixed with many pleaſant Valleys, and fruitful Plains. Neceſſaries for Life are ſooner had there, than either at the Kingdom of Mingrelia or Colchis. Money is currant, and they Coin it there. It is full of Boroughs, and Iron Mines. As to the Manners and Cuſtoms of the People, they reſemble much thoſe of Mingrelia. The King has three very good Fortreſſes; one called Scander, Southward; and the other two named Scorgia and Regia, Northward, near Phaſis. It is not long ago ſince he had a very important place, called Cotatis; but the Turks have it now. The Kings of Imerete have for a long time commanded the Abcas, the Mingrelians, and the People of Guriel, after having ſhaken off the Yoke of the Emperors of Conſtantinople; and after them, the Emperors of Trebizonde: But in the XVIth Century, theſe three Nations revolted, and the Grand Signior, under pretence of protecting them, made them Tributary one after another. The Abcas-People paid their Tribute ſome Years, and at laſt got clear of them. The Prince of Mingrelia's Tribute amounted to 60000 Ells of Linen Cloth: That of the Prince of Guriel is 46 Children, of both Sexes, between ten and twenty Years old. The King of Imerete alſo yielded to ſend the Turks 80 Children per Annum. The Grand Signior left theſe Princes in poſſeſſion of their Country, it being impoſſible to get Mahometiſm to be obſerved here, where there is nothing good but Wine and Figs, and the Habitations ſcattered here and there ſo, that where Forts might be built, each Fort could keep ſcarce above eight Houſes in Obedience. The King of Imerete gives himſelf the Title of Meppe, which ſignifies a King in the Georgian Language: And ſo he calls himſelf Meppe of Meppes, that is, King of Kings. His Deſcent he pretends to be from the Race of the Prophet King David, by Solomon. Chardin's Voyage to Perſia in 1673.

IMMIRENIENS, a People on the South-ſide of Perſia, who embraced the Chriſtian Religion about An. 500, in the Time of the Emperor Anaſtaſius. Theod. Lect. lib. 2. Niceph. lib. 16. cap. 37.

IMOLA, an Epiſcopal City of Italy, in Romania, belonging to the Church. The Latins call it Forum Cornelii; and Pliny, Strabo, Ptolemy and Procopius, mention it. Cicero likewiſe ſpeaks of it in theſe Terms, in his Familiar Epiſtles, lib. 12. Erat enim Claternæ noſter Hirtius, ad Forum Cornelium Cæſar, uterque cum firmiſſimo Exercitu. And it is believed that this City was built by the Romans, that Narſes ruined it, and that the Lombards repaired it. It had divers Maſters, till Cæſar Borgia took it under Alexander VI. ſince which it has been ſubject to the Church. We have ſome Synodical Conſtitutions of Radolphus Paleote, in 1614, and of Ferdinando Millini, in 1622, Biſhop of Imola. It is eighteen Miles Eaſt of Bologna, twenty ſeven Weſt of Ravenna, and twenty ſix South of Ferrara. Strabo, lib. 5. Plin. lib. 3. Procop. lib. 2. de Bello Got. Blondus, lib. 8. Hiſt. Leander Alberti.

IMPERIAL Cities are ſuch as have the Right to ſend Deputies to the Diet of the Empire.

IMPERIALE, a City of South-America, and the Title of a Biſhop in the Kingdom of Chili. It belongs to the Spaniards. It was built in 1551, by Valdiva, the Conqueror of this Country; who the next Year after was ſlain by the Indians, and the Town reduced to ſuch Straits, that it has not been able to grow to any Greatneſs ſince. Lat. 38. 30. It ſtands ſix Leagues from the South Sea, (having the River Cauten to the South, and another to the Weſt) on a riſing ſteep Neck of Land, hard to be aſcended. The Soil about it is fruitful in Corn, Wine and Paſturage; and the Rivers are Navigable. The Biſhop of it is the Second in Chili, and has about 80000 Indians under his Care. It has good Mines of Gold, but for want of Slaves, and by reaſon of the Wars, they are not wrought. Laet, pag. 492. In 1600, it was taken by the Indians, after a Year's Siege, moſt part of the Inhabitants being conſumed by Famine. They burnt the Town, and deſtroyed the adjacent Country, and then beſieged Soſorno. In this War Valdiva was taken, Angol, Sancta Cruz, Chilla and Villa Ricca. After which, they became ſo confident of their Strength, that they fought the Spaniards ſtoutly, and in ſome meaſure revenged the innumerable Murthers which they had committed upon their Country-men.

IMPERIALI (John Vincent) Duke of St. Angelo in the Kingdom of Naples, was born at Genua, and much eſteemed in the beginning of the XVIIth Century. He did his Country conſiderable Service, both by Sea and Land. Philip IV. imploy'd him in ſeveral Negotiations, at Rome and Mantua. Afterwards his Merit made him envy'd at Genua, whence he was baniſh'd by the Senate, for being better than ordinary. He had a good Genius for Poetry, which he wrote both in Latin and Italian. His Works are, Lo' Stato Ruſtico: Gl' Indovini Paſtori: La' Santa Tereſa, &c. Moſt Italian Writers gave him a great Character. He dy'd in 1645. Ghilini Teat d'Huom. Lett. Imperialis in Muſæ Hiſtor. &c.

IMPERIALI (John Baptiſt) an eminent Phyſician, born at Vicenza in Italy 1568. He was a General Scholar, and wrote ſeveral Pieces. This John Baptiſt was Father to John Imperialis, who wrote Muſæum Phyſicum, ſeu de Humano Ingenio. Et Muſæum Hiſtoricum, ſive de Viris Doctrinâ Illuſtribus; in which laſt Treatiſe, he endeavours to do Juſtice to his Father's Memory.

IMPUDENCE, a Deity of the Pagans, that had her Temple at Athens, where ſhe was reverenced as a Goddeſs, while at the ſame time, in another Temple there, they reverenced Shame as a God. The Partridge was conſecrated to Impudence for ſome reſembling Qualities in her Nature. Plutar. in the Life of Solon.

INA, a Weſt-Saxon, ſucceeded Kidwalla, An. 690. His firſt Expedition was into Kent, to demand Satisfaction for the Burning of Mollo, the Brother of his Predeceſſor. Victred was then King of Kent, who being loth to hazard all for the Raſhneſs of a few, pacified him with a great Sum of Money. In 710, he overcame Gerent King of Wales. He alſo ſlew Kenwolf, ſurnamed Clito, a Title given in thoſe Days only to thoſe of the Blood-Royal. After theſe, and ſome other Exploits, he went to Rome, where he ended his Days. He was the firſt that granted the Peter-Pence to the Pope; praiſed however for ſome good Laws he made, which remain extant to this Day.

INACHUS, gave Beginning to the Kingdom of the Argives, in the Peloponneſus, A. M. 2197. His Son Phoroneus ſucceeded him. Joſephus, Tatianus, Appianus, Alexandrinus, and divers other ancient Chronologiſts, did believe that this Prince was one of the Contemporaries of Moſes: But Euſebius of Cæſarea did prove ſince, that he began to reign about 346 Years before the Departure of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt. In the mean time, we muſt not forget how the Poets have feigned that Inachus was the Father of Io, debauched by Jupiter. Strabo, Plinius, Pauſanias, &c. ſpeak of a River of Peloponneſus of this Name, which Sophienus called Planiza, and is the very ſame which Virgil takes notice of in the Seventh Book of his Æneids. There is another likewiſe in Acarnania, which joins with the River Achelois.

INARUS, a great Lord of Egypt. He occaſioned a Revolt in the Country againſt the Perſians, who were Maſters of it; but afterwards the Egyptians and the Perſians came to an accommodation. Diod. Sic. Lib. 2.

INCA, a Name given to the Emperors of Peru, the moſt conſiderable of the Peruvian Nobility, retain ſtill the Name of Incas, tho' ſubject to the Spaniard. See Peru.

INCHAFFRA, that is, the Iſland of Maſſes; ſo called becauſe of a famous Monaſtery of Auguſtines, founded here by the Earl of Strathern in Scotland, about 1200. It belongs to the County of Strathern. Cambd. Brit.

INCH-KEITH, a ſmall Iſland in the River Forth, overagainſt Leith in Scotland. 'Tis thought to have been the Victoria of Ptolemy, and the Place of the City Caer. It had a Fort in it, and was ſeized by the Engliſh in the Time of King James V. and re-taken after a ſtout Reſiſtance.

INCITATUS, a Name which Caligula the Emperor gave his Horſe, becauſe he was briſk and lively. He had ſuch a Paſſion for this Beaſt, that he ſpoke to him as if he had been a Rational Perſon. He kept Officers to wait upon him in a ſtately Apartment, and treated thoſe magnificently who were invited in the Name of this Horſe. His Rack and Manger were of Ivory, and his Stable was built of Marble. This Emperor often invited him to Dinner, and then preſented him with Gilded Barley, and filled him drink himſelf in a very ſumptuous Cup. He gave him a great Neck-lace of fine large Pearls, and Houſſings of Purple, embroider'd with Gold. His extravagancy went ſo far, that he would raiſe this Beaſt to be Conſul; and if this infamous Prince had lived a little longer, an Horſe might have been ſeen Conſul of the moſt puiſſant City in the World. Sueton. in Caligula.

INCORRUPTICOLÆ, or APHTHARTODOCITÆ, or PHANTASIASTÆ, Hereticks who had their Original at Alexandria, in the Time of the Emperor Juſtinian. The beginning of the Controverſie was among the Eutychians, Whether the Body of Chriſt was corruptible, or incorruptible, from his Conception? Severus held it corruptible. Julianus Halicarnaſſus held the contrary, as not being obnoxious to Hunger, Thirſt, or Wearineſs; and that he did but ſeemingly ſuffer ſuch Things: Whence they were called Phantaſiaſtæ. Evagrius ſays, That the Emperor Juſtinian favoured thoſe Hereticks, and perſecuted the Orthodox. But he is accuſed of Falſhood in this Point. Spanh. Ep.

INCUBUS, a Name which the Pagans gave to certain Demi-Gods, formerly called Faunes, and Satyrs. This Word comes from Incubo, becauſe there was a Fiction as if they deſired the Company of Women, and lay with them at Nights. Nevertheleſs, it is but a ſilly Diſeaſe, called Incubus; and by the Greeks, Ephialtes; that is to ſay, a Leaper, or Night-Mare; which is a kind of Suffocation, or Oppreſſion of Body, that happens in the Night-time by reaſon of a thick and cold Vapour, which fills the Ventricles of the Brain, and hinders the Vital Spirits from paſſing through the Nerves.

INDAGARUS, a Biſhop of the Manichees, about 524. who, together with their Writings, was burnt by Order of Cabas King of Perſia, becauſe they had ſeduced his Son Pharſuaſa. And on the ſame Account this Prince cut off all the Manichees, having aſſembled them for that Purpoſe. Cedren. in Hiſt.

INDEPENDANTS, a Party of Proteſtants much talked of in England, in the War betwixt King Charles I. and the Parliament, and particularly favoured by Oliver. They have their Name becauſe they hold that every Congregation hath a compleat Power of Juriſdiction within it ſelf, independent either on Biſhop, or any Synod or Council, great or ſmall; though they own that Synods have a Conſiderative Power, and are an Ordinance of God. The only Thing elſe peculiar to them, is, Their way of Admitting Members into their Congregations by a Covenant obliging them to participate of the Word and Sacraments in their reſpective Societies. But in other Things they agree with the Presbyterians; and by the late Agreement amongſt the united Miniſters at London, they come nearer them alſo in Diſcipline than formerly. It muſt be noted, That the Anabaptiſts, and others, are alſo independent in Matters of Church-Government.

INDIA, one of the great Regions of Aſia, extending from 106 Degrees to 159 Longitude, and from 10 of South to 44 North Latitude. India has its Name from the River Indus, which hems it in on the Weſt Side. The Inhabitants call it Hind, and in ſome Places, eſpecially on this Side the Ganges, Indoſtan; the Hebrews,Hodu; the French, Indes Orientales; the Spaniards, Indias Orientales, to diſtinguiſh it from America, which they call the Weſt-Indies, but improperly; and thoſe of the Low-Countries, Ooſt-Indien, for the ſame Reaſon. This Country was firſt Peopled by Jocktan. And Diodorus Siculus obſerves, That though India was inhabited by various Nations, yet they were all the Original Inhabitants, and had neither received nor ſent out any Colonies. This great Country has to its Bounds, according to Ancient and Modern Authors: The Kingdom of Perſia on the Weſt, whence it is ſeparated by a great Ridge of Mountains: On the Eaſt it has the Ganges, with the Damaſia-Mountains, and Meander, which part it from China. It has to the South the Gulf of Bengal, and the Indian Sea, down as far as Calecut: And to the Northward, Mount Imaus, which parts it from Tartary; from whence came the Emperor whom we call The Great Mogul. The moſt conſiderable Rivers in the Indies are Indus and Ganges. The firſt comes from a Mountain which makes part of Caucaſus, and receives into it 19 others, whereof Hydaſpes and Hypaſis are the moſt renowned. Many Modern Authors divide India into three Parts; which agrees with what I have already ſaid: The firſt hath been the Mogul's Country for 150 Years. The other two are Peninſula's, ſeparated by the Gulf of Bengal. That on the Weſt Side, or this Side of Ganges, is almoſt divided between the two Sovereigns of Golconde and Viſapor, or Idalkam. There be the Kings of Samorin, and Cochin; with many Naiques, or Tributary Princes: As alſo the Kingdoms of Decan, Onor, Balcelor, Ganara, with a great Number of others. To theſe may be added the Coaſt of Malabar, where are the Kingdoms of Calecut, Cochin, Coulan, and others, which bear all of them almoſt the Names of their Capital Cities. They are on the Weſt Part of this Peninſula. Towards the Eaſt lies the Coaſt of Coromandel, where are Negapatan, Maliapour, St. Thomas, and the Kingdoms of Biſnagar, Narſingua, Golconda and Orixa. The Portugueſe and Hollanders have divers Places upon theſe Coaſts. The other Peninſula, which we take for the Third Part of India, lies Eaſtward; and this is properly India extra Gangem. They divide it commonly into three Parts: The firſt, which lies Northerly, is the greateſt, and contains the Countries of the Kings of Ava, Pegu, Arracan, the ancient Country of the Brames, or Bragmanes: The ſecond comprehends the King of Siam's Country: And the Third, which lies more Eaſterly, comprehends Cochinchina and Tunquin. Thus we find in the Indies, Ava, Arracan, Cochinchina, Martaban, Pegu, Siam, Tunquin, Camboia, &c. all lying on the other Side of the Ganges. But it muſt be noted, that ancient Geographers teſtifie how that there were formerly 9000 Sorts of People in India, and 5000 conſiderable Cities, the moſt famous whereof was Niſa, which ſome believe to be the Place of Bacchus's Nativity. That Side of India which lies moſt under the Torrid Zone is ſubject to the violent Heat of the Sun, but temper'd by Rains and Winds; yet the Air there is different, according to the Diverſity of Climates. In general they reckon but two Seaſons, Summer and Winter. The laſt holds four Months, viz. June, July, Auguſt and September; during which Time it Rains perpetually. The Summer holds for the other eight Months. The Land is extream fertile, and yet there grows but little Wheat in it, but great Quantities of Rice and Indian-Wheat. Olives, Nuts, Pepins, and the like, are not to be had there; but in lieu of them, there are other conſiderable Things, ſuch as Palms, which bear Dates, and other excellent Fruit-Trees; not to mention Citrons and Oranges, which abound there; Figs, Cacoa-Nuts, Pomegranates, and a great many other Things proper for Medicines, Spices, &c. The Tree which bears the Cacoa-Nuts, I ſpoke of, is a kind of Palm, whence the Indians are furniſhed with Neceſſaries, and which is of a very ſingular Nature. Its Sap furniſheth them with Drink; they make Bread and Oil of its Fruit; Veſſels, Cups and Spoons of its Bark; and Thread and Stuff of the Rind which lies under the Bark: Its Trunk and Branches ſerve to make the Indians Houſes; and the Leaves do both cover them, and ſerve to write upon, inſtead of Paper. The Drink made of the Sap of this Tree taſtes almoſt like Wine, but turns eager in 24 Hours. To draw this Sap they ſlit the Bark of the Tree, and there run in a little Stick, upon which the Liquor runs, and falls down into a Veſſel which the Indians place there on purpoſe. Beſides this, India produces Sugar-Canes, and divers Sorts of rare Creatures, Pearls,and Precious Stones; and ſuch great Quantities of Gold and Silver-Mines, that the Ancients were perſwaded, that the Sand, the Stones, and the very Clods themſelves were Gold. Thoſe that inhabited theſe happy Countries from the Beginning of the World, never went abroad to plant Colonies; and for this Reaſon it is, that it ought not to be Matter of Surprize, if the Ancients have there remarked that incredible Diverſity of People which I have already ſpoken of. Amongſt thoſe, the Brachmanes, or Gymnoſophiſts, Philoſophers of the Country, were the moſt conſiderable, as well as the Gangarides, who had ſo powerful a King, that Alexander the Great never durſt to attack him. The Indians are for the moſt part tawny, ſtrong and big, but lazy, and very unchaſt. They eat upon Beds, or Tapeſtry, ſpread upon the Ground; and uſe a deal of Salleting, called Betle. Their ordinary Drink is Palm-Wine, or another ſort which they make with Rice. Their Years are Lunar. They are skilful in Phyſick, Aſtrology, and a little in the Mathematicks; but very ignorant in other Sciences. The Pagans burn moſt of their Dead, and their Wives glory in being thrown into the Funeral-Piles, and there conſumed to Aſhes, which their Friends keep in Urns. The little Commerce which the Europeans had formerly with the Indians, has occaſioned ſeveral Fables, which ancient Authors, and thoſe the moſt Conſiderable too, deliver as unqueſtionable Truths: As That Bacchus or Liber, born as they ſay here, ſubdued all the Country: And that Semiramis, the Wife of Ninus, led her victorious Troops into theſe Parts. The Kings of Perſia did poſſeſs ſome Parts of India; and Alexander the Great, after he had defeated Darius, marched thither, An. Rom. 436. and overcame Porus their chief Monarch. Since the Time of Alexander, the Indians have carried themſelves very peaceably to their Princes, and were not diſturbed by Strangers, till the Portugueſe, under the Conduct of Vaſco de Gama, began to ſettle there about the Latter End of the XVth. Century; which they did afterwards, with a very conſiderable Advantage to their Country. The Portugueſe have alſo in India very rich Cities, as Goa, and are very powerful there. They made great Advantage of it formerly, but the Hollanders have ſince improved themſelves by their Negligence. The Great Mogul being Prince of one Part of India, as I have ſaid before, is a Mahometan, and is eſteem'd the richeſt King of the World in Jewels. There are other petty Princes in the Country; but ſo ambitious, both of Titles and Qualities, that they often put their Furniture, Jewels, Equipage and Elephants among their Titles. The Indians, as to their Religion are divided into Pagans, Mahometans, Jews, and Chriſtians. Theſe latter, God be thanked, are very numerous, ſince the Portugueſe ſettled there. Moſt of the Idolaters inhabit towards the South Part of India; where ſome adore a Sovereign God, others make Vows to the Devil, to avoid ſay they, or at leaſt to leſſen their puniſhment. Some worſhip Trees; others the Elements, Rivers, Pyramids, &c. and in this reſpect, they are guilty of great ignorance and ſingularity. Others there are too, who believe the Metempſychoſis, or Tranſmigration of Souls; and who have a very great Reſpect for all Living Things, even to the Vermine, but particularly for Cows and Oxen. They have a ſort of Religious, who keep themſelves in an extraordinary Poſture; ſuch as holding their Arms lifted up to Heaven, &c. Before India was this laſt Time diſcovered by the Portugueſe, a Neſtorian Patriarch had ſent them Biſhops: And Maffee ſays, that the Body of St. Thomas was found in the Ruins of a Church formerly built to his Honour, in Maliapour; whence it was tranſported to Goa, and placed in a magnificent Church which the Vice-Roy built by King Emanuel's Order. Pantænus, who of a Stoick Philoſopher, became a zealous Defender of the True Faith, being ſent hither by Demetrius Biſhop of Alexandria, about the End of the IIId. Century, is ſaid to have found here the Goſpel of St. Matthew, brought hither by St. Bartholomew, when he came to preach the Goſpel The Modern Hiſtory of India tells us, that in the Kingdoms of Narſingua and Cranganor, and in the Neighbouring Provinces, it is a known Tradition among them, that St. Thomas did preach the Goſpel there; and for this Reaſon, that the Indian Chriſtians call themſelves, The Chriſtians of St. Thomas. They report very admirable Things of him, which they maintain to be contained in their Annals, and are ſung by the little Children of Malabar in the vulgar Tongue. The Indian-Commerce is great, and there Indico is made for Dying, Salt-peter, Spiceries, Silks, and particularly Cottons, whereof the poor People make Chint or painted Callicoes, which turns to a great account. But what is more conſiderable, they have Mines of precious Stones, and a Fiſhery of Pearls. There is in particular, very rich Diamond-Mines, one at Raolconda, which is five days Journey from Golconda; one at Gany, which is ſeven days Journey thence, and another at Soumel in the Kingdom of Bengal. The pieces of Money moſt currant there, are Roupies, Latins, and Pagodes. The Indians are of a Warlike Diſpoſition, and ever ſince the Europeans traded with them, they have accuſtomed themſelves to Fire-arms, in lieu of Bows and Arrows, and manage them dextrouſly. They uſe Elephants in their Armies, each carrying upon his back a Caſtle, containing four or five People armed with Darts or Arrows. The Mogul abounds moſt with them, and yet ſome ſay, That he has not above 80 or 90; tho' Peruchi ſays, he employed 5000. and Pyrardus alledges, that he is able to ſend 30000 into the Field. The number of other Idolaters in the Indies, exceeds that of the Mahometans by far, and may be conſidered under ſeven different Sorts of Perſons; which are the Bramins, Ketris, Raſpoutes, Banjans, Jogues, Charades, Verteas, and the Faquirs. The Bramins pretend themſelves to be the Succeſſors of the Indian Philoſophers, who were ſo famous under the Name of Brachmans; they are devoted to the Worſhip and Miniſtry of the Temples and Idols, and Adore one particular God, which they name Parabram, and acknowledge him as the Principle of all things, and for the Creator of the Univerſe. They ſay, he had three Sons, which made but One only Divinity; and to expreſs this Number and Unity of Nature, each Bramin carries a Scarf divided into Three Parts. They wear Turbans upon their Heads, two Shirts, one reaching to the Knees, and the other a little below, and red Shooes. They ſtudy the Mathematicks much, and to that purpoſe, keep a famous School in a City called Benarez, but their main Study, is to Calculate the Eclipſes of the Sun and Moon. The People are ſo prepoſſeſſed with the Merits of theſe Bramins, that they truſt them not only with the Conduct of their Religion, but often with that of ſome Kingdoms too. The Raſpoutes are alſo liſted by ſome in the Number of Beanjans, being of the Sect of Samarath, and with them believe the Metempſychoſis. But in particular they aſſure us, That the Souls of Men paſs into the bodies of Birds, which tell their Friends of the Good and Evil that is to befall them: And therefore they obſerve the Chirping, and Flight of Birds with much Superſtition. They are generally Soldiers, and the Word Raſpoute, properly ſignifies a War-like Man. The Ketrus or Katris, eat all Sorts of living Creatures, except the Cow and the Ox, and are all Merchants. The Banjans are thoſe, who Traffick, and that very often, as Bankers and Brokers, wherein their Induſtry is not inferior to that of the Jews. They live upon Rice, Butter, Milk, Fruit, Herbs, Confections, and Bread. To expiate for their Sins, they bathe themſelves twice a-day. The People acknowledge themſelves ſo much inferior to the Bramins, that they never Marry their Daughters, as thinking themſelves unworthy of them. The Jogues or Joguis, are as it were, Pilgrims or Religious Vagabonds, who wander from one Kingdom to another, chuſing always hot Countries and ſolitary Places. They live upon Alms, and are reputed very Holy, becauſe they ſpend a great many days in very auſtere Faſts. Some live Years together at the Temple doors, naked, and expoſed to the rigour of the Sun and Rain, and never quit that Poſt, unleſs in compliance with the neceſſities of Nature. Notwithſtanding all theſe Mortifications, the greateſt part of them are great Impoſtors, and diſtinguiſh themſelves ſo much from others, by this counterfeited-piety, through the aſſiſtance of a certain Herb and ſome Stones, of which they learn the Virtues in their Voyages, and make uſe of them to amuſe the People. They acknowledge one ſingle Superior, whom they chuſe Yearly in a General Aſſembly. The Charades or Soudras are a People who follow Soldiery, as well as the Raſpoutes; with this difference, That they ſerve always in the Infantry, and the Raſpoutes in the Cavalry. The Verteas live in Common like Monks, and confine themſelves ſo much to Poverty, that they eat nothing but the Fragments which come from other People's Tables. They are ſo affraid of receiving Nouriſhment from any animated thing, that they always drink boiled Water, becauſe they imagine that Water has life, and that they ſhould not drink it, if the fire hath not exhaled it. Upon this account, they always carry a little Broom in their hands upon their March, and ſweep the way they are to paſs through, for fear of killing even a little Worm as they go along. They are clad in White, and uncovered. They ſhave the Chin, or rather pull out the Hair; They make a Vow to live ſingle and Chaſt. The Faquirs, are a ſort of Monks, who during their whole Lives, ſubmit themſelves to very ſevere Mortifications. They ſcarcely ever reſt, otherwiſe than upon a thick Rope, which hangs ſo that they may ride a ſtride upon it. Some of them, hold their Arms lifted always upwards to Heaven; and others, who neither Eat nor Drink for eight or nine days together. The Mahometans there diſtinguiſh themſelves into Sounis and Chiais, whereof the one follows the Sect of Abubeker, and the others, that of Ali. The Great Mogul, and the greateſt of his Court, incline to that of the Sounis, which is the ſame with the Turks. But there are a great many particular Perſons in his Country, and amongſt his Raya's or Tributary Princes, that Profeſs that of the Chiais. The Roman Catholick Religion is not profeſſed here, but by ſome Merchants of Europe, by the Portugueſe at Goa, and ſome Miſſionaries who go to Siam, and other places of the Indies. Pyrard Voyages. Davity of Aſia. Tavernier's Voyage to the Indies. In the Peninſula's, both on this and 'tother ſide of the Gulph of Bengal, they Adore an infinite number of Statues under different Forms, and moſt of them very ridiculouſly ſhaped. There are ſome of them ſo Superſtitious, that they think themſelves defiled, if touched by any body, but in War, and to purifie themſelves, they abſtain from Eating, till dipt three times in Water. Others there be, who will not eat, but what's dreſs'd by themſelves, or their Bramins, who are their Prieſts. They hold Cows in particular Veneration, and thoſe who admit the Metempſychoſis, ſay, That none but the Souls of Upright Perſons, can have the Privilege of paſſing into the Body of a Cow. But the Condition of the Women is lamentable in divers places there, when after the death of their Husbands, they muſt either throw themſelves into the fire, and have their Carkaſſes conſumed to aſhes, or be reputed infamous for ever. Thoſe that have Children, may be diſpenſed with as to this, by proteſting that they will never re-marry. They ſay, That this Law was occaſioned by the Women's poiſoning their Husbands to marry others; ſo that one of their Kings ordered, That they ſhould never ſurvive them, which ſtopt that courſe of Poiſoning; which, being once Eſtabliſhed as a politick thing, continued as a Point of Religion and Honour. All this great Country, to begin from the Gulph of Cambaya, towards Bengal near Jaganate, and on t'other ſide to Cape Comori, was about 200 Years ago, under the Dominion of one King only, who was a powerful Soveraign. But at preſent, it is divided amongſt divers Princes, who got poſſeſſion of it. The cauſe of this Diviſion was, that Raja, or King Ramras, the laſt of thoſe who poſſeſſed theſe States wholly, very inconſiderately raiſed three Gurgian Slaves he had, to be three Governors. The Firſt, to that of Decan; the Second, to a Province, ſince called the Kingdom of Viſapor; and the Third was made Governor of all that, now called the Kingdom of Golconda. Theſe Governors revolted all three unanimouſly, killed Ramras their Soveraign, and in the end, took upon them the Title of Cha or King. The Poſterity of Ramras, not finding themſelves ſtrong enough to hinder this Uſurpation, retrenched themſelves in the Country, commonly called Karnateck, and which Geographers call Biſnagar, where they are Raja's to this day. All the reſt of that Country was divided at the ſame time, by all theſe Raja's and Naiques now there. The Kings of Golconda have maintained themſelves well enough. That of Viſapor is always in War with the Grand Mogul, who got Decan within theſe few Years, having taken Priſoner King Nejam-Cha VIth. of the Governor's Family, who Uſurped this Kingdom. Bernier's Hiſtory of the Great Mogul. Tom. II. Some think, India to be that which the Scriptures call Havilah. It hath all ſorts of Metals, but Copper and Lead; all ſorts of Cattle but Horſes; and all ſorts of Corn but Wheat, which, together with Wine, are the only things they need from other Nations. The firſt diſcovery of theſe Countries, was in the latter Times during the Holy War. The Venetians found whilſt they poſſeſs'd Ptolemais, that there was a Trade to be driven by Caravans through Perſia and Tartary with the Indies, but then all Goods were brought to Alexandria, or ſome of the Aſian Ports, and ſo, by the Venetians, diffuſed over Europe; which Trade, was the Foundation of their Wealth and Greatneſs, and the true Cauſe of all the Wars with the Piſans and Genoeſe; in which the Venetians at laſt prevailed, and poſſeſſed this Trade, till the Portugueſe put an end to it, by the Diſcovery of the Paſſage about Africa, in 1497, by Vaſco de Gama, who was the firſt European that went that Way into the Eaſt-Indies. The Dutch Eaſt-India-Company was firſt Eſtabliſhed there, in 1597, which, in a ſhort time, ſo far prevailed againſt the Portugueſe, that they were like to have been beaten out of the whole Trade, and they are now much ſtronger in thoſe Places than the Portugueſe. The Engliſh have alſo conſiderable Plantations here, which will be found in their proper places.

INDICTION, ſignifies a Revolution of Fifteen Years. Many think, that this Cuſtom was introduced upon the occaſion of a Tax, ſettled for Fifteen Years, and continued for the like number of Years. The moſt ancient Author that has ſpoken of this Indiction, is, St. Athanaſius Arch-Biſhop of Alexandria; where he aſſures us, That the Synod of Antioch, was celebrated under the Conſulſhip of Marcellinus and Probinus, in the XIVth. Indiction, which was An. Ch. 341. Some date the Commencement of the Indiction, from the time of Julius Cæſar. Others will have it from the time of Auguſtus. But the more Authentick Chronologers ſay, That the Emperor Conſtantine the Great, did Eſtabliſh the Indictions, in Sept. An. 312. when he got the Victory at Pont-Mole near Rome, over the Tyrant Maxentius, who was Defeated there, and drowned in the Tiber. It is to be noted, That the Hiſtorians make mention of three Sorts of Indictions, the Firſt called Conſtantinopolitan, beginning with the Common Year of the Greeks, on the firſt of September. The Second called Imperial, on Account of Conſtantine's Victory above-mentioned, which begins on Sept. 24. And the Third called Roman or Pontifical, made uſe of in the Roman Bulls, which begins Jan. 1. with the Julian-Year. Some believe, That at the firſt it began at Chriſtmas. Theſe three Sorts of Indictions muſt be carefully diſtinguiſhed in reading Ancient Writers, Councils, and other Monuments of Græcian Antiquity. For the Conſtantinopolitan Indiction, beginning Septemb. 1. 312, the Imperial on Septemb. 24. the ſame Year, 312. and the Roman on Jan. 1. 313. That which happened, for Example, Sept. 5. 312, was in the ſecond Conſtantinopolitan Indiction, and in the firſt Imperial and Roman. That which happened Sept. 25. 312, was in the ſecond Conſtantinopolitan Indiction and Imperial, and in the firſt Roman. And laſtly, that which was on Jan. 10. 314. fell out in the ſecond Indiction of Conſtantinople, of the Emp. and of Rome. To find out the Indiction of every Year, there was a Method; which is, to add 3 to any Year of the Chriſtian Calculation that one would know, and to divide it by 15, the Remainder was to be the Indiction. But here is a Table which is eaſier and quicker: 'Tis alſo found in obſerving theſe Verſes,

Si per quindenos Domini diviſeris annos,
His tribus adjunctis Indictio certa patebit,
Si nil excedit quindena Indictio currit.

To find the Indiction of a Year, you are to ſee if it be any of thoſe Marked in the foregoing Table, and then that is to be the firſt of the Indiction: If not, you are to take the neareſt Number next preceding that Year, whoſe Indiction you would know. As for Example, for 1688. Take 1678, and thence count down to 1688; you ſhall find 11 the Indiction, 1689 ſhall have 12. And ſo of the reſt. If you would know the Conſtantinopolitan Indiction, or Imperial, you are to cut off 1 from each Number in the ſaid Table, putting 2 for 3, and 7 for 8. So to count at Sept. 1. for the Conſtantinopolitan Indiction, and at Sept. 24. for the Imperial Indiction.

INDIGETES, is a Name which the Ancients gave their Heroes, liſted in the Number of Gods; as, Hercules, Romulus, Cæſar, &c. The Ancients gave likewiſe the Name of Indigetes to a People of Spain, ſo called, and now inhabiting Ampourdan, in the Principality of Catalonia, upon the Frontiers of France, and the Earldom of Rouſſillon.

INDOSTAN, or the Empire of the Great Mogul, is bounded on the North with the Aſian Tartary, and the Kingdom of Thibet, on the Weſt by the Kingdom of Perſia, on the Eaſt by the River Coſmin or Coſmite, which ſeparates it from the reſt of the Indies; and on the South with the Bay of Bengale, and Promontory of Malabar. To the account of this Country under the Word Mogul, may be added, That its great Commerce brings it vaſt Sums of Gold and Silver, and that there is but little Exported. For Turkey, Arabia-Fœlix, and Perſia, cannot ſubſiſt without its Commerce. Its Merchandices are ſent to Pegu, Siam, to Macaſſar or Celebes, to Sumatra, Ceylan, Maldives, Mozambique, and other places, whence they have great ſtore of Gold. The Europeans alſo disburſe great Sums with them, which the Country People work into Goldſmith's works, and uſe in their Manufactures of Cloth of Silver and Gold, which they exchange for Braſs, Nutmegs, Cinnamon, &c. with the Hollanders; with the Engliſh for Lead, and the French for Scarlets; with thoſe of Usbeck and Perſia for Horſes. The Great Mogul's Treaſury is rich, almoſt beyond belief; for this Prince is Heir of all the Omra's or Lords of his Court, and of all the Manſeb dars or petty Omra's, that receive his Pay; beſides this, he has the Property of all the Lands of his Kingdom. This Empire is more ſubject to Civil Wars and Rebellions than any on the Earth, becauſe of the Diſputes which frequently happen betwixt the Sons of the Great Mogul for the Crown, and the turbulent Spirits of thoſe who dwell in Woods and Mountains, who were never entirely ſubdued, becauſe the principal part of the Emperor's Army conſiſting of that People, they favour them. See Mogul. Bernier's Hiſt. du Grand Mogul.

INDOUS, a ſort of Pagans in India, on the other ſide of the Ganges. They are no Banyans, for they kill and eat all ſorts of Beaſts, beſides Oxen and Cows. They believe One only God, and the Immortality of the Soul, but they ſpoil this Belief with a vaſt number of Superſtitions. They take their Meals within a Circle, into which they will not ſuffer the Banyans, whom they abhor, to enter. They are moſt of them Soldiers, and the Great Mogul makes uſe of them to Garriſon his beſt Places. Mandeſlo Tom. II. of Olearius.

INDULFUS LXXVIIth King of Scotland, begun his Reign about 959. The firſt ſeven Years he had Peace, but in the eighth of his Reign, the Danes being enraged that he had preferred the Alliance of the Engliſh to theirs; and that a perpetual League was made by the two Kings againſt them, they ſent a Navy under Command of Hago and Helvicus to invade Scotland; but being repulſed ſeveral times, they hoiſted Sail, as if they deſigned to return home, and coming back in a little time, landed in Boin in the North, whither Indulfus marched againſt them; and joining Battel, fought it with great Courage and Reſolution on both ſides, till Graham and Dunbar, with the Lothian Men, appearing upon the Rear of the Danes, put them into a Pannick fear, and obliged them to fly to their Ships, and elſewhere. Indulfus having diſarmed himſelf, that he might be the more nimble to purſue, was killed by an Arrow from a Ship, or, as ſome ſay, by a Body of the Enemy, while he purſued them with a ſmall force, in the 10th of his Reign. Buchan.

INDULGENCES, a Pardon, which in Morery's Language the Church gives to Penitents, in remitting the Puniſhment due to their Sins, and which otherwiſe they would be oblig'd to undergo, either in this World, or in Purgatory. It has always been the Belief (continues Morery) of the Catholicks, That the Son of God has given his Church a Power to Abſolve Penitents, not only from Sin, by vertue of the Merits of our Saviour, apply'd in the Sacrament of Penance, but likewiſe from the Obligation to Puniſhment, which they were liable to ſuffer, to ſatisfy the Divine Juſtice. Thus, ſays he, St. Paul, at the inſtance of the Corinthians, forgave the Excommunicated Perſon the remainder of his Penance, which otherwiſe he ought to have ſuffer'd for ſo great a Crime. And thus the Biſhops of the firſt Ages receiv'd the Laps'd, upon their return, and reconcil'd them to the Church, relaxing the Canons in their favour, and abridging the time of ſtated Penance; and all this at the interceſſion of the Martyrs, and in conſideration of their Merit and Sufferings, in conjunction with thoſe of our Saviour. This Cuſtom, ſays our Author, which has always been practis'd in the Church; upon the ceaſing of a Perſecution ſtands recommended, not only by the Authority of ancient Popes, as Gregory the Great, and Leo III. but likewiſe by the Councils of Nice, Ancyra and Laodicea, by that of Clermont in 1095, where they began to give Indulgences to thoſe who undertook the Croiſade, or Holy War. The ſaid practice was likewiſe continued in the Councils of Lateran, Lions, Vienne, and Conſtance. Clement VI. in his Decretal or Conſtitution, generally receiv'd by the Church of Rome, declares, That our Saviour has left an infinite Treaſure of Merits and Supererrogatory Satisfactions ariſing from his own Sufferings, together with thoſe of the Bleſſed Virgin, and the reſt of the Saints. That the Paſtors or Guides of the Church, and more eſpecially the Popes, who are the Soveraign Diſpoſers of this Treaſure, have Authority given them to apply it to the Living, by Vertue of the Keys, and to the Dead, by way of Suffrage, to diſcharge them from their reſpective proportions of Puniſhment, by taking as much Merit out of this General Treaſure as they conceive the Debt requires, and offering it to God Almighty. This, ſays Morery, is what ought to be believ'd upon the Point; but is likewiſe ſo frank as to confeſs, That as the beſt things are capable of being miſ-manag'd, ſo the buſineſs of Indulgence has been ſometimes very much abus'd. Thus St. Cyprian frequently complains, That the Martyrs gave their Letters of Communion, without due Caution and Examination of the Caſe; and that the Biſhops were too ſudden and too eaſy in this matter, which made Tertullian, Novatian, and ſome others, inſtead of objecting to the Abuſe, diſpute againſt the Thing, and write againſt Indulgences themſelves; not giving themſelves leiſure to conſider, that to argue from the Abuſe of a good Cuſtom, againſt the Uſe of it, was no true Reaſoning. Morery likewiſe complains of the ſeveral Abuſes committed upon this account, ſaying, It was one of the chief things which the Council of Conſtance charged againſt Pope John XXIII. in 1415. That he Impower'd his Legates to Eſtabliſh Confeſſors; to Abſolve Penitents from Crimes of all Natures, upon payment of Sums proportionable to their Guilt; and gives us this Account of what paſſed under Pope Leo X. This Prelate, ſays he, having undertaken to carry on and finiſh the great Structure, begun by his Predeceſſor Julius II. publiſhed Indulgences and Plenary Remiſſion, to all ſuch as ſhould contribute thereunto; and finding the Project take, gave his Siſter, the Princeſs of Cibo, the Benefit of the Indulgences of Saxony, and other neighbouring Parts, letting thoſe of other Countries to the higheſt Bidders; who, to make the moſt of their Bargains, made choice of the ableſt Preachers to cry up and ſet out the worth of the Ware. The Archbiſhop of Mentz pitch'd upon John Texal, a Dominican, who aſſociating himſelf with ſome others of that Order, began to diſcharge their Office, when John Stupitz, Vicar-General of the Auguſtins, being angry that his Society, who were formerly made uſe of in this Affair, ſhould now be laid aſide; and obſerving the palpable Abuſes of the Preachers and Receivers of the Money, complained of it firſt to the Elector of Saxony, then addreſſed himſelf to Martin Luther, of his own Order, and a Man of great Reputation in the Univerſity of Wirtemberg for his Parts, Learning, and Natural Eloquence, who firſt preached againſt the Preachers, then againſt the Indulgences, and ſoon after expoſed the other Abuſes and Corruptions of the Church of Rome. Maimbourg's Hiſt. du Lutheraniſme. Hoffman and Spanheim give this Account of the Original of Indulgences, That the Primitive Church being very rigid, in exacting Penance for Offences, as, 1. Πρόσκλαυσις, i. e. Standing and Mourning before the Church Door. 2. Ἀκρόασις, i. e. Admitting them to hear the Word, but not to Prayers. 3. Ὑπόπτωσις, or Proſtration, when they were admitted to the Word, and ſome Prayers, but not to the Sacrament. 4. Σύστασις, when they were admitted to all the Prayers, but not to the Sacraments; which various Steps did ſometimes take up the Penitent's whole Life. Upon which, many were driven to Deſperation, or Apoſtatiz'd to Gentiliſm. Hereupon a Temperament was found out to remit the harſhneſs of this Canonical Penance, which was afterwards abuſed and degenerated into thoſe now called Indulgences, which Fiſher Biſhop of Rocheſter, in his 18th Article againſt Luther, acknowledged to have been but of a late Riſe in the Church of Rome.

INDUS, a famous River, from which the Indians have their Names. Now they call it variouſly, as Sinda, Hynd, Indo, Diul, Indel, and Cacreede, according to the ſeveral Countries it Waters. It Riſes from the Mount Paropamiſus, part of Mount Caucaſus, which ſome call Naugracut, and takes in 19 Rivers; the moſt conſiderable of which, are Hydaſpes and Hypaſis, where Alexander the Great limited his Conqueſts, Send, Behat, Nilab, Ravea, Caoul, &c. It throws it ſelf into the Indian Sea at five Mouths, two being ſtopped up. Authors ſpeak variouſly of it, and eſpecially Pliny, upon the Conqueſts of Alexander the Great.

INGELHEIM upon the Rhine, a Borough of Germany, in the Lower Palatinate, between Mayence and Bingen. The Latin Authors call it Ingelhemium, and Ingelenhemium. The Emperor Charlemaigne was born there in 742, and afterwards repaired it; and Lewis the Debonaire died there in 840. This Borough ſtands eight Miles W. of Mentz, and as many E. of Bingen. Long. 27. 30. Lat. 49. 55. It was burnt by the French in 1691.

The Councils of Ingelheim.

In the Year 788, Taſſillon Duke of Bavaria was accuſed by his own Subjects, before a Council of Prelates, and convicted of Treaſon, and was condemned by his Peers to die: But Charlemaigne alter'd the Puniſhment ſo, as that this Duke, and Theodon's Sons, were only ſhaved, and baniſhed to the Monaſtery of Loreſheim, and afterwards to that of Jumiega. The Diſpute for the Archbiſhoprick of Rheims, between Hugo de Vermandois and Artold, had divided the Minds of People in the Xth Century. Agapet II. ſent Marinus, his Legate, to Otho King of Germany, ordering him to aſſemble a General Council of the Gauls and Germans, as well to determine this Difference, as to decide the Quarrels of King Lewis IV. called Outremer, and Hugh le Blanc. This Council was called at Ingelheim, An. 948. The two Kings aſſiſted, and ſate upon the ſame Bench. Lewis laid open all the Injuries which Hugo did him, and offered to juſtify himſelf in what manner the Council would, or give him Battel. Upon theſe Complaints, the Aſſembly wrote to Hugo to return to his Duty, upon pain of being Anathematized. Artold was confirmed in the Archbiſhoprick of Rheims, and his Competitor excommunicated till he had done Penance.

INGELRAM, ANGELRAM, or ENGELRAM, Biſhop of Metz, was in eſteem about the end of the VIIIth Century. He was at firſt Almoner, or Arch-Chaplain to Charlemaigne. About 769, he ſucceeded St. Chrodegamge, and was at the Council of Francfort. After this, Charlemaigne ſent him to Rome, and it was by him that Pope Adrian ſent the Collection of Canons, which was not nevertheleſs received at firſt in France. This happened An. 781. Angelram had the Title of Archbiſhop, and was employed in the great Affairs of the Times. He died Decemb. 25. 791. Hincmar, Epiſt. 3. cap. 1. 5. Alcuin, Epiſt. 24. Paul Diacre, de Epiſc. Memenſ. Sainte Marthe, Gail Chriſt. de Marca, de Concord, &c.

INGENEERS, are they that apply themſelves particularly to Military Architecture, or Fortifications. They derive this Name from their ingenious Inventions in the Defence and Sieges of Towns. The firſt that wrote of this as a particular Art, were Ramelli and Cataneo, Italians. After theſe, appeared John Erard, under Henry IV. of France; Simon Stevin under the Prince of Orange. Marolois, the Chevalier de Ville, Lorrini, Pagan and Mallet were alſo in great Reputation. The laſt has publiſhed a Treatiſe in three Volumes, intituled, The Works of Mars, or Art of War. Vauban, chief Ingeneer to the preſent King of France, is ſaid to have much perfected Fortification, and the Methods of Attack. Felibien Principes des Artes.

INGENUUS, a Governor in Pannonia, whom the Soldiers declared Emperor under the Empire of Galienus, who then addicted himſelf to all manner of Wickedneſs; but he was unſucceſsful in this Revolt, being defeated and killed at Murſa, a City of Pannonia, about 261. Others ſay, That he killed himſelf, for fear he ſhould fall into the hands of his Enemy. Trebellius Pollio's Hiſt. of the 30 Tyrants. Aurelius Victor in Ep. Hiſt.

INGERBURGEA, a Queen of France, was Daughter of Waldemarus I. of that Name, King of Denmark. She was married to Philip Auguſtus, in the City of Amiens, An. 1193. and was crowned the next Day: But 28 Days after the King divorced her at Compeigne, under pretence of Kin, and married Agnes of Merania, An. 1196. Canutus IV. King of Denmark, made his Complaint to Pope Cæleſtine III. who made a great Stir; and in the Council held at Dijon, An. 1199. Peter of Cappadocia being Legate, excommunicated the King, and put the Kingdom under an Interdiction. This grieved Philip. He made his Complaint to Cardinal William de Champaigne Archbiſhop of Rheims, and to other Prelates, who conſented to the Repudiation, and in the mean time he ſhut up Ingerburgea in the Caſtle of Eſtampes, An. 1200. But ſeeing afterwards that the Council of Soiſſons, aſſembled An. 1201. would not Abſolve him, but on Condition that he ſhould take his Wife again, he took her, without ſpeaking either to the Biſhops or Legates. Some time after he ſent back Ingerburgea to live at the Caſtle d'Eſtampes, and re-took her in 1213. She died at Corbeil in 1236, aged 60 Years. Some Authors write, That ſhe had ſome ſecret faults, which the King could not endure. She had no Children. William the Briton; Rigold. Mezeray.

INGERMANLAND, Lat. Ingria, called by others Iſera Ingria. A Province of the Kingdom of Swedeland, which has Moſcovia Eaſtward, Livonia Weſtward, and between the Lake Ladoga and the Gulf, that of Finland. The River of Nerva is there as a Chanel between the Lake and this Gulf. Ingria belonged formerly to the Muſcovites, who yielded it to the Swedes by a Treaty in 1617. This Land is conſiderable for Elk-hunting. Its principal Boroughs are Nottebourgh, Juanogorod, Caporia, Jamogorod, Gam, &c.

INGOLSTADT upon the Danube. Lat. Ingolſtadium, a City of Germany in Bavaria, with an Univerſity, founded An. 1410, and increaſed in 1459, by Lewis Duke of Bavaria, who obtained a great many Privileges for it of Pope Pius II. This City lies between Newbourgh and Ratisbonne. The King of Swedeland could not take this City, tho' he beſieged it during the laſt German Wars, in 1632. He was like to be killed there by a Canon Shot. It is very well Fortified, with a fine Bridge upon the Danube. All the Houſes there being of Wood, are built at ſmall diſtances to prevent the Accidents of Fire. It is 13 Miles Eaſt of Newburgh, 28 Weſt of Ratisbonne, and 45 North of Munchen. Long. 31. 32. Lat. 48. 43. Cluvier Germ. Zeiler. Itiner. Germ. Middendorp de Acad. Bertius de reb. German.

INGOLSTETER (John) a German Phyſician of Note. He compoſed divers Works; and, among others, one upon the Subject of a Golden Tooth, which ſome pretended that John, Son of Sileſius, named Chriſtopher Muller, had naturally. Iſagog. in Ph. Ariſtotelis. Diſſertatio de natura occultorum & prodigioſorum. &c. Melchior. Adam in Vit. Med. German.

INGONDA, Daughter of Sigebert I. King of Metz, or Auſtraſia. She married Hermenigildus, a Spaniſh Prince, Son of Levigildus King of the Viſigoths, in 580. This Prince ſhe converted from being an Arrian, to the Catholick Religion; which ſo incenſed his Mother-in-Law, that ſhe treated her with the utmoſt indignity. In the mean time Hermenigildus, who had called the Greeks to his Aſſiſtance, was taken, and ſuffered Martyrdom at Toledo, April 13. being Eaſter-Eve, An. 586, as I ſaid elſewhere. Ingonda was taken by theſe very Greeks; but before ſhe could reach Conſtantinople, ſhe died of Diſcontent in Africa, about 585. She had one Son, called Athanagildus. Gregory of Tours, lib. 5, 6. & 7. Iſidorus in Chron. &c.

INGULPHUS, an Engliſhman, born at London in 1030. His Father was one of Edward the Confeſſor's Courtiers. Ingulphus was firſt Educated at a School in Weſtminſter, and afterwards at the Univerſity of Oxford, where he principally applied himſelf to the reading of Ariſtotle and Tully. In the Year 1051, William Duke of Normandy coming into England, for an Interview with King Edward, Ingulphus was made known to him; attended him into Normandy, and was made his Secretary and Principal Favourite. But fearing the Intereſt he had with ſo great a Prince, might procure him envy, he retired from Court, and went in Pilgrimage to the Holy Land: At his return he turn'd Monk, and was ſoon after made Prior of the Abby of Fontenels in Normandy. In the Year 1076, William Duke of Normandy having now gain'd the Kingdom of England, ſent for him over, and made him Abbot of Croyland. By the Intereſt he had with the King, and Lanfranc the Archbiſhop, he was very ſerviceable to his Monaſtery. He died in 1109. He wrote the Hiſtory of the Monaſtery of Croyland, from the Year 664, to 1091. This Hiſtory was publiſh'd at London by Sir Henry Savil, in 1596; but the Oxford Edition of 1684, is much more enlarg'd and correct. Voſſius Lib. 2. *de Hiſt. INHAMBANO, a Kingdom of Africa in Lower Æthiopia, between the Caffres and Monomotapa, Eaſtward of the Lake Zambre. The People and Country we do not well know.

INHAMIOR, a Kingdom of Africa, in Lower Æthiopia, upon the Frontiers of the Countries of the Caffres. It lies along the River Cuama, and they ſay that it has depended upon Monomotapa for ſome conſiderable time.

INNERLOCHTI, a Town in Loughabar, formerly a very conſiderable Mart, for which it has a very noble and convenient ſituation; but being ruined in the Wars with the Danes, hath never recovered its ancient Glory. The Country about it is ſo pleaſant, that the Kings of Scotland did formerly make it the place of their Reſidence, in a Caſtle called Evonia. It is much noted of late for the Garriſon and Fort there, commanded by Col. Hill, to curb the Highlanders.

INNERNESSE, an ancient Town in the North of Scotland, Capital of a County of that ſame Name, whereof the Duke of Gordon is Hereditary Sheriff. It is a Town of conſiderable Trade, and ſituated upon the River Neſſe, which is Navigable, and hath this peculiar Quality, tho' in a cold Country, that it never freezes, but diſſolves Ice when thrown into it. The River has its Source from a Lake called Loghneſſe, about 30 Miles in length, but of various breadths; in ſome places being about 12, in others not above 8. 'Tis of great uſe for conveying vaſt Flotes of Timber from the neighbouring Countries to Innerneſſe; and the River has a noble Salmon-fiſhing.

Popes of the Name of INNOCENT.

INNOCENT I. born at Alba, ſucceeded Pope Anaſtaſius I. on Sunday, May 18. 402. He cenſured the Perſecutors of St. John Chryſoſtom, and ſent a Letter to John of Jeruſalem about his taking part with Pelagius, againſt St. Jerom, and giving him occaſion to publiſh his Errors in the Eaſt. He appointed a Faſt on every Saturday, becauſe our Saviour lay in the Grave that Day. He baniſhed the Cataphrygian Hereticks, and condemned the Hereſie of Pelagius and Cœleſtine: And in his Time the Synod of Bourges condemned the Priſcillianiſts. Platina. He died in 417. In the Year 409, Honorius the Emperor ſent him Ambaſſador to Alaricus King of the Goths, to perſwade him not to lay Siege to Rome. This Embaſſy of his did not prevent the Siege, however Pope Innocent had this advantage by it, as to his Perſon, that he withdrew to Ravenna, and ſo eſcap'd, being at Rome when it was Sack'd by the Barbarians. Of the 34 Epiſtles which are ſaid to be written by him, the Magdeburgenſes, and ſeveral others, pretend the firſt 23 are Spurious. They argue from the barbarity of the Stile, from the miſapplications of Scripture, from miſtakes in Belief and Chronology, and from the mention of ſeveral Eccleſiaſtical Rites at that time not in uſe. Eraſmus makes the ſame objection to the three following Epiſtles; and Papebrochius, a Roman Catholick, does not ſtick to confeſs that the greateſt part of his Epiſtles are ſtrongly to be ſuſpected, upon the Score of their defects in Chronology. Cave Hiſt. Lit. pars prima. Gennad. de vir. Illuſtr. cap. 43. Zozim. lib. 5. Baron. in Annal. A. C. 402.

INNOCENT II. a Roman, before called Gregory. He was the Son of John de Papareſcis, and created Cardinal by Pope Urban II. in 1088. He accompanied Pope Gelaſius into France; and Calixtus II. ſent him Legate into Germany. He had other conſiderable Employments before he was choſen Pope, in the room of Honorius II. Feb. 14. 1130. when at the ſame time Peter the Son of Leo was choſen Anti-Pope, and took the Name of Anaclete II. whoſe Intereſt was eſpouſed by the Romans, thoſe of Milan, Roger Duke of Sicily, and many others; which obliged Innocent to retire to France, where he held ſeveral Councils, viz. at Clermont, Rheims and Puy en Velay, at the ſame time that he was declared lawful Pope by another Council which the French Prelates held at Eſtampes, where St. Bernard was preſent, and ſtrongly aſſerted the Right of Innocent. The Pope arrived at Liege, March 22. 1131. and crowned the Emperor in that City. Octob. 25. the ſame Year, he crowned King Lewis the Younger at Rheims. Afterwards returning to Italy, he held Councils at Placentia and Piſa, and made his Entrance into Rome with the Emperor Lotharius, and in 1139 held the IId General Council of Lateran, wherein he condemned Abailardus, and his Diſciple Arnoldus de Breſcia; and in the ſame Year was taken Priſoner by Roger King of Sicily, againſt whom he was engaged in War. But this Quarrel was afterwards compoſed by the Pope's beſtowing upon him the Inveſtiture of the Crown of Sicily, for which he ſwore Fealty and Homage to him. He had an Interview with Henry King of England, at Chartres in La Beauſſe, wherein he endeavoured to perſwade him to take a Voyage into the Holy Land. He ordained in the Lateran Council, that no Laick ſhould lay violent hands on a Clergy-man. Innocent died September 24. 1143. Platina ſays 1144, after having held the Chair 13 Years, 7 Months and 10 Days. Baron. in Annal. Ciaconius in Innocent II.

INNOCENT III. was born at Anagnia, of the Family of the Earls of Signia. He was before called Joannes Lotharius, and made Cardinal by Pope Cœleſtine III. or as ſome ſay, Clement III. He was elected Pope at the Age of 37, in 1198. and ſet up a Croiſade againſt the Albigenſes. In 1215. he celebrated a General Lateran Council, in which Tranſubſtantiation was made an Article of Faith, and that all Chriſtian Princes infected with Hereſie, ſhould be Depos'd. And the ſame Year the Monaſtick Rules of St. Dominick and St. Francis, were, upon pretence of ſome extraordinary Viſions, confirmed by him; and died July 15. 1216. at Peruſia. He writ divers Works, viz. Commentaries upon the 7 Penitential Pſalms, 3 Books de Contemptu Mundi, ſive de Miſeria Hominis, beſides 4 Books of Letters. Trithem. Sixt. Senenſ. Bellarm. Poſſevin. Spondanus. Bzovius. Ludovic. Jacob. Biblioth. Pontificum. He confirmed Otho IV. in the Empire, in oppoſition to Philip Duke of Tuſcany. He endeavoured to ſtir up the Chriſtians to the Holy War. He excommunicated Otho V. whom he had crowned Emperor, and deprived him of his Imperial Titles, for uſurping ſome of the Territories of the Church, and attempting to wreſt the Kingdom of Naples from Frederick II. a Minor. In his Time John King of England, that he might procure his Aſſiſtance againſt the King of France, made the Kingdoms of England and Ireland Tributary to the See of Rome. He condemned the Hereſie of Almericus, who maintained, That the Idea's that are in the Divine Mind were created, and did create others. Matth. Paris ſpeaking of King John, gives this Pope but a hard Character; his words are theſe, Noverit, inquit, & multiplici didicerat experientia quod Papa ſuper omnes Mortales, ambitioſus erat & ſuperbus, & ad omnia ſcelera pro præmiis datis vel promiſſis cereus & proclivis. Platina. Matth. Paris, p. 245.

INNOCENT IV. born at Genoua of the Family of the Flischi, Earls of Lavagna. Before his Election, which happened in 1243, he was call'd Sinibaldus. His Skill in the Civil Law was ſo conſiderable, that they called him the Father of that Faculty. The Emperor Frederick II. who had formerly been his Friend, laid an Ambuſh for him in his Journey, and us'd him ill, as Platina reports. The Pope complain'd to him of this miſconduct, but not receiving ſatisfaction, he called a General Council at Lions, where, in 1245, the Emperor was Excommunicated. This Pope gave a red Hat to the Cardinals, for an Honourable diſtinction, and to put them in mind that they ought to ſpend their Blood in defence of the Church. After the concluſion of the Council at Lions, the Pope viſited St. Lewis King of France at Cluny, who was then preparing for an Expedition againſt the Infidels. Frederick II. died in 1250, and the Year after, the Pope left Lions, where he had ſtay'd ſix Years and a half, and returned into Italy, but went not to Rome till the Year 1252. And now he had an Invitation to recover the Kingdom of Naples, which he accordingly attempted, but Manfred defeated his Troops, together with the Saracen Auxiliaries of Luceria. This misfortune made ſuch an impreſſion upon him, that it haſten'd his death, which happen'd in December 1254. His Works are, Commentarius in V. Libros Decretalium. Epiſtolæ XX. Concil. Tom. XI. Liber Apologeticus de Poteſtate Eccleſiaſtica & Juriſdictione Imperii contra Petrum de Vineis, &c. Matth. Paris. Trithemius. Sixtus Senenſis, Bellarmin, &c.

INNOCENT V. formerly called Peter of Tarantaiſe, a Burgundian and Dominican, and very well Skill'd in the Learning of the Scriptures. He was created Pope at Arezzo, in the Year of Our Lord 1275, and immediately apply'd himſelf to compoſe the Affairs of Italy. To this purpoſe he ſent his Legates to perſwade the People of Tuſcany, and the Piſans, to an Accommodation; and the Genoueſes and Venetians to agree to a Ceſſation of Arms. The People of Tuſcany comply'd, but the Genoueſe and Venetians, whoſe Animoſities run higher, kept the Field againſt each other; however, 'tis thought, if the Pope had liv'd longer, he might have brought them over to his Opinion, but he died in the ſixth Month of his Pontificate. Platina reports him to have been a very good Man, and that Chriſtendom might reaſonably have expected a great deal of advantage from his Government. He wrote Commentaries upon the 4 Books of the Sentences, publiſh'd at Toulouſe 1652. He wrote likewiſe Expoſitions on ſeveral parts of the Old and New Teſtament, &c. Onuphrius Chron. Sixtus Senenſis. Bellarmine de Script. Eccl. Platina, &c.

INNOCENT VI. before called Stephen Albert, was a French-Man, and Biſhop of Clermont. He ſucceeded Clement VI. Decemb. 18. 1352. The See being then at Avignon, he endeavoured the Reformation of the Court of Rome, which was very corrupt, and to put an End to the War between the Kings of England and France, but without Succeſs; and cauſed Joannes de Rupe ſciſſa, a Franciſcan, to be burnt, for interpreting the Revelation of St. John againſt the Popes, and calling them Antichriſts. He ſuſpended the Indulgences granted by his Predeceſſor, and commanded all Eccleſiaſticks to repair to their Benefices, on pain of Excommunication; ſaying, That they ought not to leave their Flocks to Hirelings. He had Wars with ſeveral Princes, who, as he pretended, uſurped the Patrimony of the Church; and had many Diſputes with the Citizens of Rome, who attempted to make an Innovation in the Magiſtracy. A little before his Death there was an extraordinary Eclipſe of the Sun. As for his Character, he was a Man of an exact Life, of great Conſtancy and Severity, and beſtowed Eccleſiaſtical Preferments upon none but Men of good Lives and Learning. He alſo retrench'd his Houſhold-Expences, and leſſen'd his Family, and would have none but honeſt Men about him. He had taken a great deal of pains to reconcile the Princes of Chriſtendom, and was ſo much concern'd at his being diſappointed, that 'twas thought it occaſion'd his death. Platina. Spondanus in Annal.

INNOCENT VII. called before Coſmus Melioratus of Sulmona, was choſen after Boniface IX. Octob. 17. 1404. at the time of the Schiſm cauſed by Petrus de Luna, who called himſelf Benedict XIII. Before his Election he was obliged to ſwear that he would quit the Papacy, in caſe Benedict would do the ſame; but when created Pope, did not think fit to be ſo good as his Word. Innocent was really a Perſon of great Abilities, but was blamed for loving his Relations too well; the Romans gave him ſome trouble upon this Score, but his Nephew puniſh'd their misbehaviour by putting 11 of them to death: Which ſo exaſperated them, that they called Ladiſlaus King of Naples to their Aſſiſtance, and Innocent was fain to retire to Viterbo, from whence he did not return to Rome till 1405, where having Excommunicated Ladiſlaus, he died the ſame Year, having held the Papacy two Years and 22 Days. Gregory XII. ſucceeded him. Spond.

INNOCENT VIII. a Genoeſe, of a Noble Family, (his Father being a Knight, Count of the Empire, and Senator of Rome) was born in 1432. In his Youth, before he was a Church-man, he liv'd a great while in the Court of Ferdinand Biſhop of Naples. He was afterwards made Biſhop of Savonna by Paul II. and Cardinal of Melfi by Sixtus IV. whom he ſucceeded in the Popedom in 1484. His Temper was generous and obliging, which made him keep a fair Correſpondence with the Princes of Chriſtendom, whom he endeavoured to unite againſt the Turks; but this deſign, tho' not taking effect, brought a great Sum of Money into his Exchequer, part of which he imployed in a War againſt the King of Naples; who, beſides denying the uſual Tribute due to the See of Rome, was charg'd with Oppreſſion, and other Inſtances of Male-adminiſtration. This Pope eas'd the Church of the Burthen of extraordinary Taxes, and Retrench'd his Family. He likewiſe Excommunicated ſeveral Women for Poiſoning and Sorcery. Before he was made Pope, he had two Sons by a Gentlewoman of Naples; where he had formerly lived in the Quality of a Courtier. Theſe Children he left Rich, and married Francis, the eldeſt, to Magdalen, a Daughter of Lawrence de Medicis, one of the fineſt Princeſſes then living. This Pope is ſaid to be fond of his Children to an exceſs, inſomuch that his Affection overrul'd his Juſtice in favour of them. He died in 1492, after having held the See ſeven Years. Onuphrius and Ciaconius in Vit. Pontif. Ricaut, &c.

INNOCENT IX. of Bononia, called Joannes Antonius Fachineti, was choſen after Gregory XIV. Octob. 29. 1591. and died two Months after his Election. There were great Things expected from him.

INNOCENT X. a Roman, by Name Joannes Baptiſta Pamphilius, of an Ancient Family, was choſen after Urban VIII. Septemb. 15. 1644. He was cenſur'd for ſuffering Donna Olympia, his Brother's Wife, to have an Aſcendant over him, and govern his Affairs. He condemned the five Propoſitions of the Janſeniſts in 1653, and died Jan. 7. 1655. He diſguſted the Barberini, tho' he was choſen by their Means: Whereupon they made Application to Cardinal Mazarini, to be reconciled with France, and to be protected by that Crown; having beforehand received a Repulſe from the King of Spain. But Mazarini thinking it a good Expedient to Balance the Power of the Houſe of Auſtria in the Conclave, obtained their Deſire, on Condition that, as a Pledge of their Fidelity, they ſhould purchaſe Lands within the Territories of France. So that the King, by a publick Letter to the Pope, ſignified, That he had taken the Barberini into Favour, An. 1645. Which ſo provoked His Holineſs, that he appointed five Cardinals to demand an Account of the Publick Money received by the Barberini during their Uncle's Pontificate, and to proceed againſt them in Law as they ſhould find occaſion. Which ſeverity againſt the Nephews of a former Pope, was thought very ſtrange in this Innocent, conſidering his great Paſſion to promote his Relations; and particularly his Nephew, Cardinal Pámphilio, by Donna Olympia, who had an entire Command over him; and was ſo extraordinary ambitious, and covetous, that ſhe would ſuffer none to ſhare in the Government with her. In January 1646, the Barberini, in compliance to the Pope's Orders, gave in their Accounts, which he excepted againſt with much indignation and prejudice, and ſequeſter'd their Eſtates; ſo that they were forced to betake themſelves to Sanctuaries to ſecure their Perſons, and at laſt withdrew into France; whence the Biſhop of Angiers was ſent to Rome on their Behalf. The Venetians alſo eſpouſed their Cauſe. The Pope giving no ſatisfactory Anſwer, the French King ordered his Ambaſſador, at the Treaty of Munſter, to acquaint the Ambaſſadors of other Princes, That all proceedings would be obſtructed if the Barberini were not reſtored. The Abbot of St. Nicholas having obtained Audience of the Pope, endeavoured to poſſeſs him with the Danger of refuſing to gratifie the French King in this Affair; but had no ſatisfactory Anſwer. Inſomuch that, An. 1647. the French attacked Orbitello, and ſeized St. Stephano, which mightily alarm'd the City of Rome; ſo that, by the Interceſſion of the Princes of Italy, the Pope became more flexible, and granted ſeveral things in favour of the Barberini: But, as ſoon as the Marquiſs de Torrecuſo had obliged the French to raiſe the Siege of Orbitello, the Pope renewed his Hatred againſt them, and vented his Spight againſt Cardinal Mazarini. Whereupon, another French Fleet was ſent againſt Italy, which took Piombino, and Porto Longoni; which made the Pope become more gentle to the Barberini. But conſidering that France was then embroiled in Civil Wars, he did not afterwards much regard the Applications of its Miniſters; nor did he concern himſelf to procure a Peace between them and Spain, as appears by this following paſſage. Looking out at his Window, and ſeeing two Porters at Cuffs, he forbad the People to part them; and when, after half an hours Scuffle, they parted of themſelves, So, ſaid he, will the French and Spaniards do, when they have fought their fill. He ſent Miniſters to the Treaty of Munſter; where Chigi, his Nuncio, perceiving that a great part of the Eccleſiaſtical Revenues, and many Church-Benefices, were left in the Poſſeſſion of the Reformed, he ſolemnly proteſted againſt that Peace; and was ſo incenſed at the Liberty of Conſcience granted by the Treaty of Oſnabrug, at the ſame Time, that he tore the Papers about the Peace, reſolving not to proceed farther therein. In 1651, the Intereſt of France was ſo low at Rome, that its Miniſters received many Affronts; which being reſented by the French Court, the Pope, to rid himſelf of their Importunities, enter'd into a ſtrict Correſpondence with Spain, and offered a Reconciliation with the Barberini, who greedily embraced the Occaſion, and in 1653, were reſtored to his Favour, and put him upon ſubduing the Kingdom of Naples; which equally diſpleaſed the Courts of France and Spain: But Cardinal Antonio Barberini remained firm to the Intereſt of France. This Pope had alſo a Controverſie with the Duke of Parma in 1649, and the latter, puffed up with the Hopes of the French King's Aſſiſtance, ventured too far into the Pope's Territories; for his Army was defeated, and the Town of Caſtro taken, and razed, by the Pope's Order: So that the Duke was forced to compound with him. The Death of this Pope was no ſooner divulged, but all People rejoyced: The Cardinals in hope of their Promotion: The Clergy, becauſe they were freed of the Simony and Scandal of Donna Olympia: And the Common People, for the Liberties allowed on ſuch Occaſions. And now having mention'd the Miſcarriages of this Pope, it is but juſt to touch a little upon the beſt part of his Character. He was then, very exact in doing Juſtice, and made it his buſineſs to puniſh Partiality and Corruption in his Officers, with great Severity. He was likewiſe well vers'd in Buſineſs, and might have deſerv'd the Character of a Skilful underſtanding Perſon, had he not been over-rul'd in his Conduct by Donna Olympia. Ricaut's Contin.

INNOCENT XI. called before Benedict Odeſcalchi, was born at Como, in the Dutchy of Milan, in 1611. of Noble Parentage, had his Grammar-learning under the Jeſuits, ſtudied the Laws at Rome, was Clerk of the Chamber to Urban VIII. and Innocent X. who made him Cardinal in 1645, and afterwards Legate of Bononia, and Biſhop of Navarra. He was choſen Pope by the Intereſt of the Cardinal-Zealots, who pretended to have nothing elſe in their Eyes but the good of the Church, and were 16 in number. The French Faction deſigned to chuſe Roſpiglioſi, and failing him, were alſo for Odeſcalchi: But when it came to the Point, Cardinal d'Eſtree put off the Determination of the Choice for ſome time, till he received ſome Diſpatches from France; and in the mean time, other Cardinals were ſet up; but both the Cardinals within, and the People without, fixed their inclinations on Odeſcalchi: So that, during this Delay, the Cardinals did nothing but quarrel with one another, and with ſo little Civility, that Colonna and Maldachino did mutually call Fool and Beaſt; but that betwixt the Cardinals Howard and Bullion was moſt remarkable, the former having upbraided the latter with not re-paying him a Viſit, was anſwered, That he was forbid by the French King, to acknowledge any Cardinal of the laſt Promotion by Clement X. But Cardinal Howard would not allow this Excuſe, alledging the particular Favours ſhowed him by the French King, in his Journey through France; as, honouring him with his own Coaches, and commanding the Governors of all the Cities through which he paſſed, to treat him with the Reſpect due to a Cardinal, and the Dignity of his Illuſtrious Family. The Conclave, looking upon this as a thing of dangerous conſequence, writ to the French King, to Order his Ambaſſador and Cardinals to own thoſe ſix Cardinals above-mentioned. In the mean time, Altieri and his Adherents oppoſed Odeſcalchi, but in vain; and Couriers returning from France, with Approbation of Odeſcalchi, the Matter was concluded, and he ſeemed unwilling to accept the Office, till the Cardinals ſubſcribed an Aſſent to the Reformation of the Church-Government, as he propoſed it to them; and being Choſen, he took the Name of Innocent XI. and the firſt who had the privilege to kiſs his Foot was the Queen of Sweden. The News of his Election was received with Univerſal Joy, but no Alteration appeared in his Countenance, except that he was more penſive; and when he Bleſſed the People, he ſhed abundance of Tears. The firſt Thing that he did, was to regulate the Abuſes of the Nepotiſm, but that his own Nephew Don Livio Odeſcalchi might not complain of his Severity, he gave him his own Eſtate, which was Thirty Thouſand Crowns per Annum. Next he retrenched the Expences of his own Family, and the Privileges of Ambaſſadors in protecting Criminals. He promoted a Reformation of Manners, and of the Abuſes crept into the Church, as Simony, &c. And appointed four Cardinals, to examine the Lives of thoſe who ſought after Biſhopricks, Baniſhed the Strumpets from Rome, ſuppreſſed playing for Money, and Lewd Houſes, and took care that the Barons of Rome ſhould not cheat their Creditors. Queen Chriſtina of Sweden, having loſt the greateſt part of her Revenue by the Wars, he ordered her a Penſion of 12000 Crowns per Annum. His next Endeavours were for a Peace, betwixt France and the Houſe of Auſtria, and a War againſt the Turks. His firſt trouble was with the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, who not being ſatisfied with his puniſhing of thoſe who affronted the Spaniards, on account of their undue Practices in Levying Men for Sicily, Demanded a farther Satisfaction, and refrained from coming to Court, the Vice-Roy of Naples denying Audience likewiſe to his Nuncio; at which the Pope being incenſed, complained highly in the Conſiſtory, that he ſhould be thus requited for his good Offices to that Crown. And therefore publiſhed an Edict, forbidding all People whatſoever to affix the Arms of any Foreign Prince, or great Perſonage, over their Door, alledging the ſame to be a renouncing of his Authority; at which, the Spaniards were extreamly ſurprized, and their Ambaſſador deſired Audience, which was refuſed, till that ſame Privilege was granted to the Nuncio at Naples, and that the King of Spain ſhould deſire it under his own hand; but this difference was amicably adjuſted. His next Conteſt was with Lewis XIV. about the Regale, or the King's Right to diſpoſe of Eccleſiaſtical Benefices and Church-Lands, which the ſaid Monarch did poſitively Claim, by a Declaration in 1673, and put it in Practice in 1676. of which the Pope complained in 1678, and in Dec. 1679, the Controverſy came to be managed with ſome heat. Cardinal d'Eſtree was Diſpatched to Rome on purpoſe; but the Pope continued ſteady, and the Parliament of Paris were as zealous for the King's Prerogative, and condemned the Pope's Brief in 1681. And to give more Authority to their Sentence, an Aſſembly of the Clergy, conſiſting of 6 Archbiſhops, 26 Biſhops, and 6 named to Biſhopricks, with the Delegates of the Inferior Clergy, was called, to whom were repreſented the Invaſions made by the Pope on the Gallican Church, and they determined for the King, 1. That the Pope had no Power to intermeddle in Civil or Temporal Matters. 2. That his Power is no other, than what was Allowed him by the Council of Conſtance. 3. That his Power is regulated by Canons. 4. That his Decrees extend to the Churches in General, unleſs they be Repealed by Conſent of the Univerſal Church. 5. That they received this Doctrine from their Fore-fathers, and by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt; they Decreed to ſend unto all the Gallican Churches, and the Biſhops preſiding over them; and theſe Reſolutions were Subſcribed by the Aſſembly, and Regiſtred by the King's Attorney-General, March 23. 1682. After this, the Aſſembly made ſeveral Propoſals of Accomodation between the King and Pope, but both Parties appearing reſolute, the Controverſie was ſuſpended, to prevent a Rupture. After this, there happened another Controverſie, about the Franchiſes of the Ambaſſador's Quarters, betwixt him and the French King; upon which, the latter ſent the Marquiſs of Lavardin, who entred Rome, as his Ambaſſador, in an inſolent manner, inſomuch that the Pope Excommunicated him; neither was that Point ever adjuſted. In this Pontificate, 26 Cardinals happened to die, 16 of which Vacancies, the Pope filled up, and kept the other 10 to oblige Princes with. He ſuppreſſed that called The Office of the Immaculate Conception of the Holy Virgin, Eſtabliſhed by Pope Paul V. And a multitude of Indulgencies granted by Sixtus IV. Eugenius III. John XXII. Leo X. Gregory XV. and thoſe for 80000 Years, copied out of the Ancient Table, ſaid to be kept in the Lateran Church. He Condemned alſo 65 Propoſitions about Caſes of Morality which were ſcandalous, and maintained by the ſubtle Diſtinctions of the Jeſuits; and, towards the latter end of his Reign, he procured the Tripple-League betwixt the Emperor, Poles, and Venetians againſt the Turks, and died in 1689. Ricaut's Continuation of Platina.

INNOCENT XIIth. before his Popedom, called Anthony Pignatelli, of a conſiderable Family. After ſeveral Preferments was made Arch-Biſhop of Naples, and upon the death of Alexander VIII. was choſen Pope in February, 1692. and died this preſent Year the beginning of October, 17000. Memoirs du Temps.

INNS of COURT, (Hoſpitia Curiæ.) Places Appropriated to the Study of the Law; of theſe there are four Principal ones in London. (viz.) The Inner and Middle-Temple, Lincolns-Inn and Gray's-Inn; which with the two Serjeant's-Inns, and Eight Inns of Chancery; make, as Sir Edward Cooke ſpeaks, a Famous Univerſity for the Profeſſion of Law. And here 'tis not amiſs to obſerve with Sir William Dugdale, that Lawyers were generally Clergy-men in the Saxon Reigns; which cuſtom continued after the Conqueſt, till the Reign of King Hen. III. The Eccleſiaſticks being then ſomewhat diſcouraged in that Study, by the Conſtitutions of Richard Poor, Biſhop of Saliſbury, An. 1218; where, amongſt other things, 'tis Order'd—— Nec Advocati ſint Clerici vel Sacerdotes in foro Seculari, niſi vel proprias Cauſas, vel miſerabilium Perſonarum proſequantur. i. e. The Clergy were forbid to Plead at the Bar, unleſs it were for themſelves; or were deſired to be of Council for Indigent Perſons: But tho' the Clergy were thus Reſtrained at the Bar, yet their way was left open to the Honour of the Bench; there being, long after that time, Lord Chancellors, Lord Treaſurers, Judges, Maſters of the Rolls, &c. of that Order; many of which Miniſters of Juſtice, were under the Degree of Biſhops, being no more than Deans, Arch-Deacons, Prebendaries, and ſometimes only Rectors of Pariſhes, as appears from Sir William Dugdale's Chronological Tables. But to return to the Inns of Court, concerning each of which I ſhall ſay ſomething briefly. Firſt of the Inner-Temple: This Place, upon the Suppreſſion of the Templars, was granted to the Knights Hoſpitallers of St. John of Jeruſalem by King Edward III. who ſoon after, as the Tradition goes, Demis'd the ſame, unto ſeveral Profeſſors of the Common Law, who came from Thavy's Inn in Holbourn; the reaſon, why we have nothing better than Tradition for this Relation, is becauſe Watt Tyler, in his Rebellion, in IVth. Richard II. Plunder'd the Temple, and burn'd all their Books and Records, but notwithſtanding this ravage, the Students of the Law became, ſhortly after, ſo numerous, as to make a Diviſion into two Bodies of the Inner and Middle-Temple, continuing Tenants to the Knights Hoſpitallers, till the Diſſolution of their Order, in the 30th. Hen. VIII. from which time, the Templars were Tenants to the Crown, till the ſixth of James I. when they obtain'd a Grant of both the Temples by Letters Patents. To go on to Lincoln's-Inn. That Lawyers were ſettled in this Place before the time of Henry VII. is more than Sir William Dugdale could diſcover; But then 'tis certain the Biſhops of Chicheſter, to whoſe See the Ground belong'd, let a Leaſe, upon a Reſerv'd Rent to one Francis Syliard a Bencher of this Houſe: And in the next Reign, Richard Samſon, Biſhop of Chicheſter paſs'd away the Inheritance to William Syliard and Euſtace his Brother, which Grant was ſoon after confirm'd by the Dean and Chapter of Chicheſter: And in the 22d. of Queen Elizabeth, Edward, Son and Heir of Euſtace aforeſaid, convey'd the Houſe, Gardens, &c. to Richard Kingſmil and the reſt of the then Benchers. Gray's-Inn is ſo called from the Lord Gray of Wilton, whoſe Seat it anciently was, from whom in Hen. VII's. time, it paſs'd to Hugh Denis Eſquire, by the Name of the Mannor of Portpole, of which Family it was purchas'd by the Prior and Monks of Shene, in the beginning of the Reign of Henry VIII. by whom it was Leas'd out to the Students of the Law, till the Diſſolution of the Priory; and ever ſince it has been held of the Crown. The Inns of Chancery are ſubordinate to the Inns of Court; The Benchers of which being impower'd to make Laws for the Governing of them with reference to Commons and Exerciſes, according to Cuſtom. As to the Inns of Court, the method of Admitting Students is thus. Firſt, The Student makes his Choice whether he will be generally or ſpecially Admitted; The Charge of General Admittance being five Marks, and that of Special, five Pounds: After the Perſon has made his Choice, the Under-Treaſurer brings him to the High Treaſurer, who allows of him and ſets his Fine as above; This done, the Under-Treaſurer enters the Party's Name in a Book, whoſe Son he is and the Day of his Admittance. Then the Party and two others, formerly admitted, enter into Bond with him as his Sureties to obſerve the Orders and diſcharge the Duties of the Houſe; After which the Under-Treaſurer makes him a Recipiatur, which being delivered to the Butler, he's upon paying him half a Crown Fee, Admitted into Commons: And here we are to obſerve, that if the Student's Admittance is General, He is bound to continue in Commons two Years Vacations, under the penalty of being fined Twenty Shillings for every failure: but if Specially Admitted, he is not then bound to any ſuch attendance: Theſe Students formerly us'd to carry the Readers Meat to the Benchers Table, but now this cuſtom is not obſerv'd, but at ſome extraordinary Feaſts: After two or three Years Admiſſion. They are obliged to perform certain Exerciſes, that is, To Recite the Pleadings of ſuch Barriſters as Moote in the Term-time; To Moote alſo in the Vacations, and ſoon after to Perform their Exerciſe of Mooting abroad in the Inns of Chancery: After theſe Performances, and at the End of Seven or Eight Years, they are by the Bench Admitted to the Degree of utter Barriſter, which Promotion, muſt be Authoriz'd by an Act of the whole Bench. The Perſon being made Bariſter, is declar'd ſuch to the reſt of the Bariſters by the High Treaſurer, and the next Day, being call'd to the Cupboard, takes the Oath of Supremacy: However it was not formerly allow'd 'em, either to wear a Bar-Gown in Weſtminſter-Hall, or Practiſe the Law; but to forbear for the ſpace of two Years, and in the mean-time to continue their Exerciſe of Mooting in the Inns of Chancery. There is likewiſe an Exerciſe to be perform'd by every Utter Bariſter within the Houſe in Term-time, viz. to perform two ſeveral Aſſignments of Mutes; every ſuch Aſſignment conſiſting of three or four Mootes or Exerciſes, where they Argue a Caſe Pro and Con, agreed on between themſelves, conſiſting for the moſt part of two Queſtions; Three Benchers ſetting as Judges, and arguing the ſame Caſe after 'em. The next ſtep of Promotion is a Cupboard-man, whereof there are four, who in the Reading times, Argue by Turns, the Readers Caſe, beginning at the Puiſne; Theſe four Cupboard-men were formerly the Ancienteſt Bariſters of the Houſe; but now Seniority is ſometimes paſs'd by, and the next Eldeſt, who are thought proper, are choſen by the Bench. The next Degree is a Bencher and then a Reader, which at the furtheſt happens within two Years after the Party's firſt Admittance to the Cupboard. Theſe Readers are likewiſe choſen by the Bench, and are generally the two ancient Cupboard-men, tho' the Bench is not tied to the neceſſity of ſuch a choice. The Reader's Exerciſe begins Regularly in Lent, and in Summer on the firſt Monday in Auguſt; This Exerciſe is perform'd in the Hall, where the Sub-Lecturer firſt Reads over the Statute, or at leaſt that branch of it that is choſen to Read upon. After this the Reader makes a Speech in excuſe of his own inſufficiency, and beſpeaks the favour of the Audience, concluding with the Reaſons of his choice of that particular Statute. Then he Recites his Diviſions made upon the Statute, and puts ten or twelve Caſes upon his firſt Diviſion; one of which, the Puiſne Cupboard-man makes choice of to Argue upon; and in his Argument, Reaſons againſt the Reader's concluſion; After him the Reſt of the Cupboard-men, and Benchers Argue in their Turns, and laſt of all the Reader himſelf, Replies upon 'em and maintains his own Concluſion. Sometimes likewiſe the Judges and Serjeants of the ſame Society, appear at the Exerciſe and Argue the Reader's Caſe. Theſe Readers and Benchers have ſeveral Privileges above the reſt of the Society; For, firſt, They are Governors of the Houſe, and in their Parliament Aſſemblies, have Power to make Orders to bind the Reſt, and out of Parliament have Power alſo at the Bench-Table, to Puniſh ſuch as ſhall tranſgreſs their Orders, either by Fine, Forfeiture of their Chambers, putting out of Commons, or Expulſion from the Houſe, but not by Impriſonment. Serjeants at Law are always choſen out of the Readers, unleſs the King has a mind to call any Man to that Degree, who never Read, which is ſeldom done. They have ſeveral other Privileges likewiſe, too long here to inſert. The Inns of Court have ſometimes Rules and Orders for Government ſet 'em by the Privy Council. The Lord Chancellor and all the Judges. Blunts Law Dictionary. Dugdales Origines Juridicales.

INQUISITION, a Tribunal or Court Erected by the Popes, for the Examination and Puniſhment of thoſe they call Hereticks. Morery gives this following Account of its Original and Proceedings. Before the Converſion of Conſtantine the Great, there was no other Tribunal but that of Biſhops, not only to examine Doctrine, but alſo to puniſh ſuch as adhered obſtinately to condemned Hereſies, by Excommunication. But the Roman Emperors being turned Chriſtians, thought themſelves obliged to Interpoſe, in the puniſhment of Crimes, committed againſt the Divine Majeſty; to this purpoſe they made Laws, which the Reader may find in the Theodoſian and Juſtinian Codes, by which Hereticks were ſentenc'd to baniſhment and Forfeiture of Eſtate; ſo that now there were two Courts of Judicature ſet up againſt them; the one Spiritual and the other Civil: The Eccleſiaſtical Court Pronounc'd upon the Right, Declar'd what was Hereſie and Excommunicated Hereticks: when this was done, the Civil Courts undertook the Proſecution, and puniſh'd thoſe in their Perſons and Fortunes who were convicted of Hereſie: This method laſted till after the Year 800; From this time, the Weſtern Biſhops had their Juriſdiction over Hereticks enlarged, They had now an Authority to Cite them to their Courts, both to convict and puniſh them; 'tis true, they could not execute the Imperial Laws of Baniſhment upon 'em, but had an Authority of putting 'em in Priſon, and Impoſing ſeveral other Inſtances of Diſcipline upon 'em, warrantable by Canons and cuſtom. This ſort of Juriſdiction went on ſmoothly enough for about Three hundred Years, till the XIIth Century, but then the Church being imbroiled by the growth and power of Hereſie; The Governors of it were obliged to tolerate a great many things, which they were unable to Redreſs: All that the Biſhops and Popes could do, was to ſend Preachers and Legates to endeavour the Converſion of Hereticks, particularly of the Albigenſes, who were the occaſion of great diſturbances in Languedoc. For theſe Reaſons Pope Gregory IX. in a Council held at Toulouſe, in 1229. eſtabliſhed new Conſtitutions, committing the whole Management to the Biſhops; but thinking theſe too indulgent, he gave the Direction of his Inquiſition to the Dominicans, who, for their cruel Proceedings, were baniſhed Toulouſe by the Town; ſo that this Court was never firmly ſettled there, nor in any other Parts of France. All Italy received it, except the Kingdom of Naples; and all the Dominions of Spain, except that Kingdom and the Low-Countries, where Charles V. and after him Philip II. of Spain, endeavoured to Eſtabliſh it, in 1567. by the Duke of Alva, to the loſs of the United Provinces. This Tribunal takes Cognizance of Hereſie, Judaiſm, Mahometiſm, Sodomy, and Polygamy; and People ſtand in ſo much fear of it, that Parents deliver their Children, Husbands their Wives to its Officers, without daring to murmur in the leaſt. The Priſoners are ſhut up in frightful Dungeons, where they are kept for ſeveral Months, until they themſelves turn their own Accuſers, and declare the Cauſe of their Impriſonment, for they are never Confronted with Witneſſes. Their Friends go in Mourning; ſpeak of them, as dead, and dare neither ſollicit their Pardon, nor come nigh the Priſon; and ſome quit the Country, leſt they ſhould be brought in as Accomplices. When there is no convincing Proof againſt the pretended Criminal, he is Diſcharged after a tedious Impriſonment, and the loſs of moſt part of his Effects. This Sentence which is called Auto de fè, or Decree of Faith, is publickly pronounced with extraordinary Solemnity. In Portugal, they Erect a Theatre capable of holding 3000 Perſons, on which they place a very rich Altar, and raiſe Seats on each ſide in form of an Amphitheatre, where the Criminals are placed, over againſt whom is a high Chair, whither they are ſingly called by one of the Inquiſitors, to hear their Crimes and Condemnation. The Priſoners know their Doom, by the Cloaths they wear that day. They that wear their own Cloaths are Diſcharged, but pay a Fine. They that have a Santo Benito, or Strait Yellow Coat without Sleeves, charged with St. Andrew's Croſs, have their Lives, but loſe their Effects forfeited to the Royal Chamber, and to pay the Expences of the Inquiſition. They that have Flames of Red-ſerge ſowed upon their Santo Benito without any Croſs, are Convicted of having had their Pardon before, and threatned to be burnt, if ever they fall again. But they, that beſides theſe Flames, have on their Santo Benito's their own Pictures environed, with the Figures of Devils, are Condemn'd to Die. They that renounce Judaiſm, and diſcover their Accomplices, are Pardon'd the two firſt times, but certainly die, if Accuſed a Third time. The Inquiſitors, being Clergy-men, do not pronounce the Sentence of Death, but form and read an Act, wherein they ſay, the Criminal convinced of ſuch a Crime by his proper Confeſſion, is delivered with much reluctancy to the Secular Power, to be puniſhed according to his Demerits; this Writing they give to ſeven Judges, who attend at the left ſide of the Altar; theſe Condemn the Criminal to be firſt Hanged and then Burned, but Jews are burned alive. The publick Place for Execution in Portugal is called Rouſſi, whither the Confraternity of Mercy attend and pray for the Priſoner. The Inquiſition of Goa in the Indies, on this ſide the Gulph of Bengala, is very powerful; the Principal Inquiſitor having more Reſpect ſhown him, than either the Arch-Biſhop or Vice-Roy. His Authority reaches over all the Laicks and Clergy; excepting the Arch-Biſhop and his Vicar General, who is always a Biſhop; excepting likewiſe the Vice-Roy and the Governors who Repreſent the Vice Roy. The Criminals Sentenced to Die, are clad much after the ſame manner, as in Portugal, bear their Names and the Nature of their Crimes under their Picture upon their San Benito's. Such as are found guilty of Magick, have Paper-caps in form of Sugar-loaves covered with Flames, and the frightful ſhapes of Devils. All the Criminals clad according to the Nature of their Crimes, go in Proceſſion to a Church choſen for the Ceremony, and have each of them their God-father, reſponſible Men, that walk along with them, and are obliged to have them forth-coming after the Ceremony is over. The Criminals walk in this Proceſſion bare-foot and bare-headed, holding lighted Tapers in their hands; the leaſt Guilty go foremoſt; after the laſt of them that are to be Diſcharged, comes one that carries a Crucifix, with its face towards them that go before, followed by them that are to Die, and ſometimes by Men that bear Effigies hanging upon Poles, together with Boxes that contain the Bones of ſuch as are thus repreſented, for the Inquiſition Exerciſes their Juriſdiction upon the Dead, who, if convicted of any Grand Crime, have their Bodies dug up, and their Bones burnt. The next Day after the Execution, the Pictures of the Executed are carried to the Dominican's Church, the Head is only repreſented upon flaming Fire-brands, with their Name, Country, and Quality of their Crime. Some have this Motto underneath, Morreo quemado por Hereſe relapſo, I Die a Relapſed Heretick. They that Die aſſerting their Innocence, have theſe Words under their Pictures. Por Hereſe convitto negativo, A Convicted Heretick, but would not Confeſs. All the Inquiſitors are named by the King, and confirmed by the Pope's Bulls. The Inquiſition at Venice, conſiſting of the Pope's Nuncio reſiding there, of the Patriarch of Venice, the Father Inquiſitor, a Franciſcan, and two Senators, without whoſe Preſence, nothing can be done; is nothing ſo ſevere as thoſe of Spain and Portugal; it neither hinders the Greeks nor Armenians the Exerciſe of their Religions, and permits Roman Catholicks to go to their Churches to gain Indulgencies, as they call them. They alſo tolerate Jews, who wear Scarlet-caps for diſtinction. In fine, the Power of this Tribunal is ſo limited by the States, that in their Univerſity of Padua, Degrees are taken, without requiring the Candidates to make the Profeſſion of Faith, Ordered by the Popes; ſo that Schiſmaticks, Jews, and thoſe they call Hereticks, daily take their Degrees in Law and Phyſick there. Pope Paul III. having called a Council at Trent, in 1545. named Nine Learned Men to Reform Church Diſcipline, ordering them to begin with the Reformation of the Clergy, and this occaſioned the Eſtabliſhment of the Congregation of the Inquiſition, or of the Holy Office, which was confirmed by Pope Sixtus V. in 1588. It conſiſts of twelve Cardinals named by the Pope, and of a great number of Prelates, and Divines called Conſultors, whereof he that is Commiſſary muſt be a Dominican; the twelve Cardinals are called Inquiſitors-General; theſe depute Provincial Inquiſitors into all Parts, where the Inquiſition is received. Jean des-Loix Inquiſiteur de la foi C. 1.

INS, or INN, Lat. Oenus a River of Germany, which riſeth from two Springs of the Mountain Bernina, being one of the Alpes in the Country of the Griſons, towards the Frontiers of the Valtoline; it paſſeth through Tyrol, and Waters Inſpruck, Hall, Schiwatz, and Kuſtain, and afterwards entring Bavaria, paſſeth by Hag, Waſſerburg, &c. and having taken in Sultz-bach, and ſome other Rivers, runs into the Danube at Paſſaw.

INSPRUCK, Lat. Oenipons, a City of Germany, and Capital of the Earldom of Tyrol, which is ſituate in a pleaſant Valley below Hall. It is not great but rich, and well built, being adorned with pleaſant Fountains, large and fair Squares, and a magnificent Caſtle, which was the Abode of the Arch-dukes of Inſpruck, of the Houſe of Auſtria. It hath alſo ſeveral fair Churches, amongſt which the Collegiate Church of St. Francis, where are the Monuments of the Arch-Dukes, and that of the Jeſuits, are moſt remarkable. Arch-Duke Ferdinand, about half a League from this City, built the Caſtle of Amras, which he furniſhed with a noble Library, and ſeveral Cabinets with all manner of Curioſities.

INSTITOR, or INSTITUTOR (Johannes) a Carthuſian of Suevia or Schwaben. Lived in the XVth. Century. He writ about the Year 1400, a Book De Objectionibus Biblia. See Petreius Bibl. Carthuſ.

INTAPHERNES, one of the Seven great Lords of Perſia, that conſpired to Dethrone Smerdis, who had Uſurped the Crown; but afterwards was condemned to death by Darius, together with all his Relations that were Complices of his Rebellion. His Wife every day frequented the Gates of Darius his Palace, to implore his Mercy; who being moved by her Tears, allowed her the liberty of chuſing one of all the Company; being reduced to this neceſſity, ſhe choſe her Brother to be the Object of the King's Pardon. At which, Darius being ſurprized, enquired of her the Reaſon, to which ſhe anſwered, That, if need was, ſhe could have another Husband, and other Sons, but that ſhe could never have another Brother: The King admiring this her Anſwer, Pardoned not only her Brother, but her Eldeſt Son alſo, and reſtored them to her; but Intaphernes, and the reſt of his Complices, were Executed. Herod lib. 3.

INTERDICT, an Eccleſiaſtical Cenſure, by which the Church of Rome forbids the Adminiſtration of the Sacraments, and the Performance of Divine Service, to a Kingdom, Province, Town, &c. Some Authors affirm, That Interdicts were firſt practis'd in the Weſt, in the Reign of Charlemagne, in the beginning of the IXth. Century; but this Cenſure was more frequently executed in France, Italy and Germany, when the Princes and Great Men made themſelves abſolute Maſters of thoſe Provinces, of which formerly they had been only Governors; For then the Biſhops perceiving theſe new Lords ſlighted Excommunication, put the Interdict in practice; to hold 'em the better to their Duty. Some People pretend this Cuſtom was introduced in the IVth. or Vth. Centuries, but the Opinion that it began in the IXth. Century is much more probable; for Ademarus reports, That Alduinus Biſhop of Limoges, publiſhed an Interdict againſt the Churches and Monaſteries of his Dioceſs, in 994, and calls this Expedient, a new Method, by which it appears that the practice of Interdicts was of no long ſtanding. Pope Gregory VII. towards the end of the XIth. Century, made frequent uſe of this Cenſure. Alexander III. in the Year 1170, put England under an Interdict, forbidding the Clergy the performing any part of Divine Service, unleſs Baptiſm to Infants, and taking Confeſſions, and giving Abſolutions to dying Penitents, which was the uſual Reſtraint of an Interdict. But this Cenſure being lyable to ill Conſequences of Libertiniſm, and neglect of Religion, the ſucceeding Popes very ſeldom made uſe of it. Morin. in Obſervat. Eccleſiaſt.

INTERIM, the Name given to a Formular, or a kind of Confeſſion of ſome Articles of Faith, obtruded upon the Proteſtants after Luther's death, by Charles V. when he had Defeated their Forces; ſo called, becauſe it was only to take place in the Interim, till a General Council ſhould have decided all Points in Queſtion, between the Proteſtants and the Roman Catholicks. The Occaſion whereof was this, The Council of Trent being removed from that City, by a Tranſlation to Bononia, or rather by a Suſpenſion, the Emperor undertook this famous Interim, that made ſo much noiſe in the World. He knew, that in ſeveral of the fore-going Diets, a General, or at leaſt, a National Council had been deſired, to appeaſe the Troubles of Germany, upon the Account of Religion: And ſeeing there was ſmall hopes of having either of theſe convened ſuddenly, he reſolved to get a Formular drawn up by ſome Divines, which were to be deputed by the Diet then held at Augsburg: but thoſe who were named, being unable to come to any Agreement, the Matter was referred to the Emperor himſelf, who choſe three Divines, viz. Julius Phlugius Biſhop of Naumburg, Michael Helding Titular Biſhop of Sidon, and Suffragan of Mentz, and Johannes Agricola Court Preacher to the Elector of Brandenburg, who ſet down a Project containing 26 Articles, concerning the Points of Religion in Controverſie, between the Proteſtants and Roman Catholicks. The controverted Points were, The State of Adam before and after his Fall. The Redemption of Mankind by Jeſus Chriſt. The Juſtification of Sinners. Charity and Good Works. The Confidence we ought to have in God, that our Sins are remitted. The Church, and its True Marks. Its Power. Authority. Miniſters. The Pope and Biſhops. The Sacraments in General and Particular. The Maſs. The Commemoration of Saints. Their Interceſſion. Prayers for the Dead. And, The Uſe of Sacraments. And the ſaid three Divines aſſured the Emperor, That the ſaid Project contained nothing contrary to the Romiſh Doctrine; ſave only, the Two Points concerning the Marriage of Prieſts, and the Uſe of the Cup in the Sacrament. The Emperor ſent this Project to the Pope for his Approbation, which he refuſed; whereupon Charles V. after having ſoftned ſome Expreſſions; publiſhed the Imperial Conſtitution called Interim, wherein he declares, That his will is, that all his Catholick Dominions ſhould, for the time to come, inviolably obſerve the Cuſtoms, Statutes and Ordinances of the Univerſal Church, &c. And that thoſe who are ſeparate from it, ſhould either re unite themſelves to it, or, at leaſt, entirely conform themſelves to this Conſtitution; and, that all ſhould quietly expect the Definitions of the General Council. This Interim, was publiſhed in the Diet at Augsburg, May 15. 1548. But this Device after all, neither pleaſed the Pope, nor the Proteſtants, who, moſt of them, proteſted againſt it. The Pope deſigned to ſend ſome Prelates to the Emperor to correct his Interim; but Cardinal Morone, and ſome of the Biſhops aſſembled at Bononia, adviſed him to the contrary; alledging, That it was but a bare Toleration of a ſmall part of Lutheraniſm, with a great Reſtriction againſt the reſt: however, the Lutheran-Preachers proteſted they would not receive it. Bucer Miniſter of Strasburg, though preſſed by the Elector of Brandenburg, would never Sign it; alledging, That it re-eſtabliſhed Popery. Other Miniſters of the Chief Proteſtant Cities, as, Wolfgangus Muſculus of Augsburg, Brentius of Hall, Oſiander of Nuremburg, with ſome others, choſe rather to quit their Chairs and Livings, and withdraw into Pruſſia and Swiſſerland, than Subſcribe the Interim; nor would the Duke of Saxony receive it. Calvin, with ſeveral others, wrote againſt it. Robert Cenalis Biſhop of Auranches, and a famous Divine of the Faculty of Paris, refuted the Interim, in his Book Intituled The Antidote. On the other ſide, Charles V. was ſo very ſevere againſt thoſe that refuſed it, as to Disfranchiſe the Cities of Magdebourg and Conſtance, for their Oppoſition. *Maimbourg's Hiſtory of Lutheraniſm. INTERMEDIA in Tragedies and Comedies, is that which is Play'd or Sung between the Acts to divert the Spectators. After that the Romans had taken away the Chorus, they, inſtead thereof, introduced their Mimi and Embolariæ, Dances and Flutes, to recreate their Spectators, and to give ſome reſpit to the Actors. The Mimi were a ſort of Perſons, who expreſt themſelves by their Geſtures, and acted a kind of Dumb-Comedy; the Embolares, by their Songs and Jeſts ſerved the ſame end. The Modern Intermedia of Plays, are Conſorts of Muſick. Hedilinus Prat. Theat.

INVENTION of the Holy Croſs, A Feſtival kept in the Church of Rome, in Memory of the Day, in which the Croſs of our Saviour was found by the Empreſs Helena, in the Time of Conſtantine the Great. This Princeſs being at Jeruſalem, was Inform'd that the Croſs of our Saviour was buried in his Sepulchre; upon this Information, ſhe order'd them to dig; where they found the Croſs and the Nails, together with the Croſſes of the two Thieves, but the Wood on which the Inſcription was written, being parted from the Croſſes they could not diſtinguiſh our Saviour's, from the reſt, till Macarius Biſhop of Jeruſalem put 'em upon the following Expedient: He order'd a dying Woman to be brought and plac'd upon the Croſſes, two of which, gave her no manner of Relief, but being ſet upon the third ſhe perfectly recover'd the firſt moment ſhe touch'd it, by which they plainly diſcover'd, that it was the ſame on which our Saviour Suffer'd. The Empreſs built a ſtately Church in the Place where the Croſs was found, where ſhe left ſome part of the Wood richly Ornamented, carrying the Reſt, with the Nails to Conſtantinople. Ruffinus Hiſt. Lib. 10. Theophanes &c.

INVESTITURE, is the Ceremony wherewith Perſons are inveſted into the Poſſeſſion of any Dignity, Revenue or Fee-farm, of which there are many different Examples every where to be found in Hiſtory: and it is either Proper, or Improper; Proper or True Inveſtiture, is, when the thing it ſelf is deliver'd to the Party; as, when any one is put into the Poſſeſſion of Land, by Delivering to the Party a Turf or Lump of Earth; Improper, when the ſame is Conferred by Delivering a Sword, Spear, Banner, Wand, Ring, Arrow, &c. Amongſt others, that of Ottocarus King of Bohemia, by Rodolphus I. in 1277, is very remarkable. This Emperor was very ſimple in his Apparel, and affected this ſo much in other things, that the Princes laughed at, and manifeſted their diſlike of his Conduct. After he had overcome, and obliged Ottocarus to hold his Kingdom as a Fief of the Empire, he could not be perſwaded to put on his Royal Robes to receive Homage, but appeared in his Tent in his ordinary Dreſs, when King Ottocarus, attended with a ſplendid Retinue, and all over Gold and Pearls, kneel'd before him; he ordered the Tent to be pulled down, that all might ſee that King humble himſelf in that pompous Apparel to his ſimple Coat. Nor is the Inveſtiture of Maurice Duke of Saxony by Charles V. in 1548. at Augsbourg, leſs worthy our obſervation. The Emperor, accompanied with the Electors, having taken their places in a wooden Tent, built in form of a Theatre, Duke Maurice appeared on Horſe-back, attended by ſeveral Princes and Lords, twelve Trumpets before them, with ten that bore Standards to mark the ten Lordſhips whereof his Electorate conſiſted: He lighted from his Horſe, and kneeling before the Emperor, who ſat upon a Throne, the five Electors ſitting lower, ſwore his Allegiance, holding his hand upon the Book of the Goſpels, which done, the Emperor taking the Sword which (is the Imperial Badge, that the Elector of Saxony or his Deputy carries before the Emperor) gave it to Maurice, and by that Ceremony inveſted him in the Electoral Dignity and Office of High Mareſchal of the Empire; then taking the Standards, delivered them to him, to confirm him in the Principalities and Lordſhips of his Electorate. Then Maurice took his place amongſt the other Electors, and the Standards were thrown amongſt the People. Theſe Inveſtitures are renewed upon every Change of Emperor, or of him who holds the Fief. When 'tis but an ordinary Fief, the Lords receive the Inveſtiture by an Ambaſſador, who does Homage, and ſwears Fealty for them; after which, the Mareſchal of the Empire gives the Emperor the Sword, and the Ambaſſador kiſſes the Pommel. Heiſſ. hiſt. de l'Empire. See Spelman's Gloſſarium Archæolog. under the Words, Homagium, Traditio Fiſtuca.

INVISIBLES, a Name of Diſtinction, given to the Diſciples of Oſiander, Flacius Illyricus, Swenkfeld, &c. they are ſo call'd becauſe they deny the perpetual Viſibility of the Church, Florimond de Raimond, &c.

INVOCATION of Saints, took its Riſe from a great Veneration of Martyrs; a Belief of their Preſence at their Tombs; and, Orations, with Rhetorical Apoſtrophe's to the Deceaſed: Of which Examples, are to be found in the Panegyricks by St. Baſil, Nazianzen, and Nyſſen, in the IVth. Age; the latter calling upon the Dead, and demanding their Suffrage, as if they had been really preſent. The Practice begun in the Vth. Age, in the Eaſtern Church, but nothing as far as appears, like what is now practiſed in the Church of Rome, there being no Canonizations, Proceſſions, Maſſes, Litanies, Prayers, and Oblations to Saints at that time. Spanh. Epit. hiſt.

IO, the Daughter of Inachus and Iſmene, beloved of Jupiter, who, to conceal her from his Juno, changed her into a Milk-white Cow; Juno perceiving the Cheat, begged her of Jupiter, and committed her to the keeping of Argus, who had an hundred Eyes; but Mercury having, by Jupiter's Order, chop'd of Argus his head, Juno ſent a Gad-bee to torment her Husband's beloved Cow, who, at laſt, caſt her ſelf into the Sea, which from her took the Name of the Ionian-Sea. They add, that ſhe Swam to the Nile, and was adored by the Egyptians under the Name of Iſis; that ſhe bore Epaphus, who paſſing by his Father Jupiter, wrote his Name in the Sand, that he might know him. Pauſanias.

JOAB, the Son of Zur and Zerviah, the Siſter of David, was General of the Forces of that King; of whom read 2 Sam. and 1 Kings, as alſo 1 Chron.

JOACHIM, the Husband of St. Ann, and Father of the Bleſſed Virgin. Nicephor. lib. 2. hiſt. cap. 3. Spond. in Annal. Vet. Teſt. Baron. in apparat. Annal. Eccleſiæ.

JOACHIM, or JEHOJAKIM, before called Eliakim, and Brother of Jehoahaz, whom Pharaoh-Necho dethroned, and put Jehojakim into his place, who reigned about eleven or twelve Years. 2 Kings 23. 34. and Chap. 24. from ver. 1 to 7. and 2 Chron. 36. from ver. 4. to 9.

JOACHIM, a Calabrian by Birth, and a Monk of the Order of the Ciſtercians, afterwards Abbot and Founder of the Congregation of Flora, was in great Eſteem towards the end of the XIth. Century. He writ divers Works, viz. Commentaries upon Iſaiah, Jeremiah, and the Revelations, wherein he ſhews, That Antichriſt was already born at Rome, and to be exhalted there; as alſo, a Concordance of the Old and New Teſtament, and his famous Prophecies concerning the Popes of Rome. He died in 1202. This Abbot, as well as Cardinal Cuſanus, Johan. Lightenbergius, Hildegarda, and St. Bridget, in his Writings foretold a general Change of Religion. In the Council of Lateran held in 1215. a Treatiſe of his concerning the Trinity, writ againſt the Maſter of the Sentences, was condemned as Heretical; but Georg. Laudo, an Abbot of his own Order, undertook his Defence: However, certain it is, that he was very famous for his Piety and Learning; and in the Time wherein he lived, eſteemed as a Prophet. But Authors who ſeem to be moſt impartial had another Opinion of him. They believ'd him neither a Prophet nor an Impoſtor, but only a deluded Enthuſiaſt; for having his Imagination much greater than his Judgment or his Learning, he took all his Notions for Oracles; This made him ſet up for Prediction and Propheſie, ſome of which, like thoſe in an Almanack, came to paſs by Chance. This is certain that going in Pilgrimage to Jeruſalem, at the Age of Fifteen Years, when his Learning at the moſt was but Grammar high, he pretended, that in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher God, by a ſupernatural conveyance, had given him the underſtanding of all the Myſteries of the Scripture, and particularly of the Revelations, to which he pretended to have a Key which no Man ever had before him: upon this Viſionary perſwaſion, he foretold the Death of Antichriſt, and the Univerſal ſpreading of the Goſpel would happen ſoon after the Year 1199, with ſome other Extravagancies. *Annal. JOACHIM I. ſurnamed Neſtor, was the Son of John Elector of Brandenburg, and a learned Prince, eſpecially in the Latin Tongue, Hiſtory, and Aſtrology. He ſucceeded his Father in 1499. He Founded the Univerſity of Francfort, in company with his Brother the Arch-Biſhop of Magdeburg, and the Arch-Biſhop of Mentz, An. 1506. He inherited the New Marquiſate of Brandenburg in 1517. and died, July 11. 1535, to whom ſucceeded

JOACHIM II. his Son, by Elizabeth the King of Denmark's Daughter, whom he would have caſt into Priſon, becauſe ſhe had embraced the Proteſtant Religion, but ſhe eſcaped to the Elector of Saxony her Uncle; and after his Father's death, he himſelf embraced the Proteſtant Religion. In 1542, he was at Spire, declared General of the Emperor's Army againſt the Turks. Afterwards, during the Smalcaldian War, he continued for a time Neuter, and in 1546, declared himſelf for the Emperor Charles V. either becauſe he was jealous of the Greatneſs of the Duke of Saxony, and the Landtgrave of Heſs, who were the Heads of the other Party; or becauſe he fore-ſaw the Event would be unfortunate to the Allies. He was preſent at the Diet of Augsburg, and conformed himſelf to the Emperor's Will in the Interim; and moreover ſent his Deputies to the Council of Trent. He obtained, for a Summ of Money, the poſſeſſion of the Dutchy of Croſſen, in Sileſia, of the Emperor Ferdinand II. and of Sigiſmund, the King of Poland. This Prince was addicted to the Study of Aſtrology, and pretended to reach into future events, however he happen'd to die when he little thought on't, being poyſon'd by a Jew. His Son John George ſucceeded him, who, after the Execution of Lippoldus who poyſon'd him, Baniſhed all the Jews out of the Marquiſate of Brandenburg. See BRANDENBURG. Thuan. Sleiden, &c.

JOACHIMUS (Georgius) ſurnamed Rhaticus, or The Griſon, as being born in a Village called Veltkirchen in that Country, February 16. 1514. was an excellent Mathematician, and Profeſſor of Aſtrology at Wittemberg, and thinking Copernicus his Opinion concerning the Motion of the Earth very rational, gave him a Viſit, and was afterwards a declared Copernican, and his a-vow'd Diſciple, whoſe Works alſo he publiſhed after his Death. He was the Author of ſeveral Works mentioned by him in a Letter to Peter Ramus, amongſt which are his Ephemerides, according to the Copernican Hypotheſis, and de Doctrina Triangulorum, Lib. II. He died in the 62d. Year of his Age, at Caſchaw in Hungary, Decemb. 4. 1576. *Thuan. hiſt. Simler in Epit. Bibl. Geſner. Melchior Adam in vita Phil. Germ. Voſſ. de Mathem. Queens, and other famous Women, of the Name of JOAN.

JOAN of Navarre, Queen of France and Navarre. Was the only Daughter and Heir of Henry I. of this Name, King of Navarre. She was married at Paris, Aug. 16. 1284. to Philip the Fair, afterwards King of France. She Founded at Paris that famous College of Navarre, An. 1303. and died at the Caſtle of Vincennes, April 2. 1304.

JOAN of Burgundy, Queen of France, was the Eldeſt Daughter of Otho IV. Count Palatine of Burgundy. She was married, An. 1306. at Corbeil, to Philip V. of France. Being accuſed of ſome amorous Intrigues, ſhe was ſhut up near a Year in the Caſtle of Dordan. But having afterwards proved her Innocency, her Husband received her again. She afterwards Founded the College of Burgundy, near the Cordeliers at Paris; and divers Authors of her Age ſpeak well of her, as a Princeſs of Piety. She died at Roie in Picardy, January 1. 1329.

JOAN of France. She was King Lewis XI's Daughter, and married to Lewis Duke of Orleans, afterwards Lewis XII. But this being a forc'd Match, when Lewis came to the Crown, after the Death of Charles VIII. he got Matters ſo managed with Pope Alexander VI. that the Marriage was declared void, December 22. 1499. This great Princeſs, whoſe Vertue was in high eſteem, retired to Bourges, and Inſtituted the Order of the Annunciation, otherwiſe called the Annonciada. The Rule of this Inſtitution, was Formed upon the Ten Vertues of the Holy Virgin, which they reckon Chaſtity, Prudence, Humility, Verity, Devotion, Obedience, Poverty, Patience, Charity and Compaſſion. The Habit of it is ſingular, the Veil black, the Cloak white, the Scapular red, the Robes gray, and the Girdle a Cord. There be ſeveral Monaſteries of them in France, and in the Low-Countries. Pope Alexander VI. in 1501. and Leo X. in 1517. confirmed this Inſtitution. Joan Founded alſo a College in the Univerſity of Bourges, and died, Feb. 4. 1504, or 1505.

JOAN (d' Albret) Queen of Navarre, Princeſs of Bearne, &c. Was Daughter, and Heireſs to Henry of Albret II. of this Name, King of Navarre; and of Margaret, Siſter to King Francis I. She was married at Moulins in Bourbonnois, Octob. 20. 1544. to Antony of Bourbon, Duke of Vendoſme, King of Navarre, and was Mother, amongſt other Children, of King Henry the Great. This Princeſs was Wiſe, Reſolute, loved Sciences, and learned Men. She compoſed ſeveral Pieces in Proſe and Verſe, and had it not been for her Zeal for the Reformation, Morery had left her a great Character. She died at Paris, June 9. 1572, Aged 44, and was ſuſpected to have been poiſoned; but yet when ſhe was open'd, that was found a Miſtake. Joan did great Services to the Proteſtants. The Spaniards often ſought Opportunities to deſtroy both her and her Family. There was a Plot diſcovered, An. 1564, the Particulars of which, are to be ſeen in the 36th. Book of the Hiſtory of Thuanus. He alſo ſpeaks of this Queen elſewhere; and of the care ſhe uſed to take, to inſpire Courage into her Party, and to inſtruct her Subjects in the Proteſtant Religion.

JOAN I. of this Name, Queen of Jeruſalem, Naples, and Sicily; Dutcheſs of Puglia and Calabria; Counteſs of Provence. She was Daughter to Charles of Sicily Duke of Calabria, who died in 1328. before his Father Robert; and of Mary of Valois, his ſecond Wife. She was but 19 Years of Age when ſhe took the Government upon her, after the Death of her Grandfather, who died in 1343, and who married her to his Nephew Andreas of Hungary. This Marriage was not fortunate, becauſe their inclinations were oppoſite; the Prince being guided by a Friar named Robert, and the Princeſs by a Landreſs called Philippa. Theſe indiſcreet Councellors carried Affairs to that extremity, that Andrew was ſtrangled, An. 1345. Impartial Hiſtorians plainly ſay, That Joan was not guilty of his Death, tho' accuſed therewith. On Aug. 20. 1356, ſhe married a ſecond time with Lewis of Tarentum, her Couſin, who was forced to retire from Naples, to avoid the Army of Lewis King of Hungary, who committed great Violences in this State. Joan appeaſed all theſe Diſorders by her Prudence. And after having loſt this ſecond Husband, on May 25. 1362, ſhe was married again a third time to James of Arragon, Infant of Majorca, who did not live long with her. An. 1376. ſhe was married a fourth time to Otho of Brunſwick, of the Houſe of Saxony; and having no Children, ſhe adopted his Couſin Charles of Duras, whom ſhe cauſed to be brought up very carefully, and married him to her Niece, and conſidered him as her Son. Notwithſtanding, this ungrateful Prince, being miſled by the King of Hungary, and Pope Urban VI. who gave him the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom of Naples, An. 1380, revolted againſt Q. Joan, his Benefactreſs. This Queen, at the Inſtigation of Clement VII. who held his Pontificate at Avignon, while Urban VI. held it at Rome, transferred her Adoption to Lewis of France, Duke of Anjou, Son to King John; which embroiled the Kingdom of Naples in a War. Charles of Duras won a famous Battel, An. 1381, took Naples, and then beſieged Le Chateau Neufe, wherein was Queen Joan; who ſurrender'd her ſelf upon Capitulation. Charles de Durazzo cauſed her to be brought to Muro, within the Baſilicate, and there put her to death ſeven or eight Months after, in the 58th Year of her Age, and in the 39th of her Reign. Some Authors ſay ſhe was ſmothered; others, that ſhe was ſtrangled; but the moſt probable Opinion is, that ſhe was beheaded, May 5. 1382. 'Tis reported, that an Aſtrologer of Provence, (ſuppoſed to be Anſelm, who lived in thoſe Days, and is very famous in the Hiſtory of Provence) being asked, Who ſhould be the Husband of Joan, yet young? He anſwered, Maritabitur cum ALIO. This laſt Word points at the Names of her four Husbands, Andreas, Lewis. James and Otho. In fine, this Princeſs was a Perſon of great Wit, loved Sciences, and learned Men, which her Court abounded with. She was liberal, and handſome; prudent and pious. It was ſhe that ſold Avignon to the Pope. Boccacius, Baldus, and the other learned Perſons of her Time, ſpeak in her Praiſe and Commendation. Noſtredamus Hiſt. de Provence, &c.

JOAN II. whom they called Jenny, was great Niece of Joan I. Daughter of Charles III. Duke of Durazzo. This Princeſs diſhonoured her ſelf by her Licentious life. She was born in 1371. About 1403, ſhe married William of Auſtria, Duke of Sterling, An. 1406. After the Death of her Brother Ladiſlaus King of Naples, &c. ſhe took poſſeſſion of the Government. This was in 1414. She married James de Bourbon, Comte de la Marche; but the too well known Gallantries of this Princeſs made him to leave her, and to retire to Beſancon, where he took upon him the Habit of a Monk. Upon this, Joan fell out with Pope Martin V. who gave the Inveſtiture of the Kingdom of Naples to Lewis III. Duke of Anjou: And ſhe adopted Alphonſus V. King of Arragon, at the Time that Lewis III. made War againſt him. This was in 1420. But Alphonſus gave her ſo much cauſe of Diſcontent by his Ingratitude, and other baſe Practices, that ſhe transferred the Adoption upon the very ſame Lewis of Anjou. After this, ſhe took the City of Naples, An. 1425. Thoſe of Arragon ſurprized Marſeilles before, but were ſoon driven out of it. Lewis d'Anjou won the Battel of Aquila in 1429, and died in 1434. Queen Joan did by Will bequeath her Kingdom to Renatus of Anjou, King Lewis's Brother, and died in 1435, aged 65 Years, after having reigned above 20. Noſtredamus, &c.

JOAN, Infanta and Regent of Portugal, was born in 1452. She was the Daughter of Alphonſus V. King of Portugal, and of Elizabeth of Portugal-Conimbria, and Siſter of King John II. called Le Grand. Her Father had ſo good an Opinion of her Prudence and Conduct, that when he had War with the Moors, An. 1470, he left her Regent of the Kingdom; wherein ſhe acquitted her ſelf ſo well, that all the People did both love and admire her. When the King was returned ſhe retired into a Religious Monaſtery, called L'Odivellas, of the Order of St. Dominick, tho' courted for Marriage by ſeveral potent Monarchs. Hilarion de Coſta, &c.

JOAN Counteſs of Montfort, Daughter to Lewis of Flanders, Count de Nevers. She was of great Eminency for her Valour in the XIVth Century. After the Death of her Husband John IV. Duke of Bretaigne and Comte de Montford, this Princeſs re-took ſeveral Towns in Bretaigne from the Comte de Blois, and made a glorious Defence for that of Hennebont, againſt this Prince. People did much admire her Courage in an Onſet made by the Comte de Blois, where this daring Princeſs, after having encouraged her People, made a Sally at a place of the Town that was not beſieged, and with 60 Men only went and burnt the Enemy's Tents. This ſignal Enterprize raiſed the Siege, and forced the Comte de Blois to retire with all his Army. So the Counteſs Joan being Miſtreſs of the Field, took the Dutchy of Bretaigne in the End, which for a long time after belonged to the Houſe of Montfort. Pacquier.

JOAN de Valois, Daughter of Charles of France and Margaret of Sicily, his firſt Wife, was illuſtrious for her Piety and Vertue. Purſuant to a Treaty at Chauni, May 19. 1305. ſhe was married to William I. of that Name, called Le Bon, Earl of Hainault, Holland and Zealand. But this Prince dying June 7. 1337, and having by this Marriage William II. and four Daughters, Joan took a Religious Habit in the Abby of Fontenelle. All the Grandees of her Time admired her Prudence. She managed the Truce enter'd into between the Kings of England and France, when they were ready to give Battel. She died with a great deal of Reputation for her Vertue and Piety, March 7. 1400.

JOAN (Pope.) See Pope JOHN VIII.

JOAN of Arc: She is alſo known by the Name of Pucelle, or Maid of Orleans: Born at the Town of Domfremi, upon the Meuſe; was the Daughter of James d'Arc, and of Iſabella Romée: She was brought up a Shepherdeſs in the Country. At the Age of 18 or 20 Years, ſhe pretended an expreſs Commiſſion from God to go to the Relief of Orleans, beſieged by the Engliſh, and defended by John Comte de Dunois, and almoſt reduced to Extremity. She went alſo to Rheims, to Crown King Charles VII. who was almoſt undone by his Enemies. About the end of February 1429, ſhe was preſented to the Lord of Baudricourt, Governor of Vaucouleurs in Champaigne, who ſent her to the King. She knew this Prince, tho' but plainly dreſſed, amongſt his Courtiers: And the Doctors of Divinity, and Members of Parliament, who examined her, teſtified, That there was ſomething ſupernatural in her Conduct. She ſent for a Sword which lay in the Tomb of a certain Knight, behind the great Altar of the Church of St. Katharine de Fierbois, upon the Blade of which were engraven the Croſs and Flower-de-Luces; and the King openly declar'd, That ſhe had divined a great Secret, which none but he himſelf knew of. Whereupon ſhe had ſome Troopers committed to her Conduct, with which ſhe ſuccoured Orleans, and drove the Engliſh from before it, defeated Talbot at the Battel of Patai, reconquered Champaigne, and cauſed the King to be anointed at Rheims by Renauld of Chartres Archbiſhop of that City, and Chancellor of France, July 17. 1429. In ſhort, ſhe brought the Engliſh Intereſt to the brink of Ruin, but at laſt was taken Priſoner very unfortunately, in a Sally at Compiegne, An. 1430, and carried to Rouen, where the Engliſh (as the French ſay) being mad at the Miſchiefs ſhe had done them, thought to repair their Honour by her Infamy. To compaſs which, they proſecuted her in the Eccleſiaſtical Court as a Sorcereſs, Seducer, and an infamous Heretick; or, according to the Dialect of thoſe Times, as one who had forfeited her Honour. Peter Cauchon, Biſhop of Beauvais, and ſome others, condemned her to perpetual Impriſonment, and to live upon Bread and Water. But the Engliſh, not ſatisfied with this Judgment, grew ſo violent againſt her, that the Judges excommunicated and delivered her into the Executioner's Hands, and ſo ſhe was burnt alive on May 30. 1430, in the old Market-place at Rouen, where 'tis ſaid ſhe predicted their Misfortunes. However, it concerned the Honour of France to juſtifie the Memory of this Heroick Lady. Charles VII. ordered her Relations to inſiſt to the Pope's Judges for a Review of the Proceſs againſt her. And upon their Requeſt, Pope Calixtus III. aſſigned for Commiſſioners the Archbiſhop of Rheims, and the Biſhops of Paris and Conſtance, who met at Rouen, where, after having heard many Witneſſes, they juſtified her, and cauſed the Proceſs by which ſhe was condemned to be cancelled and burnt. Du Pleix & Mezeray Hiſt. de France.

JOASH, or JEHOASH, King of Judah, the Son of Ahaziah, to whom he ſucceeded, An. Mund. 3157. 2 Kings, chap. 11. and 12. and 2 Chron. 22. from verſ. 10. to the End, and chap. 23. and 24.

JOASH, or JEHOASH, King of Iſrael, the Son of Jehoahaz, ſucceeded his Father, An. Mund. 3195. 2 Kings 13. from verſ. 9. to the end, and chap. 14. from verſ. 8. to 17. 2 Chron. 25. from verſ. 17. to 25.

JOB, an illuſtrious Example of Patience, was born, according to ſome, about A. M. 2329. in the Land of Uz, ſituate between the Land of Edom and Arabia. Some take him to be the ſame that is called Jobab, Gen. 36. 33. one of Eſau's Poſterity; tho' others, amongſt whom are the Jews, take him to be a Deſcendant from Nahor, Abraham's Brother; grounding their conjecture on this, becauſe in Gen. 22. Uz is ſet down as the Firſt-born of Nahor. *Spondan. in Annal. JOB, a Mahometan, born at Medina, and one of Mahomet's Companions. He was killed at the Siege of Conſtantinople, A. D. 52. when it was beſieged by Jezid, the Son of Caliph Moavias. He is alſo called Abu Job, and Job Anſari, i. e. Job of Medina, becauſe the Inhabitants of that City were called Anſar; that is, Protectors or Defenders of Mahomet. The ſumptuous Sepulchre of this Job is ſtill to be ſeen at Conſtantinople, by the Walls of that City, near to the Haven where the new Grand Signior preſents himſelf to receive the Sword from the Hand of the Mufti, and takes an Oath to defend the Religion of the Muſſulmans, and the Laws of their Prophet Mahomet. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

JOCASTA, the Daughter of Creon King of Thebes, and Wife of Laius, was the Mother of Oedipus, whom ſhe afterwards ignorantly married, and had by him Polynices and Eteocles; who having killed one another in Battel, for the Succeſſion, their Mother Jocaſta killed her ſelf for Grief. *Stat. JOCUNDUS, or JUCUNDUS (Johannes) of Verona, a Dominican, lived at the beginning of the XVIth Century, under the Pontificate of Leo X. and the Empire of Maximilian I. He was a Divine, a Philoſopher, and Philologer. In a Journey to Rome, he made diligent inſpection into the Antiquities there of Architecture, Sculptures and Inſcriptions; whereof he compoſed a Book, and preſented it to Laurentius de Medicis. He alſo writ Notes upon the Commentary of Julius Cæſar; and was the firſt that delineated the Bridge which that Emperor made to paſs the Rhine. Being at Paris in 1507, he contrived the Architecture of Our Lady's Bridge, and of the little Bridge there. Buda acknowledges that Jocundus was his Maſter in Architecture, and that he read to him the Books of Vitruvius, upon which Author he alſo writ Commentaries; as alſo upon Frontinus; beſides his Volume of Inſcriptions, already mentioned. Politianus gives him this Encomium: Vir unus Titulorum monumentorum veterum ſupra mortales cæteros, non diligentiſſimus ſolum, ſed etiam ſine controverſia peritiſſimus. Politian in Miſcell. cap. 77. Budæus. Voſſius.

JOEL, the Son of Bethuel, one of the Twelve ſmall Prophets. It is not certainly known in what Time he Prophecy'd, tho' he is ſuppos'd Contemporary with Hoſea. He liv'd about the Year of the World 3300. In his Prophecy he foretels the Babyloniſh Captivity, and the Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, Acts 2. ch. &c.

St. JOHN the Baptiſt, the Fore-runner of Chriſt, was the Son of Zacharias and Elizabeth, as it appears by the Hiſtory of the Goſpel. But, over and above what we find there, Profane Authors give this following Account: That Herodias pierced his Tongue with her Hair-Bodkin, to be revenged of him for ſpeaking againſt her. And Nicephorus adds, That his Diſciples carried his Body to Sebaſtia, a Town near Samaria, but 'tis believed his Head was carried elſewhere, ſeveral Churches pretending to have a part of it. That of St. Sylveſter at Rome claims the beſt ſhare. The Prieſts of St. John d'Angeli affirm, They have the Scull; which was given them by Pepin King of Aquitain, Founder of the Monaſtery; where it is kept. The Cathedral of Amiens boaſts of a conſiderable part, which comprehends the Upper-Lip, the Noſe, the Eyes, and a part of the Forehead: And Monſieur du Cange ſays, They have the whole. The Holy Chapel at Paris challengeth the upper part of the Scull, as being given to St. Lewis by Baldwin II. Emperor of Conſtantinople. The Abby of Tyrone, in the County of Perche, will needs have the Brain; as the Chapel of the Caſtle of St. Chaumont, in Lyonnois, a conſiderable part of his Jaw-bone. In fine, the Towns of Turin in Piedmont, of Aoſt in Savoy, Venice in Italy, Lyons and Nemours in France, &c. boaſt each to have ſome of his Relicks. Thoſe of the Iſle of Maltha ſay, they have the Finger with which he ſhewed our Saviour to the Jews. And the Prieſts of the Cathedral of Genoua alledge, they have part of the Aſhes of his Body, burnt, as they pretend, in 362, by Command of Julian the Apoſtate. Authors differ in their Opinion of the Locuſts and Wild Honey, on which St. John lived in the Deſarts. St. Auguſtine, Bede, and ſeveral others, think, that the Locuſts were living Creatures, and good Food in Palæſtine; and that the Honey was found in the hollow of Trees. Which ſeems to be confirmed by what Strabo ſays of certain Æthiopians, Pliny of the Parthians, and St. Jerom of ſome People of Libya, accuſtomed to eat the like. Yet others, with John of Peluſium, ſay, The Locuſts were certain Herbs. 'Tis true, the Greek Word 'Ακρίδες may be taken for either; ſo that it is not eaſie to determine which it was. They add, That the extraordinary circumſtances which attended his Birth made Herod jealous that he was the Meſſias; and ſeeking to deſtroy him, cut off his Father becauſe he oppoſed it. That his Mother having concealed him in a Cave, died in a little time after; and thenceforth he was provided for by Angels. But they differ about the Time of his Baptizing Chriſt: Some will have it to be in the 31ſt. Others the 33d or 34th Year of our Saviour: But Mr. Talents places it in the 29th, and Helvicus the like.

St. JOHN the Apoſtle, or the Evangeliſt; called alſo the Divine, and the Elder, was born at Bethſaida in Galilee. He was the Son of Zebedee, and Brother of St. James the Great. He was called very young to the Apoſtleſhip, and, Biſhop of Epheſus, and the Biſhops of that City call themſelves his Succeſſors and Diſciples; and alledge his Authority for their not celebrating the Feaſt of Eaſter, according to the Cuſtom of the Roman Church. This Apoſtle propagated the Goſpel amongſt the Parthians alſo, to whom ſome alledge he wrote his Firſt Epiſtle. He was condemned at Rome, by the Emperor Domitian, to be thrown into Boiling Oil, whence he came out more healthful than he went in; and was thereupon baniſhed to the little Iſle of Patmos, where he wrote his Apocalypſe. After the Death of Domitian he returned to Epheſus, where he wrote his Goſpel, about 96 Years after Jeſus Chriſt. St. Jerom informs us, That the Biſhops and Deputies of the Church of Aſia obliged him to undertake the Refutation of Cerinthus and Ebion, who maintained, That Chriſt was but a Man, and that he had no Being before Mary. Euſeb. Tertull. Chryſoſt. Bellarm. Baron. St. Jerom ſays, That he was of noble Extract, and upon that Account did reſolutely venture to attend our Saviour at his Crucifixion, introduced Peter into the High Prieſt's Hall, and kept the Bleſſed Virgin at his own Houſe after Chriſt's Death. But this doth not ſeem reconcilable with his being brought up a Fiſher: And his Intereſt with the High Prieſt did, according to Nicephorus, proceed from his having ſold him his Eſtate. He is ſuppoſed to have been the other of St. John the Baptiſt's Diſciples, who left him with Andrew, to follow our Saviour. The Ancients eſteem him the youngeſt of all the Apoſtles, and ſay, he lived 70 Years after Chriſt's Sufferings. He is noted in Scripture for being more free and familiar with our Saviour than the reſt, as being the Diſciple whom he loved, and, in Requital of Chriſt's Love, waited on him through the ſeveral Paſſages of his Trial, tho' the Ancients ſuppoſe him to be the young Man mentioned in the Goſpel, who fled naked from the Officers when they laid hold of the Linen Cloth about him; but having recovered from the Surprize, did again return to him. At the firſt News of the Reſurrection, he accompanied St. Peter to the Sepulchre: And by ſeveral paſſages in the Scriptures it appears, that there was more than an ordinary Familiarity between theſe two Apoſtles. Euſebius and Nicephorus ſay, That in the Diviſion which the Apoſtles made of the Provinces, Aſia fell to his ſhare, tho' he did not enter on his Charge until after the Virgin's death, which happened A. C. 48. He is ſaid to have Founded the Churches of Smyrna, Pergamus, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, Laodicea, and others. His principal Reſidence was at Epheſus. 'Tis alſo ſaid, that he preached in Parthia, the People of that Country affirming, That he was the firſt who planted Chriſtianity there. In the Iſland of Patmos, the Greek Monks ſhew a dead Man's Hand, the Nails of whoſe Fingers grow, tho' never ſo often pared; which they affirm to be that wherewith St. John wrote the Revelations; and the Turks ſay, 'tis the Hand of one of their Prophets; and both alike true. There were various Opinions concerning his Death: Some ſay, that it was natural: Others, that he was martyred: A third Sort will not allow that he died at all, but place him with Enoch and Elias; and that, with thoſe two, he is to be Chriſt's Fore-runner when he comes to Judgment. All which was founded on a Miſtake of Chriſt's meaning, Matth. 16. 28. and Joh. 21. 21. which is generally ſuppoſed to relate to the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, which St. John outlived many Years. And from the ſame Original proceeds the Story of his ſleeping in his Grave, and the continual Boiling up of the Duſt, by the Motion of his Breath. Nicephorus ſays, That being in perfect Health, and foreſeeing his Tranſlation to Heaven, he took the Miniſters of Epheſus, and others, with him; and having recommended the Church to God by Prayer, commanded a Grave to be dug, and, ſigning himſelf with the Croſs, went down into it before them all, ordering them to lay on the Grave-ſtone, and to make it faſt, and to come and view it the next Day; which when they did, they found nothing but the Grave-Cloaths left. To theſe Fables Ephrem and Gregory of Tours add, That Oil and Manna came from his Sepulchre, which cured all Diſeaſes. He is generally ſuppoſed to have led a ſingle Life, and is noted for his indefatigable pains, and for his expoſing himſelf to all Dangers in preaching the Goſpel. His vigilance againſt Hereticks was alſo remarkable. The Revelations are thought to be the firſt of his Writings; which was rejected by the Hereticks, and controverted by ſome of the Fathers, but it was received by the far greater part. Cave Hiſt. Lit. &c. St. John, called The Elder, is by ſome thought to be a different Perſon from St. John the Apoſtle. It was he whom Papias often converſed with, as he teſtifies in Euſebius, the other Apoſtle of the ſame Name being dead; and Papias could not learn any thing in particular concerning this St. John the Apoſtle, but by the Hear-ſay of old Men. Beſides that, according to the Teſtimony of St. Jerom, there were two Sepulchres at Epheſus, where lay the Bodies of theſe two Johns. Denys the Biſhop of Alexandria, (in Euſebius, lib. 8. cap. 25.) acknowledgeth, that there was a great difference of Stile between the Goſpel and Firſt Epiſtle of St. John, which he did believe to be the Apoſtle's; and the two other Epiſtles, with the Apocalypſe, he attributed to St. John the Elder. Some learned Men gueſs, that this laſt was the ſame who alſo called himſelf Mark, mentioned Acts 12. 12, 25. and 15. 37. 2 Tim. 4. 11. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl. Hieronymus in Catal. Script. Eccleſiaſt. Dodwell, &c.

St. JOHN Climacus, ſo called from a Book of his, named, The Holy Ladder. He is alſo ſurnamed The Scholaſtick, or Learned, and was Abbot of Mount Sinai. He is judged to have been born about 523. At the Age of 16 he retired to the famous Monaſtery of Mount Sinai, and was therefore ſuppoſed to come originally from ſome Town in Judæa, joining to this Mountain, which is in Ancient Arabia. After the Death of his Abbot he ſhut himſelf up in his Cell, whence he ſeldom ſtirred but upon ſome charitable Account; and otherwiſe, he ſpent whole Years without ſpeaking one Word. After he was made Abbot of the Monaſtery of Mount Sinai, where dwelt ſeveral Anchorets, John Abbot of the Monaſtery of Raites prayed him to write ſome Treatiſe for the Inſtruction of Hermits. Thereupon he wrote a Book, conſiſting of two Parts: The firſt is, The Holy Ladder, according to the Model of that which Jacob the Patriarch ſaw in a Viſion. It is compoſed of 30 Steps, in honour of the 30 Years ſolitary Life led by our Saviour. The Second Part of his ſaid Book is, A Letter to the Paſtors. He died about 605, or 606, March 30. which is the Day whereon the Greeks and Latins celebrate his Feaſt. His Life was written in Greek by two Monks, his Contemporaries.

St. JOHN Columbine of Siena, Founder of the Order of Jeſuits, or St. Jerom, lived in the XIVth Century. Paul Morice, a Jeſuit, wrote his Life; who likewiſe publiſhed a Treatiſe concerning Religious Orders. Pope Urban V. confirmed this Order, An. 1367. and Pope Clement IX. ſuppreſs'd it. Sponde.

JOHN (Damaſcenus) a Prieſt and Friar. A famous Stickler for Images, died about An. 800. He wrote ſeveral Works, four Books of the Orthodox Faith, ſeveral Orations in Defence of the Faith, and a great number of ſmall Treatiſes. The Abbot of Billi Tranſlated them into Latin. We have them printed in Greek and Latin at Baſle, An. 1559. John of Jeruſalem wrote his Life.

St. JOHN of Malta, firſt Patriarch of the Order of the Holy Trinity, and of the Redemption of Captives. He was born in a little Village called Faucon, in the Valley of Barcelona in Provence, where thoſe of that Order built a Monaſtery ſince 1261. He came into the World about 1160. He aſſociated himſelf to an Hermit named Fœlix de Valois, in the Solitude of Cerfroi near Meaux. They went afterwards to Rome, where Pope Innocent III. approved of this Order, An. 1198. and confirmed it in 1209; which Order boaſts not to be of Man's making, but of God's. Hic eſt ordo approbatus, non à ſanctis fabricatus, ſed à ſolo ſummo Deo, Tom. III. This John went amongſt the Barbarians in Africa, to procure the Deliverance of the Chriſtian Slaves. About 1200, he Founded the firſt Monaſtery of his Order at Arles in France, and afterwards died at Rome. A Friar, of this Order, publiſhed the Annals of the ſame in Folio at Rome, in 1683. Vide Bibl. Univerſ. Tom. III.

Popes of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. Pope of this Name, was born in Tuſcany, Son of Conſtantius, and Prieſt of the Title of St. Pammachius. He ſucceeded Hormiſdas, Aug. 13. 523. In his Time, Juſtin the Emperor publiſhed moſt ſevere Edicts againſt the Arrians, and took away their Churches. Theodoric King of Italy, being an Arrian, was alarmed at it, and to ſweeten the Emperor, forced the Pope to go upon an Embaſſy to Conſtantinople, threatning to aboliſh the Catholick Religion if he excepted againſt his Demands. John went, and was received at Conſtantinople with extraordinary Pomp. Anaſtaſius the Library-Keeper, and others, have ſaid, That he procured the Reſtitution of the Arrian Church; but this is not likely, becauſe upon his return, Theodoric cauſed him to be ſent Priſoner to Ravenna, where he died for Want, May 17. 526. after having governed the Church two Years, nine Months, and fourteen Days. Baron.

JOHN II. ſurnamed Mercurius, Son of Projectus, was born at Mount Cœlius in Rome. He ſucceeded Boniface II. in the Popedom, in the beginning of 532. The Emperor Juſtinian ſent him a famous Embaſſy, to know what he ſhould do with the Acæmites, who were Heretick-Friars. John called a Synod of Biſhops in An. 532. who condemned them, and afterwards ſent Juſtinian a Letter to tell him of it. This Biſhop alſo approved of the Depoſition of Contumelioſus Biſhop of Riez, by a Letter he ſent to the Biſhops of France. He died June 26. 535. Liberatus, &c.

JOHN III. a Roman, ſurnamed Catelin, was Son of Anaſtaſius. He governed that Church after Pelagius I. 13 Years, abating 24 Days, between July 27. 559. and the 3d of the ſame Month, in 572. We know nothing in particular of his Actions, without it be his Repairing and Enlarging the Burying-places of Martyrs, and that he built the Churches of the Apoſtles St. James and St. Philip. Vide Baron. in Annal. Papirius. Maſon & du Cheſne Hiſt. des Papes.

JOHN IV. Native of Salona in Sclavonia, was the Son of Venantius, ſurnamed The Scholaſtick. He ſucceeded Severinus, Dec. 31. 639. In the beginning of his Pontificate, he wrote a learned Letter to the Prelates of Scotland, touching the Celebration of Eaſter, becauſe they celebrated Eaſter according to the Cuſtom of the Eaſtern Churches. He wrote another to Conſtantine, Son of Heraclius, which is, properly, an Apology for Pope Honorius againſt the Monothelites. His Pontificate continued but one Year, nine Months, and ſix Days; for he died October 12. 641. Vide Bede lib. 2. Hiſt. Angl. cap. 19. Baronius in Annal. Ludovic. Jacob. Bibl. Pontiſ. &c.

JOHN V. Native of Antioch, a City in Syria, was the Son of Cyriacus. He had great Employments before his Exaltation to the Biſhoprick. Pope Agatho ſent him Legate to the Sixth General Council. He was choſen after Benedict II. July 2. 685. and Ruled the Church one Year, eleven Days; having kept his Bed moſt of the time, becauſe of Sickneſs. Anaſtaſius, &c.

JOHN VI. a Greek, was made Pope after Sergius I. on Oct. 29. or 30. 701. He Ruled the Church three Years, two Months, and twelve Days. He died Jan. 10. 705. after having made ſome Repairs upon St. Andrew's Church, St. Peter's, and St. Paul's; created nine Prieſts, two Deacons, and fifteen Biſhops in divers places. He threatned Giſulphus Duke of Beneventum with the Vengeance of God, if he reſtored not the Towns he had taken in the Exarchate; whereupon the ſaid Duke complied, and the Pope redeemed thoſe that had been made Captives, with the Treaſure of the Church. Anaſtaſius in his Life. Baronius, An. Ch. 701. 705.

JOHN VII. the Son of Plato, a Gracian, as was his Predeceſſor John VI. He took poſſeſſion of the Pontifical Chair March 1. or, as others ſay, May 1. 705. Juſtinian the Emperor, ſurnamed Cut Noſe, ſent him ſome Papers concerning certain Points contrary to the Church of Rome, with Direction to call a Synod, to approve what was Orthodox therein, and to Condemn what was not. The Pope indeed aſſembled a Synod accordingly, in 707, but it had not the Courage to retrench ſuch Canons, as were not conformable to the Sentiments of his Church. Afterwards he did examine the Cauſe of St. Willfred Archbiſhop of York, who was unjuſtly perſecuted, and reſtored him with honour to his See. This Pope left nothing remarkable behind him in Hiſtory, ſaving a few pious Foundations which he made. He died Octob. 18. 707. Platina, Onuphrius, &c.

JOHN VIII. Platina ſays, That this John VIII. was Pope Joan of Engliſh Extraction, but born at Mentz; who, having diſguiſed her ſelf like a Man, travelled with her Paramour to Athens, where ſhe made ſuch progreſs in Learning, that coming to Rome, ſhe met with few that could equal her, ſo that on the death of Pope Leo IV. ſhe was choſen to ſucceed him; but being got with Child by one of her Domeſticks, her Travel came upon her, between the Coloſſian Theatre and St. Clements, as ſhe was going to the Lateran Church, and died upon the place, having ſat two Years, one Month, and four Days, and was buried there without any Pomp. He owns, that for ſhame of this, the Popes decline going through this Street to the Lateran; and, that to avoid the like Errour, when any Pope is placed in the Porphyry Chair, his Genitals are felt by the youngeſt Deacon, through a hole made for that purpoſe; but he ſuppoſeth the reaſon of that to be, to put him in Mind that he is a Man, and obnoxious to the Neceſſities of Nature; whence he will have that Seat to be called Sedes ſtercoraria. He ſays, That the Authors of this Story are obſcure and uncertain, but he thought better to relate it than ſeem obſtinate, in omitting what is ſo generally talk'd of. Platina. Morery endeavours to diſprove the Story about Pope Joan, as follows: Thoſe Hiſtorians, ſays he, that report this Fiction, place Pope Joan betwixt Leo IV. and Bennet III. but Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, Photius, tho' no Friend to the Latin Church, Ado Viennenſis, Regino, the Author of the Annals of St. Bertin, Lupus Abbot of Ferriers, Hincmar of Rheims; and, in ſhort, all the Authors that liv'd about the Time when this Joan is pretended to be Pope: All theſe Authors, I ſay, after having mention'd Leo IV. make Bennet III. his immediate Succeſſor, which by conſequence deſtroys the credit of the Story of Pope Joan; which is likewiſe diſbeliev'd by David Blondel, tho' he was far enough from being a Roman Catholick. On the other ſide, Frederick Spanhemius, Divinity-Profeſſor at Leyden, has attempted to confute Blondel, in a Book call'd, Joanna Papiſſa Reſtituta, printed at Leyden in 1692.

JOHN VIII. (according to thoſe that deny there was a Woman-Pope) a Roman, and Son of Gundus, Succeeded Adrian II. Decemb. 14. 872. He Crowned Charles the Bald Emperor, after the death of Lewis II. and the Ceremony thereof was performed on Chriſtmas-day, An. 875. This did not pleaſe the Italians, whereof ſome, as Formoſus Biſhop of Port, and the Earls of Tuſcanelle, conſpired againſt Pope John. This Deſign, and that of the Saracens, who threatned to beſiege Rome, made this Prelate reſolve to ſeek Aid from the Emperor Charles the Bald, which he denied not, but paſſed into Italy, where he met the Pope at Verceil, and was poiſoned upon his return thence, An. 877. This was, when Lambert E. of Spoletto, and Albert Marquiſs of Tuſcany, made Pope John a Priſoner. But ſoon after, he made his eſcape out of their hands, took Shipping and came to Provence, whence he was conducted to Lyons, and came to Troyes, where he held a Council, and Crowned Lewis, ſurnamed The Stammerer, not as Emperor, but as King. This was in 878. The News he received of the Miſchiefs done by the Saracens in Italy, obliged him to return back croſs the Alps; and ſome Authors write, that he was even conſtrained to pay them Tribute. It was at this time, that he received Photius into the Communion of the Church, at the Requeſt of Baſil Emperor of the Eaſt, and re-eſtabliſhed him in the Pontifical Seat at Conſtantinople. This Complacency made Cardinal Baronius ſay, That it had, perhaps, given occaſion to the Vulgar to imagine, that Pope John VIII. was a Woman. Charles the Fat came to Rome, in 880, where the Pope Crowned him Emperor. He died Decemb. 15. 882, after being Pope ten Years and one Day. His Epitaph is to be ſeen in the Vatican Church. Baronius, Du Cheſne, &c.

JOHN IX. Native of Tivoli, Son of Rampoald, ſucceeded in the place of Theodorus II. An. 901. Onuphrius obſerves, That he oppoſed Sergius, the Son of Benedict, and Kinſman to the Earl of Tuſcanelle, who would have made himſelf Pope, and ſtrained hard to become ſo at the Election of John IX. This Prelate held a Council of 74 Biſhops at Ravenna, in 901. There he confirmed the Acts of Pope Formoſus, and thoſe Acts of another Council, which Stephen VII. aſſembled againſt him, were burnt. He confirmed likewiſe the Coronation of Lambert, Emperor, or rather King, of Italy, whom the Italians had oppoſed to Arnold. His Pontificate held three Years and fifteen Days. He died in 905. Baronius in Annal.

JOHN X. a Roman, and Biſhop of Ravenna, aſcended the Pontifical Seat after Landon, on Jan. 24. 913. It was by the Intereſt of Theodora, a powerful Princeſs, and his Friend, the Saracens made ſtrange Broils in Italy in his time. The Pope, with the help of Alberic, Son of Albert Marquiſs of Tuſcany, fought and vanquiſhed them, An. 915, and purſuing his Victory, defeated them at ſeveral times. Perhaps, it was for this reaſon, Platina ſays, that his Spirits were more bent upon the War than upon Religion. In his Time, Conſtantine VIII. Emperor of the Greeks, and Nicholas Patriarch of Conſtantinople, ſent to Rome, to unite the Greek and Latin Churches, but the Bulgarian War hindered it. Leo of Oſtia ſays, That his guilty Conſcience accuſing John of many Faults, he ſent to Compoſtella to have Pilgrimage done for him. He was employed likewiſe to calm the Diſſentions amongſt the Prelates of France, about the Biſhop of Utrecht. Pope John was impriſoned in 928, by Guy Duke of Tuſcany, Hugues King of Italy's Brother, and Husband to Marozia, an unchaſt Woman. She would have advanced to the Holy Chair a Son of her own, by Pope Sergius III. To compaſs which, ſhe got ſome of her Guard to ſtrangle John X. having already killed his Brother Peter before his face. Flodoard ſays, That he died An. 929, Vel vi vel angore, Either by violence or grief. Platina ſays, That this Pope aſſuming to himſelf all the Honour of the Victories againſt the Saracens, entered Rome in triumph, which ſo diſguſted Albericus, that he raiſed a Tumult, but being repulſed, called in the Huns, who having miſerably harraſſed the Country, the people in revenge took and beheaded Albericus. He adds, That another Pope John ſucceeded, but becauſe he ſeized the Chair by force, and was quickly Depoſed, he deſerves no place in the Catalogue. Vide Rom. hiſt. Platina de vit. Pontif.

JOHN XI. was the Son of Pope Sergius III. and of the Harlot Marozia. He ſucceeded Stephen VIII. An. 931. and came to the Papal Throne by the Faction of his Father-in-Law, Guy of Tuſcany. This Guy being dead, Marozia ſent Deputies to Hugues, her Brother-in-Law, to tender him Rome, on condition that he would marry her. Which Propoſition ſo incenſed his Son Alberic, that he cauſed her and Pope John to be ſent to Priſon and Confined; and the Pope died there, An. 936. Platina ſays, That at his coming to the Papacy, a Fountain at Genoua run with Blood, which was followed with Murthers and Ravages in Italy, by the Huns and Saracens. Luitprand. lib. 3. cap. 12. Du Cheſne. Vie des papes.

JOHN XII. Alberic's Son, a Roman Patrician, being made Prince of the City of Rome, after his Father's death, and Pope Agapet II's. he got into the poſſeſſion of the Pontificate, being but 18 Years of Age. His former Name was Octavien, and he aſſumed the Name of John, either in Memory of John XI. his Uncle, or becauſe ſome Flatterers uſed to ſay of him, what the Holy Scripture ſays of the Fore-runner of Chriſt, That there was a Man ſent from God whoſe Name was John. Be it what it will, ſince that time, the Popes have, for the moſt part, altered their Names. Authors ſay, That this Pope addicted to all ſorts of Wickedneſs, ſeeing Berenger and Albert his Son, exerciſing incredible Tyrannies in Italy, called in Otho I. Emperor, whom he crowned at Rome, An. 951. and promiſed him Allegiance, which he ſwore unto him by the Body of St. Peter, and yet forgot his promiſe quickly, and ſided with the Tyrants. Otho returned to Rome, and John withdrew, fearing the juſt indignation of this Prince. But that did not hinder the Biſhops from calling a Council, An. 963, wherein, after having heard the frightful complaints made againſt him, they Depoſed him from the Pontificate. Nevertheleſs, he re-entered the City as ſoon as Otho had left it, and on Feb. 26. 964, aſſembled a Synod; during the Seſſion of which, he cauſed all the Acts of the former, held againſt him, to be burnt; and to be fully revenged of this pretended Injury, he cauſed John, Cardinal-Deacon, to be beheaded, and Aſon's Tongue, Noſe and Fingers, to be cut off; then he went on in his abominable way of Living. But Luitprand writes, That the Devils beat him ſo ſore one Evening, as he lay with a Woman, that he died eight Days after. Others ſay, That the Woman's Husband killed him. He died, May 15. 964, having Governed the Church from 955. Platina ſays, That he was more profligate than any of his Predeceſſors; and that about the Time of his Death, abundance of Prodigies were ſeen in Italy, a Stone of wonderful bigneſs falling from the Clouds in a great Storm, and that on the Garments of many Perſons, the Figure of a bloody Croſs appeared miraculouſly.

JOHN XIII. a Roman, Biſhop of Narni, ſucceeded Benedict V. in 965. He was choſen by the Emperor's Authority, which grieved the Romans. The Pope inclined to Severity againſt them, which provoked them ſo, that he was forced at laſt to withdraw to Capua to Prince Pandolfus. Otho the Emperor came to re eſtabliſh him at Rome; he was afterwards preſent at a Council, aſſembled by John at Ravenna, in 967. They ſay, that it was then that the Polanders received the Chriſtian Faith; and this Pope was the firſt who Eſtabliſhed the Bleſſing of Bells. Platina ſays, That Peter the Prætor, who headed the People againſt the Pope, being delivered to ſuffer at his diſcretion, was hang'd by the hair on the Head of the Statue of Conſtantine's Horſe, and afterwards ſet upon an Aſs, with his hands tied under his Tail, and being led through the City, was whipp'd almoſt to death. He died Sept. 6. 972. Platina, Onuphrius, &c.

JOHN XIV. before called Peter, Biſhop of Pavia, Chancellor to the Emperor Otho II. was preferred to the Throne after Benedict VII. This was in 984, and at the refuſal of St. Maieul, as we are told by Nagdole, who wrote his Life. Boniface VII. ſurnamed Franſon, the Antipope, who was retired to Conſtantinople, hearing of the death of the Emperor Benedict VII. came to Rome, and with the help of his Friends he impriſoned the Pope, and cauſed him to be ſtrangled, Auguſt 20. 985; but, whether for his Tyranny and Arrogance, or by the Malice and Envy of the People, Platina ſays, is uncertain, after having held the place one Year, and ſome Months. Baror. A. C. 985.

JOHN XV. a Roman, Son of Leo, a Prieſt, was choſen by the Clergy, about the latter end of 985. And after the death of Boniface the Antipope, Creſcentius, then in great Power at Rome, made this Pope dread the Fate which John XIV. came to. This is alſo one of the Motives which obliged him to retire to Tuſcany, and to deſire the Emperor Otho III's Protection. Theſe precautions frightned the Romans, and they called the Prelate back again to them. He came accordingly, and in 989, celebrated a Synod at Rome, upon the account of St. Adalbert Biſhop of Prague, who was retired into a Monaſtery. He laboured to reconcile the Breach between Ethelred King of England, and Richard Duke of Normandy, and to appeaſe the Diſorders that happened in the Church of Rheims, by the Depoſing of Arnoul. In the interim, Creſcentius, whom I ſpoke of, having fortified himſelf in the Caſtle of St. Angelo at Rome, the Emperor came to beſiege him there, at the Requeſt of the Romans, and during this Siege the Pope died, May 7. 996. Platina ſays, that there was a mutual hatred between this Pope and the Clergy; and, that he was ſo exorbitantly covetous, that he laid hold on all things, Sacred and Prophane, to enrich his Kindred. He adds, That in his Time appeared a terrible Comet, followed by Peſtilence, Famine, and Earthquakes, which were looked upon as Judgments for the Covetouſneſs and Pride of the Pope, who contemned God and Man.

JOHN XVI. a Roman, was the Son of Robert. He was Elected after John XV. in the Opinion of the Continuator of Ciaconius, of du Cheſne, and ſome others, altho' Cardinal Baronius does not reckon him in the number of Popes. Creſcentius, who exerciſed his Tyrannical Pranks daily at Rome, forced him thence to demand Succour from the Emperor. He was called back quickly, and immediately upon his Return he died, June 1. 996. Some pretend, that Gregory V. ſucceeded him. Continuateur de Ciaconi en Jean XVI. Du Cheſne's hiſt. des Papes, Tom. 1. p. 561. Edit. de Paris de 1653.

JOHN XVII. Antipope, formerly called Philagathus, was a Native of Roſſano in Calabria, and Biſhop of Plaiſance. Creſcentius, who kept Rome under, being Maſter of the Caſtle of St. Angelo, made him to be choſen in oppoſition to Gregory V. This Biſhop, who was Knowing and Rich, had a great many Friends, and was aſſiſted by the Protection of the Tyrant. But the Emperor Otho III. having got Creſcentius out of his Fort, took Philagathus too, and cut both his Hands and Ears off, after having pulled out his Eyes. This was in 998. They ſay moreover, that being delivered to the Romans, they ſet him upon an Aſs, and carried him thus about the City. Cardinal Peter Damianus adds, That he held the Aſs by the Tail, and was forced to cry, as he went along, That was the puniſhment of all ſuch as would Dethrone the Popes. *Tale ſupplicium patitur qui Romarum Papam de ſua ſede pellere nititur. JOHN XVIII. ſo called, by thoſe who own the Antipope John XVII. The Count of Tuſcanelle's Faction raiſed him to the Holy Chair, which he kept but five Months after Silveſter II. An. 1003. Some ſay, that in his time the chuſing of Popes was taken from the People, and entirely inveſted in the Clergy. This Pope was ſurnamed Sico. Vide Baronius, Du Cheſne, &c.

JOHN XIX. whom Platina calls the XXth. becauſe he ranks Pope Joan, and the Antipope Philagathus, called John XVII. in the Catalogue of Popes, was Elected November 20. 1003. Some ſay he was a Roman, ſurnamed Faſanus or Fanaſus. Peter, Patriarch of Antioch, by a Letter to Michael Cerulatius, teſtifies, That this Pope reconciled the Greek and Latin Churches, and that at Conſtantinople, they named him in the Canon of the Maſs.

JOHN XX. Son of Gregory, Count of Tuſcanelle, and Brother of Benedict VIII. ſucceeded him, An. 1024. He was called Romanus before his Advancement to the Pontificate, and got his preferment by his Wealth and Father's Intereſt. He crowned Conradus II. and died November 8. 1033. Platina ſays, That ſome affirm he never was in Holy Orders, but commends him for his Life.

JOHN XXI. formerly called John Peter, Cardinal of Freſcati, came to the Chair after Adrian V. on Sept. 13. 1276. He was a Native of Lisbon in Portugal, a Phyſician by Calling, and he is found amongſt the Authors of this Time, to have written a great Catalogue of Receipts to preſerve Health. Peter was a Phyſician's Son too. He was firſt Arch-deacon, and then Archbiſhop of Braga in Portugal, and Pope Gregory X. liſted him in the Roll of Cardinals, An. 1278. Beſides the Work I have already ſpoke of, he is ſaid to have written others; as, Summulæ Logicales, Parva Logicalia, In Phyſionomiam Ariſtotelis, Dialectica, Epiſtolæ, Canones Medicinæ, De Oculis, and many other Treatiſes to be ſeen in the Library of the Popes of P. Lovis Jacob. This Pope ſent Legates to Michael Palæologus, to exhort him to the obſervation of what was reſolved upon in the Council of Lyons, under Gregory X. Martinus Polonus, who continued his Chronicle to this time, ſays, That this Prelate perſwaded himſelf that he ſhould live long, from ſome diſcovery which he pretended to have made in the Stars. But this Speculation failed him, for he died at Viterbo, May 15. or 20. 1277. Six days after he received a Wound by the fall of a Room, which he had cauſed to be built near his Palace. He held the See eight Months, and three or eight Days. Platina ſays, Tho' he was a very learned Man, yet his ignorance of Buſineſs, the unevenneſs of his Converſation, with his Folly and Levity, did the Popedom more harm than good. However, he deſerves commendation for one thing; and that is, for his aſſiſting young Scholars, eſpecially the poorer ſort, with Money and Preferment.

JOHN XXII. ſucceeded Clement V. An. 1316. This laſt Dying, the See then at Avignon, was vacant for two Years together, and upwards; and the Cardinals aſſembled at Carpentras, could not agree about the Election of a new Pope. Philip the Long, Earl of Poictiers, and afterwards King of France, by Order of his Brother Lewis X. ſurnamed Hutin, went to Lyons to endeavour, if he could, to get the vacant Chair filled; he uſed all the Art and Addreſs imaginable with the Cardinal at Lyons, in order to it; nay, ſhut them up in the Conclave of the Jacobines, proteſting, that they ſhould not get out till they choſe one. This Treatment amazed them, and foraſmuch as after Forty Days ſitting, they could not agree; ſo at laſt, it was by conſent left to James de Oſſa, or De uſſe Cardinal, Biſhop of Port, to Name whom he pleaſed, and he named himſelf, Crying, Ego ſum Papa, I am the Pope. This Election was made, Sept. 5. or 8. 1316, to the general ſatisfaction of the Aſſembly, and the new Pope aſſuming the Name of John XXII. was Crowned at the Church of St. John of Lyons, and afterwards went to Avignon, and there held his See. He was a Native of Cahors in Querci, Son of Arnaude de Oſſa, a poor Shooe-maker, and thus highly advanced by his Ingenuity. 'Tis ſaid, That he was but a little Man, but of great Wit, and very knowing, as to thoſe Times, eſpecially in the Civil and Canon-Law, which he learned in France and Italy. From his youthful-Days upwards, he was entirely devoted to Peter Archbiſhop of Arles, Chancellor to Charles II. King of Naples, Earl of Provence, and became ſo conſiderable; that after this Prelate's death, Robert the Son of Charles, gave him the Seal, and made him Chancellor. Afterwards he became Biſhop of Frejus, and Pope Clement V. having a value for him, advanced him to the Archbiſhoprick of Avignon, about 1310. and two Years after made him Cardinal, Biſhop of Port. This Pope Canonized Lewis Biſhop of Toulouſe, and Thomas of Aquin. He Confirmed the Order of the Knights of Chriſt in Portugal, to wage War with the Saracens of Africa, and the Moors of Granada, and Reformed that of Grandmona. He alſo Erected divers Abbeys into Biſhopricks, and converted ſeveral Epiſcopal Churches into Archbiſhopricks in Languedoc, Guienne, Poitou, and Spain; beſides a great number of Collegiate Churches. He raiſed the Biſhoprick of Toulouſe into an Archbiſhoprick, and made its Suffragans, Montauban, Lavaur, Mirepoix, St. Papoul, Lombez, and Pamiez already Eſtabliſhed under Boniface VIII. In the Archbiſhoprick of Bourges, he Erected the Biſhopricks of St. Flour, of Vabres, Caſtres, and Tulle; and in that of Bourdeaux, Condom, Sarlat, Luſon, and Maillezaes. He divided the Province of Tarragon into two, and raiſed Saragoſſe to a Metropolis. It was this Pope, who publiſhed the Clementines, a Conſtitution ſettled by his Predeceſſor Clement V. who made him a Cardinal, and who likewiſe Eſtabliſhed theſe other Conſtitutions called Extravagantes. The Election that was made in his time of Lewis de Bavaria, and of Frederick of Auſtria to the Empire, divided the People's Minds. The firſt went for Lawful, yet Pope John was extreamly againſt him. This Miſunderſtanding came to that height, that Lewis being at Rome, in 1320. cauſed John to be Degraded from the Papacy, and preferred Peter Ramache of Corberia a Franciſcan Friar to his Place, under the Name of Nicholas V. Michael de Ceſenne, General of this Order, and his Clergy, ſupported him mainly, both by Sermons and Writings. But this Party was ſoon Defeated, and Corberia ſuffering himſelf to be taken, was carried to Avignon, An. 1330. where he Demanded the Pope's Pardon with a Rope about his Neck, and died in Priſon two or three Years after. The Pope alſo died Decemb. 4. 1334. being above Ninety Years old. He built a Palace at Avignon, with other magnificent Works. 'Tis reported, that he left a greater Treaſure than any of his Predeceſſors, viz. To the Value of Twenty Eight Millions of Ducats, beſides Seventeen Hundred Thouſand Florins of Gold. As to the Diſpute concerning the Cordelter's Bread, Vid. the Article Occam. and Tom. I. of the Bibl. Univ. Platina ſays, that Hugo Biſhop of Cathurio was Degraded, Tortured, and put to Death, for conſpiring againſt this Pope; who was ſo addicted to Novelties, that he divided ſome ſingle Biſhopricks into two, united ſeveral that were diſtinct, turned Abbacies into Biſhopricks, and Biſhopricks into Abbacies, and created new Dignities and Societies in the Church, and altered thoſe that had been formerly Conſtituted. In 1322. he publiſhed an Edict, Declaring all thoſe to be obſtinate Hereticks, who affirmed, That Chriſt and his Diſciples had nothing which they could call their own, and forbad all Diſputes on that Head in Schools. He condemned the Opinion of Friar Peter a Minorite, who had animated a Convent, to imitate Chriſt's Poverty, and Condemned and Burned many of his Followers. He protected the Guelphs againſt the Emperor, betwixt whoſe Forces, and thoſe of the Church, were ſeveral Battles with various ſucceſs. After this, the Pope entred into a League with the King of Bohemia, which created a War betwixt him and ſeveral other Princes of Italy, wherein ſometimes the one, ſometimes the other, had the Victory, but the Eccleſiaſtical Forces received a great Defeat about the time of the Pope's Death. Nauclerus. Ciaconius. Du Cheſne.

JOHN XXIII. formerly called Balthazar Coſſa, was born at Naples. Boniface IX. made him Cardinal, An. 1402, and ſent him Legate to Bologne. He was choſen Pope, May 17. 1410. after the Death of Alexander V. on condition, That if, for the Quiet of the Church, Gregory XII. and Peter de Luna, who was called Benet XII. quitted their Pretenſions to the Chair, he ſhould do the ſame. Hiſtorians aſſure us, that the Actions and Sentiments of John XXIII. were more becoming a Warriour than a Pope, and that he forced his Election. Others ſay, that it was at the Recommendation of Lewis of Anjou King of Naples, who received him with that Pomp after his Coronation, that he favoured him againſt Ladiſlaus. The Council held at Piſa, An. 1409. Ordained another to be held within three Years. John called one at Rome, An. 1413. Some time after, the Emperor Sigiſmond paſſed into Italy, and the City of Conſtance upon the Rhine, was the Place where the Council was to be held. At the ſecond Seſſions, March 2. 1415. The Pope mounted his Throne with his Face to the Altar, read a Paper preſented him by John Patriarch of Antioch, and a French man, with a loud Voice, and promiſed as he read it, to renounce the Papacy, if the other two did the like, or if they died. But whether he was conſtrained to this Act, or did it unawares, he repented however, and retired to Schaffouze, diſguiſed in a Lay Habit. After having ſquandered away ſome time from Town to Town, he was made Priſoner at Fribourg, carried to Conſtance, and Depoſed by the Council in the 12th. Seſſion, held May 29. of the ſame Year; he himſelf ſent his Renunciation of the Pontificate to the Council. After that, he was ſent Priſoner to Manheim, or Heidelberg, under the Guard of Lewis of Bavaria, Count-Palatine of the Rhine, and got not out till 1410. Some ſay, That he bribed his Keepers for thirty Thouſand Ducats. And others aſſure us, that he was Diſcharged, when the Peace of the Church was ſettled upon the Election of Martin V. by the Death of Gregory XII. and the Excommunication of Peter de Luna. We know this at leaſt, That Balthazar Coſſa came to Florence, June 14. and threw himſelf at the Feet of Pope Martin, who received him, made him Dean of the Cardinals, and Biſhop of Freſcati; and Ordained, That in conſideration of what he had been, his Seat in the Aſſembly, ſhould be higher than any of the reſt. His abode in this Eſtate was not long, for he died Decemb. 22. following, and had a magnificent Burial, at the charge of Como de Medici, his Friend, who Erected a ſtately Tomb for him in St. John's Church. Authors accuſe this Prelate of being a Luke-warm Church-man; but none could deny his being a Man of ſtrong Reſolution, in the Miſfortunes which befel him. He ſacrificed his Fortune to the Repoſe of the Church, and had reaſon to complain of his Friends who betrayed, or left him in his need. 'Tis reported, That he himſelf wrote the following Verſes, in Priſon, upon the inconſtancy of his Fortune.

> Qui modo ſummus eram, gaudens & nomine Præſul,
> Triſtis & abjectus nunc mea fata gemo.
> Excelſus ſolio nuper verſabar in alto,
> Cunctaque gens pedibus oſcula prona dabat,
> Nunc ego pœnarum fundo devolvor in-imo,
> Vultum deformem quemque videre piget.
> Omnibus in Terris aurum mihi ſponte ferebant,
> Sed nec gaza juvat, nec quis amicus adeſt.
> Sic varians fortuna vices, adverſa ſecundis
> Subdit, & ambiguo nomine ludit atrox.

Platina ſays, That he aſpired to the Papacy from his Youth, having finiſhed his Studies went for Rome, and told his Friends, that asked him whither he was going, that he was going to the Pontificate; and being admitted into Boniface IX's Service, he reduced ſeveral Places to the Obedience of the Church, and by Bribes, made ſure of the Vacancy, after Alexander, for himſelf. In his time, the Gibellines having brought Fazinus canis into the City, on Condition that they ſhould have the Eſtates of the Guelphs, he plundered both Parties, and when the Gibellines complained, he told them, they ſhould be ſafe in their Perſons, but that their Goods were the Guelphs. King Ladiſlaus invaded the Pope, and forced him to retire from Rome; and to remedy the Diſtractions then occaſioned by the Schiſm, he was urged to call a General Council at Conſtance, where he was Degraded; King Sigiſmond having laid grievous things to his Charge. and this Council publiſhed a Synodical Decree, wherein they affirmed, That a General Council lawfully Called, was the Supream Authority next to Chriſt. The ſame Council deprived Peter de Luna, commonly called Benedict XIII. of the Papacy.

Patriarchs of Alexandria of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, ſurnamed Talaida, Patriarch of the Church of Alexandria, was advanced by the Orthodox Party, in room of Timothy Solofaciolus, An. 482. He was formerly a Prieſt and Treaſurer of the ſame Church. Acacius of Conſtantinople, charged him with divers Crimes before the Emperor Zenon; the Principal, were, his getting himſelf to be made Biſhop of Alexandria, contrary to his Oath; and perſwading his Predeceſſor to put the Name of Dioſcorus into the ſacred Diptychs, or Church Records. At this Biſhop's perſwaſion, Zeno perſecuted John, drove him from his Chair, and re-eſtabliſhed Peter Mongus, an Heretick. John retired to Rome, where Pope Fœlix III. gave him the Biſhoprick of Nola, wherein he behaved himſelf very faithfully and died in Peace. Liberatus Brev. c. 16, 17, 18. Baronius, A. C. 482. & ſeq.

JOHN II. ſurnamed Mela, an Heretick, ſucceeded Anaſtaſius, alſo an Heretick, An. 497. Liberatus and Leontius ſay, That he Subſcribed the Edict called Henoticum, which Zeno, the Emperor, had publiſhed. He kept the Chair till 506, when another Heretick ſeized his Place.

JOHN III. called Machiota, an Heretick, was preferred, by his Friends, to the Biſhoprick of Alexandria, after John II. An. 506. At firſt he received the Henoticum of Zeno, rejected the Council of Chalcedon, and perſecuted the Orthodox with incredible fury, for the Eleven Years time he Govern'd that Church. For 'tis ſaid, that he died in 516. according to the Account of Nicephorus in his Chronicles, and Liberatus Brev. cap. 18.

JOHN IV. ſucceeded Apollinarius, as Patriarch, An. 570. Behaved himſelf well, and died, An. 581. Nicephorus in Chronol. Baron. A. C. 570. 581.

JOHN V. who, for his extraordinary Charity to the Poor, deſerved the Title of Almoner, was born at Amathus in Cyprus. He was the Son of Epiphanius, Governor of that Iſland, and ſucceeded Theodorus, An. 610. His Life written by Leontius, Biſhop of Naples in Cyprus, is full of wonderful Examples of Charity and Zeal. For this holy Man, whom the Emperor Heraclius obliged to accept of the Election, rooted out Hereſie and Simony, Reformed the Morals of the Clergy, built Churches and Hoſpitals, and delighted in giving what he had to the Poor, whom he called his Lords; and remembring on his Death bed, that he had one piece of Money left, he made his Will, and left it to the Poor. He died at Cyprus, whither he withdrew to avoid the Fury of the Barbarians, who threatned to Beſiege Alexandria in 620.

Patriarchs of Antioch of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, Theodorus of Mopſueſta's Diſciple, ſucceeded him, in 427. He fell into the Errors of Neſtorius, and as ſome thought, gave a ſmall tincture to his Friend Theodoret of Cyrus, whom he employed to refute the Anathema's pronounced againſt Neſtorianiſm in a Council held by St. Cyril of Alexandria, the moſt zealous Defender of the Orthodox Faith. Pope Cœleſtin wrote to him to oppoſe Neſtorius, which he did ſeemingly, and ſent him his Thoughts in a Letter, which gave juſt Cauſe to ſuſpect him; plain afterwards by the ſtrict Correſpondence which he held with the Hereſiarch, even after his Excommunication. In complement to Neſtorius, he would not appear at the General Council of Epheſus, in 431. where they waited for his coming Fifteen Days, and did not open, till he ſent Word that he would not come. He came however with his Suffragans, and complained, unjuſtly, that they did not tarry for him. This was five Days after Neſtorius's Condemnation, with whom he ſided, and ſhutting himſelf up in his Houſe, he aſſembled a petty Council of Thirty Biſhops, all Depoſed for their Crimes, or exploded for their Hereſies. There it was, that they had the boldneſs to Condemn St. Cyril, and Memnon of Epheſus and to Excommunicate the other Biſhops of the Council, who Commanded him to come and give an account of his Proceedings, and upon his Denial to appear, he was Anathematized. But I am unwilling to omit here, that in this petty Council held by John, the Pelagian Biſhops were re-eſtabliſhed, and declared, That the Soul of Adam died not for its Offence, and that Original Sin, did not paſs from the Parent to the Child. And this heretical Poſition was ſlid in amongſt the genuine Canons of the Council of Epheſus; and St. Gregory was the firſt that Diſcovered it, in his Letters to Eulogius of Alexandria, to Anaſtaſius of Antioch, and to Comte Narſes. Notwithſtanding, John of Antioch, deceived the Emperor Theodoſius Junior, by his Letters, and after the Council, the Diviſion between St. Cyril and him, diſturbed the Peace of the Church for a long time. He recanted, An. 432. and was reconciled with the Pope and St. Cyril, and Paul, Biſhop of Emeſa, whom he ſent to Alexandria, condemned Neſtorius, and ſubſcribed to the Acts of the Council of Epheſus; whereof an Account was forthwith given to Pope Sixtus III. who ſucceeded Cœleſtin I. Ever after that, John deteſted Neſtorius his Hereſie. He left his Seat, which he held Thirteen Years, to Domnus his Nephew, who was choſen in his Place. Vide the Acts of the Council of Epheſus. Nicephorus. Theodoret. Liberatus and Baronius, A. C. 427. 430. & ſeq.

JOHN II. was Created Patriarch, An. 1090. when the Latins made themſelves Maſters of the City, An. 1098. Genebrard in Chron.

Patriarchs of Conſtantinople of the Name of JOHN.

ST. JOHN (Chryſoſtom) was born of a Noble Family at Antioch, about 354. Learned Rhetorick under Libanius, and Philoſophy under Andragathus, afterwards deſigned to apply himſelf to the Law, but changing his Reſolution, embraced a ſolitary Life under Carterius; and when Meletius of Antioch, by whom he was much eſteemed, was baniſhed by the Emperor Valens, to Armenia, he withdrew to the Mountains near Antioch, and lived there four Years in ſuch rigorous Penance, that he impaired his health conſiderably, and was forced to come back to Antioch, where Meletius at his return from his Exile, Ordained him Deacon in 380. He wrote his Books De Sacerdotio in his retirement, and publiſhed his Treatiſes of Providence, when Deacon, and compoſed his Homiles of the Incomprehenſible Nature of God, ſome againſt the Jews, with ſeveral other Excellent Pieces. Flavian, who ſucceeded Meletius, inſtituted him Prieſt, in 385. and it was then he wrote moſt of the Works we have of his, and that he was called Golden Mouth for his Eloquence. Nectarius Prelate of Conſtantinople being dead, he was choſen to ſucceed him, Feb. 26. 369. but met with much difficulty to come from Antioch, where the People deſigned to have kept him. Being arrived at Conſtantinople, he obtained a rigorous Order againſt the Eunomians and Montaniſts, reformed the Abuſes of the Clergy, and imployed a good part of his Revenues in building Hoſpitals for the Sick, and maintaining the Poor. The Liberty he took, to inveigh publickly againſt the Pride, Luxury and oppreſſion of great Men, created him many powerful Enemies; amongſt the reſt, Eutropius a great Favourite of the Prince. He oppoſed the Uſurpers of the Empire with great courage, eſpecially Gainas, to whom he refuſed a Church for the Arians, whom he baniſhed afterwards out of Conſtantinople. He differed with St. Epiphanius about the Origeniſts, and alſo with Theophilus of Alexandria, who, to be revenged of him, drew the Biſhops, the Empreſs Eudoxia, with ſeveral other Perſons of Quality, to his ſide, aſſembled a Synod at Quercum in 403. whither John was cited, and charged with ſeveral Crimes, and Depoſed, becauſe he refuſed to anſwer to the Charge. The Emperor baniſhed him from Conſtantinople, but he was ſoon re-called. His Enemies renewed their Perſecutions againſt him after a while, and hearing that he declaimed againſt the Dedication of a Statue, erected to the Empreſs, they animated her ſo much againſt him, that ſhe reſolved his Ruine, baniſhed him from Conſtantinople, perſecuted him at Cæſarea, whither he had retired, and at laſt, ſent him to Cucuſus in Armenia, a wild place unfurniſh'd with the Neceſſaries of Life, where he received Letters from Innocent I. and from moſt of the Weſtern Biſhops, much concerned for his Sufferings. The Emperor Honorius, wrote alſo in his Favour to his Brother Arcadius. After a tedious Baniſhment, he was removed to Arabiſſa in Armenia, afterwards as they were removing him to Pityus upon the Black Sea, he was ſo roughly treated by the Soldiers that conducted him thither, that he died upon the way, Novemb. 14. 407. and 52d. or 53d. Year of his Age. This great Man was called by the Popes, The Auguſtin of the Greeks, and much praiſed by General Councils. The beſt Editions of his Works, are, thoſe of Sir Henry Savils in 8 Tomes, in 1613. And that of Commelin, in 1603. in 4 Tomes; Paris Edition in 1613, by P. Fronto Ducæus in 6. M. Hermant has lately writ St. Chryſoſtom's Life in French. Baronius, Bellarmin, Poſſevin, Godeau, &c. Boſius ſays of him, That none of the Ancients was happier in Interpreting the Scriptures, Sounder in teaching the People, Sharper in impugning the Hereticks, or more Zealous in promoting Vertue, and curbing Vice. He adds, That he knows no Book, beſides the Holy Scriptures, more profitable for Preachers than his Homilies, of which, no Man ever wrote more, better, or more Eloquent. Scaliger, Eraſmus, and Montacutius, do all ſpeak of him with mighty applauſe, the former, eſpecially for his Commentaries on the New Teſtament, and wonderful ſweetneſs of Stile, in which no Eccleſiaſtical Writer has ever ſince come near him. Thoſe who have a mind to ſee the Catalogue of his Works, and know which are reckoned Genuine, Spurious, or doubtful, may conſult the learned Dr. Cave's Hiſtoria Literaria, the Catalogue being too long for us to inſert here.

JOHN II. of Cappadocia, was Elected Patriarch, An. 517. about the latter part of the Emperor Anaſtaſius's Reign, but entred not upon the Government of his Church till the Coronation of Juſtinus. During which Ceremony, he condemned Eutyches, Neſtorius, Severus, and the other Hereticks, and embraced the Council of Chalcedon. Four Days after, he ſummoned a Synod of Forty Biſhops to approve what had been done, and Pope Leo's Name was inſerted in the Diptychs. The four firſt General Councils were inſerted there, and the Biſhops baniſhed by Anaſtaſius, were re-called. Baronius in Annal.

JOHN III. called Scholaſticus, was Apocriſiarius or Nuncio to the Church of Antioch at Conſtantinople, where being ingaged with a Party of Hereticks, they ſo ordered the Matter, that Juſtinian the Emperor preferred him to the Place of the Patriarch Eutychius, about 564, and he kept the See, till 578. See Eutychius.

JOHN IV. called The Faſter, was by the care of the Emperor Tiberius II. made Biſhop of Conſtantinople, after Eutychius, in 583. Under the Pontificate of Pope Pelagius, Gregory of Antioch an Innocent Perſon being extreamly ill uſed by his Enemies, appealed to the Emperor Mauritius, and came to Conſtantinople for Juſtice; John, who was very willing to exert his Authority over an Eaſtern Patriarch, Aſſembled a Synod of Biſhops, who were then either reſiding at Court, or in the Neighbourhood, to examine the Cauſe; and in this Synod, John took the Title of Oecuminical or Univerſal Biſhop. Theſe proceedings were reſented by Pope Pelagius, who remonſtrated to the Prelates, in a Letter, that they ought not to have held a Synod, without the Conſent and Approbation of the Apoſtolick See. And at the End of the Letter he Exhorts John, to quit his new Title, unleſs he had a mind to be excommunicated. This diſpute between the Sees of Rome and Conſtantinople, was reviv'd under the Pontificate of Gregory the Great: For John, having ſent him a Copy of the Proceedings of the Eccleſiaſtical Court, againſt a Prieſt at Conſtantinople, who had made his Appeal from John, to the See of Rome. In this Proceſs, John of Conſtantinople called himſelf Oecumenical Biſhop, almoſt in every Line. Pope Gregory thought this was by no means to be ſuffer'd; and therefore, oppoſing the Innovation with his uſual zeal and fervour, he calls it a haughty and ſupercilious Stile, that 'twas both new and Prophane, that there was Error, Schiſm, Poyſon, Blaſphemy, and Diabolical Uſurpation in the Title. John died, An. 569. Nicephorus ſays, that he was a Perſon of wonderful Abſtinence, that he gave all he had to the Poor, and that after his Death, there was nothing found in his Houſe, but an old threadbare Gown, and a ſorry wooden Bed, which Maurice, the Emperor uſed to lay upon, on ſome great Feſtivals, when he would do Penance.

JOHN V. Syncellus, that's to ſay, Vicar and Aſſiſtant to the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and Keeper of the Church Plate, ſucceeded Thomas II. An. 658. He adhered to the Errors of the Monothelites, although the Acts of the ſixth Synod called him Orthodox. He died, in 664. Nicephorus in Chron. Baronius, A. C. 658. 664.

JOHN VI. an Apoſtate-Friar, and Monothelite intruded into the Patriarchal Chair againſt Cyrus, whom the Tyrant Philippicus Bardanes baniſhed, An. 712. But a little time after, Anaſtaſius being made Emperor, turned John out of the Chair, at the Perſwaſion of Pope Gregory II. Baronius, A. C. 712. 714.

JOHN VII. called VI. by thoſe who leave out the Apoſtate-Friar above-mentioned, was Syncellus, or Coadjutor of the Church of Conſtantinople. He was Præceptor to Theophilus the Emperor, and always maintained the Opinions of the Iconoclaſts. He was crowned Patriarch in 835. after Theodorus. In 842

Michael III. coming to the Empire, under the Regency of Theodora, his Mother, this Princeſs outed John, and had Methodius put in his place. Having found Images in a Monaſtery, where he was ſhut up for penance, he cauſed their Eyes to be pulled out. Theodora had notice of it, and condemned him to be ſo treated; but in conſideration of ſome perſons, who interceded for him, the Sentence was altered, and he was ordered to have 200 Laſhes, An. 844. Curopalates. Baronius, &c.

JOHN VIII. See JOHN Xiphilinus. Divers Authors place John VIII. between Siſinnius and Sergius, who was Patriarch till An. 1019. Curopalates takes no notice of him: And the Opinion is founded upon the Teſtimony of Peter of Antioch, in a Letter he wrote to Michael Cerularius. Some are of Opinion too, that this John might be the Uncle of Xiphilinus, who makes mention of him in the Hiſtory of Auguſtus.

JOHN IX. ſurnamed Camaterus, was Deacon and Keeper of the Charters of the Church of Conſtantinople, and was choſen Patriarch after Gregory Xiphilinus, about 1198.

JOHN X. whom ſome call Beccus, was the firſt Patriarch's Secretary. He approved the Union which the Emperor Michael VIII. would have made between the Greek and Latin Churches, in the IId Council of Lyons, in 1274, under Pope Gregory X. againſt the Sentiments of Joſeph the Patriarch, who retired into a Monaſtery. The Emperor Andronicus, Son and Succeſſor to Michael, got this Patriarch John to be condemned afterwards, in a Synod held at Conſtantinople, about 1283. Gregoras Lib. 5. Bzovius, &c.

JOHN XI. born at Soſopolis, an Epiſcopal City of Thrace, ſucceeded Anaſtaſius in 1294. He was ſo much eſteemed for his Vertue, that he was taken out of a Monaſtery, whither he retired after the Death of his Wife, to be preferred to the Chair of Conſtantinople, where he lived till 1301. Gregoras, lib. 7. Onuphrius in Chron. Sponde, A.C. 1294. n. 6.

JOHN XII. an Officer of Andronicus the Emperor, was named Patriarch of Conſtantinople, after Nipho, An. 1315. The Greeks had a ſettled Cuſtom amongſt them, That ſuch as were choſen Patriarchs ſhould wear a Friar's Habit if they had not taken it before. John prepared for this Ceremony, but the Emperor oppoſed it, knowing that he had the Gout, and that the Phyſicians ordered him to eat Meat, a Thing which he could not do if he were a Friar. Gregoras ſays, That this Patriarch took much pains to refine the Greek Language. He died An. 1320. Gregoras, lib. 7. Sponde, A.C. 1315. n. 8.

JOHN XIII. ſucceeded Iſaiah, a Friar of Mount Athos, about 1331, or 1341, according to Onuphrius. Before this Election he was Prieſt of the Imperial College of Conſtantinople. In 1541, he preſided at the Synod held to judge of the Opinions of Barlaam and Palamas, and was depoſed An. 1345.

JOHN Michel, a Venetian Cardinal, was Patriarch of Conſtantinople for the Latins, about 1485.

Patriarchs of Jeruſalem of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, Patriarch of Jeruſalem, is thought to have ſucceeded Benjamin, about 120. In his Time the Church of Jeruſalem was extreamly perſecuted. Euſeb. Chron. Baron. A.C. 113.

JOHN II. was a Friar, and addicted, as ſome ſay, to the Hereſie of Macedonius, which he abjured, and came to the Epiſcopal Chair of Jeruſalem after the Death of St. Cyril, An. 386. St. Epiphanius had Ordain'd Paulinianus, Brother to St. Jerom, a Prieſt; and likewiſe, made a Deacon in a Monaſtery, which John pretended lay in his Juriſdiction, tho' really it did not. From hence, he took occaſion to make a Tragical complaint, as if there was no regard had to Order and Law, either Humane or Divine; and upon this ſcore, fell foul upon St. Epiphanius and St. Jerom; but the true Reaſon of his Reſentment was, becauſe theſe great Men, and eſpecially the firſt, had often reprov'd him for defending the Hereſies of Origen. To be plain, he had been charg'd with aſſerting, That as the Son in the Trinity could not ſee the Father, ſo neither could the Holy Ghoſt ſee the Son: That the Body was, as it were, the Priſon of Humane Souls, which before their Union had liv'd in a Pre-exiſtent, and Paradiſaical State: That the Devils and Damn'd would turn Penitents at laſt, and be ſav'd with the reſt of the Saints, with ſome other Opinions of the Origeniſts. This Prelate not being ſo well able to deal with St. Epiphanius, who was a Biſhop as well as himſelf, diſcharg'd his paſſion upon St. Jerom; which carry'd him to that extremity, that he Excommunicated that Father, and forbid him entrance into the Holy Sepulchre. 'Twas likewiſe by the management of this Biſhop, that St. Jerom, and the Monaſteries govern'd by him, ſuffer'd ſo much hard uſage. He condemned Pelagius in the Council of Dioſpolis in Palæſtine, but afterwards he admitted him to his Communion, believing that he ſincerely abjured his Errours. St. Auguſtine wrote to adviſe him, that Pelagius was a Deceiver, for that he had very ill Thoughts of the Grace of Jeſus Chriſt. He ſent him a Book of that Heretick concerning Nature, with his Anſwer to it; and demanded of him, in the Name of all his Colleagues, the Acts of the Synod of Dioſpolis. John ſent them him; and St. Auguſtine having received them, compoſed out of them a Book which was found in this Age, in an Abbey of the Canons Regular. The Patriarch died a little after, An. 416, and was ſucceeded by Prailus; Gennadius, who writes of this Prelate, as one who wanted not Eloquence, avers, That he was obliged to apologize for his Doctrine to thoſe who accuſed him of having maintained that of Origen, whoſe Wit he admired, tho' he did not receive his Principles. Peter Veſtellius, a Reformed Carmelite of Aloſt, and Prior of Antwerp, cauſed to be printed, An. 1643, two Volumes of divers Works, which he would have to be this John of Jeruſalem's. In the ſecond, he endeavours to clear him of all the Accuſations of St. Jerom, and pretends that the Epiſtle to Pammachius, where he ſpeaks of his Errours, is none of this Father's.

JOHN III. intruded into the Chair of Jeruſalem, An. 513. againſt Elias an Orthodox Prelate. His adhering to the Errours of Eutyches and Severus, who condemned the Council of Chalcedon, raiſed him to this Dignity. The Abbot Sabas convinced him of the Truth, and prevailed with him ſo far, that in a great Aſſembly, moſt of them being Hereticks, he thunder'd Anathema's againſt Neſtorius, Eutyches and Dioſcorus. He died An. 525. Baronius, A.C. 513, 520, 525.

JOHN IV. ſucceeded Euſtochius, An. 561. and ruled the Church of Jeruſalem till 595. Evagrius ſpeaks of him in the 4th Book of his Hiſtory; and Baronius in his Annals. Genebrard mentions another John, from An. 795, to 802.

Emperors of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, Emperor of the Eaſt, ſurnamed Zymiſcus, was preferred in the Court of the Emperor Romanus the Younger; and from being General of the Legions, he became his Maſter's Son-in-Law by marrying his Daughter Theodora. Romain dying in 963, left two Sons very young, under the Conduct of his Widow, named Theophania. She married Nicephorus Phocas, afterwards Emperor. This Princeſs was for having her Sons, Baſil and Conſtantine, crowned Emperors; but knowing that Nicephorus deſigned the Crown for his Brother, ſhe combined with John Zymiſcus, who himſelf was not well ſatisfied with Nicephorus, and killed him in his Palace, An. 969, and ſo ſucceeded him. The Patriarch Polyeuctus crowned him on Chriſt's Birth-day, after having firſt ſworn him to leave it to the Sons of Romanus, his Brothers-in-Law, and to give the Poor all that he had whilſt a private perſon. The people of Conſtantinople obliged him likewiſe to baniſh Theophania, the Widow of Romain and Nicephorus, and to ſend another of this Name, the Daughter of the ſame Romanus, to Otho, called The Great, Emperor of the Weſt, who cauſed her to be married to Otho the Younger, his Son. In 970, John drove the Saracens out of Antioch, defeated the Turks, Ruſſians and Bulgarians, taking their King Boris, and all his Family. Thus the Kingdom of the Bulgarians was aboliſhed, and the Name of their Capital City, Paraſthlaba, changed into that of Joannopolis. One of his Valets du Chambre poiſoned him at Damaſcus, when it was hoped that his Conduct would have ſettled the Affairs of the Empire. He reached Conſtantinople, where he died Decemb. 4. 975, after having reigned ſix Years, lacking few Days.

JOHN II. Comnenus, commonly called Calo-John, that is to ſay, John the Fair, becauſe he was the faireſt, and the beſt made Prince of his Time. He ſucceeded his Father Alexis Comnenus, An. 1118. The beginning of his Reign was remarkable for the many Victories which he obtained over the Barbarians, Scythians, Huns, Turks and Saracens. His Government was very fortunate till An. 1143, when Hunting in Cilicia, he wounded himſelf with a poiſoned Arrow, which killed him. 'Tis ſaid, that a Phyſician told him, That he might ſave his Life if he would conſent to have his Hand cut off. He denied it, adding, That he needed both Hands to Rule ſuch a great Empire. He died April 8. after he had Reigned 24 Years, 8 Months, and few Days. Guliel. Tyrius, &c.

JOHN III. Ducas, ſurnamed Bataze, or Diplobaſtaze; and by others, Vataze. He married Irene, Theodorus Laſcaris's Daughter, whom he ſucceeded An. 1222, and Ruled at Nice when the Latins held Conſtantinople. Emanuel the Patriarch crowned him. This John being a perſon of Courage, made Alliance with the other Græcian Princes, ſent as many Forces into the Field as he could, and went to attack Robert the Roman Emperor of Conſtantinople, but John of Brienne, King of Jeruſalem, defeated him, An. 1233, and 35. John Ducas had many Advantages by Sea, defeated the Scythians, Tartars and Bulgarians, and ſecured his Empire on all ſides. To ſtrengthen himſelf what he could, he made an Alliance with the Turks, and married for his ſecond Wife the Emperor Frederick II's Daughter. He loved Juſtice, as well as Induſtry; and in the Execution of both, he was ſevere without Cruelty, and ſparing without Avarice. He died An. 1255, after 35 Years Reign, aged 62. Young Theodorus, his Son, called Laſcaris and Ducas, ſucceeded. Gregoras, lib. 2. George Logotheta in Chron. Conſt. Pachimeres. Spond. in Annal. &c.

JOHN IV. Son of Theodorus the Younger, was crowned after his Father's Death, An. 1258. He was then but ſeven or eight Years of Age. Michael Palæologus, Deſpote, uſurped the Empire, An. 1259, and a little after cauſed this young Prince to be blinded, either with an hot Baſin, as ſome ſay, or by throwing burning Powder into his Eyes. George Pachimere, lib. 3. Gregoras. &c.

JOHN V. Cantacuzenus, was an Officer of the Houſe of Andronicus Palæologus the Younger, who had a great Eſteem for his Merits. When this Prince lay a dying, he recommended to him both his Children, John and Emanuel, then very young. But Cantacuzenus, through Ambition, aſcended the Imperial Throne, and was crowned at Didymotiche, a City of Thrace, An. 1341, when young John Paleologus was crowned at Conſtantinople. He would be crowned himſelf there, An. 1345. And having each his Friends, they made parties, to the diſadvantage of the State. Cantacuzenus made a League with the Turks, ſubdued Lydia and Cappadocia, and a great many other Provinces and Cities, adding them to his Empire. Before that, he depoſed the Patriarch, who withſtood his Election; and after that, An. 1347, he held a petty Council in favour of Palamas's Errours, againſt Barlaam and his Adherents. Notwithſtanding his preparation for new Conqueſts, and being aſſiſted by the Venetians, John Paleologus, who was retired to Salonica, with his Mother Anne, oppoſed him, and, aſſiſted by the Genoueſe, defeated his Fleet, An. 1352. After that Cantacuzenus had always the worſt; and in 1355, or 57, he was at laſt forced to quit the Imperial Dignity, which he did generouſly, and retired into a Monaſtery upon Mount Athos, where he took a Friar's Habit, and the Name of Chriſtodulus, that is, a Servant of Chriſt. Matthew, his Son, whom he aſſociated to the Empire, followed him into this Retirement: And his Wife betook her ſelf to a Nunnery, and changed her Name from Irene to Eugenia. John was not idle in his Solitude; for, as he had a great Stock of Wit, he employed it to immortalize his Memory, and compoſed an Hiſtory, in four Books, of what had paſſed during his own and Andronicus's Reign. This Work, yet extant, is one of the fineſt of the Modern Greeks; only, when he comes to ſpeak of his own Conduct, he does a little diſguiſe the Truth. The Commentaries againſt the Mahometans and Jews, which we have under the Name of Cantacuzenus, are attributed to him. Geſner and Poſſevin render him the Author of other Works; as, A Paraphraſe upon the Five firſt Books of the Morals of Ariſtotle, &c.

JOHN VI. ſurnamed Palæologus, called Calo-John, was the Son of Andronicus the Younger, whom he ſucceeded, as I ſaid before. John V. wreſted the Empire from him, but the other routed him at laſt, with the Aſſiſtance of the Genoueſe, as aboveſaid, An. 1355. To ſhew his Acknowledgment to the Genoueſe, he gave them the Iſle of Metelin, or Lesbos, and gave his Siſter in Marriage to Gateluz their General. His Reign was not Happy. He had a ſharp War to maintain againſt the Bulgarians. And the Hiſtorians of Savoy ſay, That he was made Priſoner, and that their Duke Amadeus VI. whom Pope Urban perſwaded to undertake the Croiſade at Avignon, ſet him at liberty. John was conſtrained alſo to Allie himſelf with the Turks; but Amurath I. deſpiſed it, took ſeveral places from him, and came to ſettle his Empire at Adrianople, An. 1362. This infelicity did not come alone, for Andronicus, his Son, would have dethroned him, but his Deſign was luckily diſcovered juſt as it was to be put in Execution. This Prince was taken, and blinded with ſcalding Vinegar, which did not prevent his flight to Amurath; and with his Succour, and thoſe of the Genoueſe, he was received into Conſtantinople, An. 1373, where he impriſoned his Father and Brethren for four Years. 'Tis ſaid, that before that time he paſſed into Italy, to ſollicit the Succour of Chriſtian Princes; and that at Rome he ſwore to endeavour an Union of the Greek Church with the Latin, Octob. 18. 1369. At laſt he left the Empire to his Son Emanuel, An. 1384, or 87, and died An. 1391. Chalcondyle, Leunclavius Hiſt. des Turcs. Blondus, Onuphr. Sabellicus Hiſt. Byzan. Script. Guichenon Hiſt. de Savoye. Ricciol. Chron. Reform.

JOHN VII. Palæologus, came to the Empire by the voluntary Abdication of his Father, Emanuel III. who cauſed him to be crowned Jan. 19. 1419. and married him to Sophia, Daughter to the Marquis of Montferrat. They ſay, that he made a ſecond Alliance with Mary Comnene, Daughter to Alexis the Emperor. Onuphrius, and others, believe that this Prince died An. 1425, and that his Brother, whom they call John VIII. ſucceeded him. But ſure it is, that there was but one of this Name. The Authors of this Errour fell into it, becauſe they did not exactly conſider that Emanuel, who became a Friar, died in 1425, and that his Son was proclaimed, or, it may be, crowned a ſecond Time, according to the Greek Cuſtom. Be it what it will, this Emperor was no happier than his Father. The Turks added freſh Conqueſts daily to their firſt Victories: They took Theſſalonica, An. 1431. And John had Reaſon to believe, that his Empire would quickly become their prey, all his hopes of Succour depending upon the Latins; which alone made him wiſh the Union of the Greek and Latin Churches. Pope Eugenius IV. being acquainted with it, ſent him Legates to perſwade him to go on with his Deſign, and to let him underſtand, that he had ſummoned a Council at Ferrara. John came thither himſelf, An. 1438, with many Prelates, and Gracian Princes, and was received with extraordinary Magnificence. The Council was afterwards removed to Florence, by reaſon of the Plague, and the Union aforeſaid concluded, An. 1439. The Emperor returned into the Eaſt ſoon after. He died An. 1448, or, according to Onuphrius, and others, in 1445.

JOHN the Principal Secretary, lived in the Vth Century. He was ſupported by Caſtinus, Collonel of the Roman Militia; and by his Aſſiſtance became pretended Emperor of the Weſt, An. 423. But the next Year he was ſubdued by the Army ſent by Theodoſius to conduct his Aunt Placidia, and his Couſin Valentine III. who cauſed him to be beheaded at Aquileia.

A King of England of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN King of England, ſurnamed Sans Terre, or Lack-land, was the fourth Son of Henry II. He made himſelf Maſter of the Crown, An. 1199, after the Death of Richard I. and in Wrong of Arthur of Bretaigne, Son of Godfrey, his Brother, the third Son of Henry. This Arthur, with the help of King Philip Auguſtus, and divers other Princes, diſputed with him about the Crown: But John ſurprized him at Mirebeau in Brettany, An. 1202, and made him die in Priſon. Conſtance, the Mother of this young Prince, demanded Juſtice of the French King for this Parricide, committed within his Land, and upon the Perſon of one of his Subjects. John was referred to the Houſe of Peers; where not appearing, and ſending none to excuſe him, he was condemned of an Attaint, and convicted of Parricide and Felony, to loſe all the Land he had in France. This misfortune was not all: The Engliſh hated John for his Tyrannical Taxes, and ſevere Dealings with the Church-men. He outed the Prelates, and ſeized their Goods; which made Pope Innocent III. Excommunicate him. That did not at all trouble him: But when he underſtood that the Pope, by a terrible Sentence pronounced againſt him, had diſcharged all his Subjects from their Allegiance and Fidelity to him, and thereby put the Kingdom in a Broil, he ſubmitted himſelf, An. 1213, promiſing for himſelf and Succeſſors, to pay a Yearly Tribute to the Church. This ſtupid Obligation being the Effect of conſtraint, made people hate him worſe and worſe; and after that he was worſted in ſeveral Battels, and that King Philip Auguſtus got the Battel of Bovines, An. 1214, they made Lewis, the ſame Philip's Son, King, and crowned him at London, May 20. 1216. He died Octob. 19. 1216, having ſurfeited upon Peaches. He married firſt the Daughter of the Lord Hubert. Next he took to Wife Amicia, or Havoiſe, Heireſs to William, or Robert, Earl of Glouceſter. His third Marriage was with Iſabella, Daughter of Aimar Earl of Angoulême, who was promiſed to Hugh de Brun Lord of March. By theſe three he had Henry III. his Succeſſor; Richard Earl of Cornwall, and King of the Romans; Joanna, Iſabella and Eleonor. The firſt was Wife to Alexander King of Scotland, the ſecond married Frederick II. Emperor, and the third was married to Simon de Montfort Earl of Cheſter. The Queen Dowager married again to Hugh Earl of March, from whom King John took her on his Wedding-day, being invited to the Marriage. Matthew of Weſtminſter. Polydore Virgil.

Kings and Princes of France of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN King of France, called by ſome The Good, ſucceeded his Father Philip de Valois, An. 1350. In the beginning of his Reign he inſtituted the Order of the Star, or, as ſome ſay, renewed it; and cauſed Ralph, his Conſtable, laſt Earl of Eu, to be proceeded againſt, for holding Correſpondence with the Enemies of the State. The King gave his place to his Favourite, Charles de la Cerde of Spain, whom Charles the Bad King of Navarre, his Brother-in-Law, cauſed to be aſſaſſinated at Aigle in Normandy, An. 1354. This Accident, and the Under-hand practices of thoſe of Navarre, drew the Engliſh into Normandy: John beat them back ſtoutly, and made King Edward to retire, An. 1355. The Year following the Prince of Wales, with 12000 Men, pillaged Querci, Auvergne, Limoſin and Berri, and proceeded to do the like at Anjou, Poictou and Touraine. The King then at Chartres, marched his Troops to meet him, and overtook him within two Leagues of Poictiers, intrenched in the Vineyards. The Prince offered to repair all the Hurt he did in his march from Bourdeaux, and to bear no Arms in France for ſeven Years. But the King, who ſuppoſed his Victory ſure, attacked the Engliſh; who making a Vertue of Neceſſity, fought ſo well, that they obtained the Victory, and made the King Priſoner. His Valour maintained the Shock long enough, tho' he was left to the ſingle Aſſiſtance of his young Son Philip, afterwards Duke of Burgundy, then aged about Sixteen, who ever after was called The Bold. The King ſurrender'd himſelf to John of Morebeque, a Gentleman of Artois, whom he formerly baniſhed for ſome Crimes. The Prince of Wales generouſly treated him as his Lord; nay, he ſerved him in the Evening at Table, and omitted nothing that might mitigate his Sorrow; but fearing leſt any Accident ſhould deprive him of ſo fine a Prize, the next Day after the Battel, which was fought Septemb. 19. 1336, he ſent him to Bourdeaux, and ſo to London, where he remained Priſoner four Years, till the Peace of Bretigni was concluded, May 7. 1360. Immediately after his Deliverance he was deſirous, for ſome Deſign he had in his Head, to viſit Pope Innocent VI. at Avignon, where he found Pope Urban V. choſen in his place; and this Prelate perſwaded him to take a Journey to the Holy Land. Before he undertook it, he had a Mind to viſit England, not to ſee a certain Lady there, which he loved during his Impriſonment, as ſome were pleaſed to write, but to teſtify to King Edward, that he was no way concerned in the Eſcape of his Son, the Duke of Anjou, one of the Hoſtages; and to perſwade him to the Expedition of the Holy Land: And juſt as he hoped to compleat it, he was taken ill of a ſudden, April 8. 1364, and died in the Savoy, London, in the 52d. Year of his Age, having reigned Thirteen Years and Eight Months. King John was looked upon to be the braveſt and frankeſt Prince of his Time. His Word was ſacred, and inviolable; being uſed to ſay, That if Truth and Faith were baniſhed the reſt of the World, they ought to be found in the Mouths of Kings. Petrarch, who lived in his Time, gave him the Title of being the Greateſt of Kings, the moſt Invincible of Men. He was married twice; firſt An. 1332. with Bonne of Luxemburg, Daughter to John King of Bohemia; by whom he had Charles V. his Succeſſor; Lovis, the firſt of that Family, Duke of Anjou, whence deſcended the ſecond Branch of the Kings of Naples; John Duke de Berri, who died without Iſſue Male, An. 1416. and Philip the Bold, from whom deſcended the laſt Dukes of Burgundy.

JOHN Poſthumus, Son of Lewis le Hutin, born Novemb. 15. 1316. died within Eight Days after, and, during the Funeral-Solemnities, was proclaimed King of France and Navarre. Whence ſome Modern Authors reckon him amongſt the Kings of France, and call him King John I. Mezerai. Godefroy.

JOHN of France, Duke de Berri, Earl of Poictou, Eſtampes, Auvergne and Bulloigne. He was the Son of King John, by his firſt Wife Bonne of Luxemburg. He was born at Bois de Vincennes, Octob. 30. 1340. He was firſt called Earl of Poictou. He ſignalized himſelf at the Battel of Poictiers, An. 1356. and in 1360. he was made Duke de Berri, and Lieutenant of Guienne and Languedoc. This Prince was always ſucceſsful, and ſhared in that good Fortune which King Charles V. had againſt the Engliſh; from whom he took Limoges, Poictiers and Rochelle. He was preſent at the Coronation of King Charles VI. in 1381. and at the Battel of Roſelecque, in 1382. and defeated the Tuckins of Auvergne and Poictou, in 1384. After that, he had a Share of the Adminiſtration of publick Affairs, but was turned out in 1388. reſtored again afterwards, with the Duke of Burgundy. The Government of Languedoc was taken from him in 1390. and given him again in 1410. John Duke de Berri declared himſelf for the Houſe of Orleans, againſt that of Burgundy. Two Years after he was beſieged at Bourges, but he made his Peace, and died on June 15. 1416. at the Palace of Neſle in Paris.

Kings of Arragon and Navarre of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, King of Arragon only. He ſucceeded his Father, Peter IV. called The Ceremonious, An. 1384. His Subjects deſpiſed him for his Weakneſs, and thereupon the former Part of his Reign was full of Trouble. He died, May 19. 1395. aged 44 Years, of which he reigned between Nine and Ten Months. His Brother Martin ſucceeded him, excluding Matthew Comte de Foix, who married his Daughter Jane.

JOHN II. firſt Duke of Penafiel, and then King of Navarre and Arragon. He was Son to Ferdinando of Caſtile, King of Arragon. He came to the Crown of Navarre by his Marriage in 1420. with Blanche, Daughter and Heireſs to Charles, called The Noble, or The Second Solomon, and Widow of Martin King of Sicily. John and ſhe were crowned in 1429. and by her he had Charles Prince of Viane. Queen Blanche died in 1441. and her Death was attended with Abundance of Troubles to the Country; for John was married again to Jane Henriquez, the Conſtable of Caſtile's Daughter. Charles Prince de Viane could not endure her having any Hand in the Government, which belonged to him by the Death of his Mother Blanche. This Quarrel raiſed two Factions between the Houſes of Beaumont and Gramont, two very conſiderable Families in that State. The firſt ſided with the Prince, who was crowned, and afterwards defeated in Battel; but he was reconciled to the King, his Father, who gave him Catalonia; and then he was to take Poſſeſſion of Arragon, by the Death of Alphonſus, his Brother, called The Valiant; who died in 1358. After that he maintained a ſharp War againſt Henry IV. King of Caſtile. In the mean while Charles, his Son, whom his Mother-in-Law had abuſed, took up Arms again, was vanquiſhed a ſecond Time, and made Priſoner. The Catalonians ſtood up in his Favour, and forced the Father to releaſe the Son. But the very Day of his Deliverance he died (as it is reported) by a Doſe of Phyſick which his Step-Dame ordered to be given him by his own Phyſician, Septemb. 23. 1461. The Catalonians revolted againſt John, aſſiſted by the King of Caſtile: And John lacking Money to anſwer this urgent Neceſſity, engaged the Earldoms of Rouſſillon and Cerdagne to Lewis XI. King of France, for 300000 Crowns of Gold. However, he gave his Daughter Eleonor in Marriage to Gaſton IV. Earl of Foix, who was Governor of Navarre during his Father-in-Law's Life. John had by his ſecond Marriage, Ferdinand, who married Iſabella, Heireſs of Leon and Caſtile. He died at Barcelona, Jan. 19. 1479. in the 82d. Year of his Age. He was buried in the Monaſtery of N. Dame de Poblet. Eleonor, his Daughter, ſucceeded him in the Kingdom of Navarre. Mariana, lib. 23, 24. Surita Ind. lib. 20. *Texere. La Perriere. Olhagarai. Chapuis. De Marca, &c. JOHN II. King of Navarre only. He was Son of Alain de Albret. He married (about 1484.) Katharine de Foix, Siſter and Heireſs to Francis Phœbus King of Navarre. Their Miſunderſtanding had well nigh cauſed the Ruin of the State. She began to renew the Diviſions between the two Houſes of Beaumont and Gramont: The King was for the former, and the Queen for the latter. Theſe Troubles were allayed, but Ferdinando of Spain's Ambition raiſed new ones againſt him. This Prince enter'd Navarre in 1512. and ſeized it in a little Time, King John retiring to Bearn as ſoon as he appeared upon the Frontiers. When Ferdinando had accompliſhed his Deſign, he ſought out Pretences to juſtifie what he had done, but could find none, ſaving the Law of War, and a Bull of Pope Julius II. who gave the Right to him that could firſt ſubdue the Kingdom, becauſe King John favoured the Council of Piſa, and was an Ally to King Lewis XII. an Enemy to the holy See. As for the Right of War; if he does not mean pure Force (which paſſes for a Title with none but Barbarians) Ferdinand had no pretenſions this way, becauſe John had given him no manner of provocation; and as for the other point, the Bull they make ſo much a noiſe with is not to be found, and if it was forthcoming, it would give him no manner of Right to a Crown, which holds only of God Almighty. The Popes as Monſieur Morery goes on, ought to reſt contented with their Spiritual Power; for their pretended Juriſdiction over Crowns is perfectly Chimerical; beſides by the Spaniard's own account, The Bull comes after Ferdinand's Invaſion; for this was made in June, and the other not publiſh'd till July following. This is a very Righteous way of proceeding! and exactly the method of thoſe who hang a Man firſt, and try him afterwards. The King of France ſent Succours to John, his Ally; but they were ill managed, and ſo did him no Service. This Prince died in a Village of Bearn, June 26. 1516. and Katharine, his Spouſe, out-lived him but Eight Months. Their Son Henry was Heir, who, by Margaret, Siſter to Francis I. had Jane, Mother to Henry IV. *La Perriere. Olhagarai. De Marca, &c. Hiſt. de Nav. & de Bearn. A King of Bohemia of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN King of Bohemia, the Emperor Henry VII's Son, of the Houſe of Luxemburg, was elected at Fourteen Years of Age, An. 1309. in Oppoſition to Henry Duke of Carinthia, whoſe Tyranny had render'd him intolerable to the Bohemians. He married Elizabeth, Daughter to King Wenceſlaus, and was crowned with her at Prague: And afterwards declared Vicar of the Empire, in the Abſence of his Father. He reduced Sileſia, and left great Tokens of his Courage in Lombardy, An. 1330, 31, and 32. Before that he was called into Poland by the Grand Maſter of the Teutonick Order in Pruſſia; and after having fought againſt the Lithuanian Pagans, he took upon him the Title of King of Poland; concerning whom, the Hiſtorians of that Nation and Bohemia vary much. John loſt an Eye in this Expedition, and afterwards came to Montpelier Incognito, to conſult the Phyſicians of this famous Univerſity for Cure; where a Jewiſh Doctor made him loſe the other. This Blindneſs did not hinder his Going to the War: And upon this Occaſion 'tis reported, that the King of Poland ſent to him, deſiring that they might decide their Quarrel in a Room, with each a Ponyard in his Hand. King John made him Anſwer, That he muſt pull out both his Eyes firſt, in order to make it an equal Combat. John carried Succours with him into France, to Philip de Valois, and was at the Battel of Creci, which the French loſt, Aug. 26. 1346. As blind as he was, he fought valiantly: He cauſed his Horſe to be faſten'd by the Bridle to one of the beſt Horſe-men he had, and ruſhed into the Army ſo furiouſly, that he was killed. Charles IV. his Son, King of Bohemia, and Emperor, gives a fuller Account of all theſe Things in the Memoirs of his Father's Life. Dubravius, &c.

Kings of Caſtile of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, King of Leon and Caſtile, ſucceeded his Father Henry II. in 1379. aged 21 Years. He married Eleonor of Arragon, by whom he had Henry III. his Succeſſor, and Ferdinando King of Arragon. The Engliſh had ſome Pretenſions to his Eſtate, upon the Account of Conſtance, Daughter to Dom Pedro, and Wife of John Duke of Lancaſter. The Grandſon of this Duke, led an Army into Spain, and joined Ferdinando King of Portugal's Troops, who were at Variance with John. This Matter was accommodated however, and the King of Caſtile, who was a Widower, married Beatrix of Portugal in 1383. conditionally, that the Iſſue of this Marriage ſhould ſucceed to Ferdinando's Crown: But he dying ſoon after, the Portugueſe preferred John, the Natural Son of their deceaſed King, to the Throne. The King of Caſtile was defeated in one Battel, and afterwards killed by a Fall from his Horſe as he was hunting, Octob. 9. 1390. which was looked upon as a juſt Judgment, becauſe he uſed to hunt on the Sunday.

JOHN II. Henry III's Son, was proclaimed King at the Age of 22 Months, about the End of 1406, and, by the Care of his Uncle Ferdinando, afterwards King of Arragon, who generouſly refuſed the Offer of the Crown to himſelf. Paul de Burgos, or de St. Marie, Biſhop of Carthagena, formerly a Jew, was appointed to take Care of the Education of this young Prince He was no ſooner able to bear Arms, but he found himſelf obliged to do it againſt the Kings of Navarre and Arragon, whom he reduced to the Neceſſity of asking Peace, which he granted. But it laſted not long, for he was forced to turn his Arms againſt the Moors of Granada; whoſe King he had re-eſtabliſhed, and yet he ungratefully attacked him; which John made him repent, killing 12000 of his Men in 1431. and ravaging the Country all round Granada. 'Tis ſaid, that he might eaſily have taken that City, had not Alvarius de Luna, his Favourite, and Conſtable of Caſtile, been bribed by the Moors. King John died, Aug. 20. 1454. in the 50th. Year of his Age, and 48th. of his Reign. Henry IV. whom he had by Mary of Arragon, ſucceeded him.

Kings of Denmark and Swedeland of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, King of Sweden, was Son of King Suercher III. by Name, ſurnamed The Pious. He ſucceeded Eric X. about 1218. or 20. His Bounty got him the Surname of Debonnaire. He was very liberal to the Church; and his People had been very happy if his Reign had been longer: But his Reign did not exceed three or four Years, for he died in 1222. Olaus Magnus Hiſt. Got. Martinus Zellier, in Nova Deſcrip. Sueciæ.

JOHN II King of Denmark in 1482. after his Father Chriſtiern I. He was alſo crowned King of Sweden in 1483. But not performing his Promiſes to the Swedes, he was dethroned. John employed an Army of 50000 Men to reſtore him, but to no purpoſe; he could never do it. He died Feb. 20. 1523. He married Chriſtiana of Saxony, Daughter of Erneſt Elector of Saxony, by whom he had Chriſtiern II.

JOHN III. Duke of Finland, was Guſtavus I's Son, and Brother to Eric XIV. This laſt Prince, being jealous and violent, kept John ſix or ſeven Years in Priſon, in Wibourg-Caſtle. John got out, and after ſeveral Adventures, he put himſelf at the Head of ſome Swedes who diſliked Eric's Government, whom he took, and put into the ſame Priſon, and got himſelf Crowned King, in 1568. His Reign was extream peaceable. He married Katharine, the Daughter of Sigiſmund Auguſtus King of Poland, and had by her Sigiſmund King of Poland, in 1587. and afterwards, Soveraign of Swedeland, from whence his Uncle Charles routed him.

JOHN III. King of Swedeland and Duke of Finland, before he ſucceeded his Brother Eric XIV, who was depos'd in the Year 1568, as the Reader may ſee in the preceding Article. This John had lay'd a Deſign to Reſtore the Roman Catholick Religion in his Kingdom, and to this purpoſe, he made uſe of Laurentius Nicholaus, a Jeſuit, whom he made Principal of the College of Stockholme, in the Year 1577; And at the ſame time he publiſh'd a New Liturgy, drawn up by himſelf, with a deſign to wear out Lutheraniſm, by degrees; in purſuance of the ſame Project, he ſent the famous Pontus de la Gardie to Pope Gregory XIII. to treat with him about bringing over the Kingdom of Sweden, to the Church of Rome, upon the four following Conditions. The firſt was, That the Laity ſhould not be diſturb'd in their Poſſeſſion of the Church Lands, which they had gotten, and yet, by way of Compenſation, the King promiſed to pay the Church above two hundred thouſand Livres of Yearly Rent, which had been lately re united to the Crown. Secondly, That the Biſhops and Prieſts ſhould have the liberty of living with the Wives they had Marry'd, with this Proviſo, in the Article, that thoſe who, for the future, were to be Ordain'd, ſhould be obliged to live ſingle. The Third Condition was, That the Laity ſhould be allowed Communion under both kinds: And Fourthly, That Divine Service ſhould be performed in the Vulgar Tongue. King John likewiſe deſir'd the Pope to ſend him ſome able Perſon to aſſiſt him, in the Work; upon which his Holineſs ſent him Anthony Poſſevin, a Jeſuit, before whom this Prince made a Private Abjuration of Lutheraniſme, in 1578. After this Poſſevin went back to Rome, and upon his Return into Swedeland, with encouraging and congratulatory Letters, which the Pope, the Emperor, the King of Poland, &c. had written to King John upon this occaſion, he found this Prince, turn'd Lutheran again, at the Inſtance of Charles Duke of Sudermania, his Brother, the Great Men of his Kingdom, and the Proteſtant Princes of Germany. The King reproach'd Poſſevin, with the little regard they had at Rome to the four demands he had made, to facilitate the Converſion (as he call'd it) of the Swedes: This Ambaſſadour Poſſevin, perceiving he could make no Impreſſion upon the King, left the Kingdom, and had the diſſatisfaction to ſee all unravell'd again. King John died in the Year 1592, having Reign'd 25 Years in great Proſperity. Maimburg's Hiſt. Lutheran.

A King of Hungary of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN (de Zapol) Count of Scepus, and Vaivod of Tranſilvania, was much eſteemed in the XVIth Century for his Valour. He was Crowned King of Hungary, by ſome of the States of this Kingdom, Novemb. 11. 1526. This was after the Death of Lewis the Younger, who periſhed at the diſmal Battel of Mohatz, Aug. 29. of the ſame Year. Ferdinand of Auſtria, who married Elizabeth, King Lewis his Siſter, was Crowned by another Party of the States. John de Zapol put himſelf under the Protection of Solyman, Sultan of the Turks. Theſe Infidels beſieged Vienna, in 1529. The two Kings were in War with each other a long time, which ended in a Peace at laſt, but did not hold long. King John died, July 21. 1540. His Son John Stephen, afterwards called Sigiſmund, ſucceeded, who was acknowledged King of Hungary. The Turks declared themſelves in his favour, and took the principal Cities of his Kingdom. The Queen, his Mother, diſtruſting the Conduct of Martinuſius, gave up her Crown to Ferdinando, in 1551. She had a Promiſe of the Principality of Ratibor, Oppelen, Monſterberg, of a Penſion of 25000 Crowns Yearly, and 150000 that were due to her for her Portion. But obſerving, that they never deſigned to perform what they promiſed, ſhe treated with the Grandees of Hungary, for her Son's Re-eſtabliſhment. The death of the Vaivod of Valachia, who had promiſed her Succors, and was Aſſaſſinated a little after, broke her Meaſures. John Sambuc, Append. Bonſin. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 9. &c.

A King of Hungary and Cyprus of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN of Brienne, King of Jeruſalem, and afterwards Emperor of Conſtantinople, was Son of Erard II. of that Name, Comte de Brienne, and of Agnes of Montbelliard. He took up the Croiſade for the Holy Land with the French, who took Conſtantinople, in 1204. and got ſo much Reputation by his Valour, that the Barons of Jeruſalem, after the death of Amauri their King, ſent to France, to offer him this Kingdom, with Marie de Montferrat, Daughter of Conrade, Marquiſs of Montferrat, and of Iſabella of Anjou, Queen of Jeruſalem. He accepted of this Proffer, with the Conſent of King Philip Auguſtus, who gave him 40000 Livres. John arrived at Palæſtine in 1210, Celebrated his Marriage, was Crowned in the Month of October, and Relieved the City of Acre beſieged by Conradin, Sultan of Damaſcus. He beſieged Damiette in Egypt, which he took, after he had lain before it a Year and half, but could not keep it above Eight Months. Soon after, this King loſt his Wife, and returned into France for Succors. In the Voyage which he took, in 1222. he made a Second Contract with Berangera of Caſtile, Siſter to King Ferdinando. The Year following, he aſſiſted at the Conſecration of King Lewis the Younger, who gave him 100000 Crowns; next he went to Rome. This Prince had an only Daughter called Joland, he married her the ſame Year 1223, to the Emperor Frederick II. upon Condition, that he ſhould enjoy the Kingdom during his life, which was promiſed him, but never performed. In 1229, the French Barons of the Eaſt, choſe him for Governor of the Empire of Conſtantinople, during the Minority of Baldwin II. He took the Title of Emperor upon him, as it was the Cuſtom of the Tutors of thoſe Times, and arrived at Conſtantinople, in 1231, where he was Crowned by the Patriarch Simon. He Defeated John Ducas, called Vataze, ſeveral times, in 1233, and 35. They ſay, That John de Brienne, diſhonoured the latter Years of his Age, by Avarice. He died in March, in 1237. He had by his Second Wife, Alphonſus de Brienne, Comte de Eu.

Kings of Poland of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN (Albert) King of Poland, ſecond Son of Caſimir IV. born in 1459. He was choſen in 1492, by the conſent of Ladiſlaus his Brother, King of Hungary and Bohemia. This was a knowing Prince, principally in Hiſtory, Liberal to Soldiers, but Unfortunate. He waged War againſt Stephen, Vaivod of Valachia, who Defeated him in an Ambuſcade, and he called the Turks to his help. Frederick of Saxony, Grand Maſter of Pruſſia, laid hold upon this occaſion, to free himſelf of the Homage which he owed to Poland, which John Albert would have compelled him to by force of Arms. He died (unmarried) of an Apoplexy. June 17. 1501. Michovius. Sarm. lib. 1. & Hiſt. Pol. 4. Cromel. lib. 30. &c.

JOHN (Caſimir): See CASIMER V.

JOHN III. of this Name, King of Poland, Grand Duke of Lithuania, Ruſſia, &c. His Valour got him the Throne. He was the youngeſt Son of James Sobieski, Chatellan of Cracovia, &c. and of one of the Daughters of Staniſlaus Zolkiewski, Grand Chancellor and General of the Crown, who fought at the Battel of Cicora, Sept. 19. 1620. The Turks attacked him Fifteen times Oct. 2. following, and he was killed the ſixth of the ſame, being deſerted by his Soldiers. He was Aged 73. James Sobieski, Ambaſſador from the Crown, made Peace the enſuing Year with the Sultan Oſman. He diſtinguiſhed himſelf by his Merits upon all Occaſions, and died in 1646. The King of Poland was then at Paris, with Mark Sobieski his Elder Brother, who ſignalized himſelf by his Courage, and was ſlain by the Turks at the Defeat near Batow. John Sobieski Senator, was Grand Marſhal of the Crown, Auguſt 24. 1665; Grand General of the Kingdom, in 1667, and Grand Maſter of the King's Houſhold, Palatin of Cracovia, &c. He re-took Sixty Towns from the Coſſack Rebels in Ukrania, in 1667. He maintained the Siege of Podhais againſt the Tartars, and two Years after took from them and the Coſſacks, all the Palatinate of Brecklaw in Lower Podolia. He ſignalized himſelf by ſeveral other Heroick Acts. He Defeated the Turks, in 1671. during the Siege of Leopold or Lwow upon Peltaw in Black Ruſſia, and won, in 1673, the famous Battel of Choczim upon the Nieſter, and upon the Frontiers of Moldavia. It began on Saturday, and ended the third Day after, by the Reduction of this Fortreſs. The Turks loſt 8000 Janizaries, and 20000 Spahi's in this Action. This grand Victory, one of the moſt famous in the Age, was obtained, Novemb. 11. being the next day after the death of King Michael Koribut Wieſnowiski. The Grand Marſhal Sobieski, was the only Perſon thought worthy to ſucceed him. He was Elected May 19. 1674. and was not Crowned till fifteen Months after; during which time, he won ſeveral Battels againſt the Turks, and forced them to make a Peace at Zurowna. In 1676, he received the Order of Knight of the Holy Ghoſt, from the King of France, by M. Marquis of Bethune, his Ambaſſador. This Monarch had given ſeveral Marks of his Eſteem and Friendſhip to the King of Poland, and likewiſe contributed much to his Election, by the Care and Prudence of M. Touſſaints de Fourbin Janſon, Biſhop of Marſeilles, his Ambaſſador Extraordinary; for he diſſipated, by his diligent Application, thoſe Factions and Powers that did not affect the Intereſt of Poland, and who hated the Merit of the Grand Mareſchal Sobieski. In 1683, he aſſiſted very much in raiſing the Siege of Vienna, being preſent in Perſon, and got much Honour by it. The King of Poland ſpeaks ſeveral Languages. He loved Books and Scholars, and had all the Qualities of a Hero. He married the Lady Mary de la Grange, the Daughter of the Marquiſs d'Arquien, of the Noble Family de la Grange in Nivernois, by which Lady he had Francis de la Grange, Sieur of Montigni, de Seri, &c. Knight of the King's Orders, Mareſchal of France, Governor of Vandomois, of Bern-Blois, of the Towns and Biſhopricks of Metz, Toul, and Verdun, &c. as I ſhall relate elſewhere. The Queen of Poland was the Widow of Prince Zamoiski. King John III. had ſeveral Children of this Marriage, and amongſt others, James Sobieski Prince of Poland. This King Sobieski died at Warſaw in 1696, being Seventy two Years of Age, and left a conſiderable Treaſure behind him; by the help of which, he thought one of his Sons might obtain the Throne, but the Elector of Saxony carried it againſt them, and all the other Competitors.

Kings of Portugal of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN I. of this Name, King of Portugal and Algarves, ſurnamed Le Pere de la Patrie, the Father of his Country. He was the Natural Son of Peter, called The Judge, by Thereſia Lawrentia. He was Grand Maſter of the Order of Avis, and after the death of his Brother Ferdinando, in 1383, the Portugueſe made him King, in wrong of Beatrix this King's only Daughter, married to John I. King of Caſtile. This laſt took up Arms againſt him, and the Portugueſe won the famous Battel of Aliubarota, Aug. 14. 1385, againſt the Caſtilians; after which, this King lived very peaceably, and to exerciſe his Arms, he carried the War into Africa, amongſt the Barbarians, from whom he took Ceuta, and other places. Pope Urban VI. gave him a Diſpenſation from his Oath, of entring into a Religious Habit, which he made in 1387; and then he married Philippa, the Daughter of King John, ſurnamed The Great, Duke of Lancaſter, by Blanche his firſt Wife, Siſter to Henry IV. King of England, by whom he had Edward, his Succeſſor, &c. He died Auguſt 14. 1433. Aged 76.

JOHN II. called Le Grand, & Le Severe, that is, The Great and Severe, ſucceeded his Father Alphonſus V. in 1481. Some of his Lords gave him a great deal of trouble in the beginning of his Reign, they having revolted from him. But he ſpoiled their Deſigns, and cut off their chief Leaders; and particularly Ferdinando Duke of Braganza, whom he Beheaded. After that, his next Care was to ſettle his Foreign Plantations in the Indies and Africa, where he cauſed to be built divers Fortifications at Guinea. He was at the taking of Azzile and Tangier, in 1471, and ſignalized himſelf at the Battel of Toro againſt the Caſtilians, in 1476. Theſe glorious Actions, beſides many others not here mentioned, procured him the Name of The Great, as his Exactneſs in the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, procured him that of Severe. He died Aged 41, Octob. 25. 1495.

JOHN III. ſucceeded his Father Emanuel, in 1521. David King of Æthiopia ſent Ambaſſadors, to congratulate his Acceſs to the Crown, and to continue the Alliance he made with his Father. We have, to this Day, the Accounts of that Embaſſy; and the Letters which King John wrote to Pope Paul III. concerning the progreſs of his Arms in the Indies, and how the King of Camboia had yielded him the Fort of Diu, one of the moſt important places of the Indies, in a little Iſle towards the Mouth of the River Indus. This Prince concern'd himſelf very much to convert the Idolaters to Chriſtianity in the Countries diſcover'd by his Subjects. He died of an Apoplexy, June 11. 1557. by Catharine of Auſtria, Siſter to the Emperor Charles V. He had five Sons, who died in their Minority. John, Prince of Portugal, who died in 1554, before his Father; and by Jane, Daughter of Charles V. had Sebaſtian a Poſthumus Son, who was Succeſſor to his Grandfather — Marie, Wife to Philip III. King of Spain, and Iſabella, and Beatrix, who died young. Damien. à Goez in Comment. Francis Andrada in his life. Vaſconcellos, in Anaceph. Nonius, in Geneal. Tom. II. Script. hiſt. Spond. in Annal. &c.

JOHN IV. called The Fortunate, was Son to Theodoſius II. Duke of Braganza, and Ann, Daughter of John Fernandez de Velaſco, Conſtable of Spain. He was next Heir to the Crown, and proclaimed King in 1640. The Spaniards made themſelves Maſters of Portugal after the death of the Kings, Dom. Sebaſtian, and Cardinal Henry, in 1580, and kept it under the Reigns of Philip II. Philip III. and Philip IV. But the Portugueſe threw off their Yoak, in 1640, and called home the Duke of Braganza, who was Crowned Decemb. 1. This Prince happily diſcovered a Conſpiracy ready to break out, in the beginning of his Reign. He executed the chief of them, and ever after Governed with that Conduct and Prudence, that his Enemies could never hurt him with their Arms, nor Calumnies. 'Tis ſaid, that he was a great Lover of Learning and Muſick. He ſlept little, was of an obliging Temper, and frugal in his Apparel and Diet, which made him often ſay, That it behoved a King to be affable; to wear any Cloaths, and feed upon any Diet. In 1643, he took Salva Terra, and got a famous Victory over the Spaniards near Badajos, May 26. 1644. He likewiſe got a vaſt Advantage over the Hollanders in Brazil, Jan. 27. 1649, and 54, when he took the Recif from them. He died at Lisbon, by Stoppage of Urine, November 6. 1656.

Duke of Bourbon, and of Ann Dauphine d'Auvergne. He declared himſelf for the Houſe of Orleans, againſt that of Burgundy, and diſcomfited the Rear-Guard of their Army in 1414. The King gave him the Conduct of the Army, ſent to Guienne againſt the Engliſh. He was at the Siege of Compeigne and Arras, and in 1415, he commanded the Van-Guard of the Army, at the diſmal Battel of Azincourt, where he was taken. He was carried into England, where he died in 1434, after 19 Years Impriſonment.

JOHN II. of the Name, Duke of Bourbon and Auvergne, Count of Clermont, &c. called Le Bon, Peer, Conſtable and Chamberlain of France, Governor of Guienne and Languedoc, was the Son of Charles I. and of Agnes of Burgundy. He ſignalized himſelf in 1450, at the Battel of Formigni, where he was Knighted. He was afterwards at the Taking of Caen, Bourdeaux, and divers other places from the Engliſh; and in 1461, at the Coronation of King Lewis XI. where he repreſented the Duke of Normandy. Some time after, he was one of the principal Heads of the League du Bien publick, againſt the ſame King, with whom he made Peace afterwards, followed him in the Voyage to Peronne, and received from him the Collar of the Order of St. Michael. After that, he retired from the Court till the King's Death, and aſſiſted at the Coronation of Charles VIII. who made him Conſtable of France, in 1483. John, Duke of Bourbon, died in his Caſtle of Moulins, without lawful Iſſue, April 1. 1488. Aged 62.

JOHN, ſurnamed The Fearleſs, firſt Earl of Nevers, and afterwards Duke of Burgundy, Peer of France, Earl of Flanders, Artois, &c. was born at Dijon, May 28. 1371. Charles d'Alençon, Archbiſhop of Lyons, baptized him. In 1404, he ſucceeded his Father Philip the Bold, Youngeſt Son of King John. Before that, he conducted the great Army which King Charles VI. ſent to Sigiſmond, King of Hungary, againſt Bajazet II. Emperor of the Turks. In this Army of his, he had 2000 Gentlemen of Quality. Theſe brave French-men, who, at firſt, did things incredible, were defeated, or made priſoners, in the famous Battel of Nicopolis, Sept. 28. 1396. Bajazet cauſed above 600 to be cut to pieces, in the preſence of the Count de Nevers, and ſaved him, with fifteen more great Lords, for whom, he obliged himſelf to pay 200000 Ducats Ranſom, which being paid five Months after, they were all ſet at liberty. After that, the Count de Nevers having ſucceeded to his Father's Eſtate, renewed the Quarrels of the Houſes of Orleans and Burgundy, and cauſed Lewis of Orleans to be miſerably Aſſaſſinated at Paris, on Novemb. 23. 1407. This kindled the Civil War more than ever. John retired to Flanders, where he aſſiſted John of Bavaria Biſhop of Liege, againſt his Subjects, whom he chaſed from before Maeſtricht, and defeated them, Sept. 23. 1408. After this he came to Paris in an Hoſtile manner, during the Weakneſs of Charles VI. made himſelf Maſter of the Government, and cauſed incredible Miſchiefs to the Kingdom. In 1429, he was wheedled to a Conference upon the Bridge of Montereau-Faut-Tonne, by the Dauphin, and there killed, in Auguſt, by Tanegui du Chaſtel, an ancient Servant of the late Duke of Orleans. This was on Sunday, Sept. 10. 1385.

He was born in the Caſtle of Eſſai, May 9. 1385. He was in Charles VI's Service, in 1404, and declared himſelf for the Houſe of Orleans, againſt that of Burgundy. After that, he contributed to the Treaties of Bourges and Wiceſtre; and in favour of him, the King rais'd the Earldom of Alençon into a Dutchy, and Peerage, Jan. 1. 1414. The Year after, he commanded the Army at the Battel of Azincourt, Oct. 25. and was killed there.

JOHN II. of this Name, Duke of Alençon, ſurnamed Le Beau, was born at the Caſtle d'Argentan, on March 2. 1409. He began to ſhow his Valour at the Battel of Verneuil, in 1424, where the Engliſh made him Priſoner; in which condition he continued till 1427, that he was Ranſom'd. Afterwards he ſerved King Charles VII. with great Fidelity, until 1440, that he was one of the chief of the Sedition called la Praguerie. This Duke was Godfather of the Dauphin Lewis, who was Educated at Niort. He cauſed the Miſunderſtanding betwixt him and the King his Father. Some accuſed him afterwards of Correſpondence with the Engliſh, and the King, Charles VII. cauſed him to be impriſoned at the Caſtle de Loches, and got him Condemned to loſe his Head, in 1456. The King graciouſly pardoned him, as to his Life, but took away his beſt Lands, and committed him Priſoner to the ſame Caſtle de Loches. Lewis XI. ſet him at liberty upon his Acceſs to the Crown, in 1461. John Duke d'Alençon, entered into the League Du bien Publick, in 1465. And being Accuſed a ſecond Time of holding Correſpondence with the Enemies of the Government, was ſeized and condemned to be Beheaded, July 1474. The King ſaved his Life, and he died two Years after. Du Pui, St. Marthe, &c.

JOHN I. of this Name, Duke of Bretaigne, Earl of Richmond, ſurnamed le Roux, was the Son of Peter de Dreux, called Maucler, and of Alice Counteſs of Bretaigne. He was born in 1217, and ſucceeded his Father in 1250. He had Wars with the chief of his Subjects, and eſpecially with the Barons de Lanvaux, and de Craon, and Giomar, Viſcount de Laon, whom he reduced. He had alſo ſome Quarrel with the Clergy, which occaſioned his Journey to Rome, where he referred the Cauſe to Pope Innocent IV. After which, he followed King St. Lewis in 1270, in his ſecond Voyage to Africa, and when he returned, he became an exact Obſerver of Juſtice, Founded ſeveral Religious Houſes, and died Oct. 8. 1286. Aged 69.

JOHN IV. commonly called of Montfort, Duke of Bretaigne, &c. born in 1293, was Son to Arthur II. and of his ſecond Wife Joland de Dreux, Counteſs de Montfort, Daughter to Robert IV. Earl of Dreux. This Arthur firſt married Marie, the only Daughter of Guy IV. Earl of Limoges, by whom he had John III. who died without Iſſue, and Guy of Bretaigne, Earl of Ponthievre, who left a Daughter, Jane, ſurnamed la Boiteuſe, Heireſs of Bretaigne, Wife to Charles de Blois. His Uncle John IV. a Valiant and Undertaking Prince, uſurped his Country, and this cauſed theſe long and miſchievous Quarrels between the two Houſes of Montfort and Blois, who had like to have waſted Bretaigne. The firſt had the Advantage, tho' t'other had the King of France, Philip de Valois, and his Son John, on his Side. John de Montfort was beſieged in the City of Nantes, and taken in the Caſtle. They had him to Paris, and put him into the Tower of the Louvre, where he continued till 1343. He promiſed to make no pretenſions to the Dutchy, but broke his Word; he over-ran the Country, took Dinan, and went to England for Aſſiſtance, but being Diſappointed he died of Diſcontent, Sept. 1345.

JOHN V. called The Valiant, and The Conquerour, becauſe being bred in Arms, during the War which was between his Houſe, and that of Blois, he came off Victorious at laſt. This was after his Baniſhment, and his being Attacked by all the Forces of France, after having gained ſeven Battels, and ſlain his Antagoniſt Charles de Blois in the Fight of Avrai, Octob. 1364. Bretaigne was left him by the Treaty concluded at Gerrande, April 12. 1365. The Year following he came to Paris, to pay Homage to King Charles V. He died at Nantes, November 1. 1399.

JOHN I. of this Name, Duke of Lorrain and Marchis, was the Son of Ralph, ſlain in the Battel of Creci, in 1346. He ſignalized himſelf in 1356, at the Battel of Poictiers, where he was wounded and made Priſoner. Afterwards having recovered his Liberty, he undertook a Journey to Pruſſia, and was at the Battel of Hazeland, and returned to Succour Charles de Blois, and de Chatillon his Uncle, Dukes of Bretaigne, againſt John de Montfort. Charles was killed at the Battel of Avrai in 1364. John, Duke of Lorrain, deſigned to force the Inhabitants of Neufchaſtel upon the Meuſe, to withdraw their Obedience from France. The Fortifications which he built near this City, were beaten down and demoliſhed. Being ſummoned to the Parliament at Paris, he was poiſoned, Septemb. 27. 1382.

JOHN d'Orleans Comte de Dunois and Longueville, Grand Chamberlain of France, ſurnamed The Victorious, and The Triumpher, was Natural Son of Lewis of France, Duke of Orleans, ſecond Son to King Charles V. This Prince had him by Mary d'Enguien, Wife of Aubert de Cany, a Knight of Picardy. He was born in 1403. Had the Advantage of Reſtoring the French Monarchy to her ancient Splendour, being eclips'd by the Engliſh Conqueſts. In his Youth he gave early Proofs of his Courage. And Valentine de Milan, Wife of Lewis d'Orleans, who was aſſaſſinated at Paris in 1407, through the Means of John Duke of Burgundy, uſed to ſay, That of all the Duke's Children, there was none but he that could revenge his Father's Death. Nor was ſhe miſtaken; for he was ſo much againſt the Burgundians all his Lifetime, that he deemed them as the irreconcilable Enemies of his Family. He began his Exploits by ſuccouring Gergeau and Montargis in 1427, and by defeating the Earls of Warwick and Suffolk, whom he purſued as far as Paris. He was dangerouſly wounded in the Battel of Rouvray, called The Herrings, Feb. 12. 1428. Afterwards, ſhutting himſelf up in Orleans, he defended it courageouſly againſt the Engliſh; and deſpairing to keep it, he had Thoughts to ſet it on Fire, and then to break through the Enemies, but was prevented in his deſperate Reſolution by the Maid of Orleans's forcing the Enemy to raiſe the Siege. This Victory was ſeconded by a great Number of others: For, he was in the Battel of Patai, in Beauſſe, An. 1429; he managed the Enterprize againſt Chartres, An. 1431, and 35. He took St. Denys and Creil from the Engliſh: And the Year following he was concerned in the Reduction of Paris. After this, the King gave him the Government of Monetreau. In 1438, he took Dreux and Montargis from the Engliſh. He went till then by the Name of The Baſtard of Orleans. In 1439, he took that of Comte de Dunois, becauſe Charles Duke of Orleans, his Brother, gave him this Earldom. He had other Advantages afterwards againſt the Enemy. In the mean time, the King, who knew his Prudence, ſent him with James Juvenal des Urſins Archbiſhop of Rheims, Elie de Pompadour Biſhop of Alet, and Guy Bernard Arch-deacon of Tours, to bring the Council of Baſle to an Agreement with Eugenius IV. and end the Schiſm of Fœlix, choſen againſt Nicholas V. Succeſſor to Eugenius; wherein he ſucceeded with his wonted good Fortune. When he came back he beſieged Mans. In 1449 and 50, he ſubdued all the principal places of Normandy, as Ponteau de Mer, Liſieux, Harcourt, &c. The Year following he ſignalized himſelf at Guienne, took Blaie, Fronſac, Bourdeaux, Bayonne, &c. King Charles VII. to ſhew him his Gratitude, gave him the Title of Reſtorer of his Country, Legitimated him, and made him a Preſent of the Earldom of Longueville, and of divers other Lands; and honoured him with the Office of Grand Chamberlain of France. King Lewis XI. did alſo much value his Deſerts; and in 1466, made him Chief over 36 Grandees, appointed to reform the Diſorders of the Kingdom. Two Years after he aſſiſted at the Aſſembly of Tours. This Victorious Prince died at the Age of 67 Years, An. 1470. Monſtrillet Chron. Mezerai, &c.

Other Princes of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN of Auſtria, or Don John, as the Spaniards call him, was the Natural Son of the Emperor Charles V. He was born at Ratiſbonne, in 1547. Authors ſpeak variouſly of his Birth. It is believed that his Mother was a Princeſs; and many have even ſaid, that this Princeſs was the Emperor's Kinſwoman. Others ſay, that this Prince had him by a Gentlewoman of Ratisbonne, named Barbary Blomberge, afterwards a Nun. However it was, Charles V. who had experienc'd, on divers Occaſions, the Fidelity of Lewis Quixada, Grand Maſter of his Houſe, truſted him with this Child, and commanded him to have him brought up in the Country by Magdalen Ulloa, his Wife, without letting him know his Quality. Quixada obeyed the Order exactly; and the Emperor dying, he open'd this Secret to Philip II. his Son. This laſt being at Validolid about 1561, pretended that he would go to hunt, and commanded Lewis Quixada to bring him Don John. This young Prince kneeled upon his Knees to the King when he came before him. Do you know, ſaid Philip, taking him up, and ſmiling, who was your Father? You are the Son of an Illuſtrious Perſon. The Emperor Charles V. was your Father and mine. In ſhort, he commanded him to follow him, and cauſed him to be bred at Court. In 1570, he ſent him to the Kingdom of Granada, againſt the Moors, where he ended that War happily; and the Year after they named him Admiral of the Confederate Fleet againſt the Turks. He won the famous Battel of Lepanto, againſt the Infidels, in the Gulf ſo called, Octob. 7. 1571. The Turks loſt there 25000 Men, and moſt of their Commanders. In 1572, John of Auſtria took Tunis and Biſerte in Africa, which the Turks re-took the Year after. In 1575, he was made Governor of the Spaniſh Netherlands, after the Death of Lewis de Requeſenius, Grand Commander of Caſtile. Before his arrival the Spainiſh Soldiers plunder'd the City of Antwerp. The Roman Catholick Provinces united themſelves with thoſe of Holland and Zealand, in a Treaty made at Ghent, and commonly called The Pacification of Ghent: They were afraid of being pillaged. Don John approved the Treaty, and ſent the Spaniſh Soldiers out of the Low Countries accordingly. But he alter'd Affairs quickly, and made himſelf Maſter of Namur, Charlemont and Marienburg. The States armed againſt him, and chaſed him to Luxemburg, and choſe the Arch-Duke Matthias, Brother to the Emperor Rodolphus, their Governor, and the Prince of Orange for his Lieutenant. But Don John managed his Affairs ſo well, that after the arrival of the Soldiers brought him by Alexander Farneſe Duke of Parma, he won a ſignal Battel againſt the Allies at Gemblours, about the end of January, 1578. After which, he took divers places, and died of the Plague, or Poiſon, Octob. 1. of the ſame Year, in his Camp near Namur, in the 32d Year of his Age. Strada. Grotius de Bel. Belg. De Thou. Hiſt. lib. 48. &c ſeq. Sponde. Byerling, &c.

JOHN I. of that Name, King of Congo, was baptized An. 1490. and embraced the Chriſtian Religion, with his eldeſt Son, and the principal Men of his Court, at the Sollicitation of John II. King of Portugal, who ſent him ſome Preachers. This Prince ordered thoſe Things to be preſented in publick which they prepared for his Baptiſm, that the World might ſee them, and be invited to follow his Example. This Sight impreſſed a great Reſpect for our Religion in the Hearts of the People, who deſired to be baptized as well as their King. They began to build a Church there to celebrate the Ceremony of Baptiſm, whereof the firſt Stone was laid on May 3. But it happen'd, that ſome of the King's Subjects, who inhabited the Iſles that lie in the Lake of Zembre, revolted, and ravaged the adjacent Country to ſuch a degree, that he was forced to make all imaginable haſte to quell the Diſorder; and being unwilling to delay his Baptiſm, received it the very ſame Day that the firſt Stone was laid; with ſix Lords, who were to accompany him, and conduct his Army. The King being upon his Departure, the Portugal Ambaſſador gave him a Standard, in the midſt whereof ſtood a Croſs; telling him, That that was as a Mark of entring into the Croiſade which Pope Innocent VIII. had publiſhed againſt the Infidels. Hereupon the Queen deſired to be baptized, which was granted her, and the Name of Leonora given her, which was that of the Queen of Portugal. In fine, The King marched againſt the Rebels with about 80000 Men, and reduced them. The King of Congo's eldeſt Son being returned from fighting againſt ſome other Enemies, was baptized in the Church then finiſhed, and Chriſtened Alphonſus, after the Infant of Portugal. The Nobility, and the greateſt part of the People, were likewiſe baptized; and there were great Rejoycings. But the King's ſecond Son, being a debauched Perſon, was willing to continue in his Idolatry, and therefore withdrew from Court, with ſome Followers. A little after, the King's Concubines, whom he left after having embraced Chriſtianity, ordered their Matters ſo, as to be re-admitted, and then engaged him again in his old Cuſtoms. His eldeſt Son endeavoured to make him ſenſible of his Fault; but this Zeal made him loſe his Father's Good Will, and the ſecond Son was ſent for back again to Court. But the King's Death brought ſome Repoſe to the new Chriſtians. Alphonſus knowing that he was hated by thoſe who returned to their Idolatry, came by Night to the Palace; and having next Morning aſſembled the chiefeſt of the Court, was ſaluted King. His Brother was out of Town, expecting ſome Forces; but haſted back all he could, on the News, with what Troops he had; but loſt the Battel, and was made Priſoner. Some ſay he died in Priſon: And others are of Opinion, that he loſt his Life upon a Scaffold, but perſiſted in his Error to the laſt. So Alphonſus remained in the peaceable poſſeſſion of the Government, and reduced thoſe who revolted under pretence of Religion.

JOHN Baſilovitz, Grand Duke of Moſcovy, Son of Baſilius, was very young when he came to the Crown, An. 1540. He affected going to Church frequently, and Singing at Service, but was extream cruel and bloody; and had ſo little Piety, that he had not the leaſt Sentiments of Humanity. His plundering the City of Novogorod, An. 1569, was a convincing proof of it. He had ſeven lawful Wives; by the firſt of which he had two Sons, John and Fedor. Being incenſed againſt his eldeſt Son, he ſtruck him over the Head with a Cane, ſo that he died in five Days after. He had Demetrius by his laſt Wife. After having exerciſed a thouſand Cruelties, he was troubled in his latter Days with extream pain, and died An. 1584. His Son Fedor Juanovitz ſucceeded him. Olearius Voyage de Moſcovia.

JOHN King of Armenia, gave his Kingdom to his Nephew Leo, and became a Franciſcan Friar; in which Habit he fought the Turks, and was ſlain, An. 1304. Guil. Paradin. Annal. de Burgoigne.

Illuſtrious Men of the Name of JOHN.

JOHN Aventinus of Abenſperg, derived his Name from a Town of Bavaria, where he was born, in 1460, which the Latins call Aventinum, and Abuſina. He compoſed the Annals of his Country, in ſeven Books, which Nicholas Geſner publiſhed, with conſiderable Additions. It deſcends as far as 1533, and he died the Year after, aged 68. He alſo left other Pieces behind him.

JOHN of Antioch, ſurnamed Scholaſticus, becauſe he belong'd to the College or Society of Lawyers; was firſt Prieſt, and then Apocriſiary or Deputy of the Church of Antioch: Afterwards he was made Patriarch of Conſtantinople by the Emperor Juſtinian. In the Year 550, he made a Greek Collection of the Canons, rang'd according to the Order of the Matter, whereas the former had been Methodiz'd according to the Order of Time in which the Councils were held, or the Decretal Epiſtles written. The Work is divided into Fifty Titles, which comprehends all the branches of the Matter, and under theſe Heads he couches the Affairs of the Church. In the Year 554, he made the firſt Nomo-Canon, divided likewiſe into Fifty Titles, annexing all the Civil Laws, which had any reference to the Canons. Doujat Hiſtoire du droit Canon.

JOHN of Bayeux Biſhop of Auranches, afterwards Archbiſhop of Roan, one of the moſt eminent Prelates of the Gallican Church in the XIth Century. He held a Council in 1074, where the Regulations were ſo ſtrict, that they diſoblig'd ſeveral diſorderly Eccleſiaſticks, which gave him a great deal of trouble upon that Occaſion. He was afterwards killed by the Monks of St. Ouen. This learned Prelate wrote, De Officiis Eccleſiaſticis, publiſh'd with curious Notes by Johannes Prevotius. Lanfrank in Epiſt. Ordericus Vitalis, lib 4, 5. Matth. Weſtminſter, &c.

JOHN of Cappadocia, ſo called becauſe he was born in this Province. He lived in the VIth Century, and was a great Favourite of Juſtinian the Emperor, and ſerved him in compiling his Codex, An. 529, and was afterwards made Conſul, An. 538, and Prefect of the Prætorium. He grew extream rich by Rapine and Extortion. Juſtinian, to quell ſome Sedition kindled at Conſtantinople, was forced to take his Places from him, yet reſtored them to him a little Time after. But knowing that his Ambition aimed at no leſs than to make himſelf Emperor, he baniſhed him to a Suburb of Cyzicum, named Artace, where he put on a Religious Habit. Being ſome time after accuſed to have had a hand in the Murder of Euſebius, Biſhop of this City, he was ſeized, and put to Torture, to Confeſs and Diſcover the Aſſaſſinates, which he did not. Then they took and clad him in a plain Suit of Linen, and in that Dreſs he was carried all over Egypt, being ſo very poor that he was forced to beg Alms for his Living; yet ſtill he hoped to be Emperor. He was three Years a Priſoner at Antinoe; and then put to death for his Crimes. Procop.

JOHN (Diaconus) Canon of Verrone, wrote a Hiſtory from Julius Cæſar, down to the Emperor Henry VII. who lived in the XIVth. Century. He was different from that John Diacre, Author of the Relation of the Martyrdom of St. Januarius Biſhop of Benevent, and of St. Soſius Deacon, whom Surius Speaks of. Tom. VI. ad 23. Sept.

JOHN (Diaconus) or Deacon of the Church of Rome, miſtaken by ſome for Paulus Diaconus. He was a Perſon of Character in the IXth. Cent. and one who had an Intimacy with Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius. He wrote the Life of Gregory the Great, in five Books, which he dedicated to Pope John VIII. Sigebert Chron. A. C. 873. Bellarmin. Mireus, &c.

JOHN (de Dieu) Founder of the Order of Charity, was born at Montemort el Novo, a City of Portugal, with the Title of Count, in the Province of de Alentejo. He was ſo touched by a Sermon of the famous John d' Avila, that he forſook all things, to devote himſelf wholly to God in the Service of the Sick. To execute which Deſign, he retired to the Spittle of Granada, where he laid the firſt Foundations of his Inſtitutions, which Pope Leo X. approved of, An. 1520. He died, March 8. 1550. Aged 55.

JOHN (Hagen) called de Indagine, was a learned Carthuſian, much in eſteem for his Merits in the XVth. Century. He took the Habit upon him at Erfort, at the Age of 25, and continued in the ſame 35 Years, during which time, he Governed three Monaſteries; and as this Imployment was extreamly careful, 'tis ſurprizing, that he could Compoſe ſo many divers Works, as are attributed to him. For beſides thoſe which Trithemius had ſeen of his, Petreius counts 433 different Treatiſes; and amongſt theſe, three Chronicles. This great Man died in 1475. We muſt not omit what they obſerve concerning his addictedneſs to Study, for being but a mean Monk, belonging to a Cloyſter, in a very poor Houſe, that could not ſo much as ſupply him with Candle for his Lucubrations, he gathered together all the Crums of old Wax which he could find, to make himſelf little Candles of. Petreius Bibl. Carthuſ. Trithem. in Catal. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Simler. in Bibl. Poſſevin. in Appar. Sacr. 'Tis to be noted, That this John de Indagine, is not the ſame with the other of that ſame Name, Author of certain Books of Chiromancy, Phyſiognomy, and Judicial Aſtrology, which are marked amongſt the prohibited Books; for that the firſt lived in the XVth. Century, as I ſaid before; and this other Dedicated his Work, to Albert Arch-Biſhop of Mentz, An. 1522.

ST. JOHN of Jeruſalem, a Religious and Military Order: See MALTHA.

JOHN, ſurnamed Mark, was St. Barnabas's Couſin, 'tis believed, our Saviour eat the Paſs-over at his Houſe, that the Holy Ghoſt deſcended upon the Apoſtles there, and that St. Peter found the Faithful aſſembled there, when the Angel delivered him out of Herod's Priſon. We ſee in the Acts of the Apoſtles, That his Mother was called Mary, and that he was the innocent Cauſe of a ſmall Difference that aroſe betwixt St. Paul and St. Barnabas; becauſe Barnabas would have his Couſin John go with him, and St. Paul did not think it convenient he ſhould.

JOHN of Turrecremata, Cardinal, was a Spaniard, and born at the Borough of Turrecremata, whence he had his Name. This Borough is in the Dioceſs of Palenza. John was a Divine of the Order of St. Dominick, next Maſter of the Sacred Palace, and Biſhop of Sabina. His principal works are, the five Volumes of Commentaries upon Gratian's Decrees. A Summary of the Church in four Books. A Speech he made before Eugenius IV. being an Anſwer to one ſent from the Council of Baſil, by the Authority of the Popes, and that of the General Council. He died, Sept. 26. 1468. Aged 88. Bellarmine de Script. Eccl. &c.

JOHN (Maron) a Syrian Writer. Abraham Ecchellenſis pretends, that this Author lived between the VIth. and VIIth. Century, and ſays, That he wrote much againſt the Eaſtern Hereſies, with a Liturgy and Commentary upon the Liturgy of St. James, which Commentary he promiſed to publiſh ſoon after, with his Latin Tranſlation. But Father Simon, in his Notes upon Gabriel Arch-Biſhop of Philadelphia, denies, that this Author has the Antiquity which Abraham Ecchellenſis gives him, and which he has made out in his Remarks upon the Voyage to Mount Libanus, where he ſays, That having received from M. Fauſtus Narion, Nephew to Ecchellenſis, ſome Extracts in the Syriack Language, of the Commentary of John Maron upon the Liturgy: he owneth, by the very Words of an Extract he ſpeaks of, that this John Maron did not live in the time, in which Ecchellenſis and M. Narion pretend he did, becauſe he talks of Conteſts not treated of in thoſe days. Whence he concludes, that John Maron's Book is Suppoſititious, or that they had added the Chapter which was ſent him. Cardinal Bona, to whom was communicated at Rome, the Latin Tranſlation of this John Maron's, who wrote in the Syriack Tongue, is of the ſame Mind alſo, in a Letter which he wrote An. 1673, to P. Mabillon, a Religious Benedictine.

JOHN (de Mount-Real) ſo called from a City in Franconia, where he was born, in 1436. He was skill'd in all Sciences, but excelled in the Mathematicks, which he taught publickly at Vienna, whither Matthias King of Hungary encouraged him to come, about 1470. After the great Reputation he acquired there, he withdrew to Nuremburg, to live out of the noiſe of the War. It was here he printed the Ephemerides for 30 Years, ſo much eſteemed of by all the Learned. To the Syſtem of the World, he has added a Tenth Heaven, which gives Motion to the reſt. Pope Sixtus IV. having called him to Rome, he died there of the Plague, An. 1476, being Aged but 41. Andrew Thevet. lib. 6. des hommes illuſtres.

JOHN (O Neal) a Gentleman of Ulſter in Ireland, who took the Name of King. He was the Son of Caen O Neal, ſurnamed Baco, that is, Claudius, one of the moſt puiſſant Princes of the Northern part of that Iſle. Having Diſpoſſeſſed his Father, he raiſed great Troubles in Ireland, whither Queen Elizabeth ſent Troops to reduce him. But in 1567, inflamed by a Victory which he got over the Scotch, who plundered his Country, he grew ſo inſolent, that in malice to the Archbiſhop of Ardmagh, he burnt that Metropolitan See of Ireland. Then he robbed the other weaker Princes of their Eſtates; and in the end, ſcorning all the Titles of Honour which Queen Elizabeth offered, to reduce him to Subjection, he made himſelf be acknowledged King of Ulſter, by his Army, conſiſting of 1000 Horſe, 4000 Foot, and 700 Guards, and cauſed Warlike Exerciſes to be taught the Boors. He built a Caſtle, which he named Feoguegal, that is to ſay, The Horror of the Engliſh, whom he hated extreamly. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland marching with his Troops purſuant to Queen Elizabeth's Order, againſt the Rebels, defeated them at the firſt Onſet. And John O Neal ſeeing himſelf forſaken by his People, becauſe of his Cruelties, was ready to throw himſelf at the Feet of the Vice-Roy, but his Secretary perſwaded him to the contrary, and thinking to have found Aſſiſtance from thoſe of the Scots Weſtern Iſles, he and the remainder of his Men flying thither, were ſlain. Cambden's Q. Elizabeth.

JOHN (de Paris) a Dominican Friar, Doctor and Profeſſor of Divinity, flouriſhed about the latter end of the XIIIth Century, and the beginning of the XIVth. He wrote a Treatiſe De Regia poteſtate & Papali, and an Anſwer to another, Entitul'd, Corruptorium Doctrinæ S. Thomæ Aquinatis, and ſome others; but having averr'd ſomewhat about the Situation of the Body of Jeſus Chriſt in the Euchariſt, the Biſhops, William of Paris, Giles de Bourges, and another William d' Amiens, with the Doctors of Divinity, examined him, and forbad him to Teach any farther. He died under the Pontificate of Clement V. about 1310. Bellarmine and Trithem. de Script. Eccleſ. Le Mire in Actuar. Spondan: A. C. 1304. n. 14. Leander Albert, Anthonius de Sienne. Alphonſus Fernandez. There was a Treatiſe of this Author printed at London, in 1686. Intituled De modo Exiſtendi Corporis Chriſti in Sacramento Altaris, where he diſowns Tranſubſtantiation.

JOHN of Parma, who lived in the XIIth. Century, is thought to be the Author of a Book, Entituled, Evangelium Æternum, burnt by Order of Pope Alexander VI. An. 1258.

JOHN (des Temps) or D' Eſtampes, is that famous Squire belonging to Charlemaigne, who, according to the Story of ſome Chronologies, (Vincent de Beauvais, Nauclerus and others,) died in 1128. Aged 361.

JOHN De Raguſa of Dalmatia, was a Dominican, and much eſteem'd in the XVth. Century. He made Speeches a Week together in the Council of Bazil againſt the Huſſites; Caniſius who publiſh'd the Harangue of Polimarius, has likewiſe printed that of John de Raguſa, call'd Oratio de Communione ſub utraque ſpecie non concedenda Laicis, in which he gives an account of the Errors and behaviour of the Huſſites. Trithemius & Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. Spond. Poſſevin, &c.

JOHN (of Salisbury) An Engliſh Man. He was Biſhop of Chartres and one of the moſt learn'd Men of the XIIth. Century. He govern'd his Dioceſs with great Reputation and died in the Year 1181. He wrote a great many Books, of which we have none extant, excepting the Life of Thomas Becket Arch Biſhop of Canterbury. A Collection of Epiſtles. Polycraticon, or de Nugis Curialium & Veſtigiis Philoſophorum Lib. VIII. &c. Petrus Bleſenſis Epiſt. 22. The Continuator of Sigebert in Chron. Trithem. & Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. &c.

JOHN of Leyden: See BUCKHOLD.

JOHN of Udina, a famous Painter, born at Udina in Friuli, An. 1494. He was the firſt that diſcovered how to make Stucco, (i. e. a Compoſition for Imagery made of Potter's Clay.) He became a great Artiſt in working. In his time, they dug into the Ruines of the Palace of Titus, to find out ſome Statues, and other Antiquities; as they were removing the Earth, theſe fanciful Figures were found, which were ever ſince called Groteſques, becauſe found in Grotto's. Some Hiſtorical ſmall Pictures were alſo found there, with other Ornaments of a ſmall Size, made of Stuc. John copied theſe ſorts of Pictures, but had not the Secret to make ſuch Stuc, as he ſaw amongſt the reſt of thoſe Antiquities. He tried ſo many Experiments to diſcover it, that in fine, he found that Lime of very white Travertin, which is a hard Stone, mixed with a Marble Powder beat very fine, made that Compoſition, which he ſaw in thoſe ancient Works. So he began to make theſe Ornaments in Stucco, and was the firſt in the World, who revived this manner of Painting. He died at Rome, An. 1564. Vaſari. Felibien.

JOHN (Scot) called Erigena, was a Scotch-man born at Air. He came to France about the Reign of Charles the bald, who much admired the ſharpneſs of his Wit; and by report, made him lie in his own Chamber. He was really a great Philoſopher and Divine, tho' the Church of Rome ſays, he was not Orthodox. At the Pope's Requeſt, he was baniſh'd the Univerſity of Paris, cried down for a Heretick every where, and after his death, a Work of his, wherein he appeared to be of the ſame Opinion with the Proteſtants now, was Condemned in the three Councils, of Paris Verceil, and Rome. In this laſt, held in 1059, under Nicholas II. Beranger, who made uſe of the Authority of this Book of John Scots, was forced to throw it himſelf into the fire. But not to forget the nature of his Death, 'Tis reported, that after being baniſhed Paris, he went into England, and there taught School, and one of his Scholars ſtabbed him with a Pen-knife, about the latter end of the IXth. Century, which was, An. 883, or 884.

JOHN of Venice, and JOHN (Tudethehen) both Chaplains to Jeffrey Duke of Tuſcanelle, averr'd, An. 1065, That Eccleſiaſtical Dignities might be bought, not for the ſake of Spiritual things, but for the Temporal Advantages that might be made of them. Pope Alexander II. declared this Opinion to be Heretical, and oppoſed it as ſuch, by his Decretal Letter ſent to the See of Luca.

JOHNSON (Benjamin) born in Weſtminſter, in Harts-horn-lane near Charing-Croſs, where his Mother married a Brick-layer for her Second Husband. He had his Grammar-Learning in St. Martin's Church School, and then in Weſtminſter School, under the Learned Mr. Cambden, and afterwards was admitted into St. John's College in Cambridge; but wanting Maintenance, he was obliged to come away in a little time, and betake himſelf to his Father-in-Law's Trade, and aſſiſted in building the new Structure in Lincolns-Inn. He was obſerved to have a Trowel in his hand, and a Book in his Pocket; whereupon ſome Gentlemen finding his Ingenuity, did, by their Bounty, enable him to follow his Studies. His Parts were extraordinary, yet he was not ſo ready to run, as able to anſwer the Spur: And in learned Company, his conſtant Humour was, to ſit ſilent. He was quick and ſmart in his Repartees, extraordinary in the Dramatick part of Poetry, and was reckon'd the moſt Learned, Judicious and Correct Comick Poet of his Time. He died, An. 1638. and was buried near the Belfrey in Weſtminſter-Abbey Church, having only on a Pavement over his Grave, O rare Ben Johnſon.

JOIA (Elizabeth) or de Roſeres, a Spaniſh Woman, who, according to Franciſcus Auguſtinus della Chieſa, preached in the Cathedral of Barcelona, to the wonder of all that were preſent. She lived in the XVIth. Century, and, 'tis ſaid, that being at Rome, during the Papacy of Paul III. by the force of her Reaſoning, ſhe converted a great many Jews, and in preſence of the Cardinals, explained the Books of John Dun Scotus, called the Subtil Doctor. Auguſtin. della Chieſa, Hilarion de Coſta.

JOIADA, or JEHOIADA, a Jewiſh High-Prieſt whom Joſephus calls Joad. He was a very vertuous Perſon, and one fearing the Lord; his Zeal for the true Worſhip of God, Faithfulneſs to his Prince, and Love to his Country, with many other ſignal Vertues were eminent in him, and made him truly worthy of ſo high a Station. 2 Kings ch. 11 and 12. 2 Chron. 22. 10. to the end. Chap. 23, 24. to verſe 17.

JOIGNY, Lat. Joveniacum, or Iviniacum, a City of Champagne in France, on the River Tonne, ſituate on the ſide of a Hill, and has a fine Caſtle.

JOINVILLE, a ſmall City and Principality of France in Champagne, ſituate upon the River Marne, betwixt Chaumont, and St. Dizier, which was made a Principality by King Henry II. in 1552.

1552. for the younger Sons of the Houſe of Guiſe, and in favour of Francis of Lorrain Duke of Guiſe.

JOINVILLE, or John Lord of Joinville, Seneſchal of Champagne, lived in the time of St. Lewis IX. in 1260. He writ the Life of that King, whereof there are ſeveral Editions, the beſt being that of M. du Cange, who publiſhed it with excellent Obſervations, in 1668. St. Lewis made uſe of the Lord of Joinville, to do Juſtice at his Gate, of which he gives this Account in the Hiſtory of his Life: It was his Cuſtom, ſaith he, to ſend the Sieurs de Neſle, Soiſſons, and me, to hear the Pleadings, and afterwards would ſend for us, enquiring how all things went, and whether there was any Caſe in debate, that could not be ended without him; and then many times, according to our Information, he would ſend for the Parties in Conteſt, and ſet them to right. Du Cange.

JOLAUS, the Son of Iphicles, who aſſiſted Hercules in overcoming the Hydra, by Searing with a red hot Iron, the Necks of that Monſter, as faſt as Hercules cut off its Heads, to hinder them from growing again; and for a Reward of this piece of Service, Hercules deſired Hebe to reſtore him to Youth, when he was grown Decrepid. Ovid 9 Metamorph.

JOLAUS, or JOLAS, Son of Antipater, who was Governor of Macedonia in Alexander the Great's abſence; Antipater having diſobliged Olympias, the Mother of this Prince, and being afraid her Son would revenge her, reſolved to be before hand with him; to this purpoſe, he ſent his Son ſome of the Water of a Lake of Arcadia, called Nonacris, which, by its coldneſs, was preſent Death to thoſe that drank it, to the end, he ſhould fill it to the King, for he was his Cup-bearer. Alexander had no ſooner ſwallowed this Draught, but he felt ſuch a pain in his Stomach, as if he had been pierced with a Dart, and the Torment was ſo violent, that drawing his Sword, he would have killed himſelf to put an end to his pain. Iolas, who had taſted of it before he preſented it to Alexander, died almoſt as ſoon as the King, and was honourably Interred; but Olympias being informed of this Treaſon, cauſed his Body to be digged up again, and caſt into the Sea. Diodorus. Q. Curtius.

JOLCOS, now called Jaco, an ancient Sea-Port Town of Magneſia, a Province of Theſſaly, ſituate near to the City of Demetrias, not far from the Sinus Pegaſicus, now Golfo di Armiro, and Golfo del Vollo, at the Foot of the Mountain Pelion, which, at preſent, is called Petras, diſtant from Pegaſis, now Vollo, Twenty Stadia's, and as much from Ormenio. This City was of old Illuſtrious, for the Birth of Jaſon, and by the ſolemn Convention of the Argonauts, who met there, to go in queſt of the Golden Fleece. Ovid lib. 7. Metam. Lucan. lib. 3.

JOLE, the Daughter of Eurytus, King of Oechalia, by his Second Wife, of whom Hercules being enamoured, he came to an Agreement with her Father, that in caſe he did over-come him, he ſhould have his Daughter. Hercules having beaten him, demands the Price of his Victory, which Eurytus refuſing, Hercules kills him, and takes away his Daughter, whom he afterwards beſtowed upon his Son Hillus, but Dejaneira, Hercules his Wife, was ſo jealous of her Husband's new Love, that thinking to reclaim him, ſhe ſent him Neſſus his poiſon'd Shirt, which was the Cauſe of his Death. Ovid lib. 9. Metam.

JOLLYVET (Evert) an Advocate of the Parliament of Paris, received his firſt Breath at Orleans, July 20. 1601. As he was admired in his Youth for his wonderful Pregnancy, ſo he was in his riper Years, for his vaſt Erudition, being not only a skilful Lawyer, but a good Poet, a great Philologiſt, Philoſopher, and Divine; to which he added, what gave him the greateſt Comfort, the Life of a good Chriſtian, according to the Proteſtant Faith. He was naturally of a chearful Temper, ſo he never denied himſelf, at proper Times and Places, the Pleaſures of innocent Mirth. His Carmen in Aquilam, a Latin Heroick Poem, wherein he ſets out the Atchievements of that famous Hero of Sweden, Guſtavus Adolphus, is a ſufficient Argument of his great Skill in Latin Poetry. The Learned may judge of it by theſe few Lines, which begin the Poem.

> Ille ego ſincere Themidis qui Caſtra ſecutus,
> Sed majora petens, animis ut Gloria lampas,
> Grandia Guſtavi miratus Geſta, per Orbem
> Illa cano. Reges, vos hæc Miracula ſpectant.

In French, he wrote a Voluminous Hiſtory of Sweden, from Authentick Memoirs which he had procured thence, and is kept in Manuſcript to this day, in the Royal Library at Upſal. Arnhemius, who lately wrote in Latin the Life of Count Pontus de la Gardie, quotes it in two ſeveral Places. Beſides theſe two Pieces of his, one in Proſe, the other in Verſe, he has left behind him ſeveral learned Manuſcripts upon divers Subjects, now in the poſſeſſion of his Son, Mr. Evert Jollyvet, an Officer in their Majeſties Meuſe, and formerly Tutor to his Grace the Duke of Richmond; and when time ſerves, the Publick may have a ſhare in them. His Death happened, An. 1662. and (which is remarkable) upon July 20. being his Birth-day; which proved according to his Wiſh, expreſſed in a Verſe of his, written ſome time before with his own hand, and found after his Deceaſe amongſt his Papers,

> O utinam Nativa Dies ſit Meta Dolorum.

JON, the Son of Xuthus, King of Theſſaly, and of the greateſt part of Greece, to whom his Father gave the Country of Attica, upon which he beſtowed his own Name of Ionia, where he built one City conſiſting of Four, and was therefore called Tetrapolis, which Cities were, Marathon, Oenoe, Probalintho, and Tricorytho. He divided the People of Athens into four Claſſes, viz. Of Souldiers, Prieſts, Artiſans, and Labourers, and built two Cities, one whereof he called Helice, to perpetuate his Wife's name, and the other Bura or Buris, in Memory of his Daughter, which were both ſwallowed up by the Sea, by means of an Earthquake. This King left five Sons behind him, Pitireus, Pythion, Ægicoros, Argadeus, Hoptes, and his Daughter Bura. Apollodorus.

JON, or YONNE, Lat. Joanna, a River of France, which has its ſource in the Mountain Mordant in Burgundy, waters ſeveral Cities of note; and paſſing by Auxerre, becomes Navigable, bears conſiderable Boats, and receiving ſeveral other Rivers, falls into the Seine, 17 Leagues above Paris.

JONADAB, the Son of Rechab, was a Perſon of great Holineſs and Strictneſs of Life, who never drank any Wine, neither dwelt in any Houſe, ſowed Seed, or planted Vineyards, and lived much like the Monks of Old. Which way of living, he recommended to his Poſterity, the Rechabites, who obſerved his manner of Life, and were obedient to his Command, and therefore were commended by God, and Bleſſed by him, as appears, Jerem. 35. ver. 16, 17, 18, 19. It was this Jonadab, Jehu, King of Iſrael took up unto his Chariot, when he was going to execute Vengeance upon the Houſe of Ahab. 2 Kings 15, 16, 17.

JONAH, the Son of Amittai, one of the leſſer Prophets, began to preach under the Reign of Joaſh and Amaziah Kings of Judah, An. Mun. 3211. or according to others, 3168. The Hiſtory of his Denunciation to the Ninevites, is ſet down in his Prophecy; wherefore I ſhall only take notice, that the Plant called a Gourd, in our Tranſlation, and which was the growth of one Night, was that which we call Palma Chriſti. See BOCHART Hierozoicon p. 2. lib. 2. cap. 24.

JONAH, a Jewiſh Rabbi, and Phyſician of Corduba in Spain, lived towards the end of the XIth. Century. He is the moſt famous of all the Jewiſh Grammarians, next to R. Jehudah Hiug. He was the Author of an Arabick Grammar and Dictionary, which have been Tranſlated into Rabbinical Hebrew, and are called Ricma. He owns, that the Hebrew Tongue hath been, in ſome meaſure, loſt, but reſtored by means of the Neighbour Languages. R. Kimchi often refutes his Dictionary, and that of Jehudah Hiug, whence the ancient Interpreters of Holy Writ may be juſtified, in thoſe Paſſages where they differ from the Modern. The ſame alſo proves, That theſe ancient Hebrew Grammarians, did not make any great account of the Maſora, at leaſt, did not hold it to be infallible, becauſe they only have a regard to the Sence, and that they do not apply the general Rule of the Maſora, but to Places where they think it requiſite. Baillet Jugement des Sçavans.

JONAS Biſhop of Orleans, lived in the IXth. Century under the Empire of Lewis the Meek, and Charles the Bald. He wrote three Books againſt Claudius of Turin, wherein are found many things contrary to the Modern Opinions of the Church of Rome. Dr. Alix's Remarks on the Churches of Piedmont, chap. 9. He compoſed alſo a Book for the Inſtruction of the young King of Aquitain, Pepin, the Son of Lewis the Meek: Which Piece of his we have now reſtored to us by the Care and Pains of P. Dom Luc. d' Acheri, with divers other Treatiſes; and, above all, that of the Chriſtian Morals, tranſlated by P. Dom Joſeph Mege. He died in 841. *Hincmar. Rhemenſ. Oper. adverſ. Goteſch. JONAS (Juſtus,) a Proteſtant Miniſter of Germany, was born at North-hauſen in Thuringia, in 1439. He was a learned Perſon, and one of the firſt Maintainers of the Doctrine of Luther. He died Octob. 9. 1555. He writ a Treatiſe in Defence of the Marriage of Prieſts; another, Of Private Maſs; and, Notes upon the Acts of the Apoſtles. Sleidan. Chytræus. Reuſner. Melchior Adam.

JONATHAN, the Son of Saul, famous for the entire Love and Friendſhip he had for David, contrary to his own and Family's Intereſt: And for his miraculous Victory over the Philiſtines. He was ſlain with his Father and Brothers, in a Battel againſt the Philiſtines, A. M. 2979. See his Hiſtory in the Firſt Book of Samuel.

JONATHAN, the Son of Mattathias, and Brother of Judas Macchabæus, was one of the illuſtrious Generals of the Jews, oppreſſed by the Kings of Syria. After the Death of his Brother, the Jews made choice of him for their Governor and Captain-General; Simon, his elder Brother, willingly giving way to him. This was about An. Rom. 593. and A. M. 3893. or 94. He compelled Bacchides, General of the Army of the King of Syria, to accept of Peace. He vanquiſhed Demetrius Soter, and afterwards Apollonius, who was the General of that Prince's Army; but at laſt he fell into the Snare Tryphon had laid for him at Ptolemais; who, after he had received a conſiderable Summ of Money for his Ranſom, of Simon his Brother, ſlew him there. 1 Macchab. chap. 9, 10, 11, 12. Joſeph. lib. 3. Ant. Jud.

JONATHAN, the Son of Abiathar: He was High Prieſt of the Jews. There was alſo another Jewiſh High Prieſt of the ſame Name, who was the Son of Jehoiada II. under the Reign of the Perſians, Jaddus, who went to meet Alexander the Great, as he was coming to ſee the City of Jeruſalem, was his Succeſſor.

JONICHUS, or JONITHUS, the Son of Noah, who, as ſome Authors ſuppoſe, was born to him after the Deluge, about A. M. 1756. There is no mention made of him in Scripture, nor in any other known Record, ſave only in the Writings of St. Methodius Martyr. It is ſaid, That he was the Inventer of Aſtronomy, and that he fore-told many Particulars concerning the foundation and Viciſſitudes of Monarchies; and that he diſcovered theſe Secrets to Nimrod, that was one of his Diſciples. Others add, That Noah having ſent him to the Land of Ethan, with ſome of the Sons of Japhet, he there built a City, which he called Jonica, after his own Name. Comeſtor, cap. 37. *Hiſt. IONIA, a Province of the Leſſer Aſia, now called Sarchan, or Sarchiom, between Æolia and Caria. Its moſt conſiderable Cities were Miletum, Epheſus, Smyrna, Colophon, Heraclea, Erythræa, Clazomene, &c. Herodotus aſſures us, that the Situation of all theſe Cities was very pleaſant and advantageous, and the Country very fertile. The Ionians were addicted to War, Dancing and Muſick, and had many famous and magnificent Temples. They had alſo numerous Colonies abroad, where they ſignalized their Valour, as well as againſt their Neighbours nearer Home. The Name of the Ionian Sect was given to the Diſciples of Thales of Miletum. The Ionian Sea, ſo called, is not that which runs along by the Country Ionia, but that which flows between Greece and Sicily, towards Macedonia, Epirus, Achaia and Peloponneſus. Some ſuppoſe it took its Name from Io, the Daughter of Inachus: But Others think, the Ionians had their Denomination from Javan, the Son of Japheth. Herodot. lib. 1. *& ſeq. Strabo. Pliny. JONQUIERS, Lat. Juncaria, a Town of Provence in France, upon the Mediterranean, 5 Leagues W. of Marſeilles, and 15 S. of Avignon.

JOPPA, now JAFFA, a Maritime Town in the Tribe of Dan; in ancient Time the only Haven belonging to Jeruſalem; deriving its Name from Japho, or Jaſphe, Beauty; and ſuppoſed to be built by Japhet, the Son of Noah, before the Flood. Hither the Materials were brought from Libanus, for the Building Solomon's Temple; and thence they were carried to Jeruſalem by Land. Here Jonah took Ship for Tarſhiſh. Here St. Peter raiſed Dorcas. And here Andromeda, the Daughter of Cepheus, was delivered from a Sea-Monſter by Perſeus. In the Time of the Macchabees it was Garriſon'd by the Syrians, who drowned 200 of its Inhabitants treacherouſly. Joſeph. de Bell. Jud. lib. 2. cap. 22. lib. 3. cap. 15. 2 Macchab. 12. Judas immediately revenged this Cruelty; and levying Forces, burnt the Haven, and all their Boats. It was twice taken by the Romans, and re-built by Lewis King of France in 1250. Now it has only two Turrets ſtanding, and is not much frequented by Merchants. This City is ſaid to have been built before the General Deluge, and ſo the oldeſt in the World. Pliny, lib. 5. cap. 13. In 1200. the Saracens took this City from the Chriſtians. It was, in the Time of the Macchabees, a fit Port for Pyrates, and therefore often taken, and re-taken. It is mentioned, Joſh. 19. 1 King. 5. 2 Chron. 2. Jonah, 1 Maccab. 10. 12, 13, 14. 2 Macchab. 12. Act. 9. Joſeph. de Bell. Jud. lib. 2. cap. 22. & lib. 3. cap. 15. Ptolemy placeth it, Long. 65. 40. Lat. 32. 6. and Gaza, 31. 30. by which, it lies 36 Miles N. of Gaza. Ingulphus Abbot of Croyland, in 1064. records, That in his Youth being at Jeruſalem, he came down to Joppa, and there, with many other Pilgrims, ſhipped himſelf for Italy, on board the Genoueſe Fleet. Oxon. Edit. pag. 74. This Fleet came yearly to trade, and bring Pilgrims to the Holy Land. In the Times of the Holy War it was the uſual Port of all the Chriſtian Fleet; but is ſometimes, by the Writers of that Story, called The City of Japhet. See JAFFA.

JORAM, or JEHORAM, King of Iſrael, the Son of Ahab, ſucceeded his Brother Ahaziah. See the Account given of him in 2 King. 3. and 2 Chron. 22. 5, 6, 7. Joſeph. lib. 9. Ant. Jud. Torniel & Salian in Annal. Vet. Teſt.

JORAM, or JEHORAM, King of Judah, ſucceeded his Father Jehoſhaphat, A. M. 3145. 2 King. cap. 8. from verſ. 16. to 24. 2 Chron. 21.

JORDAN, a River of Palæſtine, which, according to Pliny, comes from a Spring called Panion. But Joſephus aſſures us, That though it ſeems to flow from the Cave Panion, yet it riſeth from another Spring, called Phiale, 26 Furlongs diſtant from Cæſarea; from whence it flows under Ground, till it appears at the Cave Panion: Which Spring of this River was not known, till Herod the Tetrarch diſcovered it by caſting Straw into the Spring Phiale, which afterwards was found at Panion. It paſſeth through the Lake Samachonites, or The Waters of Merom; and, after a long Courſe, traverſeth the Lake of Geneſareth, and from thence runs into the Dead Sea. This River, like the Nile, is low in the Winter, and overflows in Summer, by the Snow melting on Mount Libanus. It abounds with Fiſh, becauſe the Country through which it runs is little inhabited. Travellers obſerve, That the Water of this River does not mix with that of the Dead Sea, through which it runs. And ſome hold, That it communicates by a Subterranean Conduit with the Red Sea, or Mediterranean, as it did before Sodom and Gomorrah were ſwallowed in that Lake. Some Authors write, That its Fiſh, if they do not ſwim back, die in the Dead Sea, Its whole Courſe is about 100 Miles. It is half as broad at Jericho as the Seine is at Paris.

JORNANDES, or JORDAN, a Goth by Birth, was the Son of Alanus Wamuthe. He was firſt Secretary to the Goths in Italy, and afterwards Biſhop of Ravenna. He writ two Hiſtorical Treatiſes in the VIth. Century, in the Time of the Emperor Juſtinian. He compoſed his Book, De Rebus Gothicis, in 552. for he declares in the 19th. Chapter of that Book, That nine Years before he writ it, the Plague had in a manner wholly laid waſte the Roman Empire; which happened in 543. in the Conſulſhip of Baſilius. He was the Author alſo of another Treatiſe, De Regnorum Succeſſione; which Trithemius improperly calls De Geſtis Romanorum, becauſe Jornandes therein alſo treats of the Aſſryians, Medes and Perſians. Sigebert in Catalog. Trithem. de Script. Poſſevin in Apparat. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Latin.

JORTAN, a City and Kingdom of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Iſle of Java, on the North Coaſt thereof. It abounds with Fruits, and affords vaſt Quantities of Salt. The City hath a good Haven, and well frequented, between the Streight of Palambuam and Paſſaruam.

JOS, an Iſle of the Ægean Sea, being one of the Sporades towards the North Side of Crete. It is alſo called Nio, from a City of that Name, the chief of the Iſland. Pliny aſſures us, that the Tomb of Homer was to be ſeen there; which made it very famous. Plin. lib. 4. cap. 12.

JOSEF, the Son of Abu Techiſien, and ſecond King of Morocco, of the Lineage of Almoravides. Upon his Coming to the Throne, not liking the City Agmet, ſituate among the Mountains, he built that of Morocco, in 1086. or, at leaſt, finiſhed it; for ſome ſay, that his Father begun it. Not long after, he made War with the People of Fez, who were governed by two Princes, and made himſelf Maſter of that Kingdom. From thence paſſing to that of Algier and Tunis, he made them Tributary. And then returning to Morocco, took to himſelf the Title of Amir-el-Momminc, that is, Commander of Believers: Whence, by Corruption, was framed Miramolin. Joſef having ſucceeded thus far, turned his victorious Arms againſt the Arabians that dwelt in the Mountains and Deſarts of Numidia, which at preſent is called Biledulgerid. Some time after he reſolved to paſs over into Spain, at the Requeſt of the King of Granada, who had engaged the other Mooriſh Kings there to acknowledge Joſef for their Sovereign, and put themſelves under his Protection. Joſef having accepted this offer, paſſed the Streights of Gibraltar, and, having joined his Forces with theirs, beſieged the City of Toledo; but upon News of King Alphonſo's Approach, retired to Granada, and thence made an Expedition to the City Murcia, which was ſurrender'd to him. And perceiving that the Moors repented of their having called him in, he ſubdued the Kingdoms of Murcia, Granada, Corduba and Jaen, with a Part of that of Valentia, and returned to Africa, where he had left his Nephew Mahomet to govern during his Abſence. Being arrived there, he publiſhed a Gazia, which is a kind of Croiſade among the Moors; and having raiſed a Powerful Army, which he embarked at Ceuta, landed at Malaga; and having joined Mahomet, he again laid Siege to Toledo; but upon the Arrival of King Alphonſo, raiſed the Siege a ſecond Time. Soon after Joſef ſent Mahomet to beſiege Valentia, which he took, and put the King to death. In 1109. Joſef won the Battel which Hiſtorians call The Battel of Seven Counts, becauſe ſeven Spaniſh Counts were killed in it, beſides the Prince Dom Sancho; which ſo grieved King Alphonſo, that he died ſoon after. The Year following Joſef died at Morocco, and his Son Ali, or Hali, ſucceeded him. Marmol de l' Afrique, lib. 2.

JOSEF II. of that Name, and Second King of Morocco of the Race of the Almohades, came to the Empire after the Death of his Father Abdulmumen, in 1156. After having maintained the Kings of Tunis and Bugia, his Vaſſals, in their Dominions he paſſed over into Spain, in 1158, with 60000 Horſe, and above 100000 Foot, at the Sollicitation of the Mooriſh Kings there, who offered Fealty to him in caſe he would deliver them from the Yoke of the Chriſtians; but ſeeing himſelf ſtronger than they, he made himſelf Maſter of all their Dominions; and after having ſuſtained ſeveral Loſſes from the Chriſtians, he at laſt had ſome Advantages over them; but at the Siege of Santaren, which he attacked very briskly, he was wounded with an Arrow, whereof he died. Whereupon the Moors raiſed the Siege, and they of Africa returned to Barbary. Jacob Almanſor, his Son, ſucceeded him, An. 1173. Marmol de l' Afrique, lib. 2.

JOSEPH, the Son of Jacob and Rachel, was born A. M. 2289. Gen. 30. 35. & ſeq. Joſeph. lib. 2. Antiq. cap. 1, 2. Torniel. Salian & Spondan. in Annal. Vet. Teſt.

St. JOSEPH, Husband of the Bleſſed Virgin, and Foſter-Father of Jeſus Chriſt, was the Son of Jacob according to St. Matthew, and of Heli according to St. Luke: To reconcile this, many of the Ancients believed Joſeph was Jacob's own Son, or his Son according to Nature, as ſome ſpeak, and only, the Adopted Son of Heli, as Ephraim and Manaſſes had Joſeph for their proper or Natural Father, and yet were Adopted by Jacob their Grandfather. St. Auſtin was of this Opinion, in his Book, Quæſtionum Evangelicarum; but afterwards in his Retractations, he came over to the Opinion of Julius Africanus, which is likewiſe followed by Euſebius, Pamphilus, St. Gregory Nazianzen, St. Jerom, by Cardinal Baronius, Janſenius, Torniellus, and ſeveral other modern Writers. This way of explaining the Difficulty, is very clear and ſtands thus: Heli and Jacob were Brothers, the firſt dying without Children, the ſecond Married his Widow, in compliance with the Law mentioned in Deuteronomy. Thus Jacob was the Natural Father of Joſeph, and Heli was his Father in the Sence of the Law, becauſe by that Conſtitution, Joſeph was to paſs for his Son, and continue his Family. *Jul. JOSEPH I. of that Name, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, was choſen to that See after Euthymius, in 1419. or, as others ſay, in 1424. and had before been Metropolitan of Epheſus. He accompanied the Emperor Joannes Palæologus to the Council of Ferrara; which was afterwards transferred to Florence, where Joſeph died ſuddenly.

JOSEPH II. or, as others ſay, JOASAPH I. Patriarch of Conſtantinople, who lived in the XVth. Century, about 1460. Authors tell us, That a Chriſtian, who was an Officer under the Turkiſh Emperor, and in great Eſteem at the Court, had a Deſign to divorce his lawful Wife, to marry the Widow of a Prince of Athens; which this Patriarch oppoſed. Whereupon, this Officer was ſo enraged, that he commanded his Beard to be cut off; which is the greateſt of Injuries that can be put upon an Eccleſiaſtick in the Eaſt. Yet, for all that, he was not offended at it; but on the contrary, offered his Hands, Feet, yea, and Head too, rather than, by his Connivance, to give way to Sin. Which coſt him his Place; for he was put out, and one Mark, called Nylocarabes, made Patriarch in his ſtead. Turco-Græc. lib. 1. & 2. Spond. A. C. 1461. n. 17.

JOSEPH, the Son of Zacharias, a Jewiſh Captain, whom Judas Macchabæus had left to keep Judæa, when he was obliged to go to Gilead, to fight the Ammonites; who hearing of the valiant Acts of Judas and his Brethren, and deſirous, to ſignalize himſelf in like manner, was defeated by Georgias. 1 Macch. 5. from verſ. 55. to 62.

JOSEPH, the Son of Antipater, and Brother of Herod the Great. He defended the Fortreſs of Maſſada againſt Antigonus, and afterwards commanded ſome of his Brother's Forces, about An. Rom. 700. When, neglecting his Advice of not hazarding any thing, he marched towards Jericho; where being ſet upon by Antigonus's Forces, he was killed in the Battel. Antigonus cauſed his Head to be cut off, notwithſtanding that Pheroras, another Brother of Joſeph, had offered Fifty Talents to have his Body reſtored him entire. Joſeph. lib. 14. Ant. Jud. cap. 26, 27.

JOSEPH, Albo, a Spaniſh Jew, who writ a Book in Rabbinical Hebrew, called Sepher Ikkarim or The Book of Foundations; where he handles the chief Articles of the Faith of the Jews. This Rabbi proves, That it was not poſſible the Books of Holy Scripture ſhould have been corrupted during the Captivity of Babylon; becauſe there were always Prieſts and Doctors that taught the Law. To which he adds this farther Argument, That the Samaritans, who were Enemies of the Jews, had an Hebrew Copy of the Pentateuch, in all Things agreeing with theirs.

JOSEPH, of Arimathea, a Jew of Condition, and one of the Sanhedrim; he refuſed to conſent with Caiaphas, and the reſt of that Court, to the Condemnation of our Saviour. After our Saviour's death, he beg'd his Body of Pilate, and gave it honourable burial. St. Matthew 27. St. Mark 15. St. Luke 23. and St. John 19. He is ſaid, by ſome, to have travell'd into Great Britain, to have preached the Goſpel there, and to be buried at Glaſtenbury, but this ſeems to be a miſtake. See Stillingfleet's Origines Britannicæ.

JOSEPHUS the Hiſtorian, a Jew by Nation, but writ in Greek. He was of Noble Birth, both by his Father Mattathias, who was deſcended of the Race of the High Prieſts; and by his Mother, who was of the Blood-Royal of the Aſmoneans, or Macchabees. He was born under the Reign of the Emperor Caligula, A. C. 37. and lived under that of Domitian. At the Age of ſixteen, he betook himſelf to Study; and aſſociating with one Banus, an Eſſene, (a Sect of the Jews, who lived an auſtere Life in the Deſarts,) he continued three Years with him; afterwards he betook himſelf to the Sect of the Phariſees, which he compares with that of the Stoicks amongſt the Greeks. In the 26th Year of his Age he took a Journey to Rome, upon the Account of ſome Prieſts whom Fœlix the Governor had ſent Priſoners to that City. Here a Jew that was a Comedian, and beloved of Nero, countenanced him, and made him known to the Empreſs Poppæa; by which Means he obtained his Deſire. Upon his Return to Judæa he was made Captain General of the Galilæans, and worthily diſcharged that Function till the Taking of Jotapata, when he was forced, with Forty of his Men, to hide himſelf in a Pit, where he ſuffered much. Being taken Priſoner by Veſpaſian, he fore-told his Coming to the Empire, and his own Deliverance by his Means. He accompanied Titus at the Siege of Jeruſalem, and afterwards writ his ſeven Books of the Wars of the Jews; which Titus had ſo great Eſteem for, that he ordered them, with an Approbation of his own Hand, to be put in the publick Library. He afterwards continued at Rome, being protected by the Emperors, and gratified with a Penſion, and the Privilege of a Roman Citizen; which afforded him Leiſure and Opportunity to finiſh his Twenty Books of the Jewiſh Antiquities. He writ two Books againſt Appion of Alexandria, an Enemy of the Jews; as alſo, a Diſcourſe of the Empire of Reaſon, or concerning the Martyrdom of the Macchabees, which is the moſt eloquent of all his Works; and an Account of his own Life. There is alſo another Joſephus, ſurnamed Gorionides, who hath writ, or rather falſified an Hiſtory of the Jewiſh War. Sueton. cap. 5. *Tertul. JOSIAH King of Judah, ſo famous for his extraordinary Zeal and Piety, ſucceeded his Father Ammon, An. Rom. 94. and A. M. 3394. He was killed in a Battel againſt Pharaoh-Necho King of Egypt, A. M. 3425. and An. Rom. 125. and interred with Royal Pomp in the Sepulchre of his Anceſtors, at the Age of 39, of which he reigned 31. 2 Kings 22. & 23. 2 Chron. 34. & 35.

St. JOSSE, was the Son of Juthael King of the Britains in France, and Brother of Judichael, who ſucceeded his Father; but being wearied with the Burthen of Government, reſolved to leave his Kingdom, and to become a Friar in the Monaſtery of St. Meen of Gael, which himſelf had founded; and therefore deſired his Brother Joſſe to take upon him the Government. But he having as little Love for the World, retired to a Place of Ponthieu, called St. Peter's Town, where Duke Haymo gave him an Apartment in his Palace; and having received holy Orders, he became his Chaplain for ſeven Years. After which, he retired to a Solitude, where he built himſelf an Hermitage. He died Decemb. 13. A. C. 653. An Abbey was afterwards built in the Place of his Hermitage, which was very richly endowed; and its Abbot had the Title of an Earl. *M. Abelly Vie de S. Joſſe. P. JOSUA, or JOSHUA, the Son of Nun, of the Tribe of Ephraim, was choſen by God, during Moſes's Life, to be the Governor of Iſrael. Which high Function he entered upon immediately after the Death of Moſes, A. M. 2584. Of whom read Numb. 13. & 14. Deut. 1. 38. & 3. 28. & 31. 3. to 9. and the whole Book of Joſhua.

JOSUA, or ISA, ſurnamed Zelebis, i. e. The Noble, or Illuſtrious, the ſixth Emperor of the Turks, according to the Greeks; for the Turkiſh Hiſtorians do not reckon him amongſt the Number of their Sultans, no more than Muſulman, or Moſes; but only look upon them as Princes of the Blood. He was the Son of Bajazet I. whom Tamerlain ſhut up in an Iron-Cage in 1402. after having defeated him in the Plains of Angori. After this Defeat Joſua took upon him the Soveraign Power, with the Aſſiſtance of the Janizaries, and the chief of the Turks, who had eſcaped from that Battel. He took the City Burſa by Storm; and paſſing into Europe, ſubdued the People that had rebelled againſt him. Muſulman, his Brother, being jealous of him, with the Aſſiſtance of the Greeks, gave him Battel; and having taken him, cauſed him to be ſtrangled, in the fourth Year of his Empire, A. C. 1406. Leunclav. in Annal. Turc. Chalcondyl. Hiſt. Turc.

JOTAPATA, or JONITERA, formerly the ſtrongeſt Town in Galilee, in the Tribe of Zebulon, ſeated wholly upon a Rock, ſo very high, that the Top can ſcarce be ſeen from the Valleys. It is acceſſible only on the North Side. Hoffm.

JOUBERT, the ſeventh Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem. He was elected after Gaſtus, in 1169. He generouſly backed the Attempts of the Chriſtians, againſt Saladine; but the great Loſſes they ſuſtained in Syria, and the Truce which the King of Jeruſalem was obliged to make with that Infidel, broke his Heart, A. C. 1179. Roger de Moulins ſucceeded him.

JOUBERTUS (Laurentius) a Phyſician, born at Valence in Dauphine, Decemb. 6. 1529. He was the Diſciple of Rondeletius, to whom he ſucceeded in the Place of Chancellor of the Univerſity of Montpelier. He writ a Treatiſe of Popular Errours, and ſeveral other Works. He died Octob. 29. 1682. at Lombez, as he was on a Journey from Tholouſe to Montpelier. San Marthan. in Elog. Doct. lib. 3. Vander Linden de Script. Med.

JOVIANUS, whom ſome call Jovinianus, was the Son of Count Varronianus, and born at Singidon, a City of Pannonia. He was choſen Emperor after the death of Julian the Apoſtate, An. Ch. 363, which Dignity he at firſt refuſed, proteſting he would never be the Commander of Idolatrous Soldiers; but all of them profeſſing themſelves to be Chriſtians, he accepted of the Imperial Purple. The Affairs of the Roman Empire, at this time, were in a very bad Condition, which he endeavoured to recover, by making Peace with the Perſians; this done, he commanded the Idol-Temples to be ſhut up, and forbid any Sacrifices to be offered; but above all things, he took care to recal the baniſhed Prelates, and aſſured the Hereticks, that he would not endure thoſe that were the occaſion of Diſcord in the Church. He enjoyed the Imperial Dignity but a little while, dying at a place called Dadaſtunum, between Galatia and Bithynia, Feb. 17. 364, after having Reigned 7 Months and 22 Days. He was found dead in his Bed by the ſmoak of Coals, which had been kindled in his Chamber to dry it. Before he was Emperor, he was Captain of the Guard to Julian, who was very earneſt with him to renounce his Chriſtianity, which he courageouſly refuſed. *Ammian. JOVINIANUS, a Monk, of a Monaſtery under the inſpection of St. Ambroſe, in the Suburbs of Milan, who, about 382, began to teach, That Faſting, and other Works of Penance, were of no worth; That the Virgin-ſtate had no Advantage above that of the Married; That there was but one and the ſame Reward to all the Bleſſed in Heaven; and, That the Bleſſed Virgin did not continue a Virgin after ſhe had been delivered of Jeſus. He was condemned by Pope Siricius, and by a Council held by St. Ambroſe at Milan, but theſe Anathema's not reclaiming him, he was baniſhed by the Emperor Theodoſius, yet for all that he continued to keep his Meetings near the Walls of the City, wherefore in 412, the Emperor Honorius baniſhed him to an Iſland, where he died. *St. Ambroſ. JOVINUS, a Noble and Experienced Captain amongſt the Gauls. He was declared Emperor at Mentz, in 412, at the ſame time that the Uſurper Conſtantine was beſieged at Arles. Goar the Alan, and Gundicairus, Captains of the Burgundians, were the chief Means of his Elevation. He aſſociated to him his Brother Sebaſtian, but it was not long that they enjoyed that Dignity, for the Year following, Ataulphus, who was of Jovinus his Party, having withdrawn himſelf from him at the inſtance of Dardanus, this Uſurper and his Brother were ſoon after taken, and killed on the way to Ravenna. Proſper. Marcellin and Idacius in Chron.

JOVIUS (Paulus) an Hiſtorian of the XVIth Century, well known by his Works, but not over commendable for the Fidelity of his Relations. He writ a Hiſtory in 45 Books, which ends with the Year 1544. He alſo compoſed The Elogies of Great Men, A Treatiſe of Motto's or Devices, and many other Pieces. He died Octob. 11. 1552. Aged 69 Years, 7 Months, and 22 Days. Thuanus obſerves, That he wrote many things through Prejudice, Intereſt, and Favour; That his Pen was Mercenary, That he received a conſiderable Penſion from Francis I. but was ſtruck out by the Great Conſtable Montmorency in King Henry II's Reign; his Reſentment againſt Montmorency, may be ſeen in the 31ſt Book of his Hiſtory. He wrote good Latin.

JOURA, which of old was called Gyarus and Gyaros, a little Iſland in the Archipelago, whither the Romans baniſhed moſt of their Criminals, becauſe it was a Deſart and horrid place, and therefore very fit to be a Priſon, as is intimated by that Verſe of Juvenal,

Aude aliquid brevibus Gyaris & Carcere dignum,
Si vis eſſe aliquis.

JOYEUSE, a Country Town of France in Vivarais, towards the Frontiers of Languedoc and Gevaudan, with the Title of a Dukedom. It gives Name to the Noble and Ancient Family of Joyeuſe in France, and lies 26 Miles Weſt of Viviers, and 43 North of Niſmes. Long. 23. 19. Lat. 49. 57.

JOYEUSE (Anne de) a great Favourite of Henry III. of France, who made him Duke and Peer of that Kingdom in 1581, and two months after married him to Margaret of Lorrain, younger Siſter to the Queen his Spouſe; and afterwards made him Admiral of France, Knight of the Royal Orders, Gentleman of his Bed-chamber, and Governor of Normandy. In 1587, the King truſted him with the Command of the Army he ſent into Guienne againſt the Proteſtants, where, after a long reſiſtance, he cut in pieces two whole Regiments at Mont St. Eloi, without giving Quarter to one of them. Some time after, being ſent to fight the Army of the King of Navarre, believing himſelf to be ſtrong enough, he refuſed the Succours that were brought him by the Mareſchal de Matignon. And knowing that the King of Navarre, afterwards Henry the Great, lay with his Army on the other ſide of the Village Courtras, between the Rivers de Liſlo and la Drougne, he ſaid, with a threatning Tone, That he could no longer refuſe fighting him, and that he muſt either fight or periſh. This Battel happened April 29, the ſame Year, 1587, where his Army was defeated, and himſelf, being unhors'd, was killed, tho' he offered to Ranſom his Life with 100000 Crowns. Claudius of Joyeuſe, his Brother, was likewiſe killed there, the Proteſtants refuſing to give Quarter, but crying out Mount St. Eloi, in remembrance of that Duke's Cruelty, who had killed two whole Regiments without giving Quarter to any. But the King of Navarre put a ſtop to the ſlaughter. Anne de Joyeuſe died without any Poſterity. Davila. Thuan. Mezerai, Pereſix in the Life of Henry IV.

JOYEUSE (Francis) Cardinal and Archbiſhop, was Son of William II. Marſhal of France, and Governor of Languedoc, &c. This Francis was made Privy Councellor by Henry III. and was ſent by him to Rome, where by the dexterity of his Management, and the ſtrength of his Character of Cardinal, he ſupported the Intereſt and Privileges of the Crown of France, to great Satiſfaction. In the Year 1593, he made another Journey to Rome, to expedite the Reconciliation of Henry the Great, with the See of Rome. Afterwards Henry the Great made uſe of him to take up the difference between Paul V. and the Venetians; which nice Affair, he brought to a very good iſſue, and, indeed, upon all occaſions, gave extraordinary proof of his Capacity and Prudence. In 1614, he was the chief Repreſentative of the Clergy at the meeting of the States-General of France, and died the Year following at Avignon. Thuanus hiſt. lib. 137. *St. Marth. Gal. Chriſt. IPHIANASSA, the Daughter of Prætus King of the Argivi in the Peloponneſus, being on a time with her Siſter Lyſippe, in one of the Temples of Juno, ſhe expreſs'd her Contempt of that Goddeſs, by preferring her Father's Palace and Riches to that Temple, and its Ornaments; or, as others ſay, by preferring her own Beauty before that of the Goddeſs, her Siſter taking part with her; whereupon, as the Poets tell us, Juno ſo diſturbed their Brains, that they ſuppoſed themſelves to be become Cows. Their Father being extreamly afflicted to ſee them in this condition, ſent for a Phyſician called Melampus, to whom he promiſed part of his Kingdom, and which of his Daughters he liked beſt, in caſe he did cure them; who having appeaſed the Anger of Juno by Sacrifices, performed the Cure, and married Iphianaſſa.

IPHICRATES, General of the Athenians, who had that Command conferred upon him, when he was but twenty Years of Age, An. Rom. 359, and made himſelf Famous, not ſo much by the Grandeur of his Actions, as by his Military Diſcipline, in which Point he was ſo excellent, as not only to equal the greateſt Commanders of his Age, but to be as much eſteemed as any of his Predeceſſors. He fought againſt the Thracians, and reſtored Seuthes, who was an Allie of the Athenians. He engaged the Lacedæmonians, An. Rom. 364, and in many other occaſions, gave ſignal Marks of his Conduct and Courage. He lived till after An. Rom. 380. Plutarch relates ſeveral of his Apophthegms. As he was on a time Fortifying his Camp, in a place where there was not the leaſt appearance of any danger, and many wondered at it, he ſaid, It is but a bad Excuſe for a General to ſay, I had not thought it. Another time, being reproached by a Fop, of a Noble Family, for the meanneſs of his Birth, I, ſaid he, *ſhall be the Firſt of my Race, and you the Laſt of yours. IPHIGENIA, the Daughter of Agamemnon and Clytemneſtra. The Poets tell us, That ſhe was laid on the Pile to be Sacrificed to Diana, but that in compaſſion, ſhe took her up to Heaven, and laid a Doe in her place; and that Iphigenia afterwards being a Prieſteſs, delivered her Brother Oreſtes, who came to make Atonement for his Parricide. Ovid 12 Metam.

IPHIS, the Daughter of Lygdus and Theletuſa, who on her Marriage Day was changed into a Man. Ovid. Metam. lib. 4.

IPHITUS, the Son of Praxonides, of the Family of Oxylus, and King of Elis in the Morea, Famous for reſtoring the Olympick-Games, 442 Years after their firſt Inſtitution by Hercules. Others make this Iphitus to be the Son of Naubulus, and Grand-child of Hippaſus, and one of the Argonauts, who was alſo King of Elis. Authors do not agree about the Year of this Famous Epocha, before which, Varro ſays, the Greek Hiſtories are all Obſcure and Fabulous. Torniel. Salian, Sponde and Petav. with many others, fix this Re-eſtabliſhment or Inſtitution, An. Mun. 3278. The Firſt Year of the Reign of Jotham, Son of Uzziah, King of Judah, and the Second of Pekah, Son of Remaliah King of Iſrael, the 3983, of the Julian Period, 409 Years after the Deſtruction of Troy, 22 or 23 Years before the building of Rome, and about 776 before the Birth of Chriſt, whilſt Eſchilus was perpetual Prætor or Governor for Life, of Athens.

IPRES, or YPRES, Lat. Ipra, Ipræ, Ipretum, A City of Flanders, which takes its Name from a Brook that runs through it. It is ſuppoſed to have been built by Baldwin III. Son of Count Arnulphus I. about 960, and that it was not walled till 1288. It is now a very rich City, and hath many fair Churches, whereof that of St. Martin is the Cathedral; the Biſhoprick Eſtabliſhed here by Paul IV. in 1559, is under the Archbiſhop of Mechlin. This City is the 3d in Flanders, and hath under it 7 Juriſdictions or Chatellanies; the Country about it is extreamly fruitful, and its Situation contributes much to its Strength. It is very well built, and beſides the Churches already mentioned, it hath many ſumptuous Buildings and Palaces. That of the Lordſhip is great and ſtately, alſo the Draper's-Hall. The City is famous for its Manufactures, and hath ſeveral Fairs, whereof that in Lent is the principal. This City was taken by the French King in 1678, March 26. It is 18 Miles South of Newport, 23 Eaſt of Dunkirk, and 35 South-Weſt of Ghent. Georg. Brun. Civit. Orb. Tom. II. Le Mire.

IPSALA, Lat. Cypſala, a City of Thracia, by the River Mela, formerly an Epiſcopal See under the Archbiſhop of Trajanople, but afterwards a Metropolis. It lies 20 Miles Weſt of Trajanople, 26 Eaſt of Druſipara. Long. 51. 54. Lat. 42. 53. Baudr.

IPSWICH, the chief place of Suffolk, is 55 Miles from London, N. Eaſtward, ſeated in the S. E. parts of the County, on the Banks of the Orwell, about 20 Miles from its Fall into the Sea. A place of great Antiquity, formerly Walled about by a Rampire of Earth, which in 991 was thrown down by the Danes, who then haraſſed thoſe parts moſt grievouſly; and ſome Years after, they returned with ſuch fury, that they left ſcarce any thing of Ipſwich, but the Ruins of its Buildings. But in the Normans Time, it began to recover it ſelf, ſo that it is now one of the beſt and moſt thriving Towns in England, containing twelve Pariſh-Churches. From Stoke Church in the South, to St. Margaret's Church in the North, it reaches a good Mile; and from St. Helens in the Eaſt, to St. Matthew's Church in the Weſt, ſomething more; with fair and well Peopled Streets. Beſides the Churches, here are ſome Publick Buildings worth our taking notice of; particularly the Place of Judicature, a Free-School, with the conveniency of a good Library, and an Hoſpital for the Relief of the Poor. For cleanlineſs, 'tis counted next to Briſtol. And as to the Trade thereof, 'tis chiefly in the Manufacture of Cloth, both Linen and Woollen. Here was a Caſtle built by the Normans, which Hugh Bigot, Earl of Norfolk, defended againſt King Stephen, but was forced to Surrender at laſt. It was ruined by Henry II. about the time that he Demoliſhed Wildon Caſtle. Here the 3000 Flemings, called in by the Nobility againſt him, landed. Cardinal Wolſley, who was born in this Town, begun a ſtately College, which is ſtill called by his Name. The late Duke of Grafton was Created Viſcount Ipſwich, Aug. 16. 1672.

IREBY, a Market-Town in the Weſt Parts of Cumberland, ſtands on the South-ſide of the River Elne, which runs from thence into the Iriſh Sea.

IRELAND, Lat. Hibernia, by the Natives called Erin, is a large Iſland, on the Weſt of Britain, from which it is parted by a violent and unruly Sea called St. George's Chanel, the narroweſt Paſſage between both is 30 Miles. The Length of Ireland is 300 Miles, the Breadth 120, its Situation is in the 8th and 10th Climates, its longeſt Day is 16 Hours and a half in the Southern, and 17 and a half in the Northern Parts. It is far from any Continent, expoſed on all ſides to the Sea; and on the Weſt, eſpecially to the Weſtern Ocean, the Air is groſs and moiſt, yet not counted unhealthful, unleſs near the Bogs, the Weſtern Winds frequently purifying it, and the Hills which croſs the Country at a convenient diſtance from Eaſt to Weſt, rendring it leſs ſubject to Fogs. The Soil is abundantly fruitful, but naturally fitter for Graſs and Paſturage than Tillage. In ſome places, as in the County of Ardmagh, it is ſo very Rank and Fertile, that the laying any Dung or Marl upon it, does abate its Fruitfulneſs, and proves bad Husbandry; where it is otherwiſe, the Country is either over-grown with Woods, which afford their own Conveniences, or runs in vaſt Bogs that yield the beſt Turff for Fuel that can be burnt, and ſweeter than any in Holland. But the wonder of this Country is, that it breeds no venomous Creatures, and that no ſuch will live here brought from any other places; nor does the Wood of its Foreſts breed either Worms or Spiders, for thus we find her ſpeaking of her ſelf in the Poet,

Illa ego ſum Graiis glacialis Hibernia dicta,
Cui Deus & melior rerum naſcentium Origo,
Jus commune dedit cum Creta Altrice Tonantis
Angues ne noſtris diffundant ſibila in Oris.

I am that Iſland, which in Times of Old
The Greeks did call Hibernia, Icy Cold;
Secur'd by God and Nature from this fear,
Which Gift was given to Crete, Jove's Mother dear,
That poiſonous Snakes ſhould never here be bred,
Or dare to hiſs, or hurtful Venom ſpread.

It was however much infeſted by Wolves, till ſuch time as the Government propoſed ſuch great Rewards to thoſe who ſhould deſtroy them, that they are now become very rare. Another Wonder reported of this Country is, That there is a Lake in the County of Ardmagh, into which, if one thruſt a piece of Wood, he ſhall find, after ſome time, that part of it which ſticks in the Mud, turned into Iron, and that which is in the Water, into Stone. 'Tis moreover obſerved in general, That the breed of this Country are of leſs Size than in England, except Men, Women, and Grey-hounds. Their principal Rivers are, the Shannon, the Black-water, the Boyne, and the Barrow, all well ſtocked with Fiſh, eſpecially Salmon. Their Lakes are, 1. Lough Erne, containing 30 Miles in length, and 15 in breadth, ſhaded with Woods, and abounding ſo much in Fiſh, that Fiſhermen complain of the plenty, becauſe they often break their Nets. This hath many Iſlands in it, one moſt remarkable for the ſtrange and horrid Noiſe heard therein, called therefore by the Vulgar St. Patrick's Purgatory. Almoſt as big as this, is, 2. The Lake of Corbes, which loſes it ſelf in the Sea, not far from Galloway, a Lake of 16 Miles in length, and 4 in breadth, ſaid to have in it 30 Iſlets, abounding with Pine-Trees. 3. Lough-Foyle, ſuppoſed to be the Legia of Ptolemy. 4. Lough-Neagh, out of which the River Banne, abundantly well ſtored with Salmon, hath its firſt Original; and beſides theſe, and many others of leſs Note, there are ſaid to be three Lakes in the Province of Meath, not far aſunder, but of ſo different a Temper, that the Fiſh which are proper to the one, will not live in the other, but either die, or by ſome ſecret conveyances find a way to their own Lake. This Country was anciently divided into five Provinces, each a Kingdom of it ſelf, but the Province of Meath being reckoned a Member or part of Leinſter, the whole is now thus divided into Provinces.	Counties in each Province.

Leinſter.	Eaſt-Meath, Weſt-Meath, Kilkenny, Caterlogh, King's-County, Queen's-County, Kildare, Wexford, and Dublin; in all which, are comprehended 34 Towns of Note.
Munſter.	Limerick, Kerry, Cork, Waterford, Deſmond, and Tipperary; comprehending 24 Towns of Note and Trading.
Ulſter.	Dunnigal or Tirconnel, Tir Oen, Fermanagh, Cavan, Colrain, Manaughan, Antrim, Down, Louth, and Ardmagh; comprehending 14 Towns of Note, for Commerce and Traffick.
Connaught.	Clare, Galloway, Majo, Slego, Letrim, Roſcomon, and Longford; in which are comprehended but eight Towns of any Conſequence for Commerce.

Amongſt which Provinces, the firſt two being of more Southern ſituation, are much better upon all Accounts, and Connaught the worſt which lies North Weſt. As no Country ſtands better for Foreign Trade, ſo none is better provided with ſafe and ſpacious Harbours, amongſt which Kingſale bears the preheminency, being a commodious and ready Port for our Engliſh Ships, and others, to Victual at, and refreſh themſelves when bound for, and returning from the Weſt-Indies, and other Parts of the World. The Iriſh Chronicles tell us, That Cæſarea, Noah's Niece, inhabited here before the Flood; that 300 Years after the Deluge, it was ſubdued by Bartholanus, a Scythian; that after this, Gaothel, with his Wife Scota, one of Pharaoh's Daughters, from whom this Iſland was called Scotia, came hither, but 'tis more probable that it was firſt Peopled by the Britains, both becauſe ancient Authors call it a Britiſh Iſle, and that the Habits and Diſpoſitions of the Inhabitants were not much unlike, as Tacitus obſerves, Solum reſtumque cultus & ingenia hominum haud multum à Britannia differunt; and for farther Evidence, it was obſerved at the Reduction of Wales to the Crown of England by King Edward I. that many of their Laws and Cuſtoms were the ſame with the Iriſh, which ſhews, that they did both Deſcend from the ſame Original. But as this Iſland was never Conquered by the Romans, becauſe they ſent Ambaſſadors and ſubmitted to Maximus the Roman General; ſo it continued a long time uncivilized, and more barbarous than other Parts of Europe, where thoſe great Conquerors introduced Civility and Learning. Its Inhabitants, as Solinus ſaith, drank the Blood of the ſlain, and beſmeared their Faces therewith; and were ſo given to War, that the Mother, at the Birth of a Man-Child, gave the Infant the firſt Meat upon the point of her Husband's Sword, and with heatheniſh Imprecations, wiſhed that it might die no otherwiſe than in War, or by the Sword. In the middle time, Giraldus Cambrenſis deſcribes them thus: The Iriſh are a ſtrong and bold People, patient of Cold and Hunger, Martial and Prodigal in War, careleſs of Life, greedy of Glory, courteous to Strangers, conſtant in Love, light of Belief, impatient of Injury, implacable in Enmity. In a word, if they be bad, you ſhall no where meet with worſe; if good, you ſhall hardly find better. The Iriſh now are much reformed in their Cuſtoms and Manners, eſpecially the better Sort, and thoſe that live in the Pale, as they call it. As to their Make, there is no Nation generally better ſhaped, or of finer Preſence; accounted good Horſe-men, and better Soldiers in Foreign than in their own Country, either becauſe better provided for Abroad, or that they want the Faſtneſſes they are acquainted with at home. Some of the Wilder ſort, in parts of the North and Connaught, retain fantaſtical Conceits; as, That 'tis Ominous to give their Neighbours Fire on May-day; That the eating of an odd Egg makes them be unlucky in Horſes; That laying up the Shells preſerves the Chickens from the Kite, &c. The poorer Women affect to Nurſe the Gentry's Children, and love them much more than their own. In hard Times, they live on Water-creſſes, Roots, Muſhrooms, Shamrogh, a ſort of Trefoil, Oat-meal, Milk, and ſuch other ſlender Diet. Their ancient Government was by Kings, who had many petty Kings under them, being much the ſame with the Heads of the Clans among the ancient Scots, and their mutual Feuds did not a little contribute to the bringing them all under a Foreign Yoke. The Commodities of this Iſland are, Cattle, Hides, Tallow, Butter, Cheeſe, Honey, Wax, Furs, Salt, Hemp, Linen-Cloth, Pipe-ſtaves and Wooll. Its Seas yield plenty of Cod-Fiſh, Herrings, Pilcherds, and other Fiſh. In the Time of Alexander the Great, the Scots paſſed hence, and took poſſeſſion of the Hebrides, or Weſtern Iſles; next, of the Weſtern part of Britain, on the North of Dumbarton Frith. After this, the Saxon Monarchs made themſelves Maſters of ſome Places in Ireland, but were ſoon driven out again. The next that undertook the Conqueſt was an Aggregate Body of Danes, Swedes and Norwegians, who at firſt did but ſcower along the Sea-Coaſt, until finding the Weakneſs and Diviſions of its petty Kings, they undertook the Conqueſt, and effected it, by the Valour and Conduct of their principal Commander Turgeſius, whom they elected for their

King. Turgeſius having played the Tyrant a while, was ſlain by a Stratagem of the King of Meath, and all his Attendants put to the Sword. After this, the petty Kings enjoyed their former Dominions, till 1172, that the King of Leinſter having forced the Wife of the King of Meath, was driven out of the Country. Whereupon, applying himſelf to Henry II. of England for Succour, he received ſome Forces, under the Command of Richard de Clare, ſurnamed Strong-Bow, Earl of Pembroke; by whoſe good Succeſs, and the King's Preſence, the petty Kings ſubmitted, promiſing to pay Tribute, and acknowledge him their Sovereign. This Agreement was confirmed by Pope Adrian. And Henry VIII. took the Title of King of Ireland in 1541, and was declared ſo by Parliament in 1542. Which was confirmed to Queen Mary in 1555, by Paul IV. But the Iriſh have often taken Occaſion to withdraw themſelves from Subjection: 1. Under Donald O-Neal, in the Reign of Edward I. 2. Under Thomas Fitz-Gerald, Son of the Earl of Kildare, Deputy of Ireland, in 1537. 3. Under O Neal, in 1563, and 65, who being killed in Scotland, whither he had fled, the Title of O-Neal was aboliſhed in Parliament. 4. Fitz-Gerald Earl of Deſmond was the next; who, in 1579, calling in the Spaniards, maintained a War againſt Queen Elizabeth, until he was ſlain in 1593. 5. In 1593, Tir-Oen, who had done great Service againſt the Earl of Deſmond, began a Rebellion, the moſt dangerous of all; for, being bred in the Queen's Service, he learned Military Diſcipline from the Engliſh. He fought and defeated the Queen's Forces at Blackwater in 1598. In 1599, he brought the Earl of Eſſex to condeſcend to a Treaty with him. In 1601, he brought the Spaniards over to his Aſſiſtance, who took and Garriſon'd Kingſale; which being re-taken by Sir Charles Blunt, afterwards Lord Mountjoy, and the Spaniards totally routed, Tir-Oen ſubmitted, and was brought over by the Lord Lieutenant to King James I. who having paſſed an Act of Oblivion, removed the Iriſh from the Woods, Bogs and Mountains, and ordered that they ſhould pay their Landlords certain Rents, inſtead of their former arbitrary Taxations; which encouraged them to repair to their Houſes, and manure their Land, to the great Increaſe both of the private and publick Revenue. Then the whole Kingdom was divided into Counties, and Judges Itinerant appointed to go in Circuits. So that the People, ſenſible of the Benefit and Security they enjoyed by the Engliſh Laws, began to ſend their Children to School to learn the Engliſh Tongue, and live peaceably until their General Inſurrection in 1641, when they took Arms, and maſſacred many Thouſands of Engliſh and Scotch Proteſtants. Which was revenged by Oliver Cromwel. King Charles II. upon his Reſtauration in 1660, ſhewed them ſome Favour, reſtored ſome of thoſe who had been Loyal to their Eſtates, and governed them all his Time with ſo much Clemency, that this Nation never was in a better State ſince they fell under the Engliſh, than at the Time of that Prince's Death. The Government of this Country, ſince the firſt Conqueſt of it by the Engliſh, has been moſt commonly by one Supream Officer, ſometimes called The Lord Lieutenant, moſt generally The Lord Deputy, than whom no Vice-Roy in Europe has greater Power, or comes nearer the Majeſty of a King in his Train and State. For his Aſſiſtance he has a Privy Council. Their Laws owe their Original and Being to the Engliſh Parliaments; for in the Reign of Henry VII. Sir Edward Poynings, then Lord Deputy, cauſed an Act to paſs in the Iriſh Parliament, whereby all Laws and Statutes made in England before that Time, were to ſtand in force as the Laws of Ireland. On which Foundation many Superſtructures of Law and Government have been raiſed, and enacted in their Parliaments, ſummoned by the Lord Lieutenant, at the King's appointment. In which, by another Statute made in the Time of the ſaid Poynings, the People are enabled to make Laws for their better Government, with this Proviſo, That they ſhould be firſt tranſmitted to the Court of England, to be conſidered of by the King, before they are Voted to in either of the Houſes of the Iriſh Parliaments: Which Laws, commonly called Poynings's Laws, are ſtill in force amongſt them. To conclude, The Capital City of this Kingdom is Dublin; of which in its proper place. Other Towns of Note in Leinſter are, Wexford, Kilkenny, Caterlough, Kildare. In Munſter, Limerick, Cork, Kingſale, and Waterford. In Ulſter, Drogheda, Dundalk, Antrim, Carrickfergus and London-Derry. In Connaught, Galloway, Athlone, Letrim, Roſcommon and Slego. Here are alſo four Archbiſhopricks, viz. of Ardmagh, Dublin, Tuam and Caſhel; beſides nineteen Biſhopricks. Dublin has an Univerſity. Vincentius ſaith, That the Goſpel was firſt preached in this Country by James the Apoſtle. The Scots affirm, That the Iſland owes its Converſion to a Chriſtian Woman, who inſtructed the Queen in the true Faith, ſhe the King, and he his Subjects. Proſper ſays, Palladius begun this Work; yet Ninius aſcribes it wholly to St. Patrick, the Son of Calphurnius, by a Siſter of St. Martin of Tours. His Diſciples profited ſo much in Chriſtianity, that in the following Century Ireland was called Sanctorum Inſula; and abounded ſo with Learned Men, that great Numbers were ſent into other Countries of Europe, who Founded many Monaſteries. The Iriſh Apoſtle was of ſuch reverend Eſteem in thoſe Times, that there was as great Diſpute for his Sepulchre, as was amongſt them of Greece for Homer's. They of Downe challenged his Grave to be with them, upon certain Verſes written on a Tomb; which ſays, Patrick, Bridget and Colume, were buried there. They of Ardmagh lay their Claim, becauſe St. Bernard ſaith, That St. Patrick in his Life-time ruled there, and after his Death reſted there. Glaſtenbury in England would have his Body Interred with them. And Scotch Authors ſay, That he was born at Glaſgow, and buried at Kirk-Patrick. Heylin, Speed, Cambden.

St. IRENÆUS Biſhop of Lyons, and the Diſciple of Polycarpus, by whom he was ſent into Gaul; and coming to Lyons, was Prieſt in that Church, under Photinus, the Biſhop of it, whom he ſucceeded, and diſputed at Rome with Valentinus, and his Diſciples, Florinus and Blaſtus, whom he afterwards confuted in Writing. He governed the Church of Lyons with great Zeal during its Perſecution by Idolatrous Princes. He celebrated two Councils; the one againſt Hereticks, and the other againſt the Quartodecimani; and therein confirmed the Decree formerly made for celebrating of Eaſter the Sunday after the 14th Day of the Moon of March. The Biſhops of Aſia were not of this Opinion, and Pope Victor, Eleutherius's Succeſſor, had therefore Excommunicated them. Whereat St. Irenæus being very much ſurpriz'd, wrote to him in the Name of the Prelates that had aſſiſted at his Council, in which he conjures him not to cut off ſo many holy Prelates from the Church-Communion. Severus in the mean time continuing to perſecute the Believers of Lyons, and their Biſhop, who was taken, and ſuffered Martyrdom with them in 201. His Works were publiſhed at Paris, by Eraſmus Franc. Feuardentius, 1575, and at Cologne, 1596. Mr. Dodwell, our Learned Country-man, hath writ ſix Diſſertations on St. Irenæus, which are very uſeful for the Underſtanding of this Father. To be more particular, Ireneus wrote five Books againſt Hereticks, which, tho' written in Greek, are now only extant in Latin. Euſebius in his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, likewiſe mentions two Epiſtles of his, one to Blaſtus about Schiſm, and another to Florinus de Monarchia; which latter Heretick, amongſt other Heterodoxes, maintain'd that God was the Author of Evil.

IRENÆUS of Tyre, a Chaldee Author, to whom Ebed-Jeſu attributes five Books of Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, chiefly treating of the Errors of Neſtorius.

IRENE Empreſs of Conſtantinople, Wife of Leo IV. and Mother of Conſtantine VII. who was but 10 Years of Age at his Father's Death; with whom ſhe Reigned 9 Years, and in 787 procured the Celebration of the IId Council of Nice, for the Eſtabliſhing of Images. Conſtantine afterwards being come to Age, would no longer endure his Mother to ſhare with him in the Government; but having reduced her to a private State, Ruled alone ſeven Years. The Empreſs being enraged at this Affront, having by Craft got her Son ſeized, put out his Eyes: An Action ſo barbarous, that the Heavens themſelves ſeemed amazed at it, (the Sun being obſcured thereupon, as Theophanes aſſures us, for ſeventeen Days together over that City.) She reigned 5 Years, 2 Months, and 16 Days, till the laſt of October 802, when Nicephorus having declared himſelf Emperor, baniſhed her to the Iſland Metylene, where ſhe died ſome Months after. Authors tell us, That Irene was a very politick Woman; and that fearing the growing Power of Charlemaigne, ſhe amuſed him with the hopes of a Marriage, by which Means the Empire of the Eaſt would have come into his hands; and his Ambaſſadors were at Conſtantinople, in order to their concluding of the ſaid Marriage, at the Time when ſhe was Depoſed by Nicephorus. Cedren. in Compend. Crantz. lib. 1. cap. 15. Metrop. Zonar. Tom. 3. Theophan. & Baron. in Annal. Genebrard in Chron.

IRIS the Daughter of Thaumas and Electra, and Siſter to the Harpyes. The Poets make her the Meſſenger of Juno, as Mercury was of Jupiter: By which it may be they would only imply, That the Rain-bow (which the Word Iris imports) was the Meſſenger of the Air; and the Daughter of Thaumas, that is, Wonder. Ovid lib. 2. Metam. Heſiod in Theogon.

IROQUOIS, a barbarous People of North-America, in Canada. They are Salvages, and Idolaters, and compoſed of ſeveral Nations; Enemies of the Hurons, and other Inhabitants of New-France. Theſe Salvages are a Warlike People; when once they have taken a diſguſt, they are never ſatisfy'd till they have their revenge; which ſometimes they'll wait for to three or four Generations. They underſtand the uſe of Fire-Arms, and are very cunning in Ambuſcades; and tho' they do not underſtand to draw up in Order, like the Europeans, yet when once enter'd and heated, their Courage is extraordinary, and on the account of their Fire-Locks, no American Nation can ſtand before them. This advantage makes them unſufferably haughty, calling themſelves Men, by way of diſtinction, as if the reſt of the Americans were but Brutes in compariſon with them. 'Tis obſervable, that all the Salvages in the Northern America are very cruel to their Enemies when they have them in their power, but the Inhumanity of the Iroquois, towards their Slaves and Conquer'd Enemies, ſeems to exceed the Cruelties of the Ten Perſecutions; when they have kill'd a Slave by the moſt exquiſite Tortures of burning, they eat him, and before his death they give their Children ſome of his blood to drink, to make them cruel and inhumane. They are divided into five Cantons; one of them call'd Agniez, borders upon New-York. Within 50 Years laſt paſt, they have extended their Territories, by the deſtruction of other Nations. They have generally Spies abroad, to bring them Intelligence, and manage their Affairs, in Politicks and Merchandize, cunningly enough. Hennepin's New Diſcovery of a vaſt Country in America, &c.

IRTHING, a Cumberland-River, riſes in the very Borders of Cumberland and Northumberland, and running South-Weſtward, parts theſe two Counties for ſome Miles, and at laſt falls into the Eden, having received the Cambeck into its Chanel.

IRUS, a Beggar of Ithaca, and one of Penelope's Suitors, whom Ulyſſes killed with his Fiſt at his Return. His Poverty became Proverbial, Iro pauperior.

ISAAC the Patriarch, Son of Abraham and Sarah, was born A. M. 2108. See the Hiſtory of his Life, from Geneſ. chap. 21. to 35.

ISAAC I. of that Name, of the Family of the Comneni, was a Man of Wit, and had gained a great Repute in the Wars. Being favoured by Michael Cerularius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, as well as by the Soldiers, he rebelled againſt Michael VI. called The Elder, and Stratioticus, Emperor of the Greeks, and placed himſelf on the Throne in 1057. He was a covetous and proud Prince. He baniſhed Michael the Patriarch. And being on a Time ſtruck with Lightning, as he was Hunting, with the Fright thereof he quitted the Imperial Purple, in favour of Conſtantine Ducas, in December 1059, to ſpend the reſt of his Days in the Monaſtery of the Studitæ. Cedrenus. Curopalates. Guldas.

ISAAC II. ſurnamed Angelus, was choſen in 1185, by the People, who were exaſperated at the Cruelties of Andronicus Comnenus, whom he cauſed to be put to a cruel Death, and thruſt out the Eyes of his two Sons, John and Emanuel. He waged War with the Myſians, but with ſmall ſucceſs; and ſuppreſſed ſome Tyrants that had raiſed up themſelves in the Empire. He reigned 9 Years, 7 Months, and ſome Days, viz. till April 10. 1195. at which Time he had his Eyes pull'd out by Order of his Brother Alexis, whom he had Ranſomed out of the Hands of the Turks, who cauſed him to be caſt into a deep Dungeon; whence he was delivered by the French and Venetians in 1203, and died towards the latter end of January, the Year following. Nicetas. Roger & Genebrardus.

ISAAC, ſurnamed Porphyrogeneta, of the Family of the Comneni. He lived about the XIIIth Century, and compoſed a Treatiſe of the Paſſages forgot by Homer, which Janus Rutgerſius hath publiſhed, with Notes. T. V. Variar. Lect. cap. 10.

ISAAC Hazan, a Rabbi ſo called, becauſe he was the Keeper of the Synagogue of Toledo. He lived in 1270, and took pains in compoſing the Aſtronomical Tables called Alphonſinæ, becauſe they were made at the Charge and Care of Alphonſus X. King of Leon and Caſtile. Genebrard mentions ſome more Rabbins of the ſame Name; and amongſt them, one Iſaac, ſurnamed Benimiram, an Arabian Phyſician, who lived at the Time of Averrhoes, and writ De Definitionibus & Elementis, De Victûs ratione, De Febribus, Urina, Diætis, &c. and was Phyſician to Solomon King of Arabia.

ISÆUS, an Aſſyrian Orator, (tho' others ſay he was born at Chalcis.) He lived in the CIXth Olympiad, and An. Rom. 410. and coming to Athens, he was the Diſciple of Lyſias, and became famous for his Worth and Eloquence. He had many noted Scholars; of whom Demoſthenes was the moſt renowned. He writ 64 Orations, whereof 10 only are remaining. Plutarch. Photius.

ISAI, or JESSE, the Son of Obed, and Father of David; who was born A. M. 2855, and died in 2974. The Scripture often makes mention of him. Torniel & Salian. Annal. Vet. Teſtam.

ISAIAH the Prophet, Son of Amos, of the Royal Family. He began to Propheſie in the Time of Uzziah King of Judah, A. M. 3270. and continued till the Reign of Manaſſeh, who cauſed him to be ſawed aſunder with a wooden Saw, about A. M. 3338.

ISAIAH, Patriarch of Conſtantinople in the XIVth Century. Alſo another of that Name, the Son of Adam, who was Shieldbearer to Sapor King of Perſia, He was a Witneſs of the Martyrdom of St. Jonas and Barachiſius, who were put to death by that King, and whereof he wrote the Relation; which is ſet down by Metaphraſtes and Surius. Tom. 2. ad 29 Mart.

ISAURA (Clementia,) a young Gentlewoman of Tholouſe, Famous for her Learning and Vertue; who lived, as 'tis ſaid, about the Year 1323, and inſtituted the Floral Games, celebrated every Year at Tholouſe, in May. On which Occaſion, an Oration is made in praiſe of her, and her Marble Statue, which ſtands in the Town-Houſe, crowned with Flowers. And yet ſome aver, that there was never any ſuch Perſon. Papir. Maſſon in Elog. Clement. Iſaur. Catel. Memoires de Languedoc.

ISAURIA, a Province of Aſia Minor, which at preſent makes a part of Caramania. The Capital City of this Country is Iſauria, called Iſauriopolis in the Collection of Councils. Ammian gives it the Name of Claudiopolis: And Thevet aſſures us, that at preſent it is called Saura. The Iſaurians are reported to have been a barbarous People, delighting in War and Rebellion. And accordingly, Evagrius, Nicephorus, and other Authors, make mention of the frequent Incurſions they made upon the Dominions of the Empire in the IVth and Vth Centuries; which they alſo continued ſince.

ISBORG, a ſtrong City in the Confines of Ruſſia and Lithuania, which in 1569 was taken by the Poles from the Ruſſians, but ſoon after recovered by the latter, for want of Men and Ammunition to defend it.

ISCARIOT, a Village of Palæſtine, in the Tribe of Ephraim, the Birth-place of Judas that betrayed our Saviour.

ISCHIA, an Iſland of Italy, upon the Coaſt of Naples, with a City of the ſame Name, being an Epiſcopal See, which has a Fortreſs belonging to it; whither Ferdinand retired, when Charles VIII. conquered the Kingdom of Naples, in 1493. The Ancients called the Name of this City Ænaria.

ISDEGERDES, or ISDIGERDES, King of Perſia, was the Son of Varanes IV. and ſucceeded him in 400. His Vertue and Honeſty were ſo well known, that, notwithſtanding his being a Pagan, the Emperor Arcadius, at his Death, An. 408. left him Guardian to his Son Theodoſius the Younger: And foraſmuch as he could not leave his Kingdom, and himſelf take care of the Education of the young Prince, he ſent a Man fit for that Employ, named Antiochus. This Iſdegerdes concluded a League of 100 Years with the Romans; which was a great Means of the ſpreading of the Chriſtian Faith in Perſia. For Maruthas Biſhop of Meſopotamia being ſent in Embaſſy to the King, he cured him of the Megrim, and freed his Son from a Diabolical Poſſeſſion. Some of the Perſian Magi being irritated at the great Favour the King bore to the Chriſtians, hid a Perſon in the Temple, where the King went to worſhip the Sun, who cried, during the Sacrifice, That he ought to be depoſed for his favouring of the Chriſtians. Iſdegerdes was troubled at this; but Maruthas diſcovering the Cheat, the King cauſed ſeveral of the Magi to be put to death. Yet afterwards he began to perſecute the Chriſtians, becauſe they had demoliſhed a Temple in which the Perſians worſhipped the Fire. He died in 421. Socrat. lib. 7. Sozom. lib. 8. Nicephorus, lib. 14.

ISDEGERDES II. King of Perſia, Son to Varanes V. whom he ſucceeded in the Year 441. He Reign'd 17 Years; all which time, there was a good underſtanding betwixt him and the Roman Emperors.

ISENBRANDUS, Son of Varinus Count of Altorf in Germany, deſcended from the Family of Alſatia. By his Wife Ermentrudis, Siſter to Hildegardis the Empreſs, he had 12 Sons at a Birth; which their Mother having ordered to be deſtroyed as Whelps, being afraid of her good Name becauſe of ſuch a monſtrous Birth, it was diſcovered by a wonderful Providence by the Father, who preſerved them. The eldeſt of them was called Welfo; whence came the Name of Welfs, or Guelphs, which ſignifies Whelps. He was Father-in-Law to Lewis the Pious; and from him deſcended the Kings of Burgundy. Spener. Sylloge.

ISENDYCK, Lat. Iſendicum, a ſmall, but very ſtrong Town in Flanders, upon the Coaſt, over-againſt Beerfleet. It was taken from the Spaniards, by the Dutch, who had poſſeſſed it for many Years. It is 3 Leagues E. from Sluys, and as many W. from Saſvangant, and but 4 S. from Middleburg. Baudr.

ISENGHIEN, Lat. Iſegenium, a Caſtle in Flanders, two Leagues N. of Courtray. It gives the Title of Earl to the Family of Vilnea, and is in the Poſſeſſion of the French.

l'ISERE, Lat. Iſara, a River of France, which has its Riſe in the Mountains of Tarantaiſe, in the Pariſh of Teignes, and runs at the Foot of the Rock of Montmeillan in Savoy, and afterwards paſſeth to Grenoble in Dauphine, where it receives the Drac at Saint Marcellin and Romans, and falls into the Rhone about a League above Valence. 'Tis ſuppoſed, that Iſere is the Tiſera of Ptolemy, and the Scoras of Polybius. The Gauls called it Iſar, from the Greek word Ἶς, which ſignifies Strength, or Force, becauſe of the Rapidity of its Courſe. Upon which Account Pliny alſo calls it a Torrent. Papir. Maſſon Deſcript. Flum. Galliæ. Vibius Sequeſter de Flumin. Lucan. Lib. 1. Plin. lib. 3. cap. 4.

ISERE, Lat. Iſara, a River of Germany, in Bavaria, which takes its Riſe upon the Frontiers of Tirol, near to Inſpruck; from whence it takes its Courſe to Munick, Freiſingen, Landſhut, &c. and after having received the Amber, and ſome other Rivers, runs into the Danube.

ISERNIA, a City of Italy, and a Biſhop's See, ſituate in the County of Moliſſa, belonging to the Kingdom of Naples; 27 Miles N. of Capua, and 42 of Naples. Long. 36. 17. Lat. 41. 38. Leand. Albert. Magin. Deſcript. Italiæ.

ISHMAEL, the Son of Abraham, and Hagar, Sarah's Handmaid, was born An. Mun. 2124. when his Father was 86 Years of Age. He married an Egyptian Woman, of whom he had 12 Sons, whence the Arabians, Hagarenes, Iſhmaelites and Saracens, are Deſcended.

ISHMAEL, the Son of Nethaniah, that treacherouſly murdered Gedaliah, whom Nebuchadnezar had made Governor over the Land of Judah, about An. Mun. 3447. Jerem. chap. 40, 41, &c. Joſeph. lib. 16. Ant. Jud. cap. 11. Torniel. A. M. 3447.

ISHMAEL I. of that Name, firſt Sophi of Perſia, was the Son of a petty Lord called Seich-Aidar, and of the Daughter of Uſuncaſſan. He was the Founder of the Kingdom of Perſia, in 1499, which he brought about by a Pretence of Religion, for he put a new Explication on the Alcoran, and boaſted himſelf to be deſcended from Hali, Mahomet's Son-in-Law, and made all thoſe paſs for Hereticks, that did not allow his Explication and Opinion about the Alcoran. He died in 1522, after having obtained many Victories over his Enemies, and thereby firmly eſtabliſhed his Empire. He often ſollicited the Chriſtian Princes to come and join their Arms with his againſt the Turks. He left four Sons behind him. Iſhmael, and his Succeſſors, took the Name of Sophi, which, in the Perſian Language, ſignifies Wooll, becauſe they wore woollen Turbans. Bizard Hiſt. Perſ. lib. 10. Leunclavius Ant. Turc. lib. 16. & in Pand. Marmol.

ISHMAEL II. or Schach Iſhmael, Sophi of Perſia, was the Succeſſor of Tamas, in 1576. He came from a Priſon to the Throne, and endeavoured to aſſure it to himſelf by the Death of eight of his Brethren, whom he cauſed to be put to Death. He Reigned only two Years, being poiſoned by one of his Siſters called Peria, becauſe he ſeem'd too much inclined to the Turkiſh Religion, which the Perſians account Hereſie.

ISIDAS, a Lacedæmonian, with a Hundred of his Companions, whom he Ordered to anoint themſelves with Oyl, and put on Garlands of Olive, did in this manner approach Gythium, where the Thebans had a Garriſon; who, not ſuſpecting People in this Habit, were by them ſurprized and cut off, the Lacedæmonians, having brought Swords with them under their Garments. Polyæn.

ISIDORE Cardinal, was a Native of Theſſalonica, or as others, ſay of Conſtantinople. He was a Monk of the Order of St. Baſil, and afterwards Biſhop of Ruſſia; and aſſiſting at the Council of Florence in 1439. he was made Cardinal by Pope Eugenius IV. Some Time after, returning to his own Country, with Deſign to introduce the Latin-Service there, the People roſe up againſt him, and caſt him into Priſon, and being ſet at liberty, he returned to Rome, whence Pope Nicholas V. ſent him to Conſtantinople, where he was ſtill, when that City was Taken by the Turks, An. Ch. 1453, and writ a Letter upon this Occaſion, which we have ſtill; at which time, diſguiſing himſelf in the Habit of a Slave, he made a ſhift to eſcape, and after ſeveral Adventures, came to Rome, where he was called Patriarch of Conſtantinople, in which City he died, in 1464. See the Commentaries of Pope Pius II. publiſhed under the Name of Gobelin, in the great Chronicle of Flanders, &c.

St. ISIDORUS, called Damiatenſis, or Peluſiota, becauſe he lived in a Solitude near to that City. He was a Prieſt, and the moſt Learned and Famous of all Chryſoſtom's Diſciples. He made profeſſion of the Monaſtick life from his Youth. Suidas ſaith, he writ 3000 Letters, and Nicephorus tells us, that he had writ many Works, beſides ten Chiliads of Epiſtles; thoſe which we have ſtill of his in five Books, are ſhort indeed, but very excellent, in which he explains ſeveral Paſſages of Holy Writ, and anſwers ſome Theological Queſtions. All his Works were printed in Folio at Paris, in 1638. He lived at the time of the General Council of Epheſus, held in 431, as appears by his Letters to St. Cyril of Alexandria; and died, Feb. 4. about the Year 440.

ISIDORUS, ſurnamed Mercator, or, as others ſay, Peccator, lived, as is ſuppoſed, towards the end of the VIII. Century. This Iſidore, who publiſh'd a Collection of Decretal Epiſtles, of the Popes, beginning with Clemens Romanus, and ending with Deuſdedit, who ſat in the Chair, in the Year 614, ſeems to have flouriſh'd about the Year 830. His Decretal Epiſtles amount to fourſcore, all forg'd, and moſt of 'em by himſelf. Cardinal Bona de Reb. Liturg. lib. 1. c. 3. would excuſe them under the notion of Pia Fraudes, but Blondel, in his Pſeudo-Iſidorus, proves 'em no better than rank and ſhameleſs Impoſture; from the Indiſputable Topicks of Chronology, Criticiſm and Antiquity. Baluſeius and Du Pin, not to mention any other Roman Catholicks, are of the ſame mind: 'Tis thought the true Author of this Spurious Collection, was Riculfus Arch Biſhop of Mentz, who died in the Year 814, and that they were afterwards Revis'd, Enlarg'd, and thrown into the preſent Form, by Benedictus Levita, who liv'd to the Year 850, and the Name of Iſidore Mercator was given to the Author, to make the Practice, paſs more plauſibly. Baluſius Præfat. ad Ant. Auguſtin. de Emendatione Gratiani. Du Pin Biblioth. Cave Hiſt. Liter .p. 1. De Marca lib. 3. Concord. Sacerd. & Imper.

ISIGONUS of Nicæa, mentioned by Aulus Gellius. He was the Author of ſeveral Treatiſes concerning Fables, Miracles, and things incredible. Aul. Gell. lib. 9. c. 14. Plin. lib. 7. Hiſt. Nat. cap. 2. St. Cyril alſo mentions an Author of the ſame Name, lib. 3. adverſ. Julianum.

ISIS, an Egyptian Goddeſs, whoſe Sacrifices and Worſhip were altogether infamous, upon which account it was, that the Prieſts were forbid to ſpeak any thing concerning them, and that the Senate of Rome, did often prohibit the practice of them in their City. Some ſuppoſe Iſis to be the ſame with Io of the Greeks, and Cybele of the Romans, viz. The Earth or Nature, which may be concluded from the likeneſs of the Figures attributed to both thoſe Deities. Cybele was repreſented with a Tower on her Head, accompanied by Lions, with a Cymbal in her hand, and was called Mater Magna, or the Great Univerſal Mother; Iſis was ſet forth much in the ſame manner, with a Siſtrum in her hand, which was a Muſical Inſtrument, not unlike a Cymbal, and was often called Terra, or Nature, wherefore alſo ſhe was repreſented as having many Breaſts. And Apuleius tells us, that this Deity was Worſhiped by the whole World, tho' under divers Names. Hiſtorians ſay, that Iſis was a Queen of Egypt, who Reigned there with her Husband Oſiris, about An. Mun. 2500, and before Jeſus Chriſt, 1553, That ſhe was the firſt who contrived the building of a Ship, with which ſhe ſailed into Remote and Barbarous Countries, ſuch as Germany and the Gauls were then counted, where ſhe taught the People religious Worſhip, and the Art of Tilling the Ground, by which means ſhe acquired ſo much Eſteem amongſt them, as to be accounted the Goddeſs of the Earth. Julian the Apoſtate cauſed Medals to be ſtamped in honour of this Deity, wherein ſhe is repreſented with a Ship in her hand; and Apuleius witneſſeth, that ſhe was looked upon as the Goddeſs of the Sea, as having firſt found out the Art of Navigation, or at leaſt, the uſe of Sails, without which that Art was very imperfect. Some time ago, there was found at Paris, in digging the Foundation of a Houſe, about two Fathom deep, a Woman's Head of Braſs ſomewhat greater than the Life, with a Tower on the top of it, which ſome learned Men judged to be the Head of the Goddeſs, which was the Protectrix of the City of Paris in the time of Paganiſm, and that this Figure was the repreſentation of Iſis, as well becauſe of the Tower on her head, as becauſe this Goddeſs was of old Worſhipped in that City, ſome being of Opinion, That the Name of Paris was Originally Greek, from παρὰ Ἶσις, Para Iſis, becauſe it was built near to the famous Temple of the Goddeſs Iſis; and that this was the Reaſon, why the Pariſians had taken a Ship for the Arms of their City. Indeed the common Tradition is, That there was of Old, a Temple of Iſis ſtanding in the Territory of the Abbey of St. Germain, but whether in the ſame place, where the Church of the Abbey ſtands at preſent, or in the Village of Iſſy, in Latin Iſiacum, or in ſome other part thereabouts, is hard to determine, tho' certain it is, that the ſaid Temple continued till the Eſtabliſhment of Chriſtianity; and after that it was demoliſhed, the Idol of Iſis, as a piece of Antiquity, was kept in a corner of the Church of St. Germain in the Fields, until 1514, when Cardinal Briſſonnet, Abbot of that Monaſtery, cauſed it to be beaten to pieces, being informed that a Woman out of ſimplicity, had offered Wax-candles to it. This famous Temple of Iſis, was ſerved, as is conjectured, by a College of Prieſts, who had their abode at Iſſy, in a Caſtle, the Ruins whereof were to be ſeen in the beginning of this Century, who for their ſubſiſtance had allowed them, the whole Lordſhip of Iſſy, and the neighbouring places as far as Paris, until that Clovis or Clodonæus pulled down the ſaid Temple, and beſtowed a part of the ſaid Revenue on the Abbey of St. Genevieve, and his Son Childebert aſſigned the reſt to the Abbey of St. Germain, which he cauſed to be built. Spon. Curious Enquiries into Antiquity.

ISIS, a River which riſes upon the Borders of Gloceſter and Wiltſhire, from whence it runs betwixt Oxford and Berkſhires, as far as Dorceſter, where the Tame falling into it, they take the Name of Thames. In Wiltſhire, it waters Cricklade, in Gloceſterſhire, Lechlade; in Barkſhire, Ingleſham; in Oxfordſhire, Oxford and Abington.

ISITES, the Name of a Sect amongſt the Turks, taking its Name from one Iſa-Merdad, who maintained that the Alcoran was Created and not Eternal, as the other Turks ſuppoſe, They ſay, That the Copies indeed of the Alcoran are not Eternal, but that the Original of it in Heaven, which God himſelf hath writ, is ſo. Ricaut.

ISLAND, an Iſland of the North or Frozen Sea, which ſome ſuppoſe to be the ſame which the Ancients called Thule. It was firſt diſcovered by Captain Nadocus, who called it Sneeland, that is to ſay, Snowland, and called Iſland by Flocco, a Norway Pirate. At its firſt Diſcovery, it was altogether deſart, but afterwards Peopled by the Norwegians. The two chief Cities of the Iſland are, Hola and Schalholt, which are Biſhop's Sees, and beſides them, there are not above ſix or ſeven Towns more throughout the whole Iſland. The Inhabitants commonly dwell in Caves of the Mountains. The Caſtle of Beſtode is the Reſidence of the Governor for the King of Denmark. The Inhabitants, before they were converted to the Chriſtian Faith, worſhipped Jupiter, by the Name of Thor, and Mercury, by that of Odin. Chriſtianity was Eſtabliſhed here, about the Year 1000, and Chriſtiern III. introduced the Reformation. This Iſle is about 200 Leagues long, and 100 broad. Its longeſt day in the Summer Solſtice, is 24 Hours, without any Night, or as little as nothing; and on the contrary, when the Sun enters Capricorn, there is but a Moment of Day. The Air is extream cold, and the Ground generally Mountainous and barren; yet in ſome Parts, where the Ground is level, there are Paſtures and Meadows ſo rich, that the Beaſts that are put into them muſt be fed by meaſure, becauſe otherwiſe they would burſt themſelves with feeding. The Oxen of this Iſle have no Horns, and there are ſcarcely any Trees to be found in it, ſave Juniper-buſhes. It hath three very high Mountains covered with Snow at the top, which yet, at times, vomit fire; the higheſt of theſe is Hecla, and the two other are called The Croſs and Helga. In that of Hecla, there are rich Mines of Brimſtone, wherewith the Merchants drive a great Trade. Sometimes this Mountain makes a dreadful thundering Noiſe, and throws out Flames and Stones at a great diſtance round about, which covers the adjacent Ground, and thoſe who are too ventureſome in approaching this Mountain, are often ſwallowed up by the Gulphs of Brimſtone, which are ſo covered with Aſhes, that one cannot perceive them. The common People take this Mountain to be the Entrance to Hell, and the Priſon of Damned Souls; and that which encreaſeth this Belief, is the frequent Apparitions of the Ghoſts of the Deceaſed about this place, which is teſtified by Olaus Magnus, Munſter, and other Hiſtorians. The Inhabitants of this Iſland, were formerly accounted not inferiour in Wit and good Underſtanding to any of the Northern Parts, whereof we have a Teſtimony in the Hiſtory of their Country, which they have writ in their own Language in Verſe. Hornius ſays, That this Iſland was firſt Peopled by Harold the Fair, in 874, from Norway, and that in 982, Ericus Ruffus, a great Man, peopled Greenland by a Colony from hence; and Grotius ſuppoſes, that the Kingdom of Mexico, had alſo its firſt Inhabitants from this place. The firſt planting of Chriſtianity occaſioned twenty Years Civil Wars; it was Independent, until 1260, that it ſubmitted to the Norwegians. An ancient Poem, ſuppoſed to be writ about 1449, ſtiled The Engliſh Policy mentions, that we then drove a conſiderable Fiſhing-trade there, which now is almoſt utterly loſt. Crantzius ſays, that they uſe Mountains inſtead of Towns, delight extreamly in Fountains, and dwell, for the moſt part, in Dens and Caves in Winter-time; and that for want of Wood, they build their Tents in Summer of the Bones of Fiſh, which they alſo grind, and make Bread of. They have no Cattle but Horſes and Cows; they have excellent little Dogs, not unlike thoſe of Malta, Falcons and white Bears. Olaus adds, That they have Spirits, who ſerve the People in their ordinary Affairs. There is alſo a Fountain with ſmoaking Water, whoſe Exhalations turn every thing into Stone, without altering the exterior Form. There is alſo another Fountain, whoſe Water kills all that drink of it. It hath ſeveral other Wonders of Nature, which may be ſeen in Crantzius, Saxo-Grammaticus, &c. Barthol. Ant. Dan.

ISLE, or ISLAND, a ſpace of Earth ſurrounded with Water, to which is oppoſed the Continent. It is queſtioned by ſome, whether there were any Iſles immediately after the Creation; as ſuppoſing that they were Parcels of Earth which by the Violence of the Seas, or Earthquakes, or both, were forced from the Continent; though it ſeems moſt probable, that the greateſt Iſles and thoſe at the fartheſt diſtance from the Continent, could not have this Original, but were created in the State we now find them. As for leſſer Iſles, There is no queſtion but that ſome of them, by extraordinary Tempeſts, may come to be drowned, and ſo diſappear; and others appear that were never ſeen before: Of which, Pliny, in his Natural Hiſtory, gives us ſeveral Examples. Kircher aſſures us, That in 1538. there was a new Iſland appeared near the Azores, which was five Miles long. As to what Plato tells us concerning the Iſle Atlantis, and which ſome have placed between the Azores and Canaries, it is a Matter yet undecided. The greateſt of all the known Iſles of the World is Borneo, one of the Iſles of Sonde, in Aſia. As to the Floating Iſles, ſo called becauſe they are driven up and down by the Wind, there is no queſtion but that there are ſuch; as, particularly, in the Lake of Loumond in Scotland. And Kircher, an Eye-Witneſs, gives us an Account of a Lake near Rome, which contains no leſs than Sixteen of theſe Floating Iſles. Mund. Subterran. lib. 5. ſect. 4. And it is as ſure that there is a Lake near to St. Omer in Flanders, that has the like. And in a Village called Undres, in Gaſcoigne, being the firſt Stage from Bayonne to Bourdeaux, there is a Lake called Ors, wherein there is an Iſle containing very good Paſture and Meadows, which often ſhifts its Place. Furner. lib. 6. As to the Fabulous, or to ſpeak more favourably, the doubtful, inviſible Iſles; amongſt this number, is reckon'd the Iſle of St. Brandon, a Scotch Saint, which the Spaniards call La Incantada, and La Non Trovada, and is placed by the Portugueſe, about an 100 Miles from the Canaries Weſtward, who affirm, That many Ships have been ſent from the Canaries to diſcover it, but without ſucceſs; Of the ſame ſort, was Ptolemy's inacceſſible Iſle, which was thought to be always ſurrounded with a thick Cloud, which kept it from the ſight of Mariners; ſo likewiſe the Iſland called Friſland, mentioned only by Nicholas Zen, a Venetian, who was Shipwracked upon it, An. Ch. 1380, and could never ſince be diſcovered. To which may be added, the Elyzian, or Iſles of the Bleſſed, which Authors have placed between Great Britain, and the Orcades; as alſo the Inviſible O Brazil, upon the Coaſt of Ireland. See CAMBDEN.

ISLE of Bourbon, before called Maſcaregna. The former Name was given it by the French. It lies towards the Eaſt of Madagaſcar in the Æthiopian Sea, its Length being about Twenty five Leagues, and its Breadth about fourteen. It hath many high Mountains, and amongſt the reſt, there is one in the midſt of it which vomits Flames, and the fiery Torrents that at times proceed from it, have burnt up all the Eaſtern part of the Iſle, which they call the Burnt-land. There are whole Foreſts of Ebony, Benzoin, and Palm-trees. They reap Turky-Corn four times a Year, and the Rice that grows here is very excellent. It abounds with Lakes and ſmall Rivers, amongſt which, ſome are Medicinal, and the Air is ſo pure, that the Sick that are ſet a-ſhoar on the Iſland, find themſelves ſoon cured, or, at leaſt, much eaſed. The Cattle and Fowl multiply abundantly, and the Fiſh is both plentiful and good. It abounds alſo with great Tortoiſes, whoſe Fleſh is very delicate. The French poſſeſs it at preſent. The Coaſt is very ſubject to Hurricanes.

ISLE of Fire, one of the Iſles of Cape-verd, upon the Coaſt of Africa, ſo called from the Flames which one of its Mountains caſt forth. This Iſland is extreamly troubled with Hurricanes. John Struys his Travels.

ISLE of France, a Province and Lieutenancy of France. The Iſle of France hath different Acceptations amongſt Authors, 1. It is taken for the Country about St. Denys. 2. For that ſpace of ground which is encloſed between the Rivers Seine, Marne, Oyſe, and Aixne. 3. For a Government which extends it ſelf into the neighbouring Provinces, and comprehends divers Territories, as Paris, La Brie Françoiſe, l' Hurepois, Le Gatinois, Le Mantoan, Le Vexin Francois, Le Beauvoiſis, Le Valois, Le Soiſſonnois, Laonnois, &c. Thus taken, it is 35 Leagues from Eaſt to Weſt, and about the ſame from North to South. It hath Champagne and La Brie on the Eaſt, Normandy on the Weſt, Le Gatinois and La Beauce on the South, and Picardy on the North. Paris is the Capital City of this, as well as of the whole Kingdom; the others are, St. Denys, Montmorency, and the reſt mentioned under the leſſer Territories, of which this Province is compoſed. It is a Country abounding with all things neceſſary, many fair Houſes, and divers Rivers.

ISLES of Thieves, called Iſlas de los Ladrones by the Portugueſe, who were the firſt Diſcoverers of them. They lie in the Archipelago of St. Lazarus, between the Eaſtern Ocean, and the Mare Pacificum, about the utmoſt Eaſtern bound of our Hemiſphere. They are many in number, but Fifteen of them are more conſiderable than the reſt. They were diſcovered in 1520, by the famous Magellan, and ſome ſay, he was killed there, as going to the Conqueſt of the Moluccas. The Air of theſe Iſles is pretty temperate, but is ſometimes diſturbed with violent Guſts of Wind; moſt of them are barren, but thoſe that are otherwiſe, very well Peopled. The Inhabitants are tall, ſtrong, and of a Tawny colour; both Men and Women go naked, excepting ſome few that wear a kind of Aprons about their Waſtes, made of the Skins of Beaſts, or of Flags woven together. They are generally great Thieves, according to Magellan's report of them, who ſaith, they would come ſwimming by Night to his Ship, and ſteal the Nails out of the ſides of it, not being in a condition to take any thing of greater value. Their common Employment is Hunting and Fiſhing, and their chief Trade conſiſts in Mats, which they make very curiouſly, and with their Canoes, carry them to the Tartars and exchange them for Iron, which they want, their Iſlands being altogether deſtitute of Metals. The Arms they make uſe of, are Slings and Javelins, whoſe Points they harden in the fire. They Worſhip Idols, and particularly the Devil, to whom they Sacrifice thoſe they take in War. They have neither Kings nor Lords, and every one of them does what he pleaſes, which is the cauſe of frequent Quarrels and cruel Wars amongſt them.

ISLE (Maurice) an Iſland that lies Eaſt of Madagaſcar in the Æthiopian-Sea. The Portugueſe, who firſt diſcovered it, called it Ilba de Cerno, or Swan-Iſle. The Hollanders, whoſe Fleet arrived there, in 1598, in their firſt Voyage to the Eaſt-Indies, gave it the Name it now has, in honour of Maurice of Naſſaw, Prince of Orange. In hath a very good Haven called Warwick, which name, ſome of our Country-men formerly gave it. The Iſland abounds with Palm-trees, Cocao trees, and Ebony-trees, the Wood whereof is blacker and more ſmooth, than any other of the Eaſt. It abounds with ſeveral Sorts of Birds good for food, and more eſpecially with Pigeons and Parroquets, and the Sea and Rivers furniſh choice Fiſh in abundance. There are Tortoiſes ſo great and ſtrong, as to be able to carry three or four Men on their Backs, and one of their Shells has room enough to contain eight or ten Men with eaſe. The Water of the Iſland is admirable good, and therefore Ships ordinarily make it their watering place. This Iſle was not inhabited, till the Hollanders in 1640, built a Fort in it. Mandeſlo.

ISLE-Maurice, a little Iſland ſituate towards the Weſt of the Streights of Waygats, near to the Coaſt of Muſcovy. The Hollanders diſcovered it, in 1594, as they were in ſearch of the North Paſſage to China. The Coaſt is ſurrounded with Rocks, and covered with Sand, but the inner parts of it conſiſts of clayie Ground, and is very full of Lakes, Pools, and Mariſhes, which make the Earth very ſoft and moiſt. The Iſland is ſeparated into two Parts, which are joined by a very narrow neck of Rocks. The Lakes and Pools are full of Swans and Wild Ducks. Here are alſo Hawks and Falcons in great abundance. Blaeu.

ISLES of Pearls, are Iſles lying in the South-Sea of America, twelve Leagues from Panama, ſo called from the vaſt quantities of Pearl, that formerly were got here in the neighbouring Sea. The two chiefeſt of them are called Del Rio and Tararequi, beſides which there are twenty leſſer. They did abound with great variety of wild Beaſts, more particularly Red-Deer, Hares, and Conies, and the Ground was fruitful in Mayz or Indian-Corn; and great ſtore of Odoriferous Trees grew up and down in them. The Pearls which the Sea furniſht, were admirable for their bigneſs, clearneſs, and figure which was perfectly round, oval, or pearlwiſe; but the extream covetouſneſs of the Spaniards, hath not left any Pearls in the Sea, nor Fowl on the Land; they have beſides deſtroyed all the Inhabitants, and thoſe that dwell there, are fain to make uſe of Negro's, or Slaves of Nicaragua, to till the ground and feed their Cattle. De Laet. Hiſt. of the New World.

ISLES-Princes, or Popes Iſles, the Turks call them Papa Adaſi, and the Greeks Papadoniſia, that is, The Iſles of Popes or Prieſts. They lie on the Coaſt of Natolia, at the farther end of the Sea of Marmora, in the Streights of Conſtantinople, about four Leagues from that City. They are inhabited by Chriſtian Greeks, and the Europeans at Conſtantinople paſs over thither to recreate themſelves. The Caloyers or Greek Monks that live here, are of the Order of St. Baſil, and obſerve a continual Abſtinence from Fleſh, and four Lents in the Year; but do not hinder Travellers from eating Fleſh, if they bring any along with them, and preſent them with very good Fiſh, which they catch in abundance about theſe Iſles. Grelot's Journey to Conſtantinople.

ISLE of Sacrifice, the Name of an Iſland of Mexico, near the Coaſt of Tlaſcala, not far from the City of St. Juan d'Alva, which was ſo called by Captain Grialva, becauſe at his deſcent on the Iſland, he found an Altar, and ſeveral dead Bodies of Men that had been Sacrificed to the Devil, having their Breaſts ript open, and their Arms and Legs cut off. The Spaniards, for ſome time, unloaded their Merchandice here; but this horrid and inhumane Superſtition of the Inhabitants, and the Apparition of ſome Spectres to them, forced them to leave the Iſland. De Laet. Hiſt. of the New World.

ISLEBEN, Lat. Iſlebia, a City of Upper Saxony in Germany, in the Earldom of Mansfeldt, which the Germans call Eiſleben, is a Place of good Trade, hath ſeveral Quarries of a ſort of black Stone, and Metals, and is ſituated in a very fertile Country. It is famous for having been the Birth-place of Martin Luther. Bertius, lib. 3. Comment. German. Cluver. Thuan. Sleidan.

ISLINGTON, a Town of Middleſex, upon the Skirts of London. Noted of late for its Mineral Waters, much reſorted unto in the proper Seaſon by the Gentry and Citizens of its Neighbourhood.

ISNE, a ſmall Town in Schwaben in Germany, made Imperial by Charles IV. ſtands upon the River Argaw, four Leagues Weſt of Kempen, and as many N. E. from Landau, and eleven South of Ulm.

ISOCRATES, one of the moſt famous Orators of Greece, was born at Athens, An. Rom. 318. when Lyſimachus was Prætor of that City. He was the Son of Theodorus, who had got an Eſtate by making of Muſical Inſtruments, which he made good uſe of for the liberal Education of his Son. His Maſters were Prodicus, Gorgias, and ſome others, whom he ſoon ſurpaſſed in Eloquence and Learning. He was deſirous at firſt to declaim in Publick; but this not ſucceeding according to his Wiſh, he contented himſelf to inſtruct Scholars, and took great pains to make them perfect Orators; and had ſo great a love for his Country, that ſeeing it likely to be ruined by Philip of Macedonia, he ſtarved himſelf to death at the Age of 90 Years, Charondas being then Prætor, An. Rom. 416. and the CXth Olympiad. He left behind him a great Number of Orations, whereof we have but a few left. Plutarch in the Lives of the Ten Orators, cap. 4. *Dionyſ. in Vit. Iſocrat. ISOLA, a City of Iſtria, in Latin Alietum. Alſo a River of Tuſcany, called now Cramera. Alſo an Iſland in the Tyber, called by the Latins Libanus Almæ Veneris.

ISOLA d'Albenga, an Iſland in the Sea of Genoua, called Gallinaria.

ISOLA, a Town in Italy, with a Biſhops See. It ſtands in the further Calabria, in the Kingdom of Naples, and is call'd in Latin Æſulum or Æſula.

ISONZO, Lat. Iſontius, a River which hath its Source in the Carinthian Alps in Germany; and entring Friuli in Italy, waters ſeveral Cities, and falls into the Gulf of Trieſte, five Miles S. E. of Aquileia. It is memorable for the defeat of Odoacer King of Italy, ſlain here by Theodoric King of the Goths, An. 489. And for the Victory obtained by the Turks, under the Command of Azabeuk. General to Mahomet the Great, in 1177, over Jeronymo Novello Count of Verona, a famous Commander; who, together with his Son, moſt of his Officers, and 3000 Venetians, fell in the Battel: After which, the Turks burnt one hundred Villages. Baudr. &c.

ISOTTA, or ISOTA NOGAROLA, of Verona, a learned Gentlewoman, who paſs'd for a Prodigy of Learning and Vertue in the XVth Century. She underſtood the Languages, Philoſophy and Divinity; was well read in the Fathers, particularly in St. Auguſtine and Jerom, and could Harangue better than the beſt Orators of her Time. 564 of her Manuſcripts are to be ſeen in Thuanus's Library. She alſo made ſeveral Speeches before Pope Nicholas V. and Pius II. and eſpecially on the Subject of a Council held at Mantua, wherein ſhe exhorted the Popes and Chriſtian Princes to a War againſt the Turks. Cardinal Beſſarion having ſeen ſome of her Works, was ſo ſurprized therewith, that he took a Journey on purpoſe to Verona, to confer with her. Lewis Foſcaro, Ambaſſador of Venice, viſited her often; and upon Occaſion of a Diſpute they had together about this Point, viz. Who ſinned more, Adam or Eve? She writ a Dialogue, wherein ſhe took Eve's Part. Hermolaus Barbarus writ often to her, and the Learned of her Time frequently conſulted her. She died aged 38 Years, in 1466, having never been married. Genevieva, her Siſter, was alſo famous for her Learning, and ſo were ſeveral other young Gentlewomen of that Family. *Paul. ISPAHAM, or ISPAHAN, the Capital City of Perſia, in the Province of Terak. It is ſuppoſed to have been built on the Ruins of the ancient City of Hecatompolis. It contains in Circuit above eight German Miles, taking in its large Suburbs; ſo that it is a Days Journey to go round it. It is not a place of any conſiderable Strength. The River Zenderut divides it by its double Chanel; whereof, the one runs through the Royal Park, and from the other a Water-courſe is drawn, whence, by Subterraneous Paſſages, Water is conveyed into the Sophi's Garden. This River furniſheth all the City with Water, there being ſcarce a private Houſe which hath not its Fountain, notwithſtanding that the Wells they have ſupply them with Water little or nothing at all inferiour to that of the River. The Houſes are generally Square built, and have Terraſſes on the Tops of them, where the Perſians walk, and take their Reſt in the Heat of Summer: They are not above two or three Stories high. The Streets are narrow, eſpecially in the Heart of the City. The Meidan, or great Market place, is the faireſt that is in all Perſia; and there is none ſuch in Europe. It is a Long Square, ſurrounded with Houſes of the ſame Heighth and Symmetry, and all built of Bricks. The Shops that are under the Piazza, or Arched Walks, that go round the Place, are taken up by Bankers, Gold Smiths, Lapidaries, and other rich Merchants. It is planted round with Trees that are always green, whoſe Branches are kept lopped, ſo that one may ſee the Shops through the Trees, which affords a very pleaſing Proſpect. There is a Rivolet of pure Spring-Water, which runs along by the Trees, in a Chanel of Hewen Stone, whoſe Waters are gathered into two large Baſins, or Trunks, at both ends of the ſaid Rows of Trees, from whence they are carried away by Subterranean Conduits. Every Trade hath its peculiar Quarter, or Street, about the Meidan, which is very pleaſant to behold. At the end of one of the Galleries, or Arched Walks, of the Meidan, there are two Balconies, where the Muſick (which conſiſts of Kettle-Drums, Hautboys, and another ſort of Inſtrument, by them called Kerenet) is heard every Evening at Sun-ſet, and at every other Time when the King paſſeth that way. The King's Palace faceth the Meidan, and at the Gate are placed 40 Pieces of Cannon, part of which have been Caſt in the Country, and the reſt taken out of Ormus, when the Perſians, with the Aſſiſtance of the Engliſh, took that City from the Portugueſe; but they have no Carriages for them, and conſequently they are of little uſe. The Palace is only ſurrounded with a high Wall, without any other Defence. In the Day-time there are not above three or four Perſons that keep Guard, and at Night there are about 15 placed at the Gate, and 30 more before the King's Lodgings. Over the great Gate of the Palace is a large and high Pavillion, or round Building, full of Windows on all ſides, where the King places himſelf to ſee the Shews in any publick Rejoycings. In the Entry of the Palace, at the Right Hand, is a Gate, which opens into a Garden, in the midſt of which is a Chapel, which is a ſafe and aſſured Refuge to all that fear a Priſon, whether it be in Caſes Civil or Criminal, and even not excepting the King's Anger; where they continue till their Peace be made, or have got the King's Pardon. But the Perſians do ſo much abominate Theft, that they will not afford the Thieves or Robbers the Privilege of this Place of Refuge, except it be only for a few Days. The City Iſpahan is beautified with many Metzids, or Moſques, Bazars, or Market-places, and Caravanſera's, or Publick Inns to lodge Travellers and Merchants. It is a Place of great Trade, as being frequented upon that Account, not only by Indians, Tartars, Turks, Armenians, Georgians and Jews, but alſo by the Engliſh, Hollanders, Spaniards, Italians and French, it being a kind of Staple of all the richeſt Commodities of Aſia and Europe. The common Money of this City, and all over Perſia, is Silver or Copper, there being little or no Gold Coin. There are three Religious Convents in this City; whereof, the one is of Spaniſh Auſtin-Friars, the other of Italian Carmelites, and the third of French Capucines, or Franciſcans. The moſt conſiderable Suburb is that of Tzulfa, where there are 12 Temples, and above 3000 Houſes very well built. The Chriſtian-Armenians dwell here, who pay Tribute: And the Georgian Chriſtians take up the greateſt part of the Suburbs of Haſenabath: And the Kebbers, or Infidels, dwell in the Suburb of Kebrabath. See Kebbers. Olearius's Travels into Perſia.

ISRAEL is the Name which the Angel gave to Jacob, after having wreſtled with him; and ſignifies, A Prince of God. Whence the Poſterity of this Patriarch were called Iſraelites. Gen. 32. from Verſ. 22. to 29. Monſieur Fleury has writ a little Book printed at Paris in 1680, call'd, The Manners of the Iſraelites, in which their Cuſtoms and way of Living are deſcrib'd, with ſeveral uſeful and curious Obſervations.

ISSACHAR, the fifth Son of Jacob and Leah, was born A. M. 2288. He was the Father of a Tribe of Iſrael, that addicted themſelves to Agriculture, according to his Father's Prediction and Bleſſing. Gen. 30. from Verſ. 14. to 19. Chap. 49. Verſ. 14, 15.

ISSEDON, a City of Scythia, which was ſituate beyond Mount Imaus, a Part of Mount Taurus. Some Modern Geographers ſuppoſe it to be the ſame that is now called Ciracoram, in Great Tartary. Ancient Authors make mention of another Iſſedon in Scythia, which is ſuppoſed the ſame with Suchur, or Synchun, in the Province of Tangut, or Tanju, towards Cathay.

ISSEL, or YSSEL, Lat. Iſela, Alizo, Iſla, Foſſa Druſiana, a River in the Low Countries, Sluced from the Rhine by a Canal cut by Druſus the Roman Emperor. It leaves the North Branch of the Rhine above Arnheim, and running Northward, waters Duiſburg, Zutphen, Deventer, Zwol, Campen; and parting the Velaw from Over-Yſſel, to which Province this River gives Name, falls into the Zuider-Zee. It took its Name at firſt from a ſmall River called Old-Iſel, which falls into it near Duisburg.

ISSELT, born at Amersfort in the Signiory of Utrecht, was a zealous Roman Catholick in the XVIth Century. He wrote a Hiſtory of the War of Cologne, and likewiſe an Account of all the Memorable Accidents which happen'd upon the ſcore of Religion, from 1566, to his Death, which was in the Year 1597. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

ISSOIRE, Lat. Iſſiodorum, a City of Auvergne in France, upon the River Alier, 6 Leagues S. of Clermont. Baudr.

ISSOUDUN, Lat. Exelodunum, a City of France, in Berry, belonging to the Dioceſs of Bourges, whence it is diſtant 7 or 8 Leagues. It ſtands on the ſmall River Thiol. It is a ſtrong place, being provided with a Caſtle, Walls, Towers and Ditches.

ISSUS, a City of Cilicia, called Lajazzo, or Ajazze, near to a Bay of the ſame Name, and to the Mount Amana. It was in the Neighbourhood of this Place, that Alexander the Great defeated Darius's Army. The City Nicopolis is not far from it, but it is not the ſame with it, as ſome ſuppoſe. This City lies 15 Miles from Nicopolis towards the Weſt, 35 from the Mouth of the River Pyramus to the Eaſt, and 60 from Antioch towards the North. Baudrand. See Ajazze.

ISTACHER, one of the moſt ancient Cities in Perſia, and formerly a Royal Seat, but now become a Village, the City Ziaras having ſprung out of its Ruins. It ſtood a Mile from the River Araxes, now called Bendamor. Baudr.

ISTHANCESTER, a Town of old, which ſtood where now ſtands St. Peter's Chapel, in the utmoſt Point, on the South ſide of the Chelmer's Mouth. Here the Roman Fortenſes kept their Station, or Guard, in the Declenſion of the Roman Empire, for the Security of theſe Parts againſt the Saxon Rovers.

ISTHMIA, Græcian Games, which were repreſented every three Years in Honour of Neptune, or, as others, of Melicertes, who, according to the Fable, having caſt himſelf into the Sea, was changed into a Sea-God. They took their Name from the Iſthmus of Corinth, where they were celebrated with great Pomp, as being one of the four great Aſſemblies of Greece, where the Heroes ſignalized their Courage and Activity. The Reward, or Prize, given to the Victors, was, a Crown or Garland of Pine or Myrtle; tho' afterwards, Money was given to the Victorious, by an Order of Solon, who determined it to 100 Drachms. Scholiaſt. Pindar. ad Iſthmonica.

ISTHMUS, a Neck of Land which ſeparates two Seas, and joins two Lands. The moſt famous are theſe following, viz.

ISTHMUS of Corinth, called Iſthmus Peloponneſiacus, and Corinthiacus, between the Gulph of Corinth, otherwiſe Lepanto; and that of Engia, which joins the Peloponneſus to Achaia and the reſt of Greece. The Emperors, Julius Cæſar, Caligula and Nero, deſirous to make the Navigation from the Ionian to the Ægean Sea, or Archipelago, ſhorter, and leſs dangerous, endeavoured to dig it through, but in vain. Whence came the Proverb, Iſthmum fodere, againſt thoſe who undertake Things beyond their ſtrength. Afterwards, on this Neck of Land a Wall was built, which was called Hexamilium, becauſe it contained ſix Miles in length; which is the whole breadth of the Iſthmus. This Wall was demoliſhed by Amurath II. and being re-built and fortified by the Venetians, was a ſecond time pulled down by Mahomet II. in 1443.

ISTHMUS of Cherſoneſus Taurica, now called Zucala. It is 3 Miles long, and joins that famous Peninſula to the Continent, which is now called The Leſſer Crim Tartary.

ISTHMUS of Cherſoneſus Thracica, joining that Peninſula to Thrace, now called Romania, is ſituate between the Gulf of Laridia and the Sea of Marmora. It is very narrow, and was of old ſtrengthned by a Wall which Miltiades cauſed to be built upon it.

ISTHMUS Acanthæus, now called D'Eriſſo, in Jamboli, a Province of Macedonia; by means of which Mount Athos, or Monte Santo, is joined to the Continent of Jamboli. Between the Gulfs of Monte Santo, or Faſſio, and that of Conteſa, the breadth of it is 12 Furlongs: And it was cut through by Xerxes.

ISTHMUS of Panama, or Darien, which joins the North and South-America together, is ſituate between the North and South Sea, and is called Terra Firma, being about thirty Leagues over.

ISTHMUS of Suez, which joins Egypt to Palæſtine and Arabia Petræa, between the Mediterranean on the North, and the Red Sea on the South. It takes its Name from the City Suez, which is ſituate on the ſhoar of the Red Sea. It is 70 Arabian Miles over. Many Princes have fruitleſly endeavoured to cut it through, to join the two Seas.

ISTRIA, a Province of Italy, which the Germans call Hyſterreich. It belongs to the Republick of Venice, and lies between the Gulf of Trieſte and that of Quarner, and is bounded by Friul, a part of the Alps, called Monte de la Vena, and the Adriatick Sea, being a kind of Peninſula. Its chief Cities are, Cabo d'Iſtria, formerly called Juſtinopolis, Parenzo, Pola, Citta Nova, &c. all which belong to the Venetians. The Houſe of Auſtria owns Trieſte and Pedena, with ſome ſmall Villages and Country Towns. The Country, eſpecially all along the Sea-Coaſt, is very unhealthy, but fruitful in good Wines, Oil and Wood. It hath alſo ſeveral Quarries of Marble. The Commonwealth of Venice hath a Governor here; and it yields them a conſiderable Revenue. Pliny, lib. 3. cap. 18. Strabo, lib. 3. Leand. Albert. Deſcript. Ital. Magin. & Cluver. Geogr. Manzal Iſtr.

ITALUS, a certain King, the Son of Telegonus, from whom Italy took its Name, if we give credit to the Poets.

ITALY, Lat. Italia. In the ſacred Scriptures Italy is called Chetim, Chittim, Meſech, Moſech, Kittim, tho' by the ſame Names they underſtood Greece, theſe Countries not being ſo well known as to be exactly diſtinguiſhed in thoſe early Times. Pliny gives Italy this Character. Italy is the Nurſe and Mother of all Nations, Elected by the Gods to make the Heavens more Glorious, to Unite the diſperſed Governments of the World, and to fit the diſagreeing Tongues and Languages of ſo many People by Commerce, for Converſation and Diſcourſe, and thereby to teach Mankind Humanity, or Civility, having firſt mollified or ſoftned their barbarous Rites, Manners, or Uſages; ſo that, in a word, I may ſay, Italy is the common Country of all the Nations and People in the whole World. As, in truth, Italy deſerved this Encomium, when he wrote it. Hiſt. Nat. lib. 11. cap. 5. In 452, Attila began to Ravage Italy. In 455, Valentinian, then Emperor, was ſlain. In 476, Odoacer, a Herule, became King of Italy. Omni Italia ſubjugata. In 489, Theodoric entered Italy, extincto apud Ravennam Odoacro. In 535, Beliſarius began the Conqueſt of Italy for Juſtinian the Emperor, which was finiſhed by Narſes in 557. In 568, the Lombards entered Italy, and Conquered much of it, but neither Venice, Ravenna, nor the Iſlands in the Adriatick Sea. In 725, Luitprandus took Ravenna, and drove the Exarch to Venice, from whence he returned with Forces, and re-took the City ſoon after. In 752, the Lombards recovered Ravenna, and all that the Emperor poſſeſſed in that part of Italy, but Venice, or the Iſlands in the Adriatick Sea. In 755, Pipin forced the Lombards to yield Ravenna to the Popes, which was the firſt Dominions the Pope obtained. In 774, Charles the Great put an end to the Kingdom of Lombardy, by taking their King Didier in Pavia. Italy is a Country of Europe, which the Roman Empire hath made more conſiderable and famous than any other part of the World. The Greeks called it Heſperia, either from the Evening-Star ἕσπερος, becauſe it lay Weſtward of Greece, or becauſe Heſperus retired hither when he was driven out of Africa by his Brother Atlas. It was named Oenotria, and Saturnia, from Saturn, who reigned here; and Auſonia, from Auſon, or Auſonius, the Son of Ulyſſes and Calypſo, who Peopled ſome part thereof. The ſituation of Italy is very advantageous, being towards the midſt of the Temperate Zone, between the 28th Degree and an half, and the 42d and an half of Longitude; and from the 37th Degree and an half, to the 46th and an half of Latitude. It is bounded by the Alps on the North, which ſeparates it from Germany; on the Eaſt, by the Adriatick Sea; on the South, by the Mare Inferius, or Sea of Tuſcany; and on the Weſt, by a part of the Alps, and the River Var, which are its Bounds towards France and Savoy.

The Ancient and Modern Diviſion of Italy.

The Diviſion of the Provinces of Italy, hath from Time to Time been changed, according to the ſeveral People that have been its Inhabitants, or according as the firſt Inhabitants thereof did enlarge their Conqueſts. After that the Gauls had made themſelves Maſters of that Part of Italy which reaches from the Alps, and the Appennine, to the River Jeſi, which diſchargeth it ſelf into the Adriatick Sea, near to the City Ancona, the Romans called that part of Italy, Gallia Italica, Citerior, and Ciſalpina; and alſo, Circumpadana, and Togata, to intimate that Part of Italy which was about the River Po; and that the Inhabitants thereof wore Gowns like the Romans. The chief Countries or Provinces of Italy are, 1. Liguria, now Riviera di Genoua. 2. Hetruria, now Toſcana. 3. Umbria, now Ducato di Spoleto. 4. Latium, now Campagna di Roma. 5. Campania, now Terra di Lavoro. 6. Lucania, now Baſilicata. 7. Bruttia, now The Lower Calabria. 8. Magna Græcia, or Great Greece, now The Upper Calabria. 9. Salentinorum Terra, or Meſſapia, now Terra di Otranto. 10. Apulia Peucetia, now Terra di Barri. 11. Apulia Daunia, now Puglia Piana. 12. Samnium, now Abruzzo. 13. Picenum, now Marca Anconitana. 14. Flaminia, now Romagna. 15. Æmilia, now Lombardia di qua dal Po, or Lombardy on this ſide of the Po. 16. Gallia Tranſpadana, now Lombardia di la dal Po, or Lombardy on the farther ſide of the Po. 17. Venetorum Terra, now Marca Trevigiana. 18. Forum Julii, now Friuli. 19. Hiſtria, now Iſtria. The Emperor Adrian divided Italy into 17 Provinces, in which Diviſion the Iſles alſo were comprized; and the ſame was obſerved in Conſtantine's Time. Of theſe Provinces, ſome were called Annonariæ, which were the moſt Fruitful, and furniſhed moſt Corn, Wine, and other Proviſions: And Suburbicariæ, which were under the Government of the City of Rome. According to the ſeveral Princes and States. Italy is divided as follows: The Pope poſſeſſeth the Eccleſiaſtical State, in which are contained La Campagna di Roma, The Patrimony of St. Peter, the Dukedoms of Spoleto, Urbino and Ferrara, Marca Anconitana, Romagna, the Territory of Bononia, and the Dutchy of Benevento in the Kingdom of Naples. To the King of Spain belong the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, the Dutchy of Milan, and the Marquiſate of Final, upon the Coaſt of Genoua, with ſome other Places on that of Tuſcany. The Duke of Florence owns the greateſt part of Tuſcany. The Duke of Savoy poſſeſſeth Piedmont, the Marquiſate of Saluſſes, &c. The Duke of Mantua, of the Houſe of Gonzaga, hath the Dutchy of that Name, and Montſerrat. The Duke of Parma, of the Houſe of Farneſe, is Maſter of the Dukedoms of Parma and Placentia. The Duke of Modena, of the Family of Eſte, is poſſeſſed of the Dukedoms of Modena and Rhegio. The Prince of Maſſa, of the Houſe of Cibo, hath the Principality of that Name. And the Dukes of Mirandula, of the Houſe of Picus, the Dukedom of Mirandula, and Earldom of Concordia. There are four Commonwealths; two great ones, thoſe of Venice and Genoua; and two little ones, thoſe of Luca and St. Marino. That of Venice poſſeſſeth part of Iſtria, Friuli, Marca Treviſana, the Territories of Padua, Verona, Vicenza, Breſcia, Bergamaſco, and Cremona. The Commonwealth of Genoua poſſeſſeth that which is called The River of Genoua. That of Luca has but a ſmall Territory: And that of St. Marino leſs. Not to make mention of ſome leſſer Principalities; as, Monaco, Maſſeran, Piombino, &c.

The Houſe of Auſtria is in Poſſeſſion of the Earldom of Goriz, the Cities of Trieſte, Pedena, &c. in Iſtria. The 12 Swiſs-Cantons have 4 Bailiwicks there; and the Griſons poſſeſs the Valtoline.

The Mountains, Rivers, Figure, Lakes and Iſles of Italy.

The Alps ſeparate France, Germany and Switzerland, from Italy. The Appennine runs the Length of Italy, and divides it in the midſt. Beſides theſe, there is Monte Maſſo, near to Sueſſa; and Monte Barbaro, between Bajæ and Puteoli. Between Naples and Nola is the famous Veſuvius, called Monte di Somma. In Puglia is the Mount St. Angelo, or Mount Gargon. The Rivers of Italy are, the Po, (Eridanus) Doera, or Dora, Seſſia, Tezin, which traverſeth the Great Lake, or Lac Maggiore: Adda, which paſſeth through the midſt of the Lake of Como: Ogglio, which runs into the Lake of Iſco: And Menzo, which croſſeth the Lake of Carda. Theſe Rivers proceed from the Alps, and run into the Po. The Rivers Tanaro, Trebia, Taro and Reno, have their Springs in the Appennine, and diſcharge themſelves in the ſame River Po. Arno runs by Florence and Piſa, and caſts it ſelf into the Sea. Beſides theſe, there are alſo the Tyber, Garigliano, Vulturno and Silaro. The Figure of Italy reſembles the Leg of a Man, whoſe Toes ſeem to kick Sicily. Its Length, from the Valley of Aoſte, to the uttermoſt part of Calabria, is 450 Miles: Its Breadth is but ſmall, ſave at the Foot of the Alpes, where it is of about 280 Miles. In Tuſcany is the Lake of Thraſimene, now Di Perugia; with that of Vulſino and Bracciano. In Campagna di Roma is the Lake Fuſino, that of Fundi, with the Lake Albanus, now Lago di Caſtello Gandolfo; and thoſe of Como, Iſeo, Lugano, Gardo, &c. The principal Iſles are, the Elbe, Corſica, Sardinia, Iſchia, Caprea, Sicily, and ſome others.

Of the Country, the Inhabitants, the Language, Cities and Univerſities of Italy.

The Air of Italy is generally healthful and temperate, except in the Eccleſiaſtical State. The Ground is every where ſo fruitful, that the Country ſeems to enjoy a continual Spring. It abounds with all manner of Grain, Flowers and Fruits, and with great Variety of living Creatures, as well for the Pleaſure of Hunting, as for the Uſe of Man. Upon which Account, Italy is called The Garden of Europe. It hath Mines of Iron, Alum and Brimſtone, and ſome of Gold and Silver, beſides numerous Quarries of Marble and Alabaſter, and other curious Stone; not to mention ſome ſorts of precious Stones, that are found in Calabria, Tuſcany and Lombardy. The People, to ſpeak generally, are Polite, Dextrous, Prudent and Ingenious; good Politicians. Eloquence is natural to them, and they want neither Wit, Conduct, nor Valour; but yet after all theſe good Qualities, they are not without their bad ones, for they are extreamly Revengeful, Suſpicious, Jealous, and great Formaliſts in all things; they affect Magnificent Titles, and foraſmuch as their Riſe is chiefly by Eccleſiaſtical Preferments, the Canon-Law is in great Eſteem with them. Their Genius lies much for Poetry, Antiquities, Liberal Arts, Law and Policy; but their Poetry has commonly more of Pomp than Solidity, and whilſt they endeavour at extraordinary Flights, they oft fail of Accuracy and good Senſe. As for their Policy, they are exceſſive in their Reflections; and 'tis ſuppoſed, this is cauſed by their too much affecting the way of their Country-man Tacitus. Some Northern People have imagined, that the Italians were not capable of profound Learning, to which belongs much Reading, with great Study and Judgment; but the Diverſæ Lectiones of Caſtilio of Ancona, make it appear, that they would not be inferiour to thoſe of the Northern Countries, if they would ſet themſelves to it. But it is hard to excuſe them, for their aptneſs to vilifie and undervalue other Nations. The Italian Tongue is derived from the ancient Latin, but extreamly corrupted by the Goths, Huns, Vandals, Lombards, and other People. The moſt refin'd Italian is that of Tuſcany, eſpecially when ſpoken by a Roman. There is ſcarcely any City in Italy, but hath its peculiar Idiom or Way of ſpeaking; the Florentines pronounce their Words from the Throat, the Venetians from the Roof of the Mouth, the Neapolitans from the Teeth, and the Genoueſe from the Lips. The Italians begin to count their Hours from the time it begins to grow dark, and accordingly the Number of them to Noon, encreaſe or diminiſh with the Seaſon of the Year, tho' their Artificial Day, conſiſting of the Natural Day and Night, be always of 24 Hours. The Cities of Italy are fair, well built, and magnificent; of which, Rome is called the Holy, Naples the Noble, Florence the Fair, Genoua the Proud, Milan the Great, Ravenna the Ancient, Venice the Rich, Padua the Learned, Bononia the Fat. There is no Country in the World where there are ſo many Biſhopricks as in Italy, there being in all above 300. It hath alſo many Univerſities, as, at Padua, Venice, Turin, Pavia, Siena, Rome, Ferrara, Macerata, Fermo, Naples, Salerno, &c.

Of the Government and Religion of Italy.

Italy was of old Governed by Kings, afterwards by Conſuls, and laſt of all by Emperors, who raiſed it to the higheſt pitch of Glory. The Kings were only Governors of a ſmall part of Italy, and the Conſuls themſelves ſubdued their Neighbours by degrees, and it was a long while before they got the Command of all Italy. Upon the decay of the Roman Empire in the Vth Century, the Goths, Lombards, French-men, Normans, Saracens, Germans, Spaniards, ſettled themſelves there at ſeveral times. The Goths, Vandals, Herules, Huns, and other barbarous Nations, were the firſt, who after they had Conquered Rome, fixed themſelves in Italy. The Emperor Juſtinian drove away moſt of thoſe Nations in the VIth Century, by means of his Generals Beliſarius and Narſes, and gave a beginning to the Exarchate of Italy, which he ſettled in the City of Ravenna. The Lombards, who were called in by Narſes, as 'tis believed, got poſſeſſion of Ravenna, and in 568, Eſtabliſhed a Kingdom in Gallia Ciſalpina, which from their Name was called Lombardy, and which laſted about 204 Years, till Charlemaign put an end to it, in 774. And before them the Oſtrogoths had a Kingdom in Italy, from 493, under Theodorick, until 552, under Totila. In the IXth, Xth, and XIth Centuries, the Saracens frequently invaded Italy, and ſettled themſelves in Sicily in 1058, whom the Normans expelled thence, and took their place. Afterwards the French and Spaniards ſucceſſively governed there. The Roman Catholick Religion is only profeſſed in Italy, neither are any Proteſtants ſuffered there, yet the Jews are permitted in ſome Cities, and in others the Greeks and Armenians have freedom to exerciſe their Religious Worſhip.

ITHACA, an Iſland of the Ionian Sea, near to Cephalonia, whoſe Modern Name is Iſola del Compare, or Val di Compare, and by the Turks is called Phiachi or Theachi; it is alſo called Neritia, by Dionyſius the African. It is famous for the Birth of Ulyſſes.

ITHAMAR, the Son of Aaron the High-Prieſt, in whoſe Family the Soveraign Prieſthood continued till the Fifth Generation. Eli was one of his Poſterity. Exod 28. 1. Levit. 10. 6.

ITURÆA, called alſo Peræa, and by Gulielmus Tyrius, Bacar, is a ſmall Country of Palæſtine beyond Jordan, lying between Syria and Arabia; the Inhabitants whereof were intermixed amongſt the Tribes of Gad and Reuben.

ITYS, the Son of Tereus King of Thrace, and Progne the Daughter of Pandion King of Athens, whom his Mother killed, and then dreſs'd him up for a Diſh of Meat for her Husband, becauſe he had raviſhed her Siſter Philomela; which, when Tereus had diſcovered, he grew into a Rage, and purſuing Progne and Philomela with his drawn Sword, was changed into a Woodpecker, Progne into a Swallow, and Philomela into a Nightingal. Ovid Metam. lib. 6. Fab. 7.

ITZEHO, Lat. Itzehoa, a ſmall City in Holſtein on the River Stor, two German Miles from the Elbe, and South-Eaſt of Glucſtadt.

JUBA I. King of Mauritania and Numidia, was the Succeſſor of his Father Hiempſal. He took part with Pompey againſt Julius Cæſar, by whom he was ſubdued, and after an Entertainment with Petrejus, the Companion of his Misfortune, they killed one another, An. Rom. 708, and 46 before the Birth of our Saviour. Cæſar made a Province of his Kingdom, and Saluſt the Hiſtorian was the firſt Governor of it. Flor. lib. 4. cap. 2. Sueton. in Cæſ. Plutarch. in Pomp. & Cæſar. Dion. lib. 41. & ſeq.

JUBA II. King of both the Mauritania's, was Son to Juba I. He was taken by the Romans, when yet a Child, and adorned the Triumph of Julius Cæſar, An. Rom. 708. Auguſtus took care of his Education at Rome, and he made himſelf Famous by his Learning and Parts. Auguſtus married him to Cleopatra, the Daughter of Anthony and Cleopatra, of which Marriage Ptolemy was born, who was put to Death by Caligula. *Plin. lib. 5. cap. 1. lib. 25. cap. 1, &c. JUBAL, the Son of Lamech, and Adah, the Inventer of Muſick, and Muſical Inſtruments, Gen. 4. 21.

JUBILEE, ſolemn Indulgences granted by the Pope to all of his Communion. Boniface VIII. firſt Inſtituted the Jubilee, in 1300. in imitation of that of the Jews, ordering it to be obſerved every 100th Year. Pope Clement VI. reduced it to 50 Years, Urban VI. to 30, and Sixtus V. to 25, where it hath continued ever ſince. Beſides which, the Popes upon their Exaltation to St. Peter's Chair, have frequently celebrated a Jubilee, as likewiſe upon other extraordinary Occaſions. The Ceremony obſerved at Rome for the Jubilee, at every 25 Years end, which they call the Holy Year, is this: The Pope goes to St. Peter's Church to open the Holy Gate, which is walled up, and only opened on this Occaſion, and knocking three times at the ſaid Gate, with the Golden Hammer he hath in his Hand, utters theſe Words: Aperite mihi portas Juſtitiæ, &c. Open to me the Gates of Righteouſneſs, I will go in to them and praiſe the Lord, Pſal. 118. 19. Whereupon the Maſons fall at Work to break down the Wall that ſtops the Gate; which done, the Pope kneels down before it, whilſt the Penitentiaries of St. Peter waſh him with Holy Water; and then taking up the Croſs, he begins to Sing the Te Deum, and enters the Church, the Clergy following him. In the mean time, three Cardinal-Legates are ſent to open the three other Holy Gates, with the ſame Ceremonies, which are in the Churches of St. John of Latteran, of St. Paul, and St. Mary the Greater, and is performed at the firſt Veſpers, or Evening-Song of Chriſtmas-Eve, and the next Morning the Pope gives his Benediction to the People in the Jubilee-form. When the Holy Year is expired, they ſhut the Holy Gates again, on Chriſtmas-Eve, in this manner: The Pope, after that he has bleſſed the Stones and Mortar, lays the firſt Stone, and leaves there 12 Boxes full of Gold and Silver Medals. In the days of old, a prodigious number of all ſorts of People came to Rome, from all Parts of Europe, in the Holy Year, but few repair thither now, ſave ſuch as live in Italy, becauſe the Popes afford this Privilege to other Countries, who have the liberty of ſtaying at Home, and receiving the ſame Favours from his Holineſs, becauſe they may keep the Jubilee in their own Country. The Jewiſh Jubilee was Celebrated every 50 Years. The Word Jubilee is derived from Jovel, which in the Hebrew ſignifies a Rams-horn, becauſe with them the Year of Jubilee was proclaimed, which was a Year of General Reſt, and Univerſal Liberty, wherein all Servants were reſtored to their Freedom, and all ſold Poſſeſſions returned to their firſt Owners. See Levit. 25. chap. The Jews obſerved theſe Jubilees very exactly, till the Babyloniſh Captivity, but after their return, did no longer obſerve it, for their Doctors aſſure us, that there were no Jubilees obſerved under the Second Temple. P. Simon. See Year.

JUCATAN, a Peninſula of North America in New Spain, belonging to the Juriſdiction of Mexico, it is above 250 Leagues in compaſs. The Soil is very Fruitful, eſpecially of Cotton. The Inhabitants are the moſt Warlike People of all the neighbouring Countries, and were formerly Men-Eaters. Jucatan is ſituate between the Gulf of Mexico, and that of Honduras in the North Sea. Its chief Cities are Merida, a Biſhop's See, Valladolid, Salamanca, Campeche, &c. Franciſcus Hernandez of Corduba, was the firſt that diſcovered this Country, but being ill entreated by the Inhabitants, he returned to the Iſle of Cuba; but Franciſcus Montege in 1527, ſettled himſelf there, after that he had ſubdued the People of Jucatan, by a War that laſted nine Years. The Inhabitants of this Country are Circumciſed, yet groſs Idolaters; they Worſhip Images like Bears in their Houſes, to whom they ſing and burn Incenſe. They have Holy Images, and Subborn Boys to give Anſwer in them, in time of publick Calamities. They go in Pilgrimage, and in Proceſſion to theſe Images; all their Prieſts, except ſuch as are Officers, marry, and have the ordering of their Sacrifices, which are performed in this manner: The Prieſts go thrice about the Captives, ſinging mournfully, and then of a ſudden, open their Breaſt with flint Knives, give the Prelate his Heart, the King his Hands and Feet, his Buttocks to him that took him, and diſtribute the reſt amongſt the People, ſetting their Heads on Trees, under which they Sacrifice Men and Children. In their Proceſſions they wound themſelves, in honour of their Idols, and for deſire of future Happineſs, offer themſelves as chearful Victims: Then their Prieſts anoint the Cheeks and Lips of the Idol with Blood. Their Marriages are ſolemnized by the Prieſt, who joins the Bride's and Bridegroom's little Fingers near a fire. They puniſh Adultery and Fornication with great Severity. *Peter Martyr. Gomorra. JUDAH the Patriarch, and 4th Son of Jacob and Leah, was born A. M. 2286, and died 2404, at the Age of 119. Gen. 29. 35. c. 38.

JUDAH (Leo) a Proteſtant Miniſter of Zurich, who was born in 1492. He was Educated in Literature, and took his Orders in the Church of Rome, but afterwards Embraced Proteſtantiſm, and was a Man of great Worth and Learning, eſpecially in the Hebrew Tongue, and Tranſlated part of the Old Teſtament, and writ Notes upon ſome Books of the Bible. Melch. Adami in vita Theol. German. The Hiſtory of Leo. Judah's Verſion and Critical Reflection upon it, may be ſeen in the Critical Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament of R. Simon L. II. cap. 21.

JUDAH, a Rabbi, whom the Jews call Rabbenu Hakkados, that is, our Maſter the Saint. He lived under the Emperor Antoninus, whoſe Friend, yea, and Maſter too he was, and had the Title of Prince given him by his Country-men. Leo of Modena, a Venetian Rabbi, in his Book of Ceremonies, Part 2. Chap. 2. ſpeaks thus of him: R. Judah, who was a very rich Man, about 120 Years after the Deſtruction of the Temple, made a Collection of the Conſtitutions and Traditions of the Rabbins that had gone before him, in a Book called Miſna, which he divided into ſix Parts, whereof the Firſt treats of Agriculture or Tillage, and Sowing; the Second of Feſtivals; the third of Marriages, and other Points concerning Women; the Fourth concerning Loſs and Profit, and all manner of Civil Matters; the Fifth of Sacrifices; and the Sixth of Things clean and unclean. But this Book being very ſuccinct, and therefore not eaſy to be underſtood, gave occaſion to many Diſputes, whereupon two Rabbins of Babylon, Rabenu and Rab-aſe, undertook to make a Collection of all the Interpretations, Diſputations and Additions, which had been made till their time upon the Miſna, whence the Book was compoſed, which is called the Babylonian Talmud, or Ghemara, which is divided into 60 Parts, called Maſſachot or Treatiſes. Some Years before R. Jochanan of Jeruſalem had compoſed the Jeruſalem Talmud, but being ſhort, and writ in a rude Stile, the Babylonian was preferred before it. Fa. Simon.

JUDAH CHIUG of Fez, a Rabbin. eſteemed the moſt learned Grammarian that hath been amongſt the Jews, who ordinarily give him the Title of the Firſt and Prince of Grammarians, and foraſmuch as he lived but a little more than 600 Years ago, this hath made many think, and particularly Fa. Morinus, whom Voſſius follows therein, that the Art of Grammar was of no ancient Date amongſt the Jews; but Morinus found reaſon to change his Opinion in his laſt Book, and Fa. Simon quotes many Grammarians that lived before that Rabbi. He writ all his Works in Arabick, and amongſt the reſt, an Excellent Dictionary, which would be of great uſe to the underſtanding of the Holy Scripture, in caſe it was printed; whereas now it is very rare, as being only in Manuſcript.

JUDAS, ſurnamed Macchabee, or Macchabæus, the Third Son of Mattathias, General of the Jews, of the Family of the Aſmonæans, he ſucceeded his Father, An. Rom. 587, and was that Renowned Captain of the Jews, who with ſo great Conduct and Succeſs, endeavoured to rid his Country of the Yoke of the Kings of Syria, over whoſe Generals he gained many ſignal Victories, and was killed at laſt in a Battel which he fought with 800 Men againſt a powerful Army, A. M. 3893, or 94, An. Rom. 593, and with great magnificence was buried at Modin, in the Sepulchre of his Father, being lamented by all the Jews, for many Days. I. and II. Book of the Macchabees. Joſeph. lib. 12. Antiq. Jud.

JUDAS, ſurnamed Iſcariot, Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, and he that Betrayed him. The Cerinthian and Cainite Hereticks honoured his Memory, in a particular manner, and the latter of theſe made uſe of a Goſpel, which carried the Name of this fallen Apoſtle, as is elſewhere noted. St. Epiphan. Hær. 38.

JUDAS, Biſhop of Jeruſalem in the IId Century, he ſucceeded Ephraim, and was the laſt of the converted Jews, who Governed that Church.

JUDAS (Galilæus) one that ſtirred up the Jews, his Countrymen, to a Rebellion againſt the Romans, upon occaſion of a Tax impoſed by Auguſtus, and was the Author of a Sect not unlike to that of the Phariſees, ſave in this, That they held that God alone was to be Owned, as Lord and King; and had ſo great a love for Liberty, that they would rather undergo themſelves, or ſuffer their Friends and Relations to endure the worſt of Torments, than to call any Man Lord or Maſter. Joſeph. lib. Ant. Jud. 17. cap. 15. Alſo another called Judas Gaulonites, who raiſed a Sedition againſt the Romans. Joſeph. Antiq. 12. 3. & 18. cap. 1. & 2. de Bell. Jud. 2.

JUDAS, a Greek Divine and Hiſtorian, lived in the IId. and IIId. Century. He writ a Treatiſe of the Seventy Weeks of Daniel, and a Chronography, which he continued to the tenth Year of the Empire of Severus, which was in 203. Euſeb. lib. 6. cap. 6. Hiſt. Eccleſ. Nicephor. lib. 1. cap. 34. St. Hierom in Catal. &c.

St. JUDE, called alſo Thaddæus, was the Brother of St James Minor, or Younger. He preached in Meſopotamia, Arabia, Syria, Idumæa, and the neighbouring Countries, and died for the Confeſſion of Jeſus Chriſt in the City of Berytus. He writ the Epiſtle that we have in the New Teſtament, and as Oecumenius obſerves, after the death of moſt of the Apoſtles. This Apoſtle, is called in the Hiſtory of the Goſpel, by the Names of Jude, Thadæus, and Labbæus, according to Nicephorus. He was of our Lord's Kindered, being the Son of Joſeph, and Brother to James, founded upon that Text, Are not his Brethren James and Joſes, Simon and Judas, Matt. 13. 55. Of the time he was called to the Apoſtleſhip, we have no certain Account in Scripture, nor is there any thing in particular Recorded of him, ſave that Queſtion to our Saviour, John 14 22. Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifeſt thy ſelf to us, and not unto the World. Becauſe, as others, he had the falſe Notion of Chriſt's Temporal Kingdom. Euſebius ſays, That St. Thomas ſent this Apoſtle to Abgarus, King of Edeſſa, where he cured Diſeaſes, wrought Miracles, and Converted him and his People, and refuſed the large Gifts and Preſents offered him by that Prince. And Nicephorus ſays, That the other Thaddæus, had been there before him, ſo that he only perfected what he had begun, and died a peaceable Death, but Dorotheus will have him ſlain, and honourably interred at Berytus; but moſt of our Latin Writers ſay, That he Travelled into Perſia, and after great Succeſs for many Years, was cruelly put to Death, for reproving the Superſtition of the Magi. His Epiſtle, according to Euſebius, was not generally Received, for ſome time, by the Church, but upon very weak and frivolous Arguments; as, his quoting a Paſſage out of an Apochryphal Book of Enoch; and that other, about the Contention of Michael the Archangel and the Devil about Moſes's Body, neither of them being Extant in Scripture; but St. Paul's mentioning Jannes and Jambres, the Magicians that oppoſed Moſes, tho' no where mentioned in Sacred Writ, is a ſufficient Anſwer to that Objection. Hegiſippus writes, That ſome of his Grand-ſons were queſtioned by Domitian the Emperor, who conceived a Jealouſie of them, becauſe they were of the Race of David, and Chriſt's Kindred; but perceiving the meanneſs of their Condition, and being informed that Chriſt's Kingdom was not of this World, he diſmiſſed them without farther trouble. Cave's Hiſt. Litt. Matth. 10. 3. Mark 3. Luke 6. Baron. in Annal. & in not. ſup. Mart. Rom. Bellarm. de Script. Eccleſ.

JUDEA, a Country of Aſia in Syria, known by the Name of Palæſtina. It was firſt called The Land of Canaan, The Land of Promiſe, and now the Holy Land. In our Saviour's time, it was divided into ſix Parts, viz. Into Galilee, Samaria and Judea, properly ſo called, on this ſide Jordan, towards the Mediterranean; and on the other ſide of the ſame River into Trachonitis, Ituræa, or Peræa, and Idumæa. Joſephus gives us this Deſcription of it: The bound of Judea towards the North, is the Village Anuach, otherwiſe Borceos; and towards the South, it reacheth to a Village of Arabia called Jordan, and its breadth is from the River of Jordan to Joppa, and Jeruſalem is the Center of it. This goodly Country hath moreover this advantage; that the Sea which waters the length of it quite to Ptolemais, doth not contribute leſs than the Soil, to make it as delicious and pleaſant, as it is fruitful. It is divided into eleven Parts, whereof the City of Jeruſalem is the firſt, as being the Royal City, and chief of all the reſt, the other ten Parts are diſtributed into ſo many particular Governments, viz. Gophni, Acrabatane, Tamna, Lidda, Emmaus, Perla, Idumæa, Engadi, Herodion, and Jericho. Jamnia and Joppa, whoſe Juriſdictions reach to the neighbouring Countries, are not compriſed in this Diviſion; no more than Gamalitis, Gaulonitis, Bathanea and Trachonitis, which are part of the Kingdom of Agrippa. This Country, which is inhabited by the Syrians and Jews, reacheth in breadth from Mount Libanus and the Springs of Jordan, to the Lake of Tiberius, and in length, from the Village of Arphac to the City of Julias. After this, the Romans governed the Jews. Torniel. Salian. Baronius. Spondanus. As concerning the Jews, the Inhabitants of this Country, it will not be needful to ſet down here the Hiſtory of them, which may be read in the Scriptures; and therefore I ſhall only obſerve, that after the Captivity, the Government of the Jews was alter'd, Zorobabel had it firſt, as Governor, after him, it fell upon the High-Prieſts, and at laſt again to Kings Antiochus Epiphanes, perſecuted the Jews with an incredible Barbarity, not only in Judea, but likewiſe in his own Dominions: He Prophan'd the Temple, Plunder'd the Conſecrated Plate, and put thoſe to Death, who would not break the Law of Moſes. The Old Martyr Eleazer, and the ſeven Brethren, call'd, Macchabees, with their Mother, were very Tragical Inſtances of this Perſecution: The greateſt part of the Jews quitted Jeruſalem, among which, the Prieſt Mattathias, of the Aſmonean Line, was one. He, with five of his Children, came to the little Town Modin, in the Tribe of Judah, where he was born, God making this Perſon Inſtrumental in Reſtoring his Worſhip. This Mattathias was choſen Prince of the Jews, and from this time, the Royalty and the High-Prieſt-hood were joined for about 130 Years, in the Aſamonean Family: Herod the Great put a period to the Succeſſion of this Line; in the Reign of this Prince, our Saviour was born: About this time, the Jews began to Revolt from the Romans, whoſe Defection was puniſh'd with great ſeverity; However theſe misfortunes made 'em little wiſer, for they Revolted a ſecond time, and at laſt, Titus and Veſpaſian his Son, having defeated them in ſeveral Battels, beſieg'd Jeruſalem and demoliſh'd, it in the Year 70. And now the Jews were perfectly thrown out of their Liberty and ſold for Slaves. Joſephus, who gives an Account of thoſe that died at the Siege of Jeruſalem, makes 'em amount to Eleven Hundered Thouſand, and Ninety Seven Thouſand made Priſoners. After this Calamity, the Jews ſeem to have been perpetually purſued by Divine Juſtice,and have never been able either to break their Chains, or remove that general averſion, which all the reſt of the World have for 'em. In the Reign of the Emperor Adrian, they made an Effort to recover their Liberty, under the conduct of that famous Impoſture, call'd Barchochebas, but this attempt only ſerved to make their ſervitude more troubleſome and heavy. They have ſince endeavoured to make themſelves Independent,but could never accompliſh it, having been always look'd upon, in all Countries, with diſregard and diſadvantage. We have ſeveral Decrees of Councils, Reſcripts of Emperors and Edicts of Princes againſt them. To relate how often they have been expell'd France, England and Spain, would carry the Account too far, therefore I ſhall ſtop here. The Modern Jews divide their Laws and Ceremonies into three Ranks or Orders: The Firſt of which contains all the Precepts of the Written Law, compriſed in the five Books of Moſes. The Second, thoſe of the Oral Law, which are the Traditions collected by their Rabbins, and ſeveral Conſtitutions, which they call The Commandments of the Wiſe Men, ſet down in the Book they call Talmud. The Third Sort contains thoſe Things which uſe and Cuſtom hath authorized at divers Times, and in different Places; which they call Cuſtoms. Of theſe, the two firſt are generally received by all the Jews, though diſperſed through all Parts of the World; but as to the Cuſtoms, they are different, according to the ſeveral Places where they dwell. Their whole Worſhip conſiſts only in certain Prayers they make in their Synagogues; for they offer no Sacrifices ſince the Deſtruction of the Temple at Jeruſalem. They own ſeven Principal Articles of Faith: I. That God is One, Incorporeal, and Eternal. II. That this God alone is to be worſhipped. III. That there have been, and may ſtill be Prophets. IV. That Moſes was the greateſt Prophet that was ever inſpired by God; and that the Law he left was dictated by God in all its Precepts. V. That the ſaid Law is immutable; that nothing can be added to it, or taken from it. VI. That their Meſſias is to come, who ſhall be more puiſſant than all the Kings of the Earth. VII. That God ſhall raiſe the Dead at the End of Time; and that there ſhall be an Univerſal Judgment. There was formerly ſeveral Sects amongſt the Jews; the chief of which were, the Samaritans, the Eſſeans, the Sadducees, and the Phariſees; but the moſt conſiderable at preſent are, the Samaritans, and the Caraites. In Turky there are two Sorts of Jews, viz. Such as are born in the Country, and Strangers, ſo called becauſe their Anceſtors came from Spain or Portugal. The former of theſe wear Turbans like the Chriſtians, of divers Colours; neither can they be diſtinguiſhed from them, but by their Shooes, which are black, or Violet-colour; whereas thoſe of the Chriſtians are red, or yellow. The Stranger-Jews wear on their Heads a certain Cap, like a Spaniſh Hat, but without a Brim; and they differ from the other in ſome Religious Cuſtoms and Ceremonies, and have their diſtinct Sepulchres. Moſt of theſe are found in great Numbers in moſt of the Cities of the Turkiſh Empire, eſpecially thoſe that are Places of great Trade; as, at Smyrna, Alleppo, Grand Caire, Theſſalonica, &c. Their moſt common Callings are, thoſe of Bankers, Uſurers, Cuſtom-houſe-Men, Brokers, Druggiſts, Phyſicians and Interpreters. They can give a particular Account of all the Merchandizes that are in a City, with the Quality and Price of them. The other Eaſtern Nations, as, the Greeks, and Armenians, have not the ſame Capacity; which forceth Merchants to make uſe of Jews in theſe Caſes. There are ſome Places in Turkey, where the Inhabitants will not endure them, notwithſtanding the Grant they have from the Grand Signior to dwell in any Part of his Dominions: And the Reaſon of this Averſion is, their unheard of Cruelties which they uſe againſt their Debtors and Slaves. The Turky and Eaſtern Chriſtians commonly report of them, That they put to death a Chriſtian-Slave every Good-Friday, in Deteſtation of our Religion; but that they do it very ſecretly, as having been ſeveral Times moſt exemplarily puniſhed for this abominable Crime.

JUDENBURG, the Sabathinca Norici of the Ancients, a Town of Germany, in the Upper Syria, on the River Muer, Nine Miles W. from Gratz, and two from the Borders of Carinthia. It belongs to the Houſe of Auſtria. Long. 35. 30. Lat. 47. 15. Baudr.

JUDGES, a Name given to thoſe who governed the Jewiſh Nation after Moſes, and before the Settlement of Kingly Government amongſt them. They were called in Hebrew, Sophetim; from whence the Carthaginians took the Name of their Sufes, and Sufetes in the Plural, which they gave to their Magiſtrates; therein imitating the Tyrians, their Anceſtors and Founders, who had for ſome Time Judges for their Soveraigns. Joſephus calls them Prophets, either becauſe ſome of them were ſo, or becauſe they were endowed with extraordinary Divine Gifts, which diſpoſed them for the performing of thoſe wonderful Actions recorded of them in the Scripture. We find two Places in the Bible, where theſe Judges are called Kings, Judg. 9. 6. and 18. 1. but improperly: They had no Power to pronounce Sentence either in Civil or Criminal Cauſes, (as Grotius affirms, upon the fifth chap. of St. Matth.) without the concurrence of the Sanhedrim; the Judges being only Governors of the Commonwealth, that had the Command of their Armies, and reſembled much the Sufetes of Carthage, and the Perpetual Archontes of Athens. Neither were the Carthaginians and Tyrians the only People that imitated the Hebrews, by giving the Name of Judges to their Soveraigns: The Goths alſo had their Judges in the IVth. Century; and Athanaricus, who began to rule over them about An. 369. would by no means take to him the Title of King, but only that of Judge; as taking the former to be a Name of Authority and Power, and the latter a Mark of Prudence and Conduct. Ferrand. Reflections ſur la Religion Chriſtienne.

JUDGMENT, Underſtanding, in Latin Mens, was a Deity worſhipped by the Romans; to whom they addreſſed their Prayers for a good and right Mind, or Underſtanding, Her Temple was in the Capitol. And Ovid ſpeaks of her in his Faſtorum, in theſe Words,

Mens quoque Numen habet, Mentis Delubra videmus.

The Greeks gave the Name of Νοῦς to this Deity: And Plato believed her to be nothing elſe but the Soul of the World, diffuſed through the Univerſe. Tit. Liv. Lib. 22. cap. 9. Cicero. Varro.

JUDIA, is the Metropolis of India extra Gangem, and the Kingdom of Siam. It lies in ſixteen Degrees of North Latitude, on one of the faireſt Rivers in all the Eaſtern World; ſo that Ships of the greateſt Burthen can unload at the Key. It is ſtrongly walled, though three Dutch Miles in compaſs; having round Towers inſtead of Baſtions, after the old-Faſhion. The Streets are long and ſpacious, and the River round the Town two Musket-ſhot over. The Royal Palace is more magnificent than any in the Indies, and ſtrongly fortified, (this was the State of it in 1650.) but in 1655. one Father Thomas, a Neapolitan Jeſuit, taught them to fortifie it after the Modern Way. In 1648. this City furniſhed their King with 52000 Men againſt the King of Ava, and a Navy of 20000 Praus, or Barges, for his Carriages. Struys, chap. 4. The River Menon on which it ſtands is a Branch of the famous Ganges, and overflows like the Nile.

JUDITH, an holy Widow amongſt the Jews, according to the Hiſtory we have of her in the Apocrypha. St. Auguſt. lib. 2. de Doct. Chriſt. cap. 18. & lib. 18. *de Civit. JUDITH, the Daughter of Guelphus, or Velpo, Count of Ravenſberg, or Altorf, in Bavaria, was the 2d. Wife of Lewis I. Emperor, and King of France, to whom ſhe was married at Franfort, in 819. He had before Children by Ermengarda. The wanton and ambitious Humour of this Judith being diſpleaſing to the People, they took up Arms, and put her into the Monaſtery of Our Lady at Laon, and forced her to take the Religious Habit, in 830 And ſhe was afterwards confined to the Monaſtery of Poictiers; but the next Year they reſtored her to her Husband, who had by her Charles the Bald. She died at Tours, April 19. 843. Mezerai Hiſt. de France.

JUDITH, the Daughter of Charles the Bald, was married to Ethelwolf and Ethelred, Kings of England, and after their Death returned to France, where Baldwin, ſurnamed Iron-Arm, Earl, or, as others ſay, Chief Foreſter of Flanders, run away with her. At which the King being incenſed, purſued him; but finding afterwards that it was with her Conſent, and that of her Brother Charles, ſurnamed The Stammerer, the King, at the Interceſſion of Pope Nicholas I. gave way to their Marriage, which was celebrated at Auxerre in 863.

JUDOIGNE, a Town of Brabant, on the River Gias, 12 Miles S. E. of Louvain, 16 N. of Namur, and 22 E. of Bruſſels, it belongs to the King of Spain.

St. IVES, a Market and Burrough-Town of Penrith-Hundred, in the fartheſt Parts of Cornwal, with a noted Haven upon the Severn Sea. From this Town the neighbouring Bay is called St. Ives Bay.

St. IVES, a goodly Market Town of Hurſtington-Hundred, in the Eaſt of Huntingtonſhire. So called, ſays our Author, from one Ivo, a Perſian Biſhop, who about An. 600. travelled through England, preaching the Goſpel, and ended his Days here, but his Body was removed ſoon after to Ramſey-Abby. Cambd.

IVES, or IVO, Biſhop of Chartres, who oppoſed King Philip I. of France, for leaving his Wife Bertha of Holland, and marrying Bertrada of Montfort, the Daughter of Fulk le Rechin Earl of Anjou; being reſolved never to allow of this Divorce, ſo contrary to the Laws of the Church. He was in that Eſteem for his Piety and Learning, that he was conſulted as the Oracle of his Time. He died Decemb. 22. or 23. 1115. or 16. being 80 Years of Age. He writ ſeveral Books, which we have now publiſhed by the Care of Joannes Baptiſta Souchet, Canon of Chartres, ſince An. 1647. in a great Volume, divided into two Parts: The Firſt contains the Decrets; and the Second, 287. Epiſtles, 22 Sermons, and one Chronicle. That which I call Decrees are Extracts of Eccleſiaſtical Regulations, Exceptiones Eccleſiaſticarum Regularum: Ivo himſelf declares that theſe Regulations are drawn from Councils, Epiſtles of Popes, and other Biſhops; from Orthodox Fathers and the Conſtitutions of Chriſtian Princes; this work is divided into XVII Parts, and printed by Joannes du Moulin, Profeſſor in Law, in 1561. It has likewiſe been re-printed ſince.

IVETOT, a Lordſhip in the Country of Caux in Normandy. Some Authors ſay, That it was made a Kingdom by Clotharius I. to make Satisfaction for his having killed Walter, the Lord thereof, with his own Hand, on Good-Friday, in the Church. See Pope Agapetus I.

IVETTE, or JUHRA. Guagninus placeth it on the Frozen Ocean, and the Maps between the Obb and the Tobol. Out of this Country the Hungarians firſt came; and ſettling on the Palus Mæotis, from thence paſſed into Pannonia, now Hungary, under Attila. The Ruſs brag much of this Province, and ſay, their Subjects ruined the Roman Empire. Their Language has ſtill an Affinity with the Hungarian Dialect.

JUGURTHA, King of Numidia, Enemy of the Romans. He was the Grandchild of Maſſiniſſa, who had Micipſa, his Succeſſor, and two other Sons, Manaſtabal and Guluſſa, by one of his Concubines; which Manaſtabal was the Father of Jugurtha, who had his Education in the Court of his Uncle Micipſa, where, upon ſeveral Occaſions, he gave ſignal Proofs of his Valour. Micipſa had two Sons, Adherbal and Hiempſal, whom he left under the Guardianſhip of Jugurtha, who, after he had cauſed the Latter to be put to death, in an hoſtile manner purſued the Former, that had made his Eſcape, and after having conquer'd him he took away his Life, contrary to Articles, upon the Surrender of Cirta. The Romans, whoſe Ally he was, taking his Part, proclaimed War againſt the Uſurper, who defended himſelf with his Money, by which Means, An. Rom. 643. corrupting the Conſul L. Calpurnius Beſtia, and the Roman Senators; he ſcattered their Army, and, in ſcorn, declared that Rome was to be ſold, and that any body that would go to the Price, might have her. But for all this, Q. Cæcilius Metellus defeated him, in 645, and two Years after, he was again vanquiſhed by Marius, and Bocchus King of Mauritania, his Father-in-law, delivered him bound Hands and Feet to Sylla, in 648, who delivered him to Marius; and ſo he was one of the Ornaments of their Triumphs, and afterwards being caſt into Priſon, died for grief. Salluſt. de Bell. Jugurth. Flor. lib. 2. Hiſt. Rom. cap. 2. Plutar. in Mar. & Sylla.

JUHORSKI, or JUHORA, a Province in the Northern Part of Muſcovy, with a City of the ſame Name, to which belongs the Iſland Kolgoi. Olearius's Travels to Muſcovy.

IVICA, Lat. Ebuſus, an Iſland belonging to Majorca, E. of Spain, and but Twenty Miles in compaſs, having a ſecure Haven on the South ſide of it; affords great plenty of Salt, and has no venomous Creature in it. It belongs to the Biſhop of Terragona, and is incompaſſed with Rocks, which makes the approach very dangerous.

IVINGO, a Market-Town of Colſlow Hundred in the Eaſt parts of Buckinghamſhire.

JULIA, the Daughter of Cæſar, and Wife of Pompey. Plutarch tells us, that ſhe died in Child-bed of a Daughter; and as ſhe was the Bond of Friendſhip between Cæſar and Pompey, her death ſoon produced thoſe Diſſentions, which proved the Overthrow of that Common-wealth.

JULIA, Wife to Septimius Severus a Roman Emperor, Daughter of Baſſianus Prieſt of the Sun: Aſtrologers, as Spartian Relates, had foretold that ſhe ſhould Marry a Soveraign Prince, for this reaſon, Severus when a Subject, made her his Wife, hoping to gain the Empire by the Intereſt of her Stars and Nativity; This Lady had a great deal of Wit, and was well qualified for the Management of Affairs, which ſome ſay, made her Husband give her a ſhare in the Government, tho' he had no great affection for her. She had a ſtrong Inclination for Philoſophy, and ſpent a great deal of time in the Converſation of Learned Men. 'Tis pity, we cannot ſay, her Vertue was equal to her Wit and Underſtanding; but to ſpeak plain, her behaviour was Scandalous: Some Hiſtorians pretend that after the Death of Severus, ſhe was guilty of an Inceſtuous Match with Caracalla her Husband's Son, but this is a great miſtake, for ſhe was Caracalla's own Mother, as well as Geta's: She had the misfortune, not to be able to keep a good underſtanding between her two Sons, tho' ſhe endeavoured it, to the uttermoſt. Geta, the youngeſt was killed, by Caracalla, in his Mother Julia's Arms, who was wounded her ſelf in the Fray, tho' ſhe never durſt complain in the leaſt, of the barbarity of the Action. After Caracalla was Aſſaſſinated, ſhe would have made her ſelf away, not out of grief or impatience for the Loſs of her Son, but becauſe ſhe was affraid, her Power and State would be taken from her, and that ſhe ſhould be reduced to the condition of a Private Perſon: for when ſhe found that Macrinus, Caracalla's Succeſſor us'd her well, ſhe forgot diſpatching her ſelf; but when ſhe underſtood, he reſented the ill Language ſhe had given him, upon the account of Caracalla's Murther, ſhe was afraid, Revenge would follow, and ſtarv'd her ſelf to prevent it. Herodian. Xiphilin, Spartian, Triſtan. Comment. Hiſtoriques, Tom. 2. pag. 113, &c. Bayle Diction. Hiſtor.

JULIA, the only Daughter of Auguſtus, infamous for her wanton and adulterous Life; he had her by Scribonia, and after having taken great care of her Education, he married her firſt to Marcellus, and afterwards to Agrippa, by whom ſhe had three Sons, and two Daughters, Caius Cæſar, Lucius Cæſar, Agrippa Poſthumus, Julia and Agrippina. Tiberius was the third Husband of Julia, who had by her a Child, who died young. She abandon'd her ſelf to all manner of Lewdneſs, which did ſo exaſperate her Father, that he baniſhed her to the Iſland Pandataria, and afterwards to the City of Rhegium. Julia was married to Tiberius, but diſdained him, as not worthy of that Honour; which, when he was come to the Empire, he revenged upon her, by reducing her to that Condition, that ſhe died of Hunger and great Miſery, An. Ch. 14. *Sueton. in Auguſt. & Tiber. Tacit. lib.*1. Annal.

JULIA, the Daughter of Agrippa and Julia, the Grand-child of Auguſtus. She was of the ſame looſe and lewd Inclinations with her Mother. She was married to Æmylius Lepidus, by whom ſhe had two Children. Auguſtus, for her Adulteries, baniſhed her, An. Ch. 9. to the Iſle of Trimetus, upon the Coaſt of Apuleia, where ſhe died, after 20 Years baniſhment, being maintained by the Empreſs Livia, who perſecuted the Houſe of Auguſtus, when it was in a flouriſhing Condition, and aſſiſted it, when afflicted. Tacit. lib. 4. Annal.

JULIA of Gonzaga, Dutcheſs of Trajetta, and Counteſs of Fondi, was renowned in the XVIth Century, for her Wit and Beauty. She was the Widow of Veſpaſian Colonna, and dwelt at Fondi. Barbaroſſa having heard of her Beauty, ſent ſome Forces to ſeize her by Night, intending to beſtow her for a Preſent on Solyman the Turkiſh Emperor; but the Town taking the Alarm, ſhe, in her ſhift, made an eſcape on Horſeback, whereat the Turks being enraged, ſet fire to the City. Thuanus.

JULIAN, ſurnamed The Apoſtate, was the Son of Julius Conſtantius, Brother of Conſtantine the Great, his Mother's Name was Baſilina. He learn'd the Rudiments of Grammar of the Eunuch Mardonius, a Heathen, at Conſtantinople. Ecebolius, an inconſtant Man in the Faith, inſtructed him in the Art of Rhetorick at Nicomedia, whither the Emperor had ſent him, to the end, that the Biſhop Euſebius, who was his Kinſman, by the Mother's ſide, might take care to educate him in Godlineſs, but he was wholly ſpoiled by Maximus a Philoſopher and Magician. His Couſin Conſtantius was informed of his Manners, and Julian fearing his reſentment, made himſelf a Monk, but tho' outwardly he carried himſelf as a good Chriſtian, he was a Heathen in ſecret. Before this time, his Brother Gallus and he were made Clerks, and diſcharged the Functions of Readers in the Church Aſſemblies; they were of very different Tempers, for having undertaken between them, at their own Charges, to build a Church in honour of Mammas, the Martyr, that part of it which Gallus undertook to build was ſoon finiſhed, but Julian's part did not advance at all, becauſe he did not urge the building. Some time after, Conſtantius, at the ſollicitation of his Wife Euſebia, declared him Cæſar, and in 355, he married Helena, the Emperor's Siſter. He had formerly been ſent into Gaul, where he over-threw the Barbarians, and vanquiſhed ſeven German Kings, reſtoring Peace to thoſe Provinces. He was Chaſte, Learned, Temperate, Vigilant, and Laborious, and outwardly, very Pious, which ſo gained him the Affection of the Roman Legions, that they Proclaimed him Emperor, in 360, and the Death of Conſtantius, whom he was going to meet in the Eaſt, either to juſtifie himſelf, or to fight him, made way for him to the Throne, in 361. Whereupon, he immediately cauſed the Heathen Idol-Temples to be opened, and their Worſhip to be reſtored, and took to himſelf the Quality of High-Prieſt, with all the Pagan Ceremonies; and by the Blood of Sacrifices, endeavoured to efface the Character of his Baptiſm. He re-called all the Hereticks from their Baniſhment, and reſtored the Donatiſts to their Places in Africa, and did not let ſlip the leaſt occaſion, that might prejudice the Chriſtians, whom, in contempt, he called Galileans; and burning in Malice againſt them to that degree, as to violate the Law of Nations, he did not ſtick to put to Death the King of Perſia's Ambaſſadors, becauſe they were Chriſtians. In diſpoſing of all Places, he preferred Idolaters before Chriſtians, whom he forbad to keep any publick Schools, and did his utmoſt endeavours to change the Holy Laws of the Church into Paganiſm: To this end, he purpoſed to erect publick Schools, where the Youth might be inſtructed in Pagan Religion and Manners, as well as in other Sciences; and to introduce the Singing by turns into the Idol-Temples, together with the Diſtinction of Places, the Forms of Prayers, and ſome reſemblance of publick Diſcipline or Penance, for the expiation of ſcandalous Crimes. He was going to build Hoſpitals for the Sick and Poor, and Monaſteries for the Virgins, but did not live to accompliſh theſe his Deſigns. Above all things, he did his utmoſt endeavour to make his Soldiers renounce Chriſtianity, eſpecially thoſe of the Prætorian Guard, but moſt of them choſe rather to loſe their Places and his Favour, than to Apoſtatize. Maris, Biſhop of Chalcedon, having, in publick, reproved him for his Impiety, he, without any mark of Paſſion, anſwered, That his Galilean, for all his Zeal, would not cure him of his Blindneſs. I bleſs my Saviour, replied Maris, that being blind, I need not pollute my Eyes with the beholding of ſuch an Apoſtate as you are; which the Emperor paſs'd by without ſaying any thing. He very much affected ſuch Actions of Clemency and Moderation, thereby to gain the more Credit to his wicked Deſigns. He gave leave to the Jews to re-build the Temple at Jeruſalem; and ſeeing himſelf neceſſitated to make War with the Perſians, he ſwore the Ruine of the Church, if ever he returned, but raſhly engaging with the Enemy, without his Coat of Armour, he received a Wound whereof he died. Theodoret ſaith, it was a common Report, That feeling himſelf wounded, he took a handful of his Blood, and caſting it upwards to Heaven, ſaid, Viciſti Galilæe, and ſo expired with that Blaſphemy. His death was revealed to St. Sabas, an Anchorete, who lived above 20 days Journey from the Field of Battel, and to ſome others. This happened June 26. and in the 31ſt Year of his Age. The Works we have of Julian, are a pregnant Teſtimony of his Excellent Parts, and great Learning. *Gregor. Nazian. In Orat. adver. Jul. Chryſoſt. Hieron. Socrat. Zozomen. Theodoret. Ammian. JULIAN, Earl of Ceuta, the chief City of a Government of the Goths in Spain, ſituate upon the Coaſt of Barbary, near to the Streights of Gibraltar, where the Goths poſſeſſed ſome places, in 710, who having underſtood that Roderigo, King of Spain, had raviſhed his Daughter Caba, diſſembled his reſentment for ſome time, and the Arabians having at that time a powerful Army in Africa, he made uſe of that Pretence, to get leave of the King to go to his Government, to have a watchful eye upon them, which, having obtained, he paſs'd over to Ceuta, whence he writ a Letter to the King, deſiring him to let his Daughter come over to ſee her Mother, before ſhe died, pretending that his Wife was ſick to Death, which being alſo granted him, he communicated his Deſign to Muza, General of the Army of the Caliph, of Damaſcus, who was then in Barbary, promiſing him, not only to put into his Hands all the Places belonging to his Government, but alſo to make him Maſter of all Spain, if he would lend him ſome of his Forces; whereupon, Muza having let him have 12000 Men, he therewith Conquered part of Spain, and made way for the Arabians, who gain'd it for the Caliph. But this unhappy Man, who had betrayed his King, being ſuſpected by Muza, for holding Correſpondence with the Chriſtians, had his Head cut off by his Order, in 717. Marmol. de l'Africk, lib. 2.

JULIAN, a certain pretended King of the Samaritans, under the Reign of Juſtinian, being taken, with his revolting Faction, was burnt.

JULIAN, the Uncle of Julian the Apoſtate, and Miniſter of his Cruelties, lived in the IVth Century, and died miſerably at Antioch, An. 363. He being on a time in the chief Church there, after having offered a thouſand Indignities to the Prieſts, made Water againſt the Altar, and Fœlix, the Comptroller of the Emperor's Revenue, ſeeing the ſumptuouſneſs of the Veſſels upon the Altar, ſaid, in a ſcornful way, See how richly the Son of Mary is ſerved; but the Divine Juſtice ſoon overtook them both, for Julian, by a terrible Diſeaſe in his Bowels, voided his Excrements at his Mouth, and Fœlix was choaked with his own Blood. Sozomen. Theod. Lib. III. cap. 12.

JULIAN, Biſhop of Pozzuolo, in the IVth Century. Pope Leo I. ſent him in 449 to the Council of Epheſus. Another of that Name, Biſhop of Coos, was Legate at the Council General of Chalcedon, for the ſame Pope.

JULIAN, a Pelagian, and Biſhop of Celene, lived in the Vth Century. He was the Son, according to ſome Authors, of Memorius, Biſhop of Capua, and an Intimate Friend of St. Auſtins, as we find by a Letter which he writ, when he ſent to him the 6th Book of Muſick for his Son Julian, that he greatly loved, and was very deſirous to ſee him. He had been married, and we have his Epithalamium, or Marriage-Song, amongſt the Poems of St. Paulinus. After his Wife's death, he was made a Deacon, and then Biſhop of Celene, a ſmall City of the Campagna di Roma. He was very Eloquent, and a Man of briſk and pleaſant Parts; the Fragments we have of his Works, in thoſe of St. Auſtin, are a full Evidence thereof. This Julian, having got a ſight of St. Auſtin's firſt Book of Marriage and Concupiſcence, he writ four in Confutation of it, and two Letters, one to ſtrengthen his Party at Rome, another to the Biſhop of Theſſalonica, to gain that Prelate to his Party. Theſe Letters being ſent to St. Auſtin, as containing ſeveral ſharp Reflections upon him, he writ four Books in anſwer to them, and having ſeen the four Books he had oppoſed to his Book of Marriage and Concupiſcence, he writ a ſecond in Defence of it, with the ſame Title; but Julian having writ an Anſwer to that alſo in eight Books, St. Auſtin ſet himſelf to refute them; and having already writ ſix Books, intending to refute them Book by Book, he died before the finiſhing of the other two. Theſe ſix Books of St. Auſtin, have been publiſhed by Claudius Menardus, and Vignierus, with ſeveral other Works of the ſame Father. At laſt, Julian was driven from his Church, and being Excommunicated, died miſerably. Proſper. in Chron. Baron. A. C. 419. & ſeq. Godeau. Hiſt. Eccleſ. V. ſec.

JULIAN of Halicarnaſſus, an Heretick, and Head of the Phantaſtæ, or Incorruptibiles, Enemies of the Council of Chalcedon.

JULIAN (Haſart) a Carmelite of Hainault, and Author of the Chronicles of Hainault, Flanders, Zealand, Holland, Freizland, Brabant, Guelderland, &c. He died in 1525.

St. JULIAN (de Pyro) or Of the Pear-Tree, an Order of Knighthood in Spain, Inſtituted by Pereiro, whereof Ferdinand II. declared himſelf the Protector, and Pope Alexander III. approved it. Their firſt Arms were, a Croſs Fleury vert, charged with a Scutcheon, a Pear-Tree proper. This Order was afterwards joined to that of Alcantara. Mariana de reb. Hiſpan.

JULIAN of Toledo, Archbiſhop of that City, flouriſhed in the VIIth Century, and preſided at the 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th Councils of Toledo. He was the Author of Commentaries upon Nahum, Prognoſticarum ſive de Origine Mortis humanæ, de futuro ſeculo, & de futuræ vitæ contemplatione, lib. 3. and a Chronicle. He died March 8. An. Ch. 690. Fœlix of Toledo in Add. ad lib. de vir. illuſtr. ſanct. Adelph.

JULIAN Period, is a Revolution of 7980 Julian-Years, compoſed of 3 Cycles; to wit, of the Sun, conſiſting of 28 Years, of the Moon, of 19, and of the Indiction, of 15 Years, which is done thus; they take for the firſt Year of this Period, that which hath the firſt of the Cycle of the Sun, firſt of the Cycle of the Moon, and the firſt of the Indiction Cycle, and it muſt make 7980 Years, to return to a Year, marked with the ſame number of each Cycle. The following Table, is very neceſſary to conceive an eaſie Idea of this Period.

It was Joſeph Scaliger, or l'Eſcale, who flouriſhed about 1580, that invented this Period, joining the 3 Cycles together, in imitation of Victorius, a Native of Aquitain, a very able Chronologer, who lived in the Time of Pope Leo and Hilarius, his Succeſſor, about 460, who having joined the Cycles of the Sun, and of the Moon, compoſed a Period called the Victorian, that took in 532 Years; others attribute this Invention of the Victorian Period to Dionyſius Exiguus, a learned Abbot, and a Scythian born, who flouriſhed at Rome in the Reign of Theodoricus, King of the Oſtrogoths, and of his Grandſon Athalaricus, from An. Ch. 520. until 533, and 'tis for that reaſon they call it the Dionyſian Period; but they are miſtaken, for he hath only given it another beginning, applying it to the Year of the Nativity of the Meſſias, for to begin again, in 533, and to continue to the end of the World. The principal uſe of the Julian Period, is to have a firm and ſtable Rule for the computing of Years, amidſt the different Opinions of Chronologers, who do not agree in the Epocha, and Calculation of Years from the Creation of the World; for this Period includes all the Years ſince the Creation of the World, which it is Prior to Even, according to all Chronologers. Thus if you make uſe of this Period to note the Chronology, there will be no room left to doubt of the time Noted, which does not come to paſs, in diſtinguiſhing the Time by the Epocha's. For when a Chronologiſt, for Example, notes the Year of the World 3001, I cannot tell what he means, if I do not know he reckons 4053 Years before the Birth of Chriſt; and that according to him, the firſt of the World is the firſt of theſe 4053; but if he notes the Year 3661, of the Julian Period, I can clearly perceive what his meaning is, for that this Period does not vary at all, but is always the ſame.

A Reduction of the Years of the Julian Period, to the Years before Jeſus Chriſt.

The firſt Year after the Nativity of our Lord Chriſt, had, according to the common Opinion, 10 of the Sun, 2 of the Moon, and 4 of the Indiction; theſe Characters are thoſe of the 4714th Year of the Julian Period; wherefore, when we read in a Chronological Hiſtory, that a thing happened in the 3661ſt of the Julian Period, for Example, you muſt ſubſtract from this Number 4714, thus:

$$\begin{array}{r} 4714 \\ 3661 \\ \hline 1053 \end{array}$$

And ſo you come to underſtand, that the 3661 Year of the Julian Period, is the 1053 Year before the Nativity of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Le P. Petav. de Doct. Temp.

JULIERS, Lat. Juliacum, by the Germans, Gulick, a City and Dukedom of Germany, joining to the Low-Countries. It is ſituate upon the River Roer, being an ancient and ſtrong City, and gives its Name to the whole Dukedom, which lies between the Maeſe and the Rhine, the Country of Cleves and Limburg, the Biſhoprick of Liege and the Archbiſhoprick of Cologne; it contains ſeveral other conſiderable Cities, beſides that of Aken or Aix la Chapelle, the Chief whereof are Duren, Linnich, Aldenhoven, Zulpich (ſuppoſed to be the ancient Tolbiacum) Grevembruck. famous by the Defeat of the Imperialiſts in 1648, Heinsberg, Kerpen, Erkelens, Dolin, &c. The Dukedom of Juliers is about 12 Leagues in length, and 7 in breadth. Some Authors take for granted, that Julius Cæſar built Juliers, tho' others are of Opinion, it was built by Druſus. The City of Juliers is defended by a ſtrong Citadel, it was taken by the Spaniards in 1622, but was reſtored to the Duke of Newburg by the Pyrenæan Treaty, in 1659. This City is 24 Miles W. of Cologne, 15 N. E. of Aix la Chapelle, 34 N. E. of Maeſtricht, 66 N. of Triers, and 84 E. of Bruſſels. See Cleves.

JULIUS I. Pope, a Roman Citizen, and Deacon of the Church, ſucceeded Mark in 336, and, according to Baronius, immediately aſſembled a Council of 116 Biſhops, to conſult of Means to aſſiſt their diſtreſſed Brethren perſecuted in the Eaſt, by the Arrians, tho' the exacter Chronologers will have it in 340, when St. Athanaſius's Affair was examined. This Synod acknowledged his Innocence, and admitted him to its Communion, having expected his Accuſers 18 Months. Pope Julius called a ſecond Synod upon his, and other perſecuted Prelate's account, and wrote a Letter to the Arrian Biſhops, quoted by St. Athanaſius, wherein he blames their prejudice and paſſion. In the mean time, he re-eſtabliſhed the baniſhed Biſhops. He died in 352, and was ſucceeded by Liberius. Platina adds, That he cenſur'd the Eaſtern Biſhops, for calling a Council at Antioch, without the Command of the Biſhop of Rome, to which they returned this Anſwer, That ſince the Chriſtian Princes came from them to the Weſt, for this reaſon their Church ought to have the preference, as being the Fountain from whence ſo great a Bleſſing flow'd. He conſtituted likewiſe, That no Clergyman ſhould plead, but before an Eccleſiaſtical Judge, and that Protonotaries ſhould write all memorable Occurrences belonging to the Church. Platina.

JULIUS II. Native of the Borough Albizole near Savona, and called Julian de la Rovere, before his Election, was made Cardinal in 1473, by Pope Sixtus IV. his Uncle. He Commanded the Troops employed againſt the Inhabitants of Ombria, who had Revolted, and came Legate to France in 1480. He was Head of a Party in four Conclaves, and managed his Buſineſs ſo well, that he was choſen after Pius II. in 1503, by almoſt all the Cardinals, whom he had poſſeſſed with great hopes, that he would re-eſtabliſh the Honour of the Holy See, and the Liberty of Italy. His inclination to War made him take the Name of Julius, in Memory of Julius Cæſar, and in Emulation of that of Alexander VI. He wore his Beard long, contrary to the Cuſtom of his Predeceſſors, to render himſelf the more grave and venerable. He favoured France before his Election, and was ſhelter'd there by Lewis XII. from Alexander VI. his Enemy; but afterwards changed his Conduct. He Excommunicated thoſe that thwarted his Deſigns: Among the reſt, Alphonſus d'Eſte, Duke of Ferrara; and endeavoured to deprive him of his Dutchy, in 1510. He gave Navarre to the King of Spain, who uſurped it from John D'Albert; and would have done the like to Lewis XII. becauſe he ſuffered the Prelates to meet at Tours and Piſa, and intended to have beſtowed the Title of Moſt Chriſtian on the King of England. He commanded his Army in Perſon. The loſs of the Battel of Ravenna in 1512, and his Trouble for not being able to bring the Venetians and Emperor to an Accommodation, threw him into a lingering Fever, whereof he died in 1513, or 14, aged 70 Years, after he had held the See 9 Years, 3 Months, and 21 Days. Guichardin. Paul. Jov.

JULIUS III. a Roman, who was made Cardinal by Paul III. in 1536, and ſent Legate to Lombardy, Romania and Bolonia, and named Preſident of the Council held there. He ſucceeded this Paul in 1550. He acted with ſo much ſeverity when Cardinal, that the Conclave had ſome difficulty to chuſe him Pope. He begun his Government with a Jubilee; and ordered, that the General Council removed from Trent, ſhould return thither again. Then he joined with the Emperor againſt the Duke of Parma, protected by King Henry II. of France. He died in 1555, after 5 Years and 44 Days Reign.

JULIUS Canus, an illuſtrious Roman, who having had ſome Words with the Emperor Caligula, he, at his going away, ſaid to him, Pray, do not deceive your ſelf with a vain Hope; for I have given Order for your Execution. To which Canus, without the leaſt Emotion, ſaid, I heartily thank you, great Prince. Ten days after, as he was playing at Cheſs, a Centurion came to fetch him to the Place of Execution; to whom having nodded, to ſignify his readineſs to go along with him, he looked over his Game; and finding that he had the better of it, ſaid to his Companion, Don't you ſay now, after I am dead, that you beat me. And then turning to the Centurion, ſaid to him, Pray, be you my Witneſs, that I had the better of this Game thus far. With this aſtoniſhing Unconcernedneſs and Conſtancy, did this great Man outbrave Death. Senec. de Tran. Animi, cap. 14.

JUMALA, an Idol-God of the Inhabitants of Finland and Lapland, repreſented by the Figure of a Man ſitting upon a kind of Altar, having a Crown upon his Head ſet with 12 precious Stones, and a great Chain of Gold about his Neck. The Laplanders ſuppoſed this Idol-God to have the Command over all leſſer Gods; with an abſolute Dominion over the Elements, Life and Death. He held on his Knees a great Cup of Gold, filled with Money of the ſame Metal. His Temple was in a Foreſt. Scheffer's Hiſtory of Lapland.

JUNIUS (Adrianus) was born at Horn in Holland, in 1513. He was very skilful in the Languages, the Polite part of Learning, and Phyſick; and travelled into France, Spain, Italy, Germany and England, where he practiſed Phyſick for ſome Time, and in 1554, publiſhed there a Poem, called Philippis, upon the Marriage of Philip II. of Spain with our Queen Mary. Afterwards returning to Holland, he ſettled himſelf at Haerlem; and in 1572. retired to Middleburg, and from thence to Armuiden, where he died An. 1575. He was Author of the following Works, De Anno & Menſibus, Animadverſorum Lib. VI. De Coma, Batavia, Poemata, &c. He alſo publiſhed ſeveral Treatiſes of the Ancients, as, Heſychius de Iis qui eruditionis famâ claruerunt. Eunapius de Vitis Sophiſtarum, &c. Janus Douſa in Manib. Jun. Meurſius in Ath. Batav. Melchior Adam in Vit. Germ. Medic. Valer. Andr. Vander Linden, &c.

JUNIUS (Franciſcus) was born at Bourges, May 1. 1545, and ſtudied the Law there; and having embraced Proteſtantiſm, he retired to Geneva, where he profeſſed the learned Languages, and Divinity; and coming into the Low-Countries, he was Miniſter at Antwerp, Ghent, Bruges, Limburg, and elſewhere, till in 1592, he was choſen Profeſſor of Divinity at Leyden, where he died Octob. 13. 1602, being 57 Years of Age. He tranſlated the Bible out of Hebrew into Latin, with Tremellius, and writ Commentaries upon Geneſis, the Book of Pſalms, Ezekiel, Goſpel of St. Matthew, &c. Alſo a Treatiſe againſt Pope Gregory XIII. and another againſt Cardinal Bellarmine. Merula in Deſcript. Vit. Junii. Meurſius in Ath. Batav. Melchior Adam in Vit. Theol. Extern.

JUNIUS (Melchior) was a German, born at Wittemberg, in 1545. He ſtudied at Strasburg, where he was a Profeſſor of good Repute. He died Jan. 13. 1604. He writ ſome Pieces of Rhetorick. See his Life in Melchior Adam.

JUNNAN, a Province and City of China, on the Weſt of that Country, towards the Kingdom of Tunquin. It is a great and conſiderable Province, and, beſides the Capital, from which it takes its Names, it has the Cities of Lingan, Tali, Chinkiang, &c. Martin Martini Atlas.

JUNO, the Goddeſs of Kingdoms and Riches, was the Daughter of Saturn and Rhea, otherwiſe called Cybele and Ops, being, together with Jupiter, her Brother, delivered from Saturn, who would have devoured them; ſhe was afterwards married to Jupiter, who had by her Ilithuia, Mena, and Hebe the Goddeſs of Youth. She was alſo the Mother of Mars, whom ſhe conceived only by touching a Flower which the Goddeſs Flora had ſhewed her; and ſo was even with Jupiter, who had brought forth Pallas without her Aſſiſtance. She was extreamly Jealous, and a bitter Enemy of her Husband's Miſſes; as, of Europa, Semele, Io, Latona, &c. The Ancients gave Juno ſeveral Names, and believed that ſhe bathed her ſelf every Year in a certain Fountain, where ſhe ſtill recovered her Virginity. The Philoſophers take her for the Air, and for this Reaſon Iris was ſaid to be her Meſſenger. Cartari de Imag. Deor. Natalis Comes. Lilius Gyrald.

JUPITER, whom the Heathens call The Father of the Gods and Men, was the Son of Saturn and Cybele, who perceiving that her Husband devoured her Children, and fearing he ſhould do the ſame to Jupiter and Juno, of whom ſhe was newly delivered, ſhe laid down a Stone inſtead of them, which he devoured. In the mean time Jupiter was Nurſed in Crete, amidſt the noiſe of the Corybantes, that his Father Saturn might not hear his Cries, with the Milk of the She-Goat Amalthea, who afterwards, in Recompence of her good Service, was tranſlated amongſt the Stars. The Ancients beſtowed a Number of Names upon him. Cicero ſaith, There were three Jupiters; but others went far beyond him, and inſtead of his 3, found 300, being a part of the 30000 Gods owned by the Heathens. Nevertheleſs, all the Actions of theſe different Jupiters are attributed to one only, who conquered the Titans and Giants, was the Father of Mercury, Apollo and Minerva, and who, to ſatisfie his Luſt, transformed himſelf ſo oft into a Beaſt, Bird, &c. The Heathen Divinity ſeems by Jupiter to underſtand, that Intelligence which created the World; whom they therefore called Μοιραγέτης, or Conductor and Director of the Parcæ, or Fates; as being that Mind which orders all thoſe Things, which the Weakneſs of Men impute to Fate and Deſtiny. Pauſanias aſſures us, That the Greeks had a Statue of Jupiter with three Eyes, to intimate his Knowledge of all Things in Heaven, Earth and Hell; or of Things paſt, preſent, and to come. The Poets tell us, That when Jupiter was come to Man's Eſtate, he drove away his Father Saturn from his Throne, and divided the Empire of the World with his two Brothers; Jupiter being Lord of Heaven and Earth, Neptune of the Seas, and Pluto of Hell. He was at firſt called Jovis, to which by adding the Word Pater, they made Jupiter: Which firſt Name hath a great Reſemblance with the Name of God in Hebrew. Varro tells us, That the Sepulchre of Jupiter was to be ſeen at Crete in his Time. They repreſented him ſitting on an Ivory-Throne, holding a Scepter in his Left-Hand, and a Thunder-bolt in his Right, wherewith he ſtruck the Giants, and an Eagle between his Legs, which Truſs'd Ganymede. Philoſophers ſay, That by Jupiter we are to underſtand the Heavens, or the Sun; as Plato. Others make him to be the Soul of the World. Voſſius de Theol. Gentili. We may obſerve, That the ancient Name of Jupiter, amongſt the Greeks, was not Ζεῦς but Ζὰν, and that Zanni, in the Phœnician Language, ſignifies, A Man addicted to Women. This Zan reigned in Theſſaly, near to Mount Olympus. See the Hiſtorical Explication of the Fable of Ceres. Biblioth. Univerſelle, T. VI.

JUPITER Ammon, who was worſhipped in Africa, was ſo called from the Word Amun, which, according to Plutarch and Jamblichus, ſignifies Hidden, or Obſcure, in the Egyptian Language. He was repreſented in the Figure of a Ram, from his Head to the middle of his Body. And his Horns were made of a Stone, reſembling Gold, having a vertue, as the Egyptians believ'd, to afford extraordinary Viſions to thoſe that ſlept near them. His Statue was made up of Emeralds, and other precious Stones, as Quintus Curtius and Diodorus relate. Authors cannot agree about the Reaſon why he was repreſented in the Form of a Ram. Macrob. I, Saturnalium.

JUPITER Capitolinus, ſo called becauſe of the Temple which Tarquinius Priſcus had built for him on the Capitol. Here it was that the Conſuls of Rome ſacrificed the ſame Day that they entred on their Functions; and here they put on their Conſular Robes. The Generals of Armies and Emperors made their Vows and Prayers in this Temple, before they went to fight the Enemy; and when they had gained the Victory, they enter'd the ſame in Triumph. The Senate alſo met here ſometimes, in Caſes of greateſt moment and difficulty. There was a ſecret Place in this Temple, where were kept the Books of the Sybils, and two Crowns of Gold dedicated to Jupiter, the one by the Gauls, and the other by the Carthaginians, by way of Congratulation to the Romans, for their Victory over the Samnites. In this Temple alſo was a Statue of Victory of Maſſy Gold. There were two other Temples joined to this; on the Right Hand that of Minerva, and on the Left that of Juno. Corn. Tacit. Tit. Liv. A. Victor.

JUPITER Conſervator, ſo called by Domitian, who having hid himſelf to eſcape the Fury of Vitellius, after that he ſaw himſelf in Safety by his Father Veſpaſian's coming to the Throne, dedicated an Altar to Jupiter Conſervator, to whom he ſuppoſed himſelf beholden for that Favour. And after that he was come to the Empire he built a magnificent Temple on the Capitol to Jupiter Cuſtos. Corn. Tacit. lib. 3. Suet. in Domit.

JUPITER Elicius, a Surname given to Jupiter, after that Numa Pompilius II. King of Rome had drawn him down from Heaven, to learn of him the Skill of Soothſaying from Thunder and Lightning; which having obtained, or got out of him, as Elicere ſignifies, he built an Altar in honour of him, under this Name, and ſacrificed there to him in ſuch manner as himſelf had ordained: Which Ceremonies being not exactly performed by Tullus Hoſtilius, his Houſe was ſtruck with Lightning, and he and his Family burnt thereby. Tit. Liv. lib. 1.

JUPITER Feretrius, was ſo called from the Latin Word Ferre, to carry, becauſe Romulus having vanquiſhed the King of the Ceninenſes, a People neighbouring upon the Romans, he carried the Spoils of that King in Triumph to Mount Capitoline, upon a wooden Bier called Feretrum, and conſecrated them to Jupiter; faſtening them to an Oak in the ſame Place where he deſigned to build a Temple: And ordered, that all the Roman Conquerors for Time to come, ſhould offer their Spoils to this Jupiter Feretrius. Others ſuppoſe, that he was ſo called from the Word Ferire, which ſignifies, to ſmite, or ſlay, becauſe the Spoils conſecrated to this God were ſuch only as the General of an Army had taken from the Enemy's General, having firſt killed him. The Kings of Rome, at their Inauguration, went to this Temple of Jupiter Feretrius, to receive the Scepter. Here alſo they took the Stone, or Flint, which they made uſe of in the making of any Alliance. The Ceremony was this, They held the Flint in their Hand whilſt they ſwore to the Treaty; and then caſting away the ſame, ſaid, If I break my Oath, may Jupiter throw me away as I throw this Stone. Tit. Liv. Corn. Nep. in Attic.

JUPITER Imperator, ſo called, either becauſe his Empire reacheth over all, or becauſe he is the Director of Emperors, or Generals of Armies; giving them the Victory, or overthrowing them, according to his Pleaſure. Titus Quintius, Dictator, having vanquiſhed the Præneſtini, brought this their Idol with him to the Capitol.

JUPITER Inventor, was ſo called by Hercules, after that he had found his Oxen which Cacus had got into his Cave, near to Mount Palatine, about A. M. 2816. To whom he erected an Altar, and offered Sacrifice to him, according to the Ceremonies of the Gracians; which was afterwards continued by the Latins, and from them derived to the Romans. When Rome was built, this Altar was placed in the 6th Quarter, or Ward, of the City, called The Great Circus. Tit. Liv. lib. 1.

JUPITER Latialis, ſo called when the Latins enter'd into Alliance with Tarquinius Superbus King of the Romans; and when both theſe People, together with the Volſci and Hernici, who were joined with them, ſet a-part a certain Time in the Year to ſacrifice to Jupiter, on Mount Albanus in Latium; which Mountain is now called Monte Cavo, near to the City Alba, where they celebrated the Feriæ Latinæ, or Latin-Feſtivals, or Holy-Days. Halicarnas.

JUPITER Piſtor, or The Baker, ſo called by the Romans, becauſe he had advertiſed them in a Dream to bake a vaſt quantity of Bread, and to throw them into the Camp of the Gauls, who were then beſieging the City; whereat the Gauls were quite diſcouraged; and deſpairing to reduce the Romans, by Famine, to ſurrender their City, they broke up the Siege. Livy.

JUPITER Sponſor had this Name given him when Tarquinius Superbus built him a Temple at Rome, which was dedicated in the 288th Year after the Building of that City. He was alſo called Dius Fidius, being ordinarily called upon for the performing of Promiſes, and keeping of ones Word. Dionyſ. Halicarnaſ. lib. 9.

JUPITER Stator was called by this Name, for having ſtopped the Flight of the Romans, when they were purſued by the Sabines, who had already made themſelves Maſters of the Capitol. Romulus ſeeing his Forces routed, made a Vow to Jupiter of Building him a Temple, if he would favour him ſo far as to rally his Forces, and to give him Victory over his Enemies. Whereupon, immediately the Romans took Courage again; and returning upon the Sabines, chaſed them out of Rome. After this Victory, Romulus built the Temple he had Vowed, at the bottom of Mount Palatine. Alſo M. Attilius Regulus, Conſul, An. Rom. 460, being engaged in Battel with the Samnites, made a Vow to build a Temple to the ſame Jupiter Stator; which, after having gained the Victory, he performed, by building a Temple to him in the Flaminian Circus. The Senate ſometimes met in the Temple of Jupiter Stator, as Cicero informs us. Tit. Liv. Macrob.

JUPITER Ultor, that is, The Avenger; ſo called, becauſe they ſuppoſed him the Puniſher of all Crimes. Agrippa, Son-in-Law to the Emperor Auguſtus, built a Temple in honour of him, which he called Pantheon, either becauſe, being round, it repreſented the Heaven, which is the Abode of all the Gods; or becauſe it contained the Figures of all the Deities worſhipped by the Romans. The Dome of this Temple was covered with Plates of Silver, which the Emperor Conſtantius II. took away, and put Lead in their place. Pope Boniface VI. conſecrated it to God, in honour of the Bleſſed Virgin and Martyrs. Since which Time it hath been called Sancta Maria della Rotonda. Dionyſ. Halicarnaſ.

JURA, Mount Jura, or Mount of St. Claudius, a Mountain which reacheth from the River Rhine, to the Neighbourhood of Geneva, near the Rhone. The Mountain called The Great Credo, which runs along by that River, 4 Leagues beneath Geneva, is a part of this Mountain; which the French, Switzers and Germans, call by different Names. This Mountain made that ancient famous Diviſion of Burgundy, whereby it was divided into Burgundia Transjurana, and Cisjurana, as is elſewhere mentioned.

IVREA, Lat. Eporedia, a City of Piedmont, on the River Dotiabalta, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Turin, and a Marquiſate, belonging to the Duke of Savoy. This City, according to the Opinion of ſome Authors, was built 100 Years before the Birth of our Saviour, and is ſituate in the Country of the ancient Salaſſi, and gave its Name to this Marquiſate, which formerly was ſo famous under Berengarius, who contended for the Empire with the French, deſcended from the Kings of Arles. Anſcharius was Marquis of Ivrea in 870. The Town is 22 Miles N. of Turin, 29 E. of Suſa, and 32 W. of Vercelli. Long. 27. 33. Lat. 44. 55.

IVRY, Lat. Ibregium, a little Town of France, with a ſtrong Caſtle, on the River Eure in Normandy; famous for a Victory obtained by Henry the Great, over the Leaguers.

JUSTEL, JUSTELLUS (Chriſtophorus,) Counſellor and Secretary to the French King, was born at Paris in 1580. He was a Perſon of excellent Parts, and had great inclination for Learning; in which he made an extraordinary Progreſs. Having finiſhed his Studies at the Univerſity, he applied himſelf to the Study of Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, and the Councils, and, at the Intreaty of his Friends, publiſhed his Codex Eccleſiæ Univerſæ, and The Councils of Africa, with Notes. To which he afterwards added other rare Pieces; as, ſeveral Collections of Greek and Latin Canons, taken from Manuſcripts: Whence the Bibliotheca Juris Canonici veteris was compoſed; which Henry Juſtel, his Son, and William Voel, publiſhed in 1661, at Paris, in two Volumes in Folio; in which are contained the following Pieces: Codex Canonum Eccleſiæ Univerſæ, Græce & Latine. Codex Dionyſii Exigui Latinus. Codex Carthaginenſis Eccleſiæ. Breviarium Fulgentii, Ferrandi ac Creſconii. Martini Bracarenſis Collectio Canonum Orientalium. Creſconii Concordia Canonum. Græci Canonum Collectores, Joan. Antiochenus, Joan. Scholaſticus, Alexius Ariſtinus, Simeon Logotheta, Photius cum Commentario, & Paratitlis Balſamonis. Varia Synodica, cum Notis variorum. Chriſtophorus Juſtellus, An. 1645. publiſhed his Genealogical Hiſtory of the Houſe of Auvergne, from Records, and other Authentick Proofs: Which is a very curious Piece, illuſtrating many Particulars of the French Hiſtory. He held a Correſpondence with all the moſt famous and learned Men of his Time, and more particularly, with the Moſt Reverend Archbiſhop Uſher, Sir Henry Spelman, Salmaſius, Blondel, and many others. He died at Paris in 1649, being 69 Years of Age. Beſides the Works already mentioned, he compoſed a Sacred Geography, which is not yet publiſhed, becauſe he left it imperfect.

St. JUSTIN, a Chriſtian Philoſopher and Martyr, who lived in the IId Century. He was born at Sichem, called Napoulouſe. And having before been a Platonick Philoſopher, was miraculouſly converted to the Faith, which himſelf hath related in his Writings. Since that Time he was an Honour to the Chriſtian Religion, as well by his Knowledge, as by his Life, and the great Strength of his Faith. A Perſecution being raiſed by Antoninus, Adrian's Succeſſor, he writ an Apology, which is the Second in his Works, wherein he clears the Chriſtians from the Crimes imputed to them by the Heathens: As, That they were uſed to kill an Infant in their Aſſemblies, to eat the Fleſh of it, and to defile themſelves with Inceſt at their Nocturnal Meetings. After this he writ another Apology, wherein he ſhews the Innocence and Holineſs of the Chriſtian Religion, againſt Creſcens the Cynick Philoſopher, and ſome other Slanderers: Which procured for him the Crown of Martyrdom on June 1. according to the Greek Account, or April 13. according to the Roman Martyrology, A. C. 163. Beſides theſe two Apologies, we have alſo his Dialogue with Trypho, a learned Jew; his Parænesis ad Gentes; a Treatiſe of the Monarchy or Unity of God. There is alſo aſcribed to him, An Expoſition of the Faith, An Epiſtle to Zena and Serenus, Queſtions of the Gentiles, Queſtions and Anſwers of the Orthodox, &c. Sixtus Senenſ. Baron. Poſſevin. Bellarm.

JUSTIN I. Emperor of the Eaſt, ſucceeded Anaſtaſius, July 9. 518. He, from a Swine-herd, became a Soldier; and, after having paſſed all the Degrees of Military Advancement, was raiſed to one of the chiefeſt Places of the Empire; and whilſt he was in this Poſt, the Prætorian Guard made him Emperor againſt his Will. As ſoon as he was advanced to the Throne, he re-called all the Exiled Biſhops, put down the Hereticks that had got into their Places, commanded the Obſervation of the Council of Chalcedon, and publiſhed very ſevere Edicts againſt the Arrians, who thereupon implored the Aſſiſtance of Theodorick King of the Goths, who forced Pope John II. to go to Conſtantinople in 523, to compoſe that Affair; whom Juſtin received with Joy. But upon the News in 526, that an Earthquake had almoſt wholly overthrown the City of Antioch, he was ſo extreamly afflicted, that laying aſide his Imperial Purple and Diadem, he covered himſelf with Sack-cloth, and ſpent many Days in Silence, refuſing to ſpeak to any one whatever; ſo deeply was he affected to ſee the Wrath of God in ſuch a ſignal manner diſplayed againſt his People. Many other Cities in the Eaſt were laid waſte by the ſame Misfortune; for the Re-building of which, the Emperor furniſhed great Sums out of his Treaſury, and changed the Names of Anazarba and Edeſſa into Juſtinopolis. Finding himſelf old and crazy, he Named Juſtinian, his Siſters Son, to be his Succeſſor, and died about 4 Months after, Aug. 1. 527. being the 9th of his Reign, Aged 77. Zonaras Tom. III. Annal. Evagr. lib. 4, &c.

JUSTIN II. or The Younger, was the Son of Dulciſſimus and Vigilantia, the Siſter of Juſtinian, whom he ſucceeded in 566. He began his Reign very well, but it was not long till he evidenced the viciouſneſs of his inclination, by abrogating a Law which his Grand-father Juſtinian had made, againſt unlawful Marriages. He had a Couſin of the ſame Name, who Commanded an Army on the Danube, to hinder the Incurſions of the Barbarians. Before Juſtin was declared Emperor, their Pretenſions were equal, and therefore they had made an Agreement, That which ever came to the Throne, ſhould make the other the Chief Perſon of the Empire next himſelf; but contrary to this Engagement, he ſends for him to Conſtantinople, and having thence Ordered him to go to Alexandria, he got him ſtrangled there in his Bed, An. Ch. 567. He alſo cauſed the two Senators, Etherius and Addæus, to be put to death. The continual Complaints of the Poor that were Oppreſſed by the Great Ones, made him nominate a Prætor, with Power to ſeize any Perſon, how great ſoever, even at the Emperor's Table. Soon after, the Empire being Invaded by the Avari, Lombards and Perſians, it ſo troubled him, that he grew Diſtracted; whereupon the Empreſs Sophia was forced to make Peace with the Perſians, and Tiberius was declared Cæſar to ſupport the weight of the Empire, during the Indiſpoſition of Juſtinus, who died 577, or 578, after having Reigned 12 or 13 Years. Zonar. in Annal. Evagr. lib. 5. Hiſt. Paul. Diacon.

JUSTIN the Hiſtorian, lived, according to the moſt probable Opinion, under the Reign of Antoninus Pius in the IId Century. He abridged the Hiſtory of Trogus Pompeius. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 1. cap. 32.

JUSTINA, the Wife of Magnentius the Tyrant, and afterwards married to Valentinian the Elder, was the Mother of Valentinian the Younger, and of Galla, married to Theodoſius. The Arrians having inveigled the Spirit of this Princeſs, ſhe with great Obſtinacy maintained their Errors, and perſecuted the Orthodox, and more eſpecially the Prelates, with an extream fury; it was at her inſtigation, that Valentinian, her Husband, refuſed to ſee St. Martin of Tours, and that her Son, Valentinian the Younger, was not very favourable to St. Ambroſe, who having refuſed to grant a Church to the Arrians in Milan, the Empreſs was ſo enraged thereat, that ſhe reſolved to ruine him; tho' afterwards ſhe was fain to make uſe of the ſaid St. Ambroſe, to bring the Uſurper Maximus to Terms; and ſome time after, retiring to Theſſalonica with her Son, ſhe died there in 388. St. Ambroſ. Epiſt. ad Marcel. Zoſim. lib. 4. Sozomen lib. 7. Rufin. Socrat. Baronius.

JUSTINIAN I. was the Son of Juſtin the Elder, called Vigilantio, and of Sabatius. He was made Nobiliſſimus, and afterwards Cæſar and Auguſtus, April 1. 527, and ſome Months after ſucceeded him. He conquered the Perſians, by Beliſarius his General, in 528, and by his means alſo, in 542, and 43, he exterminated the Vandals, having taken their King Gilimer. He regained Africa, ſubdued the Goths in Italy, made their King Vitiges his Priſoner, defeated the Moors, vanquiſhed the Rebelling Samaritans, and reſtored the Roman Empire to that high pitch of Glory, at which it was arrived during its firſt Emperors; having before this cruſhed the threatning Rebellion of Hypatius, Pompeius and Probus, Nephews of the Emperor Anaſtaſius, which had taken its riſe from the two Parties or Factions of the Circus, called The Green, and The Light Blue. This Sedition was ſo formidable, that Juſtinian ſuppoſing all loſt, was about to quit the Palace, but being re-aſſured by the Empreſs, and courageouſly defended by Beliſarius and Mundus, the Rebels were Defeated, and afterwards Executed. Juſtinian ſeeing himſelf thus at Peace on all hands, reſolved to Collect all the Roman Laws into one Body, and having choſen ten of the ableſt Men of the Empire for this Work, to compile the ſame from the Gregorian, Theodoſian, and Hermogenian Codex's, he gave it the Name of Codex Juſtinianus. The Laws of the Judges and Magiſtrates diſperſed in near 2000 Books, were reduced to the Number of 50, in 533, and were called the Digeſta, or Pandecta. He compoſed alſo four Books of Inſtitutes, being an Abridgment of the Text of all the Laws; the new Laws which had been made by himſelf, were alſo compiled into one Volume, which was called The Novells, An. Ch. 541. All theſe great and worthy Actions, made Juſtinian very famous. He died Novemb. 13. 565, or 66, Aged 83, whereof he had Reigned 39. Juſtinian aboliſhed the Conſulſhip, built a great number of Churches, and above all, that of Sancta Sophia, at Conſtantinople, eſteemed to be one of the Wonders of Architecture, and repaired ſome Cities. Procop. de bell. Perſ. Vandal. & Gott. Evagr. lib. 4. Agathias. Nicephor. Paul. Diaconus. Baron. in Annal.

JUSTINIAN II. alias The Younger, ſurnamed Rhinotmetus, or Cropt-noſe, at 16 Years of Age ſucceeded his Father Conſtantinus Barbatus, in Septemb. 685. At his coming to the Throne, he recovered ſeveral Provinces of the Roman Empire, which the Saracens had uſurped, and vouchſafed them Terms of Peace, upon Condition of their becoming Tributaries; but afterwards, in 690, he broke the Treaty he had made with them, upon pretence that the Money they paid him was not ſtampt with his Image; but he ſoon repented this Breach of Faith, the Arabians having utterly Defeated his Army. This his Perfidiouſneſs and ill Succeſs, made him odious to the People, and gave occaſion to Leontius to Depoſe and Baniſh him into the Cherſoneſus, having firſt cut off his Noſe, in 694. Leontius being made Emperor in his ſtead, was Depoſed in 697, by Tiberius Abſimarus, who Reigned about 7 Years; at the end of which Juſtinian was Reſtored, about 704, or 705, with the Aſſiſtance of Tribellius, King of the Bulgarians, who took the City of Conſtantinople, having entered part of his Forces into it through an Aquæduct. Juſtinian being thus Reſtored, cauſed Leontius to be Beheaded, notwithſtanding that he had retired himſelf to a Monaſtery, and did the ſame to Abſimarus; and as oft as there fell the leaſt drop from his cut Noſe, he never failed to Sacrifice ſome Senator to his Revenge. He cauſed alſo the Patriarch Callinicus his Eyes to be put out; and forgetting the great Obligations laid upon him by the Bulgarians, in reſtoring him to his Throne, he waged War againſt them, with a Succeſs worthy of his Ingratitude, his Army having been wholly Defeated, and himſelf narrowly eſcaping. Not long after he was killed, together with his Son Tiberius, by his Succeſſor Philippicus Bardanes, in 711. Paul. Diacon. lib. 6. Theophanes & Cedrenus, in Annal. Græc. Anaſtaſ. in Conſtantinop.

JUSTINIAN, Nephew to the Emperor Juſtin the Younger. Sophia, the Wife of the latter, had advanced Tiberius to the Throne, in hopes of marrying him; but when ſhe ſaw he had beſtowed the Title of Auguſta upon his Wife, ſhe was ſo enraged thereat, that ſhe conſpired againſt Tiberius in favour of this Juſtinian; but Tiberius, inſtead of revenging himſelf of him, reproved him mildly, pardoned him generouſly, and employed him in his Wars againſt the Perſians.

JUSTINIANI, or JUSTINIAN (Bernard) of Venice, was Ambaſſador at Rome in 1471, to Pope Sixtus IV. and at his return, compoſed the Life of St. Laurentius Juſtiniani, his Uncle, which we have at the beginning of the Works of that great Prelate, printed at Baſil. He alſo publiſhed a Treatiſe of the Original of Venice, the Hiſtory of the Goths, and the Life of St. Mark the Evangeliſt, with other Works. Trithem. de Script. Eccleſ. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Paul. Jovius in Elog. Doct. cap. 115.

JUSTINIANI (Peter) of Venice, the Son of Lewis, a Senator of that Republick, lived towards the end of the XVIth Century in 1576. He acquired a great Repute by his Abilities, and his Hiſtory of Venice, which he publiſhed in 16 Books with the Title of Rerum Venetarum ab Vrbe Condita, Hiſtoria, which was Tranſlated into Italian by Joſeph Orologio.

JUSTINOPOLIS, or JUSTINIANÆA, a City of Bulgaria, and Birth-place of the Emperor Juſtinian the Elder, which before was called Berina by Agathias and Taureſia, according to Procopius, and afterwards Acrida; the ſaid Emperor put his own Name upon it, and made it the Metropolis of the Provinces of both the Dacia's, Triballia, Dardania, the Vpper Mœſia and Pannonia. This City was called Juſtinianæa the Firſt, the Second being in the Vpper Mœſia, and the Third in Chalcedonia.

JUSTINOPOLIS, the Capital of Iſtria in the State of Venice, with a Biſhop's See Suffragan to Aquileia. Leand. Alberti Deſc. Ital.

JUSTITIA, a Goddeſs worſhipped by the Heathens. She was repreſented in the Figure of a Virgin, with a ſevere Look, holding a pair of Scales in one Hand, and a Sword in the other, or Rods, and a bundle of Hatchets, and ſitting upon a ſquare Stone. She was alſo frequently repreſented Blind-fold, to ſhow, That Juſtice muſt be without all diſtinction of Perſons. The Egyptians made the Statues of Juſtice without a Head, to intimate, That Judges muſt do nothing of their own Heads, but wholly diveſt themſelves of their own Opinions and Inclinations, and purely follow the Deciſion of the Laws. The Greeks confounded Juſtice with Aſtræa, the Daughter of Aſtræus; or, as others, of Jupiter and Themis. See Aſtræa.

JUSTS, ſingle Combats with Sword or Lance, practiſed generally after Turnaments, and when Knights offered to fight ſingle, againſt any that would take them up, upon the Conditions mentioned in their Challenge. Theſe were called Juſts, from Juxta, becauſe the Champions fought Hand to Hand.

JUTLAND, a Peninſula, which is one of the moſt conſiderable Parts of the Kingdom of Denmark, and the Cherſoneſus Cimbrica of the Ancients. It is commonly divided into South-Jutland and North-Jutland, and is ſituate between the Hanſe-Towns, the Baltick and German-Sea, and the Dukedoms of Holſtein and Sleſwick. South-Jutland contains four ſmall Provinces. North-Jutland alſo is divided into four Parts, viz. Ripen, Arhuſen, Wiborg and Alborg. Thoſe that inhabit the Sea-Coaſt of Jutland dwell in little Houſes or Cottages, becauſe the Wind frequently drives ſo much Sand upon them, that they are forced to get out at the top of them. The Name Jutland, is derived from the Jutti, the Inhabitants thereof, ſuppoſed to be the ſame with Gothi, or Gotti, and that of Cherſoneſus Cimbrica, from the Cimbri. Golnitz has given us a notable Deſcription of this ſmall Country, which the curious may have recourſe to. Charles Guſtavus, King of Swedeland, took Jutland in his late Wars, and paſſed thence on the Ice to the Neighbouring Iſland. It's a plentiful Country, abounding more eſpecially in Cattle, but wants good Sea-Ports towards the Ocean; notwithſtanding which, the Hollanders Yearly Tranſport great quantities of lean Cows and Oxen from hence to their more fertile Soil, where in a ſhort time they grow ſo prodigiouſly fat, through better feeding in the rich Grounds of Holland, that a vaſt Profit is made of them. The Horſes and Swine of this Country are excellent, and in great numbers. It affords Corn in ſufficient quantity, for the uſe of its own People. The Land is more fertile near the Sea-Coaſts; the Inland being full of Heaths, Lakes and Woods. Indeed 'tis the beſt Country the King of Denmark is Maſter of, and appears to be leaſt declining, becauſe moſt remote from Copenhagen. Procul à Jove, procul à Fulmine.

JUTURNA, a Goddeſs or Nymph, worſhipped by the Romans, eſpecially by the Women and Maids; the Women expecting, by her aſſiſtance, an eaſie and ſafe Delivery, and the Maids happy Matches. The common Story of her at Rome was, That being a Maid of great Beauty, Jupiter fell in Love with her, and that for Recompence of her mutual Affection, he had beſtowed the Gift of Immortality upon her, by changing her into a Fountain, or rather the Nymph of it. This Fountain of Juturna was in Latium near to Rome, the Water whereof was made uſe of in all Sacrifices, eſpecially thoſe of the Goddeſs Veſta, in which it was prohibited to make uſe of any other, and was therefore called the Virgin-Water. This Fountain runs into the ſmall River Numicus. Some ſay, that ſhe was the Daughter of Daunus, and Siſter of Turnus King of the Rutuli, and that being Debauched by King Latinus, ſhe drowned her ſelf in the River Numicus. Virgil Æneid. 12. Ovid. Faſtor. 3. Feſtus.

JUVENALIS (Decius Junius) was born at Aquinum, a City in Italy, tho' ſome ſuppoſe him to have been originally of Gaul. He lived in the firſt Century. He is commonly ſuppoſed to have been the Son of a Slave Enfranchis'd, or to have been Educated by ſuch an one; tho' his three Names, Decius Junius Juvenalis, ſhew him to have been of a more conſiderable Birth, becauſe none but ſuch were allowed to have ſo many. He was but young, when firſt he came to Rome; and having ſpent half his Life in declaiming, he afterwards betook himſelf to the making of Satyrs, whereby he acquired great Fame; but at laſt, for ſome Satyrical Reflection he had fixed upon Paris, Nero's Comedian and Jeſter, he was ſent to Command ſome Forces at Pentapolis, upon the Frontiers of Egypt and Libya. 'Tis ſuppoſed, that he lived till the 12th. Year of the Empire of Adrian. *Juſt. Lipſ. Epiſt. Quæſt. lib. 4. Ep. 20. Scaliger Poet. lib. 6. cap. 6. Lilius Gyrald. in dial. Poet. JUVENCUS, a Prieſt and Poet of a Noble Family in Spain. He lived in the IVth. Century, turned the Hiſtory of the Goſpel, into Heroical Verſe, in four Books, which are in the Bibliotheca Patrum, and elſewhere. There are ſome other Pieces alſo attributed to him; and St. Jerom in his Commentaries on St. Matthew, quotes this Verſe of his relating to the three Kings or Magi that came to Worſhip our Saviour at Bethlehem.

Some give to this Author the Names of G. Aquilinus Vectius Juvencus, and in an ancient Manuſcript of the Monaſtery of Monſtier Ramei in Champagne, we ſee this Title, G. Vectii Aquilini Juvenci Presbyteri Evangelior. lib. 4. St. Jerom in Chron. Olymp. 277. A. C. 329. Epiſt. ad Mag. & in Commentar. in Matth. Baron. A. C. 338. n. 48. Bellarm. de Script. Eccleſ.

JUVENTA, the Goddeſs of Youth. Servius Tullius placed this Idol in the Capitol; and the Roman Hiſtorians tell us, That when Tarquinius Priſcus, deſigned to Conſecrate a Temple there to Jupiter Capitolinus, and that to this end he cauſed thoſe of other Deities to be Demoliſhed, the God Terminus, and Goddeſs Juventa, did, by Signs, declare their unwillingneſs to be removed thence, whereupon they were continued there. M. Livius Conſul, Vowed a ſecond Temple to her, the ſame Day that he gained the Victory over Aſdrubal, and afterwards gave Order for the building of it, when he was Cenſor, and it was Dedicated ſixteen Years after, by C. Licinius Lucullus Duumvir. Titus Livius.

JUXON (William) born at Chicheſter in Suſſex, was bred at St. John's College at Oxford, where he took the Degrees of Batchellor, and Doctor of the Laws, and became Preſident of the College. He was by King Charles I. preferred firſt to the Biſhoprick of Hereford, afterwards to that of London, and at laſt, made Lord Treaſurer of England, in which Station he gave general Content. He was Selected by that King to attend him on the Scaffold, and Adminiſter the Sacrament to him. In 1660, King Charles II. preferred him to the Archbiſhoprick of Canterbury. He died in 1663, and was buried with great Solemnity in St. John's College in Oxford, to which he had been a great Benefactor; as alſo to St. Paul's and Lambeth. He was generally well Eſteemed for the mildneſs of his Temper, Learning and Piety.

IXE, a Kingdom in the South of Japan.

IXION, King of the Lapithi, who married Dia the Daughter of Deioneus, to whom he promiſed, according to the Cuſtom of the Country, to ſend great Preſents upon his Marriage; but afterwards refuſing to be as good as his Word, his Father-in-law took away his Horſes; Ixion diſſembling his Anger, invited Deioneus to a Feaſt, and, by a Trap-door, made him fall down into a Furnace, where he was immediately conſumed. Of which Cruelty, he greatly repented afterwards; and Jupiter, as the Poets tell us, to comfort him, ſent for him to his Table, where falling in Love with Juno, he endeavoured to Debauch her; who acquainting her Husband, he, to try Ixion, formed a Cloud into Juno's likeneſs, upon which, he ſatisfied his Luſt; Jupiter, being thus confirmed of his Wickedneſs, ſtruck him with Lightning down to Hell, where he was tied to a Wheel with Serpents, which turned about continually. The Poets farther tell us, That this Cloud brought forth the Centaurs, half Men and half Horſes. Hygin. Fab. 6. Diodor. lib. 4. Fulgentius lib. 2.

IYO, a Province in the W. of Japan, whoſe chief Town bears the ſame Name.

IZALGUIER (Anſelmus) of the Noble Family of the Izalguiers of Tholouſe. He was a great Traveller from his Youth, and having Viſited the chief Places of Europe and Aſia, he came to Africa, and having Travell'd over the ſame, as far as the Kingdom of the Negro's, he made ſome ſtay at the City Gago, the Capital of that Kingdom, where he fell in Love with a young Negro-Girl, called Salicaſais, who was both Rich, and of Noble Birth, and married her after her Parents death; and having lived there for ſome Years, they came away for France, and arrived at Tholouſe, in 1413, where his Wife, a Daughter he had by her, and the ſix Slaves they had brought with them, were Baptized. His Daughter, who was Black like her Mother, except only a white Line ſhe had on her Fore-head, and two Fingers of her left Hand, but withal, very well propotioned and handſome, was, at Eighteen Years of Age, married to Eugenius, of the Noble Houſe of Faudoas; of which Marriage was born a Son, who was called The Moor of Faudoas, becauſe he was black like his Mother. Anſelmus, after his return to Tholouſe, had two other Daughters by his Wife, whereof the one was Black, and the other White, and himſelf died ſome time after. He had writ an Hiſtory of his Travels, as likewiſe an Arabian and Turkiſh Dictionary, with the French and Latin Interpretation, but theſe Works of his were never publiſhed. La Faille Annales de Tholouſe.

IZATES, King of the Adiabenians, was the Son of Queen Helena. They embraced the Jewiſh Religion, about An. Ch. 45. and during a great Famine, were very bountiful to the Jews; but, Oroſius ſaith, that they embraced the Chriſtian Faith, and not Judaiſm, as Joſephus relates. Izates was the Son of Monobazus, ſurnamed Bazæus, and Helena, whom he married, was his Siſter. Joſeph. lib. 20. Ant. Judaic. cap. 2.

K

K, Is rather a Greek than Latin Letter; the Romans only made uſe of it in the Word Kalendæ, and ſome few others; and at laſt, ſubſtituted C inſtead of it, as having the ſame force; and accordingly, Priſcian obſerves, that the K was of no uſe in the Latin Tongue. It is generally received into the Alphabets of moſt Northern Languages, in which the uſe of it is very frequent. Juſtus Lipſius obſerves, that they were uſed of old, to print the Letter K with an hot Iron upon the Fore-head of Calumniators or Slanderers.

KABIN, or KEBIN, a kind of Marriage permitted in Turkey and Perſia, by which a Man may take a Wife for a certain Term of time, having entred his Promiſe before the Cadi, of giving the Woman ſuch a Summ of Money at his leaving her; for Kabin, in the Turkiſh Language, ſignifies a Dowry. Some Hiſtorians tell us, That this half Marriage is only allowed amongſt the Perſians, that are of the Sect of Hali, and that it is Condemned by the Turks, but is very common with ſome Nations of the Negro's. Ricaut. of the Turkiſh Empire. Pietro della Valle Tom. III.

KACHEMIRE, a Kingdom of India belonging to the Great Mogul. It is a Champian Country, about 30 Leagues in length, and 12 in Breadth, with many pleaſant little Hills lying at the end of Indoſtan, towards the Kingdom of Labor, by the ſide of Mount Caucaſus. The Hills of this Country are very fruitful. It abounds with excellent Paſtures, and pleaſant Springs. The Capital City Kachemire, gives name to the Kingdom. It is built of Wood, and has no Walls, being in length about 3 Quarters of a League. It is ſituate on the Banks of a great Lake, about 4 or 5 Leagues in compaſs, and by two Channels diſchargeth it ſelf into a River, which runs through the City, and hath two Bridges over it. Bernier's Relations concerning the Empire of the Great Mogul.

KADEZADELITES, a Mahometan Sect, whoſe Ringleader was Birgali Efendi. He invented ſeveral Ceremonies, which are uſed by his Followers at Burials. They pray for the Souls of the Departed; and their Iman, or Prieſt, cries with a loud Voice in the Ears of the Corps, Remember that there is but one God, and one Prophet. Ricaut.

KAIMACHITES, a People of Tartary, which inhabit a great Part of thoſe vaſt Dominions. Their Country, called Kaimach, or Naiman, lies near the great River Ghammas; and the Sea which is on the Eaſt of Tartary is, from this People, called The Sea of the Kaimachites.

KALENDS, Lat. Kalendæ, the Name of the Firſt Day of every Month, according to the Romans; from the Word Calare, which ſignifies, to call, or aſſemble; becauſe the Chief Prieſt uſed to aſſemble the People, and acquaint them how many Days they were to reckon from the Firſt of the Month, to the Nones. It was alſo a Term or Time of Payment: Upon which Account Horace calls them Melancholy, Sad, or Troubleſome. The Firſt Day of March was called Kalendæ Fœmineæ, becauſe that Day the Men were wont to give Preſents to the Women. As for the Proverb, Ad Kalendas Græcas, which we expreſs, At Latter Lammas, it was uſed to denote a Thing which is never like to be, becauſe the Greeks have no Kalends. Macrobius, lib. 1. cap. 15. The Manner of Counting the Days of the Month by Kalends, Nones and Ides, is very different from ours. For the underſtanding of it we are to obſerve, 1. That betwixt the Nones and Ides there is always the Interval of a Week, or ſeven Days; the firſt of which is called Octavo Idus. 2. That of theſe three Diviſions of the Month, none but the Kalends is fixed to a certain Day; for in March, May, July and October, the Nones fall on the 7th. Day of the Month; that is, ſix Days after the Kalends; whereas in the other Months, the Nones fall on the 5th. Day; which is expreſſed in this Diſtych.

Sex Maius Nonas, October, Julius & Mars:
Quatuor at reliqui dabit Idus quilibet Octo.

But the greateſt Difficulty is, becauſe the Months are of a different Length; January, March, May, July, Auguſt, October and December conſiſting of 31 Days, February of 28, or 29 in the Leap-Years; April, June, September and November of 30. As alſo for that the Romans do reckon backwards. However, this Difficulty may be overcome by obſerving, 1. That in the Months of 31 Days, whoſe Ides fall on the 13th. of the ſame Month; as, January, Auguſt and December, the 14th. Day is called Decimo nono Kalendas Februarii, &c. that is, the xixth. Day before the Kalends of February, September, or January. The 15th. Day is called Decimo octavo Kalendas, and ſo on to the 31ſt. or laſt Day, which is not called Secundo Kalendarum, but Pridie Kal. that is to ſay, the Day before the Kalends. 2. In the four other Months of 31 Days, viz. March, May, July and October, the Ides falling on the 15th. Day, the 16th. is called xvii. Kal. Aprilis, Junii, Augusti, & Novembris; that is, the xviith. Day before the Kalends of April, June, &c. 3. In the Months of 30 Days, viz. April, June, September and November, the Ides falling on the 13th. Day, the 14th. is called xviii. Kalendas, or Kalendarum. 4. In February, the Ides falling likewiſe on the 13th. and this Month conſiſting but of 28 Days, the 14th. is called xv. Kal. Martii: But in the Leap Years, when it has 29 Days, the 14th. is called xvi. Kal. Martii. This Way of Reckoning, how intricate ſoever, being the only Account uſed by the ancient Latin Authors, I thought fit to give ſuch an Explication of it as might be plainly underſtood, and eaſily committed to Memory, and to make it more clear, have ſet down this Table by way of Example.

The Nones and Ides, and by conſequence, the whole Method of Reckoning the Months of March, May, July and October, are the ſame: The method likewiſe of reckoning the reſt of the Months unmentioned, is the ſame with January and April; only remembring that the Calends of the Months of One and Thirty Days, muſt be reckoned like January, and thoſe of Thirty, like April: And thus the Reader has the whole Table.

KALMOUCHS, Inhabitants of the Great Tartary, near the Coaſt of the Caſpian Sea, or of Tabriſtan, and the River Volga. The Men are ſtrong, but very deformed: Their Faces flat and broad, without any Noſes, but two Holes; and their Eyes ſet five Fingers each from other. The Women fight as well as the Men. Their Arms are Bows, Arrows and Skains, with a wooden Mace: And their Horſe are the beſt in Aſia. The Duke of Moſcovy ſends them a Preſent of Cloth every Year, and ſuffers them to paſs through his Territories into Mengrelia and Perſia, which they invade. They have a peculiar Religion, and are ſworn Enemies of the Mahometans. Tavernier's Travels.

KALTISEN (Henry) of Coblentz, was a Dominican, and lived in the XVth. Century, in the Year 1433, he was preſent at the Council of Bazil, and Diſputed three Days together againſt the Bohemians and Huſſites, which was the Argument of a Treatiſe of his de Libera Prædicatione verbi Dei, Publiſh'd by Henry Caniſius, Tom. 4. Ant. Lect. Trithem. & Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. &c.

KAMINIEC, or CAMINIECK, Lat. Camenecia, Clepidava, or Camienicum, a ſtrong Town in the Ukraine, in the Kingdom of Poland, and Capital of Podolia. The Poles call it Kaminieck Podelski. It is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Lemberg, and ſtands upon a Mountain by the River Smotrzyck, which, a little lower, falls into the Nieſter. It is Thirty Miles from Lemberg, to the S. E. 80 from Warſaw, and 170 from Conſtantinople, towards the Frontiers of Moldavia. The Turks very often attempted this Place without Succeſs; but it having ſuffered much by Fire in 1669. and being thereupon beſieged by them in 1672. it was taken, the Poles being then engaged in a Civil War amongſt themſelves, and the Town in an ill Condition of Defence. The Coſſacks under the Sieur Motula blocked it up in April, 1687. and the Poliſh Army deſigned to attack it the September following; but upon the Approach of the Ottoman Forces, they were both of them forced to retire. The Poliſh Army kept it in manner blocked up by their Encampment in 1688. In 1689. the Forces of Lithuania and Poland ſetting down before it, began a formal Attack, Aug. 20. but croſſed with ill Succeſs, raiſed the Siege the September following. The Poles during the remainder of the War pretended one while to Beſiege it, another while to Bombard it; but with equal diſappointments, ſo that it continued in the hands of the Turks till the Peace of Carlowitz, ſigned January 26th. 1699; by vertue of which it was reſtored to the King and Republick of Poland, in the Condition it was then in, together with all Podolia, and all the Ukrain.

KANE, a General of the Huns, who having invaded Pannonia, obtained a Victory againſt the Romans at Tulma in Auſtria, but fell in the Battel, and was ſucceeded by Atila. Volat.

KANJOW, a Town of Poland, in the Palatinate of Kiow in Volhinia, ſituated upon the Right Shoar of the River Boryſthenes, or Nieper, a Place of good Strength, in the Profeſſion of the Coſſacks, ſeven German Miles diſtant from Czircaſſi, to the North.

KANISA, Lat. Caniſia, a Town of Lower Hungary, ſeated upon the River Sala, in the Zalad, between the Lake of Balaton and the Drave, not above one Mile from the Confines of Stiria, to the Eaſt. It was taken by the Turks in 1600, though the Imperialiſts did all that was poſſible to prevent it. The following Year the Arch-Duke of Auſtria beſieged it, from the Beginning of September, to the End of October, but without Succeſs. In 1664. Count Serini beſieged it, and had infallibly carried it if he had been ſuccoured in Time. In 1688. June 30. the Count de Budiani Blocked it with a Body of 6000 Hungarians and 2000 Heydukes, which continued till April 13. 1690. when, in purſuance of a Capitulation that the Emperor had ratified, the Keys of the Gates, hanging upon a Chain of Gold, were delivered to the Count de Budiani by a Turk, ſaying, I herewith conſign into your Hands the ſtrongeſt Fortreſs in the Ottoman Empire. The Imperialiſts found in it great ſtore of large Artillery, taken heretofore from the Chriſtians, and ſome with old German Inſcriptions. Teckley's Life.

KARA MEHEMET Baſhaw, a Turk by Nation, who made himſelf very famous for his Courage and Conduct. He ſignalized his Valour at the Siege of Candia, Kaminieck and Vienna, and at the Battel of Cochin. Being Governor of Buda in 1684. he made a ſtout and obſtinate Reſiſtance againſt the Imperialiſts: In which Siege he died of a Wound by a Shiver of a Canon, as he was giving Orders on the Ramparts; having but a little while before cauſed 40 Chriſtian Slaves to be put to death in preſence of an Officer who was ſent with a Summons to him from the Duke of Lorrain.

KARIB SCHACH, King of Kilek, a People ſo called, belonging to the Province of Kilan, in the Kingdom of Perſia. He was deſcended from the ancient Kings of that Country, and reſolved to recover it out of the Hands of Schach Sephi King of Perſia, the Succeſſor of Schach Abas, who had conquered it in 1600. And having got together 14000 Men, he took the Town of Reſcht, and afterwards all the Paſſes leading to the Province of Kilan: But the King of Perſia having ſent 40000 Men againſt him, they totally defeated his Troops, took, and brought him to Caſvin, where the Sophi was; who ordered him to make a ridiculous Entry with 500 Wenches attending him, who put a Thouſand ſund Indignities upon him, and afterwards being condemned to Death, he was executed in this cruel manner: Firſt they ſhod his Hands and Feet as we do Horſes; and having let him languiſh for three Days in this Condition, he was faſtned to an high Pole in the Meidan, or great Market-place, and there ſhot to death with Arrows, the King himſelf ſhooting the firſt Arrow, and all his Lords following the ſame Example. Olearius's Perſian Travels.

KASCHAN, a City of Perſia, ſtrongly walled, and well defended with Round Towers. It was was in 1671. the moſt populous and Eminent Mart in all Perſia, and the Staple of the Silk Manufactures in that Kingdom. To it reſort the Indians and Europeans with rich Wares, and exchange them for Cloth of Gold and Silver, and Tapeſtry. The Country about it yields Wine, Fruit, Corn and Cattel, in great Plenty, and very cheap. Its Inconveniences are, the over-great Heat of the Sun, and its Scorpions, which are great and venomous, but not mortal if Care be taken; the Stinging being cured by the Filings of Copper. tempred with Vinegar and Honey.

KASIKERMEEN, is a Town ſituate in the Country of the Okzakou Tartars, to the South of the Boryſthenes, two Miles from the Black-Sea: It's Fortified with four ſquare Forts (built of large Brick of an equal bigneſs) all which touch one another on one ſide: Three of them are upon a right line, but the fourth with the ſecond forms a right Angle, the firſt of theſe touches the Boryſthenes, and is, as well as the other two, that are upon the ſame line, provided with high Towers:. The fourth is better Fortified; on the outſide inſtead of Towers it's furniſh'd with two large and very high Bulwarks and a Ditch; and this ſide faces the River, over againſt which, there is a long Iſland in the River, ſhaped like a Neat's Tongue, called Towan; upon which the Tartars in the Year 1695. had two little Forts with four Bulwarks, one on each ſide of the Iſland; that at the upper end being called Mombarethkermeen, and the other on the lower end Muſtrikermeen: on that ſide of the River in the Krim, there is alſo right over againſt Mombarethkermeen, hard by the River ſuch another Fort called Oſcankermeen: In the Year 1695 a body of Coſſacks, Subjects to the Czar of Muſcovy firſt attacked the ſaid Forts, and having quickly carried them, beſieged Kaſikermeen it ſelf, and were not long before they became Maſters of it alſo: By the Truce made for two Years, between the Czar and the Turks, at Carlowitz, in 1699. this place as well as Aſoph was left in the Poſſeſſion of the former, and the Surrendry of it is now a matter of diſpute between them.

KAUFBEURN, or KAUFBAIRA, a Town of Germany, in Swevia, about five or ſix Leagues from Memmingen, which hath been an Imperial City ſince the Reign of Conrade II. from whom it bought its Liberty for 50000 Crowns. It embraced the Reformation in 1624.

KEAULIN, King of the Weſt-Saxons, ſucceeded his Father Kenrick, An. 565. He warred much againſt the Britains, to whom he gave two great Overthrows; the firſt at Dereham in Gloceſterſhire, where he ſlew three of their Kings; upon which, Gloceſter, Cirenceſter and Bathe, then called Badenceſter, fell into his Hands: And the ſecond at Fethanleag, from whence he returned laden with rich Booty. But the Britains encounter'd him at Woden's Mount in Wiltſhire, ruined his whole Army, and chaſed him out of the Kingdom. The next Year he died very poor, who a little before was the moſt potent, and, indeed, ſole King of all the Saxons on this Side the Humber.

KEBBERS, a ſort of Heathens that are tolerated at Iſpahan in Perſia, and dwell in the Suburb called Kebrabath. Kebber comes from a Turkiſh Word Kiaphir, which ſignifies a Renegade, or Apoſtate. They have nothing common with the other Perſians, ſave only the Language: Their Habit is wholly different: They wear great Beards, contrary to the Cuſtom of the Country: They have neither Temples nor Prieſts, neither do they make uſe of any Books of Morality or Devotion; yet they believe the Immortality of the Soul, and ſomething of an Hell, and Place of Pleaſure like the Elyſian Fields, conform to the Heathen Opinions of old. When any one of them dies they let out a Cock into the Field, from the Houſe of the Party deceaſed; and if a Fox chanceth to ſnatch it up, they conclude the Soul to be ſaved. But, beſides this, they have another Proof, which they look upon as more certain: they dreſs the dead Body in its beſt Cloaths, and deck it with its richeſt Ornaments, and then carry it to the Church-yard, and ſet it upright againſt the Wall, by means of a forked Stick they put under the Chin of the dead Corps to ſupport it in that Poſture; and if the Ravens, or other Birds, chance to pick out its Right Eye, they conclude the Party to be amongſt the Number of the Bleſſed; but if they light upon the other Eye, they take it for an infallible Sign that the Party is damned; and in that Caſe, in a diſgraceful manner, throw the Body, with its Head downwards, into a Pit. Olearius's Perſian Travels.

KEDWALLA, a Weſt-Saxon King, reigned at the Latter End of the VIIth. Century, and was dethroned by a powerful Faction, but recovered the Crown again; and growing uneaſie by reaſon of the new Commotion of his Subjects, he withdrew to Rome to receive Baptiſm, which his Worldly Affairs had cauſed him to deferr till that Time. Accordingly, on Eaſter-Day, 689. he was baptized by Pope Sergius, and his Name changed into Peter: After which he lived but few Weeks. He died at Rome, in the 30th. Year of his Age, and was buried there, in St. Peter's Church.

KEISERBERG, Lat. Cæſaris Mons, raiſed from a Village to a City in the Time of Frederick II. Here grows the beſt Wine in Alſace. And 'tis one of the 10 Towns in that Country depending on Haguenaw.

KEISER-LAUTERN, Lat. Cæſaropolis, a City in the Palatinate of the Rhine, upon the River Lauter, near the Dukedom of Bipont, 6 Leagues W. from Spire, a little leſs from Worms. The French call it Caſeloutre. This Town was taken, Septemb. 30. 1688. by the French, under the Marquis of Boufflers, it having repelled them in two ſeveral Storms. The reſt of the Palatinate followed it, without any conſiderable Reſiſtance, except Manheim.

KEISERSWART, Lat. Colonia Traja, Cayſerſwerda, Inſula Rheni, a Town below Duſſeldorp, on the Rhine, belonging to the Elector of Cologne, very mean, but well fortified. It has a broad Ditch, very regular Fortifications, and high Walls, faced with Brick; as is alſo the Counterſcarp, which is in very good Condition. This Town was firſt mortgaged to Adolph Duke of Cleves, by Charles IV. Emperor of Germany. Gerard Duke of Cleves, Brother of Adolph, ſold it to the Archbiſhop of Cologne, for 100000 Florins, about An. 1399. And in 1466. it was finally, with Bielſtein and Frederberg, confirmed to them, in Exchange for Soeſt and Santen, by John Duke of Cleves. It is ſeated on the N. of the Rhine, ſix German Miles beneath Cologne, to the N W. and the ſame diſtance from Gulick, or Juliers, to the North. The French had poſſeſſed themſelves of it for Cardinal Furſtemburg, but the Elector of Brandenburg re-took it in 1689.

KEITH, the Surname of an Ancient and Noble Family in Scotland, the chief of which, for his Valour, was made Earl-Marſhal of that Kingdom, and Sheriff of Merns. And their Succeſſors enjoy this Honour to this Day.

KELBINS, a People dwelling in a Territory near to the Country of the Druſes, two or three Days Journey from Aleppo in Syria. They are neither Turks nor Chriſtians, yet have a greater Reſpect for the Chriſtian Religion than that of Mahomet. Michael Fevre's Theatre of Turkey.

KELSO, a Burrough of conſiderable Trade in the County of Roxborough, in the South of Scotland, pleaſantly ſituated on the Bank of the River Twede, in a fruitful Soil. It was famous for a ſtately Abbey and Monaſtery; one of the 13 built by King David I. of Scotland.

KELWULF, King of Northumberland, Brother to Kenred, ſucceeded Oſric II. An. 729. and reigned but Nine Years. To this King Beda dedicates his Hiſtory; but ſays no more of him, than that the Beginning and Proceſs of his Reign was full of Commotions, the Event whereof he doubtfully expected. He at laſt became a Monk in Lindisfarne, where he taught the Monks a better Way of Living than what they were uſed to; and brought them from Milk and Water, to Wine and Ale; and ſetled Revenues upon them for the Continuance thereof.

KEMPIS: See THOMAS A KEMPIS.

KEMPTEN, Lat. Druſomagus, Campodunum, or Capidona, a City of Schwaben in Germany, in the Territory of Algow; one of the ancienteſt in Germany, being formerly the Seat of the old Dukes of Schwaben; amongſt whom King Hildebrand was of great Fame, whoſe Daughter Hildegard, marrying to Charles the Great, founded there a Monaſtery, the Abbot of which, as Prince of the Empire, was Lord of the City, till the Inhabitants purchaſed their Liberty of one of them for a great Summ of Money; after which it was annexed to the Empire, and in 1625. obtained a Charter from Frederick III. who gave them An Eagle, for their Arms, one half Gold, with a Crown. Maximilian I. and Charles V. both determined the Controverſies between them and their Abbot. 'Tis now governed by a Mixture of Ariſtocracy and Democracy, and it embraced the Reformation in 1530. This City is ſeated upon the River Iler, which falls into the Danube, over againſt Ulm, five German Miles from Memmingen to the South, twelve from Conſtance to the Eaſt, and twelve from Ulm to the South. The Monaſtery founded by Hildegardis was of the Order of St. Benedict.

KENDAL, Lat. Concangium, an Earldom, Barony, and the chief Town of Weſtmorland, 200 Miles N. W. and by N. from London. Its Name expreſſes its Situation, lying in a Dale, by the River Ken, in a fruitful and pleaſant Soil. It conſiſts of two long and broad Streets, which croſs one another, beſides ſome By-Streets. It is rich, populous, and well traded, having great Vent for Wollen Cloth through all Parts of England, whereby the Poor are employed, and the adjacent Parts enriched. It has two fair Stone-Bridges over the River, beſides one of Wood leading to the Ruins of a Caſtle which was the Birth-place of Catharine Parr, the ſixth and laſt Wife of King Henry VIII. Here is alſo a fair and large Church, to which belong twelve Chapels of Eaſe; and by the Church-yard ſtands a Free School, well endowed with good Exhibitions for poor Scholars going from hence to Queen's College in Oxford. In 1414. Kendal gave the Title of Earl to John Duke of Bedford, Third Son to King Henry IV. Twenty nine Years after it gave the ſame Title to John Duke of Somerſet. The next that had it conferred upon him was John de Foix, whom King Henry VI. preferred to that Dignity for his good Service in the French Wars. An. 1449. Sir William Parr Knight was created Lord Parr of Kendal, and after Earl of Eſſex, by King Henry VIII. Laſtly, Charles Stuart, Third Son to James Duke of York, afterwards King James II. was declared Duke of Kendal, but died not long after.

KENELM, King of Mercia, ſucceeded to the Crown, An. 819. But then but ſeven Years of Age, he was committed to the Care of his eldeſt Siſter Quendred; who being ambitious to Reign her ſelf, hired him who was intruſted with the young Prince's Education, to make him away. This Villain, under pretence of Hunting, led him into a Wood, and there murdered him; which, if we believe Malmsbury, was wonderfully revealed by a Dove, which dropped a written Note about it upon an Altar at Rome.

KENELWORTH, a large, beautiful, ſtrong Caſtle of Warwickſhire, in Knightlow Hundred; which, in the Reign of Hen. III. ſtood a Siege of ſix Months; being Surrender'd, there was a Proclamation iſſued forth there, That all that had born Arms againſt the King, ſhould pay five Years Rent of their Lands. This Order was called Dictum de Kenelworth. In the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, it was given to Robert Dudley Earl of Leiceſter, who repaired it; ſo that it was then the ſecond or third Caſtle in England.

KENNEDY, the Surname of the Earls of Caſſils, a very Noble and Ancient Family, in the Bailiwick of Carrick, in the Weſt of Scotland, of which this Family are Hereditary Bailiffs. It hath produced many great Men, who have been an Ornament to their Country. Cambden ſays, That they came from Ireland in the time of King Robert Bruce.

KENNETHUS I. the 50th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Aidanus. There is nothing memorable Recorded of his Reign, having died in the 4th, or, as ſome ſay, the 12th Month, after his coming to the Crown, about An. 505. Buchanan.

KENNETHUS II. the 69th King of Scotland, ſucceeded King Alpin, his Father, in 823, when the Kingdom was at a very low Ebb, by reaſon of the Victory the Picts obtained over his Father, who fell in the Battel. The Picts did thereupon endeavour to drive the Scots out of Britain, for which end they hired ſome Engliſh Troops to join their own Forces: But ſuch an outragious Sedition happened amongſt the Commanders, that Brutus, the Pictiſh King, not being able to compoſe it, disbanded the Army, and died for grief about three Months after. After which, Kennethus called an Aſſembly of the States, to conſult of a War with the Picts; and tho' the King himſelf, with the fierceſt of his Officers, were for a War, yet the Majority were for deferring it until they had recovered Strength; and in the mean time reſolved, neither to ſue for Peace, nor declare War. Which Opinion prevailing, a Peace enſued for three Years. In the fourth, Kennethus, deſirous to renew the War, but finding his Nobles averſe, engaged them in his Deſign by the following Stratagem: Having invited them all to a Banquet, he continued the Entertainment until late at Night, ſo that they were neceſſitated to lodge in that very Room where they Carouzed; and each Man, according to ancient Cuſtom, laid himſelf on the Ground, with nothing under him but Graſs. Being thus compoſed, the King ſuborned a Kinſman of his own to cloath himſelf with dry Fiſh-skins, enter the Hall, and ſpeak through a long Tube, as if he were ſent from Heaven to exhort them to War againſt the Picts. The Nobles being awaken'd, and not fully recovered from their Wine, were aſtoniſhed at the ſtrangeneſs of the Sound, and the ſhining of the Fiſh-skins; ſo that believing it was an Apparition, they were ſeized with a Religious Fear, which was conſiderably heightned by the Meſſenger's ſtripping himſelf of his Habit, and withdrawing by a ſecret Paſſage on a ſudden. They attended the King early in the Morning, to acquaint him with what had happen'd; and upon his aſſuring them that he had ſeen the like Apparition, a War was concluded with univerſal Conſent, and accordingly declared. So that both Nations having taken the Field, the Armies fell on at firſt view; the Soldiers being ſo eager, that they did not expect the Command of their Officers. It was fiercely fought on both Sides for a conſiderable time, until a Watch-word being given the Scots, That they ſhould remember King Alpin, they were inſpired with new Courage, and with a deſire of Revenge; which made them re-double their Force, ſo that the Enemies were put to flight. The Engliſh, who came to aſſiſt the Picts, perceiving their Diſorder, retired in a Body, and the Scots were ſo intent to revenge the Cruelty of the Picts towards King Alpin, that they did not purſue them. The Slaughter of the Picts was ſo very great, that they found themſelves obliged to ſue for Peace; which the Scots would grant upon no other Terms but the Surrender of the Kingdom. Next Year Kennethus ſubdued all their Dominions beyond the Forth; and as he was marching to this Side, the Picts rebelled on the other. Whereupon, marching back, he waſted the Country with Fire and Sword, ſparing neither Age nor Sex. Hereupon Druskenus their King, perceiving that it behoved them to fight for their Lives, raiſed his whole Force, paſſed the Forth, and Encamped at Scone, on the Banks of the Tay, where he offered to Surrender the whole Country beyond the Forth; but the Scots would have all or none, ſo they came to a Battel, and after a very bloody Fight, the Picts were defeated, their King and all his Nobility killed, as were moſt of his Army, many of thoſe that eſcaped being alſo drowned in the Tay, and thus totally routed, tho' they had renewed the Battel ſeven times that Day. Kennethus after this, paſſed the Forth, waſted the Country; and the Garriſons ſurrendring for fear, he put the Picts out of condition to recover themſelves any more, and the remainder fled into England, in an indigent Condition. This Kennethus, is reckoned the third Founder of the Scottiſh Monarchy, Fergus I. having laid the Foundation, Fergus II. reſtored them, after they were expelled the Continent of Britain, and Kennethus I. enlarged the Kingdom one half more, when the Scots were very near being expelled the ſecond time. Having thus exterminated the Picts, he renewed the old Laws, and made new ones to prevent Licentiouſneſs, the product of War, and Luxury, the Effects of Peace; ſo that the Government of Scotland, was for many Years after, as much ſupported by his Laws, as by Arms; and in commemoration of this Valiant Prince, the Laws were called Mac-Alpin Laws, becauſe he was the Son of Alpin. Having thus expelled the Picts, he diſtributed their Lands amongſt his Soldiers, according to their Merits, and then begun the changing of Names in Counties and Lordſhips, the Proprietors naming them after their own chriſtened Names; for at this time, if they had any Surnames at all in Scotland, except Patronymicks, or from Complexion, &c. they were very rare; hence Angus, Mern, Fife, and other Counties, were called after their chief Proprietors. Kennethus having eſtabliſhed the Kingdom, endeavoured alſo to confirm the Royal Authority; and becauſe the Fate of the Crown depended, according to the Vulgar Opinion, on the Marble Chair, brought from Spain into Ireland, as ſome ſay, by Simon Breccus, and thence into Argile by Fergus, Kennethus tranſlated it to Scone, and therein all his Succeſſors were Crowned, till the time of Edward I. of England, who took it away. Kennethus did alſo tranſlate the Epiſcopal See, which the Picts had planted at Abernethy, to St. Andrews; the Scottiſh Biſhops not being Dioceſans at that time, but exerciſing their Function indifferently where they came. Kennethus having overthrown the Picts, in the 5th of his Reign, lived in great Tranquility to the 20th, being loved at home for his Juſtice, and dreaded abroad for the Power of his Arms; ſo having enlarged his Dominions from the Iſlands of Orcades, to Adrian's Wall, he died An. 854. Buchan.

KENNETHUS III. the 80th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Culenus, and applied himſelf to reform the Manners of the People, corrupted by the former Reign, beginning with his own Family for Example. After this, he travelled all over the Kingdom, ordering Aſſemblies in each Quarter, for ſuppreſſing Theft and Robberies, and having proclaim'd one at Lanerk in Clidſdale, thoſe who were Summoned did not Anſwer, moſt of the Nobility thereabouts being guilty themſelves, or allied to thoſe that were. Whereupon conſulting with his Friends, they adviſed him to take no Notice of it, but diſſolve the Aſſembly, and next Year to convene the whole States at Scone, where the chief of the Clans might be ſeized, till their Dependants were puniſhed; which, being reſolved on, he lodged Soldiers near the place of Meeting, and the States being Convened, were of a ſudden environed with Armed-men. Kennethus perceiving them in a Conſternation, ſpoke to this effect, That thoſe Arms were provided for their Defence, and not for their hurt: That he had endeavoured to ſuppreſs Robberies and Thefts, but thoſe concerned, relying on the power of their Kindred, refuſed to appear when Summoned; and ſeeing the ſafety of the whole was committed to him, he could not be excuſed, if he ſet them at Liberty, till the Offenders were brought to puniſhment. The Nobility anſwered, That they had rather aſſert their Innocency by Deeds than Words, and deſired him to lay aſide his Suſpicion, and they would ſolemnly engage to bring thoſe to Puniſhment who were Guilty; which was accordingly performed, and at the ſame time, both the Nobility and Commonalty were obliged. He faithfully obſerved the League, which his Predeceſſors had made with the Engliſh; but his Repoſe was quickly diſturbed by the Danes, who Landing in Angus, deſtroyed all before them, ſparing neither Man, Woman, nor Child. The News of which, being brought to the King at Sterling, having Summoned the neighbouring Nobility, he ſent Expreſſes to the reſt, to haſten with their Forces, and march'd againſt the Danes with what Strength he had. In a ſhort time, he had a numerous Army, and being adviſed that the Enemy had Beſieged Perth, he made ſtraight towards them. The Scots at firſt ſight Charged them, the Danes withdrew to a Hill where they could not be eaſily Attacked; but the Archers and Dart-men having a fair view of them, galled them ſo much, that they were obliged to come down, and began a cruel and bloody Battel; but finding that they were like to be defeated, they publiſhed a Watch-word, That none muſt ever hope to return to their Camp, without they obtained the Victory. Whereupon they made a great Shout, and aſſaulted the Scots with ſo much fierceneſs, that they put them to flight. This Day had certainly been fatal to the Scots, had not Heaven, by an extraordinary Providence, turned the Scale thus: A certain Countryman named Hay, with his two Sons, were at Plow in a Field through which the Scots fled, and being Men of great Strength, Courage, and Love to their Country, the Father took a Yoke, and the Sons what came firſt to hand, and endeavoured by Reproaches and Threats, to ſtay the flying Scots; but finding the Multitude throng upon them, they fell on them, and forced them to halt. Whereupon thoſe who were Men of Courage, and fled rather for Company than Fear, joined with them, and Crying out, that New Supplies were come, they rallied the broken Troops, and turning back upon the Danes, gave them a total Overthrow near Loncarty. This Victory was celebrated for ſome Days after, and Hay was all the Subject of Converſation; for where-ever he and his Sons gave the Onſet, there the Danes were put to flight, and the Scots reſtored to their Ranks, ſo that every one acknowledged that they owed their Lives, Honours, and the Victory to them. Hay, being brought before the King, ſpoke very modeſtly of himſelf, and refuſed the rich and ſplendid Garments which were offered him, and his Sons, that they might be the more taken notice of, at their entrance into Perth, only he wiped off the Duſt and Blood from his own Clothes, and carrying the Yoke on his Shoulder, with which he fought, entred the City, the King Commanding ſome Troops to march at a diſtance before him, and others at a diſtance after him. The remainder of the Danes having fled to their Ships, a Parliament was called, aud the firſt thing they fell upon was, how to Reward Hay, and his Sons; whereupon they allotted them the fruitfulleſt Land, almoſt in all Scotland, and took them into the Rank of the Nobility, aſſigning them, for bearing The Bloody Yoke in a Field Or, Three Scutcheons Gules. After this, Kennethus ſuppreſſed an Inſurrection of the Iſlanders, and executed Juſtice upon Crathilinthus of the Merns, who had, upon a Diſguſt, ſurprized and murdered his Uncle, Governor of Angus, and plundered the Country, which ſettled the Peace of the Kingdom to the 21ſt Year of his Reign; and this King might juſtly have been reckoned amongſt the beſt of Princes, had it not been for taking off, by Poiſon, Prince Malcolm, the Son of King Duffus, to make way for his own Son's coming to the Crown, the Nobility having a great eſteem for Malcolm, becauſe of his Vertues: It being, till that time, the Cuſtom, to chuſe him for King, who was thought fitteſt for the Government, provided he were of Fergus's Race. The matter was ſo managed, that no Body ſuſpected the King, till he came to propoſe the Abrogating of that old Law, and enacting a new one, That the Son ſhould ſucceed the Father, and be aſſigned a Guardian, if under Age; and having carried the ſame in Parliament, the Succeſſion in a direct Line was Eſtabliſhed, and the King allowed a Power to Correct and Amend Laws, which were inconvenient for the Publick, and to name a Governor for Cumberland, which was as much then, as Dauphin of France, or Prince of Wales now, as being a Title peculiar to the Heir of the Crown. Having thus, as he thought, Eſtabliſhed the Throne on his Poſterity, his Guilty Conſcience, or, according to ſome, a real Voice from Heaven, did ſuggeſt to him by Night, that his Murder ſhould ſpeedily be revenged upon him, and, that inſtead of a quiet and firm Eſtabliſhment, his Poſterity ſhould find it otherwiſe. Whereupon he had recourſe to the Monks, who being then ignorant of the true Remedy, adviſed him to expiate his Guilt by Largeſſes to themſelves, viſiting Sepulchres, and kiſſing Reliques, &c. And as he was going to viſit the Tomb of Palladius, a certain Lady called Fenella, who then lived in a ſtately Caſtle near Fettercarn, which the King, becauſe of its pleaſant ſituation, went to ſee; being offended with him, becauſe by his new Law, he had excluded her Kinſmen Conſtantinus and Grimus from the Crown, cauſed him either to be murdered by an Ambuſh, or, as Major and Boetius ſay, by an Arrow ſhot out of a brazen Statue, by an Engine which ſhe carried him to ſee on purpoſe. But however that is, he died in the 25th Year of his Reign, An. 994. Buchan.

KENNETHUS, a Pictiſh King, having levied an Army againſt the Scots, run away as ſoon as he came within ſight of them, and was killed by a Country-man, as a Deſerter, not knowing who he was, which obliged his Army to retire as well as they could without fighting. This happened about the VIIIth Century. Buchan.

KENSINGTON, a Town in the Neighbourhood of Weſtminſter, much frequented for its good Air by the Gentry and Citizens of London and Weſtminſter, noted of late for the Reſidence of His Preſent Majeſty, in a Houſe adjoining to Hide-Park, purchaſed by the King of the Earl of Nottingham, ſince the late Revolution, and much improved ſince, as is alſo the Town.

KENT, Lat. Cantium, a large Maritime County in the S. of England, having the Thames on the N. the Sea on the E. and S. Suſſex and Surrey on the W. Its length from E. to W. is reckoned 53 Miles, its breadth from N. to S. 26. the whole divided into five Laths. Theſe into 66 Hundreds, wherein are 398 Pariſhes, and 32 Market-Towns; whoſe Inhabitants were called Cantii or Cantiani, by the ancient Romans. The County, in the Saxon Heptarchy, being an intire Kingdom by it ſelf, an Honour which no other ſole County attain'd unto, is now divided between the Dioceſſes of Canterbury and Rocheſter. There is great difference of the Air and Soil within this County; for in ſome places, eſpecially near the Sea, the Air is as Aguiſh as in the Hundreds of Eſſex, in others 'tis very healthful, as towards the Thames, but the Soil not fruitful; the middle Parts are both: the Southern are very fruitful, but not healthful. Others, give this different Character of its Soil, the Weald for Wood, Eaſt-Kent for Corn, Rumney for Meadow, Tenhard for Orchards, Shepey and Reculver for Wheat, Thanet for Barley, and Hedcorn for Capons. Certain it is, that this County breeds as large Cattel and Poultry, as any part of England; an Ox fed in Rumney-Marſh, having been ſeen in London ſo high, that a Man of a middle ſize, could hardly reach to the top of his back. Another thing peculiar to this County is, its great plenty of the beſt Cherries and Pippins in England; the firſt, being fetch'd out of Flanders and planted here, in the Reign of King Henry VIII. S. Foyn does alſo thrive here to admiration, as does Woad for dying of good Yellow, Madder for making of Reds and Violets, and the beſt ſort of Flax both for Thread and Linen. Beſides the Thames, that waſhes the North Parts, here is the Medway, which, in a manner, parts it in the middle; the Stower that runs by Canterbury, the Rother by Appledore, the Darwent by Dartford, and others of leſs Note: All of them plentiful of Fiſh. They have ſtore of Trouts, and particularly Fordwick Trouts near Canterbury, are of ſpecial Note for their greatneſs, many of them having been caught of the bigneſs of a Salmon. Kent is the place in which the greateſt part of the Royal Fleet are built and laid up, Wolwich Dock upon the Thames, being that where the moſt, beſt and biggeſt Ships are built, and the River Medway, near Chatham, the place of their abode in Winter. This Country was firſt Conquered by Julius Cæſar, tho' not without reſiſtance, An. Rom. 696, and 698, 53 Years before the Birth of our Saviour, he being forced to a double Expedition againſt this ſingle County almoſt. As he began the Conqueſt of Britain here, ſo did the Saxons afterwards, Hengiſt Eſtabliſhing the Kingdom of Kent, An. Ch. 456, ſeven Years after the firſt arrival of the Saxons. The Kentiſh Men did alſo great Things againſt the Danes. When William the Conqueror had ſubdued all the reſt of the Nation, he was glad to come to a Compoſition with the Inhabitants of this County, and to grant them their ancient Liberties and Cuſtoms. Whence the Laws of Gavelkind obtain here to this Day. This County was alſo the firſt of the Saxon Heptarchy, that embraced the Chriſtian Religion, preached by Auſtin the Monk, in 568. William the Conqueror, in 1067, Created Odo Biſhop of Bajeux, his half Brother, Lord Chief Juſtice and Lord Treaſurer of England, Earl of Kent. In 1465, Edward IV. created Edmund Grey, Lord Ruthyn, Lord Treaſurer of England, Earl of Kent, which Family ſtill enjoys this Title, Anthony, the preſent Earl of Kent, being the 11th in the Succeſſion.

KENTIGERN, alias St. MUNGO, a Scotch-man, Scholar to Palladius, about the middle of the Vth Century. He is, by ſome, reckoned to have been of Royal Extract; and 'tis agreed by all, that he was a Man of very great Learning. Cambden ſays, He had been Biſhop of Glaſgow, and coming to England, he was one of thoſe who firſt Regulated the Univerſity of Oxford, and about 560, did Erect a Monaſtery at St. Aſaph, conſiſting of 663 Perſons, whereof 300 were employed in Husbandry, 300 at Work within, and the reſt in Divine Service; it being ſo Ordered, that ſome of them were continually at Devotion. At his return into Scotland, he conſtituted Aſaph chief of the ſame, whence the Town of St. Aſaph took its Name. 'Tis reported of this Kentigern, That a certain Gentlewoman having dropp'd a Ring from her Finger, as croſſing the River Clyde on Horſeback, her Husband became jealous, that ſhe had beſtowed it upon ſome Gallant; at which, being extreamly afflicted, ſhe applied her ſelf to Kentigern for Advice; whereupon, after ſome fervent Prayers, he deſired her Husband to go and fiſh in the River, aſſuring him, that the firſt Fiſh he caught, would have the Ring in his Mouth, which happen'd accordingly, if you believe the Legend; and ſince that time, the City of Glaſgow give a Fiſh, with a Ring in his Mouth, as part of their Arms.

KEPLER (Joannes) a German born at Wirtemberg, was Mathematician to the Emperors Rudolph, Matthias and Ferdinand, being in great eſteem towards the end of the XVIth Century, and the beginning of the next, and died about 1620. He had the repute, of being one of the moſt learned Mathematicians of his time, as may be eaſily judged, from the Writings he has left, viz. De motibus Stellæ Martis, Tabulæ Rudolphinæ, Optica Aſtrologica, A Treatiſe of Comets, Ephemerides, A Compendium of the Copernican Aſtronomy, A Book concerning the true Year of the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt, alſo, A Treatiſe of the New Star which appeared in 1604, beſides many others.

KERCI, or CHERCHE, Lat. Cercum, a ſmall City of the Precopian Tartars in Europe, at the Mouth of the Streights of Caffa, on the Black-Sea; the Inhabitants whereof, formerly lived in the open Fields, in Clans and Companies, and were Heathens. When their Prieſts ſacrificed they took of the Blood, and mixing it with Milk, Horſe-dung, and ſome Earth, went up into a Tree, where, after an Exhortation to the People, he beſprinkled them with it, to purify and preſerve them againſt all manner of Evils. Alex. Guagnin. Tartaria.

KERR, or CARR, the Surname of a numerous Race in the S. of Scotland, of which there are four or five Noblemen, beſides many Knights and Gentlemen of good Eſtates. They are ſaid to be Deſcended from two Brothers who came firſt from England, and Founded the two ancient Families of Ferniherſt and Ceſford. The latter was by King Charles I. honoured with the Title of Earls of Roxborough, and the firſt was by King Charles II. advanced to the Title of Lord Jedborough; the Earls of Lothian and Ancram, are alſo of this Surname, the firſt being advanced to that Dignity by King James VI. There was alſo an ancient Family in the Weſt of Scotland of this Name, called Kerr of Kerſland, the Repreſentatives of which, ſignalized themſelves in Defence of their Country, in the time of King Robert Bruce; were Sufferers for Religion in time of the Reformation; ſince which, they have continued zealous and ſtrict Proteſtants; and the laſt of them having ſuffered much in the late Reigns, was killed at Stenkirk, fighting gallantly under King William's Standard, being Major to the Earl of Angus his Regiment; and very conſiderable, for his influence among thoſe called Cameronians in Scotland, whom he brought in for King William's Service upon the Revolution. The Council of Scotland in Charles II's Reign, declared this Family to be the Eldeſt of the Kerrs.

KERRY, a County in Ireland, in the Province of Munſter the Capital of which is Ardagh. It hath Connaught on the North, and Deſmond on the South. This Country abounds with Mountains and Woods, and in ſome places hath good Corn Fields. King Edward III. made it a County Palatine, under the Earls of Deſmond. In the fartheſt Point of this County is Pindle, a commodious Haven, and Smirwick-Sound, a Road for Ships, where ſome Spaniards arrived in 1583, to aſſiſt the Rebellious Earl of Deſmond, but they were quickly routed, and Deſmond himſelf beheaded, by Arthur Lord Grey then Deputy. The wild Iriſh have a conceit, That whoever of their number doth not whoop as the reſt do in joining Battel, he's ſuddenly caught up from the ground, and carried into the Deſart Vallies of this County, where he eats Graſs, is inſenſible of his State, and cannot ſpeak, but ſhall, at length, be caught by Hunts-men, and brought home. Camb. Brit.

KESMARCKT, or KEYSERS-MARKT, Lat. Cæſareopolis, a City of Upper Hungary, in the County of Zepus, or Schepuſe, at the foot of the Carpathian Mountains, near the Frontiers of Poland.

KESWICK, a Market Town in the County of Cumberland, and Hundred of Allerdale; near to which, black Lead is digg'd up in great plenty. It ſtands in a Valley environed with Hills, and has been formerly a famous Town for Copper Mines.

KETTERING, a Market Town in Northamptonſhire, in the Hundred of Huxton, upon a Rivulet which falls into the Non, delightfully ſeated on an aſcent. It has a Seſſions-Houſe for the Juſtices of the County, KEXHOLM, a Province of the Kingdom of Sweden in Finland, the Capital City whereof bears the ſame Name. The Province lies near the Lakes of Ladoga and Onega, and the City is ſituate upon the firſt, at the Mouth of the River Voxen, with a ſtrong Caſtle, which the Moſcovites call Carelogorod. The Swedes have been Maſters of this Province ever ſince 1617.

KEYLE, or KYLE, Lat. Coila, ſo called from Coilus a Britiſh King, defeated and ſlain here by the Scots, not long after their arrival in Britain. 'Tis part of the County of Aire, which is the chief Town of the Shire; a Country plentiful in all Neceſſaries, and well Inhabited. The hereditary Sheriffs of Kyle are, the Campbells of Loudon, now Lords Loudon. Camb. Brit.

KI, in the Perſian and Turkiſh Language, ſignifies a King or Emperor. The ancient Kings of Perſia often took this Title, placing it before their proper Names, as may be ſeen in Ki Kobadi, Ki Bahman, &c. Figueroa tells us, That the King of Perſia intending to beſtow a Magnificent Title on the King of Spain, called him Ki-Iſpania. Ricaut of the Turkiſh Empire.

KIBLAH, the Name of the Temple of Mecha, or to ſpeak more properly, of the Square Tower, which is in the midſt of the Amphitheatre of that Moſque. It is an Arabian Word, and ſignifies a place to which Men turn their faces, and is given, by the Turks, to that part of the Moſque of Mecha, towards which they are to turn their faces in Prayer. Accordingly, there is a Niche in the Wall of all the Moſques of Turky, that looks towards Mecha, which directs the People which way to turn themſelves when they pray, and the ſame is alſo called Kiblah. Ricaut.

KIBURG, a City of Swiſſerland, in the Canton of Zurich. It had formerly Counts of its own of great Fame. It lies upon the River Toſs, two Leagues Eaſt from Zurich.

KIEL, or KIL, a City of Germany, in the Dukedom of Holſtein, ſituate upon the Baltick, with a convenient Haven, which makes it a Place of conſiderable Trade. It is defended by a ſtrong Citadel, built on an Hill; and hath an Univerſity, which was founded in 1665. Here alſo is kept the General Convention of the States of this Dukedom every Year. This City ſuffered much of late Years by the Swedes. Baudrand.

KIENNING, a great City of the Province of Fokien in China, Capital of a Territory of the ſame Name, and chief over ſix Cities. It hath a very fair Bridge over the River Min, on both ſides whereof are Houſes and Shops, and at the End of it a moſt magnificent Temple. This City is a Place of good Trade, becauſe of the Veſſels which paſs this way to the Province of Chekiang, which, as ſoon as they come to the City of Pucing, are there unloaden, and the Merchandizes carried by Porters to the Town of Pinghu, which belongs to the City of Kiangxan, in the Territory of Kiuncheu, in the ſaid Province of Chekiang. Porters carry the Merchandizes three Days Journey, being to the Number of 10000, always ready to ſerve the Merchants, and carry their Burthens with an aſtoniſhing Strength and Dexterity; to this End making uſe of Levers and Ropes ſo well diſpoſed, that our beſt Engineers would be puzzled to do as much with all their Engines; it being a common thing to ſee one of theſe Porters carry on his Shoulders a piece of Marble, which we ſhould not be able to remove without the help of Horſes. Near to Pucing there is a very fair Bridge of Boats, and a Temple dedicated to Chuvencungus, the Interpreter of the Philoſophy of Confucius; who is held in ſo great Veneration, that the Emperor of China hath ordered his Commentaries to be read in all his Univerſities. Near to the City of Cunggan is the Mountain Vuy, famous for the Convents and Temple of Hermits. Between 30 and 40 Years ſince, one of theſe Hermits, who had the Command of two Temples, embraced the Chriſtian Religion; and having deſtroyed the Idols, ſet up the Image of our Saviour in one of the ſaid Churches, and that of the Bleſſed Virgin in the other. Since which Time, there are a great many Chriſtian Solitaries living there. Martin Martini's Deſcription of China, in the Collection of M. Thevenot, Vol. III.

KILAN, a great Province of the Kingdom of Perſia, lying in form of an Half-Moon along the Shoar of the Caſpian Sea, which therefore is called The Sea of Kilan. This Province is encompaſſed with a Ridge of Mountains covered with Trees, repreſenting a kind of large Amphitheatre, from which ariſe many Rivers, that water all the Country, and make it very fruitful. This Province abounds more than any other of Perſia, in Wine, Oil, Silk, Rice, Tobacco, Oranges, Citrons, Pomegranates, and other moſt excellent and delicious Fruits. The Vines are very fair and large, and the Stocks of them commonly as big as a Man's Waſte. The Foreſts are ſo ſtocked with all manner of Fowl, and the Fields with Cattel, that the Inhabitants are plentifully furniſhed with whatſoever may ſerve either for Uſe or Pleaſure, and have to impart to their Neighbours. Some Travellers tell us, that Maſanderan is a part of this Province, but is ſo cold, that the Fruits can ſcarcely ripen there. However, it is moſt certain that, to ſpeak generally, the Air of Kilan is very temperate, and the Soil produceth moſt delicate Fruits. It was for this Cauſe that Schach Abas preferred this Province before all others of his Kingdom; and deſigning to make his ordinary Reſidence therein, he cauſed the City Ferabath to be built for that purpoſe, where he alſo died. This People formerly had a King of their own; and 'tis ſaid, that Schach Abas was the firſt that united this Country to the Crown of Perſia; and it was not long after his having ſubdued it, that the Kilek, or Inhabitants of that Country revolted, and choſe a King, whoſe Reign was very ſhort. See Karib-Schach. Olearius's Travels into Perſia.

KILDARE, Lat. Kildaria, or Kildarienſis Comitatus, an open pleaſant and fruitful County, in the Province of Leinſter in Ireland, bounded with the County of Dublin on the Eaſt, the King's County on the Weſt, the County of Meath to the North, and that of Caterlough to the South. The Land is extraordinary good both for Corn and Paſturage, and well watered with fine Streams. It is alſo noted for its vaſt Plain, commonly called The Corough of Kildare, where an Army of 10000 Men may encamp. The principal Town, Kildare, is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Dublin, and gives the Title of Earl to one of the noble and ancient Family of the Fitz-Geralds of that County.

KILGARRAN, a Market Town of Kilgarran-Hundred, in the North of Pembrokeſhire, ſeated on the South-ſide of the River Twy, which parts it from Cardiganſhire.

KILKENNY, Lat. Kilkenia Oſeria, a City of Ireland, Capital of the County of that Name, in the Province of Leinſter, the Seat of the Biſhop of Oſſory, a Suffragan to the Archbiſhop of Dublin, is a ſweet and pleaſant place, ſituate upon the Banks of the River Nore, 15 Miles from Caſhel to the N. E. 50 from Dublin to the S. W. and about 28 from Waterford to the N. The moſt populous, rich, and beſt Traded Inland Town of all the Kingdom. It took its Name from one Canic, who leading here a ſolitary Life, was in great Eſteem for Holineſs amongſt the Iriſh; whence the place was called by them, Cell Canic, quaſi Cella Canici. It conſiſts of two Parts; the Iriſh Town, in which is Canic-Church, the Cathedral; and the Engliſh, which was built ſince, and is now the principal part, the other a Suburb to it, was Walled by R. Talbot the Noble, and has a ſtately Caſtle built by the Butlers, belonging to the Duke of Ormond. This City was the Seat of the Council, or Committee, from whence the Iriſh ſent their Orders, during the Rebellion begun in King Charles I's Time. Cromwel, after he had taken Drogheda, marched againſt Kilkenny, and took it upon Articles, after eight Days ſharp Reſiſtance, in June 1650, the Committee being fled before his coming to Athlone in Connaught. After the Battel at the Boyne, Kilkenny readily ſubmitted to the Duke of Ormond, who, as was ſaid before, has a noble Seat in it; and another, called Dunmore-Houſe, within two Miles of it, and made the Head-Quarters for King William's Forces in this Part of the Country. The County of Kilkenny is bounded on the Weſt by the County of Tipperary, on the North by the Queen's County, on the Eaſt by Caterlough, and on the South by the County of Waterford. The River Nore divides it from North to South, and afterwards falls into the River Barrow, at Roſſe.

KILLALOO, Lat. Killala, a ſmall City, and Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Tuam, in the Province of Connaught, in the County of Mayo, 24 Miles from Galloway to the North.

KILMALLOCK, Lat. Killocia, a ſmall City in the Province of Munſter, in the County of Limerick, 18 Miles from Limerick to the South. This was taken by Hewſon in 1650, and gives the Title of a Baron to——

KILMER, an Arm of the Sea in Munſter, which lies between Dingle and Bantry.

KILMORE, Lat. Kilmora, a ſmall City in the Province of Ulſter, in the County of Cavan, which is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Ardmagh, by the Appointment of Pope Nicholas V. in 1454. It ſtands upon the River Ninčty, in the Confines of Connaught and Leinſter, 32 Miles from Drogheda to the Weſt, and 41 from Ardmagh to the S. W. The Iriſh call this Chilmber.

KIMBOLTON, a Market Town in Huntingtonſhire, in the Hundred of Leightenſtone, adorned with a Caſtle belonging to the Earl of Mancheſter, to whom it gives the Title of Baron.

KIMCHI (David) a noted Rabbin, who lived towards the End of the XIIth Century. He is the moſt famous, and beſt eſteemed, of all the Jewiſh Grammarians, even amongſt Chriſtians, who have generally compoſed their Dictionaries, and Tranſlations of the Bible, from the Books of this Learned Man. He is particularly valued for his Method, and the Neatneſs of his Stile. The Modern Jews alſo prefer him before all their other Grammarians. We have his Hebrew Grammar, under the Name of Sepher Michol; and his Dictionary, called Sepher Schoraſchim. There are many Editions of both, but the beſt is that of Venice, which hath the Notes of the learned Jew, Elias Levita. The Commentaries of this Rabbin are printed, at leaſt the greateſt part of them, in the Great Bible of Venice and Baſil. His Commentary upon the Pſalms is not to be found there, but was printed by it ſelf in Germany. A Benedictine Friar hath turned it into Latin, which hath been printed at Paris. Moſes Kimchi, the Brother of David, hath alſo writ concerning Grammar. See Moſes Kimchi. Baillet. Jugement des Sçavans.

KINETON, a Market Town of Kington-Hundred, in the South of Warwickſhire, noted for giving the Title of Baron to the Marquis of Carmarthen.

KINGS, the Name of Four Canonical Books in the Old Teſtament ſo call'd, becauſe they relate the Hiſtory of the Kings of Judah and Iſrael; The firſt (which we call the Firſt of Samuel) takes in the Hiſtory of the Jews, under Eli and Samuel, and the Reign of Saul; The ſecond (call'd alſo the Second Book of Samuel) comprehends the Reign of David; The third and fourth Books give an Account of the Reign of Solomon, and the Kings of Iſrael and Judah, the whole Four taking in the Period of about 550 Years. Theſe Books were written by ſeveral Perſons; 'tis ſuppos'd that Samuel is the Author of part of the Firſt Book; that Gad and Nathan continued the Hiſtory in the Second; that Abijah and Iddo were probably Authors of the Third; as for the Fourth, there are none, or very ſlender conjectures, by whom it was written. The Reader may conſult thoſe that have commented upon theſe Books, as Cajetan, Serrarius, Sanctius, Grotius, &c.

KING of Sacrifices, in Latin, Rex Sacrorum, or Rex Sacrificulus; A Roman Magiſtrate who had the Ordering of all that was neceſſary for the Sacrifices, and the Solemnities of their Holydays. The People of Rome ſet up this Magiſtrate after they had expell'd their Kings, (becauſe there were certain Sacrifices, in which 'twas Cuſtomary for the King himſelf to Officiate) that there might be ſome body to Repreſent the Royal Character; or, it may be, becauſe the City of Rome being built by a King, they had a mind to continue the Name. However, to preſerve their Liberty, they gave this King the Adminiſtration of no other Affairs but thoſe of Religion; and even in that, the Pontifex Maximus, or High Prieſt, was above him. The People choſe this King in their Comitia Centuriata; Manlius Papyrius was the firſt of them; He was of a Patrician Family, and all his Succeſſors were oblig'd to make proof of the ſame Quality. Livii Lib. II. Aul. Gell. Lib. XV. cap. 17. Roſin Antiq. Rom. Lib. III. cap. 25.

KINGSALE, Lat. Kinſalia, a Town and Port of the County of Cork, in the Province of Munſter, and on the River Ban, near the Ocean, 15 Miles from Cork to the South. This Town was ſeized by D'Aquila, a Spaniard, in 1601, with 2000 Soldiers, in favour of the dangerous Rebel Tir-Oen; but being preſently beſieged by the Lord Montjoy, Lieutenant of Ireland, both by Sea and Land, in December after, Tir-Oen came to its Relief with 6000 Foot, and 500 Horſe, amongſt which were 2000 freſh Spaniards, who had landed a little before; but was defeated, Decemb. 24. by a Detachment drawn out of the Engliſh Camp. D'Aquila thereupon ſurrender'd the Town to the Engliſh, and was Tranſported by them, with the Remainder of his Men, into Spain. King William's Forces, under the Earl of Marlborough, poſſeſſed themſelves of this Town, Octob. 2. 1690, and the next Day took the old Fort by Storm, the Iriſh Governor, with moſt of the Officers, being ſlain upon the Rampart: And on the 17th following, the new Fort ſurrender'd upon Articles, and the Garriſon of about 1200 Men, marched out with their Arms and Baggage, to be conducted to Limerick.

KING'S-BRIDGE, a Market Town of Devonſhire, in Stanborough Hundred.

KING'S-CLERE, a Market Town in the County of Southampton, and Capital of its Hundred.

KING'S-COUNTY, a County in Ireland, in the Province of Munſter, bounded on the Weſt by Connaught and the County of Gallway, on the North by Meath, on the Eaſt by Kildare, and on the South by the Queen's-County. Its principal Town is King's-Town, Lat. Regiopolis, ſeated upon the River Esker, which falls into the Boyne, 20 Miles from Athlone to the Eaſt, and 40 from Dublin to the Weſt.

KINGSTON, a Market-Town of Surrey, and Capital of its Hundred, ſituate on the South ſide of the Thames, famous heretofore for the Coronation of the Saxon Kings; whence it receiv'd the Name of Kings-Town, being before called Moreford. And alſo for a Caſtle belonging to the Clares, Earls of Glouceſter. The County-Aſſizes are held here. It is called Kingſton upon Thames, to diſtinguiſh it from another Kingſton upon Hull, built by Edward I. with an Harbour to it, a Cuſtom-houſe, and a Key, two Pariſh-Churches, together with Walls, Ditches, Forts, Block-houſes and Caſtles; which render it capable of making a ſtrong Defence. Kingſton upon Hull has the Honour and Privilege to be both a Burrough-Town, and County-Corporate; giving the Title of Earl to the Right Honourable William Pierrepont.

KINNATELLUS, the 48th. King of Scots, ſucceeded his Brother Congallus in 568. There occurred nothing memorable in his Reign, but only his civil Treatment of Aidanus, who was to ſucceed him; he having, contrary to all Men's Expectation, made him his Deputy in the Government, and died after fifteen Months Reign. Buchan.

KINROSSE, a Shire in Scotland, which lies N. W. of Fiſe, having a Capital of its own Name. Buchan.

KINVER, a Market-Town of Seiſdon-Hundred, in the South Borders of Staffordſhire.

KIOSEM, the Wife of Achmet Emperor of the Turks, Mother of Sultan Ibrahim, and Grandmother of Mahomet IV. dethroned in 1687. During the Minority of Mahomet ſhe had the Government of the Empire in her own Hands; but the Mother of Mahomet fearing the Craft and Policy of this old Lady, whom ſhe knew to have fomented that Conſpiracy of the Janizaries who maſſacred Ibrahim, enter'd into a League with the Spahi's, Baſhaws and Beys, who commonly are the oppoſite Party to the Janizaries; aſſuring them, that Kioſem had a Deſign to aboliſh the Name and Office of the Spahi's, and to put all the Authority into the Hands of the Janizaries. The Aſiatick Spahi's, alarm'd with this News, marched ſtraight to Scutari, with a conſiderable Army, under the Command of Gurgi Nebi, or Nebi the Georgian, and demanded the Heads of the Traytors that had conſpired againſt Ibrahim, their Sovereign. Which ſo ſtartled Morat Baſhaw, the Grand Viſier, an Accomplice of that Conſpiracy, that getting a Force of Janizaries together, he advanced with them in all haſte to Scutari; but they were hinder'd from fighting by the Interpoſition of the Chief Juſtices of Natolia and Greece. The Janizaries being grown more inſolent by the Retreat of the Spahi's, held a ſecret Council, where it was reſolved to deſtroy them; and accordingly, ſent Order to the Baſhaw of Natolia to kill Gurgi Nebi, which he preſently executed; for, entring his Quarters, and finding him abandoned by his Soldiers, he ſhot him with a Piſtol, and ſent his Head to Conſtantinople. All this ſerved but more and more to exaſperate the two Queens againſt each other; the one ſtriving to maintain her own Authority, and the other that of her Son Mahomet: But in the end Siaus Baſhaw, Grand Viſier, accompanied with thoſe of the young Queen's Party, enter'd the Apartment of Kioſem, ſeized her, and committed her to the Keeping of the King's Eunuchs: And not long after, the Mufti gave Sentence of Death againſt the Old Queen, and repreſented to the Sultan, that it was neceſſary for him to ſign it, in order to re-eſtabliſh the Peace of the Empire; which he did accordingly, and the Sentence was executed by the Ichoglans, who ſtrangled her. Ricaut's Hiſtory of the Turkiſh Empire.

KIOW, a City of Poland, Capital of the Lower Volhinia, with the Title of a Palatinate. It is ſituate upon the Boryſthenes, and hath a ſtrong Fortreſs. It was built in 861, by Kius, a Ruſſian Prince, and called by his own Name. It was formerly great, rich, and well built; but the Tartars, who took it in 1615, did ruin it in ſuch ſort, that little remains of its ancient Splendour. Since which, the Coſſacks made it their Retreat, and at laſt yielded it to the Muſcovites. It lies 4 Poliſh Miles from the Borders of Moſcovy to the Weſt, 70 from Kaminieck to the North Eaſt, and 100 from Warſaw to the Eaſt. The Palatinate of Kiovia is called Volhinia Inferior, and alſo Ukraine. It is a Part of Red Ruſſia, and lies on both ſides the Nieſter, between Moſcovy, the Deſarts of Leſſer Arabia, Volhinia Superior, the Palatinate of Barlaw, and the Tartars of Orzakow. It was yielded to the Ruſſians in 1686, to engage them in an Alliance with the Poles, againſt the Crim Tartars. It was formerly the Seat of the Ruſſian Empire, and 8 Miles in Circuit. It has vaſt Caverns under Ground, which the Inhabitants pretend run 8 Miles; and in them are the Tombs of many of the old Ruſſian Nobility, with many Bodies ſtill entire in them. Two of the Princes are in the ſame Habit they wore when alive; and are ſhewn by the Ruſſian Monks to Strangers.

KIRCHER (Conrade) a Proteſtant of Augsburg, the Compoſer of a Greek Concordance of the Old Teſtament, which was printed in two Volumes at Francfort, in 1607. This is a Book of good uſe towards the underſtanding of the Scripture; and may ſerve beſides for an Hebrew Dictionary, becauſe the Author puts the Hebrew Words firſt, and afterwards the Greek Interpretation which the Septuagint have given to thoſe Words; quoting the Places of Scripture where they are differently Interpreted. This Concordance is made according to the Complutenſian Edition of the Septuagint. M. Simon. Hiſt. Crit. Vet. Teſt.

KIRCHER (Athanaſius) a Jeſuit of Fulda, a famous Philoſopher and Mathematician. Being very young, he enter'd himſelf amongſt the Jeſuits, and Taught at Wirtzburg in Franconia. In 1631, when the Swedes enter'd Germany, Kircher retired to France to avoid Troubles, and ſtayed ſome time at the Jeſuits College in Avignon; and from thence went to Rome, where he made many learned Diſcoveries, chiefly in explaining the Secrets of the Oriental Languages, wherein he was very well skilled. He writ many excellent Works, viz. Præluſionis Magneticæ. Primitiæ Gnomonicæ Catoptricæ. Prodromus Copticus. Ars Magnetica. Theſaurus Linguæ Ægyptiacæ. Ars magna Lucis & Umbræ. Muſurgia Univerſalis. Obeliſcus Pamphilius. Oedipus Ægyptiacus, Tom. IV. Itinerarium Extaticum. Obeliſcus Ægyptiacus. Mundi Subterranei, Tom. II. China Illuſtrata, &c.

KIRCHOLM, a Town of Livonia, near unto which Charles King of Sweden received a great Overthrow in 1605, by Charles Chotkevicz, General for Uladiſlaus King of Poland. Thuan.

KIRKBY, or KIRBY-LONSDALE, a Market Town in the County of Weſtmorland, Capital of its Ward, and ſituate upon the Banks of the River Lon, in a rich and pleaſant Vale, called Lonſdale; large, well built, and populous; having a fair Church, and a fine Stone-Bridge over the River. The Name ſignifies, The Church in the Dale, or Valley of Lon. The Right Honourable Sir John Lowther of Lowther, ſome time Vice-Chamberlain to William III. was dignified by that Prince with the honour of being created Viſcount Lonſdale, and Lord Privy-Seal, who died July... 1700.

KIRKBY-STEVEN, another Market Town in the County of Weſtmorland, in the Eaſt Parts, near the Skirts of the Hills which ſever Cumberland from Yorkſhire. It has a fair Church, and the Lord Wharton a Seat near it, called Wharton-Hall, being the ancient Seat of the Family, with a noble Park.

KIRKBY-MORESIDE, a Market Town in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, in Ridal-Hundred, upon a ſmall River, which, after a ſhort Courſe, falls, with others, into the Derwent.

KIRKHOVEN (Charles) a Foreigner, Son of .... Kirkhoven Lord of Hemflete in Holland, by Catharine his Wife, the eldeſt of the four Daughters and Co-heirs of Thomas Lord Wotton, Widow of Henry Lord Stanhope, Son and Heir to Philip late Earl of Cheſterfield. Which Charles was by reaſon thereof created Lord Wotton of Wotton in Kent, as appears by His Majeſty Charles II's Letters Patent bearing date at St. Johnſtown in Scotland, the ſecond Year of his Reign, and Naturalized by Act of Parliament, begun 8 Maii, 13 Car. II. Dugdale.

KIRKSOP, a River which hath its Source in the South of Scotland; from whence running Southward, it ſevers, for ſome part of its Courſe, Scotland from Cumberland, and at laſt runs through this County, into the River Eden.

KIRKTON, a Market Town in Lincolnſhire, in the Diviſion of Holland, and Hundred of Corringham, adorned with a fair Church, built Cathedralwiſe, in form of a Croſs, with a broad Steeple in the midſt.

KIRKUBRIGHT, the principal Town of the Stewardry of that Name, and the beſt Sea-Port of Galloway, in the W. of Scotland.

KIRKWALL, Lat. Cracoviaca, commonly called Kirkwa, the principal Town of Orkney in the Iſland Pomona. It has a very good Harbour, and is a Place of conſiderable Trade. It is well built of Stone, and has a Caſtle belonging to the King, which was formerly very ſtrong, and well provided with Guns. The Walls are ſo thick, that large Chambers are built in them: But the Caſtle is now ruinous. Near thereunto is a ſtately Palace, built by Robert Reid, Biſhop there, in Queen Mary's Time. And not far from thence is a ſtately Structure, built by Patrick Stuart Earl of Orkney, but never finiſhed. And theſe Houſes have all of them very pleaſant Gardens. Betwixt this and the King's Caſtle, there is a ſtately Church, very long, but not broad, built by St. Magnus, who firſt planted the Chriſtian Religion there. It is a very magnificent Structure, built of hewen Stone, and vaulted above. Its Steeple is remarkable, and hath ſo many Windings and Apartments, that Strangers cannot find their Way out without a Guide: And ſo ſtrong, that 50 Men may defend it againſt 1000, if they have not great Guns. It hath alſo a curious Ring of Bells: And the Town moreover hath a good Free-School. Gordon. Theatr. Scotiæ.

KIRRIANDER (William) Syndick of Treves, liv'd towards the end of the XVIth Century. He wrote the Annals of Treves, call'd, The Hiſtorical Commentaries, containing the Hiſtory of what paſs'd from the Year of the World 1066, to the Time of James de Eltz, Archbiſhop of Treves, in 1567.

KISICO, Lat. Cyzicus, a ruinous City on the Eaſtern Coaſt of the Sea of Marmora, in Natolia, which took its Name from Cyzicus the King of that Country. It is ſaid to be built by the Argonauts 500 Years before Rome, in a pleaſant Iſland, which two fair Bridges join to the Continent. It was provided with three great Magazines, filled with Arms, Proviſions, and other Neceſſaries for the Inhabitants. The Buildings were magnificent, and moſt of them of Marble; but the Temple built there to the Honour of Auguſtus, was the moſt ſurpaſſing Ornament of that City. There is nothing to be ſeen now but the Ruins of ſumptuous Buildings; and particularly, of an Oval Theatre, capable of 12000 Spectators. It ſtands upon a pleaſant Hill, from whence there is a Proſpect of the two Gulfs, or Bays, which make two Havens. The Ruins of this City are now joined to the Continent by a Neck of Land made by the Rubbiſh of the two great Bridges, that reached over this Arm of the Sea, which is not above two Arrow Flights over. This Iſthmus is about half a League broad, and hath on each ſide of it two fair Havens, but unfrequented. Grelot's Journey to Conſtantinople.

KMIS (Paul) Governor of the Lower Hungary, being informed that ſome Soldiers of the Garriſon of Belgrade had a Deſign to betray their Country, and deliver that City to the Turks, put them into Priſon, roaſted one of them every Day, and made his Comrades eat him, asking every Meal, How they liked the taſte of a Traytor? And when they were all thus diſpatched, ſave one, he ſtarved him to death. Bonfin. lib. 3. Dec. 5.

KNARESBOROUGH, a Market and Borough-Town of Claro Wapentake, in the Weſt-Riding of Yorkſhire. It ſends two Members to Parliament, has a Caſtle upon a Rock, and a Well, ſays Mr. Speed, which Petrefies Wood.

KNIGHT, originally a German Word, ſignifying a Servant, but afterwards applied to Soldiers, or Men of War; at this Day, the French, Spaniards, Italians, Germans and Dutch, expreſs what we call Knight, by a word ſignifying Horſe-man, the ſame with thoſe the Latins called Equites, but in the Common-Law of England, they are called Milites, becauſe they commonly held Land in Knight's Service, to Serve the King in his Wars, as Soldiers. Knights-ſimple or Batchellors; in Latin, Equites Aurati, or Milites, do commonly receive that Honour for ſome perſonal Deſert, and therefore it deſcends not to Poſterity. Knights Bannerets, or Equites Vexillarii, who in regard of their Valour, were allowed to carry a four-ſquare Banner, were anciently much eſteemed in England, but are now obſolete; thoſe, and none under their Degree, may bear their Arms with Supporters. Knights of the Bath, were firſt Created in England by Henry IV. An. 1399, the Cuſtom being taken from the ancient French. They are ſo called, becauſe of their Bathing before they were advanced to that Dignity; they are now commonly made at Coronations, or the Creation of the Prince of Wales; they wear a Scarlet-ribbon Belt-wiſe. Knights of the Garter, the chief Order in England, began in 1350, being Founded by the Victorious King Edward III. who had the Kings of France and Scotland Priſoners at that ſame time. Polydore Virgil ſays, That it had its Riſe on the Falling of a Garter from a Lady's Leg, which was taken up by that King dancing with her, whereat ſome of the Company ſmiling, as thinking it imported more than an ordinary Familiarity, the King is ſaid to have uttered theſe Words, Honi ſoit qui mal y penſe, i. e. Evil to him who Evil thinks. But later Authors, particularly Doctor Chamberlain, in his State of England, explode this as a Fable, and ſay, It had its Name, becauſe the Garter was the only part of the Habit, which at firſt, was commonly wore, to put the Companions of the Order in Mind, That they ought to be bound together with an inviolable Affection, and that the ſaid Motto was choſen, leaſt this ſtrict Combination ſhould be miſ-interpreted. The Habits and Ceremonies uſed at the Inveſtiture of theſe Knights, are too long to be here inſerted; the Reader may find them in Cambden's Britannia, or The Preſent State of England, above-mentioned. We ſhall only add, That the greateſt Monarchs of Chriſtendom have been Enrolled in this Order, and have counted it an Honour, for tho' it be not the firſt Order, it is the ancienteſt now uſed in Chriſtendom; ſince its Inſtitution, there have been of it 8 Emperors, 27 Foreign Kings, beſides Electors, and other Sovereign Princes.

KNIGHT, a Military Order. The Romans and old Germans did not confer this Honour upon any under the Age of 16. In the Time of the Saxons, Knights were ſometimes made by Biſhops, Abbots, and ſometimes by Prieſts, the Cuſtom then being, that the Perſon to be Knighted, was to go the Evening before to the Biſhop, Abbot, or ſome Prieſt, and making a Confeſſions of his Sins, and to receive Abſolution, ſtaying in the Church all Night at his Devotions; the next Morning, after the Communion Service, he offer'd his Sword upon the Altar, which the Prieſt having Bleſs'd, put over the Knights Shoulders, which being done, they receiv'd the Communion together. All which ſolemn circumſtances, made the Ceremony and Honour of Knighthood compleat. And thus the noble Herewardus, who gave the Normans ſo ſtrong a Diverſion, was Knighted; and even after the Norman Conqueſt, in the Reign of William I. William Rufus was not Knighted by King William his Father, but by Lanfrank Archbiſhop of Canterbury, as we are inform'd from Malmsburienſis and Matthew Paris. Formerly Knights were made only out of the Order of Soldiers, no other Profeſſion being taken in. The firſt Tradeſman or Citizen that was Knighted amongſt us, was Sir William Walworth, Lord Mayor of London, who was Knighted by King Richard II. for his eminent Service in ſuppreſſing a Rebellion, by killing the Rebel Watt Tyler, in Smithfield, with his own Hand. 'Twas ſome time after, before this Honour was conferr'd on Serjeants at Law; the firſt Inſtance being in the 26th of Henry VIII. The value of a Knights Fee, was about the Conqueror's Time, no more than a hundred Shillings per Annum; but in the Reign of Henry III. it was rais'd to ten Pounds; and towards the latter end of his Reign to fifteen. In the Reign of Edward I. it mounted to twenty Pounds per Annum; and Henry VIII. brought it to 40 l. Thoſe who being poſſeſs'd of Eſtates to the value above-mention'd, being oblig'd to receive the Honour of Knighted, or to Fine upon Refuſal. *Spelman Diſſertatio de Milite. KNOWLES (Sir Robert) born in Cheſhire, had a great Soul, tho' of mean Deſcent. He was one of the 30 Engliſh, who undertook a Duel with as many Britains, and came off with Reputation. He was afterwards a Commander in France under King Edward III. and became ſo terrible to the French, that they fled before him like Sheep, whilſt he deſtroyed their Towns, Caſtles and Cities in ſo great number, and in ſuch a manner, that for many Years after, the ſharp Points and gabel-ends of Houſes, over-turned by his Engines of War, were called Knowles his Mitres. His laſt Piece of Martial Service was, the ſuppreſſing of Wat Tyler, and his Rebels; for which, the Londoners Enfranchis'd him. He was no leſs Charitable than Valiant, having contributed largely towards Chapels, Churches and Bridges. He died in 1407. Aged 90. Fuller's Worthies.

KNOX (John) born in Gifford near Haddington in Lothian, An. 1505. His Father was a Brother of the Houſe of Ranferly, an ancient Family in the Weſt of Scotland; he was bred in the Univerſity of St. Andrews, under Mr. John Mair, or Major, highly eſteemed for Learning, in thoſe Days, and when very young, exceeded his Maſter both in Philoſophical and Theological Controverſies, ſo that he was admitted to Degrees and Orders before the time appointed by the Canons; after which, laying aſide the School-Sophiſms, he applied himſelf to read the Fathers, eſpecially St. Auſtin, whoſe Writings he admired: And having, by the preaching of Thomas Guilliam, a Black Friar, of ſound Judgment and wholſome Doctrine, got an impreſſion of the truth, he made the Holy Scriptures, after that time, his principal Study, by which he attained ſo great a meaſure of Spiritual Knowledge, that he was honoured to be the principal Reformer of the Church of Scotland. Being forced to leave his Country becauſe of Perſecution, he Preached, for ſome Years, with much ſucceſs, at Berwick, New-Caſtle and London, and being offered a Biſhoprick by King Edward VI. he refuſed it, becauſe contrary to his Principles. He was afterwards called before the Council of England, and had a great Debate with the Biſhops of Canterbury and Ely, and others, about the Way of Entring into the Miniſtry, Kneeling at the Communion, &c. They diſmiſſed him favourably, and preferr'd him to a Benefice in London, but he declin'd it. After King Edward's death, he retired to Geneva, and in Sept. 1554. was choſen Miniſter of the Engliſh Congregation at Francford, whence he wrote his Admonition to England; but being an Enemy to the Liturgy, he was Accuſed, by the oppoſite Party, of High Treaſon againſt the Emperor, his Son Philip, and the Queen of England, becauſe of his ſpeaking againſt their Perſecution, as he writes in his Diſcourſe of his Proceedings at Francford; but the Magiſtrates of that City having a reſpect for him, adviſed him to provide for his ſafety, becauſe if the Emperor ſhould demand him, they muſt deliver him up, ſo that he returned to Geneva, May 26. 1555. whence he wrote an Admonition to London, New-Caſtle, and Berwick, a Letter to Queen Mary Regent of Scotland, &c. and an Appeal to the Nobility. At that ſame time, he writ his firſt Blaſt of the Trumpet againſt the Government of Women, occaſioned by the Cruelty of Queen Mary in England, and Mary Queen Regent in Scotland. Being, after this, ſollicited by the Nobility to return, and aſſiſt in the Reformation of Scotland, he came home, May 2. 1559. being then 54 Years of Age, and was ſettled in the Miniſtery at Edinburgh, but met with many Interruptions, becauſe of the Diſorders of thoſe Times. He was naturally of a fervent Temper, and a moſt efficacious and powerful Preacher, his Sermons being attended with more than an ordinary influence upon his Hearers, that they were, many times, forced to cry out, Doubtleſs God is here. There were few of his Sermons printed, tho' he was both Learned and Eloquent; nor was he much addicted to Writing, being uſed to ſay, That God had called him to inſtruct the Ignorant, and not to write Books; yet, there are ſeveral of his Sermons in print, upon Geneſis, the Pſalms, &c. and ſome ſmall Treatiſes againſt the Maſs, and the blaſphemous German-Anabaptiſts. He was alſo noted for ſome prophetical Predictions from the Pulpit, as that againſt Mr. Thomas Maitland, a young Gentleman, and one of thoſe Proteſtants who were of the Queen's Faction, who, among the Bills put up to him in the Church, next Sabbath after the Murther of the good Regent the Earl of Murray, conveyed this piece of Mockery, Take up the Man whom you accounted another God; at which, he expreſſed no ſign of Diſpleaſure in reading it, but having, after Sermon, upon that extraordinary occaſion, ſignified, that the taking away of that good Ruler, was an evident demonſtration of God's Anger againſt the Nation: He added, That there was one in the Company (unknown to him) who made it the Subject of his Mirth; but he would tell him, that he ſhould die in a ſtrange Land, where he ſhould have no Friend to aſſiſt him; the Gentleman having acquainted his Siſter with what he had done, laugh'd at Mr. Knox, as a Madman, to threaten he knew not whom; ſhe, with Tears in her Eyes, bewailed his folly, and told him, ſhe dreaded the Event, which fell out accordingly, for he died in his Travels to Italy, having none either to aſſiſt, or lament him. Of that ſame nature were his Predictions to Queen Mary of Scotland, and her Husband Henry Lord Darnly, who had caſt a Pſalm-book in the fire to pleaſure her, which were verified in their Tragical Exits. And no leſs remarkable, were the Warnings which he gave to the Laird of Grange, and the Earl of Morton, both of them, at their death owning that they had found John Knox a true Prophet, tho' a great while after that he himſelf was in his Grave. However, Mr. Knox, according to the Fate of all great Men, wanted not his Enemies and Detractors, who ſought the ruine both of his Life and Reputation, chiefly becauſe of his differing from them about the Power of Kings, and the Government of the Church, and yet he vindicated himſelf, as holding nothing ſingular on thoſe Heads, having the Concurrence of Calvin, Beza, and moſt of the noted Foreign-Proteſtants of his Time. The Providence of God was alſo remarkable, in preſerving him from the Attempts of his Enemies, particularly one Night, when a Bullet was ſhot in at his Window, againſt which he uſed to ſit, at the head of his Table, when at Supper; but that Night, by ſpecial Providence, he ſat on one ſide, ſo that the Bullet hit and pierced the Candleſtick. Having a foreſight of his Diſſolution, he deſired his Flock to provide them another Miniſter, and they having choſen Mr. Lawſon, Philoſophy-profeſſor at Aberdeen, who was alſo an excellent Preacher, Knox preached his Farewell Sermon, tho' ſcarcely able to walk to the Pulpit, with as much fervour and vigour, as ever he was known to do while in health. In the cloſe, he called God to Witneſs, that he walked in a good Conſcience amongſt them, not ſeeking to pleaſe Men but God; and having recommended his Succeſſor and his Flock to the care of the Almighty, he took Bed that Afternoon, and during his Sickneſs, was wholly taken up with holy Meditations, and the afflicted State of the Church. Nov. 17. 1572, he ſent for the Elders and Deacons of the Church, and told them, That he ſhould, in a little time, be with his Saviour for ever, which he had long thirſted for, and called God to witneſs, that he had Taught nothing but the True Goſpel, having, in all his Doctrine, propoſed to inſtruct the Ignorant, confirm the Weak, comfort the Humble, and bring down the Rebellious; adding, That he was not ignorant that many had blamed him, as too rigid and ſevere, but God was his witneſs, that againſt thoſe whom he had thundred Judgments, he hated their Sins, not their Perſons, and that he laboured to gain them to Chriſt, and that he durſt forbear none of whatſoever Condition, becauſe he knew that God, who had placed him in the Miniſtry, would call him to an account. Nov. 23, he was perceived very uneaſie in his ſleep, and Dr. Preſton having demanded the Cauſe, he told him, That he had been many times aſſaulted by Satan in his life, who would have driven him to Deſpair, becauſe of his Sins, and that now on his Death bed he had been aſſaulted by him, to truſt to his own Labours and Fidelity in the Miniſtry for Salvation; but bleſſed be God, ſaid he, I have made him retire aſhamed with theſe Scriptures, What haſt thou that thou haſt not received; and, Not I, but the Grace of God in me; and now I am ſure he ſhall return no more, and that without pain of Body, or trouble of Spirit, I ſhall change this Life with a happy Immortality; and about Eleven at Night, he ended his Days with theſe Words, Lord Jeſus receive my Spirit; and being required to give a Sign, that he remembred the comfortable Promiſes which he had often preached to others, ſeeing now he could not ſpeak, he lifted up one of his Hands, and without farther Motion, died like one falling aſleep, in the 67th. Year of his Age, An. 1572. and was buried in the Church-Yard of St. Giles at Edinburgh, being honourably attended to his Grave by the Earl of Morton, afterwards Regent, and People of all Ranks. When he was laid in his Grave, the Earl ſaid, Here lies a Man who never feared the face of Man, was often threatned with Dagge and Dagger, and yet hath ended his Days in Peace and Honour. Mr. Thomas Smetoun in his Life ſays, De quo aut vere aut ingenue dicam, neſcio an unquam Deus magis pium, aut majus ingenium in fragili & imbecillo corpuſculo collocarit, certò ſcio haud facile quemquam inveniri poſſe, in quo plura Spiritus ſancti dona, in ſolidum Scoticanæ Eccleſiæ gaudium illuxerint; nemo in ſubeundis Animi & Corporis laboribus minus ſibi pepercit, nemo in concreditam ſibi provinciam intentior fuit, nemo tamen dum viveret, odiis impiorum hominum magis impetitus eſt, & maledicorum calumniis laceratus, quamvis illi ea fuit animi Magnitudo ut contra audentior iret. Beza calls him The Apoſtle of the Scots, and Great Mr. Knox. That Hiſtory of the Church of Scotland, which goes under his Name, was partly writ by himſelf, partly Collected from his Papers, and partly taken from his Diſcourſes. This Knox held the Pope was Antichriſt, maintaining at the ſame time that it was a Point of great Sacrilege to Rob, and ſpoil the Church of Tythes: Being conven'd before the Clergy, he declar'd againſt the Authority of the Church in point of Ceremonies; affirming, That no Man, in the Worſhip of God might appoint any Ceremony, giving it a ſignification to his pleaſure. Thoſe who had Murther'd Cardinal Beton, refuſing to deliver up the Caſtle of St. Andrews, were beſieg'd by the Government, and John Knox, being in the Garriſon, was by the Articles of Capitulation, carried into France. In 1554. Knox returned into Scotland, where he writ a Letter to the Queen Regent to intreat her to make a Reformation in the Church: Much about this time, in the Year 1556, He was invited to Geneva by the Engliſh Exiles, who had choſen him for their Preacher, which charge he accepted; and ſoon after his departure out of Scotland, he was condemn'd for a Heretick and burn'd in Effigie, at the Market-Croſs of Edinburgh. In 1559, John Knox returning from Geneva into Scotland; joined with the Congregation at Perth, who had newly made an alteration in Religion. And here Knox, preaching againſt Image-worſhip, the Common People fell upon the Prieſt that Officiated, and pull'd down all the Images. The News of this Action made the People Riſe in a Body, and fall to Plunder and Ravage all the Religious Houſes in the Town: The Queen Regent, intending to puniſh theſe diſorders was prevented by the Earl of Glencarn, who came with a Body of Men to aſſiſt the Town; upon this, the Q. ſent Forces againſt them, but an Agreement being mediated, they did not come to Blows. Soon after John Knox in a Sermon at Craile, told them, there was no ſincerity in the Queen Regents dealing; That the Conditions would not be kept, and that their way was to drive the French out of the Kingdom, exhorting them to prepare, either to die like Men, or live Conquerors. Soon after, when ſome of the Lords in Scotland were conſulting about diſcharging the Queen of her Regency, they deſired the Opinion of the Preachers, Mr. Willock and Mr. Knox. Willock pronounc'd roundly, that Magiſtrates (meaning the Supream) notwithſtanding they are God's Miniſters on Earth, and are called Gods, yet may be Depoſed by their Subjects for Male-adminiſtration, for hindering the Preaching of the Word of God, maintaining Superſtition, and deſpiſing the Advice of the Nobility; which he endeavour'd to prove by miſapplying ſeveral Texts of the Old Teſtament. John Knox, being deſir'd to ſpeak next, approv'd all which his Brother had ſaid, with the Addition of this Civil Clauſe; that if the Queen Regent would change her Methods and be govern'd by good Advice, ſhe ought then to be Readmitted to the Government, of which, for juſt cauſes, ſhe was now to be depriv'd. In the Year 1560, Knox drew up a Form of Church-Government without any Biſhops in it: Soon after there was a miſerable deſtruction of Churches throughout all the Kingdom, moſt of 'em being either defac'd or quite pull'd down; the Communion-Plate, Timber, Lead and Bells were ſet to Sale, and the very Graves and Monuments of the Dead, plunder'd and made Money on; and the Church-Regiſters and Libraries thrown into the Fire. In 1563, there being a tumult at Haly-Rood-Houſe, ſome of the Burghers of Edinburgh, diſturbing the Queens Family, in the Exerciſe of their Religion; John Knox was ſummon'd before the Council, and charg'd as the Author of this Sedition; but here he denied the charge, and declar'd that he was never a Preacher of Rebellion, but taught all People to Obey their Magiſtrates and Princes in God. And then addreſſing himſelf to the Queen, charged her in the name of Almighty God to forſake her Idolatrous Religion, which by her Power ſhe maintain'd againſt the Statutes of the Realm: And in 1564, being cited before the Council for the indecency of his Reproof of the King at Church, he maintain'd what he had ſaid, and told the King, that for his going to Maſs in compliance with the Queen, God would make her the Inſtrument of his Ruine. In 1567, when the Queen was impriſon'd and depos'd, Knox and ſome other Preachers, thunder'd againſt her out of the Pulpits, affirming, that ſhe ought to be Depriv'd both of Authority and Life, both which violent Courſes were ſtrongly oppos'd by Sir Nicholas Throgmorton, Queen Elizabeth's Ambaſſador. The Hiſtory of the Church, of which Knox is commonly ſaid to be the Author, was none of his, at leaſt, not all of it; as appears plainly by its referring the Reader to Fox's Acts and Monuments, which were not publiſh'd till about twelve Years after Mr. Knox's Death. Cambdens Eliz. Spotſwoods Hiſt. of the Church of Scotland.

KOMARE, KOMORE, or KOMORRA, Lat. Comorra, a very ſtrong and well-fortified Town in the Lower Hungary, ſituate on the S. Side of the Iſle of Schut, where the Danube reunites into one Stream; four German Miles from Raab, two from Newhauſel to the South, and five from Gran to the North. This Town was well fortified by Matthias Corvinus King of Hungary, in 1472. and it became the Bulwark of Chriſtendom againſt the Turks, after they took Gran in 1542. It is great, populous and rich, as well as ſtrong. It has a Line drawn from the Southern to the Northern Branch of the Danube, defended with four Baſtions. The Emperor kept always here a great Garriſon, and a truſty Governor. After the Taking of Raab in 1591. Sinan Baſhaw beſieged this Town with Sixty Ships, and a great Number of Turks and Tartars, but without any Succeſs; for his Treachery and Valour were equally baffled by Baron Braon the Governor, who cut off four of the five Turks Heads he ſent to corrupt him, and ſent the fifth back to acquaint the Baſhaw with their Doom, and that there were no more Traytors to be bought. The chief Strength of this impregnable Place is its Fort called The Tortoiſe.

KONIGSBERG, Lat. Regiomontum, Regio-mons, the Capital City of Ducal Pruſſia, belonging to the Elector of Brandenburg. It is a Hans-Town, great and fair, and renowned for its Trade. It ſtands on the River Pregel, which runs into the Hab, a Lake ſo called, which falls into the Sea, being about fifteen or ſixteen Leagues long, and two broad. Konigsberg, is divided into Three Parts; the firſt whereof is called The Old Town, wherein is the Ducal Palace, built by George Frederick, Marquiſs of Brandenburg; the Second called Kniphoff, where is the Cathedral-Church, formerly the See of the Biſhop of Sambia, and the Univerſity Founded there by Albert Duke of Pruſſia, in 1544. the Third Part called Lebacbenicht. *Hermenberger deſcript. KORSUM, Lat. Korſuma, a Town of Poland, in the Lower Volhinia, or the Vkraine, and in the Palatinate of Kiovia, upon the River Roſs, built in 1581, by King Stephen, memorable for a great Victory obtained over the Poles by the Coſſacks, in 1648. It ſtands five Miles from Czyrkaſſy to the Weſt.

KOTTER (Chriſtopher) a Tanner of the City Sprotaw in the Lower Sileſia, born in the Town of Langenaw in Luſatia, in 1585. He was of the Proteſtant Religion, and in 1616, had (as was pretended) Revelations communicated to him by the Miniſtry of an Angel, and ſometimes two, which declared to him openly by Word of Mouth, very extraordinary Things that were to happen in the World, and more eſpecially in Germany. Theſe Revelations were Tranſlated into Latin by Comenius, and publiſhed together with the Revelations and Viſions of Nicolaus Drabicius and Chriſtina Poniatovia, which are contained in a Book in Quarto, whereof the firſt Edition is called Lux in Tenebris, the latter Lux è Tenebris. Kotterus died in 1647. Aged 92. Several Proteſtants have writ againſt theſe things, as Deluſions.

KRANTZ, or CRANTZ (Albertus) Doctor of Law and Divinity, and Dean of the Church of Hamburg, he lived towards the end of the XVth. and at the beginning of the XVIth. Century. He was a Man of great Piety and Learning, and being grieved at the Sins and Diſorders of his Time, was uſed to ſay, That God would puniſh Germany with extraordinary Calamities, to the utter ſubverſion of it. He writ ſeveral Works, the moſt conſiderable of which, are, his Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, under the Name of Metropolis, wherein he treats of the Churches Founded or Reſtored by Charles the Great; his Hiſtory of the Saxons, in Thirteen Books, and Of the Vandals in Fourteen; a Chronicle of Sweden, Denmark and Norway, which beginning from Charlemaign, ends in 1504. He died Decemb. 7. 1517. Pantaleon. P. II. illuſtr. Germ. Scrip. Fabricius lib. 1. Saxon. Olaus Magnus.

KRIM: See TARTARY.

KRONNINGES-GARD, Lat. Beſteda, a Town and Caſtle in the South Part of Iſeland, being the Reſidence of the King of Denmark's Vice Roy.

KUDACK, Lat. Kudacum, a Town of Poland in Vkrania, and Palatinate of Kiovia, on the Boryſthenes, at the Mouth of the River Samata. It was fortified by the Poles in 1637, to bridle the Coſſacks, and prevent their Irruptions into the Euxine-Sea, but hath been in their poſſeſſion ſince 1648.

KUNIGUNDA: See CUNEGONDA.

KYNETON, a Market-Town of Huntington Hundred in the W. of Herefordſhire, ſeated on the River Arrow, and its chief Trade conſiſts in narrow Cloths.

KYRGESSI, a Clan of very barbarous Tartars on the Weſt ſide of Mount Imaus in Aſia, all Pagans; they hang their dead Friends on Trees to be devoured by the Birds of the Air. This Nation, and the Baſchirdi, and the Hieſeliti, live on the Frozen Ocean. Guagninus.

L

L, Is one of the Conſonants called Liquids, becauſe of its ſoft and melting Sound or Pronunciation; and being placed between a mute Conſonant and a Vowel, renders the Syllable more gentle, than when two other Conſonants meet.

LAABIA, a Town in the Kingdom of Servia, Subject to the Turks, 36 Miles Weſt of Vſcopia, and 52 South of Niſſa.

LABACH, or LAUBACH, Lat. Labacum, Nauportus, and by the Italians, Lubiana, is the principal City of Carniola, upon a River of the ſame Name, which after a ſhort Courſe falls into the Save. It is a handſome Town, and hath a Caſtle ſeated on a Hill, which over-looks two large Vallies to the North and South. It ſtands 9 German Miles from Trieſte to the North Eaſt, and 15 from Villach, a Town of Carinthia to the N. W. It was made a Biſhop's See by Pope Paul II. under the Patriarch of Aquileia, in 1468. but is now under the Archbiſhop of Saltzburg. Dr. Brown ſays, that 'tis commanded by a neighbouring Hill, and therefore the more neglected, yet we find it has endured a long ſiege. For whilſt the Emperor Frederick was receiving the Crown at Aken, his Brother Albertus, and Count Vlrick, took that occaſion to beſiege it; but it made ſo good a Reſiſtance, that the Emperor had time to raiſe the Siege, and deſtroy their Army. Hermenberger's deſcrip. Boruſſ. Eraſm. Stella de Antiq. Boruſſ.

LABARUM, or LABORUM, a war-like Enſign or Standard, uſed by the Romans, ſince the time of Conſtantine the Great, being a long Lance, at the top of which, was a piece of Wood croſs-wiſe, and a rich Crown above it, with the two firſt Greek Letters of the Name of Jeſus Chriſt joined into a Cypher. From the Wood that went croſs it, hung down a rich Flag with the Pourtraictures of Conſtantine and his Son. There were Officers appointed for the bearing of this Standard, who were called Præpoſiti Labarorum. This Standard was called Labarum or Laborum, quaſi laborum ὅρος, i. e. Terminus, The end of Toil, Trouble or Labour, becauſe Conſtantine delivered the Church from the Perſecutions it had groan'd under, or becauſe he put an end to the Calamities which the Tyrant Maxentius brought upon the City of Rome. See Eubſeb. in vit. Conſtantin. Turneb. lib. 15. Adverſ. cap. 16. Cujacius. Præp. Labar. Gretſer. de Cruce lib. 2. cap. 37, 38.

LABBE (Philip) a Jeſuit, was born in the City of Bourges in France, 1607. He was well verſed in the Polite part of Learning, Languages, Philoſophy and Divinity, which he Profeſſed with great applauſe. He died, March 25. 1667. Aged 60. He was a very laborious Man, and a good Critick, and left the following Works, viz. Nova Bibliotheca M. S. Librorum in II. Vol. in folio. De Byzantinæ Hiſtoriæ ſcriptoribus. Galeni vita. Bibliotheca Bibliothecarum. Concordia Chronologica. De Script. Eccleſ. Bellarmini Philologica, & Hiſtorica diſſertatio. Alliance Chronologique. He begun the laſt Edition of the Councils, which we have in ſeventeen Volumes, and died whilſt the XIth. Volume was a printing, which were afterwards compleated by Father Coſſart.

LABDACUS, Son of Phœnix, King of Thebes, Father of Laius, and Grandfather of Oedipus. Statius Thebais Lib. 6. Apollodorus, &c.

LABEO, (Actius or Attius) a Latin Poet, who pretending to Tranſlate Homer, did it ſo exactly verbatim, that he made the Verſion appear wretchedly Flat, Impertinent and obſcure, inſomuch that the Men of Sence, at Rome thought him a very Ridiculous Fellow which made him fall under Perſius's Satyr as follows.

Næ mihi Polydamas & Troiades Labeonem

LABERIUS (Decimus) a Poet living in the Time of Julius Cæſar, his Talent lay in making of Farces, one of which Julius Cæſar got him to Act in himſelf: We have nothing of his Remaining but ſome Fragments of his Mimical Pieces, publiſh'd with thoſe of Publius Cyrus. Macrob. Saturn. Lib. 2. Aulus Gellius Lib. 5. cap. 18. Lib. 10. cap. 16, &c.

LABIENUS (Titus,) an Hiſtorian and Orator, who lived in the Time of Auguſtus. Suetonius mentions him in the Life of Caligula, but he is not the ſame whom Cæſar ſent unto the Gauls, who afterwards embracing Pompey's Party, was killed in Africa. Alſo another of the ſame Name, who, joining with Brutus and Caſſius, was ſent to Orodes King of the Parthians, for Succours, commanding his Troops againſt the Romans, and took many Cities from them; till at laſt he was overcome by Ventidius, and taken by Demetrius, Cæſar's Free-man, whom Antonius had made Governor of Cyprus. Strab. lib. 4. Dion. lib. 48. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 1. cap. 2.

LABINETUS, the Name which Herodotus gives to that King of the Aſſyrians who reigned at Babylon when it was taken by Cyrus, in the LXth. Olympiad, and An. Rom. 215. Some ſuppoſe that it was Darius the Mede, who was killed in Battel, though others ſay, Cyrus ſaved his Life, and made him Governor of Caramania.

LABOSSARDACH, King of Babylon, came to the Crown whilſt he was yet a Child; and becauſe he expreſſed many Marks of a bad Temper, he was killed by the Conſent of the Great Ones of the Kingdom, and Evilmerodach put in his Place. Moſt Authors do not mention him, becauſe of the ſhortneſs of his Reign; and others confound him with Belſhazzar, or Balthazar.

LABOUREUR (Jean le) a French Author, who in 1642. publiſhed the Tombs of Illuſtrious Perſons, with their Elogies and Genealogies; and the Journey of the Queen of Poland. He writ afterwards the Hiſtory of King Charles VI. of the Marſhal de Guebriant, and the Memoirs of Caſtelnau Mauviſiere. He died in June, 1675.

LABYRINTH, the Name of a Place ſo contrived with Windings and Turnings, that it was very hard to find the Way out of it. Of this Kind there were four very famous, as Pliny informs us: The firſt was, the Labyrinth built by Dædalus, in the Iſle of Crete, to ſecure the Minotaur. The 2d. That of Egypt, in the Iſle of Moeris, or Meroe, which was the wonderful Work of Pſammetichus King of Egypt, which Pliny calls Portentiſſimum humani impendii opus. Pomponius Mela tells us, That it was a vaſt Incloſure, all of Marble, which contained 3000 Edifices; and amongſt them, twelve Royal Palaces. The 3d. Labyrinth was that of Lemnos, famous for the ſumptuouſneſs of its Pillars. And the 4th. that of Italy, which Porſenna King of Hetruria had deſigned for a Sepulchre to himſelf and Succeſſors. See MOERIS. Plin. lib. 36. cap. 12. Mela, lib. 1. cap. 9.

LACEDÆMON, Sparta, now Miſitra, an ancient and moſt famous City of the Morea, ſeated upon the River Eurotas, (now called Vaſilipotamo) 30 Miles from Megalopolis to the South, 120 from Athens to the South Weſt, and 20 from the neareſt Shoar of the Mediterranean. This City was formerly called Lelegia, from Lelex, its firſt King, who was contemporary with Cecrops I. King of Athens, and Erichthonius; and was afterwards called Lacedæmon, from the Name of his Succeſſor; and Sparta, from Queen Sparta, the Daughter of Lacedæmon by Europa; or from Spartus, the Son of Phoroneus King of the Argives, who was the firſt Builder of it.

Of the Lacedæmonian Kingdom.

The Kingdom of Lacedæmon was firſt begun by Lelex, about A. M. 2570. at the ſame Time when Sthenelus IX. and laſt King of the Family of Inachus, began his Reign at Argos. The firſt Dynaſty laſted 381 Years, viz. from Lelex to Tiſamenes the Son of Oreſtes, who was the 13th. and laſt King, and driven away, A. M. 2951. by the Heraclidæ, who were alſo called Euryſthenidæ, and Agidæ: And under them began the Second Dynaſty, by Procles and Euryſthenes, the Sons of Ariſtodemus of Argia, after they had overcome Tiſamenes and Penthilus, the Sons of Oreſtes; and were the Heads of two Royal Families, whereof, the one, called Euryſthenidæ, or Agidæ, was the more famous of the two, and furniſhed no leſs than 31 Kings, the laſt of them being Ageſipolis III. The other Family was that of the Proclidæ, or Eurypontidæ; which reckons only 24 Kings. This Dynaſty continued 895 Years. Before the Time of Lycurgus the Lacedæmonians were a barbarous People, and lived unknown and obſcure; but he being appointed Tutor, or Guardian to Charillus, the Poſthumous Son of his Brother Polydectes, not only preſerved the Crown for him till he was come of Age, but by his prudent Laws, and wiſe Conduct, procured a great Luſtre to that Kingdom. He eſtabliſhed a Senate, on the one hand to moderate the Sovereign Power, and on the other hand to curb the Inſolence of the People. This Senate was compoſed of 32 Perſons, (of which their two Kings were Members, who reign'd together in Sparta with equal Authority,) whoſe Power was equal. To make their youth ſharp and dextrous, they gave 'em the liberty to Steal, but puniſh'd thoſe, who fail'd in a cleanly conveyance and were taken in the Fact. Theſe had Power to propound any thing they thought conducive to the publick Good, and to diſſolve themſelves; but could not conclude any Thing without the People's Conſent. King Theopompus eſtabliſhed the Ephori, who had much the ſame Power with the Tribunes of the People at Rome, to counter-balance the Power of the Kings and Senate; taking warning by the Ruin of the Government of the Meſſenians and Argives, cauſed by the over-great Power of their Kings. The Lacedæmonians obſerved ſome Laws and Cuſtoms which were very ſingular and extraordinary: They educated their Virgins in the ſame Exerciſes with their Young Men; and at certain Times, in the ſolemn Aſſembly of the whole Country, danced ſtark naked with them, ſinging Songs in praiſe of the Vertuous, and to the Reproach of thoſe who had carried themſelves ill. When their Young Men had a Mind to marry, they enter'd into a dark Room, where the Virgins were kept; and whomſoever they firſt laid hold of, was to be their Wife. Whence Lyſander was reproached, who having lighted on a deformed Creature in the Dark, for his Wife, let her go, to marry one that was more beautiful. Their Young Men were carefully educated to Vertue; and Vice made odious to them,by ſetting before them the Example of their Slaves, made drunk on purpoſe, that by beholding their loathſome Fooleries, they might diſreliſh Intemperance. The honouring of Magiſtrates, and all old Men, was frequently inculcated; and the Exerciſe of Horſemanſhip recommended to them. They were accuſtomed by their Teachers to expreſs themſelves in a few Words, and to excel in quick and witty Replies and Apophthegms. They were ſo much enamoured of Liberty, and to gain their point,they were willing to ſubmit to the hardeſt Labours, and worſt of Dangers. The Meſſenians having on a Time taken away ſome of their Daughters, and killed their King Thelecles, who was gone to re-demand them, they declared War againſt them, which laſted Twenty Years, viz. from the Taking of the City Amphia, to the Deſtruction of Ithome, in the Third Year of the XIIIth. Olympiad, when Euphæus King of the Meſſenians being killed, Ariſtodemus, his Succeſſor, in Revenge, deſtroyed ſo great a Number of the Lacedæmonians, that, to re-people their Country, they were forced to proſtitute their Daughters and Wives to Strangers; whence came the Parthenii, who about Thirty Years after, under the Command of Phalantus, poſſeſſed themſelves of Tarentum in Italy: And having re-commenced their War againſt the Meſſenians, they ſubdued them Fourteen Years after, under the Conduct of Tyrtæus the Poet. Their Courage in fighting Xerxes with a handful of Men at the Thermopylæ, and their War againſt the Athenians, which laſted Twenty ſeven Years, till the Taking of Athens by Lyſander King of Sparta, in the XCIVth. Olympiad, and An. Rom. 350. are famous in Hiſtory. After this they were defeated by the Thebans at the Battel of Leuctra, in Bœotia,in which their King Cleombrotus was ſlain, An. Rom. 383. but three Years after they ſlew 10000 Arcadians, without the Loſs of one of their Men. In proceſs of Time they were engaged in other Wars: They took the Iſland of Crete during the Reign of Darius; and were overcome by Antipater Governor of Macedonia under Alexander the Great, yet made a ſhift to keep up their Dominion to the Time of the Tyrant Nabis, who was killed, An. Rom. 562. But at laſt, their City being taken by Philopœmen, he pulled down the Walls of it, and abrogated Lycurgus's Laws; and by this Means this City became ſubject to the Romans. The Sequel of the Lacedæmonian Kings, and ſhort Account of their Lives and Actions, may be ſeen in the Book of J. Meurſius de Regno Laconico: And the Cuſtoms of the ancient Lacedæmonians, in the Commonwealth of Lacedæmon, by Nicolaus Cragius; and in the Miſcellania Laconica of Meurſius. The City of Lacedæmon is ſaid by ſome to have been built, A. M. 2997. in the Days of the Patriarch Jacob, 1763 Years before the Birth of our Saviour; by which Account it is 983 Years older than Rome. It is ſituate partly upon a Plain, and partly on the Foot of Mount Taygetus, which, within Canon-ſhot, cloſeth it on the North; and the River deſcending from ſome Hills on the North-Weſt, encompaſſeth it on the Weſt and South. Polybius tells us, it was of old 48 Greek Stadia, or Furlongs, in Circuit; which is ſix Engliſh Miles. There never was any City in the World that flouriſhed ſo many Ages as this in Military Glory, as having had a conſiderable Share in all thoſe Actions which made the ancient Greeks ſo famous; and had Kings the longeſt of any other Greek City. The Emperors of Conſtantinople made it the Appennage of their eldeſt Sons, who had the Titles of Deſpots or Lords of Sparta. Mahomet II. ſurnamed The Great, made himſelf Maſter of this City in 1460. or thereabouts, ſeven Years after the Taking of Conſtantinople, and five after that of Athens. In 1463. the Italians, under Sigiſmond Malateſta, took the City from the Turks; but not being able to maſter the Cittadel built on the Top of Mount Taygetus, they raiſed the Siege, after having ſet fire to the City, which well near ruined it. In 1473. the Venetians, under Benedetto Colleone, their General, took Sparta; but his Death intervening, hinder'd them from taking the Caſtle: But in 1687. the Venetians, under the Conduct of General Moroſini, had Miſitra, that is, Sparta, delivered to them. Miſitra is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Corinth. The City is divided into four different Parts, ſeparate from each other, viz. the Caſtle, the City, and two great Suburbs, whereof the one is called Meſochorion, or The Middle Borough; and the other Exochorion, or The Out-Borough. The Caſtle, City, and the Meſochorion are ſeparated from the Exochorion by the River Eurotas. The Situation of the Caſtle on the Top of Mount Taygetus is ſo advantageous, that it was never taken. The City lies at the Foot of the Caſtle, which covers it towards the North. It conſiſts of two great Streets, with ſeveral croſs Streets between them. The old Market-place, called by the Greeks Agora, is adorned with a curious Fountain, and hath a Church near it, built from the Ruins of the Temple of Minerva. About this Market-place there are ſome Remains to be ſeen of four Marble-Buildings, which are the moſt remarkable Antiquities of Miſitra; viz. The Perſian Portico, or Gallery, built by the Lacedæmonians in Memory of their defeating a powerful Army of the Perſians, at the Battel of Platea; the Temple of Helena, that of Hercules, and of Venus Armata. The Metropolitan Church, dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin, is called Panagia, i. e. All-holy: It hath ſeven Domes; and all its Pillars are of very fair Marble, and the Pavement a Piece of curious Moſaick Work. Near to the Church is the Archbiſhop's Palace, where there is an Apartment for 10 or 12 Greek Monks, who are the Dignitaries of the Panagia. Not far from thence is the famous Monaſtery of the Pandaneſſi, which belongs to the Nuns of the Order of St. Baſil; and hath a Church belonging to it more magnificent than the Metropolitan, though not ſo great. In the Meſochorion is another Church dedicated to the Panagia, (ſo the Greeks call the Bleſſed Virgin,) which is far more ſumptuous than either of the fore-mentioned. In every one of theſe Churches there is a particular Incloſure, where the Greek Women hear Divine Service. The ſtatelieſt Moſque the Turks had in Miſitra was in the Meſochorion, for the building and embelliſhing of which they had employed all the rich Remains of the Lacedæmonian Antiquities. This Building hath two Domes, which are much fairer than thoſe of the fore-mentioned Churches; and their Minarets, or Spires, are exceeding high, and of extraordinary Workmanſhip. Near this Place their Imaret or Hoſpital ſtood, where they took care of all ſorts of Sick People and of all Perſuaſions, as Turks, Moors, Jews and Chriſtians, and even of Dogs and Birds. Without the City is ſtill to be ſeen the Dromos, and the Platanon. The Dromos was of old a Place where the Spartans performed their Exerciſes of Wreſtling, Racing, and other publick Sports. The Platanon was a pleaſant Grove of Plane-Trees, the Shade whereof is very refreſhing and delightful. The Exochorion, or Out-Borough, is in a manner wholly inhabited by Jews, who have their faireſt Synagogue there; for they have another in the City, and a third in the Meſochorion. The Karaim, whom ſome account the ſame with the Sadduces of old, have their ſeparate Synagogues, and never marry with the other Jews. De la Guilletiere's Ancient and Modern Lacedæmon. P. Coronelli's Deſcription of the Morea.

LACHESIS, the youngeſt of the three Deſtinies, that holds the Diſtaff of Life, whilſt her Siſter Clotho ſpins the Thread, which Atropos cuts off.

LACIDAS, a Philoſopher, the Son of Alexander of Cyrene. He was the Author of a new Academy, after Arceſilaus, his Maſter, to whom he ſucceeded. He was of a very ſweet and pleaſant Temper and Converſation, though poor; and taught in a Garden beſtowed upon him by King Attalus, which, from him, was called Lacidianus: He died in the 4th. Year of the XXXIVth. Olympiad, An. Rom. 113. having taught 26 Years; and left Thelecles and Evander his Succeſſors. Diog. Laert. de Vit. Philoſ. lib. 4.

LACONIA, a Province of the Peloponneſus, which of old was called Lelegia, and Oebalia, and by other Names, taken from the Kings that reigned there: It is now called Tzaconia, and the Inhabitants Tzacons. Its principal City was Sparta, or Lacedæmon. Its Soil was fruitful, but uneven, and hard to manure. See LACEDÆMON.

LACTANTIUS (Lucius Cælius Firmianus) lived in the IIId. Century, and at the Beginning of the IVth. Some will have him an African, though others ſay he was born at Fermo, a City of the Marquiſate of Ancona; and that from the Place of his Birth, he was called Firmianus. Arnobius taught him Rhetorick; and he made ſo good uſe of the Inſtructions of ſo excellent a Maſter, that himſelf afterwards was Profeſſor at Nicomedia. His Repute was ſo conſiderable, that the Emperor Conſtantine made him Præceptor to his Son Criſpus Cæſar. He was looked upon as one of the moſt eloquent Perſons of his Time, and therefore called The Chriſtian Cicero. He writ his Books of Inſtitutions, in Anſwer to two Philoſophers, Enemies of the Chriſtian Religion; in which he hath ſet down ſome Propoſitions, that made Pope Gelaſius to rank them amongſt the Apocryphal Books. He writ, beſides, ſeveral other Pieces in Proſe and Verſe; but as for his Poem of the Phœnix, either it is none of his, or was compoſed before his Converſion. He died in a very mean Condition, according to Euſebius. His Theological and Hiſtorical Errors are taken notice of by ſeveral Writers, both Proteſtants and Papiſts. His Works were printed at Rome in 1650. with the Notes of Joſeph Iſæus; and at Leyden in 1652. with thoſe of Anthonius Thyſius; and in 1660 cum notis variorum; and in 1684. in 8vo. at Oxford. M. Baluzius, in the 2d. Volume of his Miſcellanies, has publiſhed a Treatiſe of Lactantius, De Mortibus Perſecutorum, which we had loſt. It is now tranſlated and prefaced by Dr. Burnet. Trithem. & Bellarm. de Script, Eccleſ. Baron. in Annal.

LACTUCINA, an Heathen Goddeſs, who had the Care of Vegetables whilſt they were yet milky and juicy. From the Latin Word Lac. Varro.

LADENBURG, or LADEBOURG, Lat. Ladenburgum, a Town of the Palatinate of the Rhine, upon the River Neckar; Part of which is under the Biſhop of Worms, who reſides in the Caſtle of the Town; and the other Part under the Elector Palatine, to whom it was mortgaged by a Biſhop of Worms,in 1371. It ſtands two Miles from Heidelburg to the W. and having ſuffered much in the laſt Swediſh Wars, was in ſome degree repaired, but taken by the French in May, 1693. with ſome of the Confederates Magazins, after Heidelburg was betrayed to them,which they ſacked and burnt, and treated the Inhabitants with the very heighth of Luſt and Rage.

Kings of Hungary of the Name of Ladiſlaus.

LADISLAUS I. King of Hungary, the Son of Bela I. ſucceeded his Brother Geiza II. in 1077. He married his Siſter Selomira to the Prince of Dalmatia and Croatia; and ſhe, after her Husband's Death, beſtowed thoſe Provinces upon Ladiſlaus, who afterwards added to them a part of Bulgaria and Ruſſia. He defeated the Tartars, led an innocent and holy Life, and died July 30. after a Reign of 17 or 18 Years. Bonſinius Genealog. Reg. Hungar.

LADISLAUS II. the Son of Emericus, reigned only ſix Months, about 1204. Andrew II. was his Succeſſor. Some Authors make this King the Third of the Name, placing Ladiſlaus II. the Son of Bela II. before him; who in 1172, was placed on the Throne, belonging of right to his Nephew Stephen IV. in which he continued only ſix Months. But this laſt Ladiſlaus is not to be looked upon as a King, but as an Uſurper.

LADISLAUS III. ſurnamed Cunnus, ſucceeded his Father Stephen V. in 1272. He was a wicked and laſcivious Prince. He divorced his own Wife, entertained divers Heathen Tartarian Concubines: And by ſeveral other Miſdemeanors, made himſelf the Object of his People's Hatred. The Tartars, who had laid waſte his Dominions in 1285, murdered him in his Tent in 1290. Charles, ſurnamed Martel, the Son of his Siſter Mary, and of Charles II. King of Sicily, was his Succeſſor. Bonſinius Decad. 2.

LADISLAUS IV. called alſo Vladiſlaus, was Great Duke of Lithuania, and King of Poland; whom the Hungarians ſent for to be their Sovereign, in 1440, after the Death of Albertus of Auſtria, King of the Romans, and of Hungary in the Right of his Wife Elizabeth, who was the only Daughter of Mary of Hungary, Wife to Sigiſmond the Emperor, and Heireſs of Lewis, ſurnamed the Great, King of Hungary and Poland. Albertus of Auſtria dying, left his Wife with Child of this Ladiſlaus V. who was crowned when he was but 4 Months old; but in the mean time, Ladiſlaus IV. to whom the Hungarians had offered the Crown, reigned as King. He at firſt made War againſt Amurath I. Emperor of the Turks, John Hunniades being his General, who gained many ſignal Victories over them; ſo that Amurath's Affairs calling him into Aſia, he was fain to make Peace with Ladiſlaus. The Chriſtian Princes were ſurpriz'd at this Treaty, being then preparing to unite their Forces with the King of Hungary, in order to break the Ottoman Empire, for this reaſon they deſired the Pope to ſend Cardinal Julian Cæſarini to break the Peace, and abſolve Ladiſlaus from his Oath; which was done accordingly, but Ladiſlaus paid dear for his Eaſineſs herein, by the loſs of the Battel of Varna, fought Novemb. 11. 1444, where Ladiſlaus was ſlain in the Flower of his Youth. He had this Epitaph made upon him on this Occaſion:

Romulidæ Cannas; ego Varnam clade notavi;
Diſcite mortales non temerare fidem.
Me niſi Pontifices juſſiſſent rumpere fœdus,
Non ferret Scythicum Pannonis ora jugum.

All Europe bewailed the Death of this Prince, and Hungary to this Day bemoans it, as having been the Cauſe, not only of the Ruin of that Kingdom, but of the Græcian Empire, and conſequently, of the vaſt Progreſs made ſince by the Ottoman Arms. Thuroſius. Bonſinius.

LADISLAUS V. the Son of Albertus of Auſtria, was made King after the Death of Ladiſlaus IV. but being only five Years of Age, the Care of the Government was committed to Hunniades. He gave Liberty to his Subjects to communicate under one Kind, or both, as they were perſwaded; yet did not he himſelf join with the Huſſites, nor enter their Churches. He was poiſoned at Prague, as he was expecting his Spouſe Magdalen of France, the Daughter of Charles VII. who was afterwards married to Gaſton de Foix. His Death happened in 1457.

LADISLAUS VI. was the Son of Caſimire King of Poland, who had procured him the Kingdom of Bohemia, and afterwards was poſſeſſed of that of Hungary by his Wit and Valour, in 1490, after the Death of Matthias Corvinus, the Son of Hunniades. Beatrix, the Widow of Matthias, believed Ladiſlaus would have married her, and upon that Account eſpouſed his Intereſt; for he had three powerful Competitors, John the Natural Son of his Predeceſſor, Maximilian of Auſtria, and his own Brother Albert, whom his Father Caſimire did deſign to ſettle in the Throne of Hungary: However, he made a ſhift to out-wit all his Competitors. But his Happineſs herein was not of any long continuance, as being interrupted with the continual Troubles and Wars he had with his Neighbours and the Turks. He married Anne of Foix, by whom he had Anne and Lewis, famous in Hiſtory. To preſerve the Peace of his Kingdom, he cauſed his Son to be Crowned, when he was but two Years of Age; but all theſe Precautions were in vain, for his Son died ſoon after, and he himſelf died at Buda, March 13. 1516. after a Reign of 25 Years. Dubrav. Rer. Hungar.

A King of Naples of the Name of Ladiſlaus.

LADISLAUS, or LANCELOT, King of Naples and Hungary, and Earl of Provence, ſucceeded his Father Charles de Duras, in 1386, and was confirmed in the Throne by Pope Boniface IX. in 1390, at which time, the Neapolitans ſent for Lewis II. of Anjou, who was their Lawful King, but Ladiſlaus had the better of him, and took Naples and Capua. After which, the Hungarians, who had poiſoned their King Sigiſmund, offered the Crown to Ladiſlaus, which he received, Auguſt 5. 1403, but did not keep it long. The Schiſm which was in the Church of Rome at that time, by the Faction of the Guelphs and Gibelines, gave him an Opportunity to ſeize that City, and to poſſeſs himſelf of ſeveral of the Church-Lands. Lewis, afterwards being made Lieutenant of the Church, took the Places which Ladiſlaus had uſurped, and drove him out of Rome; he ſoon after loſt the Battel of Roqueſeche, upon the Banks of the River Gariglan, in May 1411. But Lewis not purſuing his Victory, Ladiſlaus ſurprized Rome, and forced the Florentines to buy Peace of him, in 1413. And not long after going to Perugia, was poiſoned there by a Phyſician's Daughter of that City, on whom he was paſſionately enamoured, her Father having been gained by the Florentines, to perſuade his Daughter to give him a deadly Draught, under the Notion of a Philter. Ladiſlaus finding himſelf ſtrangely ſeized, Ordered that he ſhould be carried to Naples, where he died without Iſſue, Auguſt 6. 1414. Aged 38 Years. He was Valiant, Generous and Liberal, but his many Faults and Vices darkned all his good Qualities. His Siſter Joan ſucceeded him. Collenutio Hiſt. Neap. lib. 5. Rainald. Spond. & Bzovius in Annal.

Kings of Poland of the Name of Ladiſlaus

LADISLAUS, or ULADISLAUS I. King of Poland, was the Son of Caſimire I. He was choſen in 1081, after Boleſlaus, his Brother, ſurnamed The Cruel and Bold. He contented himſelf only with the Name of Prince and Heir of Poland. In his Time the Ruſſians ſhook off the Poliſh-Yoke; and tho' he was a lover of Peace, yet was he forced to take up Arms againſt thoſe of Pruſſia and Pomerania, whom he defeated in three Battels. Ladiſlaus, by his firſt Wife Judith, the Daughter of Vratiſlaus, King of Bohemia, had Boleſlaus III. his Succeſſor. He died July 26. 1102. after a Reign of 20 Years. Cromer Hiſtor. Polan.

LADISLAUS II. ſucceeded his Father Boleſlaus III. At the inſtigation of his Wife Chriſtina, the Daughter of the Emperor Henry V. he made Wars with his Brothers, to whom his Father had left large Territories, but unſucceſsfully; for as he was beſieging Poſna, which belonged to his Brother Mieciſlaus, after having taken Sendomiria from his Brother Henry, and Plosko from Boleſlaus, they uniting their Forces, gave him the Overthrow; and being Defeated ſeveral times after, he was forced to flee into Germany, to the Emperor Conrade III. and in the mean time, Boleſlaus IV. one of his Brothers, was ſet on the Throne, in 1146. Some time after, at the interceſſion of the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa, Conrade's Succeſſor, Boleſlaus beſtowed Sileſia upon his Dethroned Brother. Ladiſlaus died at Oldenburg, in 1159. He left three Sons, Boleſlaus the Tall, Duke of Breſlaw, Conrade of Laſconogia, Duke of Glogovia and Croſnen; and Mieciſlaus Duke of Opolia, Ratiboria and Teſchinen. *Cromer Hiſt. LADISLAUS III. ſurnamed Loſtic (which ſignifies a Cubit) becauſe of his low Stature. He came to the Crown after Primiſlaus, in 1295. He was the Brother of Lesko the Black, and was very Valiant, and a great Stateſman; tho' he did not ſhew himſelf ſuch at firſt, for he was no ſooner come to the Crown, but he encouraged his Soldiers to commit Diſorders, and to Harraſs and Plunder the Church, by which means, having made himſelf hateful to his People, they declared him to have forfeited the Crown, and made choice of Wenceſlaus, King of Bohemia, in 1300. Whereupon, Ladiſlaus retired to Hungary, and thence to Rome; after the Death of Wenceſlaus, he was choſen King again, in 1305, after which time, he governed very wiſely, enlarged the Bounds of his Kingdom, and made himſelf dreaded by his Enemies. He was not Crowned till 1320, with Hedwiga, his Conſort, the Daughter of Boleſlaus the Godly, Duke of Caſſilia. Much about the ſame time, Pomerania rebelled, whereupon Ladiſlaus having got an Army in readineſs, demanded Aſſiſtance of the Knights of Pruſſia, who took Dantzick, and kept it, which afterwards proved the occaſion of a long War; after which, they Attacked Poland, but Ladiſlaus defeated 20000 of them in one Battel. He died March 10. 1333, with the Repute of having been the wiſeſt Prince of his Time. He left behind him Caſimire the Great, and Elizabeth, the Wife of Charles King of Hungary. Michow lib. 4. Hiſt. Pol. Cromer lib. 11.

LADISLAUS IV. ſurnamed Jagelon, was Great Duke of Lithuania and Samogitia, &c. He came to the Crown of Poland by marrying Hedwiga, the Daughter of Lewis King of Hungary, choſen Queen of Poland, upon Condition, That ſhe ſhould marry him, whom the Lords of the Kingdom ſhould chuſe for her. Jagelon preſenting himſelf to their choice, was accepted of, and baptized at Cracovia, in 1386, where he took the Name of Ladiſlaus. He joined Lithuania to Poland, Defeated the Knights of Pruſſia, Subdued the Rebelling Lithuanians, Refuſed the Crown of Bohemia offered to him by the Huſſites, and rendred himſelf highly commendable, during a Reign of 48 Years. He died May 31. 1434, Aged 80. He had four Wives, by the laſt of which, he had Ladiſlaus IV. of Hungary, and V. of Poland, Caſimire III. & Hedwiga.

LADISLAUS V. was King of Poland after his Father Ladiſlaus IV. and was afterwards King of Hungary. See Ladiſlaus IV. of Hungary.

LADISLAUS-SIGISMUND VI. was the Son of Sigiſmund III. King of Sweden, and afterwards of Poland, by Anna of Auſtria, the Daughter of Charles Archduke of Auſtria. He was born in 1595, and ſucceeded his Father, Feb. 13. 1632. Before his coming to the Crown, he had ſignalized his Courage againſt the Muſcovites and Turks; of which latter, he killed, in ſeveral Encounters, 150000 Men. He was a Prince vertuouſly inclined, skilled in divers Languages, and a great lover of Juſtice. After his coming to the Crown, he defeated the Muſcovites, and made a great Slaughter of the Turks, who had entered Poland. He died in 1648, Aged 52 Years, 11 Months, and 11 Days.

LADOGA, a vaſt Lake, thought to be the biggeſt of all Europe. It lies between Kelholm or Kexholm, a Province belonging to the Swedes on the Weſt, and Kergupol a Province of Muſcovy to the Eaſt, 36 German Miles long, and 20 broad, abounding with Fiſh to that degree, that it has enriched Kexholm with the Fiſhery of Salmons. The Ruſs are Maſters of about a 5th part of it, the reſt is poſſeſſed by the Swedes. This Lake receives beſides a vaſt number of Rivers, the Waters of the Lake of Onega, which lies about 60 Engliſh Miles from it to the Eaſt, and is not much leſs than it. It tranſmits all theſe Waters into the Bay of Finland, by the River of Spaſco, a Paſſage of about 11 German Miles. It has alſo a Communication with the Sundt.

C. LÆLIUS, a Roman Conſul, and great Orator, ſo famous for his Wiſdom, that he was ſurnamed The Wiſe; neither was he leſs noted, for being the familiar Acquaintance and Friend of Scipio, whom he accompanied into Africa. After the Battel which Scipio fought the ſame day with Aſdrubal and Scyphax, whom he ſet upon in their Retrenchments, Lælius and Maſiniſſa purſued the flying Enemy, took King Scyphax, and had the Principal City of his Kingdom delivered to them by Agreement, An. Rom. 551. Tully frequently mentions him to advantage.

LÆTA, a Roman Lady, the Daughter of Albinus, a Pagan High-Prieſt, who, toward the end of the IVth Century, was married to Toxatius, the Son of St. Paula. They lived ſo holily together, that Albinus, convinced by their heavenly Converſation, quitted Heatheniſm, and was Baptized. Læta, was the Mother of a Daughter called Paula, in memory of her Grand-mother; and St. Jerom, whoſe Diſciple ſhe was, ſent her an Epiſtle, with Inſtructions about the Education of this her Daughter.

LÆTUS, Captain of the Prætorian Guard to the Emperor Commodus in the IId Century. He hindered that barbarous Prince from burning the City of Rome, as he had reſolved; and afterwards being informed, that the Emperor intended to cauſe him, with ſome others, to be put to Death, they prevented him by poiſon, in 193. After whoſe Death, Lætus raiſed Pertinax to the Empire, and murdered him three months after, becauſe he endeavoured to reſtore the Military Diſcipline, and becauſe the innocence and uprightneſs of the Emperor's Manners reproached his Leudneſs. Lamprid. in Commod. Xiphilin. in Pertin.

LÆVINUS TORRENTIUS, vulgarly call'd, Vander Bechen, or Torrentin, Biſhop of Antwerp, was a Perſon of Reputation in the XVIth Century, and employ'd as Ambaſſador by Philip II. of Spain. He wrote, De Partu Virginis, Lib. 3. De Vita D. Pauli, Lib. 2. De eruento Dei Sacrificio, Lib. 5. Commentaries upon Suetonius and Horace; And Poems, which he Dedicated to Pope Pius V. which latter Work gave him the Character of the beſt Lyrick Poet after Horace. *Valer. LAGELAND, or LANGELAND, an Iſland of the Kingdom of Denmark in the Baltick-Sea, between the Iſles of Fionia, or Fuenen, Zealand and Hallandt, 7 German Miles in length and 2 in breadth. It has 16 Villages, and a ſtrong Caſtle.

LAGNY, Lat. Latiniacum, a City of France in Brie, ſituate upon the River Marne, 6 Leagues above Paris, having a famous Abbey of the Order of St. Bennet, Founded in the VIIth Century, by S. Furſy or Fourſy, a Scotch Gentleman, which being ruined by the Normans in the IXth Century, was repaired by Herbert of Vermandois, Earl of Troyes and Meaux. In 1590, the Prince of Parma, having firſt obliged Henry IV. of France to raiſe the Siege of Paris, took this Town by a ſudden Aſſault, and laid it in Ruins.

LAHOLM, a Town of Sweden, in the Province of Hallandt, on the Baltick-Sea, and Confines of Schonen, 7 Swediſh Miles from Helmſtadt to the South, and 6 from Elſingburg to the North Eaſt. It has a Harbour and Caſtle, and was Fortified by the Danes, but now in poſſeſſion of the Swedes, with the Province in which it ſtands.

LAHOR, Lat. Laborium, Bucephala, a City of the Eaſt-Indies, which is alſo called Peng-ab. It is ſeated upon the River Ravee, 180 Miles from Multan to the Eaſt, and 360 from Agra to the South. The River Ravee falls into the Indus at Luckar. It is a great and fair City, and hath a magnificent Palace, but hath loſt much of its luſtre, ſince the Moguls withdrew their Reſidence from it. The Name of Peng ab, which ſignifies Five Rivers, is given both to the City and the Province, whereof it is the Capital, which is one of the largeſt and moſt plentiful Provinces of the Mogul's Empire, abounding with Rice, Corn, Fruit and Wine, and the beſt Sugars in the Indies, which yield the Prince a Revenue of 7 Millions, and upwards. Mr. Thevenot.

LAJAZZO, or JAZZO, Lat. Iſſus, a City of the Leſſer Aſia, in the moſt Eaſtern Part of Cilicia, now a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Tarſus, at the foot of Mount Amanus (now the Mountain of Scanderoon) in the Province of Caramania, under the Dominion of the Turks. It hath a convenient Harbour upon the Mediterranean, and is 6 German Miles diſtant from Antioch to the N. and 70 from Cogni (Iconium) to the S. E. Long. 69. 45. Lat. 37. 00. Near this City Darius was overthrown by Alexander the Great, and Bajazet II. Emperor of the Turks, was Defeated by the Sultan of Egypt, in 1486.

LAINEZ (Jacobus) a Jeſuit, one of the firſt Companions of Loyola, and his Succeſſor, as General of the Order. In 1556, he aſſiſted at the Council of Trent, and, in 1561, he accompanied Cardinal Hippolytus of Eſt, who was ſent Legate to France, at the time of the Conference of Poiſſy. He died at Rome, Jan. 19. 1565, Aged 53. He refuſed a Cardinal's Hat, offered him by Pope Paul IV.

LAIS, a famous Courtezan of Sicily, about An. Rom. 420, lived a great while at Corinth, where all that ſaw her, were enamoured of her, by reaſon of her extraordinary Beauty; ſhe ſold her Favours at an exceſſive rate, it being reported of her, That ſhe Demanded 10000 Drachma's of Demoſthenes, for a Night's lodging; whereupon he anſwered, That he would not buy Repentance at ſo dear a Rate. Lais, afterwards going into Theſſaly to Alexander's Camp, to follow a Sweet-heart, the Theſſalian Dames, being jealous of her Beauty, murdered her in a Temple of Venus. Plutarch in the life of Alcibiades, Aull. Gell. Noct. Attic. lib. 1. cap. 8.

LAJUS, the Son of Labdacus, King of Thebes. He married Jocaſta, by whom he had Oedipus. 'Tis ſaid, that when he heard that his Wife had Conceived, he conſulted the Oracle, to know the Deſtiny of the Off ſpring; and underſtanding that he himſelf ſhould fall by its hand, he delivered the new-born Child to one of his Guard, to make him away; who unwilling to be the Executioner of his unnatural Injuſtice, and, on the other hand, fearing his reſentment for diſobeying, choſe a Mean, and binding the Child's Legs together with a twiſted Twig, hung him upon a Tree to die of hunger, where being found by Phorbas, Shepherd to Polybius, King of Corinth, he was carefully tended, and preſented by him to the Queen, who had no Children, and therefore look'd upon this, as ſent her from Heaven.

LAKE (Sir Edward) Baronet, LL D. Chancellor of the Dioceſs of Lincoln, lieth buried in the Cathedral Church there, in whoſe Memory is erected a Monument, on the Pillar near the Weſt Door of that Church. He married the Daughter and Heireſs of Simon Bibye Eſq;. His Loyalty to King Charles I. was very remarkable, as appears by the Royal Grant His ſaid Majeſty gave him, which is thought worthy to be here inſerted, viz.

CHARLES REX.

W*Hereas Our Truſty and Well-beloved*, Edward Lake, Doctor of the Laws. Our Advocate General for Our Kingdom of Ireland, in all Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical, Civil and Maritime, hath performed to Us Faithful and Good Service, both in Ireland and England, and thereby ſuffered the Loſs of his Eſtate in both Kingdoms, which, when God ſhall enable Us, We intend to repair, and further to Reward him; Our Will and Pleaſure therefore is, and We do hereby Grant to the ſaid Edward Lake, the nominating and making of a Baronet, being Confident that he will nominate a Man of meet and fitting Qualities and Condition for that Dignity. And for his further Encouragement, and as a ſpecial Mark of Our Gracious Acceptation of his ſaid good Services, and more particularly that at the Battel at Edge-hill, where he received ſixteen Wounds, to the extream hazard of his Life, and his Left Arm being then diſabled by a ſhot, he held his Bridle in his Teeth; We do therefore Confer upon him a Baronetſhip; and do hereby create him Baronet. And do give him for a Coat of Augmentation, to be born before his own, viz. In a Field Gules, an armed Right Arm, carrying upon a Sword a Banner Argent, charged with a Croſs betwixt ſixteen Shields of the firſt, and a Lion of England in the Feſſe Point: And for a Creſt, viz. A Chevalier in a Fighting Poſture, his Scarf red, his Left Arm hanging down uſeleſs, and holding his Bridle in his Teeth, his Face, Sword, Armour, and Horſe, cruentated: The ſaid Baronetſhip to the ſaid Edward and his Heirs Males of his Body lawfully begotten, or to be begotten; and for want of ſuch Heirs Males, to the Heirs Males of the ſaid Edward, the ſaid Coat of Augmentation, and the Creſt, to him the ſaid Edward and his Heirs, and to all deſcending from him, or them, for ever. All this to be put in Form into his Patent.

Given at Our Court at Oxford, the 30th Day of December, in the Nineteenth Year of Our Reign.

LALAND, Lat. Lalandia, an Iſland belonging to Denmark, in the Baltick-Sea. It is 8 German Miles long, and 5 broad, lying on the S. of Zealand, and on the W. of Falſter, from which it is ſeparated by a narrow Paſſage called Gulburg. The chief Town of it is Naſcow, reaſonably Fortified. This Iſland was taken from the Danes by the Swedes, in 1657.

LALLAMANT (Joannes) a Phyſician of Autun, who made himſelf famous by a great number of Books writ by him in the XVIth Century, and more eſpecially by his Mathematical Books, and the Treatiſe De Collatione Anni Romani, præcipuarumque gentium exterarum.

LALLI, commonly call'd Joannes Baptiſta Lallius, an Ita- lian, born at Norcia in Umbria, was both a Lawyer and a Poet. He died in 1637. His moſt valuable Piece is, Viridarium Practicabilium Materiarum in utroque Jure, Ordine Alphabetico concinnatum. Jacobilli Biblioth. Umbr. Janus Nicius Ærythræus Pinac. 1. Imag. Illuſt. cap. 73.

LAMA, the Name of the High-Prieſt of the People of Barantola, of the Southern Aſiatick-Tartary. This Kingdom is governed by two Kings or chief Governors, whereof the firſt called Deva, applies himſelf to the Government of the State; the other called Lama, lives retired from the World, and is not only adored by the Inhabitants of that Country for a Deity, but alſo by the other Kings of Tartary, who ſend him rich Preſents, and go in Pilgrimage to pay him their Adorations, calling him Lamacongiu, i. e. God the Father Everlaſting of Heaven. He is never to be ſeen, but in a ſecret place of his Palace, enlightned with many Lamps, where he ſits croſs-legg'd upon a Cuſhion, in a place raiſed from the Ground, himſelf being all over Gold and precious Stones; where, at a diſtance, they proſtrate themſelves before him, it being not lawful for any, ſo much as to kiſs his Feet. He is called The Great Lama, or Lama of Lama's, that is, Prieſt of Prieſts. And to make them believe that he is Eternal, when he dies the petty Prieſts put up another in his ſtead, and ſo continue the Cheat from Generation to Generation. Theſe Prieſts perſwade the People, that the Lama was raiſed up from Death and Hell 700 Years ago, and that he hath lived ever ſince, and ſhall live for ever. He is honoured to that degree, that the greateſt Lords and Princes, look upon it as the higheſt Favour, to have a ſmall Particle of his Excrements, which they hang about their Necks in a Box of Gold, as an approved Amulet againſt all manner of Evils. Kircher of China. Grueber. Epiſt.

LAMBALE, a Town of Britany in France, in the Territory of St. Brieu, 5 Miles from St. Brieu to the Eaſt, 8 from Dinant to the Weſt, and 4 from the Britiſh-Sea to the South. It is noted for a great Trade in Parchment.

LAMBERT, Emperor or King of Italy, was the Son of Guido, Duke of Spoleto, and Crowned at his Father's ſollicitation in 893, by Pope Formoſus. After which, Berengarius, Duke of Friuli, his Competitor, having firſt put out the Eyes of Lewis, the Son of Boſon, who was another of his Competitors, forced Pope John IX. to Crown him, which being extorted by force, was declared Null, in 904, and Lambert's Coronation confirmed, who was treacherouſly killed as he was Hunting, by Hugo, Earl of Milan, in 910. Baron. A. C. 893.

St. LAMBERT, Biſhop of Tongeren and Maeſtricht, was born of one of the moſt Noble Families of Liege. Childerick II. of France, ſent for him to Court; but after his death, he was driven thence, and turned out of his Biſhoprick, whereupon he retired to the Monaſtery of Stavelo, on the Borders of his Dioceſs; but after he had continued there 7 Years, he was re-called to Maeſtricht. Some time after, being informed that the Inhabitants of Zealand, called Taxandri, were ſtill Idolaters, he went and converted them to the Chriſtian Faith. King Pepin having married a ſecond Wife called Alpaida, and divorced his firſt Wife Plectruda, St. Lambert ſharply reproved the King for ſo doing, which did ſo incenſe Alpaida, that ſhe perſwaded her Brother Dodo to murder him; who coming to Liege, with a number of armed Men, killed this good Prelate, Sept. 17. 696. His Body was buried in the Church of St. Peter, without the City of Maeſtricht, and, many Years after, remov'd to Liege. Reginon & Sigebert in their Chronicles.

LAMBERT (John) an Independent, and one of Cromwel's Major-Generals, had a conſiderable ſhare of Action in the Field, under that Uſurper. Lambert, generally ſpeaking, was a Perſon unexceptionable enough, as to his Conduct and Courage. In 1662, after the Reſtauration of King Charles II. he was brought to his Trial at the Inſtance of the Houſe of Commons, where he was Caſt, and receiv'd Sentence of Death, but his Execution was Reſpited, and he Impriſon'd during Life, in which condition he died almoſt 30 Years after. See King Charles II. and Oliver Cromwel. Continuation of Baker's Hiſtory, pag. 751.

LAMBESA, or LAMPÆSA, Lat. Ad fluvium Ampaſgam, a City of the Kingdom of Conſtance in Barbary, near the Mountains of Calamati, on the Confines of Biledulgerid, 24 miles from Cirta to the S. It was formerly a Biſhop's See. Ninety Biſhops celebrated a Council here, in 240, under the Papacy of Fabianus, againſt Privatus Biſhop of this City, accuſed of Hereſy, and many other hainous Crimes.

LAMBET, a pleaſant Town of Provence in France, near the River Durance, 4 Leagues from Aix, and 9 from Avignon to the Eaſt.

LAMBETH, a Town of Brixton Hundred, in the N. E. parts of Surrey, ſituate on the South-ſide of the Thames, over-againſt Weſtminſter in Middleſex, and noted for being the uſual Reſidence of the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who has there a fine Palace. John Peckam, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, held a Synod here, in 1280, and Cardinal Bourchier another in 1486. Tho' Lambeth is counted unwholſome to live in, yet it is well inhabited, and graced with many Gentlemen's and Citizen's Houſes. Canutus, the laſt Daniſh King, died here.

LAMBINUS (Dionyſius) was born at Montrevil in Picardy, and lived in great Repute in the XVIth Century. He had made an extraordinary Progreſs in the reading of good Authors, and in the Polite part of Learning; and his great Learning raiſed him many illuſtrious Friends. He lived a long time in Italy, and after his return to Paris, he was made Regius Profeſſor of Philology, and of the Greek Tongue, which he Taught at Amiens. He writ Commentaries upon Plautus, Lucretius, Cicero and Horace, with many other Works; he Tranſlated alſo into Latin, Ariſtotle's Ethicks and Politicks, with ſeveral Pieces of Demoſthenes and Æſchines. He died in 1572, of Grief, or rather for fear of having the ſame Lot with Ramus, his good Friend, who had his Throat cut at the Pariſian Maſſacre, being 56 Years of Age. A Son he had by his Wife (who was of the Family of the Urſins) that publiſhed ſome of his Poſthumous Works. Thuan. hiſt. lib. 52. St. Marth. in Elog. Doct. Gall. lib. 2.

LAMBORN, a Market-Town of Lamborn Hundred in the South-Weſt parts of Barkſhire. It ſtands at the foot of a Hill not far from White-horſe Hill.

LAMECH, the Son of Methuſelah, the Father of Noah, was born An. Mun. 875, and died five Years before the Deluge, at the Age of 777, An. Mun. 1561, Gen. 5. 25 to 32. There is another Lamech mentioned in Scripture, who was one of the Deſcendants of Cain, and the Son of Methuſael, who was the firſt upon Record who introduc'd Polygamy, Gen. 4. 18 to 25.

LAMIA, according to Favorinus and Suidas, was a Woman beloved of Jupiter, whoſe Children, Juno, out of Jealouſy, made a ſhift to deſtroy, as faſt as ſhe brought them forth; which ſo enraged her, that, like a cruel Monſter, ſhe devoured all the Children ſhe met with. This, as ſome conceive, was the firſt Original of the Name of Lamiæ, who are alſo called Lemures and Empyſæ, who were ſuppoſed to feed upon humane Fleſh and Blood. Cœlius Rhodigin. lib. 49. ant. lection. cap. 5. Plin. lib. 9. cap. 24.

LAMIA, King Demetrius's Courtezan, to whom the Thebans, out of a baſe piece of flattery, Conſecrated the Temple of Venus Lamia. There was alſo an illuſtrious Family of Rome of this Name, deſcended from Lamus, the Son of Neptune, and King of the Leſtrigones. Horace writes one of his Odes, to a Deſcendant of this Family. Carm. lib. 3. Ode 17.

LAMLEN, a vaſt Tract of Land in Africa, on the S. of the River Niger; the Inhabitants are much moleſted by thoſe of Beriſſa, who ſell them for Slaves to Europe and America. They are prodigiouſly ignorant, and mark their Children with a Brand on their Temples, when they come to the Years of Diſcretion. Their Country is ſuppoſed to be the ſame with what we now call Guinea. Nubienſis.

LAMOIGNON (Charles) Lord of Baſville. The great Affection he had for Learning, made him Travel into Italy, where Alciatus was his Maſter; at his rerurn, he was made Councellor of the Parliament of Paris, Maſter of Requeſts, and afterward Privy-Councellor to Charles IX. of France. He died in 1573, Aged 55. One of his Sons, Peter de Lamoignon, was a Man of the greateſt Wit and Learning of his Time, for his Years, dying when he was but 24. He writ two Poems, one in Greek, and the other in Latin, at the Age of 15. He died very much lamented by learned Men. His Brother, Chriſtian de Lamoignon, was Preſident of the Parliament of Paris, whoſe Son, William de Lamoignon, poſſeſs'd the ſame Dignity, and was the great Protector and Encourager of Learning and Learned Men. The Muſes were his Favourites, to whom he gave a noble Reception and Entertainment, in the illuſtrious Conference of learned Men, which was Weekly kept at his Houſe. He died in Decemb. 1677. He left two Sons, Chriſtian Francis, Attorney-General, and M. de Baſville, the Intendant of Languedoc. Beza in Poem. Guy Loquille Hiſt. de Nivern. Blanchard's Hiſt. des Preſid. du Parliam. de Paris.

LAMPADIUS, Præfect of the City of Rome, lived in Eſteem under the Empire of Valentinian and Valens, in 366. He was exemplary for his Liberality to the Poor. There was another Conſular Perſon of the ſame Name, under the Empire of Honorius, who oppoſed Stilico in the Senate, for perſwading them to give 4000 l. weight of Gold to Alaricus to obtain a Peace; telling him to his Face, That this was not ſo much to buy a Peace, as to make a dear Purchaſe of an ignominious Slavery. He was afterwards made Præfect of the Pratorium by Attalus. Oroſius lib. 7. Zoſimus lib. 6.

LAMPADOUSA, or LIPADUSA, an Iſland in the Mediterranean, between the Kingdom of Tunis to the South, and Sicily to the North, 70 Miles from the neareſt Coaſt of Africa, and 100 from Maltha, on which it depends. It is 15 Miles in compaſs, but deſolate, yet famous for a Chapel dedicated to the Bleſſed Virgin, which is a Place of Refuge for all Slaves whatſoever, whether Chriſtians or Turks, that can get to it. All the Veſſels that touch there are wont to leave ſome Proviſions, Cloaths and Money; the Chriſtians in that part of the Chapel which belongs to them, and the Turks in the other part. Near this Iſland the Fleet of Charles V. ſuffered Shipwrack in 1551. Baudrand.

LAMPETIA, the Daughter of Apollo and Climene, who, with her Siſter Phaetuſa, bewailing the Death of their Brother Phaeton, were changed into Poplars, and their Tears into Amber. Ovid. lib. 2. Metam.

LAMPRIDIUS, (Ælius) a Latin Hiſtorian, who lived in the Reign of Conſtantine the Great, in the IVth Century. We have the Lives of 4 Emperors of his writings, viz. of Commodus Antoninus, Antoninus Diadumenus, Antoninus Heliogabalus, and Alexander Severus. See Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2.

LAMPS (Sepulchral) were Lamps which the Ancients ſhut up in the Tombs of their Friends and Relations, that burnt continually, tinually, as being fed with an Oil which did not waſte, and had incombuſtible Wicks. One of theſe Lamps was ſeen in Italy, in the Papacy of Paul III. being found in the Tomb of Tullia, Cicero's Daughter, which had been ſhut up there 1550 Years before. Solinus alſo tells us, That a Light was found in a Tomb, which had burnt above 15 Centuries, and which fell into Duſt in the Hands of thoſe that took it up. Tritbemius aſſures us, he had made an Oil with the Flower of Brimſtone, Borax, and Spirit of Wine, which burnt many Years without Conſumption. And Bartholomew Korndorffeven, in his Vellus Aureum, gives us two other Preparations of Oils, that will do the ſame. And Kircher tells us of a Way to reduce the Flame into Wax. The incombuſtible Wick is made of Asbeſtos, or Amiantos, which is a ſort of incombuſtible Allum, or with Gold, called Salamander's Wooll; by Chymical Operation ſo altered that it becomes ſpongy. Conſult our Country-man Roger Bacon, in his Book De Mirabili poteſtate Artis & Naturæ. See alſo Licetus and Ferrarius.

LAMPSACO, Lat. Lampſacus, a famous City of Myſia, in the Leſſer Aſia. It ſtands at the Entrance of Propontis, over-againſt Gallipoli, five German Miles from the New Dardanels to the North, and a little more from Marmora to the South. The Turks call it Lepſe k. It is an Archbiſhop's See, and ſtill in a tolerable good condition, conſiſting of about 200 Houſes; and hath a great many fine Vineyards about it, fenced with Pomegranate-Trees. In the Times of Paganiſm, Priapus was particularly worſhipped here, this having been the Place of his Birth. The Semi-Arrians celebrated a Council here in 364, under the Papacy of Liberius, condemned the Confeſſion of Faith publiſhed at Rimini and Conſtantinople, and confirmed that which had been made at Antioch in 341, which the Synod of Seleucia had received; but there is no mention made of the Nicene Creed. Eudoxus and Acacius, Heads of the Arrians, were Depos'd by this Synod, and Euſtatius reſtored to the See of Sebaſtia. Socrates lib. 4. cap. 4. Sozomen lib. 6. cap. 7.

LAMPUGNANI (Jerom) a Lawyer of Milan, who Profeſs'd that Faculty in ſeveral Towns of Italy. He died in the Year 1644. His Works are, Compendium Introductionis ad Juſtinianeas Inſtitutiones, de Ratione Studendi in utroq; Jure, &c. Janus Nicius Erythræus, Pinac. 2. Imag. Illuſt. cap. 38.

LANBEDER, a Market-Town of Moython-Hundred, in the South-Eaſt Parts of Cardiganſhire, ſeated on the Weſt-ſide of the River Twy, which parts it from Cardiganſhire, 146 Miles from London.

LANCASHIRE, or the County Palatine of Lancaſter, Lat. Lancaſtrienſis Comitatus, is a large Maritime County in the N. W. Parts of England, bounded on the N. with Cumberland and Weſtmorland, and Southward with Cheſhire, from which it is parted by the River Merſey, Eaſtward with Yorkſhire, and Weſtward with the Iriſh Sea. In which compaſs it reaches from N. to S. 55 Miles, and from E. to W. 31. The whole divided into ſix Hundreds, beſides Fourneſs Fells and Lancaſter Liberties Northward, and the Hundreds into 62 Pariſhes, which have 25 Market-Towns. The Inhabitants of this County were counted part of the Brigantes by the ancient Romans, and their Country made part of the Kingdom of Northumberland in the Saxon Heptarchy, and is now of the Dioceſs of Cheſter. Here the Air is ſharp and piercing, ſeldom troubled, except in Moſſes, with Fogs; the Effects whereof are found in the fair Complexion and ſtrong Conſtitution of the Natives. The Soil differs much, ſome parts being Mountainous; and of the Champion Country, ſome very Fruitful, ſome Moſſy, and the reſt Mooriſh. The firſt is good for Wheat and Barley; and that which lies at the Bottom of the Hills beſt for Oats, of which this County yields the moſt and beſt of England. It is alſo noted for its Oxen, counted the largeſt in the Kingdom. In ſhort, this County is plentifully furniſhed with Corn, Fleſh, Fiſh and Fowl. Their principal Fuel is Turf and Coal, the Turves coming from the Moſſes, ſome of which, like the Iriſh Bogs, are many Miles in compaſs. As for the Hills, that called Pendle-Hill is of chief Note. The Rivers are, Merſey, Rible and Lon, all three running from E. to W. into the Iriſh Sea; the firſt ſerving as a Boundary betwixt this County and Cheſhire; beſides the great Lakes of Merlo and Winder, which laſt divides it from Weſtmorland. It is obſervable, that in ſo large a County, tho' ſufficiently thick of People, there ſhould be ſo few Pariſhes as 62, when Rutland, which is ſcarce a fifth part of Lancaſhire, has 48. 'Tis true, here are many Chapels of Eaſe equal to Pariſhes elſewhere for Multitudes of People. The Honour this County has of being a County Palatinate is of ſufficient Fame in the Annals of England, for thoſe Noble Perſons which have ſucceſſively born the Titles of Earls and Dukes thereof. The firſt Duke was Henry Plantagenet, who died without Iſſue Male: He left a Daughter, the Lady Blanch, who marrying to John of Gaunt, 4th Son to King Edward III. the Title was revived in him, and inherited by his Son Henry of Bullingbrook, afterwards King of England, by the Name of Henry IV. by whom this County Palatine, and all the Lands and Honours belonging and incorporate into the Dutchy of Lancaſter, were re-annexed to the Crown, tho' governed as an Eſtate a-part, by its own Officers. Thus it continued in this and the two following Reigns of Henry V. and VI. until Edward IV. having obtained the Crown in his own Right, and by dint of Sword, appropriated the Dutchy to the Crown, and diſſolved the Government thereof: But it was reſtored again by Henry VII. and has continued ever ſince in the ſame Form, under a Chancellor and ſeveral Inferior Officers. England has had four Kings of the Houſe of Lancaſter, viz. Henry IV. V. VI. VII. which laſt, by marrying Elizabeth, Daughter and Heir to Edward IV. of the Houſe of York, happily united the two Houſes of York and Lancaſter, whoſe Competition for the Crown, under the Names of Red and White-Roſe, had cauſed great Blood-ſhed: Laſtly, out of this County are elected, beſides the two Knights of the Shire, 12 Members of Parliament, out of Lancaſter, Leverpool, Preſton, Newton, Wigan and Clitheroe.

LANCASTER, Lat. Lancaſtria, or Longovicum, the chief Place of Lancaſhire, bears from London N. W. and by N. 190 Miles. Its ſituation upon a riſing Ground, on the South ſide of the River Lon, about 6 Miles from its Fall into the Iriſh Sea, is equally pleaſant and commodious: From which River it was firſt called Loncaſter, ſince turned into Lancaſter. But as pleaſant as is the ſituation of this Town, yet it is not well Peopled, nor much frequented. Mr. Cambden is of Opinion, that it is the Longovicum of the Romans, which was one of their Military Stations. It has a ſmall, but fair and ſtrong Caſtle, built on an Hill near the River, now made uſe of for the County-Gaol, and for keeping the County-Aſſizes; and one large, fair Pariſh-Church; with a Stone-Bridge of five Arches over the River Lon. Theſe and the Town-Hall, are the chief Things remarkable in Lancaſter, ſet aſide the Title it has given both of Earl and Duke to ſeveral Princes of the Royal Blood of England: Of Earl firſt to Edmond Plantagenet, ſecond Son of King Henry III. created Earl of Lancaſter, An. 1267. To whom ſucceeded Thomas Plantagenet, who was beheaded in the Reign of Edward II. Of Duke, firſt to Henry Plantagenet, who died of the Plague; after whoſe Death, the Title was conferred by King Edward III. upon his fourth Son, John of Gaunt. This Town was laid in Aſhes by the Scots in 1322. Speed, Cambden, &c.

LANCELOT, or Voeſin, Sieur de la Popeliniere, a Proteſtant Gentleman of Gaſcoigne, lived towards the End of the XVIth Century, in 1584. He writ an Hiſtory of France, containing the Reigns of Henry II. Francis II. Charles IX. and Henry III. from An. 1550. to 1577. Alſo a Book intituled The Three Worlds, The Hiſtory of Hiſtorians, &c.

LANCELOT (John Paul) a very eminent Lawyer in Perugia in Italy; he liv'd in the XVIth Century. The moſt conſiderable of his Works, are his Inſtitutes of the Canon Law, which were written in imitation of the Emperor Juſtinian's Inſtitutes; it is a very valuable and uſeful Treatiſe, of which there are ſeveral Editions, with Hieronymus Clarus, and Joannes Douſatius's Notes. Lancelot likewiſe wrote other Tracts, as De Subſtitutionibus. Breviarium Prætorium & Curiale, ac de Decurionibus. The Life of Bartholus. An Apology for Bartholus and Baldus, &c. Jacobilli Biblioth. Umbr.

LANCELOT, commonly call'd Secundus Lancelotus, General of the Order of the Olivetans, was born at Perugia in Italy, and died about the middle of the XVIIth Century. He was much eſteemed for his Learning and Elocution, as appears by his Writings; the moſt conſiderable of which are, The Hiſtory of his own Order; l'Hoggi di Overo gli ingegni moderni. Far Falloni de gli antichi Hiſtorici. Acus Nautica, &c. Thomaſini in vit. Illuſt. viror. Jacobilli Bibl. Umbr. &c.

LANCESTON, or LAUNSTON, anciently called Dunbived, is the chief Place of Cornwal, diſtant from London 175 Miles W. S. W. ſituate on the South-ſide of a ſmall River called Kenſey, about two Miles from its Fall into the Tamer, whereby this County is parted from Devonſhire. Here are held the Aſſizes for the County, which, beſides other Advantages, makes it a Place of good Trade, and well inhabited.

Here is a Caſtle, but daily going to ruin. The Cathedral, dedicated to St. Telian, Biſhop of this Dioceſs in the VIth Century, was anciently very richly endowed; but Biſhop Kitchin, alias Dunſtan, in Henry VIII's Time, proved ſo ill an Husband of it, that he is called by Godwin, one of his Succeſſors, Fundi noſtri calamitas. The Dioceſs contains only the richer Part of Glamorgan and Monmouthſhire, in all 177 Pariſhes, whereof there are 98 Impropriate; over all which there is one Arch-Deacon, called of Landaff, who, in the Biſhop's Abſence, is the Head of the Chapter, there being no Dean belonging to the Cathedral. The Biſhoprick is valued in the King's Books at 154 l. 14 s. 1 d. the Clergy's Tenth amounting much to the ſame Sum.

LANDAIS (Peter,) born at Vitre in Britany; of a poor Taylor, came to be High-Treaſurer and Favourite of Francis II. Duke of Britany; and being puffed up with his Proſperity, he abuſed his Power, to the oppreſſing of the Innocent, and enriching himſelf, by Exactions, and betraying of the State. Whereupon the Duke was forced to deliver him into the Hands of Juſtice, ſo that he was hanged at Nantes in 1485. Du Puy's Hiſtory of Favourites.

LANDAW, Lat. Landavia, a City of Germany, in the Lower Alſatia, which was yielded to France by the Peace of Munſter. It is ſituate in the Territory of Waſgow, upon the River Queich, upon the Confines of the Palatinate, 4 Leagues from Spire, to the Weſt. This Town is now in the Poſſeſſion of the French, who having plunder'd moſt Towns of the Palatinate, and a great part of Schwaben, in 1688, laid the Booty up here, where all was burnt by an accidental Fire, May 1689.

LANDENBERG, Governor of Onderwald in Switzerland, for the Emperor Albert I. who having committed ſeveral Diſorders, and cauſed the Eyes of Henry Melchtal to be plucked out, it ſo incenſed his Son Arnold, as to engage him to enter into an Aſſociation with Stouffacher and Furſt in 1307, to deliver their Country from that Oppreſſion. Landenberg in the mean time endeavouring to force a beautiful married Woman to go into the Bath with him, was killed by ſome of the Inhabitants of the Place. Simler de Rep. Helvet.

LANDI (Baſhiano) born at Piacenza in Italy; a Phyſician of Note in the XVIth Century. His Character is made good by his Works, which are, Iatrologia. De Humana Hiſtoria, lib. 2. &c. Ghilini Teat. de Huom. Letter pars 2. Vander Linden de Script. Medic. &c.

LANFRANCUS, an Italian, born at Pavia, was famous in the XIth Century. He was a Benedictine Friar, of the Abby of Bec in Normandy, afterwards Abbot of Caen, and laſtly Archbiſhop of Canterbury, in 1070. He diſputed againſt Berengarius in the Council held at Rome in 1059, under Pope Nicholas II. concerning the Real Preſence in the Euchariſt, and writ againſt him a Book concerning the Body and Blood of Our Lord, which Dom Luc d'Achery, a Benedictine, publiſhed in 1647, together with ſome Commentaries of his on the Epiſtles of St. Paul, Notes upon ſome of the Conferences of Caſſian, a Book of Letters, &c. The Curious may conſult his Life at the Beginning of his Works. He lived in great Eſteem with the Kings and Popes of his Time, and died May 24. 1089, having governed the Church of Canterbury 19 Years. The firſt Year after his Conſecration, Thomas Archbiſhop of York came, according to Cuſtom, to be Conſecrated by Archbiſhop Lanfranck: But Lanfranck demanding an Oath of Canonical Obedience from him, in Writing, according to the Cuſtom of his Predeceſſors, Thomas refus'd to make ſuch an Acknowledgment, unleſs Lanfranck could produce Records to prove his Claim: Lanfranck produc'd Evidence, but the other Archbiſhop however refus'd to comply. This Controverſy was afterwards determin'd in favour of the See of Canterbury; firſt, by the Pope, and afterwards by King William the Conqueror, in his great Court at Windſor; ſo that Thomas was at laſt contented to make the Submiſſion requir'd. This Archbiſhop Lanfranck had a diſpute with Odo Biſhop of Baieux, and Earl of Kent, the Conqueror's Brother, about ſome Lands in Kent, which Odo, by vertue of his Earldom, had ſeiz'd from the Archbiſhoprick. This Cauſe was Try'd upon Pinnenden-Heath in Kent, where it was Argued for three Days together before the King, and the great Men of the Kingdom; and upon a full Hearing, Judgment was given for the Archbiſhop. This Lanfranck built ſeveral good Churches, in the Mannors belonging to his See, and was a very Publick Spirited Perſon. Anglia Sacra, Part 1. LANGE, or LANGIUS (Carolus,) Canon of St. Lambert of Liege, lived in the XVth Century. He was Native of Gaunt, and the Son of John de Lange, Secretary of the Emp. Charles V. who took care to educate him in the learned Languages and ingenuous Literature. He writ divers Commentaries, and, amongſt other of his Works, publiſhed thoſe he had made upon Cicero de Officiis. He was alſo a great Floriſt, and lover of Exotick and Medicinal Plants, which he rear'd with great Care in his Garden. Juſtus Lipſius took great Pleaſure in them, when he viſited Langius in his German Journey. He died in 1574. Lævinus Forrentius, his Kinſman and Friend, buried him in the Old Choire of the Cathedral of Liege. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 56. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Sander.

LANGHE, Lat. Langa, a ſmall Province of Italy, on the South of Piedmont, and the Dukedom of Montferrat, between the Appennine and the Rivers of Tanaro, Urba and Stura, extending alſo to the Confines of the State of Genoua. The City of Alba is the Capital of it. This is a fruitful and well-peopled Territory.

LANGIUS (Joſeph) a German, living in the XVIIth Century, was a Mathematician and Greek Profeſſor at Fribourg in Briſgaw. He wrote ſeveral Tracts; amongſt others, Elementare Mathematicum, and the famous Collection call'd Polyanthæa.

LANG-LANDT, an Iſland belonging to Denmark, in the Baltick-Sea, between the Iſles of Fionia, Zealand and Hallandt, ſeven German Miles in length, and two in breadth. It has 16 Villages, and a ſtrong Caſtle, and is called Lang-landt from its Form.

LANGPORT, a Market-Town of Pitney Hundred, on the North-ſide of the Parret, in the South of Somerſetſhire; noted for the Encounter which happened here, July 12. 1645, betwixt King Charles I's Forces under the Lord Goring, and the Parliament's, wherein the King's were defeated. This Town is 109 Miles from London.

LANGRES, Lat. Andomadunum Lingonum, an ancient, great, ſtrong and rich City of France, in Champagne, pleaſantly ſituated on an Hill, near the Fountains of the Marne, the Country about it being accounted the higheſt of all France. It is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Lions; and the Biſhop is one of the Twelve Peers of France, and a Duke. It lies 6 Miles from the Borders of Burgundy, 22 from Troyes to the S. E. 16 from Dijon to the N. and 30 from Montbeliard to the W. The Cathedral of this City is dedicated to Mammez the Martyr; the Chapter whereof conſiſts of a Dean, a Treaſurer, ſix Arch-Deacons, a Chanter, and 42 Canons: The Dioceſs contains 600 Pariſhes. Conſtantine the Great overcame the Germans twice near this City, and in one of the Battels ſlew 60000 of them. The Vandals, in the Beginning of the IVth Century, committed great Spoils here. The Territory of Langres giving Source to five or ſix Rivers, is thought to ſtand the higheſt of any in the Kingdom. In 1080, or, as Baronius ſays, in 1077, Hugo de Die, the Pope's Legate, held a Council at Langres, againſt the Inveſtiture of Church-men by Seculars.

LANG-ZEE, Lat. Lacus Vabonus, in the Dutchy of Milan. Dr. Burnet ſaith, it is a great and noble Lake, 56 Miles long, and ſix broad, and 100 Fathoms deep in the middle. It has two Iſlands called the Barromean Iſles, which are certainly the lovelieſt Spots of Ground in the World; in one of them there is a noble Palace. This Lake diſchargeth it ſelf into the River Teſine.

LANGUEDOC, Lat. Occitania, a Province of France, of very large extent. It is the Weſtern part of that which the Romans called Gallia Narbonenſis, and Braccata, called afterwards Gallia Gothica, and the Earldom of Tholouſe. It lies along the Mediterranean, which, with Rouſſillon, bounds it on the South; on the North it has Auvergne, Rovergne, Querci and Lionnois; on the Eaſt it is bounded by the River Rhoſne, (which divides it from Dauphiné and Provence;) on the Weſt it is ſeparated from Gaſcoigne, that is, from Armagnac, and the Land of Cominge, by the Garonne. It is accounted one of the faireſt, and moſt conſiderable Provinces of all France, and divided into Upper and Lower; the one being the Weſtern Part, the other the Eaſtern, upon the Mediterranean. The former of theſe comprehends the Territory of Tholouſe, the Country of the Albigeois, or Albigenſes, the Diſtrict or Earldom of Lauragais, and the Earldom of Foix: The latter is divided into three Ridings, or Diviſions, viz. of Narbonne, Beſiers and Niſmes, together with the Government which contains Gauvedan, the Vivarais and Velai, as is mentioned elſewhere. Languedoc is very fruitful in Corn, Fruits and Wine, and abounds with Veniſon; ſome Parts of it yield great ſtore of Frankincenſe, Pitch, Cork, Marble, Jaſper and Slates, and ſome conſiderable Mines; but it is peculiarly fruitful in Woad, an Herb uſed by Dyers. It is watered with many fair Rivers, ſome whereof diſcharge themſelves into the Mediterranean, and others mingle with the Garonne. The Inhabitants are naturally of a very lively, active and pregnant Temper, of which, the Great Men it hath produced are an inconteſtable Proof. In the Vth. Century, the Goths began to ſettle themſelves here, and ſome think, it took its Name from them by corruption of Lant-Goth, i. e. The Country of the Goths; tho' others ſuppoſe this Name was derived from the Word Oc, which the Inhabitants uſe inſtead of Oui (Ay or Yes) and that it was called Languedoc, q. d. Langue d'oc, the Tongue or Language of Oc. The Goths made the City of Tholouſe the Capital of their Kingdom, whoſe Bounds they afterwards extended to the River Loire. The famous Canal in Languedoc, made for a Communication between both the Seas, was begun in 1666, but not finiſh'd till 1681. The length of this Canal is about Sixty four French Leagues, and Thirty Foot broad, by the convenience of which, they may Sail in a Eleven Days, with great eaſe and ſecurity, from the Ocean to the Mediterranean, & vice verſa. Memoirs du Temps. Charlemaign appointed Governors of this Province, who were called Earls of Tholouſe. See THOLOUSE. *Catel. LANIMDOVERY, a Market-Town of Perueth Hundred in the North Eaſt Borders of Carmarthenſhire, 157 Miles from London.

LANGROST, a Market-Town in Denbighſhire, with a good Free-School, 165 Miles from London,

LANSDOWN, upon the Borders of Wiltſhire and Somerſetſhire, memorable for the Battle fought here in our late Civil-Wars, July 13. 1643. which was not, indeed, ſo much a formal Fight, as a continued Skirmiſh, the Ground not permitting to diſpute it otherwiſe, and neither Party got any conſiderable Advantage; but five Days after, the Parliament-Forces were worſted in Roundway-fight.

LANTHU, the Name of a Religious Sect in the Kingdom of Tonquin, bordering upon China, ſo named from the Author of it, who was a Chineſe by Birth, and one of the moſt famous and skilful Magicians that ever appeared in the Eaſtern Parts of the World; he got abundance of Diſciples, who, to authorize the lies of their Maſter, perſuaded the People, That he was miraculouſly born, that his Mother had Conceived him without loſing her Virginity, and that ſhe had carried him in her Womb Seventy Years. This falſe Prophet taught his Diſciples ſome part of the Doctrine of Chacabaut; but that which made him moſt beloved of the People was, that he exhorted the Rich to build Hoſpitals in all the Cities, where there were none before, and induced many great Men of the Kingdom to retire into theſe Hoſpitals, in order to their ſerving of the Sick, with ſeveral of the Bonzes, who live there on the ſame account. Tavernier. See LANCU.

LANTRISSENT, a Market-Town of Lantriſſent-Hundred in the Eaſt Parts of Glamorganſhire, 127 Miles from London.

LANVILLING, a Market-Town of Mechavi-Hundred, in the N. Parts of Montgomeryſhire, 132 Miles from London.

LANYDLOS, a Market-Town of Tereſtly-Hundred, in the S. Borders of Montgomeryſhire, 131 Miles from London.

LANZO, a Town of Piemont in Italy, ſubject to the Duke of Savoy; 'tis ſituated on the River Stura, 10 Miles Eaſt of Suſa and 14 N. W. of Turin.

LAO, or LAOS, a Kingdom of the Indies, bounded on the E. by the Kingdom of Tonquin, on the S. by the Kingdom of Camboja, on the W. by thoſe of Siam and Pegu, and on the N. by that of Ava, and the Province U and Lu, and a certain People called Gnai, bordering upon China. It is wonderfully ſecured by the Mountains that ſurround it, as well as by the thick Foreſts that grow at the bottom of thoſe Mountains, and hedge in the whole Kingdom, with a pleaſant and uſeful Encloſure. The great River Lao, which the Inhabitants call the Mother of Rivers, divides it ſelf into ſeveral Chanels, moſt of which are Navigable, and make the Country exceeding Fruitful. This great River, which is wrong placed by the Ancient and Modern Geographers, ariſeth from a Moraſs or Lake towards the North, on the top of the high Mountains of the Province Jumam, on the Frontiers of China, from whence it runs down like a Torrent, and being increaſed by ſeveral Rivulets running into it, ſome few Leagues from Lao, in the Latitude of 23 Degrees, it begins to carry Boats, and divides it ſelf into two great Rivers, whereof the one takes its courſe Weſtward through Pegu, and empties it ſelf in the Gulph of Bengala, the other ſpreads it ſelf in ſeveral Branches through the Kingdom of Lao, and divides it from N. to S. into two great Provinces. This River never overflows, by reaſon of the height of its Banks. It is obſervable in this River, that if its Fiſh follow its courſe as far as Cambaya, they die immediately, as do all thoſe of Cambaya, when they get into the River Lao.

Qualities of the Country.

All the Country on the Eaſt of this River is very Fruitful, it breeds large and ſtrong Elephants, and very fair Unicorns. The Rice that grows here is incomparable, and of a different Smell and Taſte, from that which is the product of other Eaſtern Countries. The Trees of their Foreſts are almoſt incorruptible. The Ground that is ſown with Rice, immediately after Harveſt, exſudes a kind of Froth or Scum, which, being dried by the Sun, is turned to Salt, with which they drive a great Trade. The principal Commodities of the Kingdom are, Benzoin, Gum-lack, Ivory, Unicorns-horns, and Musk, which they gather from a kind of Musk-deer, which the Chineſe call Te-Hiam. The Climate is more temperate and healthful than that of Tonquin, and it is a common thing to ſee old Men of 100 and 120, as ſtrong and vigorous here, as if they were but 50.

The Chief City of the Kingdom, and Strength of it.

The Capital City where the King keeps his Court, ſtands in the midſt of the Kingdom, in 18 Degrees of Latitude, and is called Langione; on one ſide, it is ſecured with deep Ditches and high Walls, and on the other, by the great River. The King's Palace is of ſo large an extent, that one would take it to be a City, and the Buildings of it are very ſumptuous and magnificent; the Halls, Chambers and Appartments, are all made of incorruptible Wood, embelliſhed within and without with admirable Carv'd-works, and ſo exquiſitly and richly Gilt, that they ſeem rather to be cover'd with Plates, than Leaves of that Metal. The Lodgings of the King's Wives, and of the Mandarins, are all built of Brick, and richly furniſhed; for none but their Talapoins, or Idol-Prieſts, are permitted to have their Houſes built of Free-ſtone. Perſons of Quality, inſtead of Carpets, make uſe of a kind of Mats moſt curiouſly wrought, with ſeveral ſorts of Figures. This Kingdom is ſo well Peopled, that in a general Muſter, or Numbering of the People, there were found 500000 able to bear Arms; but they are not much Exerciſed in war-like Diſcipline, whereof one Reaſon may be, the ſecure and advantageous ſituation of their Kingdom, which is all encompaſſed with high Mountains, and inacceſſible Precipices; as alſo, becauſe the chief Strength they rely upon is, their Skill in Poiſons, which they caſt into their Rivers to deſtroy thoſe that venture to invade them. The King of Tonquin, not long ſince, invaded this Kingdom with a Potent Army, but finding the Waters poiſoned, was forced to retire.

Manners, Cuſtoms and Religion, of the People of LAO.

The People of Lao are ingenious, and apt to learn, open-hearted, ſincere and faithful. They make four Meals a Day, their common Food being Rice, Fiſh, the Fleſh of Buffalo's, and ſeveral ſorts of Pulſe. They rarely eat any Fowl, and when they do, they roaſt them, Feathers and all. They generally apply themſelves to Tilling of the Ground, and Fiſhing, wholly neglecting the Study of Arts and Sciences. Robberies are very rare amongſt them, and when they happen, the neareſt Neighbours to the place, are bound to make good the Damage. But their Sorcerers frequently cauſe great Diſorders amongſt them; for, by their Charms, they caſt thoſe of the houſe into a deep ſleep, and then rob them at their pleaſure; and, 'tis reported, That they can make the Devil enter the Bodies of any they bear a grudge to, to torment them for a certain time. As to their Religion, they are Idolaters, and extreamly Superſtitious; they offer no Sacrifices or Victims to their Idols, but only Perfumes, or Incenſe, Flowers and Rice, which they ſet upon their Altars. They believe the Tranſmigration of Souls, and hold ſome other extravagant Tenets, according to the Doctrine of Xaca, the Author of their Law. Their Prieſts or Doctors, called Talapoins, are, for the moſt part, Magicians, and live together in Convents, which they may leave when they pleaſe to Marry.

Government of the Kingdom, and Magnificence of the Court.

The Inhabitants of this Kingdom, having revolted from the Chineſe, to whom they were Subject at firſt, formed a kind of Common-wealth, which continued till about 600 Years after the Birth of our Saviour. There are, at this time, in the Country, a great number of People that were originally of Siam, who had lived there for many Years, becauſe of the goodneſs of the Air, and fruitfulneſs of the Country; and being very powerful (upon the Change of the Government into a Monarchy) they got one of their own Country-men placed in the Throne, of whoſe Line the preſent King is ſuppoſed ſtill to be, as appears by their retaining the ancient Language of the Siameſe, as well as their Habit. The King is abſolute, and is the only Proprietor of all the Lands in his Kingdom, and the Univerſal Heir to all his Subjects; ſo that when any one dies, the King leaves his Children only ſome Moveables, or a Yearly Penſion. There are Eight Principal Dignities, or Places of Command, in the Kingdom, the Chief whereof is, that of the Vice-Roy General, under whom are Seven other Vice-Roys, who are the Governors of the Seven Provinces of the Kingdom, they are always near the King, and of his Council, and ſend Deputies to act under them in the Provinces. Every one of theſe Provinces have a conſiderable Party of Cavalry and Infantry to ſecure them. The King ſhews himſelf to his People twice a Year, and that for three Days together, and ſeldom ſtirs out of his Palace, except it be to go to ſome Idol Temple, and then he hath a Diadem on his head, ſomething reſembling thoſe worn by the firſt Roman Emperors; his Ears are pierced, and adorned with great Pearls; he ſits upon an Elephant, all ſhining with Diamonds and precious Stones, wearing the Riches of a whole Kingdom about him, a Quire of Muſicians go before him, and lead the March or Proceſſion; after them, follow the Mandarins, every one followed by a Page, who carries Boxes of Gold and Silver, the difference whereof denotes their Maſter's Rank and Quality, after them come the King's Favourites, and Grandees of the Kingdom, viz. The Vice-Roy General mounted on an Elephant, and the Seven other Vice-Roys in Sedans, adorned with Cloth of Gold; and, laſt of all, appears the King, followed by a vaſt number of Officers richly habited, and riding on gallant Horſes, which conclude the Cavalcade. The Kings of Lao has the advantage of having ſeveral Kings Tributary to him, who own him for their Soveraign, whereas himſelf pays Tribute to none, in which particular, he excells the King of Tonquin, who, tho' richer, and more puiſſant than he, yet depends on the Emperor of China. In former times, the Kings of Lao were under the ſame Engagement, but the ſituation of their Kingdom gave them an opportunity of ſhaking off that Yoak. Riencourt's Tranſlation of the Hiſtory of Lao out of Fa. Martini.

LAOCOON, Son of Priam and Hecuba, and Prieſt of Apollo. He diſſuaded the Trojans from taking the Wooden-Horſe into their City, which the Greeks pretended to Dedicate to Minerva. Virgil. Ænead. lib. 2. Hygin. Fab. 135.

LAODAMIA, Daughter of Acaſtus and Laodothea. 'Tis ſaid that being exceſſively afflicted for the Death of her Husband Proteſilaus, kill'd by Hector, She deſir'd to ſee his Ghoſt, and died at the ſight on't. Ovid makes her write his Thirteenth Epiſtle to her Husband.

LAODICE, the Wife of Antiochus, a Macedonian Captain, and Mother of Seleucus one of Alexander the Great his Generals, and King of Syria after his Death. 'Tis ſaid, that Nine Months before the Birth of Seleucus, ſhe dreamed that Apollo was in bed with her, and gave her a precious Stone, on which was engraven the figure of an Anchor, commanding her to give it to the Son ſhe ſhould bring forth, and that the next Morning ſhe found in her bed a Ring, with the ſame precious Stone ſhe had ſeen in her Dream, with an Anchor engraved on it, and that the Child ſhe brought forth had the ſame Mark on his Thigh. Laodice beſtowed the Ring upon her Son Seleucus, when he betook himſelf to the Service of Alexander the Great, and he being afterwards elevated to the Throne of Syria, built the City Laodicea in honour of his Mother. Plutarch.

LAODICEA, a City formerly of Phrygia Pacatiana, a Province of the leſſer Aſia, upon the River Lycus, near its fall into the Meander, now called by the Turks Eskihiſſar, which ſignifies The Old Caſtle, built by Antiochus the Son of Stratonica, whoſe Wife's Name being Laodice, gave this Name to the City, now totally ruined, tho' once an Archbiſhop's See, with ſixteen Biſhopricks under it. The Ruines of it, ſhew it to have been a very great City, ſituate upon ſix or ſeven Hills, encompaſſing a large ſpace of Ground, twenty Miles diſtant from Coloſs to the N. E. and five from Hierapolis. It hath three Theatres of white Marble, as beautiful and entire, as if they were lately built; and a Circus, as ſtately, but then the Town is wholly deſolate. A Council was held here, An. Ch. 370, which Baronius and Binius will have to be elder than that of Nice, but falſly, chiefly upon the account of the Controverſie about Lent. The Canons of thoſe Councils contain many things worthy of obſervation, relating to the Diſcipline of the Church; they were Collected by Dionyſius Exiguus.

LAODICEA, a City of Syria, near the Phœnician-Sea, at the foot of Mount Libanus, between Heraclea to the North and Gabala to the S. built by Seleucus, the Son of Antiochus, in Memory of his Mother Laodice; which Seleucus, was alſo the Founder of Apamea and Antioch, upon which account, theſe Cities were called The Three Siſter-Cities. There is alſo a City of the ſame Name in Media, ſuppoſed to be that mentioned by St. Paul in his laſt Chapter to the Coloſſians, tho' others take it to be that in Phrygia. Tertullian ſaith, the Marcionites boaſted of their having a Letter of St. Paul's to the Laodiceans, but our Reverend Uſher proves, that it was only a Corruption of St. Paul's Epiſtle to the Epheſians. This City was over-thrown by an Earthquake in Nero's Time, but the Inhabitants being rich, it was ſoon repaired again. Baronius ſpeaks of a Council held at Laodicea of Phrygia, in 314, before the Council of Nice, under Neunechius Metropolitan of Phrygia, who afterwards aſſiſted at the Council of Nice, tho' others ſuppoſe this Council was not Celebrated till 319, and others again, That it was held under the Papacy of Liberius, who began to Govern the Church, May 8. 352. This Council was conven'd to reform the Manners both of the Eccleſiaſticks and Seculars. We have its Canons in Greek, with the Latin Tranſlation of Gentianus Hervetus, the Interpretation of Dionyſius, ſurnamed The Little, and the Collection of Iſiderus Mercator. Gabriel Albaſpineus Biſhop of Orleans hath writ excellent Notes upon the ſecond Canon of this Council, concerning the Communion of Penitents after Confeſſion, which may be ſeen in the laſt Edition of the Councils, where mention alſo is made of a Synod held at Laodicea in 476. in favour of Stephen II. Biſhop of Antioch, whom the Eutycheans killed at the Altar. Baronius A. C. 314. Cabaſſutius not. Concil.

LAOMEDON V. King of Troy, began to Reign after Ilus his Father, An. Mun. 2794. and Reigned 36 Years. He built the Walls of Troy, out of the Treaſury that had been Conſecrated to Apollo and Neptune, which gave occaſion to the Fable, That theſe Gods built thoſe Walls for him, and that Laomedon, having refuſed to pay them the Wages he had promiſed, Apollo ſent a Plague into the City, and Neptune ſpoiled it by an Inundation. They add likewiſe, That the Oracle adviſed to expoſe his Daughter Heſione to a Sea Monſter, to Atone for his Crime, and that Hercules delivered her; but Laomedon refuſing him his Reward, Hercules killed him, and gave Heſione in Marriage to Telamon. Euſeb. in Chron. Ovid Lib. 11. Metamorph.

LAON. Lat. Laudunum or Lugdunum Clavatum. A great and well-fortified City of Picardy in France, and a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Rheims, whoſe Biſhop is always one of the twelve Peers of France, and a Duke. It is commonly reckoned a Dependance of the Government of the Iſle of France, and is the Capital of a ſmall Territory called Laonnois, which is bounded on the N. with Tierache, a part of Picardy, on the E. by Champagne, and on the S. and W. with Soiſſonnois.

LAPATHUS, or LAPATHOS, a City in the Northern part of the Iſle of Cyprus, which formerly was a Biſhop's See; it is very Ancient, and is called, by Pliny, Lapethos. Strabo Lib. 15.

A LAPIDE: See CORNELIUS A Lapide.

LAPITHÆ, a People of Theſſaly, inhabiting about Lariſſa and Mount Olympus, though others aſſign their Habitations on the Mountains of Pindus and Othrys. They took their Name from Lapithas, the Son of Apollo and Stilbe, and were the firſt that tamed Horſes.

LAPLAND, Lat. Lapponia, Lappia, is the moſt Northern part of Scandinavia, firſt mentioned by Saxo-Grammaticus, about An. Ch. 1190. It is bounded on the N. with the Frozen-Sea, on the W. with the Kingdom of Norway, on the S. with Bothnia, Finland, and Carelia, Provinces of Sweden, and on the E. by the White Sea, and the Lake Ladoga. It is divided into three Parts, which are the Ruſſian Lapland, the Norvegian, and the Swediſh. The Ruſſian Lapland is contained between the Lake Enarak, and the White-Sea, and is divided into three Territories, that next the Sea, called Mourmankoi-Leporie, in which is the Sea-Port Kola, well known to the Hollanders; the other is Terskoi-Leporie, upon the White-Sea; and the Third is, Bellamoreski-Leporie. The Inhabitants of this laſt Country are called by the Ruſſians, Dickiloppi, that is, Cruel Laplanders, their Diſpoſitions being very barbarous and cruel. The Norvegian Lapponia, which is otherwiſe called Finmarck, or the Government of Wardhus, and belongs to the King of Denmark, is ſituate between the Lake Enarak, the River Pacs, and the Sea, and reacheth to the Borders of Nidroſſia, or Drontheim. The Third part is, the Swediſh Lapland, which is called Lapmarck, or South-Lapland, and comprehends all the Country from the Baltick-Sea, to the Mountains that ſeparate Sweden from Norway, and is divided into ſix Governments, or Juriſdictions, which take their Names from ſo many Rivers, viz. Uma-lapmark, Pitha-lapmark, Lula-lapmark, Torne-lapmark, and Kimi-lapmark. The Laplanders have three Months in the Winter, all Night, and as many Months, all Day, in the Summer, during which long Night, they enjoy a little Twilight at Morning and Evening. The Cold is intolerable there in the Winter, and the Heat is little better in the Summer. The Country is extreamly incommoded with Snow and Winds, and full of Rocks and Mountains; amongſt which, thoſe called Dofrines, which are the boundary of Norway and Sweden, are of wonderful height, and the Winds rage with that violence on the top of them, that no Trees can take root there. The Country abounds with a prodigious quantity of wild Beaſts, Wild-Fowl, and Fiſh; the Skins and Furrs of which Beaſts, and of their Fiſhes, are the chief Commodities they Trade with. The Country breeds a vaſt number of whitiſh Wolves and Bears, which make great ſpoil and havock in the Country, wherefore there is no greater Honour amongſt the Inhabitants, than that of having killed a Bear, and the more of them, the more honourable; and therefore they commonly wear in their Caps, as many Tin or Pewter-wires, as they have killed Bears. They have alſo great ſtore of Bevers and Otters, and Black-Foxes, whoſe Furr is highly eſteemed, of which, the Great Lords of Muſcovy make their Caps, ſo that the Skins are commonly ſold for 10 or 12 golden Crowns a-piece. The Martins of this Country are very fair, and are found in the Foreſts in great numbers, and ſo are the Squirrils, which every Year change their Colour, and of Red, become Grey in the Winter, which is the colour of their Furr, moſt in eſteem. The Squirrils at certain Times and Seaſons leave the Country in vaſt Troops, ſo that then they are very rare to meet with, and at other times again, as plentiful. The Cauſe of their flight is not known, tho', ſome think, it is to avoid the extream Cold of the Winter. Their meeting-place, is on the Banks of Lakes, where embarking on ſome bits of the Barks of Pine and Firr-trees, they commit themſelves to the Water, and are carried by the Wind, till the Waves over-ſet their ſlender Barks and drown them, neither do their Bodies ſink, but are carried to the ſhoar, where People are ready to take them up for their Furrs which are very good, if they have not lain over-long in the Water. The Squirrels that continue in the Country, ſoon repair the loſs of their Companions, for ſome of them bring forth four or five at one time. Sables alſo do much abound in this Country, whoſe Skins are of a great value. The Sable, or a Scythian Martin, is a Beaſt much reſembling a Weezel, or a Martin, and the more black they are, the more they are eſteemed; yet thoſe that are of a bright white colour, are as highly prized as the black, and the Muſcovian Ambaſſadors, often deliver them as a Preſent from their Maſter, to foreign Princes. Neither are Ermines wanting in this Country, which are a ſort of white Weezels, that have a ſtroak of black Furr in their Tails. This little Beaſt is white only in the Winter Time, and their Skins like thoſe of other Weezels, reſume their firſt Red Colour, and a Sea-Green towards the End of May. The Lapland-Hares are much ſought after becauſe of their Furr, which is very white in the Winter: For it is to be obſerved, that all the Hares of the moſt Northern Countries change their Colour ſeveral Times in the Year; for they begin to loſe their Grey Colour, and to turn white after the Autumnal Equinox, and there are often taken of them about that Time which are half Grey and half White. The Beaſts which are of moſt uſe to the Laplanders are, the Rennes, or Rangifers, which much reſemble Red Deer, but are larger and taller. Theſe Beaſts are naturally very wild, but the Laplanders have found a Way to tame them, and make uſe of them to draw their Sledges. Theſe Beaſts will carry them over the Snow 100 Miles in twelve Hours Time. They alſo eat their Fleſh, and make Cheeſe of their Milk. Lapland being a Country full of Lakes, Mariſhes, Foreſts and Mountains, accordingly it abounds alſo with Wild and Water-Fowl; as, Swans, Ducks, Pheaſants, Partridges, Woodcocks and Moor-hens. The Swans come hither in great Numbers in the Beginning of the Spring, from the German Ocean. No Country is more plentiful in Fiſh, eſpecially in Salmons: The Lakes furniſh a prodigious Quantity of great Pikes, ſome of them being of a larger Size than a Man. They have alſo Bremes of an Ell long, and of an admirable delicious Taſte. Alſo Perches of an incredible Bigneſs and Length. An Head of one of theſe Fiſhes is to be ſeen in the Church of Lubla, whoſe Jaw is Eight Inches long. Lapland hath no Fruit-Trees at all, nor Foreſt-Trees neither, but ſuch as are able to reſiſt the Cold; viz. Pine-Trees and Firr-Trees, Juniper-Buſhes, Birch-Trees, Poplars, Willows, Alders, Serviſe, and Cornel-Trees. They have ſome Mines of Silver, Lead, Copper and Iron, and Precious Stones, but very dark, and want much of the Luſtre of the Oriental Gems. Their Diamonds are nothing elſe but a ſort of Cryſtals that are found growing to the Rocks, their Figure being commonly Hexagonal, and terminate in a Joint: Some of them are as big as a Child's Head, very clear, and without Spots, and far excelling the common Cryſtal in Hardneſs; ſo that being cut and poliſhed, they are very like true Diamonds. Their Amethyſts are very pale, and much clouded; and ſo are their Topazes. There are alſo found on the Banks of their Lakes and Rivers Stones that repreſent the Figure of certain Animals, which the Laplanders highly value, and ſet in ſome eminent Place, to worſhip them for Deities. They have ſome Rivers where they fiſh for Pearl, but they are generally pale by reaſon of the Coldneſs of the Air; yet many are found amongſt them that are very little inferior to the Oriental. The Stature of the Laplanders, eſpecially thoſe that live moſt Northerly, is not above three Cubits, and are for the moſt part deformed and crooked: But their Women are more comely, having a certain natural Red in their Faces, intermixed with White, which ſhews very pretty. Their Hair and Beards are very black, and their Strength and Agility is far beyond that of other Men: They can with Eaſe ſtring a Bow, which the ſtrongeſt Norwegians cannot bend half way: But are withal cowardly and fearful, very revengeful, and great Cheats and Lyars. They cannot live out of their own Country; and if at any Time any of them leave it, they fall ſick. Many of the Laplanders at preſent make Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Religion, and ſeveral Churches were built in their Country in the laſt Century; and a publick School erected in the Town of Pitha, to inſtruct their Children in the Principles of Religion, and in Reading and Writing; the Maſters whereof have taken Care to tranſlate out of the Swediſh, into their Language, ſuch Books as might be helpful to them. The firſt Book that ever appeared in the Lapland Language was printed at Stockholm in 1619. being an A B C Book, or Primer, with a Catechiſm, and ſome Chriſtian Prayers. Some Time after there was printed a Manual, containing the Pſalms of David, the Goſpels, the Proverbs of Solomon, &c. In 1631. the King of Sweden founded another College at Likſala, in the Province of Uma. But yet, notwithſtanding all this Care taken, they continue for the moſt part obſtinate in their ancient Idolatry, and Magical Superſtitions. They obſerve Times and Seaſons, and divide the Days into Black and White; that is, Fortunate and Unfortunate. Together with the Worſhip of the true God, they join the Adoration of Thor, Stoorjunckare and Bairve, (which ſee in their proper Places.) They have alſo a particular Veneration for the Seites, or Seitas, which are the Souls of the Dead; and alſo for certain Dæmons, or Spirits, which, according to them, frequent the Woods and Lakes, as alſo for a kind of Airy Spirits they call Jubles. The ancient Inhabitants of this Country, eſpecially thoſe of Biarmia, towards the White-Sea, did wonderful Things by their Magick; but ſince Chriſtianity hath been received amongſt them, Magick is not ſo common: Yet there are not wanting Maſters that teach this Diabolical Art; yea, the Parents inſtruct their Children in this Satanical Commerce; and bequeath to them, as part of their Inheritance, the Evil Spirits that have ſerved themſelves, that by their Aſſiſtance they may overcome the Dæmons of other Families that are their Enemies: And not only every Family, but each particular Perſon, have their peculiar Spirit, or Spirits, to execute their Deſigns, or to hinder the Endeavour of thoſe that would hurt them. They exerciſe their Sooth-ſaying and Magick ſeveral Ways; as, by a certain kind of Drum, by Knots, Javelins, Imprecations and Charms. Their Sooth-ſaying by the Drum is thus: They make a Drum of the Trunk of ſome great Tree, which they hollow, viz. a Pine, Firr, or Birch-Tree, ſtretching a Skin over it, and on this make the Figures of ſeveral Things they worſhip; as, of Jeſus Chriſt, and the Apoſtles; and a little lower, the Sun, Moon and Stars, Birds, Bears, Rivers, &c. They make theſe Figures with a kind of Red Colour, which they prepare of the Duſt or Sawings of the Alder-Tree, ſteeped or boiled in Water. They ſtrike this Drum with a Wooden Hammer made for this purpoſe, and thereby move ſome Rings of Braſs that lie upon the Drum; according to the Motion of which, and their Approach to this or the other Figure, they divine the Thing they have a Mind to know. By this Means they pretend to know whatſoever paſſeth in other Countries, the good or ill Succeſs of their Affairs, and eſpecially of their Hunting, which is their chief Employment; and likewiſe to cure Diſeaſes, &c. The Laplanders do not all feed after the ſame manner: Thoſe who live on the Mountains live moſtly upon the Fleſh of their Rangifers, and drink their Milk, or make Cheeſe of it. They expoſe the Fleſh they eat during the Winter Time, to the Air, which dries up its Moiſture, preſerves it from Corruption, and withal, ſerves to make it tender; ſo that in ſome meaſure it ſerves the End of Boiling or Roaſting. Thoſe that inhabit Woods live upon Wild-Fowl and Fiſh. They account Bears Fleſh a ſingular Dainty, wherewith they entertain their beſt Friends. The greateſt Part of them uſe neither Bread nor Salt; but inſtead thereof they dry their Fiſh in the Sun, or in Winter in the cold Air, and then grind or beat it to Powder; which ſerves them inſtead of Flower. The tender Bark of Pine-Trees made into Powder, ſerves them inſtead of Salt and Sugar, to ſeaſon their Meats with. They have no Beer, becauſe neither Barley nor Hops grow in their Country; and for that no Beer can be preſerved there, eſpecially in the Winter-time, becauſe of the great Froſt, they greatly affect French Brandy and Tobacco, with which they ſtock themſelves from Norway. They are very dexterous Hunters, and great Marks-men. They have a Way of Running over the Snow with a wonderful Swiftneſs, employing for this purpoſe certain thin Boards, which they faſten to the Soles of their Feet; and whereof, that which they wear on the Right Foot equals in Length the Stature of him that wears it, and that of the Left Foot is a Foot longer: The Ends of them are made bending upwards, and the upper Part of theſe Boards is done over with Pitch. They ſet their Feet in the midſt of theſe Boards, and faſten them by a round piece of tough and bending Wood. From theſe wooden Inſtruments the Laplanders have the Name of Skrito-fins, or Skrid-fins; Skriida, in the Swediſh Language, ſignifying, a Running or Courſing upon the Ice or Snow, and Fin, or Finnons, the People of Finland, which is the original Country of the Laplanders. To run over the Snow the Laplanders make uſe alſo of their Sledges, which they call Pulca; which are made in the Form of a ſmall Boat, the Prow being ſharp and pointed, but the Stern flat; the under Part or Bottom of it is convex, or half round, to the End it may ſway on each ſide upon Occaſion, and may the more eaſily paſs over the deepeſt Snows. He that ſits in the Sledge guides the Rangifer that draws it, and holds the Reins in his Hand, which are faſtned to the Horns of the Beaſt. The Induſtry of the Laplanders appears alſo in contriving their Boats, which they make of the Wood of Pine or Firr-Trees; the Boards whereof they join together, gether, not with Nails, but ſtitch or ſow them together with a kind of Cord or Thread made of the moſt pliant Roots of Trees newly taken out of the Ground, or of the Sinews of their Rangifers, which they twiſt together, and dry in the Wind or Sun, and ſo make Cords of them for this purpoſe; and when they have after this manner ſewed their Boards together, they fill up the Creviſes with Moſs to keep out the Water; which Barks they guide with two or four Oars along the moſt rapid Rivers. They have alſo a Way of making Baskets and Hampers of the Roots of Trees; and of working them ſo cloſe, that they can hold Water like ſolid Veſſels. The Laplanders for the moſt part live 100 Years and upwards, and commonly die more of extream Old Age, than of any Sickneſs, and in their declining Years are very lively and vigorous. *Scheffer's Hiſtoria Lappon. LAR, Lat. Laria, a City and ſmall Kingdom in Perſia, in that Part of it called Farſi, near Ormus and the Perſian Gulf, in the Confines of Caramania, upon the River Tiſindon. Schah Abbas K. of Perſia annexed this to the reſt of his Dominions in the End of the laſt Century; having then conquered the Guebres, who were Maſters of it, and were governed by a Prince of their own, whom they called King of Lar; the laſt of which, with all his Progeny, was ſlain by the Perſians, the better to ſecure this barren Kingdom. Mr. Herbert and Thevenot agree, that its Water is extream unhealthful, the Soil Sandy, that there is neither River nor Rivolet within 100 Miles of the City Lar, and that the Inhabitants are forced to make uſe of Ciſtern-water, which is very ſubject to Corruption. The moſt part of the Inhabitants of this City are Jews, who make excellent Silk Manufactures. Its Caſtle is of ſolid Stone, well provided with Canon, which were brought hither from Ormus.

LARA, or LARANDA, one of the Naiades, Daughter of the River Almon, on whom the Poets ſay, that Mercury begat the Houſhold-Gods called Lares, whereof they have framed us this Story, viz. That Jupiter being fallen in love with Juturna the Siſter of Turnus, and not able to have his Will of her, becauſe when-ever he came near her, ſhe threw her ſelf into the River Tyber; he charged all the Nymphs of that River to hinder her from doing ſo; which they all promiſed to perform, except Lara, who went and acquainted Juturna and Juno with what Jupiter had given them in charge. Jupiter thereupon became ſo incenſed, that he ſtruck her dumb, and gave order to Mercury, to carry her down to Hell, who being taken with her Beauty, begot on her two Children, which were called Lares, from their Mother's Name. Ovid. Faſt. 2.

LARA, the Name of a Famous and Noble Family in Spain, ſo called from the City Lara in old Caſtile, and much noted in Hiſtory, by reaſon of the ſeven Children of Lara, ſo called, a ſhort account of whom take as follows. Gonzalo Guſtos, Lord of Salas and Lara, Deſcended from the Earls of Caſtile, Married Donna Sancha, the Siſter of Ruy Velaſquez, Lord of Bylaren, by whom he had ſeven Sons, called The ſeven Children of Lara. Count Dom Garcia Fernandez, who was their Couſin-German, Dubb'd them all Knights in one Day. They were in the flower of their Age, when their Uncle Ruy Velaſquez married Dona Lambra, who was the Couſin by Father and Mother of Dom Garcia Fernandez, and Gonzalo Guſtos being at the Wedding with his ſeven Sons, it happened that a Quarrel aroſe between Gonzalo Gonzales, the Youngeſt of the ſeven, and a Knight called Alvarez Zanchez, Couſin-German of Donna Lambra, which, with much ado, was at laſt compoſed. Some time after, Donna Lambra was accompanied to Barbadillo with the ſeven Children, and deſiring to be revenged on Gonzalo, for the Affront done to her Couſin, ſhe ſent one of her Slaves to abuſe him, by daſhing him in the Face with a Cucumber dipp'd in Blood, which the Slave executed, but was purſued by Gonzalo, and his Brothers, and ſtabbed at Donna Lambra her feet, who complaining hereof to her Husband, he eſpouſed her Quarrel, and reſolved to be the Deſtruction of Gonzalo Guſtos, and his Children; to which end, after a feigned Reconciliation, he deſires his Brother-in-Law to go for him to the King of Corduba, and deliver him a Letter, which he, ſuſpecting no ill, performed; the Mooriſh King peruſing the Letter, found the Contents to be, that the Bearer thereof, together with his ſeven Sons, were his greateſt Enemies; upon the peruſal whereof, the King caſt Gonzalo into Priſon, and ſent ſome Forces towards Almenar, to ſeize his ſeven Sons, whom Velaſquez pretended, out of kindneſs, to accompany thither, but, indeed, with deſign to make them fall into an Ambuſh of the Moors, where they being only 200 Knights, were fain to fight againſt 10000 Moors; and after a ſtout reſiſtance, all the 200 Knights were killed, and Fernand Gonzales, one of the ſeven Children; but the ſix remaining Brothers, being re-inforced with 300 Knights that had deſerted Velaſquez, renewed the Combat again; but being Defeated, the ſix Children were taken by the Moors, and killed, and their Heads ſent to the King of Corduba, who pitying their unhappy Fate, ſet their Father at liberty. Gonzales, during his impriſonment, had got the King's Siſter with Child, who, not long after his departure from the King's Court, was delivered of a Son, whom ſhe called Mudara Gonzales, who, ſome time after, having got leave of the King to ſee his Father Gonzalo Guſtos, embraced the Chriſtian Religion; and reſolving to Avenge his Brother's Death, he ſoon after killed Ruy de Velaſquez, and cauſed his Wife Donna Lambra, to be burnt. Of this Mudara Gonzales, are deſcended the Family of the Manriquez de Lara in Spain. Malfada Manriquez the Wife of Alphonſus Henriques I. King of Portugal, was of this Houſe. Felibien Entretiens ſur les vies des Peintres.

LARACHE, or L'HARIS: See LIXE.

LAREDO, Lat. Laredum, a ſmall City or Sea-Port Town of Spain, in the Province of Biſcay, has a large and ſafe Harbour, and is Principal of the four Sea Ports, ſeven Miles from St. Andrews to the N. and twelve from Bilboa to the S. W. Near this place the Archbiſhop of Bourdeaux defeated the Spaniſh Fleet, in 1639. The Emperor Charles V. landed here, when he reſigned the Empire; and as ſoon as he came a-ſhoar, fell down upon the Earth, expreſſing his mortification to the World. The Admiral, and moſt of the Fleet, periſhed in the Haven, ſoon after his arrival.

LARES, the Houſhold-Gods of the Romans, and ſome other heathen Nations, whoſe Images they kept in their Houſes, and offered Wine and Incenſe to them. They were divided amongſt the Romans into Publick and Private, the Publick being ſuppoſed to take care of, and to be the Protectors of Cities, People, and Highways; as the Private, of particular Houſes and Families. They had Feaſts kept in honour of them, and Temples built to them. Roſini Antiq. Roman. &c.

LARIGNUM, a Caſtle near the Alps, beſieg'd by Julius Cæſar, which refuſing to yeild upon Summons, he order'd his Soldiers to ſet fire to a Wooden Tower, ſtanding before the Gate. His Orders were immediately executed, and the flame took hold ſo readily, on all parts of the Tower, and burnt ſo faſt, that they thought it would have fallen, but to their great ſurprize, it went out of it ſelf ſoon after, and then it appeared, it had received no damage: At laſt, Cæſar ſtarv'd this Garriſon into a Surrender; and having ask'd them the reaſon, why the Tower received no prejudice, they told him, it was built of Wood call'd, Larix, which was common in that Country; and that it was proof againſt Fire, it being impoſſible to burn it. The Larix was a Roſiny and Odoriferous Wood, as Vitruvius Relates, and therefore its incombuſtible quality looks like an improbability; beſides 'tis generally believ'd that the Larix of the Ancients is that we now call the Larch-Tree, which is ſo far from reſiſting of Fire, that the Founders make uſe on't to run their Iron with in the Mountains of Trent. *Vitruv. LARISSA, the principal City of Theſſalia, a Province of Macedonia, and the Country of Achilles, ſeated upon the River Peneo, 25 Miles from the Bay of Theſſalonica to the Weſt, 25 from Pharſalus to the South, and 200 from Conſtantinople to the S. W. It is now an Archbiſhop's See, and one of the moſt flouriſhing Cities of Greece, by reaſon the late Grand Signior being diſguſted with Conſtantinople, almoſt twenty Years together, kept his Court here. Dr. Edward Brown deſcribes it thus, The City of Lariſſa is pleaſantly ſeated on a riſing-ground, in the upper part whereof, ſtands the Grand Signior's Palace, upon the North the famous Mountain of Olympus, and on the South a plain Country inhabited by Chriſtians, Turks, and Jews. There is a handſome ſtone Bridge over the River, conſiſting of Nine Arches. It was extraordinary populous when the Sultan was there, yet kept peaceable by the Officers. It was Founded by Acriſius, An. Mun. 2745, and Taken from the Empire by Samuel King of Bulgaria, An. Ch. 981. Alſo another City of Theſſaly called Cremaſte.

LARISSA, or LARIS, a City in Syria, mentioned by Strabo, which is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Apamea (now Haman) and ſtands between it and Epiphania, now little inhabited, and in the hands of the Turks. Alſo an ancient City of Idumea in Palæſtine, between it and Egypt, upon the Shoars of the Mediterranean, in which Baldwin I. King of Jeruſalem died in 1118.

LARS (Tolumnius) King of the Vejenti, who engaged the Fidenates to ſide with him againſt the Romans, in 316, and was killed, An. Rom. 317. by Cornelius Coſſus, in the Battle which Mamercus Æmylius gained againſt that People. Tit. Liv. lib. 4.

LARTA, a City of Epirus, which ſtands on a Bay of the ſame Name. 'Tis ſubject to the Turks, and lies 24 Miles N. E. of Preveſa, and Eighty North Weſt of Lepanto. Long. 44. 25. Lat. 38. 30.

T. LARTIUS (Flavus) a Roman Conſul, who prudently appeaſed an Inſurrection of the Poor in Rome, in 256, from the Foundation of that City. He was by his Collegue Clælius, choſen to be the firſt Dictator that ever that City had, and appointed Spurius Caſſius to be Maſter of the Horſe, or General under him.

LASCAR, Lat. Laſcura, Bearnenſium Civitas, Beneharnum, a City of France in Bearn, with a Biſhop's See, formerly under the Archbiſhop of Eluſa, but now under the Archbiſhop of Auch. This City was deſtroyed by the Normans, about An. Ch. 845, but was re-built by the care of the Dukes of Gaſcoign, about 980, upon a little Hill, watered with great ſtore of Rivulets, the ſituation of it being very pleaſant. *Oihenart Notit. utriuſq. LASCARIS (Joannes) a Greek deſcended of an illuſtrious Family, that had poſſeſs'd the Empire of Conſtantinople, came into Italy, after the taking of that City, in 1453, and was entertained in the Family of Laurentius de Medicis, then the common Refuge of all learned Men, being about making that admirable Library ſo much extolled by the Learned. He ſent John Laſcaris twice to Conſtantinople, to procure ſome Greek Manuſcripts; at his return from thence, Lewis XII. ſent for him to the Univerſity of Paris, and honoured him with the place of his Ambaſſador to Venice. Not long after, the Cardinal de Medicis being choſen Pope in 1513, taking the Name of Leo X. Laſcaris went to Rome to congratulate his Elevation, where he died not long after of the Gout, Aged about 90 Years.

LASCARIS (Ludovicus) was of the Ancient and Noble Family of Laſcaris, and Count of Vintemille, &c. When he was yet young, he entered himſelf a Friar, and afterwards took the Order of Prieſthood; but the love he had for a certain Woman, engaged him to marry her, about 1360. At the ſame time, Joan, Queen of Naples, beſtowed upon him the Command of her Army, in her Earldom of Provence, from whence he drove the Engliſh; but Pope Urban V. being informed that he had been a Monk, and taken Orders, commanded him to quit his Wife, and to betake himſelf to the Monaſtery again; but the Queen of Naples ſtanding in need of his Service, Ordered it ſo, that the Pope's Command was never executed. Laſcaris died in 1376. *Du Verdier Van-Privas. LASTIC (John de) a French-man, the 35th Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, the Convent whereof was, at that time, at Rhodes. He ſucceeded in 1437, to Antoninus Flavianus, being great Prior of Auvergne before. He knowing that the Sultan of Egypt deſigned to beſiege Rhodes, made a League with the Emperor of Conſtantinople; and when the Sultan attacked it with a Fleet which had 18000 fighting Men on board, he defended the place ſo well, that the Sultan was fain to raiſe the Siege, after it had continued Forty Days. In 1449, Laſtic concluded a Peace with Amurath II. and renewed the ſame in 1450, with Mahomet II. who, by that Treaty, ſwore he would not moleſt the Emperor of Conſtantinople; but, notwithſtanding his Oath, beſieged that City, and took it in 1453. Seven Months after the taking of it, he ſent an Ambaſſador to Rhodes, demanding a Yearly Tribute of 2000 Ducats, threatning War in caſe of refuſal; to which the Grand Maſter anſwered, That he would never give way to the making of his Order Tributary to the Turk, and accordingly endeavoured to put the Iſland into the beſt poſture of Defence; but as he was thus employed, he was ſeized with a Sickneſs that ended his Days, in May 1454. Jacobus de Milly ſucceeded him. Boſio Hiſt. of the Order of Jeruſalem.

LASUS, a Greek Poet, the Son of Chabrinus, was born in a City of the Peloponneſus called Hermione, and the firſt amongſt the Greeks that ever writ of Muſick. He excelled alſo in that kind of Verſes which are called Dithyrambicks, becauſe they were peculiarly dedicated to the honour of Bacchus, who was ſurnamed Dithyrambus. He lived in the Time of Darius, the Son of Hyſtaſpes, viz. about the LXXth Olympiad, An. Rom. 206. and he was in ſo great Repute, that he was put in the number of the ſeven Sages of Greece, inſtead of Periander. Suid. Diog. Laert. lib. 1. *Athen. Herod. Plutarch. Voſſ. de Poet. LATERANUM, or St. JOHN of LATERAN, the chief Baſilica, or great and ſtately Cathedral Church of Rome, not long ſince repaired by Pope Innocent X. The Lateran Palace joining to it, was new built by Sixtus V. It ſtands upon Mount Cœlius, near the Gate that takes its Name from that Hill. Baronius tells us, that the place where the Church and Palace of Lateran were built, did belong to Lateranus, whom Nero cauſed to be put to death; and that probably the Emperor Conſtantine gave the Houſe that then ſtood there to Melchiades the Pope, who there celebrated the Council held in 313, upon the account of Cæcilianus of Carthage, who was perſecuted by the Donatiſts. The Emperor Conſtantine afterwards cauſed the Baſilica, or Cathedral, to be built there, which now is in being, together with the Font, that ſtill bears the Emperor's Name, furniſhing it with the richeſt Ornaments, and allowing a very conſiderable Revenue for maintaining of Lamps, and Servants, as may be ſeen more at large in the Treatiſe of Anaſtaſius, the Library-Keeper, Entituled, De magnificentia Conſtantini. The Pavement of this famous Baſilica is all of Marble, and the Roof of it is ſupported by four Rows of Pillars, the whole being gilt and figured with great Sumptuouſneſs and Artifice. This Church was burnt in 1308, under Clement V. and in 1361, under Innocent VI. but was ſtill repaired. Five General Councils have been held here, viz. In 1123, 1139, 1179, 1215, and 1513, which continued till 1517.

The I. General Lateran Council, which is the IXth General.

Calixtus II. celebrated it in 1122, according to Baronius, but according to others, on March 25. 1123. It was principally called againſt the Emperor Henry V. about the Inveſtitures to Benefices, and eſpecially to Prelatures; it was compoſed of 300 Biſhops. Diſcourſes were held in it about a War againſt the Saracens, the Holy Land being at that time in a very ill condition, after the Battel which Baldwin II. King of Jeruſalem loſt. We have 22 Canons of that Council, which Gratian, who lived at that time, hath, for the moſt part, inſerted in his Decretal. The firſt Canon is againſt Simoniacks; the ſecond and twenty firſt againſt the Clergy, who kept a ſcandalous correſpondence with Women; the fifth confirms the forbidding of Marriage to a certain Degree; the eleventh beſtows Indulgencies upon the Embracers of the Croiſade; the fifteenth is againſt falſe Coiners; the ſixteenth againſt thoſe who abuſe Pilgrims; the ſeventeenth forbids Abbots and Monks to impoſe publick Penances.

The II. General Lateran Council, commonly called the Xth General.

Pope Innocent II. convened this Council againſt the Antipope Anacletus II. and againſt Arnoldus of Breſcia, the Diſciple of Petrus Abaillardus, April 8. 1139, at which, near 1000 Prelates aſſiſted. It contains 30 Canons; the 1ſt againſt Lay-Inveſtitures; the 2d and 9th about Excommunications; the 4th about Eccleſiaſtical Habits; the 6th againſt Prieſts who kept Women; the 7th forbids hearing of Maſſes ſaid by ſuch; the 8th forbids Eccleſiaſticks and Monks to exerciſe the Profeſſion of Lawyers or Phyſicians; the 10th againſt Lay-men that take Tythes; the 13th againſt Uſurers, whom it deprives of Chriſtian Burial; the 14th likewiſe deprives thoſe of the ſame, who expoſe themſelves to fight only to ſhew their Bravery; the 15th Excommunicates the Strikers of Clergy-men; the 17th forbids Marriages of near Kindred; the 21ſt excludes the Children of Prieſts from the Prieſthood; the 23d againſt Arnoldus of Breſcia, and his Followers; the 29th againſt thoſe who made Warlike Inſtruments for the Infidels.

The III. General Lateran Council, called by ſome the XI*th General.*

This Council was held by Pope Alexander III. aſſiſted by 300 Biſhops, March 5. 1179, which was the 20th of his Papacy. The intent of this Convocation was, chiefly to croſs the Emperor Frederick I. who had oppoſed three Antipopes to the Popes of Rome, with a Deſign alſo to condemn the Opinions of the Albigenſes, under the Name of Cathari (Puritans) and the Patarines. It contains 27 Canons; the 1ſt concerns the Election of the Popes of Rome; the 2d revokes the Ordination of the Antipopes; the 3d regulates the Age of Biſhops, Curates and Archdeacons; the 5th, that no Clerk be Ordained without a Title to ſome Benefice; the 6th Orders Prelates to give notice before Excommunication, and forbids Friars to appeal from the Sentence of the Chapter, or their Superior; the 8th forbids the expectation of Benefices; the 11th againſt Clergy-men that have Women in their Houſes; the 12th forbids medling with Temporal Affairs; the 13th and 14th againſt Pluralities; the 15th Orders that Church-Goods may not be employed but for the uſe of the Church; the 16th regulates the Reſolutions of Chapters; the 18th Orders the Erecting of Præceptorial Prebends in Cathedrals; the 19th Excommunicates Secular Powers, that pretend to have Right over the Church; the 20th forbids Turnaments; the 24th forbids furniſhing the Infidels with Arms; the 25th forbids the giving of the Communion to publick Uſurers; the 26th forbids Chriſtians to live with Jews, Saracens, &c. the 27th Excommunicates the Cathari, Patarines, and other pretended Hereticks, and menaces Excommunications againſt all that defended or harboured them.

The IV. General Lateran Council.

This Council is called The Great, becauſe of the vaſt number of Prelates that aſſiſted at it. Pope Innocent III. conven'd it in 1215, and began the 11th of November. The Patriarchs of Conſtantinople and Jeruſalem aſſiſted in Perſon, and thoſe of Alexandria and Antioch by their Deputies; and beſides them, there were 71 Archbiſhops, and 340 Biſhops, and above 800 Abbots or Priors, beſides the Ambaſſadors of moſt Soveraign Princes. It was called againſt the Albigenſes, and to condemn the Opinions of Amauri, and of Abbot Joachim. It contains 70 Chapters, the moſt conſiderable whereof are as follows: The 1ſt approves the Term of Tranſubſtantiation; the 2d condemns the Errors of Abbot Joachim; from the 3d to the 9th, they treat of the way to root out Hereticks, forbid preaching without Approbation, and regulate the Inquiſition; the 11th Orders the Eſtabliſhing the Prebends for Scholars and Divines; the 12th Orders the Reformation of Religious Orders; and the 13th forbids the erecting of any new ones; the 14th is againſt the Incontinency of Clerks; the 15th appoints puniſhments to thoſe that are not ſober enough; the 16th regulates their Life and Behaviour; the 17th reſpects the Divine Office; the 19th forbids the expoſing of profane Houſhold-ſtuff or Furniture in the Churches; the 21ſt Ordains all Perſons to Confeſs, at leaſt once a Year, to their Curate, and to communicate at the Feaſt of Eaſter; the 22d Orders Phyſicians to make People ſend for Confeſſors; the 24th ſpeaks of Elections; the 25th, and following, are about the Election to Benefices; the 29th forbids Pluralities; the 30th hinders the Sons of Canons to have their Father's Benefices; the 32d and 33d, touches the Allowance of Curates; the 36th is concerning Appeals; the 46th concerning Eccleſiaſtical Privileges; the 50th and 51ſt about Marriages; the 61ſt forbids lightly to expoſe the Relicks of the Saints; the 64th is againſt Regulars, who take Money for receiving Perſons into any Religious Order; the 67th and 68th, is againſt the Uſury of the Jews.

The V. General Lateran Council.

This Council began in 1512, under Julius II. and did not end till 1517, under Leo X. It was chiefly kept in oppoſition to the Council of Piſa, which they condemned in the firſt Seſſions of it; the 9th Canon of the 9th Seſſion Orders, That Beneficed-men, who do not ſay the Divine Office, be deprived of their Benefices; and the 10th Seſſion regulates the Places where the Poor may have Money lent them. See Piſa.

Other Lateran Councils.

Pope Martin I. celebrated a Council here, Octob. 5. 649. with 105 Biſhops, where he condemned the Confeſſion of Faith, called Typus, propoſed by the Emperor Conſtans, and by Cyrus, Sergius Paulus and Pyrrhus, Monothelites. In another Council held in 1051, by Leo IX Gregory Biſhop of Verceil was Excommunicated for Adultery: And the next Year he held another, for the Canonization of Gerard Biſhop of Toul. Alexander II. celebrated one in 1063, againſt Simoniſts, upon Occaſion of Peter of Florence, accuſed of that Crime, and of Hereſie. Four Councils were kept in Lateran, under Paſchal II. to deprive the Emperors of Inveſtitures. Alexander III. in a Council held at Lateran, about 1166, Excommunicated the Emperor Frederick I. See Rome.

LATERANUS, a Heathen God, who had the care of Hearths, from Later, which ſignifies a Brick.

LATIMER (Hugh) born in Leiceſterſhire in 1475, was for ſome time Divinity-Profeſſor in Cambridge, where he taught the Proteſtant Doctrine. In King Edward VI's Time he was made Biſhop of Wincheſter; and in Queen Mary's Time condemned, together with Biſhop Ridley, to be burnt, Septemb. 16. 1555, being then aged 80 Years. This holy Biſhop, at hearing the Sentence, thanked God that he was called to glorifie him in his old Age, by that kind of Death. There are extant a Volume of his Sermons before King Edward VI. and the Dutcheſs of Suffolk. Fox's Acts and Monuments.

LATIN, the Uſe of this Language in Publick Divine Worſhip among thoſe that do not underſtand it, took its Riſe in the VIIth Century; Pope Gregory and his Succeſſors ſtriving with their utmoſt Application, to diffuſe the Roman Offices through the Weſtern Churches, tho' many of the Monks themſelves did not underſtand that Language. But the Scots, and other Britiſh Chriſtians, did abſolutely refuſe the Roman Traditions in this Age. Span. Epit.

LATINUS I. of that Name, King of the Latins or Aborigines in Italy, was the Son of Faunus. He began to Reign about A. M. 2838, 35 Years before Æneas came into Italy. Some ſay, that he oppoſed Æneas's Deſcent; but that being overcome, he made Peace with him. Afterward Æneas killed Turnus King of the Rutuli, and eſpouſed Lavinia, the only Daughter of King Latinus. Dion. Halicarn. Ant. Rom. Aurel. Victor de Orig. Gent. Rom.

LATINUS II. called Sylvius, the ſixth King of the Latins, reigned 51 Years. In his Time Præneſte, Tybur, Gabiæ, Tuſculi, Pometia, &c. and all other Cities near to Alba Longa, were reduced to Colonies. Tiberius Sylvius ſucceeded him.

LATINUS, or LATINIUS, a learned Clergy-man, born at Viterbo in 1513. He was choſen in 1573, one of thoſe that were to correct the Decretal of Gratian, about which he was employed 13 Years; and tho' he was but a ſickly Man, yet he Huſbanded his Health ſo well, that he lived till he was 80 Years of Age, and died at Rome, Jan. 21. 1593. We have ſeveral of his Works; and amongſt the reſt, Obſervationes & Emendationes in Tertullianum: Bibliotheca Sacra & Profana, ſive Obſervationes, Correctiones, Conjecturæ & variæ Lectiones, which Dominicus Macri publiſhed at Rome in 1677, at the Beginning of which Work is his Life, which the Curious may conſult. The Proteſtants accuſe him for endeavouring to ſuppreſs what was not conform to his Sentiments. Accordingly, he himſelf confeſſeth in his Biblioth. pag. 177, that he had left out the famous Epiſtle of Firmilianus of Cæſarea, in the Edition of the Works of St. Cyprian, by Manutius. See Biſhop Fell upon this Letter.

LATIUM, now Campagna di Roma, or Country of the Latins. It was at firſt of a very narrow Extent, as containing only the Land that lies between the Tyber and Cape Circelli, which is the Circæum Promontorium of the Ancients: But after that the Herniſci, the Æqui, the Volſci, and the Auſones, were comprehended under the Name of the Latins, the Bounds of the new Latium became enlarged as far as the River Garigliano, which the Latins call Liris. Rome always was the Capital of Latium, the other ancient Cities being Tibur, now Tivoli; Tuſculum, now Freſcati; Præneſte, now Paleſtrina; Aricia, Alba, Paterno, Oſtia; with the Volſci, Herniſci and Rutuli: The Modern are, Alatri, Anagni, Aquino, Gaeta, Fondi, Piperino, Sezze, Segni, Sora, Velletri, &c. This Country had Princes of its own for 543 Years, under Nineteen Kings, from Picus the Son of Saturn, to Numitor the Grandfather of Romulus.

LAUD (William) was born at Reading in Berkſhire, his Father being a principal Burgher of that Town; his Mother's Name was Web, Siſter to Sir William Web Lord Mayor of London. He was admitted Commoner in St. John's College Oxford, and took the Degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1608; and after ſeveral other Preferments, was promoted to the Biſhoprick of St. Davids in 1622. Afterwards, in 1626, to that of Bath and Wells, being made Dean of the King's Chapel the ſame Year. Two Years after Tranſlated to the Biſhoprick of London; and in 1633, was preferr'd to the Archbiſhoprick of Canterbury. His Zeal for promoting Uniformity in the Church procur'd him many Enemies, which, upon the breaking out of the Rebellion, grew ſtill more implacable, being further provok'd by the Archbiſhop's unalterable Loyalty. For theſe Reaſons, in the beginning of the Revolt, in the Reign of King Charles I. he was by the prevalence of the Faction committed to the Tower, and afterwards charg'd, by the Rebellious Parliament, with a Deſign to introduce Popery, and to reconcile the two Churches of England and Rome, with ſome other leſs material particulars. To which Articles, he made a ſubſtantial and unexceptionable Defence; but the King being lately defeated at Marſton-Moor, the Rebels thought themſelves ſecure, and proceeded to Sentence of Death againſt him: And upon the 10th of January 1644, he was murdered by the Ax on Tower-Hill, where his Behaviour was compos'd, pious, and well ſupported. This Archbiſhop was a Perſon of a Regular Converſation, very Charitable and Publick ſpirited. His Parts and Induſtry were both extraordinary, and he was well acquainted with Men as well as Books; by theſe advantages, he became both an able States-man and a good Divine. The moſt conſiderable of his Works is that againſt Fiſher, in which he very learnedly defends the Church of England againſt the Objections of his Adverſary. Cyprianus Anglicus. *F. LAVEMUND, or LAVAMUND, Lat. Lavanmunda, Oſtium Lavanti, a City of Germany, in the Lower Carinthia, upon the River Lavant, where it falls into the Drave, about two Miles from St. Andre to the South, and twelve German Miles from Pettaw to the Weſt.

LAVENHAM, a Market-Town of Wiltſhire, 73 Miles from London.

LAVENHAM, a Market-Town of Babergh-Hundred, in the County of Suſſex, ſituate upon the River Breton, and adorned with a fine Church.

LAVERNA, the Name of a Goddeſs, whom the Romans conſidered as the Protectreſs of Thieves and Robbers; and built a Temple in honour of her, near a Gate of Rome, therefore called Lavernalis. Plaut. in Aulul. Act. 3. ſc. 2d. Horat. Epiſt. 16. Lib. 1.

LAUFFEN, a Town in Swabia, and Dutchy of Wirtemburg in Germany, ſituate on the River Neckar, 8 Miles South of Hailbron, 22 North of Stugard, and 34 Eaſt of Philipsburg.

LAUFFENBURGH, a ſmall City upon the Rhine, built on a Rock, and well fortified, under the Dominion of the Houſe of Auſtria, between Schafhauſen to the Eaſt, and Baſil to the Weſt, 5 Miles from either. It was taken by the French and Swedes in the late War, but reſtored to the Emperor by the Treaty of Munſter. The Town ſtands on both ſides the River, and has communication by a good Bridge. The Stream being broke here by the Rocks, the Fall of the Water makes an hideous Noiſe; and when laden Barks come to paſs there, the Goods are taken out, and carried lower by Land, whilſt the Veſſels are let down with Ropes.

LAUGENGEN, or LAWGINGEN, Lat. Lavinga, a City of Schwaben in Germany, under the Duke of Newburgh. It has been Free and Imperial, but is now exempted. It ſtands upon the Danube, one Mile above Dilingen, and ſix beneath Ulm to the Eaſt.

LAUGHERN, a Market-Town of Derly-Hundred in the S.W. of Carmarthenſhire.

LAVINIA, or LAVIGNA, Lat. Lavinium, a City of Italy, built by Æneas after the Deſtruction of Troy; which is now a ſmall Village in Campagna di Roma, the Poſſeſſion of the Duke de Caſarini, 18 Miles from Rome, and 10 from the Tyrrhene Sea. Others are of Opinion, that the ancient Lavinium ſtood in the place where Patrica is now. And Lucas Holſtenius maintains, that Lavinium ſtood on that now called Mont di Levano.

LAVINIA, the Daughter of Latinus King of Latium, and of Amata, was promiſed to Turnus, and after married to Æneas, by whom ſhe had a poſthumous Son called Sylvius, becauſe ſhe was Delivered of him in a Wood, whither ſhe fled to avoid the Anger of Aſcanius the Son of Æneas. Dion. De concilio in quo Donatiſtæ damnati, &c. His Letters have been printed at Cambridge, in one Volume in Folio. Launoi was a good Critick, and had profited much by his Familiar Converſe with Father Sirmond.

LAURA, or LAURETTA, a young Gentlewoman of Provence, who lived in 1341, and was Famous for her Learning, Parts and Beauty; and more particularly, for the Love Petrarchus had for her. She was one of thoſe Gentlewomen that compoſed the Meetings called The Court of Love, where they anſwered curious and witty Queſtions concerning Love. Some ſay ſhe was born at Avignon; others, at a Town near to Avignon, and in the Neighbourhood of the Place of Petrarchus's Retirement. She was born June 4. 1314, and died in 1348, as 'tis ſaid, the ſame Month, Day and Hour, that Petrarchus had fallen in love with her. King Francis I. made Laura this following Epitaph for her Monument:

En petit lieu compris vous pouvez voir
Ce qui comprend beaucoup par renommée
Plume, labeur, la langue & le devoir
Furent vaincus par l'aimant de l'aimée
O Gentille Ame, etant tant eſtimée,
Qui te pourra loüer qu'en ſe taiſant?
Car la parole eſt toujours reprimée
Quand le ſujet ſurmonte le diſant.

LAURAGAIS, Lat. Lauriacus Ager, a ſmall Territory of France, in Languedoc. Caſtelnaudari is the Capital of it, and takes its Name from the Town of Laurac. It furniſhes great ſtore of Woad for dying. It lies between the Rivers Ariege and Agout, within the Mountains; and was formerly an Earldom belonging to the Earl of Auvergne, but now united to the Crown of France.

St. LAURENCE, was born at Hueſca, in the Kingdom of Arragon, and made Arch-Deacon of the Church of Rome by Sixtus II. in 260. who truſted him with the Treaſures of the Church. This was when the Emperor Valerian was engaged in a cruel Perſecution of the Chriſtians: In which, Pope Sixtus being taken amongſt others, was viſited by Laurence his Arch-Deacon, whom he charged to diſtribute the Church-Treaſures he was intruſted with, to the poor Chriſtians that hid themſelves in Subterranean Caves, from the Fury of that Perſecution. St. Laurence having performed this Command, the next Day ſaw them leading the Pope to his Martyrdom; to whom he ſaid aloud, That he had, according to his Command, diſtributed the Church-Treaſures to the Poor. The Soldiers hearing him ſpeak of Treaſures, laid hold of him; who appearing before the Emperor, he charged him to declare where thoſe Treaſures were which he had mentioned. St. Laurence demanded three Days Time to get them together, and preſent them to him: At the End thereof he preſented a great Number of poor People to the Emperor, and told him, They were the Treaſures of the Church he had ſpoken of. Valerian incenſed at this Diſappointment, ordered his Skin to be torn to pieces with Iron-Scourges, and afterwards to be whipped with Rods and Laſhes that had Lead at the End of them, and then to be ſet on the Wooden Horſe, and have all his Limbs diſlocated; and laſt of all, ordered a kind of Grid-Iron, with a ſlow Fire under it, to be made ready, upon which the Tyrant cauſed him to be laid down, and roaſted; which St. Laurence endured with ſuch Conſtancy and Unconcernedneſs as aſtoniſhed the Tyrant, and ſo chearfully rendred his Spirit to God, Aug. 10. 261. Baron. Martyrol. & Annales.

LAURENTIUS, Anti-Pope, was Arch-Deacon of the Church of St. Mary the Greater at Rome, and oppoſed to Symmachus, choſen Pope after Anaſtaſius II. in 498. which Schiſm was the Cauſe of great Diſorders in the City of Rome. To put an End to this Schiſm, both Parties referred themſelves to the Deciſion of Theodorick King of the Goths, who gave it for Symmachus: Whereupon Laurentius ſubmitted, and was made Biſhop of Nocera; but afterwards cauſing new Troubles, he was baniſhed. Baron. in Annal.

LAURIOL, a Town of France, in Dauphine, which ſome take to be the Æria of the Ancients. It ſtands upon the River Drome, between Valence and Montelimar. It ſuffered much in the Civil Wars of the XVIth. Century, having been often taken and retaken by the Romaniſts and Proteſtants. It is now newly fortified.

LAURO (John Baptiſt) of Perugia, lived under the Pontificate of Urban VIIIth. and was much eſteemed for his Genius and Learning. LAUSANNE, or LAUSANNA, Lat Lauſonium, a City of Switzerland, with an Univerſity; the Capital of the Diſtrict of Le Vault, belonging to the Canton of Bearn ever ſince 1536. whereas before it was an Imperial and free City. It is alſo a Biſhops's See, under the Archbiſhop Beſançon; but ſince this Town embraced the Reformation, the Biſhops have removed their Reſidence to Friburg, from whence it is diſtant Eight French Leagues, and Ten from Geneva, to the North Eaſt, and a ſmall diſtance from the Lake of Lemane to the North. Guilleman lib. Helvet. Stumpf. in Chron. Helvet.

LAUTREC, a ſmall City of France, in Languedoc, in the Albigeois, ſtanding on a Mountain that bears excellent Wines, two Leagues from Caſtres. It hath the Title of a Viſcounty, and its Viſcounts have been very conſiderable amongſt the Lords of Languedoc.

LAW (Canon) a Publick Regulation for the deciding Eccleſiaſtical Affairs. The Canon-Law is made up of theſe following Parts. 1. The Holy Scriptures. 2. The Conſtitution of Councils, properly call'd Canons. 3. The Decrees and Decretal Epiſtles of Popes; And 4thly. The Opinions of the Fathers: Beſides theſe conſtituent Parts, The Civil-Law is likewiſe taken in, in ſome Caſes, i. e. extracted from the Theodoſian or Juſtinian Codes, and ſometimes from the Capitularies of the ancient Kings of France. The time, in which the ſeveral Collections were put together, which make up the Canon-Law, is divided into three Diſtinctions; The 1ſt. comprehends the Old Laws, by which the Church was govern'd ſo above 1000 Years, and which is contain'd in the ancient Collections, and Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitutions. The ſecond diſtinction conſiſts of that, which the French call Cours Canon; being compos'd of Collections, which were made ſince the Year 1150 to 1483; And the third Diviſion of time takes in all the Additions made ſince the Period abovementioned, either by the Conſtitutions of New Councils, The Decrees of later Popes, or by other Proviſions which are own'd to have the force of Law in Eccleſiaſtical Matters. To ſay ſomething of the progreſs of this matter, upon each Diviſion of time; To begin with the 1ſt. with reſpect to what was Collected either in Greek or Latin: The firſt Collection of the Greeks was publiſh'd about the Year 385; The Author of the Performance being Stephen Biſhop of Epheſus, or, as others will have it, Sabinus Biſhop of Heraclea. This work took in the Canons of the two General Councils of Nice and Conſtantinople, together with thoſe made by the five Provincial Councils of Ancyra, Neo-Cæſarea, Gangra, Antioch, and Laodicea; held in Aſia much about the ſame time. The ſecond Collection was made a little after the General Council of Chalcedon, held in 458; and here moſt of the Canons of the General Council of Epheſus, and of that of Chalcedon were added to the Canons of the firſt Collection, the greateſt part of the Learned are of Opinion that this Collection was Drawn up by Stephen Biſhop of Epheſus. To this Body were added, the Canons of the Council of Sardica, the Apoſtles Canons and thoſe of St. Baſil. The third Greek Collection was order'd to be drawn up by the Council in Trullo, held at Conſtantinople in 692. This was afterwards augmented in the Year 790; ſome Canons of the IId. general Council of Nice, as Morery calls it, being added to it. The fourth Greek Collection was compil'd by Photius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, about the Year 880; beſides theſe four Greek Collections in which the Canons were Rang'd according to the Order of the Councils, or the Epiſtles of the Fathers made uſe of; beſides theſe Collections I ſay, John of Antioch made another in the Year 550, in which, the Canons were Diſpos'd into Heads according to the ſubject matter, under Fifty Titles or Diviſions; The ſame John of Antioch, being prefer'd to the Patriarchate of Conſtantinople in 554, Drew up the firſt Nomo-Canon, divided likewiſe into Fifty Titles or Heads, in which, he cites the Civil-Laws from Juſtinian's Code and Novels; i.e. ſo much of 'em, as the Canons are concern'd in. Photius drew up another Nomo-Canon, where the reſembling Laws and Canons are plac'd together for view and compariſon, about the Year 883. Arſenius a Monk of Athos, and afterwards Patriarch of Conſtantinople, made a New Nomo-Canon in 1255, and Matheus Blaſtares a Monk of St. Baſil's Order, made another in 1335: ſo much for the Greeks. And now a word of the Latin Collections, of which, the moſt conſiderable are four, The Oldeſt was drawn up by the Order of Pope Leo, in 460. The ſecond Latin Collection was made by Dionyſius Exiguus, who was likewiſe the Author of the Paſchal Cycle, and the Chriſtian Æra; this Collection was publiſh'd in 496, to which, in the Year 500, Dionyſius added a Supplement conſiſting of Popes Decrees. The third Latin Collection was made in Spain by Iſidore, Biſhop of Seville, in the Year 620. The fourth appeared in 790, under the Name of Iſidorus Peccator, or Mercator: Beſides theſe Collections, in which, the Order of time in the Councils or Decretal Epiſtles is generally obſerv'd, there have been ſeveral others drawn up, in which, the Diviſion is made, according to the diverſity of the ſubject matter, and of this kind, are thoſe drawn up by Ferrandus, Deacon of the Church of Carthage, in the Year 527, by Martin Archbiſhop of Braga in Portugal 572, by Creſconius, an African Biſhop in 670, and by Regino Abbot of Prûm, in the Dioceſs of Treves, in the Year 900; This laſt added the Civil Laws to the Canons and Opinions of the Fathers where they had any relation to 'em; ſo that, in reality, this Collection may paſs for a Nomo-Canon. About the Year 1020, Burchardus Biſhop of Wormes made a new Collection of Canons, vulgarly call'd the Decretum of Burchard, (inſtead of a Book or Collection of Decreta,) ſome likewiſe call this work Brocardica, by miſtake for Burchardica. In the Year 1100, Ivo Carnutenſis, or Biſhop of Chartes, Drew up two Bodies of Canon Law, one of which was commonly call'd the Decretum, and the other Pannormia or rather Pannomia, that is to ſay, a Collection of all the Laws. And likewiſe among the Collections of Canon-Law, may be added the Orders and Conſtitutions of Biſhops, and Pænitentials, or Books in which Pennance and Diſcipline is ſtated, as likewiſe Gregory a Spaniſh Prieſt his Polycarp, which Compiler liv'd ſome little time after Ivo Carnutenſis; and thus much for the firſt Diviſion of Time, with Reference to the Canon-Law. The ſecond Period of the Canon-Law takes in that commonly called the Curſus Canonicus. This conſiſts of three Parts, The firſt of which, contains Gratian's Decretum; the ſecond takes in the Great Decretals collected by the Order of Pope Gregory IXth. in 1230; The third comprehends the four leſſer Collections of Decretals; i. e. the Sextus, the Clementines, the Extragants of John XXII, and the common Extravagants. The Decretum of Gratian is a Collection of Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitutions, and of thoſe ancient Regulations which paſſed for Law in the Church, till the middle of the XIIth. Century. This Gratian was a Benedictin, who imploy'd 24 Years in this Work, which he Publiſh'd in the Year 1150, the Performance is divided into three Parts, the firſt of which contains 101 Diſtinctions, in which, Eccleſiaſtical Perſons are his Principal Subject: The ſecond Part contains 36 Cauſes, in which, the Matter and Form of Tryal and Sentence, is Handl'd; And the third conſiſts of five Diſtinctions, concerning Conſecration or Holy Things. (This Decretum of Gratian was Review'd and Corrected by Pope Gregory XIIIth. and a New Edition ſet forth in 1580.) After the Decretum of Gratian, there was a Collection of the Decretal Epiſtles drawn up, which were written by Popes living after Gratian's time. Bernard Circa, afterwards Biſhop of Fayenza compil'd a New Body of Canon Law in 1188. And Johannes Valenſis drew up another about 12 Years after. Peter of Beneventum finiſh'd a third Collection which was approv'd by Pope Innocent IIId. in 1210. After the IVth. Council of Lateran, held in the Year 1215, under the ſame

Pope Innocent IIId. there appeared a fourth Collection, the Author of which is not known. Tancred, Arch-Deacon of Bologne made a fifth, in the Year 1226. The ſecond Part of the Curſus Canonicus, or Courſe of Canon Law, being a Collection of the Decretal Epiſtles, drawn up by the Order of Pope Gregory IXth. takes in the Epiſtles of ſeveral Popes, and particularly thoſe Epiſtles, which were written from the Year 1150, the time in which Gratian Publiſh'd his Decree, to the Year 1230, in which this Collection of Decretals was Publiſh'd; to this ſecond Part likewiſe is added the Conſtitutions of Councils, and ſome Deciſions of the Fathers: This Collection was put in Order by Raymond De Pegnafort, the Popes Penitentiary, and is divided into five Books, The firſt Book Treats principally of the Eccleſiaſtical Law in General, and of the ſeveral ſorts of Judges who have Juriſdiction in the Church. The ſecond treats of Civil Proceſs, or the Forms of Proſecuting an Action. The third and fourth give directions about Sentence and Paſſing Judgment in Civil Matters, taking in the Caſes in which the Clergy are concerned, together with thoſe relating to Marriage. The fifth dilates upon both the Matter and Form, concerning Tryal and Judgment in Criminal Cauſes. The third Part of the Curſus Canonicus, or Courſe of Canon Law conſiſts of a Collection of new Decretals, and contains the Sextus, the Clementines, and the Extravagants: The Sextus, i. e. The Sixth Book of the Decretals was drawn up by Pope Boniface VIIIth's Order in the Year 1298: This Collection is divided into five Books, like that of Gregory IXth. the matter being thrown into the ſame Order, and divided under the ſame Heads. The Clementines were formed into a Body by Pope Clement V. Some time after the Celebration of the Council of Vienna, held in 1311, and Publiſh'd in the Year 1317, by his Succeſſor John XXIId. The Extravagants of John XXIId. are the Decretal Epiſtles of that Pope, which were ſo call'd, becauſe, being not yet inſerted into the Body of the Law, they ſeem'd as it were Out-lyers, and to Range out of the Confines of the Curſus Canonicus, which Name has continued upon 'em; afterward the Decretals of ſeveral other Popes were call'd the Common Extravagants, to the Year 1483, and in this latter Body of the Canon Law, there are more of the Conſtitutions of Pope John XXIId. than in the Collection that goes under his Name. The third Period of the Canon Law takes in the Conſtitutions of Councils and Popes made ſince the laſt Collections of the Decretals, with other Regulations which have the force of Law in Eccleſiaſtical Affairs; This laſt Diviſion of Law is either Common; i. e. as Morery ſpeaks, Receiv'd by all Catholicks, or elſe particular to ſome Community. There are two ſorts of Common Law, the one relates to Diſcipline, and the other to the Forms and Proceſs of Courts; The firſt conſiſts of the Decrees of General Councils, held ſince Clement V. and the Bulls of Popes, not yet taken in to the Body of the Law, the greateſt part of which has been put together by Laertius and John-Mary Cherubins; from whence Petrus Matheus, a Lawyer of Lyons, has extracted a Collection which he calls, the Seventh Book of the Decretals. The ſecond Part of this Common Law takes in the Forms and Regulations of the Apoſtolick Chancery, made ſince John XXIId. amounting to the Number of Seventy one, the three Principal of which are Receiv'd in France, upon the ſcore of being Founded upon Natural Equity. That Branch of the Civil Law which is call'd Proper or Particular, is that which beſides the general Law of the whole Church, is peculiar to particular Nations, Provinces, Churches, Dioceſſes, Chapters and Communities: As to France, continues Morery, That part of the Canon Law, which is particular to us, is, in the firſt place taken from the Ancient Decrees, Uſages or Cuſtoms of the Univerſal Church, being preſerved by our Fore-fathers with greater Care, than by the Neighbouring Nations; and in theſe Uſages and Regulations, that which we call the Privileges or Immunities of the Gallican Church principally conſiſts. In the ſecond place, That, which makes the Canon Law particular to France; conſiſts of Royal Ordinances made by the Kings of the third Race, either with the concurrence of the States of the Realm, or their own proper Authority, or elſe in concert with the Holy See, ſuch as the Pragmatick Sanction, The Ordinances of Orleans, Blois, and others ſo far as the Church is concerned; The Concordat, made in the Year 1516, between Pope Leo Xth. and Francis Iſt. which was concluded to ſoften that which ſtock'd the Court of Rome, in the Pragmatick Sanction: To this we may add the German Concordat, made in the Year 1447, between Pope Nicholas Vth. and the Emperor Frederick IIId. and which is ſtill obſerv'd in Lorraine and Alſace. The third Branch of Eccleſiaſtical Law, which, tho' particular to France, is not obſerv'd all the Kingdom over, is made up of the Canons of late Provincial Councils, Synodal Conſtitutions, and Regulations of Corporations or Communities. Doujat Hiſtoire du Droit Canonique. There is a new Edition of the Body of Canon Law, and the Decretals, printed in 1687, with the Notes and Corrections of Petrus and Franciſcus Pithæus, two Eminent Lawyers, printed from an Original in the Library of Monſieur le Pellitier Miniſter of State, Comptroller General of the Finances, and great Grandſon to Petrus Pithæus; This Edition is printed at Paris by D. Thierri.

LAW, or FRENCH-LAW, are the Laws and Cuſtoms by which Juſtice is Adminiſtred in France. Before the Franks, who came from Germany, enter'd Gaul, i. e. before the Vth. Century, the Roman Laws were the Meaſure of Right and Wrong, in that Country, being likewiſe continued under the Merovian or firſt Line of the French Kings, tho' with ſome mixture of the Conſtitutions of the Franks. Afterwards the ſecond, or Carlovinian Line made their Capitulary Ordinances, but the diſorders of the Xth. Century ſo embarraſs'd, and weaken'd theſe Laws, that, at the beginning of the third or Capetian Line of the French Kings, the Laws had ſo far loſt their Authority, that there was nothing remaining, but floating and uncertain Uſages, which gave beginning to thoſe different Cuſtoms, which have ſince been Reform'd, and ſtated in writing by Publick Authority. The Law, now obſerv'd in France, conſiſts partly of particular Ordinances, and Cuſtoms, and partly of the Jus Romanum, or the Civil Law, which is current within the Territories, call'd the Country of Written Law; i. e. in Provence, Dauphine, and Languedoc; but elſewhere this Law goes no farther than the Reaſon of it will carry it, having no Authority in the Cuſtomary Provinces; i. e. where the Jus Conſuetudinarium, or Common Law prevails, as in Normandy, Picardy, &c. And beſides, in theſe places, the Civil Law is only made uſe of as a Supplement, and in Caſes where the Proviſions of thoſe Provinces do not reach home. To trace the French Laws to their Original, we are to obſerve, that the Roman Law Practic'd in Gaul before the Vth. Century, was not that ſet forth by the Emperor Juſtinian; for that was not Publiſh'd till a Hundred Years after the firſt Eruption and Conqueſt of the Franks; i. e. not till the VIth. Century. Before which time, the Laws in Gaul were made up of the Imperial Conſtitutions, Collected in the Gregorian, Hermogenian and Theodoſian Codes: Property was likewiſe determin'd, and Juſtice Adminiſter'd partly by the Opinions and Reports of thoſe Lawyers, whoſe Books were Authoriz'd and made Law by the Theodoſian Code: The Names of theſe Lawyers were, Papinianus, Paulus Caius, Ulpianus, Modeſtinus, together with others, whoſe Authorities were cited by theſe; i. e. Scævola, Sabinus, Julianus and Marcellus; Under this Form and in this State, the Roman Law was receiv'd in Gaul to the Year 450, but the Barbarians, who, ſoon after, ſettled themſelves there, brought new Laws a long with them: Theſe Laws, or Cuſtoms of theirs were Collected into one Volume, under the Title of the Code of the Ancient Laws, comprehending the Laws of the Viſigoths, an Edict of Theodorick King of Italy, the Burgundian Laws, the Salique Law, (which was that of the Franks) the Law of the Almaines, (i. e. of the People of Alſatia and the upper Palatinate,) the Laws of the Bavarians, the Ripuarian and Saxon Laws, and the Laws of the Angli and Friſons; to theſe we may add, the Laws of the Lombards, (which are much more conſiderable than thoſe above mention'd,) The Capitularies of Charlemagne, and the Conſtitutions of the Kings of Naples and Sicily: And here it is ſufficient to mention only thoſe Laws, which relate moſtly to France, the moſt Ancient of which, are the Laws of the Viſigoths, who poſſeſſed Spain and a great part of Aquitain in Gaul; Theſe were firſt couch'd in writing by Evarix who began to Reign in the Year 466, but being ſuted and made only for the Goths, his Son Alaricus got an Abridgment of the Theodoſian Code, extracted by Anianus his Chancellor, for the Uſe of the Romans, who publiſh'd it at Aire in Gaſcoigny, with ſome Explanations upon it, by way of Gloſs: This Abridgment was allow'd as Authentick by the conſent of the Biſhops and Nobility in the Year 506. Afterwards, there was another Extract made from this Code, which was call'd Scintilla. The Gothick Law having been enlarg'd by the following Kings, there was a Body of it made and divided into XII Books: This Collection, call'd, The Book of the Gothick Law, was preſented to the Biſhops in the Council of Toledo held in 693, who approv'd and confirm'd it. This Gothick Law continued in Languedock a great while after the Government of the Goths was deſtroyed, as appears by the IId Council of Troyes, held under Pope John VIII. in the Year 878. The Burgundian Law was Reform'd by Gondebaud, one of their laſt Kings, who publiſh'd a Body of it at Lyons in 501, to which there were made ſome Additions as far as the Year 520, i. e. Ten or Twelve Years before the Fall of the Burgundian Kingdom. And almoſt a Quarter of all France being under the Burgundian Dominions, from hence it comes to paſs, that a great part of the French Law is deriv'd from them. As to the Salique Law, which was particular to the Franks, the Preface of it ſhows, that it was written before they had paſs'd the Rhine; which is further confirm'd by the Places of their Meeting, and the Names of the four Sages, who drew it up, therein mentioned: But, to ſpeak truth, the Credibility of this Hiſtory is none of the beſt, all that we know for certain, is, That the Kings Childebert and Clotharius, Sons and Succeſſors of Clovis, drew up theſe Cuſtoms in Writing, in which, they aboliſh'd all the Remains of Paganiſm. There are two Copies extant of this Salique Law, which, tho' different in Expreſſion agree in Senſe. The oldeſt Copy, and which was firſt Printed, makes uſe, in moſt of its Articles, of thoſe barbarous Words, which ſignify the Places where every Publick Regulation was made, together with the Sum of the Fine, or Forfeiture for every Treſpaſs and Fault. The other Copy is that which is call'd, The Edition of Charlemagne, and is inſerted in the Code of the Old Laws. To this Salique Law, we may add that of the Ripuarians, the one being almoſt altogether the ſame with the other. Some People are of the Opinion, that the Name of Ripuarians, and that of Salian's, belong equally to the Franks, and are but two words, to ſignify the ſame thing: However, in the Salique Law, the Franks and Ripuarians are mention'd as a diſtinct People. And thus we have had a view of the Law which was current in France, under the Kings of the Firſt Line. To Sum up the whole in a word, The Salique Law was obſerv'd by the Franks; The Gombette, or Burgundian Law, by the People of that Nation. The Goths, who remain'd in great numbers in the Provinces beyond the Loire, were govern'd by the Gothick Law, and all the reſt by the Civil or Roman. The Eccleſiaſticks likewiſe, who at that time o'th' Day had a very great Intereſt, made uſe of the Civil Law, of what Nation ſoever they were: And in Caſes, where the particular Laws of the Cuſtomary Provinces were ſhort and ſilent, there they apply'd to the Civil or Roman Law, which, in ſuch Omiſſions, was a ſort of Common Law through all France. The Conqueſts of the Franks, Goths and Burgundians, being at laſt all brought under the Government of Charlemagne, this Prince ſuffer'd every diſtinct Nation to be govern'd by their own Laws. Purſuant to this, in the Year 788, he reviv'd the Theodoſian Code, which he publiſh'd from the Copy of Alaricus King of the Goths; and in the Year 798, he publiſh'd the Salique Law, with ſeveral additional Articles. Lewis the Debonnaire likewiſe, made ſome Add itions to it in 823. And thus, under the Kings of the Second Line, the ſame Laws were kept up, which had been obſerv'd under the Firſt, only the Capitularies or Ordinances made at the Meeting of the Eſtates, were added to the former; which ſupplemental Proviſions made in the Time of Charlemagne, Lewis the Debonnaire, Charles the Bald, Lewis the Stammerer, Carloman, and Charles the Simple, are ſtill remaining. And thus the Reader has a Summary View of the Ancient French Law. The New or Modern Law had its beginning in the Xth Century, for then the Diſorders of the Kingdom gave occaſion to the ſetting up of new Cuſtoms; Thoſe that were the moſt powerful, making themſelves Lords of Territories, Uſurping the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, and forcing thoſe under them upon the payment of Services and Acknowledgments, which had never been heard of before: Beſides, the Eccleſiaſticks ſtretch'd their Juriſdiction to Secular Affairs, and made the Canon Law part of the Municipal. In the XIIth Century, the Roman or Civil Law was taken in to that of particular Provinces, and Taught publickly at Montpelier and Toulouſe; but notwithſtanding the Civil Law was read in the Publick Schools, yet it had not generally the Force of Law, as appears by the Declaration of King Philip the Fair, having no more than the Authority of written Reaſon to ſupply the Defects of Ordinances and Cuſtoms, when they did not come up to the Caſe in Queſtion, which Method is ſtill obſerv'd. And here it may not be improper to ſay ſomething of the Drawing up theſe Cuſtoms and Uſages of particular Provinces, in Writing. At firſt the Practice was to prove a particular Cuſtom, by Witneſs and Inqueſt; but afterwards it was found convenient to ſet them down in Writing, which Method was begun in the XIIth Century, and reviv'd in the XVth, under the Reign of Charles VII. who, after having driven the Engliſh out of France, Projected a Deſign of Reducing all the particular Cuſtoms of the Country to one general one, and to put them in Writing, in order to reconcile them, and bring them up to a ſingle and uniform Body of Law. Du Moulin informs us, that the Approbation and Affirmance of the Cuſtoms then made, was only by way of Proviſion, That the People in the mean time might have ſomething certain in the Law to depend on, till the General Reformation could be effected. Lewis XI. who ſucceeded Charles VII. had an intention to bring his Kingdom to the uſe of the ſame Laws, Weights and Meaſures, as Comines Reports, but this Deſign was never executed. As to the Ordonances of the Kings, which are the principal and moſt conſiderable part of the French Law, we may obſerve, in general, that theſe Ordonances relate chiefly to the Government, and Adminiſtration, The Prerogative Royal, The Power and Juriſdiction of Officers, and the manner of proceeding in Courts of Juſtice, there being not much in theſe Ordonances for the Deciding of private Diſputes, and difficulties ariſing about Property. Hiſtoire du Droit François à Paris chez Etienne Loyſon.

The ROMAN, or CIVIL LAW. Under this Denomination, we are to underſtand the Laws made by the Romans for the Support of their Government, and the Adminiſtering Juſtice to private Perſons. Romulus, who built Rome, gave the firſt beginning to theſe Regulations in his Reges Curiatæ, ſo call'd, becauſe they were made by the conſent of a General Meeting of the People, divided into thirty Parts or Wards, call'd Curiæ. The other Kings, who ſucceeded him, made ſeveral Laws during their reſpective Reigns, which, in all, laſted 244 Years. Theſe Laws, being drawn into a Body by Sextus Papyrius, in the 245th Year of Rome, the Collection was call'd, Jus Papyrianum. But theſe Laws, being ſoon after Repeal'd, by the Lex Tribunitia, there are none of theſe Royal Laws to be met with, in the Books of the Jus Romanum. About the Year of Rome 303, there were Ten Learned Men pitch'd upon to Travel to the Republicks of Greece, and to tranſcribe all the Laws which they believ'd ſerviceable to their own Government. Theſe Ten Men, call'd Decem-viri, made Ten Laws, to which the Year after they added two more. Theſe Laws being engraven upon Plates of Ivory, and hung up in publick Places of the Town, were call'd, The Laws of the Twelve Tables. But, notwithſtanding this Publication, the People were oblig'd, in ſeveral Caſes, to apply to the Lawyers for Explanation and Direction; whoſe Opinions, upon Caſes Put, being approv'd by Cuſtom, came, at laſt, to be call'd Law. Much about the ſame time, there were Forms of Proceſs ſettled, for the grounding of Actions, and ſtating the Methods of Proſecution; and theſe they call'd Actions of Law. Theſe Forms being publiſh'd by Cn. Flavius, made them be call'd The Flavian Civil Law. Some time after, Sextus Ælius wrote another Book of Actions, or Forms of Proceſs, which were call'd, Jus Ælianum. And thus, at that time o'th' Day, the Roman Law was made up of The Twelve Tables, The Civil Law, and, as they call'd it, The Actions of the Law. The People of Rome falling afterwards into a Miſ-underſtanding with the Senate, and retiring to Mount Aventine, made, during this Separation, Laws call'd Plebiſcita, which were afterwards receiv'd by the whole Commonwealth. After the People or Plebeians had yielded the Senate the Power of making Laws, the Senatus Conſulta appear'd, i. e. The Ordonances or Statutes made by the Senate. To theſe, in the Year 387 of Rome, were added the Edicts of Prætors, who were Magiſtrates, choſen every Year for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, whoſe Edicts or Decrees were call'd, Jus Honorarium, Julianus, an Eminent Lawyer, made a Collection of theſe Decrees, which was call'd, The Perpetual Edict, and approv'd by the Emperor Adrian in the Year 130, according to the Chriſtian computation. The Form of the Roman Government being chang'd a little before the Birth of our Saviour, the Authority of making Laws devolv'd upon the Emperors, whoſe Conſtitutions were drawn into two Codes, by Gregorius and Hermogenes, two learned Lawyers, under the Reign of Diocleſian, in the Year 290. Theſe two Collections, call'd, The Gregorian and Hermogenian Code, took in the Imperial Conſtitutions, from Adrian to Conſtantine the Great. The Emperor Theodoſius the Younger, Order'd a third Collection to be drawn up, call'd, The Theodoſian Code, in which, all the Conſtitutions of the ſucceeding Emperors, from Conſtantine to himſelf, were inſerted. The Writings likewiſe, and Opinions of ſome Eminent Lawyers, made part of the Roman Law: For, ſince the Reign of Auguſtus, there were ſeveral of that Profeſſion nam'd by the Emperors, to give their Judgment upon Caſes Put, whoſe Reſolutions, upon the Point, were look'd upon as Law, becauſe they were Authoriz'd by the Princes Commiſſion to give their Opinions. The moſt conſiderable of theſe Lawyers, were Publius Papyrius, Appius Claudius, Sempronius, Sextus Ælius, Q. Mutius Scævola, Ateius Capito, Antiſtius Labeo, Papinianus, Ulpianus, Junius Paulus, Pomponius, Modeſtinus Africanus, &c. In the Year of Our Lord 530, the Emperor Juſtinian perceiving the Civil Law very confus'd, Order'd a Review of it, that the inſignificant part of it ſhould be cut off, and put it into the method and condition it is in at preſent. In this great Work, he employ'd the ableſt Lawyers of his Time; the Names of which were, Tribonianus, Conſtantinus, Theophilus, Dorotheus, Anatolius, Cratinus, with ſome others. This Committee, after having ſelected what was moſt uſeful in the XII Tables, in the Plebiſcita, and Senatus Conſulta, in the Edicts of Prætors, the Reſolutions of Eminent Lawyers, the Conſtitutions, or Reſcripts of Emperors; after having done this, I ſay, they divided the Body of Law into Four Books, viz. The Digeſt, The Inſtitutes, The Code, and The Novels. The Digeſt, otherwiſe call'd the Pandects, is a Collection which contains the Old Law together with the Reſolutions of Eminent Lawyers. The Inſtitutes contains the Elements or Principles of the Roman Law. The Code, is a Collection of all the Conſtitutions, from Adrian to Juſtinian (for there are few Imperial Conſtitutions older than Adrian,) ſo that it takes in the three Codes, the Gregorian, Hermogenian, and Theodoſian. It was call'd the Juſtinian Code, from that Emperor's Name, who got it drawn up. The Novels, is a Supplemental Book to the Code, and contains the Conſtitutions of Juſtinian, which were made after the Code was publiſh'd. Theſe Novels are faithfully Tranſlated from the Greek into Latin, and commonly call'd Authentica, to ſhew the exactneſs of the Verſion, and to diſtinguiſh them from the Epitome of Julianus, Conſul of Conſtantinople, and likewiſe from thoſe which Irnerius a Lawyer inſerted into the Code in the Reign of the Emperor Frederick I. in the Year 1155; which Performance is often, not very carefully and judiciouſly managed. The Civil Law of the Romans, being put in this good condition by the care of the Emperor Juſtinian, took place only in Greece, Illyricum, and part of Italy, becauſe the Goths, Lombards, Vandals, Franks, and other barbarous Nations, had poſſeſs'd themſelves of the Weſtern Parts of the Roman Empire. About the Year 868, the Emperor Baſilius made an Abridgment of the Juſtinian Code, and his Son Leo, the Philoſopher, publiſh'd the Baſilica, in 888, which paſs'd for Law, till the ruin of the Eaſtern Empire, which happen'd in the Year 1453, Juſtinian's Body being no longer read in the Schools, nor pleaded at the Bar in Conſtantinople. After theſe Baſilica, the Emperor Leo ſet forth a hundred and thirteen new Conſtitutions, which treat of ſeveral things undecided by the Laws of Juſtinian. The Greek Lawyers made Gloſſes and Explanations upon the Baſilica, but not ſo Voluminous as thoſe of the Latins upon the Civil Law. Michael Attaliottes, a Lawyer, who flouriſh'd in the Year 1070, publiſh'd another Abridgment of the Juſtinian Code, which he call'd, The Abridgment Abridg'd, i. e. An Abridgment of what Baſilius the Emperor had ſet out before. About the ſame time, Michael Pſellus made another little Collection of the Baſilica (afterwards Tranſlated by Leunclavius in the Year 1580.) And laſtly, in 1143, Conſtantine Herminopulus furniſh'd out another Abridgment of the whole Law, which he call'd, Promptuarium: But the taking of Conſtantinople by Mahomet II. in 1453, put an end to the Eaſtern Empire, and to the uſe of the Laws obſerv'd there. And thus we have ſeen the State of the Roman or Civil Law in Greece: As for Italy, as has been remarked already, it was little obſerv'd there for the ſpace of 506 Years, after the Death of the Emperor Juſtinian: For the Goths made themſelves Maſters of Italy about Sixty Years after the Reign of that Emperor, and the Lombards, having chas'd the Goths out of that Country, Reign'd there about 200 Years. During this time, the Viſigoths and Vandals held the Government of Spain; and the Goths, Huns, and other Barbarous People ſeiz'd upon part of Gaul. Charlemagne, having Conquer'd Deſiderius King of the Lombards in the Year 774, was choſen Emperor of the Romans, by the Senate and People of Rome, in the Pontificate of Leo III. This Emperor had then a deſign of Reviving the Practice of the Roman or Civil Law, but the Men of that Profeſſion could not furniſh him with a Copy of what Juſtinian had Publiſh'd; but at laſt, in the Year 1137. in the Reign of Lotharius II. Emperor of the Weſt, and in the Popedom of Innocent II. they found a Copy of the Digeſts at Amalfi in Puglia, which was call'd the Florentine Pandects, for a reaſon to be given by and by. The Emperor Lotharius and Pope Innocent, joyning in a War againſt Roger, King of Sicily and Naples, deſir'd Aſſiſtance from the then Republick of Piſa. In the Courſe of this War, the Town of Amalfi being taken by Storm, and Plunder'd, Juſtinian's Copy abovemention'd, being found there, was given to the Piſan's, for the good Services they had done upon this occaſion. Theſe Books remain'd in the Hands of this Common-wealth, till they were Conquer'd by the Florentines, who carried off the Pandects, from Piſa to Florence; where they are ſtill carefully preſerv'd, as the only, or at leaſt the moſt Authentick Original of the Roman Law. After the diſcovery of theſe Pandects, the Emperor Lotharius II. ſet forth an Edict, Commanding the Roman or Civil Law to be taught in Publick Schools, and that Cauſes ſhould be Try'd by it; and, in the Year 1150, gave Irnerius leave to Read upon't, in the Univerſity of Bononia, after whom, it was taught and cultivated in the ſame Place, by ſeveral Eminent Profeſſors, as, Placentinus, Azo, Accurſius, &c. There have been likewiſe, a great many other famous Civilians in ſeveral Parts of Europe, as Bartholus at Piſa, and Perugia; Baldus at Bononia and Pavia; Alciat, Coverruvius, Antonius Auguſtinus, &c. The moſt Eminent Civilians in France, are, Budæus, Duarenus, du-Moulin, Cujacius, Hottoman, Briſſonius, Tiraqueao, Chopinus, Pithaus, &c. The Roman or Civil Law was not Receiv'd in Germany till the XVth. Century, but ſince that time, it has made its way farther there than elſewhere, upon the account of the Emperors of this Country; ſtiling themſelves the Succeſſors of the Roman Emperors. Hiſtoire du Droit Romain, *A Paris Chez H. LAWENBURG, or LAWENBORCH, a Town of Germany, in the Circle of Upper Saxony, and Dutchy of Pomerania, ſubject to the Elector of Brandenburg. It ſtands near the Baltick, 35 Miles Weſt of Dantzick.

LAWENBURG, Lat. Lawenburgum, a Town of the Lower Saxony, upon the River Elbe, Eight German Miles from Hamburg to the Eaſt, the Capital of a Dukedom of the ſame Name, under the Dominion of its own Duke, of the ancient Family of the Dukes of Saxony. It lies between the Dukedoms of Lunenburg, Mecklenburg and Holſtein.

LAXI, a Market-Town of the Iſle of Man, ſeated upon a Bay, from hence called Laxi-Bay, on the Eaſt Side of the Iſland.

LAZACH, a Kingdom of Arabia Fœlix, with a City of the ſame Name, at preſent in the Poſſeſſion of the Turks.

LAZARUS, the Brother of Mary Magdalen and Martha, whom our Saviour raiſed from the Dead after he had been four Days in the Grave. The Tradition of the Churches of Provence tells us, That after the Death of Jeſus Chriſt, Mary Magdalen, Martha, Lazarus and Maximinus were expoſed to the Sea in an old torn Veſſel; which arriving at Marſeilles, Lazarus was made the firſt Biſhop of that Church.

St. LAZARUS, an Order of Knighthood, which the Weſtern Chriſtians eſtabliſhed when they were in Poſſeſſion of the Holy Land. Their Employment was, to entertain Pilgrims in certain Houſes expreſly built for them, and to conduct them on their Way, and protect them from the Mahometans. The Popes beſtowed great Privileges, and the Chriſtian Princes large Poſſeſſions upon them. King Lewis VII. ſurnamed The Younger, beſtowed upon them the Land of Boigni, near Orleans, where the Knights of St. Lazarus ſeated themſelves after that the Chriſtians were driven out of the Holy Land. But the Knights of Maltha got Pope Innocent VIII. to ſuppreſs this Order, and to unite it to theirs. Yet King Henry IV. in 1608. obtained a Bull of the Pope for the re-eſtabliſhing of the ſaid Order. Theſe Knights, amongſt other Privileges, had leave to Marry, and to enjoy Penſions out of Conſiſtorial Benefices. This Order hath been farther encouraged by the preſent French King Lewis XIV. This Order is the ſame with that of St. Maurice in Savoy, and of St. Lazarus in Italy. *Albert le Mire Orig. des ord. milit. Favin. Hiſt. des ord. mil. LEA, a River which hath its ſource in Hartfordſhire, and afterwards ſerves as boundary betwixt Eſſex and Middleſex. In Hartfordſhire it waters Hartford and Ware; and in Eſſex, Waltham-Abbey.

LEÆNA, a Courtezan of Athens, who lived in the LXVIth. Olympiad. She was conſcious to the Conſpiracy of Harmodius and Ariſtogiton againſt Piſiſtratus, and being interrogated thereupon, ſhe bit off her Tongue, rather than ſhe would diſcover what ſhe knew of it. The Athenians affected with this extraordinary Action, erected, in honour of her, the Statue of a Lioneſs without a Tongue.

LEAGUE, called The Holy League, a Party or Conſpiracy formed in France, in 1576, for Defence as was pretended, of the Romiſh Religion. The firſt who laid the Deſign of a General League of the Papiſts, under another Head than the King, was the Cardinal of Lorrain, whilſt he was at the Council of Trent. He repreſented to the chief Men of that Aſſembly, and, by them, to the Pope, that for the maintaining of the Popiſh Religion, it would be neceſſary to form a League of many Princes and Lords, of whom the King of Spain was to be one, and the Pope Protector of it, which Princes, ſo Leagued, were to chuſe a Head, to whom all the Romaniſts ſhould be bound to obey. This Deſign being approved of, they were about chuſing the Duke of Guiſe to be Head of the League, at the ſame time that the News was brought of his death. The Cardinal did not quit his Deſign for all this, but expected Ten or Eleven Years, till his Nephew, the young Duke of Guiſe, was in a condition to take upon him the ſame Charge, at which time, he propounded the ſame thing again to the Pope and King of Spain, who both complied with the Propoſal, tho' upon different Motives, the one of a deſire to exterminate the Proteſtants, the other in hopes to be a gainer by the Diſorders, which this League could not fail to produce in France. The Cardinal of Lorrain dying before the Enterpriſe was compleated, the Duke of Guiſe was unwilling to quit the Deſign, and therefore in 1576, cauſed a Project to be made of the League, which he got ſecretly diſperſed amongſt the moſt zealous Papiſts, or thoſe who were known to be favourers of the Houſe of Guiſe; and particularly he confided much in the Sieur d' Humieres, Governor of Peronne, who, finding that the XII. Articles, of which the League conſiſted, did too openly attack the Royal Authority, he inſtead thereof made XVIII. other Articles, which were ſo worded, as if the League were only deſigned for the King's Service, the Subſtance whereof was to this effect, viz. That all Obedience ſhould be rendred to the King, That they promiſed to maintain the Exerciſe of the Romiſh Religion. That the Nobility and Gentry ſhould either ſerve in Perſon, or provide Men, Horſes and Arms; and that the Clergy and Commons ſhould contribute to the Expences of the League, according to the Taxes that ſhould be regulated for that purpoſe. This Act was ſigned at Peronne, Feb. 13. by near 200 Gentlemen, and Officers of the Province; and the Example of thoſe of Picardy, was ſoon followed in all the Provinces of the Kingdom. But he that declared himſelf the higheſt for that Party, was the Lord of Tremouville, who was afterwards Governor of Poitou. In November the ſame Year, the States of the Kingdom aſſembled at Blois, prohibited the Exerciſe of the Proteſtant Religion, they of the League proving the ſtrongeſt Party there. The King ſeeing that the Leaguers, rather endeavoured to weaken his Authority, than to cruſh the Proteſtants, declared he would himſelf be Head of the League, to make himſelf Maſter of the Party. But being a Prince that did not much affect War, he granted the Proteſtants the Edict of Poictiers, in 1578, which permitted them the Exerciſe of their Religion, according to the fore-going Edicts of Pacification. The Leaguers, who had not dared to undertake any thing, ſince the King had named himſelf their Head, declared themſelves all on a ſuddain, in 1581, that they took the Duke of Guiſe to be their Head; their Pretence for this Innovation, being the Alliance the King of France had made with the King of Navarre, who, according to their ſtile, was an Heretick. The Duke of Guiſe drew the Cardinal of Bourbon into the League, in hopes of the Crown, and became more powerful by the conjunction of the Pariſian League, called The Seize or Sixteen. This particular League was begun by a Citizen of Paris called Roche-blond, who form'd a Party, the Heads whereof were about Forty; but becauſe they diſtributed to ſome of them, the ſixteen Quarters or Wards of the City, to execute what had been reſolved in their Council, they were called The Sixteen. In 1584, the Duke of Guiſe withdrew himſelf from the Court to his Government of Champaign, and came to Joinville, where he met with the Envoys of the Cardinal of Bourbon, and King of Spain; and there it was concluded, That the Cardinal ſhould ſucceed to the Crown, in caſe the King died without Iſſue, in order to the excluding of all Heretical Princes; that the King of Spain ſhould furniſh every Month 50000 Piſtoles, towards the Charge of the League; and, that on the other hand, the Leagued-Princes ſhould aſſiſt his Catholick Majeſty, to reduce his rebellious Subjects of the Low-Countries. The War began in 1585, but ſome Months after, the King granted the League an Edict, by which he revoked all thoſe which had been made in favour of the Proteſtants, and prohibited the Exerciſe of their Religion. Immediately after the publication of this Edict, the War broke forth throughout all France; for the King of Navarre, the Prince of Conde, and all the Proteſtant-Party, got over to their Side the Mareſchal Duke of Montmorency, Governor of Languedoc, and Head of the Royaliſts; which were a Party of diſcontented Papiſts, who proteſted they would ſupport the Royal Authority, againſt thoſe who were the Authors of Commotions and Diſorders in the State. Pope Sixtus V. concerned himſelf for the League, and thundered out his Bull of Excommunication againſt the King of Navarre, and the Prince of Conde, whereby he declared their Eſtates forfeited, and themſelves incapable to enjoy the Succeſſion of any Principality whatſoever. The King of Navarre on the other hand, got his Proteſtation againſt the ſaid Bull affixed at Rome, and fortified his Party, in order to the maintaining his own Rights. In 1587, the Proteſtant-Princes of Germany, raiſed a powerful Army to aſſiſt their Brethren of France; but theſe Forces were Defeated, and obliged to retire, which made the Leaguers much more proud and peremptory. In July 1588, the King publiſh'd an Edict in favour of the Leaguers, which was called The Edict of Re-union, by which he declared that he would exterminate Hereſie out of his Kingdom, and exclude all Heretick Princes from the Succeſſion, in caſe he ſhould die without Iſſue-Male. Some time after, the Aſſembly of the Eſtates was kept at Blois, where the King perceived the Duke of Guiſe had a Deſign to be more powerful than himſelf; and that the greateſt part of the Deputies in the Provinces, had been choſen by the underhand-dealing of the Duke's Creatures in the ſeveral Provinces. The Preſidents of each Order, viz. The Cardinals of Bourbon and of Guiſe, for the Clergy; the Earl of Briſſac, and the Baron of Magnac, for the Nobility; and the Provô de Merchants: or the Mayor of Paris, la Chapelle-Martau, for the Third Eſtate, were wholly of his Party. And no ſooner had the King read the Reſolutions of the three Orders, but he found that they manifeſtly tended to the imparing of the Royal Authority; and thereupon reſolved to rid himſelf of the Duke of Guiſe, and the Cardinal his Brother, as he did accordingly. The death of theſe two furiouſly incenſed the Leaguers, who to authoriſe them in their Rebellion, obtained a Decree, Jan. 7. 1589, from ſome Doctors of the Sorbonne, to which the others were forced to Subſcribe, to avoid the fury of the Leaguers; the Sum whereof was, That the French were diſcharged from the Oath of Fidelity and Obedience they had ſworn to the King, and that they might take up Arms in Defence of the Roman Religion, but the Sorboniſts, when at liberty, revoked it. The ſixteenth of the ſaid Month, the Duke of Aumale, Governor of Paris, and the Council of Sixteen, diſtruſting the Parliament, and being reſolved to ſeize thoſe of them they were ſuſpicious of, John le Clerc called Buſſi, formerly an Advocate of that Parliament, and at that time the Governor of the Baſtile, undertook the execution of it, and committed the firſt Preſident Achilles du Harlay to the Baſtile, together with the Preſidents Potier, de Blanc-meſnil, and de Thou- (Thuanus) and the moſt ancient Councellors of that Court, whoſe Places were filled up by the Leaguers. Some time after, the Duke of Mayenne, Brother to the Duke of Guiſe, came to Paris, and endeavoured to weaken the Council of Sixteen, to make himſelf the more powerful, and took to himſelf the Title of Lieutenant General of the State and Crown of France. The King, to oppoſe this Faction, united himſelf with the King of Navarre, and publiſhed a Declaration ſignifying to his Subjects, that this Union ſhould be no prejudice to the Roman Religion. After the Death of King Henry III. in 1589, the King of Navarre ſucceeded to the Throne, under the Name of Henry IV. who, by little and little, made himſelf Maſter of the Kingdom. At firſt, the Duke of Mayenne, Head of the League, cauſed the Cardinal de Bourbon to be proclaimed King, under the Name of Charles X. in January 1590. Pope Sixtus ſent Cardinal Cajetan, his Legate, to France, with expreſs Order to chuſe, for King, one that was a good Catholick. And, at the ſame time, Mendoza, the King of Spain's Ambaſſador, ſupported by the Faction of Sixteen, made ſome Propoſals that ſeemed very advantageous to the Leaguers, demanding only in requital, that the King his Maſter might be ſolemnly Declared Protector of the Kingdom of France. The Duke of Mayenne, to aſſure the Title of King to the Cardinal de Bourbon, cauſed him to be Proclaimed in all the Cities of the League, ſtill retaining the Title of Lieutenant-General of the Crown; and ſoon after put himſelf into the Field, whilſt the Pope's Legate at Paris, did his utmoſt Endeavours to hinder Henry IV. from being acknowledged King. But, at laſt, the famous Battle of Yvry in 1590, was fatal to the League, where, almoſt, all their Forces were deſtroyed. Soon after, Henry IV. beſieged Paris, where, to encourage the People to hold out the Siege, above 1200 Eccleſiaſticks and Religious of the ſtricteſt Orders, as Carthuſians, Minims, and Capuchins liſted themſelves, marching in order through the Streets, with Soldier's Arms under their ordinary Habits, and having William Roſe, the Biſhop of Senlis, at the Head of them, with a great Standard marching before him, having the Images of our Saviour upon the Croſs, and the Bleſſed Virgin upon't. The King finding himſelf unable to take Paris, went and laid Siege to Chartes, in 1591. Pope Gregory XIV. at the ſame time, declared himſelf for the League, and the King of Spain relying on the Faction of the Sixteen, propounded the chuſing of the Infanta Iſabella, his Daughter, and Grand-daughter of Henry II. of France, Queen of France. But the Duke of Mayenne broke this Deſign, by hanging ſome of the Heads of the Faction. The Popes Innocent IX. and Clement VIII. alſo favoured the Leaguers, who obliged the Duke of Mayenne to Convene the Eſtates, in 1593, after the Death of the Cardinal de Bourbon, to Elect a new Catholick King; but at the opening of the Aſſembly he declared, That he would put a ſtop to the new intended Election, becauſe he found that the ſtrong Party which the King of Spain had made, by the Pope's aſſiſtance, endeavoured to chuſe the Infanta Queen of France. The Catholick Royaliſts who followed Henry IV. ſent to the Aſſembly of States, demanding leave to ſend their Deputies to the Aſſembly; whereupon the Duke of Mayenne, notwithſtanding the oppoſition of the Pope's Legate, made a Conference of both Parties to be accepted of, which was held at Surene the April following; at which, the Archbiſhop of Bourges declared, That the King was reſolved to abjure his Religion; but the Legate maintained, That before he could be owned for King, the Pope muſt firſt have reconciled him to the Church. In the mean time, the King of Spain, to get the Infanta choſen Queen of France, propoſed the marrying of her with a French Prince whom he ſhould chuſe, including thoſe of the Houſe of Lorrain; but, upon Condition, that his Son-in-law and Daughter, ſhould be declared King and Queen of France. But the Parliament of Paris, not being able to indure this Propoſal, as being contrary to the Fundamental Law of the Kingdom, viz. The Salick-Law, declared all the Treaties that ſhould be made to that purpoſe, null and void. However the Spaniſh Party continued their Inſtances for the choice of a new King, and the Spaniſh Deputies ſhewed, that they had a full Power to name the Duke of Guiſe, for their Maſter's Son-in-law. The Duke of Mayenne being offended hereat, (for he did not like to have his Nephew for his Maſter) diſſembled his Diſpleaſure, and dexterouſly put a ſtop to the Election, deſigning to make his Peace with King Henry IV. And, at laſt, in July that ſame Year, Henry IV. abjuring his Religion, and being reconciled to the Church of Rome, in the Church of St. Denys, by Rainold de la Beaume, Archbiſhop of Bourges, the Heads and Cities of the League laid down their Arms, and the Duke of Mayenne betook himſelf to the King's Service. See PACIFICATION Maimbourg Hiſt. de la Ligue.

It is now one of the moſt thriving Ports, and of equal Trade, with the beſt Town on the Weſtern ſhoar, except Briſtol. The Town has been very much improved and beautified by the Family of the Moors of Bankhall. It has a Town-houſe erected upon Pillars and Arches of Free-ſtone, with an Exchange for Merchants underneath. For its defence, here is on the South ſide, a Caſtle built by King John, and on the W. a ſtately ſtrong Tower upon the River. 'Tis 150 Miles from London.

LEFFY, LIFFEE, LUFFEE, the nobleſt River of Ireland upon which Dublin ſtands, tho' its Spring is but 15 Miles from the Sea; yet to accompliſh its Courſe, 'tis forced to fetch a very great compaſs, firſt running S. through St. Patrick's fields Eight Miles, then W. five Miles, N. by the County of Kildare Ten Miles, N. E five; at laſt E. by the Caſtle of Knock and the City of Dublin into the Iriſh Sea Ten Miles. In 1687, towards the beginning of December, there happened ſuch an Inundation, by continual Rains, that not only Men, Cattle, and Goods in great quantities, were carried away by its rapidity; but the Bridges were broken down, and Dublin ſo filled with Water, that Boats ply'd in the Streets, the like never known before.

LEGATE, this Name is given by the Pope to four Sorts of Perſons. Firſt, They are called Legates whom the Pope ſends to General Councils, there to preſide in his Name. Secondly, The Pope's perpetual Vicars in Kingdoms or Provinces remote from Rome, are called Legates; thus, before the Reformation, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury was Legatus natus Apoſtolicæ ſedis, or Born Legate of the Apoſtolick See. Thirdly, Such are alſo called Legates or Apoſtolical Vicars by Commiſſion, who for a certain Time, and in certain Places, are delegated to convene Synods for the Reſtoring of Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline, or upon other Emergencies. Fourthly, and Laſtly, The Name of Legate is given to the Pope's Extraordinary Ambaſſadors to Emperors and Kings, who are called Legati à Latere. At preſent none but Cardinals, have this Character.

St. LEGER, was a French Gentleman, of a Noble Family, who was ſent by his Parents, whilſt he was yet young, to the Court of Clotharius II. at the Beginning of the VIIth. Century, and was not long after choſen Biſhop of Autun. King Clotharius dying in 669. the Nobles aſſembled to ſet Childeric II. on the Throne, notwithſtanding the Endeavours of Ebroin to give the Crown to Thierry, Childeric's youngeſt Son. St. Leger was preſent at this Aſſembly, and prevailed with the Lords, who were for ſentencing Ebroin to death, only to confine him to the Abbey of Luxeuil in Burgundy. Childeric afterwards kept St. Leger at Court with him; but his Vertue proving troubleſome to ſome Courtiers, they ſlandered him to the King; who giving Credit to them, came to Autun, with Deſign, as ſome ſay, to have him killed; of which he having Notice, retired in the Night-time; but being purſued, he was brought before the King, who ordered him to be confined to the ſame Monaſtery where Ebroin was detained. But the King being murthered not long after, in 679. cauſed a great Change of Affairs; for Ebroin, under the Reign of Thierry, was reſtored to his former Dignity, and St. Leger to his Dioceſs. But Ebroin being Major of the Palace and reſolved to revenge himſelf upon Leger, ſuppoſing him to have been his Enemy, ſent an Officer, with ſome Soldiers, to ſeize him in his City: The Citizens ſhut the Gates upon them, but the good Prelate being unwilling to expoſe the City to the Fury of the Soldiers, went out, and delivered himſelf into the Hands of his Enemies, who immediately put out his Eyes, and ſhut him up in a Monaſtery. Two Years after Ebroin ſent for the Biſhop and his Brother Count Guerin to Court, accuſing them before the King of having had an Hand in the Murther of Childeric: Whereupon Guerin was ſtoned to death, and Leger had his Tongue cut out. And at laſt, Ebroin's Hatred to the good Biſhop being irreconcilable, he cauſed him to be murthered in a Foreſt belonging to the Dioceſs of Arras. Surius in 2. Octob. Annal. Franc.

LEGHORN, Lat. Livorno, Liburnus, or Ligurnus Portus, an ancient and celebrated Sea-Port, ſeated in the Territory of Piſa, on the Weſt of Italy, under the Dominion of the Duke of Florence, fifteen Miles from Piſa to the South, Ten from the Mouth of Arno, Forty from Piombino to the North, and Sixty from Florence to the S. W. There belongs to it a large and ſafe Haven; and the Great Duke, to ſecure the Trade and Wealth of it, hath built three Forts that defend it. This City belonged heretofore to the States of Genoua. Coſmus Duke of Florence had it from them in Exchange for Sarzana, being then a poor, deſpicable Village, not much inhabited by reaſon of the Unhealthineſs of the Air, corrupted by the Marſhes near it. Francis and Ferdinando (two of his Succeſſors) ſurrounded it with Walls; and making it a free Port, much improved its Condition, at a Time when the Genoueſe had exceſſively enhaunced their Impoſts upon the Merchants, and built the three Forts that now defend it. It has two Havens; the one great, and very commodious (by reaſon of a very fair Mole) for Ships of any Burthen, and is beſides adorned with ſeveral Towers: The Leſſer, called Darſi, is only for Galleys. The Palace of the Great Duke is very conſiderable for its Beauty and Conveniencies to entertain Princes and Foreign Ambaſſadors, and is the ordinary Reſidence of the Governor of the City, and hath a large Arſenal or Magazine belonging to it. In this City there is a vaſt Concourſe of Foreign Merchants, not only becauſe it is a great Place of Trade, but alſo becauſe no Body can be arreſted here for Debt.

LEGION, a Body of Soldiers amongſt the Romans, which did commonly conſiſt of 5 or 6000 Foot, and 4 or 500 Horſe. In the Time of Romulus a Legion contained only 3000 Men: Under the Conſuls it conſiſts of 4000 Men; and, beſides the Foot, had about 2 or 300 Troopers. Since Marius's Time the Legion was of 5 or 6000 Men, and conſtituted 10 Cohortes, or Regiments: So that when the Cohortes were of 500 Men apiece, the Legion was 5000; if of 600, of 6000 Men; the Cavalry, as hath been ſaid, conſiſting of 4 or 500 Horſe. The Legions compoſed of Roman Citizens made a diſtinct Body by themſelves, and thoſe of the Allies formed another Body of Infantry and Cavalry, which they called Extraordinary. In the Roman Legions, the Foot were diſtinguiſhed into Velites, Haſtati, Principes and Triarii. Thoſe called Velites, i. e. Swift or Light Footmen, had for their Arms a long Sword, and a Lance of three Foot long, with a little round Buckler called Parma Tripedalis. They covered their Heads with a kind of Cap called Galea, made of Leather, or the Skin of ſome living Creature; which Caps differed from that called Caſſis, only in that this latter was of Metal. Theſe Velites were picked out from amongſt the reſt of the Foot, to follow the Cavalry in all Expeditions, and dangerous Enterprizes. 'Tis obſerved, that this ſort of Soldiers were not in uſe amongſt the Romans till the ſecond Punick War; whence it is ſuppoſed they did this in Imitation of the Gauls and Germans, who had a ſort of Light Foot-men that followed their Horſe; as may be ſeen in Cæſar, and Livy. Amongſt theſe Velites, thoſe that threw the Lance, as alſo the Archers and Slingers are comprehended. Thoſe whom the Romans called Haſtati, Principies and Triarii, carried a long Buckler, or Shield, four Foot long, and two broad: They wore a long, two-edged Sword, ſharp-pointed: Their Helmet was of Braſs, and the Creſt of it of the ſame Metal. They had a kind of Boots, which defended the fore part of their Legs: They carried two Darts called Veruta; the one ſomewhat greater, which was round, or ſquare; and the other leſs: Their Corſlets, called Lorica, were of divers Faſhions; ſome were of Iron, others of Braſs; ſome of them were made of little Plates of Iron, like Scales, covering one another; and were called Loricæ Hamatæ. As for the Horſe, their Arms were a Javelin, a Sword, a Back and Breaſt-piece, a Helmet, and a Shield. The Roman Enſigns were called Imaginiferi, becauſe they carried the Prince's Picture; the Aquiliferi carried an Eagle on the Top of a Pike: There were others that carried an Hand, in token of Concord; others, a Dragon, with a Silver Head, and the reſt of Taffeta. The Labarum, or Imperial Standard, which never appeared but when the Emperor himſelf was in the Camp, was of Purple, ſet round with a deep Golden Fringe, and embelliſhed with precious Stones. The Archers on Horſeback carried a Bow, and a Quiver with Arrows. The Officers we call Cornets carried an Eagle at the End of a Lance, and had the Skin of a Lion, Bear, or ſome other Savage Beaſt, covering their Head-piece; and the Enſigns of Foot had the ſame. They made uſe of three ſorts of Trumpets; whereof one was ſtreight, one crooked, almoſt like a Hunting Horn, and the third ſort more like our Muſical Inſtruments called Cornets. The Romans formerly carried their Swords on the Right Side: Joſephus ſaith, they were two; a long one on the Right Side, and a ſhort one on the Left. Ammianus obſerves, that ſome of the Roman Officers had their Coats of Armour ſo skilfully made, that they did not in the leaſt hinder any of their Motions: And that amongſt the Parthians, the Horſes alſo were covered with the ſame kind of Armour. *Lipſius de Militia Romana. LEGNANO, Lat. Liviacum, a ſtrong City of Italy, in the Diſtrict of Verona, which is a Country under the Dominion of the Venetians. Leander Alberti.

LEGNANO (John) a Lawyer, of a Noble Family in Milan, was much eſteem'd for his Learning in the XIVth. Century; beſide the buſineſs of his Profeſſion, he was a good Philoſopher and Mathematician. He wrote Super Clementinis. De Cenſura Eccleſiaſtica. De Interdicto Eccleſiaſtico. De Horis Canonicis. De Beneficiorum Eccleſiaſticorum Pluralitate, &c. Trithem. De Script. Eccl. Ghilini Teatr. de Huom. Letter. &c.

LEICESTER, Lat. Leiceſtria, the chief Place of Leiceſterſhire, is about 80 Miles N. N. W. from London, pleaſantly ſeated, in a good Air, and rich Soil, on the South Banks of the Stowre, over which it has two Bridges. It conſiſts of three Pariſhes, has ſeveral good Buildings, and is well inhabited. An. 680. it was made a Biſhop's See by the Mercian King Ethelred; which being ſoon after removed thence, the Town began to decay; but being afterwards reſtored to its former Greatneſs, and incompaſſed about with a ſtrong Wall, it ſo flouriſhed, according to Matthew Paris, that it was inferiour to few of the beſt Cities; and continued in this Proſperity till the Rebellion of Robert Earl of Leiceſter, ſurnamed Le Boſſu, or Crouch-Back, occaſioned its Ruin in the Reign of Henry II. who having made himſelf Maſter of the Town, commanded it to be burnt, and the Caſtle to be raſed, and laid an heavy Burthen upon the Inhabitants. After this Calamity, it had the good Fortune to recover it ſelf. Earl Robert, in Repentance of what he had done, built the Monaſtery of St. Mary de Pratis, wherein he himſelf became a Canon Regular, and for fifteen Years ſerved God in continual Prayers. With the like Devotion Henry I. Duke of Lancaſter built here a Collegiate Church, which he provided with a Dean, twelve Prebendaries, and as many Vicars, with a ſufficient Maintenance. King Richard III's Body was brought hither after Red-Moor-Fight near Boſworth, and buried in the Gray Friars. Cardinal Wolſley was alſo buried in this Town; which, beſides this, is of note for having given the Title of Earl to ſeveral Families, at this Time enjoyed by the Right Honourable Philip Sidney, devolved to him from his Grandfather Robert Sidney, Viſcount Liſle, created Earl of Leiceſter by King James I. An. 1618. It ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

LEICESTERSHIRE, Lat. Leiceſtrienſis Comitatus, is an In-land County of England, lying between Derby and Nottinghamſhires on the North, Northamptonſhire on the South, Rutland and Lincolnſhire Eaſtward, and Warwickſhire Weſtward. Its Length from North to South, being meaſured from the utmoſt Angle, is but 33 Miles; the Breadth from Eaſt to Weſt, not above 27; the whole divided into ſix Hundreds, wherein are 200 Pariſhes, and 13 Market-Towns; whoſe Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Rutland, Lincoln, Nottingham, Derby and Northamptonſhires, went amongſt the Romans by the Name of Coritani; the Country making Part of the Kingdom of Mercia, in the Time of the Heptarchy, as it does now of the Dioceſs of Lincoln. The Air of this County is counted very healthful: As for the Soil, Burton gives this Account of it: South-Weſt, rich Ground, plentiful of Corn and Paſture, but wanting Fuel: North-Weſt, for the moſt part hard and barren, yielding Fruit not without much Labour and Expence: North-Eaſt, good Soil, apt to bear Corn and Graſs, and ſufficiently provided with Fuel: South-Eaſt, much like the laſt for Fruitfulneſs, but, of the two, better furniſhed with Fuel. Beſides the Avon, which ſeparates this County from Northamptonſhire, the other Rivers of moſt note are, the Stowre, and the Wreak, which, Diameter like, divide it into two equal Parts. There is one Thing very obſervable in this County, That all who are born in a Village named Charleton, have an harſh and ratling kind of Speech, and cannot well pronounce the Letter R. Leiceſter is the only Town in the whole County which has Privilege of ſending Members to Parliament, beſides the two Knights of the Shire.

LEICTOURE, LAICTOURE, or LETOURE, Lat. Lactora, Lactoracum Civitas, or Lactoracium, a City of Gaſcoigne in France, upon the River Gers, being the ſecond City of Armagnac, and the Capital of the Territory of Lomagne. It is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Aux. This City ſtands on an Hill, whereof three Sides are almoſt inacceſſible; and is beſides ſurrounded with a double Wall, and defended with a ſtrong Caſtle. It formerly had the Title of a Viſcounty. It withſtood the whole Force of France three Months; and is ſince ſo well fortified after the Modern Way, that it is thought the ſtrongeſt Bulwark, and ſureſt Fortreſs of France on that Side, againſt Spain.

LEIDEN, Lat. Lugdunum Batavorum, a great City in the Province of Holland. It is ſeated upon the old Stream of the Rhine, and is the Capital of Rhinelandt, near the Lake of Haerlem, called the Haerlemer-Meer, three Leagues from Delft, and ſeven from Amſterdam, Dort and Utrecht. It is a populous, wealthy, neat built City. It hath many Channels of Water running through the Streets, ſo that the City is divided into 31 Iſlands, joined by 145 Bridges, 104 whereof are of Stone. An Univerſity was founded here in 1575. which is adorned with a very good Library, a Phyſick-Garden, and an Anatomical Gallery, which contain many Rareties. This City is famous for the Siege the Spaniards laid againſt it in 1544. preſently after Eaſter; which by a Stratagem was raiſed Octob. 3. by the Prince of Orange; who letting looſe upon the Enemy the Waters which the Dams reſtrained before, relieved the City, and ruined the Spaniſh Army. Guicciard. Deſcription of the Low Countries. Strada de Bello Belg. lib. 8. decad. 1. Grotius. Munſter. Ortelius.

LEIDRADUS, Archbiſhop of Lyons, Native of Nuremburg, was in great Eſteem with Charlemagne, to whom he writ that Letter which we have ſtill amongſt the Works of St. Agobert, wherein he gives that Prince an Account of his Repairing the Church of Lyons; as alſo another Letter of his to his Siſter, lately publiſhed by Baluzius at the End of the ſaid Agobert's Works. This Prelate 813. made a voluntary Abdication of his Archbiſhoprick, and retired to the Monaſtery of St. Medard of Soiſſons, where he died.

LEIGH (William) Son to Sir Thomas Leigh Lord Mayor of London, had Iſſue Francis his Son and Heir, made Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of King James I. and afterwards married to Mary the Daughter of Thomas Lord Elleſmere Lord Chancellor of England; and by her had Iſſue Francis his Son and Heir, created Baronet, 16 Jac. I. and afterwards raiſed to the Dignity of Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Dunſmore, 4 Car. I. in 1643. was made Captain of the Band of Penſioners; and by Letters Patents bearing date at Oxford, the 20th. of that Prince's Reign, in Conſideration of his faithful Service, advanced to the Degree and Title of Earl of Chicheſter, with Limitation of that Honour to the Heirs Male of his Body; and for default of ſuch Iſſue, to Thomas Earl of Southampton, and to the Heirs Male of his Body, begotten on Elizabeth his Wife, eldeſt Daughter of the ſaid Francis. He died in 1653. leaving Iſſue the ſaid Elizabeth and Mary, married to George Villers, Viſcount Grandiſon. Dugd. Baronage.

LEIGH (Thomas,) deſcended from a ſecond Son of Sir Thomas, Lord Mayor of London, was dignified with Knighthood by King James I. married Mary, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir Thomas Egerton Knight, eldeſt Son of Thomas Lord Elleſmere Lord Chancellor of England; and firmly adhering to King Charles I. in the Civil Wars, was advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, in the 19th. of his Reign, by the Title of Lord Leigh of Stonely. He died in 1671. his eldeſt Son, Sir Thomas, being deceaſed in his Life-time: Which Sir Thomas married twice; firſt, Anne, Daughter and ſole Heireſs to Richard Brigham of Lambeth in Surrey; and after her Death, Jane, Daughter of Patrick-Fitz-Maurice, Baron of Kerry in Ireland; by whom he had Iſſue, Thomas, his only Son, now Lord Leigh, and three Daughters, Honora, married to Sir William Egerton Knight, ſecond Son to John Earl of Bridgwater; Mary and Jane. Dugd. Baron.

LEIGH, a ſmall Market-Town in Lancaſhire, 145 Miles from London.

LEIGHTON, a Market-Town of Mans-Hundred, in the S. W. Parts of Bedfordſhire. It ſtands upon the very Borders of Buckinghamſhire, on a ſmall River which runs from thence, North-Weſtward into the Ouſe. This is a good large Town, much reſorted unto for fat Cattel; 33 Miles from London.

LEINE, Lat. Lynius, or Leinius, a River of Germany, in the Lower Saxony; which riſing in the Territory of Eisfeldt, or Eſchfeldt, near Heiligenſtadt; and paſſing through the Dukedom of Brunſwick, by Gottingen, Eimbeck and Alfelt, at Saxſtede, receives the Inerſt; and afterwards flowing by Hanouer and Newſtadt, runs into the Aller.

LEINSTER, Lat. Lagenia, one of the four Provinces of Ireland, called by the Inhabitants Cuge Leighn, by the Welſh, Lein, by the Engliſh, Leinſter, and in old Times Lagen, is bounded on the Eaſt by the Iriſh Sea, on the Weſt with Connaught, from which it is ſeparated by the River Shanon; on the North with the Territories of Louth, and on the South with the Province of Munſter. Its Form is Triangular, and its Circumference about 270 Miles. The Air is clear and gentle; the Soil abundantly fruitful as to Graſs and Corn, affords great Plenty of Butter, Cheeſe and Cattel, and is well watered with Rivers, the chief whereof are Neure, Sewer and Barow, all ſtocked to Admiration with Fiſh and Fowl. Dublin, the Capital of the whole Kingdom, is in this Province, which contains alſo theſe following Counties, Kilkenny, Caterlough, Queen's-County, King's-County, Kildare, Eaſt-Meath, Weſt-Meath, Wexford and Dublin; and, according to ſome, Wicklow and Fernes. Some believe this Province to have been the ancient Seat of the Caucenſes, Blanti, Menapii and Brigantes, mentioned by Ptolemy. It gives the Title of Duke to the late Duke of Schomberg's Second Son.

LEIPSICK, or LEIPSIGK, Lat. Lupfurdum, or Lypſia, a fair and wealthy City of Germany, the Capital of Miſnia, a large Province of the Upper Saxony, ſtands upon the River Pleiſs. It is famous for three yearly Marts it hath, and its Univerſity, founded in 1408, by Frederick the Warrior, Duke of Saxony. It lies 12 German Miles from Dreſden to the Weſt, and 16 from Magdeburg to the South, and has a Caſtle called Pleiſſenburg. In 1520, Luther diſputed here with Eckius, about the Pope's Supremacy; ſoon after which, the Inhabitants of the City embraced the Reformation. This City was oft beſieged during the Wars of Germany. The Imperialiſts were twice defeated by the Swedes near Leipſick, at the Battel of Lutzen, and after by Torſtenſon in 1642, whereupon the City was ſurrendred to them. Cluvier. Berthius.

LEIRIA, or, LERIA, a City of Portugal, in the Province of Eſtremadura, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Lisbon. It ſtands upon a ſmall River, about a League from the Sea, below the Town of Tomar.

LEITH, Lat. Letha, a conſiderable Sea-Port Town in the County of Lothian, on the Frith of Edinburgh, in the Kingdom of Scotland, and ſeated about one Mile from the Capital City of that Kingdom to the North-Weſt, to which it is the Port or Haven. It takes the Name from a ſmall River which falls into the Frith to the Weſt of it, and is one of the beſt Harbours in the World. In 1544, John Dudley, Viſcount Liſle, landed at this Place with 200 Ships; and having waſted the City of Edinburgh, burnt this Town at his Return. It began to recover when De Deſſe, General for Francis II. King of France, who had married Mary Queen of Scots in 1560, fortified it very regularly, with a Deſign, as 'twas thought, to conquer the whole Iſland; which the Engliſh foreſeeing, ſent an Army, at the Deſire of the Faction in Scotland, under the Command of the Lord Grey, which in two Months time, with the Aſſiſtance of the ſaid Faction, forced the French to quit it, and return home. During the Siege, the greateſt part of the Town was burnt: And in the End of the Siege, all the Works were thrown down by the Scots. Oliver Cromwel, after this, built here a ſtrong Fort, which was demoliſhed by King Charles II. about 1664.

LEKE (Sir Francis) of Sutton in Derbyſhire, Kt. deſcended of a noble and ancient Family in thoſe Parts; and having a large Fortune, was upon Octob. 26. 22 Jac. I. created Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Deincourt of Sutton; afterwards, for his Service, and great Supplies to King Charles I. during the Civil Wars, wherein two of his Sons loſt their Lives for their Prince and Country, one in the South, and the other in the Weſt, he was raiſed to the Degree and Dignity of an Earl, by the Title of Earl of Scarſdale, by Letters Patents bearing Date at Oxford, Novemb. 11. 21 Car. I. He married Anne, Daughter to Sir Edward Carey of Berchamſtede in Hertfordſhire, Kt Siſter to Henry Viſcount Faulkland, by whom he had Iſſue ſeven Sons and ſix Daughters, viz. Francis, ſlain in France; Nicholas, who ſucceeded him in his Honours; Edward and Charles, ſlain as aboveſaid; Henry died unmarried; Ralph and John, who died Infants. His Daughters were theſe; Anne, married to Henry Hillyard of Wyſteade in Holderneſſe; Catharine, to Cuthbert Morley of Normanby in Yorkſhire, Eſq; Elizabeth and Muriel — Frances, wedded to the Viſcount Gormanſton in Ireland; and Penelope to Charles Lord Lucas of Shenfield. This noble Earl became ſo much mortified after his Sovereign's Tragical End, that he put on Sackcloth; and cauſing his Grave to be digged ſome Years before his Death, laid himſelf down in it every Friday, exerciſing himſelf frequently in Divine Meditations and Prayers; and departed this Life in his Houſe at Sutton in Scarſdale, in 1655, lies buried in the Pariſh-Church there. To whom ſucceeded Nicholas, his eldeſt Son, then living; who married the Lady Frances, Daughter to Robert late Earl of Warwick, by whom he hath Iſſue two Sons, Robert, commonly called Lord Deincourt, and Richard; and Mary a Daughter: Which Robert hath married Mary, one of the Daughters and Co-heirs to Sir John Lewes of Ledſton in Yorkſhire, Knight and Baronet. Dugd. Baron.

LELAND (John) born in London, and bred in the Univerſities of England and France. He was Library-Keeper to King Henry VIII. and the greateſt Antiquary of his Time. In the Year 1533, (25 Hen. 8.) he was Empowered by Commiſſion under the Broad Seal, to ſearch the Libraries of all Cathedrals, Abbeys, Priories, Colleges, &c. And having furniſh'd himſelf with a large Collection, he fix'd in London to digeſt them into Method, and form them into the Work intended. And in 37 Hen. 8. he preſented the King with a Scheme of the whole, under the Title of a New-Years-Gift. Wherein he promiſes a Deſcription of the State of Britain under the Romans, a Survey and Hiſtory of each County in 60 Books, a Survey of the Britiſh Iſles in ſix Books, and an Account of the Nobility of Britain in three Books. But the next Year falling diſtracted, and continuing ſo, left his Papers in confuſion; the greateſt part of which are now in the Publick Library at Oxford. His printed Treatiſes are, The Aſſertion of King Arthur: The Birth of Prince Edward: The Song of the Swan: The deceaſe of Sir Tho. Wiet: The winning of Bullein, and the Commendation of Peace. Cambden's Life before his Britannia. Weaver's Funeral Monuments, &c.

LELEGES, a People of Caria in Aſia. There were alſo a People of the ſame Name in Achaia, near the Locrians. They are mentioned by Virg. Æneid. lib. 4. Pliny, lib. 4. cap. 7. Strabo, lib. 7.

LELEX, King of Lacedæmon, who eſtabliſhed the firſt Dynaſty of the Kings of Sparta. See Lacedæmon. Conſult the Extract of the Book of J. Meurſius, de Regno Laconia, in Tom. VIII. of the Univerſal Library.

LELLI, or, Camillus de Lellis, Founder of the Clerks Regular, called Miniſters or Servants of the Sick, their Employment being to ſerve and wait upon the Sick. He was of Bochianico in the Kingdom of Naples, where he was born in 1550, and afterward was a Diſciple of St. Philip de Neri. His Congregation was confirmed by Pope Sixtus in 1586. He died at Rome, July 14. 1614. He was the Author of ſeveral pious Treatiſes. See his Life, and that of St. Philip of Neri. Le Mire de Script. Sæculi 17. *& de Congregation Cler. in comm. LELY (Sir Peter) born Anno 1617, in Weſtphalia, where his Father, being a Captain, happen'd to be then in Garriſon. He was bred up for ſome time in the Hague, and afterwards came over into England in 1641, and purſued the natural bent of his Genius, in Landskips with ſmall Figures, and Hiſtorical compoſitions: But finding the Practice of Painting after the Life, generally more encouraged, he applied himſelf to Pourtraicts with ſuch ſucceſs, as in a little time to ſurpaſs all his Contemporaries in Europe. And having no fair opportunity of finiſhng the courſe of his Studies in Italy, he bethought himſelf of another Expedient, which he improv'd into an Equivalent to Travelling, i. e. He furniſh'd himſelf with a Collection of the Drawings, Prints and Paintings, of the moſt celebrated Italian Maſters; and what advantage he receiv'd from this Method, appears ſufficiently, in the Correctneſs of his Drawing, and the Beauty of his Colouring, but eſpecially in the graceful Airs of his Figures, the pleaſing variety of his Poſtures, and his gentile Negligence, and looſe manner of Draperies. He was much eſteem'd by King Charles I. and drew His Majeſty's Picture, when Priſoner in Hampton-Court. King Charles II. likewiſe had a great value for him, as appears by His Majeſty's making him his Painter, and Knighting him. As to his Art, 'tis certain, his laſt Pieces were his beſt; for notwithſtanding his Attainments, he was ſtill Improving, till Death ſnatch'd his Pencil out of his Hand, in an Apoplectick Fit, Anno 1680. A ſhort Account of the moſt Eminent Painters, &c. Bound up with Mr. Dryden's Tranſlation of Freſnoy.

LEMANE, Lat. Lacus Lemanus; called alſo the Lake of Geneva, and the Lake of Lauſanne, and by the Germans, Das Genefferzee: A conſiderable Lake, through which the River Rhoſne runs, being from Eaſt to Weſt about nine German Miles in length, and two over, where it is broadeſt. The Rhoſne enters it at Nouille, and goes out at Geneva. It is ſurrounded with good Towns. The principal, next Geneva, is Lauſanne.

LEMARY, a ſtrait or narrow Paſſage between the Atlantick Ocean and the Mar del Zur, to the South of the Streights of Magellan and Terra del Feuogo, diſcovered by Iſaac Lemary of Antwerp in 1615, and 1616, as deſigning to diſcover the Terra Auſtralis incognita. They found the entrance 8 Miles broad, bounded to the Eaſt and Weſt by high Mountains covered with Snow, and a ſtrong current to the S. W. which gave them an Aſſurance that it opened a Paſſage to the South Sea. Lat. 54. 40. The Land was full of Penguins, a monſtrous Sea-Fowl, and the Sea of great Whales, ſo that they could hardly ſhun them. The moſt Southern Cape of the Terra del Feuogo they call Cape Hoorn, which is in the Lat. of 57. 48. In 1618, the King of Spain ſent two Ships to diſcover this Paſſage, under Bartholomeo Garſia de Nodal: They returned the next Year by the Streights of Magellan, into Spain. In 1623, the States of Holland ſent a Fleet of 11 great Ships by this Paſſage, under James Heremita, as Admiral.

LEMBRO, or IMBROS, an Iſland in the Archipelago, near the entrance of the Propontis, 3 German Miles from the Dardanelles, to the S. W. It had anciently a City of the ſame Name, which, with the Iſland, was conſecrated to Cabiri and Mercury, the Thracian Gods. The Haven of this City was alſo very commodious, but now almoſt quite deſolate. It has 4 Villages, the biggeſt of which is Imbros, guarded by a Caſtle. The Iſland is high and mountainous, but covered with Woods, and full of Wild Hogs, and other Game. The Vallies are pleaſant, well watered, and tilled. *Stephanus. Plutarch. Randal. Wheeler, pag.*72.

LEMBURGH, or LAWOW, Lat. Leopolis, a great and populous City of the Kingdom of Poland, Capital of Red Ruſſia, ſituate among Hills upon the River Peltaw, walled with a ſtrong Wall, and well defended with two Caſtles, one within the City, and the other without. It was built by Leo D. of Ruſſia, who flouriſhed about 1280. In 1648, it was beſieged by Chielneck, General of the Coſſacks, without any Succeſs. In 1672, the Turks took it, and ſoon loſt it. It ſtands 15 Miles from Permiſla to the Eaſt, a little leſs from the Carpathian Hills to the North, and about 50 from Warſaw to the South-Eaſt.

LEMINGTON, a Market and Borough-Town of Chriſt-Church Hundred, in the S. W. Parts of Hampſhire, 72 Miles from London.

LEMINGTON, a Town of Knightlow-Hundred in Warwickſhire, noted for two Springs of Water that iſſue out there, within a Stride of each other, but of different Taſte and Operation; the one being freſh, and the other ſalt, tho' at a great diſtance from the Sea.

LEMNIUS (Levinus) born at Zericzee in Zealand in the XVIth Century. He was a conſiderable Scholar, and an eminent Phyſician. The beſt of his Works are, De Occultis Naturæ Miraculis, Lib. IV. De Aſtrologia. De honeſto Animæ & Corporis Oblectamento, &c. Miræus in Elog. Belg. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.&c.

LEMNOS, a fertile and plain Iſland in the Archipelago, between Thrace to the North, and Mount Athos to the Weſt. It is called by the Turks Stalimene. It has ſeveral Ports and good Havens about it, the principal of which is now called Mudro, lying to the S. E. of the Iſland; above which ſtands a City, with an indifferent good Caſtle. The Soil is generally level, and yields good Paſture. To the N. E. is that Terra Sigillata, which is ſo famed for healing Wounds, and expelling Poiſon. Before the War of Candia it had about 50 Greek Villages, and was very well Peopled; but now there are not above 20, and thoſe are poor, and meanly inhabited. This Iſland was famed by the Poets for the Fall of Vulcan from Heaven upon it, occaſioned by ſome ſubterraneous Fires, ſuppoſed to be kindled from Heaven. Muctedar, a celebrated Saracen Commander, loſt a conſiderable Fleet in 916, near this Iſland. In 1457, it was recovered from the Turks by the Genoueſe. In ancient Times it had three Cities, one called Dipolis, another Hypſipelaa, and the third Murina, now Lemno, which lies 86 Miles Eaſt of Mount Athos, now Monte Santo. Near Mudro there is a City, with an indifferent good Caſtle Garriſoned by the Turks. In 1662, the Venetians took this Iſland, and ruined all the ſtrong places in it. It lies 8 German Miles S. of Lembro. Randal.

LEMPTA, a Deſart of Africa, in Zaara, or Libya, with a City of the ſame Name. Leo & Marmol, Deſcript. d'Afriq.

LEMURES. See LAMIA.

LEMURIA, Feaſts which the Romans celebrated on the 9th of May, in Honour of the Lemures; that is, of the Ghoſts and Apparitions of the Dead. Theſe Feaſts continued three Nights, not after one another, but allowing a Night of Reſt between each Night. In theſe Feaſts they uſed to caſt Beans into the Fire on the Altar, as ſuppoſing thereby to drive the Lemures out of their Houſes, or to hinder them from entring them. The Temples were all ſhut up during this Feaſt, neither were any Weddings celebrated all that time, as ſuppoſing that all Marriages then made would prove unfortunate. *Varro de Vita Pop. LENCICI, or LANSCHET, Lat. Lencicia, or Lancicium, a City of Poland, and the Capital of a Palatinate, called by the Poles Lencſyck, from this City, which they call Lenczyckie. It lies in the greater Poland, on an Hill, ſurrounded with a Marſhy Ground, and ſtrengthned with a Caſtle built on a Rock, on the River Bſura, about 10 Miles from the River Warte, and about as much from Gneſna to the Eaſt, and 30 from Warſaw to the Weſt. This City was almoſt quite conſumed by Fire in 1656. Starovolſcius Deſcript. Polon.

Councils of Lencici.

There was a Council held here in 1181, wherein the Affairs of the Kingdom were regulated. And in 1188, another was celebrated, wherein it was reſolved to make War upon Saladine. Peter, the Pope's Legate, held a Council here in 1191. And Fowk, Archbiſhop of Gneſna, another in 1240, againſt Conradus Duke of Maſſovia: And another on the ſame Account in 1246. And in 1258, one againſt Boleſlaus the Bald, Duke of Sileſia, who had impriſoned the Biſhop of Breſlau, and two of his Prieſts. In 1585, the Biſhops met here, againſt Henry IV. Duke of Breſlau. There were alſo two other Councils held here by the Archbiſhops of Gneſna, in 1462, 1466, 1506, or 1522, 23, and 27. Joannes Laski celebrated theſe two laſt againſt Luther. And on the ſame Subject there were two more held here in 1547, and 1557.

LENGOW, or rather LEMGOW, Lat. Lemgovia, a ſmall City in the Circle of Weſtphalia, in the County of Lippe, which was once a free Imperial City, but now exempt, and under the Count of Lippe. It ſtands upon the River Begh, 5 Miles from Minden to the North, and Paderborn to the South, and 9 from Lipſtadt to the N. E. Cluver. Deſcript. German.

LENHAM, a Market Town in Kent, 40 Miles from London.

LENOX, Lat. Lenoxia, or Levinia, a County in the North of Scotland, through which the River and Lake of Lomond paſs. It is bounded on the Eaſt with the County of Menteith, on the South with Cunningham, cut off by Dunbarton-Fryth, on the Weſt with Argyle, and on the North with Albanie. This County has the Honour of being a Dukedom; which Title has been born by ſeveral of the Royal Line of Scotland. The principal Town in it is Dunbriton, now Dumbarton.

LENS, Lat. Lentium Nemetacum, a ſmall Town of the Low-Countries, in Artois, upon the River Souchets, 3 Leagues from Arras to the North, and 4 from Doway to the Weſt. The Town has been fortified, but was ſome Years ſince ſlighted and diſmantled. The Prince of Conde gave the Spaniards a great Overthrow here in 1648, and afterwards took the City, which was left to France by the 35th Article of the Pyrenæan Treaty, in 1659. *Guicciard. LENSÆUS (Joannes,) Canon of Tournay or Doornick, lived in the XVIth Century, and was a Perſon of great Learning. He profeſſed Philoſophy and Divinity at Louvain, where he died in 1593. He left behind him divers Pieces of Controverſy, viz. De Una Chriſti in Terris Eccleſia. De Unica Religione. De Verbo Dei non ſcripto. De Libertate Chriſtiana. De Fidelium Purgatorio. De Limbo Patrum, &c. He was one of thoſe that compoſed the famous Cenſure of Louvain in 1588, on the Doctrine of Grace. See the Apology for that Cenſure, Part I.

LENT, a Faſt of Forty Days, obſerv'd in the Church, according to very ancient, if not Apoſtolical Tradition. This Antepaſchal or Quadrageſimal Faſt is mention'd by the Councils of Nice and Laodicea, as a Cuſtom well known in the Church. And, to go higher, Irenæus takes notice, that in his time, ſome faſted two Days, ſome more and ſome Forty; and that the laſt proportion of Time was the moſt Regular and Exact, as the Learned Dr. Beveredge Interprets him, in a Diſcourſe of his upon this Argument; in which, he makes it very probable, that the Forty Days Faſt before Eaſter, tho' not ſtrictly commanded by the Apoſtles, yet, being then Practis'd by ſome Perſons of Extraordinary Devotion, was approv'd by 'em. Anciently, in the Greek Church, the length of Lent was ſeven Weeks, but in the Latin only ſix notwithſtanding, in both Churches, the number of their faſting Days were equal, amounting to no more than 36, which were a ſort of Tyth of the Year, which they offer'd to God by the Practice of Mortification and Pennance. The Reaſon why the Time, obſerv'd by the Latins and Greeks, was equal, tho' the Weeks were unequal, was, becauſe the Greeks neither faſted on Sundays nor Saturdays in Lent, excepting on Saturday in Paſſion-Week; but as for the Latins, their Faſt was diſcontinued only on Sundays. In the Year 642. The Greeks explain'd themſelves fully in this matter in the Council in Trullo; where they declar'd, that Sundays and Saturdays, and the Feaſt of Annunciation were not to come into the Lenten Faſt, excepting only the Saturday in the Holy Week. Others, who neither faſted upon Sunday, Saturday, nor Thurſday, began their Lent Nine Weeks before Eaſter, which notwithſtanding, took in no more than Six and Thirty Days of Abſtinence. And from hence it grew cuſtomary, that as the ſixth Sunday before Eaſter was call'd Quadrageſima; ſo the Seventh was call'd Quinquageſima, the Eighth, Sexageſima, and the Ninth, Septuageſima; tho' none of theſe three laſt mention'd Sundays were either the 50th, 60th, or 70th. Day before Eaſter. In the IXth. Century, the cuſtom of faſting of four Days, before Quadrageſima Sunday, was begun to make up the number of the Forty Days Faſt. Having ſaid ſomething upon the Time of Lent, 'twill not be improper to take notice what ſort of eating was allow'd. Now, in the Weſtern Church, the ancient Practice was to forbear Fleſh, Eggs, Milk-meats and Wine, and not to Eat till the Evening; As for Fiſh, it was not forbidden, tho' there were many Chriſtians who refuſed to Eat any thing but Pulſe and Fruit. As for Fowl, ſome diſtinguiſhing People concluded 'em not within the Prohibition, their reaſon was, becauſe Fowls and Fiſhes were created out of the Water, the ſame Day, and therefore, being the Element and the Time were the ſame, they thought the uſe of the one might be permitted as well as the other; but this refining was generally condemn'd, as an Argument of the Palate. In the Eaſtern Church, Lent was always obſerv'd with great Auſterity, the major part ſupporting themſelves with nothing but Bread, Water and Pulſe. In proceſs of time, the rigour of Faſting went off by degrees; For, before the Year 800. the liberty of Wine, Eggs, and Milk-meats were allow'd not only to Sick Perſons; but likewiſe to thoſe, who could not keep up the ſtrength of their Conſtitution, and manage their Employments well without it: And now the Reſtraints of Faſting went no farther, than the forbidding of Fleſh, and the Eating till after Veſpers in the Evening: Theſe Relaxations were firſt practiſed in the Latin Church, but afterwards gained ground among the Greeks, the Monks excepted, who ſtill faſt, up to the ancient rigours. The Latins, as I obſerv'd before, Eat but once a Day, and that, in the Evening, which cuſtom continued in the Weſtern Church till the Year 1200. As for the Greeks they dined at Noon, and had a Collation of Sallad and Fruits in the Evening from the VIth. Century downwards; and in the XIIIth. Century, the Latins began to take ſome Sweet-meats to keep their Stomach from being out of order, and then make a Meal in the Evening. The cuſtom of Dining at Noon in Lent was not brought in all at once; The firſt ſtep from the ancient Uſage was, by bringing up Supper-time to three a Clock in the Afternoon; The cuſtom then being to Ring the Bell at the Hour of None, or Three a Clock: After None, Maſs was ſaid, and after Maſs, Veſpers, which being ended, they went to Supper: But thoſe who either wanted leiſure or Devotion to be at Divine Service, took the Bell in the wrong Senſe, and made it a ſignal for Eating inſtead of Prayers. There was likewiſe another cuſtom which helpt to bring on this alteration. The Emperor Charlemagne order'd Maſs to be ſaid in his Palace at Two a Clock in the Afternoon in Lent; Veſpers came immediately after Maſs, and when that Office was done, 'twas about Three a Clock, and then the Emperor went to Dinner. The Reaſon of his Eating thus early was becauſe, his Officers and Servants might not be oblig'd to Faſt too long. For here we are to obſerve, that thoſe Dukes and Kings which the Emperor had Conquer'd, waited at Table; And after the Emperor had Dined, the Kings and Dukes ſat down, and had Earls for their Waiters, who were likewiſe ſerv'd by their immediate Inferiours; and ſo running through other Degrees at Court, the loweſt Quality could ſeldom ſit down till Mid-night, which would ſtill have been later if the Emperor had not Din'd ſo early. In the Xth. Century, 'twas the cuſtom to Eat at Three a Clock all over Italy, but ſtill not till after Veſpers; for, at that time, the Office of None began ſoon after Twelve a Clock; then they ſaid Maſs, and after that Veſpers; but this new practice was not ſettled in France till about the Year 1200. From which time, the Hour of Eating came ſtill forward, till it came up to Noon, about the Year 1500; and ſince this was practis'd, it has been the cuſtom to ſay Veſpers before Noon. Before I conclude this matter I ſhall add a word or two concerning the Number of Lents. Beſide the Antepaſchal Lent, the Greeks had four others, which they call the Lents of Chriſtmaſs, of the Apoſtles, of the Transfiguration and of the Aſſumption; but theſe were reduced to a Week each, and were rather Faſts of Devotion than Obligation, at leaſt, to the Laity. In the Latin Church, the Monks obſerved three Lents as Bede Informs us, who liv'd in the VIIIth. Century: i. e. The Lent before Eaſter; The Lent before Chriſtmaſs or Advent, and that which followed Pentecoſt, all theſe three Lents were Forty Days each. 'Tis probable that the Lents of Chriſtmaſs and Pentecoſt were Impos'd on Penitents, and likewiſe obſerv'd by Eccleſiaſticks and ſome of the moſt Devout Laity, but were never Decreed by the Church, to oblige all its Members. LENTULUS Getulicus (Cneus) lived in the Time of Tiberius and Caligula. He was made Conſul A. C. 26. and had for his Collegue C. Calviſius Sabinus. He was the Son of Cn. Lentulus Coſſus Getulicus, who was Conſul with L. Calphurnius Piſo. Lentulus Getulicus was Proconſul in Germany when Sejanus was executed at Rome, and was accuſed of having had a Deſign of marrying his Daughter to his Son; but he defended himſelf ſo ſolidly and eloquently in a Letter, that his Accuſer was baniſhed. His Goodneſs made him ſo eſteemed and beloved by the Soldiers, that the Emperor Caligula being jealous of his Power, cauſed him to be put to death. Suetonius, in the Life of Caligula, ſpeaks of an Hiſtory writ by this Lentulus: And Martial, in the Preface to his Firſt Book of Epigrams, tells us, he was a Poet. The Family of the Lentuli was a Branch of that of the Cornelii, which was a very ancient and conſiderable Family of Rome. It is ſaid, they took this Surname from one of their Family, who came into the World with a ſmall Carnoſity in his Face, reſembling a Lentil. They were very famous in that Commonwealth, and were honoured with the higheſt Places of Dignity therein. L. Cornelius Lentulus was Conſul with Q. Publius Philo, An. Rom. 427. They ſuppoſe he was Brother to Ser. Corn. Lentulus, whom his Worth raiſed to the Conſulſhip with L. Gebutius in 451. They drove away the Robbers that hid themſelves in the Caves of Umbria. This Lentulus left a Son called Titus, who left two Sons, L. C. Lentulus, who next follows; and S. C. Lentulus, who was Conſul in 479. with Manlius Curius Dentatus, who defeated Pyrrhus, near the City of Tarentum. L. C. Lentulus was alſo Conſul, and triumphed over the Samnites. He had two Sons, L. C. Lentulus, of whom I ſhall ſpeak hereafter; and P. C. Lentulus, Conſul in 518. with C. Licinius Varus. L. C. Cornelius had enjoyed the ſame Dignity the Year before, in 517. and had triumphed over the Ligurians, as Eutropius obſerves. He was afterwards Cenſor with Q. Lutatius, and had two Sons, L. C. Lentulus, who follows; and Cn. C. Lentulus, Conſul in 553. with P. Ælius Pœtus. He ſignalized himſelf in the Wars, and was the Father of Cn. Lentulus, Conſul in 608. and of L. C. Lentulus Lupus, Conſul in 598. with C. Martius Figulus. L. C. Lentulus was Pro-conſul in Spain, and was afterwards Conſul in 555. He is the Father of P. C. Lentulus, Conſul in 592, and Cenſor in 605. This laſt had two Sons, Publius and Cneus; Publius left P. C. Lentulus Sura, Conſul in 683, with Cn. Aufidius Oreſtes; after which, being engaged in Catiline's Conſpiracy, he was taken, and ſtrangled in Priſon. Cn. C. Lentulus was Conſul in 657, with C. Licinius Craſſus; and his Son Cn. C. Lentulus Clodianus, was Conſul in 682, with L. Gellius Poplicola, and afterwards was alſo Cenſor with the ſame. It ſeems probable, that from him deſcended P. Cornelius Lentulus Spinter, who was Conſul in 697, with Q. Cæcilius Metellus Nepos, and Cn. Cornelius Lentulus Marcellinus, who enjoyed the ſame Dignity, in 698, with L. Marcius Philippus. We find other Conſuls of this Family, in 705, 746, 751, and 763, to which they referr the Birth of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Coſſus Lentulus Iſauricus, was Conſul in 25 after Chriſt. Cn. Cornelius Lentulus, whom I have already mentioned, was Conſul the Year after, with C. Calviſius Sabinus. The reſt may be ſeen in the Faſti Conſulares of Proſper, Caſſiodorus, &c. The Curious may alſo Conſult Titus Livius, Eutropius, Plinius, Florus.

Popes of the Name of LEO.

LEO I. commonly called St. Leo, and Leo the Great, was born in Tuſcany, held the See 21 Years, wanting 32 days, that is, from the 10th. of May 440, when he ſucceeded to Sixtus III. till the 11th. of April 461. He was before Deacon of the Church of Rome, and was ſent for out of Gaul (whether he was gone to reconcile Aetius and Albinus, Generals of the Army, in which Negotiation he ſucceeded) to govern the Church, at a time when the Eaſtern Church was troubled by the Neſtorians, that of Africa ruined by the Vandals, and that of the Weſt, peſtred with the Manichæans and the Pelagians. To remedy theſe Miſchiefs, Leo held a Council in 444, againſt the Manichæans, where they were condemned, and this Eccleſiaſtical Cenſure was confirmed by Valentinian the Emperor, he made uſe of Proſper of Aquitain to confute the Errors of the Pelagians, and conſtituted him his Secretary. In the mean time, Eutyches having publiſh'd his Hereſie, was condemned in a Synod held at Conſtantinople, in 448, tho' afterwards he got them approved in a ſtollen and bribed Council held at Epheſus, in 449, the Acts whereof Leo made void, by another held the ſame Year at Rome. Afterwards diſturbances running higher in the Church, 'twas thought fit to apply to the expedient of a General Council, which Leo endeavour'd to get conven'd in Italy; but could not gain his Point with the Emperor Marcian, who Order'd it to ſit at Chalcedon: Here Paſchaſinus and Lucentius Biſhops, and Boniface, a Prieſt, being the Pope's Legates, preſided in the Council; where they were very earneſt that Leo's Epiſtle to Flavianus, writ two Years before ſhould be inſerted into the Decrees of the Council, relating to matters of Faith; to which the Fathers anſwered; That they were willing to teſtifie their Approbation of the Pope's Epiſtle by their Subſcriptions, but would never allow it to be inſerted into the Synodical Decree: And the Legates inſiſting on their demand with ſome vehemence, having likewiſe the Advantage of being Back'd by the Emperor, the Biſhops of the Council continu'd in their Opinion, and reply'd with great plainneſs, Qui contradicunt, ipſi Romam ambulent, i. e. thoſe that were not ſatisfied with the Senſe of the Council, might walk off to Rome, if they pleas'd. At laſt, when they came to draw up the Canons, it was Order'd, That the Biſhop of Conſtantinople ſhould enjoy equal Privileges, τὰ ἴσα πρεσβεῖα, with the Biſhop of Old Rome; at this the Pope's Legates were extreamly diſſatisfied, Remonſtrating, That the Nicene Canons were broken, and that they would let nothing paſs which was prejudicial to the honour of the Roman Church; and that they had particular Inſtructions from Leo to that purpoſe. However after the Cauſe was thoroughly Examin'd, the Canon Paſs'd by a general Vote of the Council, the Secular Judges of the Emperor likewiſe being of the ſame Opinion: When the Pope heard how matters were carry'd, he was very much diſturb'd, and particularly angry with Anatolius Biſhop of Conſtantinople, charging him with Injuſtice, Arrogance and Ambition. And as for the matters of Faith which were Defin'd by the Council, he approv'd 'em all, but totally rejected the Canon above-mention'd in ſtrong, and at that time of Day, unuſual Language; viz. inerritum mittimus & per Authoritatem B. Petri Apoſtoli, generali prorſus Definitione, caſſamus. Epiſt. 79. ad Pulcher. cap. 3. p. 598. The Year after, Attila having loſt a great Battle in Gaul, paſt through Italy, ravaging and ſpoiling the Country as he went. As he was drawing near to Rome, Leo went out to meet him, and made ſuch an impreſſion upon him by his diſcourſe, that he perſuaded him to return to his Country; his Officers being ſurpriſed at this Change, asked him, What made him comply with the Will of a Prieſt; he is ſaid to have told them, That whilſt Leo ſpake to him, he ſaw a Man ſtanding by his ſide in an Epiſcopal Habit, threatning to kill him if he refuſed to Obey the Advice was given him. Being accuſed, by ſome, for not approving the Council of Chalcedon, and favouring the Errors of Eutyches, he writ to the Biſhops thereof, to purge himſelf of that Accuſation, and afterwards to the Emperor Marcianus, and to Eudoxia and Pulcheria. Genſeric being called in by Eudoxia, Valentinian's Widow, took Rome, in 455; and having expoſed it to the Pillage of his Soldiers for fifteen Days, Leo prevailed with him not to burn the City, and ſaved three of the chief Churches from being plundered. He built a Monaſtery near to the Baſilica of St. Peter, and died April 11. 461. Platina adds, That he appointed ſome of the Roman Clergy, whom he called Cubicularii, to take care of the Sepulchres of the Apoſtles; That he introduced the Clauſe, Hoc Sanctum Sacrificium, into the Canon of the Maſs; Ordained that no Recluſe ſhould be capable of Receiving the conſecrated Veils, unleſs it did appear that ſhe had preſerved her Chaſtity ſpotleſs for the ſpace of 40 Years. He alſo thinks, That he was the firſt that Ordain'd Proceſſionary Supplications or Litanies, upon the occaſion of the frequent Earthquakes with which Gaul was at that time much afflicted. He wrote ſeveral Sermons and Epiſtles. Gennad. cap. 70. Anaſtaſ. in vit. Pontif. Photius Cod. 52. Trithem. & Bellar. de Script. Eccleſ. Baron. in Annales. Cave Hiſtor. Liter. p. 1.

LEO II. ſucceeded Agatho, and was Conſecrated, Auguſt 15. 683. He was Learned, and had great Skill in Muſick. Preſently after his Election, he confirmed the VIth. General Council, and was very diligent in procuring the Welfare of his Church. We have five Letters of his, which Baronius and Binius pretend to be ungenuine, becauſe they charge Pope Honorius with dying a Monothelite. He Sate only 10 Months, and 14 Days, and died, June 28. 684. Anaſt. in vit. Pont. Baron. in Annales. A. C. 683, and 684.

LEO III. a Roman, was choſen Pope after Adrian I. Dec. 26. 795. He was the Son of Alippus, and was Elected the ſame Day his Predeceſſor died, becauſe of the good Opinion the People had of him. This Applauſe and Eſteem of the People ſtirred up the Envy of ſome of Adrian's Relations, who had entertained ſome hopes of being choſen to that Dignity, to ſet upon him in a Proceſſion, and put out his Eyes, and cut out his Tongue, which were afterwards reſtored in the Night by the help of the holy Apoſtles, as the Hiſtorians of that time aſſure us; tho' the Modern Relators, leſs credulous, ſay, that his Enemies, indeed, intended no leſs, but that his Friends made a ſhift to ſave him out of their hands, and to get him into the Lodgings of the French Ambaſſador, who ſent him under a good Guard, in 799, to Charlemaign, who was then at Paderborne; Charlemaign having underſtood the Matter, ſent the Pope back again to Rome, promiſing that he would ſoon follow him, and do him Juſtice, and accordingly, being come to Rome, in 800, he ſent for the Pope, who having cleared himſelf of the Crimes whereof his Adverſaries had Accuſed him, he Ordered them to be Tried, who being found Guilty, Leo begged their Pardons, and afterwards Crowned Charlemaign, Emperor of the Weſt. In 804, the Pope took a Journey to France to viſit Charlemaign, who ſent his Son Charles to meet him, and afterward went out himſelf and received him at Rheims, whence he conducted him to his Caſtle of Crecy, there to ſpend the Chriſtmas Holy-days. Leo, after Eight days ſtay, returned to Rome. Charlemaign was no ſooner dead, in 814, but the Pope's Enemies began a freſh to conſpire againſt him; whereupon he cauſed ſome of them to be executed, which ſo exaſperated the Romans. that, whilſt he was ſick at Rome, they plundered two of his Caſtles in the Country. The Pope died, June 12. 816. Anaſt. in vit. Pont. Eginbert. in vit. Car. magn. Adhemar in Lud. Pio. Platina in Leone III. Baron. Annal. A. C. 795. & ſeq.

LEO IV. a Roman, ſucceeded to Sergius II. April 12. 847. He took care to repair the City of Rome, and eſpecially that part of it near St. Peter's Church. His Fleet joined with that of Naples, and beat the Saracens, in 849. He alſo repaired a City 10 Miles from Centumcella, which the Saracens had ruined, and called it Leopolis. Platina adds, That he prohibited all Lay-men entrance into the Church, during Divine Service; and adorned after an extraordinary manner, the Croſs which Charles the Emperor had given to the Baſilica Conſtantiniana, which had been robbed of the precious Stones that belonged to it. He finiſhed the Moſaick Work in the Churches of St. Martin and Sylveſter in Montibus, and the fine Pargetting which Sergius had begun, and built fifteen Forts for the defence of the City. And ſome write, That it was by his Command, that St. Mary's Church in the New Street, and the Tower in the Vatican near St. Peter's, were built. It was in his time, that Ethelwald, King of England, is ſaid to have made his Country tributary to Rome, by charging a Penny Yearly upon each Houſe. He died, July 17. 855, having Sate Pope Eight Years, three Months, and five Days. From the Death of this Pope, to the chuſing of Bennet III. there was but five Days Interval, or but two Months and twelve Days, if we reckon to the time that Bennet was generally own'd. This Remark Morery makes, to ſhow the palpable miſtakes of thoſe Hiſtorians, who place the pretended Pope Joan between theſe two Popes. See John VII. Anaſtaſ. & Platin. in Leone IV. Onuphr. in Chron. Baron. in Annal.

LEO V. of Andrea, ſucceeded Benedict IV. in 906, was Pope only 40 Days, being caſt into Priſon by Chriſtopher, who uſurped the Papacy.

LEO VI. a Roman, ſucceeded to John X. whom Marozia caſt into Priſon. He held the Papacy ſix Months, and fifteen Days, towards the end of 927, and at the beginning of the next Year, he was likewiſe caſt into Priſon. Platina obſerves, That the Papal Authority was, at this time, much diſregarded, through the Faults and Miſgovernment of former Popes, and that this gave way to the ſeizure of the Pope, and Uſurpation of his Dignity by a private Man, which indignity, Leo laid ſo to heart, that he died of Grief. Flodoard. in Chron. Rom. Luitp. lib. 3. cap. 12. Baron. in Annal.

LEO VII. a Roman, ſucceeded to the Papacy after John XI. in 936. He endeavoured to reſtore the Monaſtical State at Rome, by means of Odo, Biſhop of Clugni, whom he ſent for to that purpoſe. He governed the Church three Years, and died in 939. Baron. in Annal.

LEO VIII. choſen by the Emperor Otho, in a Synod of Biſhops which he called for that purpoſe at Rome, who alſo Depoſed John XII. This was in 963. Leo, in acknowledgment, rendred to the Emperors, the Power of Electing Popes, and the Right of Inveſtitures. But afterwards John drove him out of Rome; and after the Death of that Antipope, the Clergy and People made choice of Benedict V. But Otho, having reduced the City to Famine, took it, and Depoſed Benedict for an Intruder, and ſent him Priſoner to Hamburg. Leo died, April 17. 965. See Leo d'Oſtia, Platina.

LEO IX. before called Bruno, born in Germany, Son to Hugo, was Couſin German to the Emperor Conrade, Earl of Doesburg and Biſhop of Toul in Lorrain, was raiſed to the Papacy by the Emperor Henry III. ſurnamed The Black. He was Conſecrated, Feb. 12. 1049. He held ſome Synods at Rome and Pavia againſt the Simoniacks; and after Pentecoſt, went to the Emperor at Colden, held a Council at Rheims, where he reconciled Godfrey the Valiant with the Emperor, putting an end to that bloody Quarrel that was between that Duke, backed by the Earl of Flanders, and the Houſes of Alſatia and Luxemburg. Being returned to Rome, in 1050, he held a Council againſt Berengarius. In 1053, he ſent his Legates to Conſtantinople, to Condemn ſome Errors of the Greek Church; and ſoon after, going to ſpeak with the Emperor at Wormes, at his return, as he was marching with ſome Forces againſt the Normans, he was taken Priſoner in a Caſtle, and conducted to Benevento, whence he was not reſtored to his Liberty, till May 12. 1054, and died, April 19. following, after having held the Papacy five Years, two Months, and ſeven Days. He left behind him ſeveral Sermons, Epiſtles and Decretals. Platina adds, That he remitted a yearly Tribute of 100 Marks of Gold, and a white Horſe, with his Capariſons to the Church of Bamberg, and had in lieu thereof, the City of Benevent, given him by the Emperor; that having found a poor Leper at his Door, he, with pity, Ordered him to be taken in, and laid in his own Bed, and that in the Morning, when the Door-keeper opened the Door, the Leper being not to be found, it was preſently rumoured, that it was Chriſt who lay there, as a poor Man. He alſo, by his Monitories, put the Emperor of Conſtantinople upon repairing the Holy Sepulchre at Jeruſalem, which had been defaced by the Saracens. 'Tis Storied, That, in his time, Robert Guiſcardi leading an Army out of France into Italy, and driving the Greeks and Saracens before him, poſſeſſed himſelf of Apulia, where he chanced to find a Statue with theſe Words engraven, in a Braſs Circle round the Head, The Firſt Day of May, at Sun-riſing, I ſhall have a golden Head, which Words, being well conſidered by a certain Saracen, who was Robert's Priſoner, a ſkilful Magician, he marked how far the ſhadow of the Statue extended at that time, and digging there, found a great Treaſure.

LEO X. ſucceeded to Julius II. in 1513. He was the Son of Laurentius de Medicis, and of Claricia-Urſini. Pope Innocent VIII. made him Cardinal when he was but Fourteen Years of Age, and he was made Pope at 36. Angelus Politianus, Demetrius Chalcondylus, and Urbanus Bolzanus had been his Maſters, and Picus Mirandula, Marcilius Ficinus, Joannes Laſcaris, Chriſtophorus Landinus, with ſeveral others his familiar Friends. He was a lover of Learning, and a great favourer of Learned Men. Being Julius II's Legate at the Battle of Ravenna, he was taken Priſoner there, in 1512. As ſoon as he was choſen Pope, he endeavoured to get the Favour of the Chriſtian Princes, but more eſpecially of Lewis XII. and his Succeſſor Francis I. of whom he obtained the Abrogation of the Pragmatical Sanction. In 1517, he concluded the Lateran Council, wherein it was reſolved to make War againſt Selymus the Turkiſh Emperor, and ſent Legates to all the Chriſtian Princes, to induce them to the War, and Ordered the preaching up of Indulgencies, with Deſign to raiſe Money by that means, which proved fatal to the Church of Rome, by ſtirring up of John Staupitz, and, by his means, Martin Luther, to oppoſe them, whom the Pope Excommunicated, in 1520, and gave the Title of Defender of the Faith to Henry VIII. of England, for having writ a Book againſt Luther. Some time after, he diſcovered a Conſpiracy againſt his Perſon, by Alphonſus Petrucci Cardinal of Sienna, whom he cauſed to be put to death. In 1521, he made a League with the Emperor Charles V. againſt the French, for the mutual defence of their Dominions, and the reſtoring of Francis Sforza to Milan; and hearing of their good ſucceſs againſt the French, he was ſo overjoyed, that it caſt him into a Fever, whereof he died, Decemb. 2. 1521. having governed the Church of Rome Eight Years, Eight Months, and Twenty Days. This Pope, had a great many good Qualities, and particularly an extraordinary talent at writing Letters; but in general, he is ſaid to have a great deal of alloy, in his Character: to have been ſlender Principl'd, Partial, Ambitious and extreamly Revengeful. Paul Jovius, Spond.

LEO XI. of Florence, of the Family of the Medici's, but not of that of the Great Duke of Tuſcany, was the Son of Octavianus. He was choſen April 1. 1605. being 70 Years of Age, and died the 27th. of the ſame Month. Spond. A. C. 1605.

LEO, Archbiſhop of Achrida, a City of Macedonia, which Juſtinian repaired and called after his own Name Juſtinianea, and which the Turks call Giunſtandil. This Biſhop, being the Metropolitan of Bulgaria and Macedonia, joined himſelf in 1052, with Michael Cerularius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and writ both of them againſt the Church of Rome. Pope Leo IX. excommunicated this Leo in 1055. Conſult Sigebert, Lambert d' Aſchaffemburg, &c. Cited by Baronius A. C. 1054, 1055.

Emperors of the Eaſt of the Name of LEO.

LEO I. Emperor of the Eaſt, called Macelles the Elder, or The Great, was a Thracian, and came to the Empire after Marcianus, by the favour of Aſpar Patricius, Feb. 7. 457. Immediately upon his Election, he confirmed by an Edict what his Predeceſſors had done againſt the Hereticks, and for authorizing of the Council of Chalcedon. He deſigned alſo the convening of a General Council for the Peace of the Church; but the Pope repreſented to him, that it was ſufficient to obſerve the Deciſions of the Council of Chalcedon. He alſo made great Preparations for a War againſt the Vandals, giving the Command of his Forces to Baſiliſcus, the Brother of the Empreſs Verina, who being a Heretick, and corrupted by Money, ſuffered Genſeric to burn his Fleet, which conſiſted of above 1000 Ships of all ſorts; yet the Emperor pardoned him, but finding that all this Miſchief chiefly proceeded from Aſpar and Ardeburus, his great Favourites, he got rid of them; and took away his Daughter, whom he had given in Marriage to the Son of Aſpar, and married her to Zeno Iſauricus. Leo died at Conſtantinople, after a Reign of Seventeen Years, and two Months, in 474. He publiſhed ſeveral Laws, which we have in the Code of Juſtinian, and built ſeveral Churches. Niceph. lib. 29. Evagr. lib. 2. Procop. lib. 1. de Bell. Vandal. Cedrenus in Compend. Marcellin. & Caſſiodor. in Chron.

LEO II. ſurnamed The Younger, was the Son of Ariadne and of Zeno Iſauricus, and Grand-child of Leo the Elder, who declared him Auguſtus, whilſt he was yet in his Cradle, and lived but Ten Months after, dying in Novemb. 474. Wherefore alſo, ſome do not place him in the number of Emperors. There was a report, according to the Relation of ſome Authors, as if Zeno, his Father, had poiſoned him, but without any ſufficient ground. Marcellin. Caſſiodor. in Chron.

LEO III. of Iſauria, ſucceeded Theodoſius III. who voluntarily Abdicated the Empire, to betake himſelf to a Monaſtery. He was Crowned March 25. 717. At the beginning of his Empire, the City of Conſtantinople was beſieged by the Saracens, which Siege laſted three Years, or, as others, two. In 719, he put by Anaſtaſius II. whom the Bulgarians had taken out of a Monaſtery, with a deſign to reſtore him to the Throne. He cauſed his Son Conſtantine to be Crowned, March 31. 720; and in 726, by an Edict, prohibited all manner of Images, and proſecuted the Worſhippers of them; whereupon Pope Gregory II. Excommunicated him. Leo being incenſed, prepared a great Fleet to invade Italy, which was deſtroyed by a Tempeſt. Gregory III. endeavoured to reclaim him, but in vain; wherefore the Pope in a Synod aſſembled at Rome, Excommunicated all thoſe that oppoſed Images. He died of a Dropſie, June 18. 741, after having Reigned 24 Years, 2 Months, and 25 Days, and Conſtantinus Copronymus, his Son, ſucceeded him.

LEO IV. ſurnamed Chazarus, ſucceeded his Father Conſtantinus Copronymus, Sept. 14. 775. He was an Enemy to Images, declared his Son Conſtantius, Cæſar, quieted the Rebellion ſtirred up by his Brother Nicephorus, Converted Teleric, King of the Bulgarians, and entred into Alliance with him, Defeated five Saracen Princes in Syria, and killed 6000 Arabians. He Reigned 5 Years, and 6 Months, and died Septemb. 8. 780, of a burning Fever.

LEO V. ſurnamed The Armenian, was the Son of a mean Perſon called Bardas, and was put into the place of Michael Rangabes, who was forced to quit the Empire, tho', ſome ſay, he renounced it in favour of Leo. He was Crowned by Nicephorus, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, July 11. 813. with general applauſe. He gained a great Victory over the Bulgarians, and declar'd himſelf againſt Image-Worſhip, and removed the Patriarch Nicephorus, who defended it, and put Theodoſius into his place. Pope Paſchal I. Excommunicated him in 818, and all thoſe that were againſt Image-Worſhip. He was Maſſacred on Chriſtmas-Eve, in 820, in the Palace-Chapel, by ſome of the Favourers of Michael the Stammerer; whom Leo intended to have put to death after the Holy-days, but, by this means, he ſucceeded him in the Throne. Leo reigned 7 Years, 5 Months, and 14 Days. Zonaras. Baptiſta Ignatius. Blondus, &c.

LEO VI. ſurnamed The Wiſe, or The Philoſopher, was Emperor from March 886, to June 11. 911. He was the Son of Baſilius the Macedonian, who had cauſed him to be Crowned in 870, by the hands of St. Ignatius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople. The Vertue of Leo, procured him the hatred of a certain Monk called Theodorus Santabarenus, who being in great favour with the Emperor Baſilius, perſwaded him, That his Son was reſolved to murder him, and that he always carried a Dagger about him to effect his Deſign; Baſilius believed him, and cauſed his Son to be ſeized in 779, and would have put him to death, if the Senate and People had not begged his Pardon; which he granted, with much ado, but, for all that, kept him in Priſon ſeven Years. Curopalates, and other Greek Authors, aſſure us, That on a Day when Baſilius made a great Feaſt to his Lords, they heard a Parrot, which was in the Palace-Hall, diſtinctly pronounce theſe Words, Αἶ αἶ, Κύρι Λέων, i. e. Alas, alas, Lord Leo! Which Words, caſt all the Company into a great Surprize and Melancholy; the Emperor demanding the cauſe of it, they told him, That a Bird had been a teaching of them their Duty, to commiſerate the ſad Condition of the Prince Baſilius; pondering theſe Words, he examined the Crime whereof his Son had been accuſed, and finding him innocent, ſet him at liberty, and dying ſoon after, left him Maſter of the Empire. Leo removed Photius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and puniſhed his falſe Accuſer Santabarenus. He had Wars with the Hungarians and Bulgarians, but without Succeſs, and was the firſt that made an Alliance with the Turks againſt his Enemies. The Saracens, in his time, ravaged Sicily, and took the Iſle of Lemnos from him. To get rid of them, he Equipt a great Fleet, and gave the Command of it to Nicetas, who fought the Saracens, the loſs being great on both ſides. Leo having had no Children of three Wives he had married, viz. Theophania, Zoe, and Eudoxia, he eſpouſed a fourth, who was alſo called Zoe, by whom he had Conſtantinus called Porphyrogeneta; for which fourth Marriage the Patriarch Nicholas Excommunicated him, as being contrary to the Councils. He died June 11. 911, having reigned 25 Years, 3 Months, and 10 Days. This great Prince, not without reaſon, ſurnamed The Wiſe, left divers Works behind him; the chief whereof are, An Epiſtle to all Believers, to exhort them to live holily, tranſlated by Fredericus Metius, Biſhop of Termuli, and another Of the Truth of the Chriſtian Faith, writ to the King of the Saracens, tranſlated by Sebaſtian Champier of Lyons. Father James Gretzer in 1600, publiſhed nine Orations of this Emperor's, and Father Combeſis added 10 of them to the Augmentation of the Bibliotheca Patrum, in 1648. Divers have publiſhed other Treatiſes attributed to him, viz. Tactica, ſive de inſtruendis aciebus. Opus Baſilicarum. Novellæ conſtitutiones, &c. Scilitza, Glycas, Manaſſes, Cedrenus.

Kings of Armenia of the Name of LEO.

LEO I. of the Blood of Luſignan, was the Son of Livon III. He died without Children, and left his Uncle Leo II. his Succeſſor, who married Irene of Tarentum, the Wife of Leo I. and by her had Leo III. who fleeing from the Cruelties of the Turks, that had Conquered his Kingdom, and detained his Wife and Children in Captivity, wandered a long time through all the Courts of Europe, to beg aſſiſtance to reſtore him to his Throne, and, at laſt, ſtopt in France, where King Charles VI. gave him an honourable Allowance. He died at Paris in 1393. See Luſignan.

Famous Men of the Name of LEO.

LEO (Ambroſius) an Eminent Phyſician of Nola in the Kingdom of Naples. His Writings are ſufficient Proof, that he wanted neither Genius nor Learning: The moſt conſiderable of them are, The Hiſtory of Nola, in three Books. A Treatiſe call'd, Opus Quæſtionum, &c. Leandr. Alberti Deſcript. Ital. Vand. Lind. De Script. Medic &c.

LEO (Joannes) ſurnamed Africanus, was born at Granada, and when that City was taken in 1491, by Ferdinand and Iſabella, he retired into Africa, and having been a great Traveller in Europe, Aſia and Africa, he writ a Deſcription of Africa in Arabick. Being ſome time after taken by Pirates, he was ſold to a Maſter of a Ship, who preſented him to Pope Leo X. who finding him a Man of Learning, made great account of him, and induced him to embrace the Chriſtian Religion, and the Pope himſelf being his Godfather, gave him the Name of Joannes Leo. Not long after, having attained the Italian Tongue, he Tranſlated his Book of the Deſcription of Africa into that Language, which Joan. Florianus has ſince put into Latin, but not ſo exactly as might have been wiſhed. Marmol in his Deſcription of Africa, hath almoſt wholly tranſcrib'd this Author, without ſo much as once naming him. He was the Author alſo of an Arabick Grammar, and himſelf in his Hiſtory mentions other of his Works, viz. De rebus Mahumeticis. De Lege Mahumetica. Collectio Epitaphiorum quæ ſunt in Africa. De vitis Philoſophorum Arabum, &c. But of all theſe Pieces, we have none but the laſt, which Hottinger cauſed to be printed in 1664, at Zurich. It is ſaid, that John Leo died in 1526. Bodin. in Meth. Hiſt. cap. 4. Bernard. Alderet. lib. 3. Art. Hiſp. & Afric. cap. 5. Nicolaus Antonio Bibl. Hiſp. Joan. Hen. Hottinger in Bibl. Libertus Fromond. Meteor. lib. 5. cap. 3. Voſſ. lib. 3. de Hiſt. Lat.

LEO of Alabanda, a City of Caria, which the Turks now call Eblebanda, was an Orator, whom ſome confound with Leo Byzantinus. He left ſeveral Works, viz. Caricorum, lib. 4. Lyciacorum, lib. 4, &c. and is quoted by Hyginus and Suidas. Some take him to be the ſame with Leo Aſianus, quoted by Cedrenus and Curopalates; but Voſſius ſuppoſeth this latter to be the ſame with Leo Grammaticus, who added ſeven Emperor's Lives to the Hiſtory of Theophanes. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Græc. p. 500. Labbe in append. ad Byzant. Hiſt.

LEO (Byzantinus) a Philoſopher and Diſciple of Plato, lived in the time of Philip of Macedonia, Father of Alexander the Great, An. Rom. 400. He was frequently employed by his fellow Citizens in important Embaſſies to the City of Athens, and to King Philip Philoſtratus tells us, That upon a time being in a Diſcourſe with Philip, he asked him, Why he deſired to make himſelf Maſter of Byzantium? To which the King anſwered, Becauſe he loved it. Leo preſently replied, That Lovers uſed to make Love not with Warlike, but Muſical Inſtruments. Philip, afterwards perceiving that Leo was a great hinderance to his taking of the City, by the wiſe Counſel he gave to his fellow Citizens, the better to get rid of him, ſent a Letter to the Citizens, that Leo had offered to betray their City to him, which they believing, came in a tumultuary manner and ſurrounded his Houſe; whereupon he, out of fear, hanged himſelf. He was much given to Jeſting and witty Replies. Being on a time reproached by a Perſon that had a hunch Back, for his dim ſightedneſs, he anſwered, You have your Anſwer on your back. Another time, being ſent to Athens, to endeavour to re-unite the Citizens who were fallen into Diſcord; at his entring the Senate, he perceived that they began to laugh at his Corpulency, juſt as he was about to begin his Speech to them; whereupon, without being in the leaſt diſcountenanced, he ſaid, You laugh to ſee me ſo fat, but ſhould you ſee my Wife, you would laugh much more, for ſhe is much fatter. (Whereupon, when they broke out into a far greater laughter) And yet (continued he) tho' we be ſo Burly, when we are in good humour, one Bed will make a ſhift to hold us, but when ever we chance to fall out, the whole City of Byzantium is ſcarce big enough for us. With this piece of Rallery, he brought the Athenians to good underſtanding again. He writ ſeveral Works cited frequently by the Ancients. Philoſtratus lib. 1. de Vit. ſoph. hiſt. Plutar. Athenæus, Suidas. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Græc. lib. 1. cap. 8.

LEO of Modena, a Venetian Rabbi, of whom we have a ſmall Treatiſe writ in Italian, whoſe Title is, Hiſtoria de riti Hebraici, vita & oſſervanze de gli Hebræi diqueſti Tempi, wherein he briefly ſets forth the Cuſtoms and Ceremonies of the Jews. Father Simon hath tranſlated it, and added two Supplements to it, the one concerning the Sect of the Caraites, the other concerning that of the Modern Samaritans, which are two very curious Pieces taken out of Manuſcripts.

LEOCRATES, General of the Athenians, renowned for his Valour. He defeated the Corinthians and Epidamnians, and having ravaged the Coaſts of Peloponneſus, he obtained two Victories near the Promontory of Cecryphalus. See Diod. Sicul.

LEOMINSTER, or LIMSTER, a large, ancient, and pleaſant Borough-Town, on the River Lug in Herefordſhire, ſeated in a fruitful Soil, and hath ſeveral Bridges on the River which runs through it. 'Tis famed for its Wooll, which is ſo extraordinary fine, that it is called Limſter Ore. It is 136 Miles from London.

LEON; Lat. Regnum Legionenſe, an ancient Kingdom of Spain, called the Kingdom of Leon and Oviedo, which were the two principal Cities of it. This Kingdom is bounded on the Eaſt with Biſcay, on the North by the Cantabrian Ocean, on the South by Caſtile, and on the Weſt by Galicia. The Country is Mountainous, and full of Woods, and is divided into two Parts by the River Duero. Its Capital City is Leon, called by the Romans, Legio Germanica. It was built in the Reign of Nerva, and is a Biſhop's See, under the Metropolis of Compoſtella, yet ſo far exempted, that the Biſhop of it acknowledgeth no Metropolitan, but the Pope. It ſtands at the bottom of an Hill, by the Fountains of the River Eſla, and is a great City, tho' not much Peopled, lying 12 Miles from the Ocean to the South, and 21 from Valodolid to the North-Weſt. Its Cathedral is accounted the faireſt in all Spain. This City was recovered from the Moors in 722. The other Cities of this Kingdom are, Aſtorga, Avila, Cividad, Rodrigo, Salamanca, famous for its Univerſity; Palencia, Medina del Campo, and Toro. Auguſtus Cæſar was the firſt Roman that Conquered this Kingdom, (which anciently was called Aſturia, from the Aſtures, and old People that poſſeſſed it.) The Goths outed the Romans, after 500 Years poſſeſſion of it; and after 400 more, the Saracens and Moors did as much for the Goths; but the Saracens did not long enjoy it; for Pelagius, a young Prince of this Nation, of Gothick Extraction, recovered it from them, in 722, and poſſeſſed it under the Title of King of Oviedo, his Succeſſors being ſo called, till Ordienno II. who took the Title of King of Leon, and died in 923. It continued a ſeparate Kingdom, till in 1228 Ferdinand III. annexed it to Caſtile (he being married to Berenguela, ſecond Siſter to Henry King of Caſtile, tho' in prejudice of Blanche, the Eldeſt Siſter, married to Lewis VIII. King of France. This Kingdom is about 55 Leagues in length from South to North, and about 40 in breadth. It abounds with Wine, but is ſcarce in Corn. There are Turquoiſes found about Zamora; and about 100 Years ago, a Valley called Vatuegas was diſcovered here amongſt the Mountains, which was never known ſince the time of the Mooriſh Invaſion. The Rivers of this Kingdom, beſides the Duero, which parts it in two, are the Torto, Piſvegra and Tormes. Mariana. Turquet.

LEON (St. Paul de Leon) or LEONDOUL, Lat. Leona, Leonum, or Civitas Oſiſmorum, a City of Britany in France, on the North ſhoar of that Province, 33 Leagues from Rennes to the Weſt, 10 from Treguier, and 11 from Breſt to the North. It is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Tours. It is well fortified, and has a Caſtle, and a ſafe Harbour upon the Britiſh Sea, and was, heretofore, the Seat of the Dukes of Britany. Cæſar makes mention of the Oſiſmi, or Oſiſmii, whoſe Capital City was Vorganium, or, as others, Vorgium, which being long ſince ruined, this Leon roſe out of its Ruins, tho' others ſay Treguier.

LEON, a City of Cappadocia, which others call Vatiza, and ſome take to be the Poleminium of the Ancients.

LEON, about 12 Leagues from the Shoar of the Pacifick Ocean, and 18 from New Granada to the Eaſt, 109 Leagues from St. Jago de Guatimala to the South-Weſt. Here reſides the Governor of the Province, in which are about 1200 Indians, who pay a Yearly Tribute to the Spaniards. To the North-Eaſt is a burning Mountain, which continually throweth up burnt Stones and Sulphur. It ſtands in a ſandy Ground, fenced round with thick Woods, and was once thought very convenient for managing the Trade between Peru and Europe, by means of the Lake, and a River which falls into the Bay of Hondura at St. Juan, in the Gulph of Mexico, from which it ſtands but 70 Leagues to the Weſt. This City (ſaith Mr. Gage, who ſaw it in 1637,) is very curiouſly built, the chief delight of the Inhabitants conſiſting in their Houſes, and in the abundance of all things for the Life of Man, more than in Riches, which are more plentiful in the other Parts of America. 'Tis a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Mexico.

LEONI (Petrus) of Spoleto, a famous Phyſician and Aſtrologer, of whom it is reported, that he drowned himſelf in a Well, becauſe, by his neglect, he had ſuffered Laurentius de Medicis to die, in 1492, but it is more ſure that he was caſt head-long into a Well by others. He hath left behind him a Treatiſe De Urinis, with ſeveral other Pieces.

LEONIDAS I. King of the Lacedæmonians, of the Family of the Agides, famous for his Prudence and Valour; he courageouſly defended the Streights of Thermopylæ, againſt Xerxes his vaſt Army, with 300 Men only; who, indeed, loſt their lives, but at the ſame time got an Immortal Glory. When at his leaving Sparta, to go to the Army, his Wife asked him, Whether he had any thing elſe to recommend to her: Nothing, ſaid he, but that after my Death you marry ſome Brave Fellow, that you may have Children like me. When ſome, ſpeaking of the prodigious Army of Xerxes, ſaid, That the Perſians would darken the Sun with their Arrows, All the better, ſaid he, then we ſhall fight in the ſhade. When Xerxes ſent him word, That if he would make his Peace with him, he would beſtow upon him the Empire of Greece, I had rather, ſaid he, die for my Country, than be a Tyrant over it. Being demanded why brave Men preferred Death before Life: Becauſe, ſaid he, they have the one of Fortune, but the other of Virtue. This Battel at the Thermopylæ, where Leonidas was killed, happened in the Firſt Year of the LXXVth Olympiad, An. Rom. 274. Herod. Polyhymn. Juſtin. lib. 2. Valer. Max. lib. 3. cap. 2. ex. 31. Plutarch, Diodor. Euſeb.

LEONIDAS II. King of the Lacedæmonians, of the Family of the Agides. He was the Succeſſor of Areus II. but about what time, is not known, ſave only that Cleombrotus reigned after him. See AGIS III. Meurſius de Regno Laconico.

LEONINUS, or LEEW (Engelbertus) Chancellor of Guelderland, where he was born. He was in great Eſteem in the XVIth. Century, and a Profeſſor of the Law at Lovain. The Cardinal of Granville, the Dutcheſs of Parma, and other great Perſons, made uſe of his Advice in all Buſineſs of Importance; and afterwards declaring himſelf for William Prince of Orange, he contributed much towards the Eſtabliſhment of the New Common-wealth of the States of Holland. He died at Arnhem, Novemb. 30. 1598. Aged 79. The following Books were of his Compoſing. Conſilia Emendationum ſive obſervationum lib. 7. Notæ in V. libr. Decret. Comment. in libr. 5, 6, 7, 8. Pandectarum, &c. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Thuanus.

LEONTINI, a very ancient City of Sicily, 18. Miles S. W. of Catana, 28 N. of Syracuſa.

LEONTINUS, or LEONTAIN (Alanus) Preſident of the Court of Juſtice of Sicily, in 1285, who was the Contriver of the Sicilian Veſpers. He had a mind afterwards to make his Peace with the French, but the Sicilians being informed thereof, cauſed him to be ſeized by the Spaniards, who caſt him into Priſon, where he periſhed for a Reward of his Treaſon. Ludov. Mayerne Turquet Hiſt. Hiſpan.

LEONTIUS, Biſhop of Frejus, lived in the IVth. and Vth. Century. 'Tis commonly ſuppoſed, that he was the Succeſſor of Acceptus. The Tradition of the Church of Frejus tells us, That he was a Martyr; which ſeems the more probable, becauſe the Cathedral is Dedicated to his Name; for the Cuſtom of Old was, not to Conſecrate their Baſilicæ to the Honour of any, but ſuch as were Martyrs; and 'tis likely he ſuffered under the Vandals, about 444, or 445. See Joſephus Anthelmus in his Book De initiis Eccleſiæ Forojulenſis. Baron. in Annales. Du Sauſſai in Martyr. Gall. Vincent. Barralis in Chron. Lirin. Gueſnay.Caſiar illuſtr. Du Foru. in vit. St. Leontii. Savaron. & Sirmond. in not. ad Sidon. Sanmarthan. &c.

LEONTIUS II. of this Name, Biſhop of Bourdeaux, was born of a Noble Family of Aquitain, and had for his Wife Placidina, who was of Kin to ſeveral Emperors, and was afterwards choſen Biſhop of Bourdeaux. He aſſiſted at divers Councils. In the IIId. of Paris, the Biſhops had prohibited any Biſhops or Clerks, to make uſe of the King's Authority to obtain Biſhopricks; and one Emeritus having been made Biſhop of Xaintes, by the favour of Clotharius I. againſt the Conſent of the Metropolitan, his Suffragans, and the Clergy, after the King's Death, Leontius convened a Council in the City of Xaintes, where Emeritus was Depoſed, as having been choſen contrary to the Canonical Form.

LEONTIUS, Biſhop of Naples in Cyprus, which is Lemiſſa, or Nemoſia, and not Famagouſta. He lived at the beginning of the VIIth Century, till about 620. He writ the Life of St. Joannes Eleemoſynarius. Roſweyd the Jeſuit ſhews, that Baronius, Poſſevin, and others, were miſtaken in attributing to him a Treatiſe of the Wars of his Time, tho' he was the Author of ſome other Pieces, viz. Of the Transfiguration, Two Orations upon St. Simeon, and others which are in the Bibliotheca Patrum. Sixtus Senenſis takes him to be the Author of a Treatiſe againſt the Breakers of Images, but by miſtake. Sigebert de Vir. Illuſt. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl.

LEONTIUS, an Arian Prieſt, and afterwards Biſhop of Antioch, had been the Diſciple of St. Lucian the Martyr. He ſacrificed to Idols to avoid Perſecution in the Time of Diocleſian. 'Tis reported of him, that he made himſelf an Eunuch, to the end he might live, without ſuſpicion, with a certain Woman called Euſtolia, and thereupon was Degraded by Euſtathius, Biſhop of Antioch; after which, he betook himſelf to the Arians, and in the Council which they aſſembled at Antioch in 347, he was made Biſhop of that Church, in the place of Stephen, whom they Depoſed. Leontius died in 356. St. Athan. apol. de fuga. Socrat. lib. 2. Theodoret lib. 2, Nicephor. lib. 8. Baron. A. C. 311, 325, 347, 356.

LEONTIUS (Patricius) of the Eaſt, and afterwards Emperor, had been General of the Army to Juſtinianus Rhinotmetus; but afterwards upon the Accuſations of his Enemies, the ſaid Emperor caſt him into Priſon, and kept him there three Years, till 694, or 695. After he was ſet at liberty, he diſpoſſeſt Juſtinian, and ſet himſelf upon the Throne, and continued therein, till about 698, when Abſimarus cut off his Noſe and Ears, and thruſt him into a Monaſtery, and was afterward beheaded by Juſtinian in 705. See Juſtinian Rhinotmetus.

LEONTIUS (Patricius) of the Eaſt, cauſed himſelf to be Crowned King, in oppoſition to the Emperor Zeno, in 482, being favoured by Verina, the Wife of Leo the Elder, who cauſed him to be Proclaimed without the Gates of the City Tarſus in Cilicia, whither ſhe had been baniſhed, and delivered by Illus, who was a Partner in this Conſpiracy. They were both of them Beheaded, and their Heads carried to Conſtantinople, in 488. Nicephor. lib. 16. Evagr. lib. 3. Jornandes.

LEONTIUS (Scholaſticus) that is to ſay, A Lawyer, or, as others, A Prieſt of Conſtantinople, lived in the VIth Century, and became an Hermit or Solitary in Palæſtine. He writ a Treatiſe of the Sects of Hereticks, and another of the Council of Chalcedon, in 10 Chapters. A Collection of his Works may be ſeen in the Bibliotheca Patrum. There are alſo attributed to him three Books againſt the Eutychians and Neſtorians, two againſt the Apollinariſts, and others, which P. Turrianus hath Tranſlated out of Greek into Latin. Theſe Pieces are to be met with in the Bibliotheca Patrum, and in the IVth Volume of Caniſius Antiquæ Lectiones. Baron. in Annal. Bellarm. de Script. Eccleſ. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Græc. Some Authors have ſuppoſed this Leontius to be the ſame that is mentioned by Baſilius in the Life of St. Sabas, cap. 9. But he being an Origeniſt, and a Follower of Theodorus of Mopſueſta, could not be this Leontius, who hath writ againſt theſe Hereſies. Neither can he be the ſame with Leontius of Cyprus, who lived till 620, whereas this of Conſtantinople died in 588. It is more probable, that this Leontius is the ſame who writ De Duplici Natura in Chriſto, contra Hæreſin Monophyſitarum, with a Diſputation againſt an Arrian Philoſopher, which is a Manuſcript in the Emperor's Library at Vienna.

LEONTIUS of Conſtantinople, one of the Continuators of Theophanes, who wrote the Lives of Leo Armenius, of Michael the Stammerer, of Theophilus, of Michaël his Son and Leo the Wiſe. This Work was recovered out of the Library of Cardinal Francis Barbarini, and inſerted into the Body of the Byzantine Hiſtorians.

LEOPARD (Paul) a Man of Learning in the XVIth Century, born at Iſemberg in the Territory of Furnes in Flanders. He was a conſiderable Maſter of the Greek and Latin Tongues, as appears by his Philological Works, Intituled, Miſcellaneorum, ſive Emendationum, lib. 20. Moſt part of which was publiſh'd by Gruterus, after his Death. Thuanus Hiſt. lib. 41. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

LEOPOLD, the Son of Leopoldus the Fair, the fifth Marquiſs of Auſtria, and of the Princeſs Itha, Daughter to the Emperor Henry III. He ſucceeded to his Father's Eſtate in 1096, and began his Military Apprenticeſhip under the Emperor Henry IV. who Warred with his Son Henry V. in 1104, but that Emperor being Excommunicated, he took part with Henry V. whoſe Siſter he afterwards married. Her Name was Agnes, and had been the Wife of Frederick, Duke of Suevia, by whom he had Conrade (who was afterwards Emperor) and Frederick, the Father of Frederick Barbaroſſa. This Marriage was celebrated in 1106, and they had 18 Children, viz. Eight Boys and Ten Girls. His Valour and Virtue made the Electors pitch upon him for one of the Candidates, whom they deſigned to make King of the Romans, (Frederick, Duke of Saxony, and Charles, Count of Flanders, being the other two) to ſucceed Henry V. but the Intereſt of Lotharius prevailing, he was put by. He died in 1136, and was Canonized by Pope Innocent VIII. in 1485. Surius Tom. VI.

LEOPOLD, Emperor, Archduke of Auſtria, the Son of Ferdinand III. and of Mary of Auſtria, Siſter of Philip IV. of Spain, was born June 9. 1640, choſen King of the Romans in 1654, and of Hungary in 1655, Emperor in 1658, and Crowned at Francfort. The Name given him at the Font was, Leopoldus-Ignatius-Franciſcus-Balthazar-Joſephus-Felicianus. His firſt Wife was, Margaret-Mary-Thereſa of Auſtria, the Daughter of Philip IV. of Spain, and of Mary Anne of Auſtria, his ſecond Wife. He was married a ſecond time in 1673, to Claudia-Felicitia of Auſtria-Inſpruck, who dying, April 8. 1676, he was married a third time to Anne-Mary-Joſepha of Nieuburg, the Daughter of Philip-William, Prince Palatine of Nieuburg, and of his ſecond Wife, Elizabeth-Amelia of Heſſe, by whom he had, July 27. 1678, a Son named Joſeph-James-John-Ignatius-Euſtachius, who was Crowned King of Hungary, and of the Romans, in 1687, and 1689, with other Children. He hath been very happy in his Wars againſt the Turks, having by his Generals recovered almoſt all Hungary, and had made a much greater progreſs, had he not been diverted by the Miſunderſtandings and Diviſions of Chriſtian Princes. Leti Hiſtoria dell' Imperio.

LEOPOLDUS, Marquiſs of Auſtria, ſignalized himſelf amongſt other Chriſtian Lords and Knights, at the Siege and Taking of the City of Acre, or Acon in Phœnicia, in 1191, eſpecially in an Aſſault made by him at the Head of the moſt valiant of the Army, all cloathed in White, wherein he attack'd the Infidels with that bravery, that they were forced to give way, and leave the Town to the Chriſtians; from which Enterprize he returned, having his white Coat all ſtained with Blood, no part of it retaining its white Colour, ſave that which had been covered with his Belt. To eternize the Memory of which glorious Action, the Emperor Henry VI. gave him leave to bear for his Arms, Gules, a feſs Argent, which is ſtill worn by the Houſe of Auſtria to this day, tho' this Leopoldus were not of the Family that Reigns at preſent, but of that which preceded, being poſſeſs'd of that Dignity before the time of Rodolph of Hapsburg, who was the Head of the preſent Auſtrian Family. Lipſ. in Epiſt. ad Biagium Hueterum, Cuſpinian.

LEOPOLSTADT, a very ſtrong City in Upper Hungary, Metropolis of the County of Neytra, ſubject to the Emperor. It ſtands upon the River Waag, 28 Miles N. of New-Hawſel, and 84 N. W. of Buda.

LEOSTHENES, an Athenian Captain, who perſwaded his fellow Citizens to recover their Liberty, after the Death of Alexander the Great, An. Rom. 430, who following his Advice, took the Field under his Conduct, and beat Antipater, forcing him to ſhut himſelf up in the City of Lamia. Leoſthenes laid Siege to it, and was killed before it, with the blow of a Stone, in 431, and was publickly praiſed in Athens, in a Funeral Oration, by the Orator Hyperides. Plutarch, Juſtin, &c.

LEOTYCHIDES, King of the Lacedæmonians, was joint General of the Greeks with Xantippus, and gained a Victory over the Perſians at Sea, near to Mycale, which is a Promontory of the Continent over-againſt the Iſle of Samos. He died after a Reign of 22 Years, and Archelaus ſucceeded him. His death is placed about the LXXVIth Olympiad, An. Rom. 278.

LEOTYCHIDES, Prince, and afterwards King of Sparta, of the Family of the Eurypontides. King Demaratus having taken away the Princeſs Percala, whom Leotychides was about to marry, he being incenſed thereat, induced King Cleomenes to take his part, and with their united Intereſt, got Demaratus Depoſed. Leotychides being put into his place, immediately Equipt a Fleet, and paſſing over into Aſia Minor, Defeated the Perſians, the ſame Day that Mardonius, General of Xerxes's Army, was defeated near Platea, by Pauſanias and Ariſtides, the Athenian and Lacedæmonian Generals. After this Victory he marched into Theſſaly, againſt a King of the Family of the Alevades; but being offered a great Sum of Money, his Covetouſneſs put a ſtop to his Conqueſts. Whereupon, being accuſed before the Ephori, he was forced to flee for Refuge into the Temple of Minerva, at Taga, where he died. He had a Son Zeuxidamus, who dying before him, Archidamus, his Grandchild, reigned in his ſtead. Herodotus. Pauſanias.

LEOVIGILDUS, or LEUVIGILDUS, King of the Goths in Spain, after his Brother Leuva, or Liuba, who reſigned the Crown to him in 568. He was the Son of Athenagildus; and in 572, took Corduba, with ſome other conſiderable Cities. He had two Wives, by the former of whom he had two Sons, Hermenegildus and Ricaredus, whom he made his Aſſociates in the Government of the Empire, after the Death of his Brother Leuva, in 573. All theſe Princes were Arrians: But Hermenegildus having married Ingonda, the Daughter of Sigebert King of France, he, by her Perſwaſion, quitted Arianiſm: At which, Leovigildus was extreamly incenſed, and not only perſecuted the Orthodox, but alſo cauſed his Son to be put to death, and died the ſame Year himſelf, viz. in 586, or, according to the Spaniſh Account, in 624. Joan. de Billaro & Iſidor. in Chron. Gregor. Turonenſ. lib. 5. Hiſt. Franc.

LEPANTO, Lat. Naupactus, a City of Ætolia, (now Livadia) a Country of Achaia, called by the Turks Enebachri. It is ſeated near the Entrance of the Weſtern Bay of Corinth, now called the Gulf of Lepanto. The City is built on the South-ſide of a Mountain formed like a Sugar-loaf, on the top of which is a ſtrong Caſtle, ſurrounded with four ſtrong Walls, ſet at ſome diſtance one above another; between which Walls the Inhabitants have their Houſes, and by them the City is divided into four Parts. The Port is very handſome and beautiful, and may be ſecured by a Chain. The Mouth of it is ſo ſtrait, it will hold but a few Ships, and thoſe cannot go out and in at ſome Times neither for want of Water. It is ſeated in a pleaſant Country, full of delightful Gardens; and has on the Eaſt-ſide a fine River, which ſerves their Mills, then their Gardens, and afterwards all the City and Seamen. The Wine of Lepanto is the beſt of all Greece; but they pitch their Veſſels, as they generally do over all the Morea, and at Athens, to preſerve the Wine, (as the Germans and Hollanders are wont to ſulphurate them for the ſame purpoſe) which renders the Taſte at firſt ſomewhat diſagreeable to Strangers. The Turks have ſix or ſeven Moſques here, and the Greeks have two Churches, one in each Suburb, tho' very ſmall, and they but few in Number, and are but ill treated; for which reaſon, their Archbiſhop alſo keeps his Reſidence at Arta. The Jews have three Synagogues. The chiefeſt Commodities of the Place are, Leather, Oil, Wheat, Tabaco, Rice and Barley; but the moſt conſiderable of all the reſt is Turkey-Leather. In 1408, this City was under the Emperor of Greece, but Emanuel, then Emperor, aſſigned it to the Venetians, who took care to fortifie it as it is now. In 1475, Mahomet the Great, the ſame that took Conſtantinople, having gained Corinth, beſieged it with an Army of 30000 Men, but was forced to raiſe the Siege. But in 1498, Bajazet II. attacked it with an Army of 150000 Men, and took it, having corrupted the Venetian Governor with Money. In 1687, the Venetians having in the foregoing Years almoſt beat the Turks out of the reſt of the Morea, their General Moroſini landed near Patras, July 22. notwithſtanding all the Oppoſition of the Seraſquier, whom he fought and defeated on the 24th; and having taken Patras, and the Dardanel-Caſtle on that ſide, (ſo called in Alluſion to thoſe of the Helleſpont) he croſſed to the other, to Lepanto, where he found the Turks making haſte to empty the Place for him; whereupon he took Poſſeſſion of it without ſtriking a Blow. The Venetians found in the Place 120 Braſs Canon. But by the Peace of Carlowitz in 1699, the Fortreſs of Lepanto was evacuated by the Republick of Venice, and the Caſtle called Romelia demoliſhed on that ſide next Lepanto. It was near the Gulf of Lepanto that that famous Sea-Fight was fought againſt the Turks, Octob. 2. 1571. in which they loſt above 30000 Men, being the moſt bloody Defeat they ever met with ſince the firſt Eſtabliſhment of their Empire. Beſides the Slaughter, the Chriſtians took 5000 Priſoners, amongſt whom were the two Sons of Hali, General of the Turkiſh Fleet: They took 130 Galleys, above 90 were ſtranded, burnt, or ſunk, and near 20000 Chriſtian Slaves were redeemed from Slavery. Neither was the Booty leſs conſiderable; for their Fleet had been pillaging all the Iſles thereabouts, and taken many Merchant-men. This Battel was fought in the ſame Gulf where Auguſtus defeated Mark Anthony; and it is hard to ſay which of both was the moſt glorious Victory. The Chriſtians loſt 8000 Men, the moſt conſiderable whereof was Barbarigo, Commander of the Left Wing; who having broke through the Right Wing of the Enemy, ſoon after received the Shot of an Arrow in his Right Eye, whereof he died not long after. The Fight laſted from about Six in the Morning till Evening, when the approaching Darkneſs, and the roughneſs of the Sea, obliged the Victorious to betake themſelves to the next Havens; whence they diſpatched Couriers to all Chriſtian Courts, with the News of this happy Victory. So ſtrange a Conſternation had ſeized the Turks, upon the News of this dreadful Overthrow, that had but the Chriſtian Fleet appeared along the Coaſt of the Morea, there is no Queſtion but that the Greeks, who had long ſighed for this happy Opportunity, would have ſhaken off the Mahometan Yoke. But the Venetian Admiral Venieri, who, after the Fight was over, was left ſole Commander of the Fleet, by his Delays and Irreſolution, was an Occaſion of loſing the great Advantages that might have been reaped from this Succeſs. The City of Conſtantinople was as much alarm'd, as if the Enemy had been at their Gates; and Solyman, who was then at Adrianople, poſted thither, to allay the Fears of the Inhabitants; many of which carried their Treaſures to the Chriſtians to keep for them, as if the Town had been already in their hands. The principal Circumſtances of that famous Fight were as follow. The Turks being at Anchor at Lepanto, and hearing that the Chriſtians bore down from Corfu full Sail upon them, ſent Barks in great diligence to all the Ports of the Gulf for Sea-men and Soldiers, and re-inforced their Fleet with all the Men they had; and upon Advice that the Chriſtian Fleet had got above the Iſle Cephalonia, they weighed Anchor to block the Paſſage. The Ottoman Fleet, Commanded by Hali Baſhaw, conſiſted of 200 Galleys, 70 Frigats and Brigantines. The Chriſtian Fleet was compoſed of 210 Galleys, 28 great Tranſport-Ships, and 6 Galeaſſes furniſhed with heavy Artillery; all commanded in chief by Don John of Auſtria, Natural Brother to Philip II. of Spain; Mark Anthony Colonna, General of the Pope's Galleys, who was to Command in chief in the Abſence of Don John; John Venieri was General of the Venetians, and had on Board the Flower of the Nobility of Venice, as the other two had the chief young Gentlemen of Spain, and of the Pope's Territories; all which ſerved as Voluntiers. The Turks having got into the Gulf in the Night, caſt Anchor at Galengo, and the Chriſtians between Petala and the Curſolaires; and both quitted their Poſts the next Morning, at Break of Day, and found themſelves engaged to fight ere they were aware of it. The Chriſtians divided their whole Fleet into four Bodies, or Squadrons: The Right Wing was compoſed of 54 Galleys, commanded by Andreas Doria; the Left Wing conſiſted of a like Number, under Auguſtine Barbarigo; Don John of Auſtria kept the Centre with 61 Ships, and had for Seconds Colonna and Venieri. The Son of the Duke of Urbin, in the Ship called The Duke of Savoy, joined the Admiral of the Pope's Fleet; and Alexander of Parma, in the Admiral of Genoua, that of the Venetians. Peter Juſtiniani, who commanded the Galleys of Maltha, and Paul Jourdain, were poſted at the Extremities of this Line. The Marquis of Sainte Croix had a Body of Reſerve of 60 Ships, to ſuſtain or relieve any that ſhould be forced to give way. John of Cordova, with a Squadron of 8 Ships, ſcoured before, to Spy, and give Intelligence; and the 6 Venetian Galeaſſes formed a kind of Avant-Guard. The two Armies at Sun-riſe were ſeparated by the Curſolair-Iſlands; and a little after, the Turks appeared almoſt in the ſame Form of Battel, only that they had no Reſerve-Squadron, and therefore their Line was far the wider, and was, according to their way, in form of a Creſcent. Hali was in the Centre, directly againſt Don John of Auſtria; Petauch was his Second: Louchali and Siroch, Commanders of the two Wings, faced Doria and Barbarigo, being 12 Miles aſunder. Don John gave the Signal to fight, by hanging out the Banner ſent him to Naples from the Pope, which had the Image of Chriſt crucified embroidered on it; and then the Officers making the Sign for Prayers, all put themſelves on their Knees. In the mean time, the Fleets drew near to each other, the Turks having a freſh Gale of Wind, which flagged juſt as the Fight begun; and turning ſomewhat of the Chriſtians Side, carried the Smoak of their Artillery upon the Enemy. After three hours obſtinate Fight, with equal Advantage, the Left Wing, commanded by Barbarigo, got the better, and ſunk the Galley Siroch was in, who had fought to Admiration. This loſs ſo diſ-ſpirited the Squadron he commanded, that being vigorouſly preſſed by the Venetians, it gave way, and made towards the Coaſt. The Noiſe of this Succeſs coming to Don John of Auſtria, as he begun to have the better of Hali, being jealous that the Venetians ſhould have the Honour of the Victory, doubled his Fire; and having killed Hali, boarded his Galley, pulled his Flag down, and cried, Victory: After which, there was no Fight, but perfect Slaughter; the Turks ſuffering their Throats to be cut, without making the leaſt Reſiſtance. Doria, who commanded the Right Wing, wanting Ships to make an equal Front to Louchali, kept out to Sea with his Galleys; Louchali purſued, and took ſome of them, and then deſigned to attack the main Fleet; but obſerving that Doria, and the Marquis of Sainte Croix, ſtrove to come up to him, he made all the Sail he could away, and got off with 30 Galleys; all the reſt being either taken, or ſunk. Petauch made his Eſcape alſo through the Chriſtian Fleet, in a Boat, undiſcovered. Gratiani Hiſt. de Cypre.

LEPIDUS (M. Æmilius) a Roman Commander, of an Illuſtrious Family, and who had diſcharged ſome of the moſt honourable Offices in the Commonwealth; for he was High-Prieſt, and afterwards thrice Conſul. During the Diſorders that reigned in the City, he put himſelf at the Head of an Army, and became one of the Triumviri: And Hiſtorians tell us, he did it only with deſign to enrich himſelf, and to this end committed moſt barbarous Cruelties; and was ſo inhumane, as to put his own Brother amongſt the proſcribed Perſons. After the Battel which Auguſtus gained over Sextus Pompeius, Lepidus, who favoured Pompey, deſigned to conquer Sicily, and to this end ſeized Meſſina, but was ſoon after fain to ſubmit to the Conqueror, who baniſhed him to an obſcure City of Italy, in the CLXXXVth Olympiad, and An. Rom. 718. Plutarch, in the Lives of Auguſtus and Antonius. Florus, lib. 4. Dion. lib. 41, 47, & 49. Sueton. Orſius. Juſtin. Appian. The Family of the Lepidi was a Branch of the Æmilii. M. Æmilius Paulus, Conſul in 499, was an Off-ſpring of this Branch of the Lepidi and Pauli. His Son M. Æm. Lepidus, was Conſul in 522, who left M. Æm. Lepidus High-Prieſt and Conſul in 567, and Cenſor in 574. His Son of the ſame Name was Conſul in 617, and made two Branches of the Lepidi, by M. Lepidus and Quintus, his two Sons. M. Æm. Lepidus was Conſul in 628, and left M. Æm. Lepidus Livianus, Conſul in 677, and Father of another, who was Conſul in 688. This laſt had a Son of the ſame Name, who was Conſul in 733. Quintus Lepidus, who made the other Branch, had a Son Conſul in 676, with Q. Lutatius Catulus. Sylla, who had oppoſed his Election, died ſoon after, and Lepidus would have hinder'd him from having the publick Honours of Burial; but Catulus, his Collegue, and an old Friend of Sylla, oppoſed him therein; and having obtained Leave of the Senate, he buried him with great Magnificence: Which Lepidus taking, as if it had been to inſult over him, put himſelf at the Head of ſome Troops, and appearing before the Gates of Rome, afrighted the Senate; but Pompey's Succeſs made him take other Meaſures, and he died ſoon after. He left two Sons, Lepidus the Triumvir, and P. Æm. Lepidus, Cenſor, An. Rom. 732, whom his Brother proſcribed, as I have ſaid. The former had a Son, whom Mecænas cauſed to be put to death, for conſpiring againſt Auguſtus. And the latter had M. Æm. Lepidus, Conſul in 764, and A. C. 11. with T. Statilius Taurus. Tit. Liv. Caſſidor. Plutarch. Vell. Paterc. Cicero. Pliny. Polyb. Dionyſ. Appian. Florus.

LEPORIUS, a Prieſt who ſpread Pelagianiſm amongſt the Gauls at the beginning of the Vth Century, and laid the Foundation of the Neſtorian Hereſie; for he taught, That the Bleſſed Virgin brought forth nothing but a Man, who afterwards, by his good Works, had deſerved to be united to the Son of God; ſo that there always continued two Perſons in Jeſus Chriſt. But Leporius afterwards coming into Africa, St. Auſtin convinced him of his Error. His Converſion was ſo famous, that he writ two Letters about it, filled with ſuch ſignal Marks of his Humility and Repentance, that Caſſian ſaith, That his Amendment was as praiſe-worthy, as the Purity of the Faith in others. Caſſian, lib. 1. & 7. de Incarn. Chriſti. Gennad. de Vir. illuſtr. cap. 59. Baron. A.C. 420.

LEPTINES, Brother to Dionyſius the Tyrant, who was killed in a Fight againſt the Carthaginians. There was another of the ſame Name, that was one of Demetrius's Captains, who put to death Cn. Octavius, the Roman Ambaſſador. Alſo Leptines the Orator, againſt whom Demoſthenes made one of his Orations.

LERICÆA, or LERICE, a ſmall City of Italy, upon the Coaſt of Genoua, lying Eaſt from Seſtri de Levante, and about 4 or 8 Miles from Sarzana. It is ſuppoſed to be the Portus Ericis of Ptolemy, and Antoninus's Itinerary. It has a Gulf, which is only ſeparated by a long, narrow Neck or Slip of Land, from that of Spezza. It is ſituate at the Foot of Rocks, and hath no Proſpect but towards the Sea.

LERIDA, or ILERDA, a City of Catalonia in Spain, which, in the Roman Times, was the Capital of that part of Spain they called Tarraconenſis. It is a ſtrong Place, built upon a riſing Ground, but declining to the River Segre; taken from the Moors in 1143, and made a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Tarragona. It is alſo an Univerſity. This City is famous for the many Sieges it hath ſuffered, and the Battel fought under its Walls, during the Wars between Spain and France. In an Attack the French made upon it in 1646, they were beaten off, and loſt all their Cannon. This City lies 24 Spaniſh Miles from Saragoza to the Eaſt, 7 from the River Ebro to the North, and 29 from Barcelona to the Weſt. Long. 21. 31. Lat. 42. 20. In 514, eight Biſhops met at Lerida, and held a Council; whereof we have 15 Canons, and ſome Fragments. This was under the Reign of Theodoricus King of the Oſtrogoths in Italy, and Tutor to Almarick King of the Viſigoths in Spain.

LERINS (De) two Iſles of the Mediterranean Sea, upon the Coaſt of Provence, not far from one another: They lie over-againſt Cannes, towards Antibes. Ptolemy and Strabo call them Planaſia, and Lero: Pliny and Antonine, Lero and Lerina. Lero is the biggeſt of the two, which is now called Sainte Marguerite. Planaſia, or Lerina, is the leſſer, now called The Iſle of St. Honoratus, from the famous Monaſtery that Saint founded, which is yet ſtanding. Tacitus tells us, That Auguſtus baniſhed his Nephew Agrippa to this Iſland. The Monaſtery is ſaid to have been founded here by St. Honoratus in 375, who exterminated the Serpents, which were the cauſe of its being deſart, and uninhabited; and procured it a Fountain of freſh Water, which before it wanted. He was afterwards Archbiſhop of Arles. And this Solitude was, for ſeveral Centuries after, the Seminary of the Biſhops of Provence, and neighbouring Places. The Air of the Iſland is very temperate, and the Soil fertile. The Spaniards took theſe Iſles in September 1635, but were driven out again in May 1637. 'Tis they who laid it deſolate, and cut down whole Foreſts of Pines, that afforded a grateful Shade againſt the heat of the Sun, and which Nature had ranged in Walks; at the end of which were Oratories built, in honour of the Abbots and Monks of the Iſland. The Turks have ſo great a Reſpect for the Monks that live here, that they never make any Deſcent, tho' it be very eaſie, if they were ſo minded. The Monks that live here are of the Order of St. Benedict, and are united to the Congregation of Mount Caſſin. The Monaſtery was formerly under the Juriſdiction of the Biſhop of Frejus, but now is under the Dioceſs of Graſſe. *Vincent Bartalis, in Chronol. Lirin. Sanmart. Gall. Chriſt. Caſaub. ſup. LEROS, an Iſle of the Ægean Sea, with a City of the ſame Name, which formerly was an Epiſcopal See. It abounds with Aloes. Strab. lib. 10. Magin. Geograph.

LESCHES, a Greek Poet of Lesbos, liv'd about the XXXth Olympiad, in the 95th Year of Rome. He wrote the little Iliad, ſome Verſes of which are cited by the Greek Scholiaſts. Some ſay Pindar did not read him to no purpoſe. Voſſius de Poet. Græc. cap. 3. Euſeb. Chron.

LESCUS, or LESCHUS, a Prince of Poland, about 760. He was before called Primiſlaus, and a Gold-Smith by Profeſſion. After the Death of the Princeſs Venda, there being never a Prince of the Blood-Royal of Poland left, the 12 Palatines were again ſet up to govern the Kingdom; but their Government was but ſhort-liv'd, for the Polanders, who had been often beaten by the Auſtrians and Moravians, were weary of their Adminiſtration. Whereupon, Primiſlaus having got together a Company of Voluntiers, invented this Stratagem: Having made a vaſt Number of Head-pieces and Bucklers, of the Barks of Trees, and painted of a Silver Colour, he cauſed them, in the Night-time, to be fixed on Stakes, and ranged in Order, in the Sight of the Enemy, near to a Wood. At the Break of Day the Enemy ſuppoſed them to be ſome of the Poliſh Forces; whereupon, they advanced to attack them. Primiſlaus ſeeing them coming, cauſed the Helmets and Bucklers to be removed, to repreſent a Flight into the Woods, by which means he drew the Enemy into an Ambuſcade, where they were, in a manner, all of them ſlain; and afterwards falling upon thoſe that were left in the Camp, he defeated them alſo. The Polanders, in Acknowledgment of this brave Action, declared Primiſlaus King of Poland; who took upon him the Name of Leſchus. *Herbert de Fulſtin Hiſtory of the Kings of Poland. LESDIGUIERES, or Francis Bonne Duke of Leſdiguieres, &c. was born at St. Bonnet de Champſaut, in Dauphiné, April 1. 1543. He began to bear Arms when he was yet very young. The firſt Marks he gave of his Valour were, at the Relief of the City of Grenoble, in 1563. He defeated the Inhabitants of Gap, and did great Service to the Proteſtants: And in 1577, was made one of their Commanders in Chief in the Upper Dauphiné, where he took ſeveral Places. King Henry IV. who had put great Truſt in Leſdiguieres whilſt he was only King of Navarre, no ſooner got into the Throne of France, but he made him Lieutenant-General of his Armies in Piedmont, Savoy and Dauphiné; which were always victorious under his Command. He gained many Victories over the Duke of Savoy, and was the main Inſtrument of the Conqueſt of that Dukedom. In Acknowledgment whereof, the King made him Marſhal of France, and raiſed his Eſtate of Leſdiguieres in Dauphiné to a Dukedom and Peerage of France. King Lewis XIII. made him Marſhal-General of the Camp; and ſoon after he Abjured his Religion, which procured him the Place of High-Conſtable of France; and at the ſame time was made Knight of the Royal Orders of France. He commanded the French King's Army in Italy, in 1625, took ſome Places from the Genoueſe, and made the Spaniards raiſe the Siege of Verrue. He died Septemb. 28. 1626. at the Age of 84. See his Life by his Secretary Videl.

LESINA, a ſmall City of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Capitanata, which is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Benevento, near a Lake of the ſame Name, 22 Miles from Manfredonia, and about 3 from the Gulf of Venice.

LESINA, Lat. Pharia, an Iſland on the Coaſt of Dalmatia, under the Venetians, 13 German Miles long, and almoſt 3 in breadth, diſtant about 4 from Spalatro to the S. W. Its chief Town ſtands in the N. E. Part, is of its own Name, and a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Spalatro. The Iſland is high, rocky and mountainous; and, by Computation, 100 Miles in compaſs. It has a good Haven and Town at the South End. The Town, built in ſeveral degrees, according to the Riſing of the Ground on which it ſtands, appears very beautiful to thoſe that enter the Port. It is defended with a Citadel, built on the top of a very ſteep Rock, backed with exceeding high Mountains, and lying open to the South. The Harbour is deep enough for Ships of any Burthen. The Inhabitants Trade moſt in the Fiſhing of Sardelli, which are like Anchovies.

LESKARD, a large, well-inhabited Market and Borough-Town in Cornwal, with an eminent Free-School; and alſo noted for a great Trade in Yarn. It lies 180 Miles from London.

LESLIE, the Name of a very ancient Family in Scotland, but much more ancient in Hungary, out of which they came originally, and firſt ſettled in Scotland, tho' they are ſince diffuſed into many other Nations: So that there is ſcarce any Country in Europe, wherein ſome of them have not raiſed their Characters, and born conſiderable Offices and Honours. The Original of this Name ſome derive from Ladiſlaus; but this all agree in, that this Family flouriſh'd long in Hungary, and that one of them governed that Kingdom as the Emperor's Vice-Roy, having before married the Emperor's own Daughter. In the Year 1067, Malcom III. being King of Scotland, William, ſurnamed The Conqueror, then reigning in England; Queen Margaret (who for her extraordinary Piety was called the Saint) came from Hungary through England, attended with many of the chief Nobility of Hungary. Bertholdus Leſlie was one of the firſt Rank amongſt them, he waited upon her into Scotland, where his Services to that Princeſs were thought ſo conſiderable, that King Malcolm gave him his Siſter to Wife; and beſides many large Poſſeſſions which are yet in the Family, made him Governor of Edinburgh-Caſtle, as a peculiar Reward of Honour, for having firſt Fortify'd it, and then bravely Defended it againſt the King's Enemies. He was ſoon after made Lord Leſlie and Earl of Roſs. And the Family is now ſo increaſed in Number and Honour, that beſides the Title of Duke, which in King Charles II's Reign was Extinct for want of Heirs Male to ſupport it, there are at preſent in Scotland two Earls of the Name, viz. Earl of Rothes, and Earl of Levin. Three Lords, viz. Lord Balquhane, whoſe Anceſtors have been Hereditary Governors of the Shire of Aberdeen; the Lord Lindors, and the Lord Newark. There were at one time four General Mareſchals of this Name, to four ſeveral Kings: Count Walter Leſlie to the Emperor, Alexander to the Czar of Muſcovy, the Earl of Levin to the King of England, and David Leſlie, afterwards Lord Newark, to the King of Sweden, the moſt Heroick Guſtavus Adolphus, and afterwards the King of England's, Charles II's General, at the Battel of Worceſter. There were alſo at one time, in the Reign of K. Charles II. three Biſhops of the Name of Leſlie in Ireland, of whom the eldeſt John Leſlie, who was firſt Biſhop of the Iſles in Scotland, and afterwards of Rapho, and Cloghor in Ireland, liv'd above 100 Years, 40 of which he was Biſhop, and died in 1641, having been remarkably zealous in Defence of the Royal Cauſe. He left Iſſue, 1. John, now Dean of Drommore in Ireland. 2. Charles, Chancellor of the Cathedral of Connor in Ireland, and Author of The Snake in the Graſs, &c. who has Children, Robert, Henry and Jane. 3. Jane, married to Robert Sanderſon Eſq; of Caſtle-Sanderſon derſon in the County of Cavan in Ireland, of an Ancient and Loyal Family. In Germany it is generally known what Services the Counts of this Name have done the Auſtrian Family. Walter, the firſt Count of the Name of Leſlie, killed the Famous General Walleſtein, who was then ſo Great, that the Emperor himſelf was jealous of his Power; but Walter Leſlie did undertake to free the Emperor from the fear of his Rebel-General. This was in the Year 1634. For this Action he was made firſt Captain of the Emperor's Guards, then Count of the Empire, General of the Imperial Forces, Governor of Sclavonia and Petrinia, Knight of the Golden Flecce, and ſeveral times Ambaſſador from the Emperor to the Pope, the Grand Seignior, and other Princes. His Life is written by Father Paul Tafferner, who was his Companion in all his Embaſſies, and his Confeſſor. The late Count James, who died about the Year 1695, was Governor of the Lower Auſtria, and when Vienna was cloſely beſieged, 1683, he broke through the Turks Army, and put a ſeaſonable Relief into the Town, without which it muſt have been loſt, himſelf Commanding in the Field the Imperial Forces as Generaliſſimo next under the Duke of Lorrain; in which Poſt, he aſſiſted in the remarkable raiſing of that Siege, in which he loſt the young Count Alexander his Nephew, who was Chamberlain to the Emperor, and in that Day's Action commanded the Regiment of Count Manſfeld. It was this Count James that burnt the Bridge of Eſſeck, and recovered great part of Hungary. It was he that in 20 pitch'd Battels, which he had with the Turks, always came off Conqueror. The preſent Prince Lewis of Baden was bred under him. In France this Family has flouriſhed with the higheſt Employments, both in the Church and Army. Philip Leſlie (according to the Cuſtom of the Scotch Gentlemen, who, when at Peace at home, uſually puſh'd their Fortunes in other Countries then in War, eſpecially in France, who were their Confederates by a very ancient League,) went into France, and having married the Niece of Monſieur de Lavalle Montmorency, he left his Family a plentiful Eſtate at Cliſſon in Picardie, his Son was great Conſtable of France, and his Poſtertity are yet of great Power in that Kingdom. There are at preſent ſeveral Counts of the Name in Germany, beſides Seventy five Families of the Name of Leſlie, in Scotland, Germany, France, Muſcovy, Poland, &c. There are yet ſeveral Places in Hungary, that bear the Name of Leſlie, as Leſlinia, Leſſilia, Leles, &c. And I have been told by ſome Hungarian Gentlemen, that the Name and Family are not yet extinct in Hungary. Any one that deſires a further Account, may have it in the Laurus Leſlæana, which is the Genealogy and the Abſtract of the Hiſtory of that Family, written by a College of Jeſuits in Germany. Printed in the Year 1692. at Græcium, in Folio.

LESLIE (John) Biſhop of Roſs, in Scotland, lived the XVIth. Century, was a Perſon of conſiderable Learning and Judgment, as appears by the Hiſtory of Scotland, written by him in Latin, commencing from the firſt Appearance of that Nation, and brought down to his own time: He was very remarkable for his Fidelity to Mary Queen of Scots, whoſe Cauſe he ſolicited with great Vigour and Induſtry, in almoſt all the Courts in Chriſtendom; and notwithſtanding he met with a great deal of trouble and hard uſage, upon the account of his Loyalty, yet nothing could diſcourage him from continuing firm to the laſt. He endeavour'd to ſupport the Queen under her Afflictions, from the Topicks of Philoſophy and Religion, and wrote a Treatiſe to that purpoſe, full of Piety and Learning. He was extreamly afflicted at the Death of his Princeſs, which notwithſtanding his Temper and Reſignation, was thought to haſten his own. He died at Bruxells in 1596. Spotſwood's Hiſt. of the Church of Scotl. Thuanus Hiſt. lib. 51. 55. Du Cheſne Hiſt. d' Angl. &c.

Emperors of Germany of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS I. of that Name, Emperor. See LEWIS I. ſurnamed The Pious, King of France.

LEWIS II. Emperor of the Weſt, was the Son of Lotharius I. and of his Wife Hermengarda; Brother of Lothaire King of Lorrain, and of Charles King of Provence. His Father ſent him to Rome, where he was crowned King of the Lombards, by Pope Sergius II. in 844. and Leo IV. crowned him Emperor in 849. Lewis of Germany, his Uncle, drew him over to his Party, in the Deſign he had undertaken to deprive his Nephews of their Eſtates; but the Emperor's Authority and Power were ſo inconſiderable, that his Protection proved of no uſe to him. The Saracens infeſting his Dominions in Italy, he defeated, and afterwards beſieged them in Bari, in 865. The Factions of the Great Ones, and the Treaſon of ſome of the moſt Conſiderable of them, occaſioned him frequent Troubles. He died in Auguſt, 875. and was buried at Milan, in the Church of St. Ambroſe. He had by his Wife Engelberga, Lewis and Charles, who died under Age; and Ermengarda, who was Wife to Boſon King of Provence. Leo Oſtienſis. Baronius. Onuphrius, Baronius, and other Modern Authors, rank Lewis the Stammerer amongſt the Emperors, and make him the IIId. of the Name. But the Sanmarthian Brothers, Francis Sirmond, and divers others, ſhew, that he was only crowned King of France, Septemb. 7. 878. Sigebert in Chron. St. Marth. Hiſt. Genealog. de Franc. Sirmond in notis Concil. Galliæ. Petav. Doctr. Temp.

LEWIS III. (or IV. by thoſe who admit Lewis the Stammerer) was the Son of Arnulphus, and of Otta. He ſucceeded his Father in 899. though he was but ſix or ſeven Years of Age; and the Year after was crowned, February the fourth. The care of him was committed to Otho Duke of Saxony, and to Hatto Archbiſhop of Mentz; Lutpoldus Duke of the Eaſtern Part of Bavaria, being the Commander of his Armies. In 900. his Dominions were increaſed, by the Acceſſion of Lorrain, upon the Death of Zuentibold, his Baſtard-Brother; and thereupon was crowned King of that Country at Thionville. In his Time the Hungarians made frequent In-roads into Germany. Lewis died at Ratisbonne, Feb. 21. in 911. or 912. being about 19 Years of Age. This Prince was the laſt King of Germany of Charlemaigne's Race. He died without Children. The Italian Hiſtorians do not reckon him amongſt the Emperors, becauſe he was not crowned by the Pope. Mezeray Hiſt. of France.

LEWIS IV. or V. was choſen Emperor at Francfort, in October, 1314. But ſome of the Electors having given their Voices for Frederick the Fair, Son of Albert, Emperor, and Duke of Auſtria, this cauſed a miſchievous Schiſm in the Empire, which had been vacant above 14 Months, after the Death of Henry of Luxemburg. Lewis was the Son of Lewis, called The Elder, and of Mathilda, or Maud of Auſtria; and Couſin-Germain of Frederick, his Competitor. He was crowned at Aix laChapelle Jan. 6. 1315. and afterwards put himſelf at the Head of his Army, to oppoſe Frederick; whom he defeated near Muldorf in Bavaria, took him Priſoner in 1322. and kept him ſo for three Years. Some Time after, at the Requeſt of the Romans, he paſſed the Alps, being himſelf at Variance with Pope John XXII. the Succeſſor of St. Clement, who had removed the See to Avignon. The Pope hearing of the Emperor's entring Italy, ſent him word, That if within three Months he did not withdraw his Forces, he would excommunicate him; forbidding him alſo to diſcharge the Imperial Function, till he had received the Inveſtiture from him. Lewis appealed from the Pope, to a General Council to be held at Rome. This Difference put all Italy in a Flame, where the Guelphes and Gibellines re-commenced their wonted Tragedies, with a moſt barbarous Fury. In the mean time the Pope excommunicated Lewis in 1328. and declared him to have forfeited the Empire. Lewis, on the other hand, was not idle, but had his Penſioners that writ againſt the Pope, whom he called James of Cahors: And, not content herewith, enter'd Italy in 1329. and created a certain Franciſcan, called Petrus Ramuchius de Corberia, Anti-Pope, by the Name of Pope Nicholas V. who crowned Lewis, and declared John XXII. an Heretick, and that he had forfeited the Papacy. This violent Proceeding alienated the Minds of Lewis's Friends, ſo that he afterwards deſired to be reconciled to Benedict XII. in 1336. and to Clement VI. in 1344. But being unwilling to ſubmit to the Conditions offered him, viz. That he ſhould ſurrender the Empire and all his Eſtates to the Church, and hold them only of their Good Nature; he was declared obſtinate: And at the Sollicitation of Clement VI. and Philip of Valois King of France, whom Lewis had anger'd by ſiding with King Edward of England, the Electors choſe in his Place Charles of Luxemburg, who was the IVth. Emperor of that Name. This was in 1346. Lewis died the Year following of Poiſon, or, as others ſay, by a Fall from his Horſe, as he was hunting a Boar. He was 63 Years of Age, and was buried in Our Lady's Church at Munichen. Villani, lib. 9, 10. & ſeq. Aventin. lib. 7. Crantz. St. Antonine. Trithem. Spondan. Bzovius. Rainald.

LEWIS, ſurnamed The Blind, was the Son of Boſon. He married Hermengarda, and cauſed himſelf to be crowned King of Provence, Arles and Burgundy in 879. He ſucceeded under his Mother's Guardianſhip, and was afterwards confirmed in the Sovereignty by a Decree of the Council of Valence, held in 890. Albert Marquis of Tuſcany, and the reſt of Beranger's Enemies, who had made himſelf to be declared Emperor, called him into Italy, to take Poſſeſſion of his Anceſtors Eſtate. Lewis followed their Advice, and was crowned Emperor by Pope Stephen VII. about 900. or 901. and retiring afterwards to Verona, was there ſurpriſed by Beranger, who cauſed his Eyes to be put out. After this, Lewis returned to his former Dominions, and died in 938. or, as others ſay, in 934. He left by Adelaida, his Wiſe, whom ſome make the Daughter of our King Edward The Elder, Charles Conſtantine, Prince and Earl of Vienne, who married Theutberga, by whom he had, according to the Conjecture of Bouchet, the Earl of Maurienne, who was the Stock of the Family of Savoy. Reginon in Chron. Sigon. lib. 6. de Reg. Italiæ. Du Bouchet. Bouis. Chorier.

Kings of France of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS I. of that Name, King of France, and Emperor of the Weſt, ſurnamed The Pious, or Meek, was the Son of Charlemaigne and Hildegarda, his ſecond Wife. He was born in 778. and immediately declared King of Aquitain, and afterwards crowned at Rome, by Pope Adrian I. on Eaſter-Day, being the fifteenth of April, 781. And his Father declared him his Succeſſor, in the General Aſſembly of his Eſtates, held at Aix la Chapelle in 813. He was in Aquitain when he received the News of his Father's Death, and came thereupon to Aix la Chapelle, to take Poſſeſſion of the Empire; and was crowned at Rheims in 816. by Pope Stephen IV. The Year following he ſhared his Dominions amongſt his three Children, Lotharius, Lewis and Pepin. And having underſtood that Bernard, the Son of his Brother Pepin, had conſpired againſt him, he ſent ſome Forces, which ſoon reduced him; and made him come to Chalon, to ask Pardon of him. He was condemned to loſe his Sight; and the Biſhops of his Party were ſhut up in a Monaſtery. After this he ſubdued the Britains, who had choſe a King over them, called Morgan; and at his Return, loſt his Wife Hermengarda, who died at Angers, Octob. 3. 818. Some Time after he married Judith, the Daughter of Walpo of Bavaria; by whom he had Charles the Bald, his Succeſſor. But his three Sons by his firſt Wife could not endure their Mother-in-Law, nor their Brother, nor Bernard Count of Barcelona, who was reported to be Judith's Gallant. They engaged themſelves with the Relations of thoſe whom the Emperor had cauſed to be put to death, and ſtirred up the People to revolt againſt him. This Rebellion began in 830. Pepin ſhut up Judith in a Monaſtery; Lotharius joined with him: And this continued till the Aſſembly held at Nimeguen, where the Emperor, aſſiſted by the Forces of his Son Lewis, allayed that Tempeſt, and pardoned Lotharius. But in 833. the Storm broke out with greater Violence: His unnatural Sons engaged a ſecond Time againſt him, and Lotharius ſent his Mother-in Law to Tortona in Italy, ſeized his Father, and ſent him under a good Guard to St. Medard of Soiſſons, and his Brother Charles to the Abbey of Prum; and preſiding at the Aſſembly of Compiegne, in October, 833. by the Council of Ebbo of Rheims, he conſtrained his Father to ſubmit to publick Penance, to quit his Arms and Imperial Ornaments, and to own himſelf guilty. This unnatural Attempt made Lewis and Pepin to take Arms for Reſtoring their Father. Lotharius had left him at St. Denys, where the Biſhops ſet the Crown again upon his Head in March, 834. and reſtored to him his Wife, and his Son Charles. The Emperor loſt his Son Pepin in 838, and received Lotharius into his Friendſhip; whereupon, Lewis jealous of this reconcilement, revolted againſt him, but was ſubdued and pardoned, taking Arms again. The Emperor returned into Germany, where he purſued the Rebel, but finding himſelf very weak, he came down the Main to Ingelheim, where he died of Grief, and an Impoſthume he had in his Breaſt, on Sunday, June 20. 840. He lived 62 Years, Reigned 37 in Aquitain, was Emperor 12 Years. He was of a very ſweet Temper, but ſomewhat too eaſie and credulous, ſo that his Councellors ſometimes perſuaded him to unjuſt things. He was Laborious, Temperate, Vigilant, Liberal, Learned, Spoke and Writ Latin with eaſe, was well skill'd in the Rights and Laws of his Dominions, and took great care to have them well obſerved. Haymo de Geſt. Franc. Fuldenſis his Annals of Metz. Reginon. Ado in Chron.

LEWIS II. ſurnamed The Stammerer, was born, Nov. 1. 843. He was declared King of Aquitain in 867, and ſucceeded his Father Charles the Bald. He was Anointed at Compeigne, by Hincmar, Archbiſhop of Rheims, and his Subjects ſwore fealty to him, in 877. The next Year, Pope John VIII. being come into France, Crowned him, Sept. 7. in the Cathedral Church of St. Peter of Troyes. Lewis, afterwards came to an Agreement for Lorrain, with his Couſin Lewis II. King of Germany. Having put himſelf at the Head of an Army, to ſubdue Bernard, Marquiſs of Gothia, he fell ſick, not without ſuſpicion of being poiſoned, and died at Compeigne, the Eve of Holy Friday, April 10. 879, and was buried there in the Church of our Lady. Aged 35 Years, five Months, and ten Days. He had been married in his Youth to Anſgarda, by whom he had two Sons, Lewis III. and Carloman; but becauſe ſhe was not thought of Quality high enough for him; Charles the Bald, his Father, who had never conſented to the Marriage, obliged him to divorce her. See the Annals of Metz, of Bertin and Fulda.

LEWIS III. to whom his Father Lewis the Stammerer ſent his Crown, Sword, and other Royal Ornaments, a little before his death, was Anointed and Crowned with his Brother Carloman, in the Abbey of Terriers. Lewis, King of Germany, deſigning to make his Advantage of the Nonage of theſe Princes, came with an Army as far as Verdun, but being ſtopt by a Ceſſion of part of Lorrain, he returned to his own Kingdom. Afterwards, Lewis and Carloman, ſhared the Kingdom between them at Amiens, in March 880; one obtaining France and Neuſtria for his part; and the other Burgundy and Aquitain. As ſoon as he came to the Crown, Boſon cauſing himſelf to be declared King of Provence and Burgundy, at the Council of Mentale, the two Princes beſieged him in Vienne; but the Normans, at that time, ravaging Picardy, Lewis left the care of the Siege to his Brother Carloman, fell upon them, and killed 9000 of them at Saucourt near Amiens, in 880. Some time after, being arrived at Tours, to oppoſe the ſaid Normans, he there fell ſick, and was conveyed in a Litter to St. Denys, where he died, Auguſt 3. or 4. 882, which was the third Year of his Reign. See the Continuator of Haymo lib. 5. c. 39. and 40.

LEWIS IV. ſurnamed Beyond-Sea, or Ultramarine, was the Son of Charles the Simple, and of Ogiva, the Daughter of Edward the Elder, King of England. After the Miſchance happened to Charles, in 923, this wiſe Princeſs betook her ſelf, with her Son, to Athelſtan, her Brother, who took care of the Education of the young Prince, and kept him in his Court, till 936, when the French, at the ſollicitation of Hugo the Great, ſent for him to come over; from which Journey to England, he got the Name of Beyond-Sea. He was Anointed and Crowned at Laon, by Artauld, Archbiſhop of Rheims, June 19. or 20. the ſame Year. He had many Wars, as well Civil as Foreign; he endeavoured to retake Lorrain, which his Father, in hurry of his Affairs, had quitted to Henry, King of Germany; but he was beat back by Otho, Henry's Son, whoſe Siſter Gerberga, the Widow of Gilbert, Lewis afterwards married. In the mean time, having got rid of ſome of his Enemies, he made a League with Hugo the Great, in 943, in order to make himſelf Maſter of Normandy, under the Pretext of being the Guardian of Richard, after the death of Duke William his Father; but the Danes aſſiſting Richard, broke all his Meaſures, and Aigrold, their Commander, ſeized him at Creſcenville, between Roan and Liſieux, in 945, and being ſent Priſoner to Roan, he was not reſtored to Liberty; but by a Treaty of Peace, which was followed by a War againſt Hugo, againſt whom Lewis demanded Aſſiſtance of Otho, which he agreed to. At laſt, they were reconciled by the Emperor; in the mean time, Lewis taking a Journey into Aquitain, to receive the Oath of Fidelity from the Lords of that Country, as he was riding between Laon and Rheims, he ſpurred his Horſe, to follow a Wolf that he met on the way, his Horſe throwing him, bruiſed him very ſore, ſo that he became ſeized with an Elephantiaſis, of which he died, Octob. 15. 954, at Rheims, and was buried in the Church of St. Remy. He Reigned 18 Years, and near 4 Months, Aged 38 or 39. He had by Gerberga, Lotharius, who ſucceeded him, Lewis and Carloman, who died before Marriage, Charles, Duke of Lorrain, Henry, who died young, and Maud, married to Conrade I. King of Burgundy, beyond the Mount Jura, &c. Flodoard in Chron. &c.

LEWIS V. ſurnamed Faineant, or Idle, was the laſt of the French Kings of the ſecond Race. His Father took him into the Government in 979, and afterwards married him to Blanche, the Daughter of a Lord of Aquitain, or, as others ſay, to Conſtance, the Daughter of William Earl of Arles and Provence, who, for her Beauty, was called Blanche. Lotharius, on his Deathbed, recommended him to Hugh Caput; but Emma, not truſting him, reſolved to convey the young Prince to his Grand-mother Adelaida, the Widow of Otho I. and Guardian of Otho III. a Princeſs, who was called The Mother of Kings. But this had no effect, by reaſon of the death of Lewis, which arrived, June 22. after having Reigned only one Year, 3 Months, and 20 Days, and was buried at St. Cornelius of Compeigne. Oderan relates in his Chronicle, that this King, at his Death, gave the Crown to Hugh Capet, in prejudice of his Uncle Charles of France, Duke of Lorrain. In him ended the ſecond Race of the Kings of France, called Carlovingians, who held the Crown 236, or 237 Years. Glaber Ranulph. Hiſt. lib. 2. cap. 3. Alberick and Oderan in Chron. Haymo, &c.

LEWIS VI. ſurnamed The Burly, the Son of Philip I. was a Prince of a goodly Aſpect, Valiant, Courageous, Active, a Friend of Juſtice, and Protector of the Church. He was born in 1081, ſucceeded to his Father, July 29. 1108, and was Crowned at Orleans, by Giſelbert, or Dambert of Sens. He had already given many proofs of his Valour on divers occaſions, eſpecially againſt Henry of England, againſt the Earls of Roucy and Beaumont, and the Lord of Montmorency. Immediately after his being Crowned, he reſolved to chaſtiſe ſome proud Lords, who uſurped the Lands of the Church and Crown, whom Henry I. of England encouraged againſt him; he ſubdued them, one after another, and defeated Henry's Army. He hindered Henry V. from entring his Dominions. He alſo took into his Protection, the Biſhop of Clermont, againſt the Count of Auvergne, and avenged the Parricide committed on the Perſon of Charles the Good, Earl of Flanders, who was Aſſaſſinated in the Church of St. Donatian at Bruges, as he was hearing Maſs, and beſtowed the Earldom on William Cliton. Some time after, there aroſe a Conteſt between him, and ſome of his Prelates, whereupon Stephen of Paris, and Henry of Sens, were ſo hardy as to Excommunicate him, but Pope Honorius II. annulled their Cenſures. He all along took the part of the Popes, Gelaſius II. Calixtus II. and Innocent II. who ſucceeded Honorius II. to whom his Enemies had oppoſed Anacletus; whereupon the King conven'd his Prelates at Eſtampes, who ſubmitted themſelves to Innocent II. This King in 1113, Founded the Abbey of St. Victor at Paris, and died in the ſame City of a Flux, Auguſt 1. 1137, after a Reign of 29 Years, and 3 Days.

LEWIS VII. ſurnamed The Younger, and The Pious, the Son of Lewis the Burly, was born in 1120, and Crowned at Rheims, by Pope Innocent II. Octob. 25. 1131. He married Eleonor, the Daughter of William X. Earl of Guienne and Poitou, whereof he took Poſſeſſion in 1137, at which time he was informed of his Father's death; whereupon he came to take upon him the care of the Government. Lewis engaged himſelf in the Conteſt, that was between Jeoffry V. ſurnamed Plantagenet, Earl of Anjou, and Stephen of Blois, King of England, who diſputed about the Dukedom of Normandy; he alſo made War againſt Thibaud, Earl of Champaigne, and laid all his Country waſte, but 1300 Perſons were burnt in a Church at the taking of Vitry le Partois, in 1143, at which the King was extreamly grieved; and to make amends, he undertook, at St. Bernard's perſwaſion, a Journey to the Holy Land. Having taken the Croſs, in a National Council held at Bourges in 1145, he begun his Journey the 2d Week after Whitſontide, in 1147, accompanied by the Emperor Conrade. Their joined Forces were ſufficient to have ſubdued all the Eaſt, had not the perfidiouſneſs of the Greeks proved the ruine of them, within a Years time. The King, at his return, Divorced his Queen Eleonor, in 1152, and ſurrendred to her the Earldoms of Guienne and Poictou, ſhe marrying with Henry II. of England, put him in poſſeſſion of theſe Provinces, who, being become very powerful in France by this Acquiſition, attempted to ſeize the Earldom of Tholouſe, from Raymond V. the French King's Brother-in-Law, to whom the Earl had quitted his Right. This Quarrel was the kindling of thoſe bloody Wars which laſted ſo long between England and France. Lewis afterwards received the Homage of Henry of Anjou, for the Dukedom of Normandy, and reduced William of Auvergne to his Duty. In 1166, he took the Earldom of Chalons from William I. and for two Years, maintained a War againſt the King of England, which was terminated in 1170, by the Peace of St. Germain en lay; notwithſtanding which, he ceaſed not to ſupport the King of England's Sons, who were in Rebellion againſt their Father. In 1178, he made a Journey into England to viſit St. Thomas his Shrine; at his return, he cauſed his Son Philip to be Crowned at Rheims, on All-Saints Day, in 1179, and died of a Palſie at Paris, Sept. 18. 1180, having Reigned ſince his Father's death, 43 Years, 1 Month, and 17 Days. He was buried in the Abbey-Church of Barbeau, near Fontainbleau. Lewis was Pious, Charitable, and Courageous, but committed a Fault in Politicks, by ſuffering his Wife Eleonor to marry to the King of England. Epiſt. of Pope Alex. III. Mezeray, &c.

LEWIS VIII. ſurnamed The Lion, becauſe of his Courage and Bravery, was the Son of Philip Auguſtus, and of Iſabella of Hainault. He was born Sept. 3. or 5. 1187. He followed his Father to the War of Flanders, where he was left with a ſtrong Body of Horſe, and burnt Courtray in 1213. From thence he was ſent into Poictou, againſt the King of England. Afterwards he took up the Croiſade againſt the Albigenſes, in 1215, and took ſeveral Places from them in Languedoc. Some time after, the Engliſh called him over in oppoſition to King John, and Crowned him in London, May 1216. But having loſt the Battel of Lincoln, he was forced to return to France, Sept. 28. 1217, when he turned his Arms again againſt the Albigenſes. He ſucceeded his Father in 1223, and was Crowned at Rheims, with his Wife, by the Archbiſhop, William of Joinville, Auguſt 6. the ſame Year. Soon after his Coronation, he took from the Engliſh all the Country beyond the Garonne, having before taken from them, Limoſin, Perigord and Aunis, and burnt their Ships. After this, the King began a third Expedition againſt the Albigenſes, who had ſettled themſelves in the City Albi in Languedoc, notwithſtanding that Simon of Montfort had already ſeveral times beaten them, and eſpecially at the famous Battel of Muret, where he killed 24000 Men. Theſe diſadvantages were not ſufficient diſcouragements to theſe Rebels, Lewis therefore fell upon them with his Army, and after ſeveral Victories took Avignon from them, Sept. 12. the Walls whereof he cauſed to be pulled down; he afterwards took from them Carcaſſone, Beziers, Pamiers, and made himſelf abſolute Maſter of the Country, to the Gates of Tholouſe. At his return from which Expedition, he died (not without Suſpicion of having been poiſoned) at Mont-penſier in Auvergne, on Sunday, Novemb. 8. 1226, having Reigned 3 Years, and 4 Months, wanting 6 Days, Aged 39 Years, 2 Months, and 3 Days. Matth. Paris. Mezeray, &c.

St. LEWIS IX. the Son of Lewis VIII. and of Blanche of Caſtile, was born April 25. 1215, at the Caſtle of Poiſſy. He was but 12 Years of Age when his Father died, and was immediately Anointed at Rheims, by James of Baſoges, Biſhop of Soiſſons, Novemb. 29. 1226. Blanche, his Mother, was Regent of the Kingdom, during his Minority, and managed things with great Care and Prudence; and underſtanding that ſome great ones had a Deſign to ſurprize the King's Perſon, ſhe, by her Prudence, and the Intelligence ſhe kept with the Earl of Champaigne, fruſtrated their Deſigns, preſerved her Son's Authority, and quieted the State. As ſoon as the King was at Age, he expreſs'd himſelf ſenſible of the good Service the Earl of Champaigne had done to the State, and maintained him againſt the Factious Lords that ſought his ruine, becauſe he had been the cauſe of the miſcarriage of their Deſign. Peter Mauclerc, the Earl of Dreux, and Hugh of Luſignan, were conſtrained to ſubmit themſelves. The former of theſe did Homage to the King; but Hugh of Luſignan X. of that Name, Earl of la Marche and Angoulême, refuſed to render the homage he owed to Alphonſus the King's Brother, as Earl of Poictou and Auvergne. He had married Elizabeth, King John of England's Widow, and Mother of Henry III. with whoſe Aſſiſtance he hoped to make good his Pretenſions; but King Lewis defeated him, July 22. whereupon he returned to his Duty. Raymond, Earl of Tholouſe, having joined himſelf with thoſe of Marſeilles, who had rebelled againſt their own Earl, endeavoured to raiſe new Troubles, but was ſoon reduced to Obedience; and the King thereupon made an end of the War againſt the Albigenſes, which his Father had begun. Afterwards, being recovered of a great Sickneſs, he reſolved to deliver the Chriſtians, that were oppreſſed by the Infidels, in the Holy Land. He committed the Government of the State to his Mother Blanche, received the Croſs at the hands of the Pope at Lyons, and embarking, Aug. 25. 1248, ſet ſail two days after, and arrived, Sept. 20. in Cyprus, where he paſſed the Winter, in expectation of the reſt of his Forces. He left this Iſland, May 13. the Year following, and, June 4. came to the Road of Damiata in Egypt, which he took the 6th, and croſſing the Nile, he gained two Battels over the Infidels. Robert, Earl of Artois, his Brother, was killed, in his inconſiderate purſuit of the Enemies, on Shrove-Tueſday, Febr. 8. 1250. The King's Army was Encamped near to Pharamia, when Melec Salah, the Son of Sultan Meledin, who had been killed at the beginning of the War, came and ſurrounded him with a great Army, and ſtopping all the Paſſages, by which any Proviſions might come to the Chriſtians, Famine and the Scurvey began to ſeize his Men, and reduced them to a moſt deplorable Condition; and not long after, the whole Army was defeated, and the King, with his two Brothers, Alphonſus and Charles, taken Priſoners, April 5. 1250. The King was fain to part with Damiata, and 800000 Beſans, or double Ducats of Gold, for his own, and his Men's Ranſom. After this, Embarking with the remainder of the Chriſtian Army, on ſome Genoueſe Galleys, he landed at Acre, took Tyre and Cæſarea, in 1251, fortified ſome Places, and viſited the Holy Land, by way of Devotion; but hearing of the Death of his Mother, he returned to France, in 1254, after a five Years abſence. At his return, he found all things very quiet, and to keep them in that condition, he made Peace with the Engliſh, in 1258. In the mean time, he made it his buſineſs to govern his Kingdom according to the Laws, and to baniſh all Violence and Oppreſſion. He built Churches, Hoſpitals and Monaſteries; he took the Widows and Orphans under his Protection; he procured the advancement of Religion to the utmoſt of his Power; he took care for the maintenance of the Poor; for the marrying of the Daughters of indigent Parents; and, above all, for the Welfare and Eaſe of his People, by taking away all the oppreſſive Abuſes, that had crept in during former Governments. And laſtly, his Zeal put him upon a ſecond Expedition againſt the Infidels, leaving the Adminiſtration of the Kingdom to Matthew, Abbot of St. Denys, and Simon of Clermont, Lord of Neelle, and having made his laſt Will at Paris, in Febr. 1269, he parted from Marſeilles, or, as others, from Aigues mortes, on Tueſday, July 1. 1270, from whence he arrived at Sardinia, after having endured a moſt furious Tempeſt, and paſſing into Africa, took Carthage, and afterwards laid ſiege to Tunis, where being ſeized with the Scurvey, he ended his Labours with a holy Death, Aug. 25. 1270, after having Reigned 43 Years, Nine Months, and 16 Days. Mezeray. la Chaiſe.

LEWIS X. ſurnamed Hutin, or The Wrangler, ſucceeded his Father Philip the Fair, in 1314, being before King of Navarre, in the Right of his Mother Jane or Joan, having been Crowned at Pampeluna, Octob. 1. 1307. He was not Crowned at Rheims till Aug. 24. 1315. Before this, he engaged himſelf in a Quarrel with Robert, Earl of Flanders, and laid ſiege to Courtray, but was forced to raiſe it again, becauſe of the unſeaſonableneſs of the Weather, and to come to a diſadvantageous Treaty. His Reign was only of 18 Months, and ſix Days, and died ſuddenly, with ſuſpicion of being poiſoned, at the Caſtle of Vincennes, in 1316. Aged 25 Mezeray.

LEWIS XI. the Son of Charles VII. was born at Bourges, July 3. or 4. 1423. He was very ambitious. In 1440, he made himſelf the Head of a Faction called le Praguerie, againſt the King, his Father, with whom he reconciled himſelf ſome time after. He was at the raiſing of the Siege of Tartas, in 1442, and afterwards at the raiſing of that of Diepe, beſieged by the Engliſh. The Year after he Defeated 6000 Swiſſes, near to the City of Baſil; at his return, the King ſent him into Guienne, where he ſeized the Earl of Armagnac, and his Wife, and ſome time after he retired into Dauphiné, where he fell a pillaging the People aud the Clergy, took up Arms againſt his Father, and leagued himſelf with the Male-contents; but the fear of being ſurrounded by his Father's Forces, made him leave Dauphiné, and betake himſelf to the Duke of Burgundy, where hearing of his Father's death, which happened, July 22. 1461, he returned, and was Crowned, Aug. 15. His former Carriage towards his Father, and thoſe of Dauphiné, were a ſufficient Evidence what his Friends and Subjects were to expect from his hands. And indeed, he was no ſooner come to the Government, but he behaved himſelf, as if he had entered into a Conquered Country, was very rough to all his Father's Creatures, put out all his Officers, and changed every thing he had done. His jealous and diſtruſtful Humour, made him remove all the Princes and Great Ones from about him, who took this Pretext to oppreſs the People, and engaged the moſt principal Perſons of the Kingdom in a League, to which they gave the Name of the Publick Good. The Duke of Berry, the King's Brother, the Dukes of Bretaigne and Bourbon, and the Earl of Charolois, Son of the Duke of Burgundy, were the chief Heads of this Party. The King, who marched to defend Paris, met with the Rebels near to Montleberi, where on Tueſday July 2. 1465. a Fight was fought, with equal Loſs on both Sides. Lewis fore-ſeeing the fatal conſequences, that in all probability muſt enſue upon ſuch Diſorders, cunningly broke the League, by a Peace concluded October following at Conflans, by which he gave Normandy to his Brother, to the Duke of Burgundy ſome Places he had taken from him in Picardy, the Earldom of Eſtampes to the Duke of Bretaigne, and the Sword of Lord High Conſtable to Lewis of Luxemburg, Earl of St. Paul. Some time after, his Brother gave him an occaſion to take Normandy from him, who entring into a League with the Duke of Bretaigne, and Charles Duke of Burgundy; Lewis thereupon declares againſt the one, and ſtirs up thoſe of Liege againſt the other. But his Politicks had not the Succeſs he expected; for having raſhly engaged himſelf for a Conference at Peronne, in 1468, the Duke of Burgundy's Party proved too ſtrong there, and obliged him to yield to his Brother Champaigne and la Brie, in Exchange for Normandy, and to aſſiſt him with his Forces to reduce Liege, which was taken by Storm, plundred, and almoſt burnt down, Oct. 30. the ſame Year. Lewis was not diſcouraged with this ill ſucceſs of his Politicks, for caſting about, he ſoon found a way to force his Brother to accept of Guienne, inſtead of Champaigne, which was too near to Burgundy, thereby to weaken his Union with Charles, whom he obliged to content himſelf with a Truce for one Year, after having re-taken from him the beſt Places he held in Picardy. For after having held an Aſſembly of his Eſtates at Tours, in 1470, he ſent an Officer of the Parliament of Paris to Gaunt, to Summon the Duke of Burgundy to give Satisfaction to the Earl of Eu, and drove him away from before Beauvais, which he had laid ſiege to, July 10. 1472. Lewis inſtituted at Amboiſe the Order of St. Michael, which the Duke of Bretaigne refuſed, and the Duke of Burgundy accepted that of England; the Engliſh, at the ſame time, entred France, at the Sollicitation of the Burgundians, but they returned not long after, by a Treaty concluded, Aug. 29. 1475, at Pequigny, where the two Kings had an interview, and ſwore a Truce of Nine Years, which the Duke of Burgundy was obliged to keep. Laſtly, he cauſed the Conſtable of St. Paul's Head to be cut off, Dec. 19. 1475. and ſerved James of Armagnac, the Duke of Nemours in the ſame manner, Aug. 4. 1477. The Duke of Burgundy, was killed before Nants, the beginning of the ſame Year, and Charles of France, the King's Brother, had been dead ever ſince 1472. Thus Lewis XI. ſurvived all his Enemies. He ſubdued ſome others that had maintained the Rebellion againſt him, and took ſuch care to ſuppreſs every thing that might weaken the Royal Authority, that it is commonly ſaid of him, That he had put the Kings of France out of their Minor State. He joined Provence to his Dominions, by the Gift of the laſt Counts. He contrived an Alliance with the Switzers, and every where ſecured the Peace of his Kingdom. Yet all this was no Eaſe to the People; for he augmented the Taxes to 47 Millions of Livres, and cruelly avenged himſelf of all thoſe that offered to oppoſe his Deſigns. After the Death of the Duke of Burgundy, he ſeized that Dukedom, together with that of Artois, and the Towns on the River Somme: And in Auguſt, 1479. he fought the Battel of Guinegaſte with Maximilian Arch-Duke of Auſtria, with whom he concluded a Peace in 1482. Towards the End of his Life, his jealous and diſtruſtful Humour render'd him altogether inſupportable. He was ſick in the Caſtle of Pleſſis les Tours, where the Fear of Death, and that of Loſing his Authority, put him upon moſt extravagant Practices. He ſent Ambaſſadors into Foreign Countries; and cauſed the Malefactors that were in Priſon to be put to death, only to make known that he was in good health. It is ſaid alſo, that his Phyſician got from him 55000 Crowns, and many other Favours, in five Months time. He ſent for abundance of Relicks, and every Thing he could think of, to prolong his Life. But all this did not hinder his dying on Saturday, Aug. 30. 1483. being 60 Years of Age, one Month, and 24 Days; and having reigned 22 Years, one Month, and eight Days. He was buried at Our Lady's Church at Clery. This revengeful, diſtruſtful and cunning Prince took none but his own Counſel. He could not endure any Perſons of Quality, and advanced thoſe that were of the Dregs of the People; which made his Government very odious. He eſtabliſhed the Convenience of Poſts throughout the Kingdom, and had form'd a Deſign of reducing all the Meaſures and Weights to one only, and to have made one general Cuſtom to have obtained throughout all his Dominions. Philip de Comines Memoire de Louis XI. Pierre Matthieu Hiſtoire de Louis XI. Du Pleix. Mezeray Hiſt. de France.

LEWIS XII. called The Juſt, and Father of the People, was born at Blois, June 27. 1462. and had the Title of the D. of Orleans. He ſucceeded to the Crown of France in 1498. in a Collateral Line to Charles VIII. who died without Iſſue, as a Prince of his Blood. He was Crown'd at Rheims, May 27. the ſame Year. He was the Son of Charles Duke of Orleans, and Milan, and Grandchild to Lewis of France. Duke of Orleans, ſecond Son of King Charles V. and of Valentina of Milan; in Right of whom, the Houſe of Orleans was to poſſeſs the Dutchy of Milan. He was no ſooner crown'd, but he took care to leſſen the Taxes with which his Subjects had been oppreſſed; and in all Caſes, to have due Juſtice adminiſtred to them. Nay, he made his very Enemies ſenſible of his Goodneſs: For, when ſome were putting him upon Retaliating upon thoſe that had been his Enemies before he came to the Crown, he uttered that memorable Sentence, That it did not become the King of France to revenge the Quarrels of the D. of Orleans. His firſt Deſign was, to recover the Dutchy of Milan, which he conquered in a Fortnight; driving away Ludovicus Sforza, who had uſurped it, in 1499. Some Time after, Milan revolted, and Sforza was reſtored; but the K. reduced it again the next Spring, in 1500. and Sforza was taken, and brought into France; where he died 10 Years after, in the Caſtle of Loches. This done, he made an Alliance with Ferdinand V. K. of Arragon, in 1501. with Deſign to poſſeſs himſelf of the Kingdom of Naples, which he claimed a Right to; and having defeated Frederick, who was poſſeſſed of it, he, of his Generoſity, beſtowed upon him the Dukedom of Anjou. Afterwards the two Kings ſhared the Kingdom of Naples between them: The Spaniards contented themſelves with Puglia and Calabria; and the reſt of the Kingdom remained to the French. After this, the Spaniards, under Gonſalvo of Corduba, invaded the Share that belonged to the French, under pretence of diſputing the Limits, and drove them wholly out of the Kingdom. In 1505. the King made a Peace with the Spaniards, and two Years after chaſtiſed the Revolting Genoueſe. In 1508. he made the Treaty of Cambray, with Pope Julius II. and the Emperor Maximilian, againſt the Venetians, whom he defeated at the famous Battel of Aignadel, May 14. 1509. taking Cremona, Padua, and moſt of their Cities. The King was inveſted in the Dutchy of Milan by the Emperor, June 14. 1510. and delivered Ravenna, and ſome other Places, to Pope Julius II. who, jealous of the Greatneſs of France, made a League with the Emperor, Switzers and Venetians, againſt gainſt Lewis ; excommunicating him, and thoſe that ſided with him ; and expoſing his Dominions to the firſt Occupant. Upon which pretence, Ferdinand drove John d'Albret from his Kingdom of Navarre. In the mean time, the Leaguers loſt the Battel of Ravenna, tho' the French loſt their noble General Gaſton de Foix. The Pope afterwards ſtirred up the Switzers againſt Lewis, who reſtored the Dutchy of Milan to Maximilian, the Son of Lewis Sforza, beat the French at Novarra, and beſieged Dijon. The Pope alſo ſtirred up the Genoueſe, the Spaniards, and Engliſh, to diſtreſs Lewis. The latter defeated the French in a Battel fought near to Guinegaſte, April 18. 1513, and took Therouenne and Tournay. Lewis wiſely rid himſelf of all theſe Enemies: He accommodated Matters with the Switzers, concluded a Peace with the Spaniards, and ratified his Alliance with the Engliſh, by marrying, Octob. 9. 1514, Mary, the Daughter of Henry VII. and Siſter of Henry VIII. of England. He had married before, againſt his Mind, Joan of France, the Daughter of Lewis XI. from whom he was divorced, Decemb. 22. 1498, and was married to Queen Anne of Britain, Widow of King Charles VIII. his Predeceſſor ; whom he loſt in 1513, and then married Mary of England. But preſently after this Marriage, as he was preparing a puiſſant Army to re-paſs the Alps, he died at Paris, the firſt Day of the Year 1515, being 53 Years of Age ; whereof, he had reigned 16 Years, 8 Months, and 23 Days. This good King was univerſally regretted of his Subjects. He was Religious, Chaſte, Magnificent, a Favourer of Learned Men, Courageous ; and bore ſo great a Love to his Subjects, that he ſhed Tears when-ever he was forced to impoſe any Subſidy upon them. He loved to enter diſguiſed into companies ; and boaſted, that he had learnt Things of great Importance to him by this way of concealing himſelf. Du Pleix & Mezeray Hiſt. of France. Guichardin.

LEWIS XIII King of France and Navarre, ſurnamed The Juſt, was born at Fontainbleau in 1601, ſucceeded to his Father, Henry IV. May 14. 1610, and was Crowned October 17. following. He continued under the Guardianſhip of the Queen Mother till 1614. In 1615, he married Anne of Auſtria, Infanta of Spain ; and Elizabeth of France, his Siſter, was at the ſame time married to Philip IV. Concinio Concini, Marquis of Ancre, being, by the Favour of the Queen-Mother, and his own Inſolence, become inſupportable to the Great Ones, and to the King himſelf, was taken off, Octob. 24. 1617, and his Riches conferred upon the Duke of Luines, afterwards Conſtable of France ; at whoſe Promotion, when ſome Malecontents were diſpleaſed, and ſided with the Queen Mother, to ſtrengthen their Party, ſhe was fain to retire to Blois, and their Forces were defeated at the Pont du ce ; whereby they were reduced to beg Pardon. After this, he eſtabliſhed the Roman Religion in Bearn, in 1620. Upon which, the Hugonots in France took Arms ; the King endeavouring to reduce them took Saumur, St. Jean d'Angeli, Sancerre, Nerac, Pons, Chaſtillon, St. Foy, Bergerac, Clerac, and many other Places in Guienne and Languedoc. But Montauban ſtopped the Progreſs of his Arms, before which the Duke of Mayenne was killed ; and the Conſtable Luines dying towards the end of 1621, made way for the Cardinal of Richelieu to become Maſter of the King's Favour. In 1622, ſeveral Rebellious Towns ſurrender'd to the King ; and about the ſame time they loſt the Battel of Rhée, and the Rochellers were beaten at Sea. He aſſiſted the Duke of Savoy againſt the Genoueſe, in 1625 ; and September 16. the ſame Year, was Victorious again over the Rochellers by Sea. The Engliſh, who had undertaken to protect them, were beaten at the Iſle of Rhée, November 8. 1627. And the Engliſh Fleet having done nothing towards the Relief of that City, the King took it, Octob. 30. 1628. Lewis in 1629, undertook the Protection of the Duke of Nevers, now Duke of Mantua ; and having defeated the Forces of the Duke of Savoy, reſtored his Ally to his Eſtate. Being returned to France, he continued to ſuppreſs the Rebellious Hugonots in Languedoc and Vivaretz, and pardon'd a great many Towns, upon their Submiſſion, together with Henry Duke of Rhoan, who had been a great Support to that Party. In 1630, upon the King's leaving Italy, the Germans took Mantua, and the Marquis of Spinola laid Siege to Caſal. Whereupon, the King ſent an Army again into Italy, took all Savoy, defeated the Spaniards at the Bridge of Carignan, and forced his Enemies to conſent to the Treaty of Queraſque in 1631. Some time after, Gaſton, the King's Brother, having engaged the Duke of Montmorency on his ſide, was defeated by the King's Forces at the Battel of Caſtel naudari, Septemb. 1. 1632. The Duke of Montmorency was taken, and loſt his Head on a Scaffold at Tholouſe, Octob. 30. following. In 1633, he took Nancy, and made himſelf Maſter of the Dukedom of Lorrain. The Spaniards took Treves, whoſe Archbiſhop had put himſelf under the Protection of the French, and maſſacred the French Garriſon they found in it ; which proved the occaſion of a violent War. May 16. 1635. the King's Forces beat Prince Thomas of Savoy ; but France loſt Philipsburg, Spier, Mentz, Aix la Chapelle, Catelet and Corbie ; which laſt was re-taken by the King in 1636, and the Imperial Army defeated in Burgundy. The Mareſchal de Schomberg raiſed the Siege of Leucate, and defeated a Spaniſh Army of 25000 men. Beſides which, they loſt ſeveral Places in Flanders, and were thrice beaten at Sea by the French in 1638. Lewis's Forces, joined with thoſe of Duke Weimar, took Briſac, and got ſeveral Victories in 1641. Before this, in 1639, his Forces ſuccoured Cazal, defeated the Marquis of Leganez, and took Turin in 1640. At the ſame time the Prince of Conde took Salces in Rouſſillon ; and in Artois the King's Forces took Heſdin and Arras, with ſeveral other Places. But, on the other hand, the French were routed at Thionville, and elſewhere ; Salces was re-taken by the Spaniards. The French alſo loſt Verceil, and were forced to raiſe the Siege of St. Omer. In 1641, Catalonia was ſubdued by King Lewis, who took Perpignan in 1642. Whereupon, the whole County of Rouſſillon was ſurrender'd to him. Before this, the Duke of Lorrain came, and caſt himſelf at the King's Feet ; but his Reconciliation being no better than counterfeit, prov'd only an occaſion to diſpoſſeſs him of his Country a ſecond time. The Count of Soiſſons was killed at the concluſion of a Battel which he had gained of the King's Forces, July 6. 1641, near to Sedan ; which Place was the next Year taken. Cardinal Richelieu, Chief Miniſter of Lewis XIII. died at Paris, Decemb. 4. 1642, and the King followed him ſoon after. He died at St. Germain en Lay, on Aſh-Wedneſday, May 14. 1643, the ſame Day he began to reign ; having lived 41 Years, 7 Months, and 18 Days ; whereof he had reigned 32 Years compleat. *De Gramont Hiſt. LEWIS XIV. ſurnamed Dieu donné, i. e. Given of God, or God's Gift, becauſe he was born after a long Time of Expectation, Septemb. 5. 1638, was baptized April 21. 1643, and ſucceeded his Father May 14. the ſame Year. The beginning of his reign was very ſucceſsful, under the Regency of the Queen Mother, and the Miniſtry of Cardinal Mazarin. The Prince of Conde gained the Battel of Rocroy, May 19. And Gaſton of Orleans, the King's Uncle, and the other French Generals in Italy, Catalonia, and other Parts, had great Advantage over their Enemies, by the Taking of Thionville, and the Sea-Fight before Carthagena, Septemb. 4. 1643. The next Year the Bavarians were beaten at Donachin, and the King's Forces had the better at the Battel of Friburg in Briſgow, and took Gravelin, Philipsburg, Spier, Worms and Mentz. In 1645, the Spaniards were defeated in Catalonia, and the Imperialiſts at Nortlingen : Whereupon followed the Taking of Bourburg, Link, Lens, Bethune, Armentiers, Roſes, Balaguier, De la Mothe, Trier, &c. The Year 1646, was noted for the Conqueſt of Courtray, Bergen, Mardike, Dunkirk, &c. and afterwards of Ypres, Furnes and Tortoſa. The French got the Day at the Battel of Lens in 1647. And in 1648, the Peace between the Imperialiſts and the French was concluded at Munſter. But, after all theſe Advantages, the French fell into a Diviſion amongſt themſelves in 1648, which their Enemies made good uſe of, by the Taking of Barcelona, Cazal, Dunkirk and Gravelin. The King, Queen, and Princes, left Paris, Jan. 6. 1649, with Reſolution to beſiege the City ; but, upon its Submiſſion, the King returned thither again, Aug. 18. The Impriſoning of the Princes, and the Tumults at Bourdeaux, occaſioned new Troubles in 1650. The Marſhal of Pleſſis Praſlin won the Battel of Rhetel. The Princes were ſet at liberty, Feb. 13. 1651, and the Diſorders began to revive ; neither could the Departure of Cardinal Mazarin appeaſe them. The King, being declared of Age in the Parliament at Paris, marched againſt the Princes, who were retired to Guienne : His Forces had ſome Advantages over them, and a Compoſure of Differences was hoped for, when the Return of the Cardinal to France kindled the Troubles a-new. The Princes were beaten before Eſtampes, and in the Attack of the Suburb of St. Anthony of Paris, July 2. Two Days after, many Inhabitants were killed at the Inſurrection in the Town-Houſe of Paris. In the mean time, the Cardinal was forced to retire a ſecond Time from the Court, and the King publiſhed a General Act of Oblivion for his Subjects, and came to Paris, Octob. 21. and the French Arms began to be ſucceſsful again, by the Reduction of St. Menehoult, Rhetel, Mouzon and Bellegarde, and the Defeat of the Spaniards at the Battel of Roquette in Italy, and in Catalonia. In 1654, the King was Crown'd at Rheims, June 7. and took Stenay, Aug. 6. His Forces took Conde and St. Giſlayn in 1655. Capelle and Valence upon the Po in 1656. St. Venant, Montmedi and Mardyke, in 1657. and Dunkirk in 1658. Which two laſt Places were taken by the Aſſiſtance of the Engliſh, and, according to the Agreement between the pretended Protector Oliver and the French King, delivered up to the Engliſh. A Peace was concluded between France and Spain, Novemb. 7. 1659, by the Miniſtry of Cardinal Mazarin and Don Lewis de Haro ; and the Marriage between Mary of Auſtria, the only Daughter of Philip IV. and Lewis XIV. was ſolemnized June 9. 1660. The Firſt Fruit of this Marriage was the Dauphin, who was born at Fontainbleau, Novemb. 1. 1661. From this Time the King began to apply himſelf ſeriouſly to the Affairs of State : He publiſhed a ſevere Edict againſt Duels in 1664, ſettled two Companies of the Eaſt and Weſt-Indies, made the Pope give Satisfaction for the Affront done to the Duke of Crequi, his Ambaſſador at Rome ; ſent his Succours againſt the Turks in Hungary, where a ſmall Body of the French Troops behav'd themſelves with that Bravery, near St. Godard's Bridge, that they put a ſtop to the progreſs of the Turkiſh Army, who otherwiſe, in all likelihood, had overrun a great part of the Empire : He likewiſe ſent Succours to raiſe the Siege of Candia ; where the Duke of Beaufort, and a great many French, loſt their Lives, in 1669. After the Death of the King of Spain, the King being refus'd Satisfaction in his Pretenſions upon ſome of the Low Countries, in Right of the Queen his Wife, marched into Flanders towards the end of May, 1667, and took Tournay, Doway, Courtray, Oudenarde, Aeth, Aloſt and Lille, defeated the Troops of Count Marſin, and conquered the Franche

Comte in 1668. Which Succeſſes were terminated by the Peace of Aix la Chapelle, May 2. the Year following. After this, he turn'd his thoughts to the improvement of his Kingdom, and the promoting of Arts and Sciences. In 1672, he ſurprized Europe by his Conqueſts upon the Dutch, a great part of whoſe Dominions he over-run on a ſudden. In 1673, he took Maeſtricht, at the Siege of which he commanded in Perſon. In 1674, he took Beſançon, Dole, and the reſt of the Franche Comte. And Aug. 10. the ſame Year, was fought the Battel of Seneſ; whereof the French had no great cauſe to boaſt, and the Dutch leſs. In 1675, he took Limburg, and ſome other Places; Conde and Bouchain in 1676, and at the beginning of 1677, made himſelf Maſter of Valenc ennes, Cambray and St. Omer: And the Duke of Orleans gained the Battel of Mount Caſſel. The Inhabitants of Meſſina rebelling againſt their Sovereign, embraced the Protection of King Lewis, but he abandon'd them to the Reſentment of the Spaniards. About this time his Fleet beat the Dutch in the Fare of Meſſina, where they loſt their Admiral de Ruyter. At the beginning of 1678, the King took Ypres; and a Peace was concluded at Nimeguen with the Hollanders, Aug. 10. and with the Spaniards, Sept. 17. following. Notwithſtanding of which, he laid Siege to, and made himſelf Maſter of Luxemburg. Some time after he revoked the Edict of Nantes in 1685, granted by Henry the Great, and treated the Hugonots with great Severity. He declared War againſt the Emperor, and about the latter end of 1688, ſent the Dauphin to beſiege Philipsburg, which he took, whilſt Boufflers carried Spier, Mayence, Creuſenack, Baccarach, Heydelberg, and ravaged and waſted the Country as far as Hailbron, before the Germans were ready to make head againſt him. This Prince has taken for Device the Sun, with this Motto, Nec pluribus impar. Sufficit hic terris. Omnibus Unus. He had by Queen Mary-Thereſe of Auſtria, who died in 1683, Lewis, the preſent Dauphin; and two Princes, and three Princeſſes, that died young. His Natural Children by Valiere, Dutcheſs of Vaujeur, are, Lewis Duke of Vermandois, Admiral, and General Superintendant of the Commerce and Navigation of France; Lewis Auguſt Duke of Maine, Lewis Alexander Count of Vexin, Mary Anne, Lady of Blois, and Dutcheſs of Vaujeur, and Louis Frances, Lady of Nantes and Tours. But now Fortune began to look with no favourable aſpect upon France, for in 1694, the Dauphin, who commanded the French Army in the Netherlands, was almoſt cooped up all the Summer by the King of England, in his Camp at Vignemont, and the Confederates were like to have got into French Flanders, and carry all before them. They took Huy. Diepe and Havre de Grace were ſeverely Bombarded by the Engliſh, while, to the mortification of King Lewis, his Fleet durſt not look out of Thoulon for fear of Admiral Ruſſel, who was now in the Streights; neither could he prevail by any means to get the Chapter of Liege to chuſe the Cardinal de Bouillon Prince and Biſhop of that Country, in oppoſition to Prince Clement of Bavaria, Biſhop of Cologn, who carried the Election. The Year 1695, was ſtill more unfortunate to him, when he loſt Cazal in Italy, the almoſt impregnable Fortreſs of Namur in the Netherlands, had St. Malo Bombarded by the Engliſh Fleet, could do nothing on the Rhine, nor procure a Peace any where; but tho' in the Year 1696, he utterly failed in his deſign of Invading England, had Calais, and St. Martins on the Iſle of Rhee, Bombarded by the Engliſh, could do no good in Germany nor Flanders againſt the Confederates, yet he had the addreſs to draw the Duke of Savoy to make a ſeparate Peace with him, and to obtain a Neutrality on that ſide of Italy. And the Year following, tho' he could not get the Prince of Conti made King of Poland, yet he obtained a General Peace with the Confederates, but was obliged to make large Conceſſions to them, not only by a ſurrender of all that he had taken during the War, but of many other Places and Countries that had been long in the poſſeſſion of France, as the Countries of Lorrain and Orange, the Cities of Luxemburg, Friburg, Briſac, &c. and to own the Prince of Orange to be King of England; with whom particularly, as alſo with other Princes and States, he was at War with, he has ſince lived in good Amity and Correſpondence.

Kings of Germany of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS I. ſurnamed The Pious, or The Elder, King of Germany, was the third Son of Lewis the Meek and Brother of the Emperor Lothaire, and Pepin King of Aquitain. He was made King of Bavaria in the General Aſſembly his Father held in 817, at Aix la Chapelle. He took his Father's Part againſt his Brothers, tho' afterwards he ſided with them; and in 839, in a Journey he took to Frankfort, he alienated the Minds of the Saxons, Thuringians, and the Inhabitants of the Eaſtern Franconia, from their Allegiance to his Father. Lewis, his Father, died in his Attempt of reducing theſe People to their Obedience. After the Death of Lewis the Meek, Lewis of Germany and Charles the Bald, gained the famous Battel of Fontenay, over the Emperor Lothaire, their Brother, in 841, but at laſt came to an Agreement; and, at an Aſſembly at Verdun, ſhared their Father's Dominions amongſt them in 843. Lewis had for his ſhare the Country beyond the Rhine, with the Biſhopricks of Mentz, Worms and Spier. In 858, at the Sollicitation of ſome diſcontented People, he returned to France, but the Year following he was glad to return to Germany; and in 860, being aſſembled near Coblentz, with Charles the Bald, and Lotharius King of Lorrain, they ſwore to obſerve an inviolable Peace. In the mean time Lewis enlarged the Bounds of his Dominions, and made himſelf Formidable to all his Neighbours. He was active, generous, valiant and liberal, a zealous Obſerver of Juſtice and Religion, an equitable Diſtributer of Employments and Offices, and, in a word, one that inherited more of the good Qualities of Charles the Great, than any other Prince of that Family. He claimed the Empire after the Death of his Nephew, Lewis II. but the Pope crowned Charles the Bald. Lewis, tho' he was 70 Years of Age, made hereupon a powerful Irruption into Neuſtria, but as he was at Francfort, Death put an end to his Life and Deſigns at once, Aug. 28. 876, having reigned 59 Years, and lived 70. Haymo la' Chronique de S. Gal. de Fulds, &c.

LEWIS II. King of Germany, ſurnamed The Younger, ſucceeded his Father Lewis I. Charles the Bald, his Uncle, was reſolved to diſpoſſeſs him of his Dominions. Lewis, to prevent his Attempts, ſent Ambaſſadors to repreſent to him the Treaty made with his Father, and ſhew him, that it had not been violated in any point; Charles ſeemed to give ear to theſe Informations, and granted a time of Truce, during which, he ſwore he would not attack him, but for all that continued his march, deſigning to ſurprize him in his Camp at Andernac, and to put out his Eyes. The Elector of Cologne endeavoured to divert him from this Perfidiouſneſs, but in vain, therefore he ſent private word to Lewis what he was to expect, who putting himſelf into a poſture of Fighting, defeated Charles his Army, Octob. 8. 876. This Victory ſecured to the three Sons of Lewis the Elder their Dominions. He, of whom we now ſpeak, laid claim to the Crown of France, to which he was called by the death of Lewis the Stammerer; but being informed at Metz of the Sickneſs of Carloman, his Eldeſt Brother, who was ſeized with a Palſey in 880, he haſted into Bavaria, to prevent his leaving the Kingdom to Arnulphus, his Natural Son. After which, he returned into France, but effected nothing in order to his Deſign, ſave only that he overthrew 8 or 900 Normans, and having ſettled Matters with Lewis and Carloman, and joined his Forces with theirs, they defeated Hugo, Baſtard of Vardrade. Lewis died at Francfort, Jan. 20. 882. as he was Levying an Army to fight the Normans. *Annals of S. Kings of Hungary and Poland of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS of Anjou the Iſt. of the Name, King of Hungary and Poland, ſurnamed The Great, was the Son of Charles II. who was alſo called Charobert, Son of Charles Martel, King of Hungary, the Son of Charles II. called The Lame, King of Naples and Sicily, Earl of Provence, &c. Deſcended from Charles I. Earl of Anjou, and Brother of St. Lewis. Charobert had him by his third Wife Elizabeth, Daughter of Ladiſlaus, ſurnamed Lotic, King of Poland, and Siſter of Caſimir the Great. He was born March 5. 1326, ſucceeded his Father in 1342, and was Crowned at Alba Regalis. He expelled the Jews out of Hungary, and waged ſeveral Wars, which he carried on and concluded ſucceſsfully, viz. Againſt the Tranſilvanians, Tartars, Croats, and the Waiwods of Walachia. He ſent Succours to Caſimir, King of Poland, his Uncle, againſt John King of Bohemia, who beſieged Cracovia. This King had a Brother called Andrew, who married his Couſin Joan, Queen of Naples, and was ſtrangled, Sept. 18. 1345. Lewis was engaged in a War againſt the Venetians, when he heard of the death of his Brother, and to avenge his Blood marched into Italy, where he cauſed Charles of Duras, and ſome others, to be put to death, and took the City of Naples, when Queen Joan had made her eſcape to Provence. Some time after, he returned again to Italy, and made Peace with the Queen, by the Mediation of Pope Clement VI. He made War alſo upon the Venetians for Dalmatia, in 1357, and after the death of his Uncle Caſimir, King of Poland, in 1370, he was admitted to the Crown of Poland. At his coming to that Crown, he oppoſed the Lithuanians, and ſome of the Great Lords of Poland, who ſtood out in Rebellion againſt him. Pope Innocent VI. made him Great Gonfalonier, or General of the Church, and the Emperor Charles IV. declared him Vicar, or Lord Lieutenant of the Empire. Lewis was always a victorious Prince, he died at Tirnavia in Sept. 1382, being aged 56 Years, 6 Months, and 6 Days, and having Reigned 40 Years. *Michow lib. 4. Kings and Princes of Jeruſalem, Naples, and Sicily, of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS of France, the Iſt of the Name, Duke of Anjou, King of Jeruſalem, Naples, and Sicily, Earl of Provence, &c. was the ſecond Son of King John, and of Bona of Luxemburg, and

Brother of Charles V. after whoſe Death, in 1380, he took to himſelf the Regency of the State, during the Minority of King Charles VI. his Nephew, and by his Exactions, procured himſelf the hatred of the People. He was born in 1359, and was at the Battel of Poictiers, and had been engaged in many other important Actions. Joan I. Queen of Sicily, adopted him, in 1380, and two Years after, he was Crowned at Avignon by Clement VII. whereupon he marched into Italy, accompanied with Amadeus VI. Earl of Savoy, to drive away Charles of Duras, who having put to death Queen Joan, had poſſeſſed himſelf of the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily. Lewis, whom Charles had deſigned to poiſon, entered the Kingdom of Naples, took ſome Places, and cauſed a general Conſternation every where; but wanting Money, he ſent one of his Confidents to France for more, who, neglecting the Buſineſs he was ſent about, caſt Lewis, after long expectation, into a Melancholy, which ended his life in the Caſtle of Taleſine, or, as others, at Biſelia, near to Bary, Sept. 20. 1384. Some ſuppoſe that he was poiſoned. Summoneta & Collenutio Hiſt. of Naples. Mezeray Hiſt. of France. Ruffi. of the Earls of Provence.

LEWIS II. King of Jeruſalem, Naples, Sicily and Arragon, Earl of Provence, &c. was born, Oct. 7. 1377. ſucceeded to his Father Lewis I. who left him very young, under the Guardianſhip of his Mother Mary, a wiſe Princeſs, who immediately carried her Son to Provence, where he was Crowned King of Naples at Avignon, in 1389, and ſoon after reduced almoſt all the Cities of Provence, that had put themſelves under the Protection of Ladiſlaus, or Lancelot, the Son of Charles Duras. Afterwards, the King took a Journey to Naples, where he was received with extraordinary Acclamations, but he was no ſooner returned to France, but that Kingdom took part with Ladiſlaus. After which, they called him a ſecond time, and received him with great Shews of their Loyalty, but upon his departure, ſerved him as before. The King diſpleaſed with this inconſtancy, refuſed any more to return to Naples, after the death of Ladiſlaus. He had War with the Duke of Savoy, for the Earldoms of Vintemille and Nice. He was a ſincere, godly, liberal Prince, and a lover of his People, and was of ſo ſweet and Chriſtian a Temper, that at the end of his Days, he asked pardon of all thoſe whom he feared he might have offended. He was in poſſeſſion of the City of Naples, from 1390, to 1399, and in 1411, he gained the Battle of Roche-ſeche againſt Ladiſlaus. But did not husband his Advantage as he might have done. In 1400, he married Jolanda, the Daughter of John I. of Arragon, and Heireſs of that Kingdom, after the death of her Uncle Martin; by whom he had Lewis III. Renatus called The Good, Charles, Count of Maine, Mary, Wife of Charles VII. and Jolanda, the Wife of the Earl of Montfort, afterwards Duke of Britain, after the death of John VI. his Father. Lewis died at Angers, April 29. 1417. Collenutio and Summoneta Hiſt. of Naples.

LEWIS III. was born in 1403, ſucceeded his Father, and was drawn into Italy by the Promiſes of Martin V. and Sforza, to diſpoſſeſs Joan II. Queen of Naples, a Princeſs of a moſt looſe life. Alphonſus, King of Arragon, who was Maſter of Sicily, took upon him the Protection of Joan, becauſe ſhe had adopted him for her Son, and Sforza made his Peace with her, ſo that Lewis was fain to return without effecting any thing. But ſome time after, ſhe retracted her Adoption of Alphonſus, and, by the Advice of her Barons, beſtowed it upon Lewis, whom ſhe immediately called into Italy, made her Subjects acknowledge him for her Heir, and gave him the Dukedom of Calabria. Alphonſus, in his return to Arragon, took Marſeilles, in 1423. and Lewis and Joan drove the Spaniards out of Naples, and the King gained the Battle of Aquila, in 1429. But being a weak and ſickly Perſon, he died at Coſenza, Nov. 12. or 15. 1438. Renatus, his Brother, ſucceeded him. Collenutio Hiſt. of Naples. Ruffi. and Noſtradamus Hiſt. of Provence. Mezeray Hiſt. of France.

LEWIS, King of that part of Sicily, which is called Trinacria, was the Son of Peter, of the Family of the Princes of Arragon, Deſcended from Peter III. who married Conſtance, the Daughter of Manfredus, the Emperor Frederick's Natural Son, who uſurped the Kingdom of Sicily. It was on the account of this Marriage of Peter with Conſtance, that they laid Claim to that Kingdom. Lewis ſucceeded his Father in 1342, and being but five Years old, his Uncle was Regent. He died in 1355, and his Brother, Frederick the Simple, reigned after him. Spond. Bzov. in Annal.

LEWIS of Duras, Earl of Gravina and Morona, was the ſecond Son of John of Anjou, or of Sicily, who was the 8th Son of Charles II. ſurnamed The Lame, King of Sicily, Deſcended from Charles of France, Earl of Anjou, Brother of St. Lewis. He ſucceeded his Brother Charles, Duke of Duras, Governor of the Kingdom of Naples, and the ſame whom King Lewis of Hungary put to death, in 1347, becauſe he ſuppoſed him guilty of the death of Andrew his Brother. Lewis his Deſtiny was not much unlike; for he was poiſoned at Naples, by Order of his Couſin Joan I. in 1362. He had a Son called Charles, ſurnamed Peace, or The little King of Naples, by Margaret, the Daughter of Robert of St. Severin, Count of Carigliano. Lewis who died young, and Agnes, who was never married. Villani.

LEWIS of Tarentum, was the Son of Philip, Fourth Son of Charles the Lame. He married in 1346, Joan, Queen of Naples, and Counteſs of Provence, the Daughter of Charles, his Couſin-German. 'Tis ſaid, he had a hand in the death of King Andrew; he followed the Queen into Provence, when Lewis, King of Hungary, came to avenge the death of his Brother. This Matter was afterwards accommodated in 1352. Lewis died, May 26. 1362. It is ſaid, that he Inſtituted the Order of Knighthood, called del Nodo. He had two Daughters that died young. Collenutio Hiſt. of Naples.

LEWIS Biſhop of Tholouſe, was the Second Son of Charles II. King of Jeruſalem and Sicily, and tho' preſumptive Heir of thoſe Dominions, he prefered the quiet of a Cloyſter, before the trouble of Crowns. In 1288, he was, together with his Brothers, given in Hoſtage for his Father who was taken Priſoner by James, King of Arragon. At his return he took the Habit of a Franciſcan, and Pope Boniface VIII. made him Biſhop of Tholouſe, diſpenſing with his under Age. He was a Prelate of great Zeal and Charity, finding that the Function of a Biſhop, gave him too many Avocations from his Retirements, he reſolved to go to Rome, and deliver it into the Pope's hands; and as he was on his way thither, he died at Brignole, Aug. 19. 1297, being not above 23 Years of Age. Pope John XXII. Canoniz'd him, April 13. 1317.

Dukes and Princes of Savoy of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS of Savoy, Prince of Achaia, and the Morea, &c. was the Son of James of Savoy, and Margaret of Beaujeu, his Third Wife, and Brother of Amadeus, Count of Piedmont, to whom he ſucceeded, in 1402. He was left in his Cradle by his Father, under the Guardianſhip of Amadeus IV. ſurnamed The Green, E. of Savoy, whom he accompanied in the Journey of Naples, in behalf of the Princes of the Houſe of Anjou, in 1383, and afterwards ſerved the King of Naples and Amadeus VII. E. of Savoy, ſurnamed The Red. He Founded an Univerſity at Turin, in 1405. He was a Prince eſteemed for his Merit, by all the Princes of Europe, and aſſiſted at the Council of Conſtance. He died at Pignerol, Dec. 11. 1418. He had married Bonna of Savoy, the Siſter of the ſaid Amadeus, by whom he had no Iſſue, only had a Natural Son by a Neapolitan Lady, viz. Lewis, Lord of Reconis, whoſe Poſterity took the Name and Arms of Savoy. Guichenon Hiſt. of Savoy.

LEWIS, Duke of Savoy, was the 2d. Son of Amadeus VIII. to whom he ſucceeded, and Brother of Amadeus, Prince of Piedmont, who died before his Father. He was born at Geneva, Feb. 14. 1402, and from his very Youth, gave ſignal Inſtances of his Courage and Prudence. Amadeus VIII. made him Lieutenant General of Savoy, and was at Baſil, when his Father, choſen Pope, by the Name of Fœlix V. made his Entrance there, in 1440. Upon the death of Philippus-Maria, Duke of Milan, in 1447, he took part with thoſe of Milan, but this Army was defeated near the River Sezia. In another Fight, the Savoyards had better ſucceſs, whereupon a Peace was concluded. Lewis, Dauphin of France, afterwards Lewis XI. being retired into Dauphiné, made a League with Duke Lewis, and married his Daughter Charlotta; but this Marriage was not approved of by his Father, as having been made without his Conſent. But the ill conſequence hereof, was prevented by the Duke of Savoy, who faithfully kept the Treaty he had made with the Dauphin's Father Charles VII. and refuſed to give any Aſſiſtance to the Dauphin, who, he knew, was at variance with his Father. Afterwards, being come to France, in the Reign of Lewis XI. his Son-in-law, he died at Lyons, Jan. 29. 1465, his Body was carried to Geneva, and Interred there. This Prince was a great Juſticiary, he Inſtituted the Senate of Turin, March 15. 1459. He married Ann of Cyprus, the Daughter of Janus, King of Cyprus, &c. and of Charlotta of Bourbon, by whom he had ſixteen Children, nine Sons, and ſeven Daughters. Guichenon's Hiſtory of Savoy.

LEWIS II. Son of Lewis, Duke of Savoy, was King of Cyprus, in the Right of his Wife Charlotta, Daughter of John II. King of Cyprus. It is elſewhere mentioned, that James, Natural Son of King John, tho' a Clergy-man, uſurped this Dominion, and married Margaret, or, as others will have it, Cartharine Cornaro, whom the Senate of Venice adopted. Lewis, deſpairing of ever being able to oppoſe the ſtrength of his Enemies, retired to Ripaille, and died there in Auguſt 1482, without Iſſue. *Stephen of Luſignan Hiſt. of Cyprus. Princes of the Houſe of France, Earls of Evreux, and Dukes of Orleans, of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS of France, Count of Evreux, &c. was the Son of Philip the Bold by his Second Wife Mary of Brabant, and had for his Portion the Earldom of Evreux; and was chief of the Branch of the Counts of Evreux, and Kings of Navarre. He was at the Battle of Mons en Puelle, in 1304, and gave many Proofs of his Courage on ſeveral Occaſions. He died, May 19. 1319.

LEWIS of France, Duke of Orleans, Count of Valois, &c. was the Second Son of Charles V. and of Joan of Bourbon. He was born, March 13. 1371. He was at the Battle of Roſebecque, in 1382, and had a great ſhare in the Government, during the Reign of Charles VI. his Brother. He let ſlip no opportunity of Aggrandizing himſelf, ſo that in a ſhort time he became very powerful, by the ſuperintendency of the King's Revenues, and the Government of the Kingdom. He had 600 Gentlemen that were his Penſioners, and Reigned more abſolutely than the King himſelf. This diſpleaſed the Duke of Burgundy, who pretended to a ſhare in the Government, as being the King's Uncle, and this Grudge was the Cauſe of thoſe Wars, which afterwards proved ſo fatal to France. Lewis made an Alliance with the Duke of Guelderland, which yet farther incenſed the Duke of Burgundy, as being his Enemy. To put an end to this difference between them, they were both ſent to oppoſe the Engliſh. Lewis went to Guyenne, where he took Blaye; and at his return, was Aſſaſſinated by the Duke of Burgundy's Order, near Porte Barbette, Nov. 23. or 24. 1497. Enguerand de Monſtrelet Chron. Froiſard, &c.

Princes of the Houſe of Bourbon of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS I. of that Name, Duke of Bourbon, &c. ſurnamed The Great, was the Son of Robert of France, the ſixth Son of Lewis, and of Beatrix of Burgundy, Lady of Bourbon. He was at the Battel of Furnes, in 1297, at that of Point a Vendin, and at the Expedition of Courtray, in 1302, where he Commanded the Rear of the Army. He accompanied the Queen, Iſabella of France, into England, and after that War was proclaimed againſt the Engliſh, he Commanded the Army of Guyenne, where he took Agen, Monſecur, &c. It was on his behalf, that King Charles the Fair raiſed the Barony of Bourbon to a Dutchy, in 1327. The following Year he ſignalized himſelf at the Fight of Mont-caſſel, and elſewhere. He died in January 1342, and was buried at Paris. Froiſſard.

LEWIS II. Duke of Bourbon, &c. ſurnamed The Good, was the Son of Peter I. Duke of Bourbon, and of Iſabella of Valois. He was born, Aug. 4. 1337. He was one of the Hoſtages that was ſent into England, for the ſetting King John at liberty, where he ſtayed 8 Years. At his return, he contributed to the recovery of Guyenne and Poitou from the Engliſh, and took alſo divers Places in Normandy. He accompanied King Charles VI. into the Low-Countries, and Commanded the Rear at the Battel of Roſebecque; he aſſiſted at the Siege of Bourborg, and the next Year at the taking of the Caſtle of Tailleburg. He accompanied the King in 1388, againſt the Duke of Guelderland, and after the Treaty of Peace, paſt over into Africa, and beſieged Tunis in 1390, and made the Infidels to ſubmit to Conditions very advantageous to the Chriſtians. At his return, he drove the Engliſh from before Belleperche, where his Mother then was, and aſſiſted Lewis, King of Naples, againſt Ladiſlaus. He was well eſteem'd of at the Court, which yet he quitted after the Murther of Lewis of France, chuſing rather ſo to do, than to conſent to a Reconciliation, to which they would have obliged him. In the mean time, he declared himſelf for the Princes of Orleans, and endeavoured to get the Duke of Burgundy declared an Enemy to the State, but without ſucceſs, becauſe that Duke was too powerful. He died at Montlucon, Aug. 19. 1410. He Inſtituted in 1369, the Knightly Order of the Shield. He was married to Anne, Dauphineſs of Auvergne, &c. only Daughter of Beraldus II. Earl of Clermont, by whom he had John I. and Lewis, who died in 1404, Aged 16 Years. Monſtrelet's Hiſt. of Charles VI.

LEWIS of Bourbon I. of that Name, Prince of Conde, &c. was the 7th Son of Charles of Bourbon, Duke of Vandome, and was born, May 7. 1530. He made his firſt Campagne under King Henry II. when he went to re-take the City of Boulogne. In 1552, he put himſelf into Metz, which he defended againſt the Emperor Charles V. and defeated ſome of the Forces of the Pr. of Piedmont, before the reduction of Therouanne. He ſignalized himſelf at the Battel of Vlpian in Piedmont. After this, he Fought valiantly at the Battel of St. Quintin. He did good Service at the Sieges of Calis and Thionville, in 1558, and after the death of Henry II. he joined with the Proteſtants. He was accuſed as Conſcious of the Conſpiracy of Amboiſe, and upon that account was ſeized at Orleans; but upon the death of Francis II. Charles IX. ſet him at liberty, being declared innocent by his Peers. He put himſelf at the Head of the Hugonots, and took ſeveral Towns. He was taken and wounded at the Battel of Dreux, in 1562. He loſt that of St. Denys in 1567, and was killed at Jarnac, March 13. 1569, by Monteſquion, Captain of the Guards of the Duke of Anjou, who ſhot him with a Piſtol in cold Blood, as he was ſitting under a Buſh, having had his Leg broke with the kick of a Horſe. Thuanus.

LEWIS of Bourbon II. of the Name, Prince of Conde, was the Son of Henry II. Prince of Conde, and of Charlotta Margaret of Montmorency, and was born at Paris, Sept. 8. 1621. He was in 1640, at the Siege of Arras, and two Years after at that of Perpignan. Afterwards he was made General of the King's Army, and gained the Famous Victory of Rocroy, May 19. 1643, in the 22d Year of his Age. The next Year he defeated the Bavarians, in the Battels near Friburg, Aug. 3. and 5. He took Philipsburg, Mentz, &c. In 1645, he won the bloody Battel of Nortlingen, Aug. 3 and the Year after, took the City of Dunkirk. In 1646, his Father died, whom he ſucceeded, as Lord Steward of the King's Houſe, and in the Governments of Burgundy, Breſſe and Berry. In 1647, he Commanded the King's Forces in Catalonia, where he was unſucceſsful at the Siege of Lerida; but took the Caſtle of Arger, on the Borders of Arragon, and raiſed the Siege of Conſtantine. In 1648, he gained the Battel of Lens in Flanders. Some time after, being become Formidable, by his Courage and Power, to thoſe that then governed France, he was ſeized at Paris, with the Prince of Conti, his Brother, and the Duke of Longueville, his Brother-in-Law, in 1650, and conducted to Vincennes, but Feb. 13. they were ſet at liberty. The Reſentment for his Impriſonment, made him take up Arms, and was followed by a great number of diſcontented Perſons. He gave ſingular proof of his Valour at the Fight of the Suburb of St. Anthony of Paris, July 2. 1652. He retired afterwards to the Netherlands, where he did great Service to the Spaniards, by the Succours he put into Cambray, and by the memorable Retreat he made at the raiſing of the Siege of Arras, Aug. 25. 1654. In 1656, he raiſed the Siege of Valenciennes: And in 1658, he ſignalized himſelf at the Fight before Dunkirk, June 14. By the Pyrenæan Treaty, he returned to France in 1659, and was received into the King's Favour. He aſſiſted the King in the Conqueſt of the Franche Comte in 1668, and in the Holland-Invaſion in 1672, and Fought ſtoutly at the Famous Battel of Seneff, Aug. 10. 1674. Soon after he raiſed the Siege of Audenarde; and contributed to the Taking of Limburg in 1675, and after the Death of the Viſcount Turenne, he commanded in Germany. He had married Clara Clementia de Maille Dutcheſs of Fronſac; by whom he had Henry Julius of Bourbon Duke of Enguien. He died in 1686, at Fontainbleau.

LEWIS of Bourbon II. Duke of Montpenſier, &c. ſurnamed The Good, was born June 10. 1513. He began to bear Arms under the Reign of Francis I. And in 1536, he was at the Taking of Heſdin; and aſſiſted at the Siege of Perpignan in 1542. He ſignalized himſelf at the Siege of Bologne in 1550, at the Battel of Renti, and St. Quintin, where he was taken Priſoner. In the Civil Wars under Charles IX. he reduced Angers, Saumur, Tours, Du Mans, St. Jean d'Angeli, Rochelle, &c. He commanded the Van-Guard of the French King's Army at the Battels of Jarnac and Moncontour. He aſſiſted at the firſt Siege of Rochelle in 1573, and the next Year commanded the Army in Poictou, where he reduced ſeveral Places. He died at his Caſtle of Champaigne, Septemb. 23. 1582.

LEWIS of Bourbon Earl of Soiſſons, &c. the Son of Charles of Bourbon, and Anne of Montafie, was born at Paris, May 11. 1604. He ſignalized himſelf in the War againſt the Proteſtants, at the Combat of Rie, in Poictou. He was Lieutenant-General of the King's Forces, and Head of the Council, during the King's Journey into Bretaigne. Afterwards he followed the King to the Siege of Rochelle in 1628, and in the Italian Expedition in 1630. He commanded the Army of Champaigne in 1636, where he defeated 2000 Coſſacks at the Battel of Ivoy, and took the City of Corbie. Not long after, upon ſome Jealouſies, he was permitted to retire to Sedan, where he continued 4 Years; but at laſt, growing weary of that Retirement, he joined with the Spaniards, under the Count of Lamboy, and defeated the Marſhal of Chaſtillon at Marfee, near to Sedan, July 6. 1641, but purſuing his Victory too hotly, was killed with a Piſtol-ſhot. He was never married, and left a Natural Son, Lewis Henry, Knight of Soiſſons Abbot of Couſſure, born at Sedan in 1640.

LEWIS Cardinal Duke of Vendôme, &c. was the Son of Cæſar, Duke of Vendôme, Natural Son of Henry IV. and of Frances of Lorrain Dutcheſs of Mercœur. He was born in 1612. In 1630, he followed King Lewis XIII. to Savoy; and at his Return, went and ſerved as a Voluntier in Holland, where he was at the Fight of Liſle in 1631. Afterwards he was at the Battel of Avein in 1635, at the Siege of Corbie in 1636, of Heſdin in 1639, and of Arras in 1640, in which Siege he was wounded in forcing the Lines. In 1650, the French King ſent him Vice-Roy into Catalonia. In 1656, he took Valencia upon the Po, in Conjunction with the Duke of Modena. In 1651, he married Laura Mancini, Niece of Cardinal Mazarin, by whom he had Lewis Joſeph Duke of Vendôme, &c. and Philip Grand Prior of France, of the Order of Maltha. His Wife died Feb. 8. 1657, after which her Huſband turned Eccleſiaſtick, and was made a Cardinal by Pope Alexander VII. March 7. 1667. He died at Aix in Provence, Aug. 6. 1669.

Dukes of Milan, Mantua, Bavaria, Earls of Thuringia, and Landtgraves of Heſſen, of the Name of LEWIS.

LEWIS, or Ludovicus Sforza, ſurnamed The Moor, Duke of Milan, was the Son of Francis Sforza, and youngeſt Brother of Galeas Maria, who ſucceeded his Father, and who left a Son called John Galeas. This Lewis, that he might uſurp the Dukedom from his Nephew, married his Niece Blanche-Mary, Widow of Philibert I. Duke of Savoy, to the Emperor Maximilian; who beſtowed upon him the Inveſtiture of that Dominion, as being become vacant by default of Homage. Afterwards he called Charles VIII. of France into Italy, who being at Piacenza in 1494, was informed of the Death of John Galeas, poiſoned by Lewis, who preſently invaded the Dukedom, without any Regard had to his Nephew's Son, who was but five Years of age. Some time after, being entred into a League with the Enemies of France, Lewis XII. being come to the Throne, and laying Claim to the Dutchy of Milan, made himſelf Maſter of it; but upon his Return to France, Sforza once more poſſeſſed himſelf of Milan, but not long after was beaten by Lewis of Tremouille, the French King's General, and taken in the Diſguiſe of a plain Soldier, and carried to Lyons, and kept Priſoner in the Caſtle of Loches, where he died ten Years after. Guicciardine ſaith, he was a Prince of great Wit and Eloquence, and of an affable and obliging Temper, but very ambitious, and one that had no regard to his Word.

LEWIS of Lorrain, called the Cardinal of Guiſe, Archbiſhop of Rheims, was the Son of Francis Duke of Guiſe, killed at the Siege of Orleans, by Poltrot, and of Anne d'Eſte, and Brother of Henry I. Duke of Guiſe. He ſucceeded his Great Uncle Charles in the Archbiſhoprick of Rheims. He was a very ambitious Perſon, and one of the chief Partiſans of the League, which, under the falſe Pretence of Religion, aimed at the Subverſion of the French Monarchy. Henry III. not being able to endure the Deſigns of the Duke of Guiſe, cauſed him to be killed at Blois in 1588. The Cardinal, his Brother, was taken at the ſame time, with the Archbiſhop of Lyons, a great Leaguer, and was killed the Day after the Duke. We find by the Letter the King writ to the Cardinal of Joyeuſe at Rome, that the Cardinal of Guiſe ſaid frequently, That he ſhould not die till he had cauſed the King to be ſhorn, and thruſt into a Monaſtery. Miron. Relation de la mort de M. de Guiſe. Aubery Hiſtoire des Cardinaux. Thuan. lib. 93.

LEWIS of Luxemburg, Cardinal Archbiſhop of Roan, was the Son of John of Luxemburg, Lord of Beaurevoir, and of Margaret of Enguien. He took Part with the Engliſh, and Henry VI. of England and France, made him Chancellor of France in 1425, which Office he executed till 1435. He was made Archbiſhop of Roan in 1436. Pope Eugenius made him Cardinal in 1439, but he refuſed to accept of the Hat till the King of England ſhould approve the Promotion; who made him Biſhop of Ely, and truſted him with his moſt important Affairs in France; in which he was very Faithful to him. Lewis of Luxemburg betook himſelf to the Baſtile, after that the City of Paris had ſubmitted to King Charles VII. in 1436, and came out thence upon Accord, and retired to England, where he died in 1443, at Harfield. Goodwin de Epiſc. Elienſ. Sanmarthan.

LEWIS of Luxemburg, Count of St. Paul, &c. He aſſiſted at the Famous Aſſembly of Arras in 1435, and afterwards followed King Charles VII. to the Siege of Pontoiſe in 1441. He was Knighted at the Siege of Diepe, in 1443, and ſignalized himſelf at the Taking of Caen, in 1450. Charles Duke of Burgundy had a great Friendſhip for him, and ſent him into England, and gave him the Command of his Van-Guard at the Battel of Montleheri. Lewis XI. to engage him to his Party, made him Conſtable of France, and Knight of the Order of St. Michael; who then perſwaded the King to declare War againſt the Duke of Burgundy, and afterwards ſurprized the Town of St. Quintin, and relieved Beauvais. But, for all this, he afterwards fell into the Diſpleaſure of this jealous Prince, being accuſed for holding Correſpondence with the Enemies. Whereupon he made his Eſcape to the Duke of Burgundy, who delivered him up to the King's Hands. And being brought to his Trial, was afterwards publickly Beheaded at Paris, Decemb. 19. 1475.

LEWISA, or LOUISA, of Savoy, Dutcheſs of Angoulême, was the Daughter of Philip Count of Breſſe, afterwards Duke of Savoy, and of Margaret of Bourbon. She was born in 1477, and was married in 1488, to Charles Count of Angoulême, who died in 1496, by whom ſhe had Francis I. and Margaret of Valois. King Francis I. her Son, being come to the Crown after Lewis XII. he left her Regent of the Kingdom, whilſt he went to conquer the Dutchy of Milan. She being extreamly incenſed againſt Charles of Bourbon, Conſtable of France, raiſed him ſo much Trouble, that he betook himſelf to the Enemies of France. She was extreamly afflicted at her Son's being taken Priſoner at Pavia; and having exerted her utmoſt Endeavours for his Deliverance, died ſoon after at Gretz in Gatinois, Septemb. 22. 1531.

LEWIS-LAND, or LOUISIANE, a great Country to the S. W. of New-France, beyond the five great Lakes; which was diſcovered in 1678, by the French Governor of Fort-Frontenac. The French have ſince built ſeveral Forts here, and put their King's Name upon it, becauſe it was diſcovered in his Reign, and, if we will believe them, becauſe the Inhabitants of the Country worſhip the Sun, which, in their Language, they call Louis. The Country is very Fruitful, and abounds with Vines, but the Grapes are ſomewhat ſowre; yet in the South Parts they are as good as in France. Ours, as well as Indian Corn, thrives very well here, and the Trees bear excellent Fruits. The Woods abound with Red and Fallow Deer, Bevers, Otters, Porcupines and Turkeys. The Rivers are full of Sturgeon, Salmon, Trouts, Pikes, Carps, and all other ſorts of Fiſh. There are alſo great ſtore of Partridges, Ducks, Swans, Herons, and other Fowl in abundance. The Country is full of Serpents, Snakes, Aſps and Rattle-Snakes. The Relation of this Country, printed in 1682, tells us, That the Sieur de la Salle, the firſt Diſcoverer of it, with ſome Monks, had been as far as the Mouth of the River Colbert, in the South Sea, where they had found a civilized People, that were under the Government of a King, and whoſe Country is exceeding Fruitful; and that the Ground bears twice a Year, and abounds with Palm-Trees and Sugar-Canes, and whole Foreſts of Mulberry-Trees; with great abundance of all ſorts of Fowl. Father Hennepin Deſcription de la Louiſiane.

LIAMPO, a Famous Cape of China, and the moſt Eaſtern of all our Continent. So called from a City of the ſame Name in the Province of Chechiara. Martini Atlas Sinicus.

LIBANUS, or Mount-LEBANON, a Mountain of Aſia, between Palæſtine and Syria, which alone produceth the Cedar-Tree. It beginneth between the Confines of Arabia and Damaſcus, and ends at the Mediterranean Sea, near Tripoly; having run from E. to W. 12 Miles. A Modern Hiſtorian gives us the following Deſcription of it: Mount Libanus, ſaith he, is the higheſt and greateſt Mountain of all Palæſtine; the one End of it being in Phœnicia, the other in Syria, and is about 100 Leagues in Circuit. On the Weſt it is bounded by the Mediterranean, by the Holy Land on the South, by Meſopotamia on the Eaſt, and Armenia on the North. It conſiſts of four Ranges of Mountains, one above the other: The firſt is extreamly fertile in Grain, and all manner of Fruits: The Second is ſtony and rocky, and altogether barren, but abounds with a great many Springs, which make it ſomewhat delightful: The Third enjoys a continual Spring, the Shade of Greens, the Natural Enamel of Flowers; the Groves, the Gardens, and Orchards, filled with great Variety of Fruits, make it a kind of Earthly Paradiſe: The Fourth is partly green with Graſs and Herbs, and partly white, by reaſon of the Snows that cover it. It lies in form of an Half-Moon, and is uninhabited by reaſon of its Heighth, and great Cold. At the Foot of it grow thoſe Cedars that are ſo renowned in Scripture. There are four Rivers which have their Riſe from this Mountain, viz. the Rivers Jordan, Rochan, Nahar-Roſſens, and Nahar-Cardicha. This latter, called the Holy River, is the ſame that Solomon deſcribes in theſe Words, Puteus aquarum viventium quæ fluunt cum impetu de Libano. On this Mountain there be many Villages, and ſome ſmall Cities that are Biſhops Sees; as Eden Canubin, which is the Reſidence of the Patriarch of the Maronites, who are a ſort of Chriſtians living there, and who, ſome time ſince, ſubmitted themſelves to the See of Rome. The Mountain is very fruitful, and the Cedars plenty. 'Tis from hence that Solomon fetched his Cedars for the building of the Temple of Jeruſalem. The Cedar-Tree, beſides its Incorruptibility, Talneſs, and the heighth of the Mountain on which it grows, hath this obſervable, That the Leaves and Fruits of it have their Points turned towards Heaven. This Mountain, beſides its Cedars, produceth Firr, Cyprus, Olives, Pines, Box, Aromatick Herbs and Incenſe. It abounds with fierce Beaſts. The Maronites that live here are allowed a Bell, which is denied to all other Chriſtians who live amongſt the Mahometans; becauſe, on the Appearance of that Sect, the Chriſtians cut off great Numbers of them upon the Ringing of a Bell. The Anti-Libanus is, in a manner, of an equal Extent with Mount Lebanon, there being only a Valley between them. Joſephus. Plin. lib. 5. Strabo. Ptolemy. Le Voyage de Levant.

LIBANIUS of Antiochia, the Sophiſt, lived in the IVth Century in 360, and was in great Repute for his Parts and Eloquence. He was Præceptor to St. Baſil, and to St. John Chryſoſtom; and was in great Favour with Julian the Apoſtate. For the Works we have of his, we are beholden to the Care of Fredericus Morellus, Leo Allatius, and Henricus Valeſius. Julian & St. Baſil in Epiſt. Eunap. in Julian. Photius Cod. 60.

LIBAW, Lat. Liba, a Town in the Dukedom of Curland, in the Kingdom of Poland, which has an Haven on the Baltick Sea. It ſtands on the Confines of Samogitia, 18 German Miles from Memel in Pruſſia, and 24 from Mittaw, the Capital of Semigallia to the Weſt. It was often taken and re-taken in the late Wars between the Swedes and Poles. At laſt, by the Treaty of Olive-Cloyſter, in 1660, it was reſtored to the Duke of Curland.

LIBELLATICI, a Name given in the Primitive Church, to thoſe Mungrel Chriſtians, who, to ſave their Eſtates or Lives, got Atteſtations from the Heathen Magiſtrates, that they had obeyed the Edicts of the Emperors, in Sacrificing to Idols. And for this purpoſe, either privately by themſelves, or by other Perſons, they declared before the Magiſtrate, that they renounced the Faith; and ſo delivered themſelves, either by Money, or Favour, from the Laſh of the Law, which ordered this Renunciation to be done in publick. This was, without doubt, a great Sin in them; and the African Church would not admit of ſuch to Communion, but after a long courſe of Penance. And, foraſmuch as theſe kind of Satisfactions were very ſevere, they frequently addreſſed themſelves to Confeſſors, or Martyrs, to obtain by their Interceſſion a Relaxation of theſe Church-Puniſhments; which was called, The Begging of Peace. The Abuſe of theſe Conceſſions of Peace, became the Occaſion of a great Schiſm in the Church of Carthage, in the Time of St. Cyprian, which is mentioned under Feliciſſimus. The XIth Canon of the Council of Nice partly concerns theſe Libellatici. St. Cyprian, Epiſt. 31. Libr. de Lapſis, &c. Baronius, A. C. 252. Godeau Hiſt. Eccleſ.

LIBERATUS, a Deacon of the Church of Carthage, liv'd in the VIth Century. He was ſent to Rome, by the Council of Carthage, held in 535, and imploy'd in ſeveral other Affairs of conſequence. He writ a Book, call'd, Breviarium de Cauſa Neſtorii & Eutychetis, capitibus 24 comprehenſum. Baronius would have this Book read with precaution, becauſe the Author has, in his Opinion, advanc'd ſome unorthodox Propoſitions; but Liberatus gives the Reader to underſtand, that he had collected his Treatiſe from Church Hiſtory, tranſlated out of Greek into Latin; from the Acts of Councils, the Epiſtles of the Fathers, and from ſeveral other Memoirs, which Perſons of Conſideration and Credit had furniſh'd him with. Baronius, A. C. 535. 538. Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. Poſſevin in Appar. Sac. &c.

LIBERIUS (Pope) a Roman by Birth. He ſucceeded Julius I. May 352. The Arian Biſhops writ a Letter to Julius a little before his Death, in which they deſired his Communion; and loaded St. Athanaſius with great Calumnies. Liberius, deſiring the Peace of the Church, ſent Paulus Lucius and Ælianus to him, to bid him come to Rome; and that in caſe of Refuſal, he ſhould be excommunicated: But the Letter ſent to him by the Prelates of Egypt, wherein they highly juſtified their Metropolitan, made him change his Mind. After this, in 353. Liberius ſent Vincentius Biſhop of Capua, with ſome others, to Arles, where the Emperor Conſtantius was at that Time, at an Arian Council, and deſir'd a Council to be held at Aquileia, and the Condemnation of Arius: But Vincentius not being able to obtain either the one, or the other, ſubſcribed to the Condemnation of St. Athanaſius. Liberius ſent other Legates to Conſtantius, to deſire a Council of him; which the Emperor granted, and was held at Milan in 355. But the prevailing Party of this Synod proving to be Arians, the Orthodox Prelates were ſent into Baniſhment. Conſtantius in the mean time ſent for Liberius to Milan; and finding that he could not perſuade him to ſubſcribe to St. Athanaſius's Condemnation, he baniſhed him to Beræa, a City of Thrace: Whereupon, the Arians ſubſtituted Fœlix in his Place. During Liberius's Exile, the Arians, aſſembled at Syrmich, publiſhed a Confeſſion of Faith, wherein was nothing that could render it ſuſpected, ſave only the Omiſſion of the Word Conſubſtantial: But ſcarcely was this got out of their Hands, but, repenting that they had attributed too much to the Son of God, they publiſhed a Second, contrary to the former, and altogether Heretical. In the mean time the Pope, after two Years Baniſhment, in 357. ſubſcribed to the Condemnation of St. Athanaſius, and to the Confeſſion they preſented to him; writ to the Biſhops of the Eaſt, to acquaint them therewith, and then addreſſed himſelf to the Chief of the Arians, that they might procure the Emperor's Favour for him; uſing Expreſſions altogether unworthy of a Pope. In 358. Conſtantius ſent Liberius back to Rome, where he was looked upon with Diſdain and Indignation. But after Conſtantius's Death, he came to himſelf again; and ſent a Letter to St. Athanaſius, to be reconciled to him, as Baronius Reports.

LIBERTAS, or LIBERTY, was honoured by the Romans for a Deity, and had her Temple at Rome. The Greeks alſo worſhipped her, under the Name of Eleutheria. She was repreſented by a Woman dreſſed in White, having a Sceptre in the Right Hand, and an Hat in her Left, with a Cat ſtanding by her.

LIBERTAT (Peter) a French Man, was a very Eminent Inſtance of Loyalty and Reſolution, in the Reign of Hen. IVth. for whom he recover'd the Town of Marſeilles, notwithſtanding the Treachery and Oppoſition of a Rebellious Faction: For this great Service, the Towns-men Erected a Statue, and order'd an Anniverſary Solemn Service in Honour of his Memory. Soleri Hiſtoire de Marſeille.

LIBERTINES, a Sect of Hereticks, whoſe Ring-leaders were, Quintin, a Taylor of Picardy, and one Copin; who about 1525. divulged their Errors in Holland and Brabant. They maintained, That whatſoever is done by Men, is done by the Spirit of God: and from thence concluded, That there was no Sin, but to thoſe that thought it ſo, becauſe all came from God. They added, That to live without any Doubt or Scruple, was, to return to the State of Innocency: And gave way to their Followers to call themſelves either Catholicks, or Lutherans, according as the Company they lighted amongſt were. Bellarmin.

LIBITINA, an Heathen Goddeſs, who had a Temple at Rome, wherein was kept whatſoever was neceſſary to Funeral-Solemnities; which were bought or borrowed of the Libitinarii, as every one had Occaſion. Plutarch tells us, That this Goddeſs was by ſome ſuppoſed to be the ſame with Proſerpina, the Queen of Hell: But that others held her to the ſame with Venus; and accordingly, derived her Name from Libitum, or Libido; which ſignifie Luſt, or Pleaſure. And Plutarch ſeems himſelf to be of this Opinion; and ſaith, That the Reaſon why the Romans kept all Funeral-Furniture in the Temple of Venus, was, to put Men in mind of the Frailty of their Nature; and that the Going out of the World is near the Entry, ſeeing that the ſame Goddeſs who preſided over the Cauſe or Principle of Life, was alſo the Superintendent of Funerals.

LIBO, an excellent Architect of Elis, in the Peloponneſus, lived in the LXXXth. Olympiad, 58 Years before Jeſus Chriſt. He built the famous Temple of Jupiter Olympius, near to Piſa, in Greece, where the Olympick Games were celebrated. This Structure is excellently deſcribed by Pauſanias, lib. 5. Eliac.

LIBURNIA, Part of the ancient Illyria, now called Croatia. Its Principal Cities of old were, Fianona, Terſarz, Zegna, Lopur, Starigard, Peſcha, Nona, Zara, Vecchia and Scardona, which ſtill retains its old Name. The Liburnians were the Inventors of a light ſort of Veſſel, wherewith they played the Pirates, and pillaged the Iſlands of Dalmatia, and the Epirus. In Imitation of which Veſſels, called Liburna, or Liburnica, the Romans invented a kind of Litter, wherein they could ſtudy, write, eat and ſleep as they were on their Journeys; which were therefore called Liburna. Juv. Sat. 3.

LIBUSSA, the Daughter of Crocus, one of the firſt Princes of Bohemia; who being left Heireſs of that Kingdom, governed it for ſome Time without being married: But her Subjects demanding a King of her, ſhe conſented at laſt to take an Husband, ſuch as Providence ſhould offer to her: And accordingly, adviſed them to ſet her Horſe at liberty in the open Field; and that ſhe would take him for her Husband, into whoſe Houſe her Horſe ſhould firſt enter. The Horſe run into the Houſe of a Countryman, called Primiſlaus, whom ſhe accordingly married, and was the firſt King of Bohemia.

LIBYA, a conſiderable Part of Africa, ſo called from Libya, the Daughter of Epaphus. It was of old divided into the Exterior and Interior Libya; the former lying above Egypt, towards the South, along the Left Bank of the River Nile, reached as far as Æthiopia, where now are the Deſarts of Elfocat and Gaoga; tho' others place the Exterior Libya between Egypt and Marmarica, along the Mediterranean. The Interior Libya extended it ſelf from Mount Atlas, to the River Niger, containing thoſe horrid Solitudes which now are called the Deſarts of Zaara, which is Libya properly ſo called; and to which Marmol gives the Name of Beled Geneva. Libya is alſo divided into Libya properly ſo called, and Libya Marmarica, and Cyrenaica, which contains the Kingdom and Deſart of Barca. Strabo lib. 17. *Pliny. LICETUS (Fortunius) a Famous Phyſician of Rappalo, in the State of Genoua, where he was born, Octob. 3. 1577. His Father was Joſephus Licetus, a Phyſician of Reco, in the ſame State. He came into the World in the ſeventh Month from his Conception; his Mother's Travail having been haſtened by the toſſing of the Sea, in paſſing from Reco to Rappalo; therefore was called Fortunius, and for ſome time was kept in a Box of Cotton. His Father took great Care of his Education, and himſelf inſtructed him in ingenious Literature. After which, he ſtudied at Bononia, from 1595. to 1599. when he returned to Genoua, where he found his Father newly dead. Afterwards he profeſſed Philoſophy at Piſa. A Book which his Father had made, put him upon writing another, entituled, Gonopſychanthropologia: But this Piece being queſtioned whether it were of his own writing he publiſhed another Treatiſe at Piſa, under the Title of De Ortu Animæ Humanæ. In the mean time, the Fame of his Learning increaſing, he was ſent for to the Univerſity of Padua, in 1605. where he taught till 1631. at which Time, upon ſome Diſcontent, he retired to Bononia: But in 1645. the Republick of Venice, by their Inſtances, prevailed upon him again to accept a Profeſſor's Chair at Padua; which he did, and died there in 1656, being 75 Years of Age. He writ no leſs than 50 ſeveral Treatiſes; whereof, theſe are the moſt conſiderable: De Lucernis Antiquis. De Monſtris. De Gemmis. De Novis Aſtris. De Immortalitate Animæ. De Fulminum Natura. De Ortu Viventium. De Cometarum Attributis. De his qui vivunt ſine Alimentis. Mundi & Hominis Analogia. De Annulis Antiquis. De Hydrologia, ſive de Fluxu Maris, &c. The Opinion of Licetus concerning the Sepulchral Lamps of the Ancients, hath formerly made a great noiſe in the World, but is not ſo much entertained at preſent, ſince Octavius Ferrarius, Profeſſor at Padua, hath endeavoured to refute it, in a Book printed at Padua in 1685, entituled, Diſſertatio de Veterum Lucernis Sepulchralibus. Licetus pretends that the Ancients had a Secret of making an inconſumptible Oil; or diſpoſing their Lamps ſo, that as they burned, the Smoak condenſed inſenſibly, and turned into Oil. As for the Wiek, he ſaid, it was a ſort of Flax, which they called Asbeſton, i. e. Inextinguiſhable; and adds ſeveral Stories relating to this Subject: As, That in the Pontificate of Paul III. choſen Pope in 1534, there was a Tomb opened at Rome, wherein was found an entire Body, with the Hair done up in Treſſes, and tied with a Thread of Gold; alſo a Lamp, which, by this Inſcription, Tulliolæ filiæ meæ, ſeemed to denote Cicero's Daughter, who died 1600 Years before that Time; but they were no ſooner expoſed to the Air, but the Lamp loſt its Light, and the Body was diſſolved into Duſt. It is alſo aſſured, that ſeveral have been found in the Territory of Viterbo; whereof, that of Olybius Maximus of Padua made the moſt Noiſe. It was compoſed of two Phiols, one of Gold, the other of Silver, both full of an admirable Liquor, which nouriſhed, without any ſenſible Diminution, a Lamp placed between both; or, as ſome ſay, under them. He alſo pretends, that the Everlaſting Fire of the Goddeſs Veſta was of this Nature, but is miſtaken; for this Fire was called Everlaſting, becauſe Care was taken to ſupply it from Time to Time, that it might not go out. Laurenzo Craſſo Eulogia de Huomini Letterati.

LICHFIELD, Lat. Lichfeldia, a City in Staffordſhire, 118 Miles from London, ſeated in a low and Mooriſh Ground, on a ſhallow Pool, out of which runs a little River, that falls into the Blithe, and, with it, into the Trent. By which Pool and River the City ſtands divided into two Parts, joined together by a Bridge, and a Cauſey. The Name of Lichfield is interpreted to be The Field of dead Bodies; ſo called, from a Number of Chriſtian Bodies which lay there unburied in the Perſecution raiſed by Diocleſian. In the South Part, which is the greateſt of the two, ſtands a Grammar-School, and an Hoſpital dedicated to St. John, for the Relief of the Poor. In the other part is the Cathedral, ſufficient to renown the Place. It was firſt built by Oſwy King of the Northumbers, about 656. and its Biſhops beneficed with many fair Poſſeſſions. But the old Church being taken down, An. 1148. by Roger de Clinton, the 37th Biſhop of this Dioceſs, he built that which now ſtands, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and St. Chad. The Biſhop's See continued here to 1088. when Robert de Limſey, the 35th. Biſhop of this Place, removed it to Coventry, and took his Stile from thence. But Hugo Novant, the ſixth Biſhop from him, brought it back to Lichfield, An. 1188. but not without great Oppoſition from the Monks of Coventry. At laſt the difference was compoſed by Savensby, the 4th Biſhop from him, at that Place, much after the ſame manner as it was before at Wells, when Bath and Wells were joined together in one Biſhoprick. For it was agreed, that the Biſhop ſhould be denominated from both Places, and that Precedency in the Stile ſhould be given to Coventry: That they ſhould chuſe their Biſhops alternatively, and both make but one Chapter; in which, the Prior of Coventry ſhould be the principal Man. Thus ſtood the Caſe, till the Priory of Coventry being diſſolved by K. Henry VIII. there paſſed an Act of Parliament, which made the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield the ſole Chapter for the Biſhop, his Stile or Title continuing as before it did. Such were anciently the Revenues of this Biſhoprick, that in 793, it was made the See of an Archbiſhop in the Perſon of Adulphus; the Biſhops of Winton, Hereford, Sidnaceſter, Dorcheſter, North-Elmham and Dunwich being appointed for his Suffragans: Amongſt which, Sidnaceſter and Dorcheſter were made ſince of the Dioceſs of Lincoln; and the two laſt, that of Norwich. It now contains the whole Counties of Derby and Stafford, with a good Part of Warwick and Shropſhire; in all, 557 Pariſhes; whereof, 250 are impropriate. For the better Ordering whereof, it has 4 Arch-Deaconries, viz. Stafford, Derby, Coventry and Shrewsbury. The ſame is valued in the King's Books at 559 l. 18 s. 2 d. the Clergy's Tenths coming to 590 l. 16 s. 11 d. Bernard Stuart, youngeſt Son of Eſme Duke of Lenox, and Earl of March, was created Earl of Lichfield, and Baron of Newbery, An. 1645, and was ſucceeded in his Titles by Charles Stuart, his Nephew, created Duke of Richmond and Lenox by King Charles II. An. 1660. But he dying without Iſſue, in his Embaſſy to the K. of Denmark, in 1672, the Title of Lichfield was by the ſaid King conferred, about two Years after, upon the Right Honourable Edward Henry Lee, created Baron of Spelleſburg, Viſcount Quarendon, and Earl of Lichfield, June 5. 1674. The Cloſe of Lichfield, in the Civil Wars, was Garriſoned for the King, but was taken by the Parliament-Forces, under my Lord Brook, May 2. 1642. The 22d of the ſame Month, the King's Forces beſieged it the ſecond Time, and April 8. after a defeat of 3000 Men, that came to its Relief, at Hopton-Heath, it was ſurrender'd to Prince Rupert; but was taken afterwards by the Parliamentarians; ſtormed and taken by the King, May 30. 1645, and afterwards re-taken upon Treaty, June 18. in the ſame Year, by Fairfax, after the Battel of Naſeby. Lichfield is a County-Palatine, and, beſides the Cathedral, has three Pariſh-Churches.

LICINIUS (Caius Valerius) was the Son of an Husbandman of Dacia, who, from a common Soldier, arrived to the higheſt Commands in the Army; and having been declared Cæſar by Galerus Maximianus, in 307, was the Year after ſaluted Emperor in Pannonia. He was a rigid Obſerver of Military Diſcipline; but his Covetouſneſs and diſſolute Life render'd him infamous. He was alſo very ignorant; an Hater of Learning, and the Profeſſors of it, to that degree, that he cauſed many Philoſophers (whom he called the Plague of the Commonwealth) to be put to death, only becauſe they were ſuch. In 313, he married Conſtantia, the Siſter of Conſtantine, whom he feared; which made him ſubſcribe the Edicts publiſhed by him in favour of the Chriſtians. Neither was it long after, that he began to perſecute the Chriſtians, having firſt declared War againſt Conſtantine. He drove all thoſe that profeſſed the Goſpel out of his Houſe, cauſing the moſt part of them to be executed. He forbad the Biſhops to confer with the Gentiles, or to inſtruct any in the Doctrine of Godlineſs, and the Chriſtians to meet together in any Religious Aſſemblies. He cauſed his Laws to be obſerved, with an inflexible Cruelty; and tho' the Perſecution he raiſed was but ſhort, yet was it extream bloody. Conſtantine, moved with Pity for the Chriſtians, attacked Licinius, and obtained two great Victories over him in 314, one in Hungary, the other in Thrace. Whereupon, Licinius, to have a Peace, yielded to the Conqueror, the Provinces of Illyria and Greece; only reſerving Thrace, the Eaſt, and Egypt, for himſelf. But his Hatred againſt Conſtantine was ſo great, that he ſoon after took up Arms again, and was no more ſucceſsful in this ſecond War, than he was in the firſt; for he ſuffered a great Overthrow near Adrianople, in 323. His Navy alſo was beaten, and part of it wrack'd by a Tempeſt; and not long after, being purſued by Conſtantine, who killed him 100000 Men near Chalcedon, he afterwards beſieged him in Nicomedia. In this Extremity he caſt himſelf upon the Clemency of the Conqueror, who pardoned him for his Wife's ſake, upon condition, that he would utterly renounce the Empire. Conſtantine hereupon confined him to the City of Theſſalonica; but having underſtood that Licinius endeavoured to kindle a new War, with the Aſſiſtance of ſome Barbarians, with whom he kept ſecret Correſpondence, he cauſed him to be ſtrangled in 325, being 60 Years of Age, of which he had reigned 14. Cardinal Baronius refers this laſt Battel to 318, but the Greek and Latin Records, as well as the Chronicles of Euſebius, Socrates, Cedrenus and Gelaſius, place it in 325. This State of the Chronology is made good by ſeveral Laws and Reſcripts in the Theodoſian Code, where, likewiſe, the Reader may ſee the Order, by which the Acts of Licinius were Repeal'd after his Death. Socrat. lib. 1. Eutrop. lib. 10. *Euſeb. in Chron. & Vit. C. LICINIUS Calvus, a Famous Orator, who lived in Cicero's Time, and was in as great Eſteem as he, as being not inferior to him in Parts or Eloquence. He was the Son of Licinius Macer, one of the beſt Poets of his Age. Fabius often quotes the Invectives of Licinius againſt Vatinius, which were ſo eloquent, that he, fearing to be condemned by the dint of them, interrupted Licinius before he had made an end of his Speech, ſaying to the Judges, Rogo vos Judices, num ſi iſte diſertus eſt, ideo me damnari oportet: O ye Judges, I pray you, Is it fitting I ſhould be condemned becauſe he is eloquent? He died when he was but 30 Years of Age. *Dionyſ. LICINIUS, the Family of the Licinii, or Liciniani, was the moſt conſiderable of all the Plebeian Families of Rome, and ſpread it ſelf into divers Branches. P. Licinius Calvus was the firſt of the Plebeians, or Commoners, that was created a Military Tribune, or Colonel; which was An. Rom. 354, when there was no Conſul in the City. He had for his Sons, P. Licinius, mentioned hereafter; and C. Licinius, who was the Father of C. Licinius, was Tribune 6 Years together with Sextius: And P. Manlius, Dictator, made him a Colonel of Cavalry in 389. Licinius being the firſt Plebeian that ever was honoured with that Command, he was ſurnamed Stolo, (which ſignifies, a Sucker on a Tree) becauſe, when he was Tribune he publiſhed a Law, whereby no Roman was permitted to poſſeſs above 500 Acres of Land; becauſe thoſe who had more, could not rid their Trees of Suckers, and unprofitable Branches. Licinius and Sextius had alſo order'd by another Law, That no Conſuls ſhould be created for time to come, except one was of a Plebeian Family. The Senate at firſt oppoſed the Paſſing of this Law, but all their Oppoſition could not hinder it from being enacted. This great Change in the Roman Government was occaſioned as follows: M. Fabius Ambuſtus had two Daughters, the one married to S. Sulpitius, and the other to this Licinius, who, as ſhe was one Day at her Siſter's Houſe, ſhe ſaw the Lictor knocking at the Door, which frighting her a little, made her Siſter laugh at her; and preſently after, ſaw Sulpitius come in, attended with ſeveral Citizens, who treated him with a great deal of Reſpect; but ſhe being of a proud, ambitious Spirit, was troubled to think that her Husband was under an Incapacity of ever arriving to this Place of Magiſtracy. Ambuſtus, who had a great Love for his Daughter, bad her be of good comfort, for that he would do his utmoſt Endeavour to raiſe her Husband to the Dignity ſhe deſired for him; which he did, by entring him into the Acquaintance and Friendſhip of Sextius, who was Conſul in 388, and Licinius arrived at the ſame Honour in 390, with C. Sulpitius Peticus. P. Licinius Calvus, the eldeſt of the Family of the Licinii, was Tribune-Military in 358. His Son, P. Licinius Varus, Father of P. Licinius Craſſus, who follows, and of C. Licinius Varus, was Conſul in 518, with Cornelius Lentulus. He left two Sons of his Name, the firſt was Conſul in 586, with Æmilius Paulus, and the ſecond in 583, with Caſſius Longinus, and was defeated by Perſeus. P. Licinius C. was High-Prieſt, and Colonel, or General of the Horſe, in 544. Cenſor, and afterwards Conſul, in 549, with P. Cornelius Scipio. He was called Agelaſtus, becauſe he never laughed. He left two Sons, who made two Branches of the Family. P. Licinius C. ſurnamed Mucianus, was High-Prieſt, and died in the War againſt Ariſtonicus. His Son was an excellent Orator, who died of a Pleuriſie he had contracted in making a Speech againſt the Conſul Philippus, Septemb. 13. 663. M. Licinius was the Father of P. L. Craſſus, Conſul in 557, with Cn. Cornelius. He defeated the Luſitanians the Year after, and triumphed over them. He was Cenſor in 565, and killed himſelf during the Civil Wars of Marius, for fear of falling into his Enemies hands. He had two Sons, whereof the Younger was ſlain in the ſame Wars, and the Eldeſt was defeated by the Parthians, as may be ſeen under the Name Craſſus. This Craſſus had two Sons, M. Licinius, who follows; and another, who was ſuſpected to be a Baſtard, becauſe he was ſo very like a Senator, called Dignus. M. Licinius C. had ſignalized himſelf againſt the Gauls, under Julius Cæſar; and was killed by the Parthians, with his Father, An. Rom. 701. He had a Son of the ſame Name, Conſul with Auguſtus, in 701, and Father of another Licinius Craſſus, who obtained the ſame Honour in 740, with Cn. Lentulus. The Family of the Licinii had beſides two other Branches; viz. that of the Luculli, and the Murænæ. Dionyſius. Hal. Titus Livius. Pliny. Eutropius. Caſſiodorus. Streinnius de Fam. Rom. &c.

LICTORS, Roman Officers, firſt created by Romulus. They were twelve in number, and carried Bundles of Rods, in which was tied up an Ax, the head whereof appeared above the Rods. Their Office was to go before the King, and clear the Way for him. Afterwards, when Rome was become a Commonwealth, the Conſuls, Dictators, Prætors, and other Magiſtrates, who had Right to command the Roman Armies, had alſo Lictors going before them; the Conſuls and Dictators twelve, and the Prætors ſix. At Triumphs the Lictors marched before the Conqueror's queror's Chariot, carrying their Bundles wreathed about with Laurels, and holding a Branch of the ſame in their Hands. They were alſo the common Executioners. Roſin.Antiq.Rom.lib.7.cap.4. & 48.

LICUNGZ, an Uſurper of the Empire of China; who having put himſelf at the Head of ſome Rebels, and ſubdued the Provinces of Xenſi and Honan, in 1642, took upon himſelf the Title of King, and the Xunvang, i. e. Happy Prince. He afterwards took the Name of Emperor, and gave the Family he had a mind to raiſe the Name of Thienxun, i. e. Obedient to Heaven. He proſecuted his Conqueſts to Pekin, the Capital of China, where he enter'd in 1644, and mounted the Throne of Zunchin, who was then in his Palace, and hanged himſelf out of Deſpair. Not long after, being informed that Uſangue having joined the Tartars, was marching to Pekin, he left the City, taking along with him the richeſt Furnitures, with the Gold and Silver which 16 Emperors of the Family of Thamin had been laying up during 280 Years, which they had reigned in China. The Tartars purſued him, and drove him out of the Province of Xenſi; and not long after, he was killed in a Battel by Uſangue. Martin. Hiſt. of the War of the Tartars againſt China.

LIDBURY, a Market-Town of Radlow-Hundred in the Eaſt of Herefordſhire; called Lidbury, from the River Lidden; on the Eaſt Banks whereof it is ſeated, near the Malvern-Hills. It ſtands in a rich Clay-Ground, and is a well-built Town, much inhabited by Clothiers. It is 50 Miles from London.

LIDDESDALE, a ſmall County in the South of Scotland, and on the Borders of England, takes its Name from a River that runs through it. It is bounded on the North with Twedale, on the Weſt with Annandale, on the South with Cumberland, and on the Eaſt with Northumberland.

LIDERIC, ſuppoſed by ſome to have been the firſt Grand-Foreſter of Flanders, married to a Daughter of King Dagobert I. and the Perſon from whom all the Earls of Flanders deſcended. But Albertus le Mire hath ſhewed the contrary, in his Book De Com. Flandr. as well as Sanmarth, in his Genealogical Hiſtory of France.

LIDGAT, a Village in England, in the County of Suffolk, from which John Lidgat, a Benedictine in the XVth Century, took his Name. He was a Poet, Orator, Linguiſt, Mathematician and Divine. He wrote De Audienda Miſſa. De Philoſophorum Secretis, &c. Leland. Bal. &c.

LIDYARD TREGOZ, (called alſo SOUTH LIDYARD,) in the County of Wilts, the Seat of the moſt Ancient Family of St. John, which Margaret de Beauchamp (afterwards Dutcheſs of Somerſet, Grand-mother to King Henry VII.) gave to Oliver St. John Eſq; her ſecond Son by her firſt Husband Sir Oliver St. John, Kt. The ſaid Lidyard came to this Margaret Beauchamp, &c. as an Inheritance by Pateſhall, Grandiſon, Tregoz and Ewias, Families of great Honour and Nobility in this Kingdom, before and ſince the Norman Conqueſt. The preſent Poſſeſſor thereof is Henry St. John Eſq; (Son and Heir of Sir Walter St. John of Batterſey, in the County of Surrey, Bar. lineally deſcended by Heirs General from Robert d'Ewias, Owner of the aforeſaid Lidyard, younger Son of Harold, Son to Ralph E. of Hereford, that lived in the Time of Edward the Confeſſor) who, by his firſt Wife, the Lady Mary Rich, ſecond Daughter, and one of the Co-heirs to the Right Honourable Robert late Earl of Warwick, &c. hath Iſſue Henry, his Son and Heir, now living.

LIECHTENSTEIN, a Principality of Germany, in Auſtria, and is different from another Liechtenſtein in Italy, near to Balzano, in the Country of Trent.

LIEGE, Lat. Leodienſis Epiſcopatus. The Biſhoprick of Liege, or Luyck, is a Part of the Circle of Weſtphalia. Its ancient Inhabitants were the Eburones of old, called alſo Tungri. It is bounded on the Eaſt and South by the Dukedoms of Limburg and Luxemburg, on the Weſt by Brabant and the Earldom of Namur, and on the North by the Upper Guelderland. The Biſhop is Lord of the Country, and Prince of the Empire, tho', as Biſhop, he be under the Archbiſhop of Cologne. It formerly contained 52 Baronies, a great number of Abbeys, 24 Walled Cities, with above 1500 Villages. The chief Cities, after Liege, the Capital, are, Tongres, Huy, Maeſtricht, Dinant, Bouillon, Fumay, Thuin, St. Hubert, Rochefort, Maſeyck, and St. Truyen. It is 31 Miles long, and 15 broad. The Valleys produce plenty of Graſs, the Plains abound with Corn, the Hills are thick ſet with Vines, the Mountains have their Quarries of Marble, and Mines of Lead, Iron and Brimſtone, beſide Pit-Coal in abundance: The Foreſts afford great ſtore of Veniſon. Beſides the Maez, which runs the whole length of the Country, it has 14 other Rivers, which enrich the Lands, promote Trade, and afford great Plenty of Fiſh. And, to all this, the Air is very temperate and healthful. The City of Liege, Leodium, Leodicum, and, by the Writers of the Middle Age, Legia, is a great and populous City, built upon the Maez, and, tho' annexed to the Low-Countries, yet is a German City, in the Circle of Weſtphalia, and under the Protection of its own Biſhop. It is 15 Miles from Cologne to the Weſt, 5 from Aquiſgran, or Aken, 10 from Lovain, and 3 from Maeſtricht to the South. It is a free Imperial City, ſituate in a pleaſant Valley, ſurrounded with Woods and Hills, amongſt pleaſant Springs which fall down from them, and the little Rivers of Ute, Veſe and Ambluar, which fall into the Maez before it enters the City. The publick Buildings, as, the Biſhop's Palace, the Churches and Bridges, are very ſumptuous and magnificent. There are a great number of Abbeys and Religious Houſes, and 8 Collegiate Churches. The Cathedral, dedicated to St. Lambert, is Famous for its Chapter; to which no Canon can be admitted, except he be Noble by Birth, or by his Learning; that is, except he be a Gentleman, or a Doctor. It conſiſts of Princes, Cardinals, and other Perſons of great Quality or Learning. The Biſhop's See was firſt ſettled at Tongres, from thence removed to Maeſtricht, and at laſt, by St. Hubert, Succeſſor of St. Lambert the Martyr, ſettled at Liege. It takes its Name from a ſmall River called Liege, which there falls into the Maez. A vaſt part of the Ground within its Walls is not built, but employed in Vineyards and Orchards; and is ſo very Fruitful, that it may contend with Sicily. It is ſuppoſed by ſome to have been built by Amborix, a German Prince, mentioned by Julius Cæſar. It ſuffered much from the Normans, and from one of the Dukes of Brabant, who in 1212, took it, and plunder'd it ſix days together. In the XVth Century, John Duke of Burgundy, taking Advantage of their Diſagreement in the Election of a Biſhop, grievouſly afflicted it in 1409, killing 36000 of them in a Battel; and entring into the City, cauſed the chief of thoſe that had oppoſed him to be caſt into the Maez. After this, in 1468, Charles Duke of Burgundy again took the City, his Soldiers committing intolerable Outrages againſt the Inhabitants. In this laſt Age it hath been ill treated by its Biſhops: And the French taking it by Surprize in 1675, the next Year after ruined the Caſtle. The Baron of Elderen, Great Dean of the Cathedral, was choſen Biſhop and Prince of Liege by Plurality of Votes, in Oppoſition to the Cardinal of Furſtemberg, Aug. 17. 1688. It was ſeverely menaced by the French Army in 1693, and their Biſhop and Prince dying in 1694, it was like to embroil their Affairs very much, for tho' the Cardinal de Bouillon, who was in the French Intereſt, could not prevail to be Elected, yet Prince Clement of Bavaria, Elector of Cologne, and Brother to the Elector of Bavaria, being choſen by one part of the Chapter, and the Grand Maſter of the Teutonick Order, who was Brother to the Elector Palatine, and Brother-in-Law to the Emperor, being Elected by the other, it would, perhaps, have been an Affair too hard for Men to terminate in an amicable manner, had not God himſelf done it by the unexpected death of the Grand Maſter, of a contagious diſtemper that had for ſome time been rife in the place. Pope Innocent II. came to Liege in March 1131, and celebrated a Council there; in which he reſtored Otho Biſhop of Halberſtadt, and Crowned Emperor Lotharius II. in the Church of St. Lambert.

LIGHTFOOT (John) D. D. and Head of Catharine-Hall in Cambridge, has Publiſhed a great many Works, which ſhew him a great Maſter of Rabinical Learning. He wrote Commentaries upon St. Matthew, printed at Cambridge in 1658, call'd Horæ Hebraicæ & Thalmudicæ, to which he has prefix'd a Treatiſe of the Topography of the Holy Land, moſt of it drawn out of the Thalmud. He has likewiſe follow'd the ſame method in his Commentaries upon St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John, the Acts of the Apoſtles, and the Firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians. He likewiſe printed a Volume of Sermons. Monſieur Ferrand, in a Book of his, call'd Reflections ſur la Religion Crêtienne, Tom. 2. finds fault with Lightfoot's method, who, ſays he, pretends to explain the Goſpels by the Cuſtoms of the Jews, who liv'd in our Saviours time, and yet commonly cites none but the Thalmud, and ſuch like Authorities, the Antiquity of which is either fabulous or uncertain.

LIGNITZ, Lat. Lignitia, Lignitium, a City of Sileſia, a Province of Bohemia, upon the River Katzbach (Catus) which falls into the Oder, not two Miles from Jawer to the North, five from Glogaw, and ſeven from Wratiſlaw, or Breſlaw. It was heretofore under a Duke of its own, together with a ſmall Territory belonging to it. It is adorned with a noble Caſtle. The laſt Duke of Lignitz, dying without Heirs, in 1675, this Dukedom returned to the Emperor, as King of Bohemia. In 1250, Bathey, a Tartarian General, obtained a Victory over Henry, Duke of Sileſia, near this place, after a bloody Battel. Baudrand.

LIGORIO (Pyrro) a Painter of Naples, applied himſelf more particularly to Architecture, and notwithſtanding he made a great many Pictures and Drawings for Tapeſtry, yet it muſt be ſaid, his greateſt Skill lay in Pieces of Antiquity, having made an extraordinary progreſs in the Study of Statues, Baſs-Reliefs, Medals, Paintings, and Buildings of the Antique manner. There are ſeveral Volumes of his Drawings in the Library of the Duke of Savoy, where, amongſt other things, there are ſeveral ſorts of Ships, made uſe of by the Ancients, of a very different form from thoſe of our Time. Ligorio was employ'd in 1560, by Pope Pius IV. to make Pope Paul IVth's Marble Mauſolæum. Felibien entretiens ſur les vies de Peintres.

LIGURIA, a Country of Gallia Ciſalpina in Italy, was formerly divided into two Parts; the firſt whereof was called Liguria Maritima, and contained ſeveral Cities of Provence, but, at preſent, reacheth no farther than between the two Rivers of Var and Magre, and is known under the Name of the State of Genoua, or Riviera di Genoua. The other part of Liguria was amongſt the Mountains, and reached as far as the Rivers Po and Arno. The Romans had frequent Wars with the Ligurians.

LILIO Gregorio Giraldi of Ferrara, was one of the moſt learned Men of his time in Italy. He was born June 14. 1478. He writ divers Works, which we have in two Volumes in Folio, of the Baſil Impreſſion. His Hiſtory of the Heathen Gods in 17 Books, that of the Greek and Latin Poets in 10, and that of the Poets of his Time in two, are the moſt eſteemed of his Works. He died of the Gout in February 1552, having been as much diſeaſed with Poverty, as with that tormenting Malady. It was he invented the 30 Numbers of the Epacts, beginning from the 30th to the 1ſt day of January, and ſo proceeding by diminution to One, to make up the Golden Number, and to determine exactly the New Moon. He made alſo a Treatiſe for the Reformation of the Calendar, which his Brother Lilio Antonio, preſented to Pope Gregory XIII. and which was authorized by him, after having been Communicated to all Chriſtian Princes, and to the moſt learned Univerſities of Europe.

LILIT. The Jews make uſe of this Word to ſignifie a Spectre, or Ghoſt, which takes away or kills young Children in the Night time; for which reaſon, as ſoon as any Jewiſh Woman is brought to Bed, they place little bits of Paper at the four corners of the Room, where the Woman lies-in, with theſe Words writ upon them, Adam and Eve, Lilit get thee gone, with the Names of three Angels; and this they do, to ſecure the Child from all manner of Sorcery, or Enchantment. This Lilit (according to the Jewiſh Stories) was the firſt Wife of Adam, who, refuſing to be obedient to him, did fly away into the Air, by virtue of pronouncing the great Name of God. See Buxtorf. Synagog. Jud. cap. 2. R. Leo of Modena, Cerem. part. 4. cap. 8.

LILLE, Lat. Inſula, a City in Flanders, upon the River Deulle. It took its Name, becauſe, in former times, it was wholly ſurrounded with Water and Marſhes, which now, by the induſtry of Men, are drained. It is the Capital City of Flandria Gallica, and is Great, Strong, and Populous, and very well Traded. It lies 5 Leagues from Ypres to the South, 6 from Doway, 4 from the Borders of Artois, and 5 from Tournay, and was built by Baldwin, Count of Flanders, in 1007, and his Son Baldwin the Pious, who was born here, walled it in 1066, and adorned it with a magnificent Church, and a fine Monaſtery. Lewis XIV. took this City from the Spaniards, in 1667, which was afterwards yielded to him by the Peace of Aix la Chapelle, in 1668, ſince which he hath built a Cittadel to ſecure it, flanked with five great Baſtions, whoſe double Ditches are filled from the River Deulie. All theſe new Fortifications encloſe a Suburb, which hath greatly enlarged the City. Neither doth the induſtry of the Inhabitants leſs contribute to its Greatneſs and Riches, by the many Silk Manufactures made here, ſo that it is raiſed to be the Third City in the Low-Countries, next to Amſterdam and Antwerp; and for the conveniency of tranſporting its Wares, is accommodated with a Channel derived from the River Lys, which runs not far from this City.

LILLE, or L'ISLE, a City of Provence, in the County of Venaiſin, ſo called, becauſe it is ſurrounded by the River Sorgue, which has its Springs near to Vaucluſe, Famous in the Writings of Petrarcha. Lille, is a pleaſant Town, ſituate in a Fruitful Plain, 5 or 6 Leagues from Avignon, and ſomewhat leſs from Carpentras.

LILLE, Lat. Illa, a River of France in Aquitain, which hath its riſe in the Limoſin, near to Meiſſe, and running by St. Hirier, paſſeth through the Country of Perigord, where it receives la Haute Vezere, and after it hath watered Perigueux, Muſſiden, Montport, &c. enters into Guienne, where it receives the Droume, below Courtas, (Famous for the Battel Fought here in 1587,) and having paſſed by Libourne, falls into the Dordogne.

LILLEBONNE OU ISLEBONNE, Lat. Juliobona, a City of France, formerly the Capital of the Country of Caux, in the Dioceſs of Rouan, which gives its Name to a Branch of the Family of Lorrain. The Biſhops of Normandy celebrated a Council at Lillebonne on Whitſunday, in 1080, in the preſence of William the Conqueror, and the great Lords of the Country.

LILLO, Lat. Lilloa, a ſtrong Fort built by the Hollanders upon the Schelde, two Leagues beneath Antwerp to the North, one above Sant-Vliet to the South, and four from Bergen-op-Zoom. At this Fort, all the Ships that paſs up the River to Antwerp, are, by the Treaty of Munſter, to ſtop, and pay Toll to the States of the United Provinces, to whom the Place belongs.

LILLY (William) born at Odeham in Hantſhire, was Elected one of the Demi's in Magdalen College in Oxford, in 1486. After, having ſtaid ſome time in the Univerſity, he Travell'd to Jeruſalem upon the ſcore of Religion, and in his Return, ſpent ſome time at Rhodes, where he perfected himſelf in Greek and Latin. From thence he went to Rome, where he heard thoſe two great Maſters (as they were then accounted) Johannes Sulpitius, and Pomponius Sabinus, Read upon the Latin Tongue. Upon his arrival at London, he ſettled there, and taught Grammer, Poetry and Rhetorick, with good ſucceſs; and at laſt was made Firſt Maſter of Paul's School, by the Founder of it, Dr. Colet. Beſides his printed Performances in Grammar, he wrote three Antiboſſicons, againſt one Whittington, who had been Satyrical upon him, under the Counterfeit Name of Boſſus. Poemata varia. De Laudibus Deiparæ Virginis, &c. He died of the Plague in 1522. Athen. Oxon.

LIMA, or CIVIDAD DE LOS REYES, the Capital of the Kingdom of Peru in South America, being a beautiful, great and well-traded City, and an Archbiſhop's See, built in 1535, by Francis Pizarro, a Spaniard, in the Valley of Lima, who called it The City of the Kings, becauſe it began to be built on the day of Epiphany. The Vice-Roy of Peru reſides here, which, with other Advantages, hath made it great, tho' it be all built with Timber, and an open unwalled Town. It ſtands upon a River of the ſame Name, one Mile from the Pacifick Ocean, and two from its own Harbour, called Callao de Lima, in a very Fruitful and pleaſant Valley, and a moſt temperate Air, 120 Miles from Cuſco, the old Metropolis of the Kingdom. It had an Univerſity, which was opened in 1614. Lon. 296. 40. Lat. 23. 30. A dreadful Earthquake which happened here, October 30. 1687, overthrew moſt of the Buildings, both publick and private, and buried above 1000 Inhabitants in the Ruins. At the ſame time, moſt of the Sea-Port Towns were deſtroyed by an Inundation, which carried Ships above three Leagues up into the Land. To make a more exact Eſtimate of the Greatneſs and Riches of this City, take the following Account. The City Lima is divided into 36 Quarters, or Wards, each of 150 Paces ſquare. The Streets are all of the ſame width, and the Houſes correſponding in Symmetry, and all built on a right Line, without the leaſt bending or winding. The Suburb of St. Lazarus towards the North, is alſo divided into Wards, all built upon a ſtraight Line. Towards the Eaſt lies another Suburb, inhabited by about 800 Indian Families, who are very much, and underſtand Spaniſh. Here is a fair College of the Jeſuites. In the midſt of the City is the Royal Palace, which is the Reſidence of the Vice-Roy, and the Seat of the Parliament, conſiſting of eight Judges, and nine Councellors, two Advocate Fiſcals, and other Officers, in which Court the Vice-Roy frequently preſides, and hath many Secretaries, and an Annual allowance of 4000 Ducats, beſides 3000 Ducats more for his Expences, when he goes to Callao, and 10000 when he hath occaſion to make a Progreſs into other Provinces. The Vice-Roy diſpoſes of moſt Places of Profit and Honour, except it be thoſe of the Councellors of Parliament. Amongſt theſe Officers, there are above 100 Lieutenancies, whence the Vice-Roy raiſes an immenſe Sum of Money. The City is an Archiepiſcopal See, the Revenue whereof amounts to 30000 Ducats per Annum; and all the Eccleſiaſticks, eſpecially the Canons, have very conſiderable Incomes. There are a great many Churches, Convents, and Monaſteries, beſides two rich Hoſpitals, the one for the Spaniards, the other for the Jeſuits, who have three ſtately Colleges here. From the moſt eminent part of the City, are conveyed two Channels, or Aquæducts, which ſpread themſelves into all the Quarters, ſo that there is not ſo much as one Houſe that wants its Aquæduct. The private Houſes are but one Story high, and the Walls are made up of Beams and Boards, filled up with Mortar, the Roofs of the Houſes are only of coloured Linen, which is ſufficient for that Country, where it never Rains. Neither is it only the Court of the Vice-Roy, and other Courts, that contribute to the Riches and Magnificence of this City, for it is beſides a Place of the greateſt Trade of all Southern America, all the Treaſures of Gold and Silver of the neighbouring Provinces of Peru and Chili are brought hither, and almoſt all the Merchandices of Europe, are tranſported hither from Panama and New Spain. The City contains about 50000 Spaniards, and 40000 Negroes. The Port Callao above-mentioned, contains about 600 Families of Spaniards, beſides many Negroes and Indians, and has two Monaſteries, and a College of Jeſuits, from whence the Merchandices are conveyed to Lima, on Waggons, and Beaſts of Burthen, and are continually paſſing and re-paſſing between the Town and the Haven, which is very large and ſafe, and defended with two Caſtles. Every Year, in the Month of February, a Fleet ſets ſail hence for Arica, in the Province of Charcas, and returns thence in the Month of March, laden with Gold and Silver, which are brought thither from the Mines of Potoſi; and all this Treaſure is unladen at the Port of Lima, and from thence conveyed to the City. At the beginning of May, theſe Treaſures are ſent from Lima to Panama. Sir Francis Drake entred this Port in 1576, plunder'd it, and burned the Ships that rode at Anchor there; after which, the Spaniards built two Forts to ſecure it. The Dutch took an Iſland that ſtands overagainſt it, where they Fortified themſelves, and then made an Attempt on Callao, where they burned 30 Ships, but could not make themſelves Maſters of it. The Valley of Lima is a place exceeding Fruitful, and the Air very temperate, without any exceſs of Heat or Cold. The greateſt Heat is in the Months of December, January, February and March, which make their Summer. Their longeſt Days are in January, and conſiſt of 14 hours, and the ſhorteſt are ſcarce leſs than of 12. They Harveſt their Wheat in December and January, their Grapes are ripe in April. From the Month of April to September, is their Winter; during which time, the Sky is a little over-caſt and cloudy, and the Dew falling plentifully produces abundance of Graſs, and other Vegetables. This is the moſt pleaſant and delightful Seaſon of all the Year; then it is, that the Olive, and all other Fruit-

Trees, appear in their beauty, and all Gardens make a ſhow of their gayeſt Ornaments. The Soil is generally very Fertile of Sugar-Canes. The Flocks and Cattel here enjoy fat Paſtures, and Horſes find the Graſs of this Country more pampering than the beſt Hay, Barly, or Beans, of Europe. De Laet's Hiſtory of the New World.

LIMAGNE, Lat. Limania, or Alimania, a ſmall Territory in the Lower Auvergne, which extends it ſelf along the River Allier. It is a very well watered, and exceeding Fruitful Country, equal, if not beyond, the moſt Fertile of France, and is about 12 Leagues in length.

LIMBERG, GREAT LIMBERG, a Market-Town in the N.E. Parts of Lincolnſhire. It lies about half way betwixt Grimsby Edward, and Glanford Brigg, Weſtward 7 Miles from each.

LIMBURG, Lat. Limburgenſis Ducatus, a Dutchy in the Low-Countries, which is one of the 17 Provinces. It lies between the Dutchy of Juliers to the E. and N. and the Biſhoprick of Liege to the W. and S. It had heretofore Dukes of its own, but upon the death of Walrame III. (whom others call Henry) in 1285, Adolph ſold it to John, Duke of Brabant, who pretended a Right to it, as deſcended from Margaret, Daughter of Henry Duke of Limburg, married in 1172, to Godfrey, Duke of Brabant. In 1293, Rainold I. Earl of Guelderland, laid Claim to it, in the Right of Ermengarde, his Wife, Daughter of Herman, late Duke of Limburg; but he loſing the Battel at Woring, near Collen, June 5. 1288, and being taken Priſoner, was forced to reſign his Right to John, Duke of Brabant, to regain his liberty, and from that time, the Dukes of Brabant have peaceably enjoyed it. The Earth is very Fruitful in Wheat, Fruits, and Fewel, but above all, in Graſs and Water. The Famous Spaw-waters are not above three Leagues from Limburg. It hath excellent Mines of Iron, and one of Copperas, and contains 125 Villages, whereof five are Walled. The Capital Limburg, Lat. Limburgum, is pleaſantly ſeated upon an Hill, by the River Weſer, amongſt ſhady Woods, in the Confines of the Biſhoprick of Liege, 6 Leagues from that City to the E. 7 from Maeſtricht, and 4 from Aix la Chapelle to the S. It had a very ſtrong Caſtle built on a ſteep Rock. The Hollanders took this City in 1632, but the Spaniards recovered it again. And in 1675, the French ſurprized it, and being forced to leave it, in 1677, they deſtroyed the Caſtle, which now lies in Rubbiſh. Guicciard. Deſcription of the Low Countries. Pontus Hewterus, Meyer.

LIME, or LIME REGIS, a noted Market and Borough-Town of Marſhwood-Vale Hundred, in the Weſt of Dorſetſhire, called Lime, from a ſmall River of that Name, at the Mouth whereof it is ſeated, upon a ſteep Hill, the Road being ſecured from the violence of the Winds, by Rocks and high Trees. This Town is a ſmall Corporation, governed by a Mayor, and ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament. It made a vigorous Defence againſt the King's Forces in the Civil Wars. The late Duke of Monmouth landed here with 120 Men from Holland, June 11. 1685, and began a Rebellion againſt King James II. which ended in his own Ruin, being Beheaded, July 15. following, on Tower-Hill in London.

LIMENTINUS, a Heathen God, the Superintendent of the Threſholds of Houſes. See Forculus.

LIMERICK, Lat. Limericum, a ſtrong City in the Province of Munſter in Ireland, ſituate near the Confines of Connaught, upon the River Shannon, 45 Miles Weſt from Kilkenny, 35 South from Galway, and from the Main Ocean about 60; but ſo accommodated by the River, that Ships of Burthen come up to the Walls. 'Tis almoſt quite ſurrounded with Water, and is, without diſpute, the ſtrongeſt Town in Ireland. 'Tis the Capital of a County of the ſame Name, and a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Caſſel. The Iriſh call it Loumeagh. It was Conquered from them by Raimond le Groſſe, an Engliſh-man; after which, one Donewald, an Iriſh Royolet of Thomond, burnt it. K. John built the Caſtle. The Engliſh, in after-times, built an additional Town, environed it with Walls, and ſecured it by Draw-Bridges, and whatever elſe might contribute to its ſtrength; ſo that when Ireton came before it, in 1651, for the Parliamentarians, Hugh O Neal, a good Commander, conſtituted Governor of it by the Lord Lieutenant, made a vigorous Defence, but after three Months Siege, the Garriſon weakened by the Plague, and ſtraitened for Proviſions, delivered it upon Articles. After the Defeat at the Boyne, King James his Forces rallied here, and made ſo good a Defence under Boiſleau, the French Governor, and ſo much Rain fell, that King William, who begun its Siege in Perſon, Auguſt 10. 1690, Decamped the 30th following; but the next Year, it being beſieged by General Ginkle, after the Battel of Aghrim, and Surrender of Galway, the Garriſon Capitulated, and had advantageous Conditions allowed it to Surrender the Place, with which the whole Kingdom came under the Obedience of Their Majeſties. The County of Limerick is bounded on the North by the Rivers Shannon and Mysker, which part it from Clare and Ormond; on the Eaſt it has the County of Tipperary, on the South that of Cork, and on the Weſt the County of Kerry. A Fertile Country, ſaith Cambden, and well Inhabited. The Weſtern ſide is Mountainous, the reſt plain.

LIMOGES, Lat. Lemovicum, the Capital City of the Province of Limoſin in France, and a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Bourges. It is great and populous, ſeated amongſt Hills, by the River Vienne, well Fortified with Walls, and ſurrounded with deep Ditches. It lies 20 Leagues from Angouleſme to the Eaſt, 25 from Poictiers to the North-Eaſt, and 40 from Bourdeaux. This City was taken by the Black Prince by Storm, in 1371. Ptolemy calls this place Ræſliatum, and Ammianus Marcellinus Limovix, and was, according to Cæſar's Teſtimony, a great and well-peopled City in his Time.

LIMONA, the Daughter of Hippomene, Archon, or Prince of the Commonwealth of Athens, was deflowred by a young Athenian, who was paſſionately in love with her. Hippomanes, not being able to bear this Diſhonor done to his Family, condemned the young Man to be drawn aſunder by 4 Horſes, and ſhut up his Daughter in a Stable, with a Horſe, without permitting any Food to be brought them, ſo that within a few days the famiſhed Horſe devoured her. Ovid in Ibyn.

LIMOSIN, Lat. Lemovicenſis Provincia, is a Province of France, in the Generality of Aquitain, being part of the Country that was inhabited by the Lemovices, and is bounded on the N. by la Marche, on the E. by Auvergne, on the S. by Quercy, and by part of Poictou, Perigord, and Augoumois on the W. The Country in general is Cold and Barren, and has but little good Wine, except in the Lower Limoſin; and but little Wheat, but abounds with Rye, Barley, and Cheſnuts, whereof they make their Bread. The Inhabitants are generally prudent, laborious, and great Husbands. This Province is divided into the Upper and Nether Limoſin; in the Upper are, Limoges, St. Hirier, St. Junian, Chaſlus, Famous for its Horſe-Fairs, &c. The Lower Limoſin hath Tulle, which is a Biſhop's See, Brive la Gaillarde, Uzerche, a very ſtrong place; whence came the Proverb, That he who hath a Houſe in Uzerche, has a Caſtle in Limoſin, Roche, Abeille, &c. It contains alſo the Viſcounty of Turenne, and the Dutchy of Ventadour. Its principal Rivers are the Dordogne, the Vienne, the Upper Vezere, &c. The City of Limoges, and Province of Limoſin, had formerly its own Hereditary Viſcounts, who for their Arms did bear, Or, three Lions Paſſant Azure armed, and langued Gules. Divers Records of the IXth Century, make mention of the Counts of Limoges, whoſe Eſtate having been Tranſlated by Marriage to the Houſe of Albret, were re-united to the Crown of France by Henry IV. in 1607. The Prelates of Aquitain, did celebrate two Councils at Limoges in the XIth Century, upon one and the ſame occaſion. The firſt was held in 1029, Gauzelin of Bourges being Preſident. This Aſſembly was Convened to determine the Caſe, Whether St. Martial, Biſhop of Limoges, ſhould have the Title of Apoſtle given him, as the Limoſins would have it, or only that of Confeſſor, as others maintained. This Council not being able to decide the Queſtion, another was held at Bourges, and afterwards at Limoges, in 1032, and not in 1034, as Baronius and Binius would have it. And the Pope being conſulted on the Point, determined, That St. Martial was to be honoured as an Apoſtle. Aimoin of Bourbon, Archbiſhop of Bourges, preſided at this Synod, and Jourdan, Biſhop of Limoges, aſſiſted at them both. Upon a complaint made in the IId of theſe Councils, concerning the Abſolutions granted by the Popes to excommunicated Perſons, upon their Addreſſing themſelves to the Court of Rome, it was declared, That no Man could receive Penance or Abſolution from the Pope, if he were not ſent to Rome by his Biſhop. There was another Council held at Limoges, by Henry, the Pope's Legate, in 1182. Tom. IX. Concil. Glaber. Labbé. Tom. II. pag. 766. Bibl. MSS. libr.

LINCOLN, Lat. Lincolnia, Lindum, the chief Place of Lincolnſhire, is a Biſhop's See in the Province of Canterbury, diſtant 103 Miles from London S. W. ſituate on the ſide of a Hill, and the lower part watered by the Witham, over which there are ſeveral Bridges for the conveniency of Paſſengers. A place of great Antiquity, whoſe ancient Ruins are ſtill an Argument of its former greatneſs. In the Norman's Time, ſays William of Malmesbury, it was one of the beſt Peopled Cities of England, and a place of great Trading; and in the Reign of King Edward III. it was made a Staple Town, both for Wooll and Lead. Then, it contained 50 Pariſh-Churches, now reduced to 15, through the Calamities of War, Fire and Earthquake. The greateſt Ornament of this City is, the Cathedral dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and all Saints; a magnificent Structure proportionable to the greatneſs of the Dioceſs. It ſtands on the top of a Hill, is ſeen at a great diſtance, and is noted for its great Bell called Tom of Lincoln. It was built by Remigius de Feſcamp, the firſt Biſhop of Lincoln, upon his removing the Epiſcopal See from Dorcheſter in Oxfordſhire hither, which happened in the XIth Century, few Years after the Norman Conqueſt, upon a Canon then made, by which all Biſhops were enjoined to live in the moſt famous and conſpicuous Place within their Dioceſſes; but being, not long after, defaced by Fire, it was, for the moſt part, repaired and beautified by Biſhop Alexander, his next Succeſſor but one, afterwards improved with more Workmanſhip by ſome other, whereby it is become ſo ſtately an Edifice, that when a Man looks with an envious Eye upon any thing of moment, he is ſaid to look as the Devil did over Lincoln, who is ſuppoſed to have over-look'd this Church with a ſowre Countenance, as maligning Mens coſtly Devotion. This Dioceſs has been much diminiſhed at ſeveral times, the Biſhoprick of Ely being taken out of it, by King Henry I. and thoſe of Peterborough and Oxford by K. Henry VIII. yet it is ſtill the greateſt for Juriſdiction, as it was once for Revenue, in all the Kingdom; for it contains the whole Counties of Lincoln, Leiceſter, Huntington, Bedford, Buckingham, and Part of Hertfordſhire. In which vaſt Extent of Ground are 1255 Pariſhes; whereof, 577 are Impropriations: For the Government whereof under a Dioceſan, there are ſix Arch-Deacons, viz. Lincoln, Leiceſter, Bedford, Buckingham, Stow and Huntingdon. In the King's Books this Biſhoprick is valued at 894 l. 14 s. 6 d. and the Clergy's Tenths amount to 1751 l. 14 s. 6 d. Beſides the Honour Lincoln has of being a Biſhop's See, it has been dignified with the Title of an Earldom, in the Perſon of the Right Honourable ——— Fiennes, devolved to him, in a direct Line, from his Anceſtor Edward Fiennes, Lord Clinton, who was Lord Admiral in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, and by her created Earl of Lincoln, An. 1565. Which Title had run, before him, through ſeveral Families. Laſtly, Lincoln is noted in Hiſtory, for that the Britains, under their King Arthur, drove away the Saxons from this Place, as Edmond Ironſide did the Danes, by whom this City was ſacked. Near it alſo was fought a Battel in 1140. between King Stephen and Maud the Empreſs, wherein the King was taken Priſoner. But Henry III. had better Succeſs here, when it being defended by the Barons againſt him, under Prince Lewis, he took it, May 19. 1217. forced Lewis to flee to London, and ſoon after into France. This City hath the Privilege of being a County-Corporate, whoſe Liberties extend about twenty Miles in Compaſs, with the Title of The County of the City of Lincoln. Long. 22. 52. Lat. 53. 12.

LINCOLNSHIRE, Lat. Lincolnia, or Comitatus Lincolnienſis, is a large Maritime County in the North of England, bounded Northward with Yorkſhire, from which it is parted by the Humber; Southward with the Counties of Cambridge and Northampton; Eaſtward with the German Ocean, and York, Nottingham and Leiceſterſhires. In which Compaſs it reaches, from North to South about 55 Miles, and from Eaſt to Weſt 35. It is commonly divided into three Parts, called Lindſey, Keſteven and Holland; Holland lying on the S. E. Keſteven on the S. W. and Lindſey on the N. of them both: Which laſt is again ſubdivided into 17 Wapentakes, Keſteven into 10, and Holland into three; in all, 30. The Wapentakes are again ſubdivided into Hundreds, Lindſey into 17, Keveſten into 11, and Holland into three; which contain 630 Pariſhes, and 34 Market-Towns: Whoſe Inhabitants, together with thoſe of Leiceſterſhire, Rutland, Nottingham and Northamptonſhires, went by the Name of Coritani among the ancient Romans; the Country making part of the Kingdom of Mercia in the Time of the Heptarchy, as it does now of the Dioceſs of Lincoln. The Air in the Eaſt and South Parts is commonly thick and foggy by reaſon of the Fens and Waſhes but however very temperate. The Soil in thoſe Parts yields ſcarce any Corn; but the Defect is ſo abundantly ſupplied with ſuch plenty both of Fiſh and Fowl, that it exceeds herein any Part of the whole Kingdom: Inſomuch that 'tis ſaid, no leſs than 3000 Mallards, and other Fowl of the like Kind, have been taken at one Draught. Upon the Weſt and North the Soil is both pleaſant and fertile, ſtored with Corn and Graſs. Amongſt the Houſes of the Nobility, here are Belvoir, the Earl of Rutland's, ſeated moſt advantageouſly; Tatterſhal, belonging to the Earl of Lincoln; and Grimſthorp, to the Earl of Lindſey: Which laſt was built on a ſudden by Charles Brandon Duke of Suffolk, to entertain King Henry VIII. in his Progreſs in theſe Parts. But the greateſt Ornament of this County is its Churches, built all of fine, poliſh'd Stone: So that 'tis obſerved, that no Country affords worſe Houſes or better Churches. At Fichtoft, in this County, are found neither Mice nor Rats, though the Neighbourhood is much peſtered with them. Another Thing obſervable in this County is, That in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, it ſupplied England with a Lord Admiral, Lord Treaſurer, an Archbiſhop of Canterbury, a General in France, a Lord Chief Juſtice, and a Secretary of State; namely, Edward Clinton, William Cecil, John Whitgift, Peregrine Bertue, Sir Edmond Anderſon, and Thomas Wilſon, all Contemporaries, and that raiſed themſelves by their reſpective Deſerts, and the Queen's Favour. In the Iſle of Axholm is a Vein of Alabaſter. On the S. W. of the County are Aſtroits, or Star-like Stones, with five Beams or Rays; anciently eſteemed for their pretended Virtue in procuring Victories. In King Henry VIII's Reign an Helmet of Maſſive Gold, ſtudded with Precious Stones, was plowed up near Harlaxton, in this Shire, and preſented to Queen Catharine. Lincoln, Stamford, Grantham, Boſton and Grimsby chuſe each of them two Members of Parliament, beſides the two Knights of the Shire.

LINCOPEN, or LINDCOEPING, Lat. Lincopia, a City of Sweden, which is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Upſal, in Oſtrogothia, between Soderkoping to the Eaſt, and Wadtena to the Weſt; 28 German Miles from Stockholm to the South-Weſt, and almoſt eight Eaſt from the Lake of Veter. Long. 32. 48. Lat. 58. 3. This City is very ſmall, and inconſiderable. Nicolaus Anglicus, Legate of Pope Eugenius III. held a Council here in 1148. mentioned in the laſt Edition of the Councils, Tom. 12.

LINCUS, King of Scythia, having carried himſelf injuriouſly to Triptolemus, whom Ceres had ſent to teach Men the Art of Husbandry, and deſigning to kill him, was by Ceres changed into a Lynx.

LINDANUS (Gulielmus) born at Dort in Holland, firſt Biſhop of Ruremond, and afterwards of Gaunt, was one of the moſt famous Prelates, and beſt Writers of the XVIth. Century. He was Inquiſitor of Holland and Friezland. In 1588. he ſucceeded Cornelius Janſenius in the Biſhoprick of Gaunt, and died ſoon after, in the 60th. Year of his Age. He left the following Works: Panoplia Evangelica, Stromatum lib. 3. De optimo genere interpretandi Scripturas. Tabulæ Annalyticæ omnium Hæreſeωn hujus Sæculi. The Lives of the Saints. With many other Controverſial Treatiſes. Haveſius has writ his Life.

LINDAW, Lat. Lindavia, or Philyra, a City of Germany, in the Circle of Schwaben, built on an Iſland in the Lake of Conſtance, and joined to the Continent by a Bridge 290 Paces long. It is an Imperial and free City, in the Borders of Switzerland, eight Miles from Conſtance to the N. E. It is very ſtrong, both by its Situation, and Art. Count Wrangel, General of the Swediſh Army, beſieged it in 1647. but without Succeſs. The Beginning of this City was a Monaſtery built here by Adelbert Rorbuck, a Kinſman of Charles the Great, in 810. This occaſioned the building of a Village; which at laſt grew up to a City, at firſt was ſubject to the Abbeſs, but afterwards to the Dukes of Schwaben.

LINDIS-FARN, an Iſland on the Coaſt of Northumberland, over againſt the River Lied: The Tyde makes it an Iſland; for, at Low-Water the Shoar round it is bare again. The Weſt Part being the narrower, is full of Coney-boroughs, and joins to the Eaſt Side by a very ſmall Spunge of Land. The Part towards the South is much broader, having a pretty Town in it, with a Church and a Caſtle, where ſometimes was that Epiſcopal See which Aidan the Scot, called to preach the Chriſtian Faith to the People of Northumberland, erected. In this ſmall Iſland there ſate Eleven Biſhops; but afterwards, when the Danes rifled all the Sea Coaſts, the Epiſcopal See was tranſlated to Durham. Under the Town is a good, commodious Haven, defended with a Block-Houſe, ſituate upon an Hill towards the South-Eaſt. Camb. Britan. See HOLY ISLAND.

LINDSEY, a Diviſion or Part of Lincolnſhire; which is generally divided into Lindſey, Keſteven and Holland. Lindſey, the largeſt of all, lies to the Northward; and is thought to have got the Name of Lindiſſi, the ancient Name of Lincoln, according to Beda. 'Tis altogether environed with Water; and its Extent ſo much beyond either of the two others, that it takes up at leaſt one half of the County. It is alſo dignified with the Title of an Earldom in the Perſon of the Right Honourable Robert Bertue, the preſent Earl of Lindſey, and Lord Great Chamberlain of England; devolved to him from Robert, his Grandfather, Lord Willoughby of Eresby, created Earl of Lindſey, by King Charles I. An. 1626. He was ſlain at Edge-hill Fight Octob. 23. 1642.

LINGEN, Lat. Lingo, a ſtrong Town in Weſtphalia, which is the Capital of a County of the ſame Name, under the Prince of Orange, upon the River Ems; 45 Miles from Munſter to the North, and 55 from Embden to the South. The County that belongs to it lies in the Biſhoprick of Munſter, and is very ſmall. It belonged formerly to the Spaniards. Cluvier. Deſcript. Germ.

LINGENDES (Claude de) a Jeſuit, and one of the moſt eminent Preachers in the XVIIth. Century. He was born at Moulines in Bourbonois, was Provincial of his Order, and died in the Year 1660. His Sermons publiſh'd, ſince his Death, are a ſufficient proof that his Learning and Elocution were extraordinary.

LINOSA, an Iſle in the Mediterranean, upon the Coaſt of Africa, near to Maltha, on which it depends.

LINTON, a Market-Town of Chilford-Hundred, in the S.E. Parts of Cambridgeſhire, 39 Miles from London.

LINTZ, Lat. Aurelianum, Lyncia, or Lyncium, The Capital City of the Upper Auſtria; ſmall, but populous, neat and handſom; all built of white Stone; ſeated upon the Danube, (over which it hath a Bridge,) in a very fertile Country, and hath a magnificent Caſtle, of the Modern Building, whither the Emperors of Germany have frequently retired for their Pleaſure. It ſtands ſix German Miles from Paſſaw to the Eaſt, and 24 from Vienna to the Weſt. The Imperial Forces rendezvouzed here when Soliman came to Vienna in 1532. This was alſo beſieged by the Peaſants of Auſtria, in the Time of Ferdinand II. they having got a Body together of 40000 Men, and many Pieces of Ordnance; but were ſtoutly repulſed after many Aſſaults, and at laſt overcome by Papenheim. The late renowned Duke of Lorrain died at a Convent near this Lintz.

LINUS, ſaid to be the firſt Biſhop of Rome, after St. Peter. Dr. Pearſon, Biſhop of Cheſter, believes, that he was in Poſſeſſion of that See from An. 55. to 67. Mr. Dodwel, on the contrary, is of Opinion, that he was Biſhop only for a ſhort Time in 64. Anacletus having ſucceeded him the ſame, or the following Year. Linus is ſaid to have ſuffered Martyrdom under Veſpaſian.

LINUS of Chalcis, the Son of Apollo and Terpſichore; or, as others, of Mercury and Urania, was the Inventor of Lyrick Verſes. It is believed alſo, that he was the firſt that brought the Letters of the Alphabet out of Phœnicia, into Greece, where he was the Præceptor of Hercules. Diogenes Laertius tells us, That he writ of the Creation of the World, of the Courſe of the Sun and Moon, and of the Production of Animals and Plants. This Work of his begins with a Greek Verſe, which ſaith, That all Things were created at once. And this was afterwards the Opinion of Anaxagoras. We find in Stobæus ſome Verſes of this Poet. Stobæus lib. de Prudent. Plutarch. Suidas. Diogen. in Præfat. Geſner in Bibl.

LION, or LEO, one of the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, compoſed of 27 Stars, into which the Sun enters in July. The Poets feign, that this was the Lion of Nemæa, which Hercules killed, and took the Skin; and of which Jupiter made a Conſtellation. Caſius Aſtron. Poet.

LIONNE (Hugh de) Marquis of Berny, and Miniſter of State of France, who contributed to the Election of Pope Alexander VII. in 1654. negotiated the Peace between France and Spain at Madrid, in 1656. and concluded the League of the Rhine in 1658. which, in a manner, divided the Empire of Germany into two Parts, between the French King and the Emperor; oppoſing one half of the Princes of Germany to the Houſe of Auſtria, to hinder any Forces the Emperor might ſend to Flanders, for the Aſſiſtance of Spain: And at laſt, made the Spaniards liſten to a Peace, that was as diſadvantageous to them, as that of the Pyrenees. He continued faithfully to ſerve his Maſter, and died at Paris in 1671. at the Age of 60.

LIONNOIS, a Province of France, whereof the Capital is Lyons. It is bounded on the Eaſt by the Rhône and the Sône, which ſeparate it from Dauphiné, Le Breſſe, and the Principality of Dombes; on the Weſt by Le Foretz, on the North by Beaujolois, and by Vivarets on the South. It is a fruitful Country in Wine, Corn and Fruits; and eſpecially all along the two forementioned Rivers. Its principal Towns are, Coindrieux, Anſe, St. Chaumont, St. Geni-leval, Vimi, called Neuville, and Bregnais. Lionnois is ſometimes largely taken, ſo as to comprehend the three Provinces of Lionnois, Foretz and Beaujolois; and ſometimes alſo for one of the twelve great Governments of France; and then, beſides the aforeſaid three Provinces, it comprehends L'Auvergne, Le Bourbonnois, with a Part of Nivernois. The Lionnois, properly ſo called is about twelve Leagues in breadth, and fifteen in length.

LIONS: See LYONS.

LIPARI, Lat. Lipara, an Iſland in the Tyrrhene Sea, and the biggeſt of the ſeven ſmall ones called Lipareæ, Æoliæ, or Vulcaniæ, belonging to the Kingdom of Sicily, lying about 30 Miles to the N. W. of that Iſland, and the ſame diſtance from Calabria to the Weſt. The chief City of the Iſle of Lipari was ruined by Barbaroſſa, a Turkiſh Captain in 1544. but hath ſince been rebuilt, and ſecured by a ſtrong Caſtle, called La Pignatura. It is alſo a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Meſſina, Æolus, King of the Winds, was by the ancient Poets fanſied to reign here; to whom Ulyſſes made his Addreſs for a Weſtern Wind to carry him to Ithaca, which lay Weſt of theſe Iſlands; and obtained it, but to little purpoſe; for he was driven back again to theſe very Iſlands, by the Folly of his Mariners, when he was within ſight of his own Home; and could not obtain a ſecond fair Wind of the angry Monarch. It is a Knot of ſmall Iſlands. The principal Iſland, which gives Name to all the reſt, is ten Miles in compaſs, very fruitful, and well furniſhed with Alum, Sulphur and Bitumen; and has ſome hot, Medicinal Baths, which are much frequented, and on which Account the Ancients called it Thermeſſa. Agathocles, the famous Syracuſian Tyrant, forced the Inhabitants of this Lipari to pay him 100 Talents of Gold for their Peace, and yet afterwards robbed their Temples.

LIPMAN, a German Rabbi, who in 1399. writ a Book in Hebrew, intituled Nitſachon, that is, Victory, againſt the Chriſtian Religion, and the Sadducees. Theodoricus Hakſpan, Profeſſor at Altorf, publiſhed it in 1644. with a Treatiſe De Scriptorum Judaicorum in Theologia uſu vario & multiplici.

LIPPA, a City of Tranſylvania, upon the River Maroſch, which falls into the Tibiſcus at Segedin. It is ſituate in a fruitful Country, and is ſurrounded with good Walls, and a Ditch full of Water; and has a ſtrong Caſtle in the midſt of it, fortified with four Baſtions, and ſurrounded with a deep Ditch. It ſtands five Hungarian Miles from Temeſwaer to the North, and 13 from Alba Julia, or Weiſſenburg, to the S. W. This City in 1595. was taken by the Turks, and re-taken by Aſſault, July 19. 1688. and the Caſtle, into which the Garriſon retreated to ſave themſelves, being about 2000 Soldiers, was obliged to ſurrender at Diſcretion two Days after. There were 18 Pieces of Cannon in it, and 2000 Turks.

LIPPE, Lat. Luppia, a City of Weſtphalia, more commonly called Lipſtadt. It ſtands upon the River Lippe, three German Miles from Paderborn to the Eaſt, in Mariſhes, and a bad Air; yet it is great, an Hans-Town, and a Capital of a County of the ſame Name. It was once a free Imperial City, but in Length of Time became exempt, and fell under the Juriſdiction of the Counts of Lippe, and by one of them was mortgaged to the Duke of Cleve for 8000 Marks of Silver, and never ſince redeemed, but, together with Cleve, fell to the Duke of Brandenburg. The County of Lippe is a great Part of the Circle of Weſtphalia, between the Biſhoprick of Paderborn, the Dukedom of Weſtphalia, and the Earldom of Ravenberg. It is under its own Count, (the principal Town excepted,) whoſe Reſidence is at Lemgow. He has alſo Part of the Earldom of Schaumburgh, not long ſince granted him by Maurice Landtgrave of Haſſia.

LIPPE, Lat. Lupias, or Luppia, is a River in Germany, mentioned by Strabo and Mela. It has its Source in a Village called Lipp-ſprinck, near Paderborn; and running Weſtward, watereth Lippe, or Lipſtadt, ſeparating the Dioceſs of Munſter from the County of Mark; then paſſing by Han, Dorſten and Weſel, empties it ſelf into the Rhine, twelve Miles beneath Cologne to the North-Weſt.

LIPPOMANNUS (Ludovicus) Biſhop of Modon, and afterwards of Verona, was born at Venice, and had in great Eſteem in the XVIth. Century. His high Employments, and various Embaſſies could not make him to leave his Studies, but diligently applied himſelf to them till his Death, which happened in 1559. We have of his Eight Volumes of the Lives of the Saints, Catena in Geneſin, Exodum & Pſalmos, &c. Poſſevin. in Appar. Sacr. Sixtus Senenſ. Bibl. Sacr. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 21.

LIPSIUS (Juſtus) was born at Iſc, a ſmall Village near Bruſſels, in Brabant, Octob. 18. 1547. He was the Son of Giles Lipſius, and Nephew of Martinus Lipſius, the Friend of Eraſmus, and Author of divers Works. He was a Perſon well verſed in all manner of Literature, and was conſidered as one of the moſt famous Men of his Time; of which, his Works, which we have in ſix Volumes in Folio, are an abundant Evidence. Juſtus Lipſius was Secretary to the Cardinal of Granville, and had the Advantage of viſiting the Libraries and learned Men of Germany and Italy. He taught at Louvain, and many other Univerſities. He had been a Proteſtant, or, at leaſt, feigned himſelf to be ſuch, whilſt he was Profeſſor at Leyden: From whence he went to Louvain, where he writ the Hiſtory of our Lady of Hall; and cauſed a Silver-Pen to be hung up near her Image, in acknowledgment that all he had writ was under her Favour and Protection. He died at Louvain, being 59 Years of Age. His Works are divided according to the matter of which they Treat, into, Hiſtorica Sacra. Hiſtorica Romana & Externa. Politica & Ethica. Apologetica. Epiſtolæ, &c. There was a Statue ſet up for him at Antwerp, with this Monumental Inſcription,

Juſti Lipſii
Quod claudi potuit
Hic Jacet.

H. M. P.

Juſtus Lipſius made the following Epitaph for himſelf.

Quis hic Sepultus Quæris? ipſe ediſſeram.
Nuper locutus & ſtylo & Lingua fui;
Nunc Altero licebit, ego ſum Lipſius,
Cui Literæ dant nomen, & tuus favor:
Sed nomen: ipſe abivit, abivit hoc quoque,
Et nihil hic Orbis, quod perennet, poſſidet.
Vis Altiore voce me tecum loqui?

Humana cuncta Fumus, Umbra, Vanitas,
Et Scænæ Imago, & verbo ut abſolvam, nihil.
Extremum hoc te alloquor:
Æternum ut gaudeam, tu apprecare.
Juſtus Lipſius vixit Annos LVIII. Menſes V.
Obiit A. C. MDCVI. 10 Calend. April.

LIRE, or LIER, Lat. Lira, a very ſtrong Town in Brabant, in the Diſtrict of Antwerp, between that City and Mechelen, ſeated upon the River Nethe, which falls two Miles farther into the Ruypel. This Town is under the Spaniards, and is a Frontier againſt the Hollanders; two Miles from Mechelen to the North, ſix from Bruſſels to the N. W. and three from Antwerp to the Eaſt. It is naturally very ſtrong by its Situation, and made much more ſo by Art; and beſides, a very fine and pleaſant Town, famous for its Manufactures, and its Fairs for Cattel. Guicciard. Deſcription of the Low-Countries.

LIRIOPE, a Nymph, the Daughter of Oceanus and Thetys, the Wife of Cephiſus, and Mother of Narciſſus. Alſo a Fountain of Bœotia, where Narciſſus viewing his Beauty, fell in love with himſelf. It runs into the River Cephiſus.

LIS, Lat. Legia, and by the Flemmings called Leye, a River of the Low-Countries, which riſeth in Artois, at a Village called Lisburg, near to Therouane; and running through the City Aire, it paſſeth on to Armentiers, Menin and Courtray, till it reacheth Gaunt, where it falls into the Schelde. Guicciard. Deſcription of the Low-Countries.

LIS, or Nôtre Dame de Lis, an Order of Knighthood of Navarre, inſtituted in 1408. by Garcias IV. King of Navarre, upon Occaſion of an Image of the Bleſſed Virgin found in a Flower de-Luce at Nagera; and whereof he declared himſelf and his Succeſſors the Sovereigns. The Order conſiſted of 38 Knights, of Noble Extraction, that took a Vow to oppoſe the Moors, the Enemies of the Kingdom. They wore upon their Breaſts an embroider'd Flower-de-Luce of Silver; and on ſolemn Feſtivals, a Collar, interlaced with divers Gothick M's, with a Flower-de-Luce of Gold, enamell'd White, and ſpringing from a Green Plat, hanging at the End of it, and a Great M over it. Favin. Hiſt. de Navarre, & Theatr. d' Honneur & de Cheval.

LISBON, Lat. Olyſippo, or Ulyſippo, the Capital City of the Kingdom of Portugal, and one of the faireſt and richeſt Cities of Europe; the Royal Seat of their Kings, and an Archbiſhop's See. It is ſituated upon the River Tayo, formerly Tagus, two Leagues from the Ocean, and ſix from Cabo di Rocca Sintra. It has a large, ſafe and convenient Harbour, and ſecured by many Towers, where the greateſt Gallions and Ships may ride ſecurely, becauſe of the high Mountains which are on the Banks of that River; from whence this City ſhews like a Theatre, with its ſtately Buildings, and ſpacious Places, or Squares. Its Caſtle, ſeated upon the Top of an high Hill, is very ſtrong. The King's Palace is on the Banks of the River, whence it has a fine Proſpect of this great Haven, and of a very fair Square. The Burſe, or Exchange of the Sea-Arſenal, the New-Street, the India-Houſe, the Palace, called Corpo Santo, the Great Market, and the Cuſtom-houſes, are Buildings which contribute much to the Beauty of this City, which is the greateſt in all Portugal, and every Day increaſing. The Burying-place of the Kings of Portugal is at Bethlem, a Village about half a League from this City. This City was recovered from the Moors by Alphonſus King of Portugal, in 1147. It is now ſo famous, that it is become a Proverb, Qui no ha viſto Lisboa, no ha viſto coſa bona: He that has not ſeen Lisbon, hath ſeen nothing that is good. An Earthquake in 1531. overturned 200 Houſes, beſides Churches and Monaſteries, and ſhattered 600: A Thouſand Inhabitants periſhed in the Ruins, and the reſt fled to the Fields. The great Armada rendezvouz'd here in 1588. In May, 1587. the E. of Eſſex, at the Head of an Engliſh Army, came before Lisbon in Behalf of Antonio, of the Royal Family, who, though a Baſtard, was ſet up by the Portugueſe, in Oppoſition to Philip II. of Spain, Merula Part 1. Geogr. Damian à Goes Deſcript. Olyſip. Linſchot's Travels. Pliny lib. 4.

LISERUS (Polycarpus) a Proteſtant-Miniſter of Germany, who was born at Winend, near to Wirtemburg, in 1552. His Father was Miniſter of that Town, and his Mother, after his Father's Death, was married to Oſiander. He was a Man of Learning, and Profeſſor and Miniſter at Tubingen, at Gratz in Stiria, and at Wittemberg. He died, Feb. 22. 1610, Aged 58 Years. He writ Commentaries upon Geneſis. Harmonia Evangelica, &c.

LISIEUX, Lat. Lexobii, Lexovium, Neomagus, a City of France in the Upper Normandy, on the River Lezon, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Roan, it is a great and beautiful City, watered with many fine Springs and Fountains, and ſeated in a fruitful Country, five Leagues from the Britiſh-Sea to the E. 18 from Roan to the W. and 10 from Caen to the E. Its Cathedral is dedicated to St. Peter, the moſt ancient Biſhop of Liſieux that is known was Theobald, who aſſiſted at the IIId. Council of Orleans, in 538. The Authors of the laſt Edition of the Councils make mention of two Synods held in this City. The firſt was Celebrated in Octob. 1106, in the preſence of Henry I. King of England. And Hugo de Harcourt held a Synod here in 1321, whereof we have the Ordinances taken out of the Library of St. Victor at Paris, in the ſame Edition of Councils. Jean le Veneur, Cardinal and Prelate of this City, celebrated two Synods here, in 1531, and 1540.

LISMORE, Lat. Liſmora, a ſmall City in the Province of Munſter in the County of Waterford, which was a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Caſhel; but this Biſhoprick has been united to that of Waterford, ſince 1363. It ſtands upon the River More, fifteen Miles from the Vergivian Ocean, and 22 from Caſhel.

LISNIA, a ſtrong Fortreſs in Boſnia, ſurprized by the Imperialiſts, July 18. 1690. after having, in the two precedent Years, been thrice attacked by them in vain.

LISSUS, a River of Thracia, which enters the Sea between Thaſos, and the Iſland Samothrace, and is one of thoſe which Xerxes his Army was ſaid to exhauſt, or draw dry, as Herodotus tells us in his 7th. Book. Alſo a City of Crete, the ſame which Strabo calls Lictus, and now called Fiomiſſi. Likewiſe a City of Macedonia, in Albania, now called Aleſſio, near to the Gulph of Drin.

LITÆ, Λιταὶ, according to Homer, are Goddeſſes, the Daughters of Jupiter, whoſe Office was to procure for Men, the good Things they deſired either of God, or of other Men. Homer repreſents them to be Lame, Squint-ey'd and Wrinkled, the Allegorical meaning whereof is not to be rejected. Theſe Litæ, are nothing elſe but our Prayers and Supplications, for that is the ſignification of the Greek Word Λιτὴ, whence comes the Word Λιτανεία, or Litany, and the Latin Word Litare, which imports the offering up an acceptable Sacrifice or Prayer to God. Now our Prayers are repreſented Lame, to denote, that God doth not immediately grant Men their Deſires, and therefore the need we have of fervour and perſeverance in our Prayers; they are Squint-ey'd to repreſent the corrupt and ſelfiſh Reſpects of our Prayers, and that in them we commonly do not purely and directly regard the glory of God; and they are Wrinkled and Shrivel'd, to ſet out to us the Weakneſs, Staggering and Doubtings wherewith they are accompanied, as commonly wanting the ſtrength, vigour and livelineſs of Faith. If we would apply this picture of Prayers, to theſe Petitions we addreſs to Men, they alſo are Lame to declare to us, the difficulty we have to approach Perſons of whom we would deſire any Favour or Kindneſs: They are Squint eyed, by reaſon of the Diſſimulations, Flatteries, By-ways and Siniſter Reſpects we are fain to make uſe of, to obtain of them what we deſire; and they are Wrinckled, to give us an Idea of the Trouble, Diſappointment, Grief and Vexation it coſts us, either before we can reſolve to deſire any thing of Men, and when we have deſired it, before we can obtain it.

LITANIA, from whence our Word Litany, ſignifies a Prayer or Supplication; but more eſpecially it ſignifies a kind of Publick Supplication, whereby the Mercy of God was, in a ſolemn manner, publickly and ardently implored. Theſe publick Supplications were appointed in caſes of eminent Dangers, and great Calamities; as alſo to beg a Bleſſing upon the Fruits of the Earth. Among the many kinds of Supplications uſed in the Roman Church, there are two very remarkable, the Leſſer and Greater; the firſt called Rogations, Proceſſions, or the Third-day Litany, becauſe celebrated three Days before the Aſcenſion of our Saviour, is very ancient. The Spaniards according to this, Children cannot lament whilſt the Father is with them, put off this Ceremony to the 4, 6 and 7 Days of Pentecoſt Week. The Greater called Gregorian, from the Author, Roman from the place of the Inſtitution, and from the Order obſerved in it Septiformis, was Inſtituted by Gregory the Great, in 594. Rome, and all Italy, being, at that time, infected with a Peſtilence that followed the Inundation of the Tyber, and ſwept away many Thouſands. Gregory, having Summoned all the People of Rome to Litanies, diſpoſed them into ſeven Orders, the Prieſts led the Van, next them went the Abbots with their Monks, the Abbeſſes and Nuns followed theſe; the Children made up the 4th. Diviſion; the Laicks walked next after them, and were followed by Widows, the married Women bringing up the Rear. This Cuſtom is ſtill obſerved at Rome every Year, on the 7th. of the Calends of May, and the Ceremony is performed with much pomp, there being a vaſt number of Croſſes, Banners and Shrines carried about in the Proceſſion. See Hen. Spelman Gloſſar. Archæolog.

LITHUANIA, a Province belonging to the Kingdom of Poland, which hath the Title of a Great Dukedom, and is called by the Inhabitants Lithuna, by the Germans Littawen, by the Poles Litewsky, and was heretofore a part of Sarmatia Europea. It is bounded to the Eaſt, with Smolensko and the Dutchy of Novogrod in Ruſſia. To the N. with Livonia. To the Weſt, with Pruſſia and the Gulph of Dantzick. To the South, with Volhinia and the Upper Podolia. In the Year 1382, Jagello Great Duke of Lithuania having married Hedwiges ſole Heir of the Family of Piaſtus, was by her Intereſt and upon turning Chriſtian, choſen King of Poland. Soon after his Coronation, he went with ſome Chriſtian Prieſts into Lithuania, and in a Twelve months time, converted all that Nation. Before this time, the Lithuanians were miſerable Idolaters, exceeding the Egyptians in their Folly and Superſtition; They paid Divine Adoration to Fire, and kept it always alight, in ſome of their conſiderable Towns: They had alſo divers Groves, where they pray'd to tall ſtraight Trees, which they held it Sacrilege but to touch: They likewiſe worſhip'd Serpents, for their Lares or Domeſtick Deities, and therefore each Family kept one in their Houſe, to which they Sacrificed, Milk, Fowls, &c. And if any one happen'd to diſoblige the Serpent, they look'd upon't as a Prognoſtication of deſtruction to their whole Family. When Jagello attempted the Converſion of theſe People, He firſt Order'd the Sacred Fire to be extinguiſh'd, then he proceeded to kill the Serpents, to Fell their Groves, and pull down their Altars. This Sacrilegious Freedom the Lithuanians were mightily ſurpriz'd at, and expected ſome Miracle of Vengeance would immediately follow: But when they ſaw their Deities ſuffer themſelves to be outraged without Reſentment; they begun to underſtand 'em, and believ'd 'em to be no better than Idols; upon which, they unanimouſly deſerted their Worſhip, and embrac'd Chriſtianity. In 1501, in the beginning of the Reign of Alexander King of Poland, the Poles and Lithuanians united their Reſpective Dominions; and by the Articles of this Union, It was agreed, that Poland ſhould always be the Place for chuſing their Kings, and that the Lithuanians ſhould have a Right of Voting in the Election; That all the Offices of the Dukedom of Lithuania ſhould continue, and That each People ſhould live according to their ancient Laws and Cuſtoms. The Dukedom of Czernichow, did heretofore belong to this Province, but is now under the Ruſs. Lithuania is divided into Eight Palatinates, viz. Breſlaw, Minſco, Mſcizlaw, Novogrodeck, Polozk, Troki, Wilna, Witebsk; beſides which, the Dukedoms of Smolensko, Novogrod and Czernichow, before mentioned, with the Territories of Robaczow and Rzeczick, are Parts of this Dukedom, Wilna, or Vilna, is the Capital of Lithuania, and a Biſhop's See; the other Cities, beſides thoſe already mentioned under the Notion of Palatinates are, Kouno, Grodno, Mohilou, Orſſa, Vilcomirz, Novogrodeck, Seviersky and Sluckz. Lithuania is the greateſt Province belonging to Poland, being in length from the River Polota, in the Confines of Livonia and Moſcovy, to the City of Daſſow towards the Euxine Sea, 260 German Miles, and in breadth, between Niemen, or Memel, and the Nieper 80. or as Morery Repreſents it 150 Leagues in length, and 50 in breadth. It is a Country full of Woods, Foreſts and Marſhes, yet very fruitful, and abounding with Corn and Honey, of which they make Meath, which is their ordinary and moſt delicious Drink. The Air is very cold, and the Inhabitants rude and barbarous. Their Language is a Dialect of the Sclavenick, and their Frontiers have been often deſolated by the Incurſions of the Tartars and Muſcovites. Connor's Hiſtory of Poland.

LITTLE-PORT, a Market-Town of Ely Hundred, in the North Parts of Cambridgeſhire.

LITTLETON (Sir Charles) of Frankley, in the County of Worceſter Knight and Baronet; This Family derive themſelves from Thomas Littleton of Littleton and Frankley, in the 19th. Year of Henry IIId. whoſe Great Grandſon Thomas Littleton of Frankley was Eſq; of the bodies, to Henry the IVth. and Henry Vth. and marrying Maud, Daughter and Heir of Richard Quatermaine, of the County of Oxford Eſq; had by her one only Daughter and Heir, Elizabeth, and being deſirous to continue his Sirname to Poſterity, Covenanted with Thomas Weſtcote (a Gentleman of Ancient Deſcent, who married the ſaid Elizabeth) that the Eldeſt Son by her ſhould bear the Name of Littleton, of whom was born Thomas Littleton, created Knight of the Bath, and made one of the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, in the time of Edward the IVth. who writ the Book call'd, Littleton's Tenures; for which Mr. Cambden ſaith, he deſerv'd as well of our Common-Law, as Juſtinian of the Civil: From this Sir Thomas (after ſeveral Deſcents and honourable Intermarriages) the aboveſaid Sir Charles Littleton Knight and Baronet is Lineally deſcended, whoſe Chief Seat is now at Hagley in the County of Worceſter, the Ancient Seat of the Family, at Frankley, being burnt down in the late Civil Wars. He Bears Argent, a Chevron, between three Eſchalops Sable, with a Blackmores Head for the Creſt, the Shield ſupported by a Merman, having a Trident in his other hand. The Motto is, UN DIEU, UN ROY.

LITTLETON (Sir Edward) the Eldeſt Son of Sir Edward Littleton, of Munſlow in Shropſhire, was bred in Chriſts-Church in Oxford, where he proceeded Batchellor of Arts, and was afterwards one of the Juſtices of North Wales, Recorder of London, and Sollicitor of King Charles I. From theſe Places he was preferred to be Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas, and made Privy-Councellor; thence advanced to be Lord Keeper and Baron of Munſlow, being a Member of the Parliament in 1628. He had the management of the High Preſumption, charged on the Duke of Buckingham about King James his death, wherein he behaved himſelf with general Applauſe, between the Jealouſie of the People, and the Honour of the Court. He followed the King to York, in the beginning of the Troubles, and accompanied him to Oxford, where he died, Auguſt 27. An. 1645. 21 Car. 1.

LITTLETON (Sir Thomas) Son to Thomas Weſtcot of Worceſterſhire, and Elizabeth Littleton his Wife, whoſe Mother, being Daughter and Heir of Thomas Littleton, Eſquire, bringing to her Husband a great Inheritance, indented with him, before Marriage, that her Virgin Surname ſhould be aſſumed and continued in his Poſterity. He was bred Student of the Laws in the Inner Temple, and became afterwards Serjeant and Steward of the Court of the Marſhal-Sea, of the King's Houſhold to Henry VI. By King Edward IV. in the 6th. of his Reign, he was made one of the Judges of the Common-Pleas, and in the 15th. of his Reign, by him created Knight of the Bath. Cambden ſays, he deſerved as well of our Common, as Juſtinian of the Civil Law, whoſe Book of Tenures, dedicated by him to Richard, his Second Son, who alſo ſtudied the Laws, is counted Oracular in that kind, which ſince hath been commented on by the learned Endeavours of Sir Edward Cook. Fuller's Worthies.

LITURGY. This Word in Greek ſignifies all manner of Divine Service in General, Λειτουργία, but was commonly taken for the Communion Service in the Greek Church, and that which is called the Maſs, in the Latin: 'tis not amiſs to obſerve, that in the firſt Ages of the Church, the Euchariſt was adminiſter'd upon all Sundays, Holy-days, Faſting-days, or ſometimes oftner, according to the Cuſtom of Particular Churches. Sometimes there were ſeveral Communions in one day, as when the Office for ſome Saint fell in with another Feſtival, or when there happen'd to be a Funeral. The Biſhop or the Prieſt always Officiated upon theſe occaſions: The Order of the whole Publick Service was thus; The Congregation being met in the Church, the Reader began with ſome Leſſon out of the Old Teſtament, and afterward one out of the New, that is, out of the Acts or the Epiſtles of the Apoſtles. Theſe Leſſons had Euchariſtical Pſalms between them: Afterwards the Biſhop made a Sermon, which conſiſted in the Explication of the Goſpel or ſome other part of Holy Scripture. The Sermon being ended, the Deacons order'd all thoſe to go out that did not Communicate. The Infidels or Heathens were firſt diſmiſs'd, (for the Church ſtanding open, they had the liberty to be at the Sermon) then they ſent away the Catechumens and the Penitents. Then the Biſhop ſtanding at the Altar, receiv'd the Oblations from the Hands of the Deacons, which had been offer'd by the Faithful or remaining part of the Congregation. The Bread and Wine were plac'd upon the Altar, but the Deacons carried the Wax-Candles, the Money and every thing elſe which the Chriſtians offer'd, for the Service and Occaſions of the Church, to another place. The Arch-Deacon's buſineſs was, to place the Bread and Wine which were to be conſecrated, upon the Altar. The Biſhop having bleſſed the Bread and Wine, and offer'd ſome Incenſe, Pronounc'd aloud the Prayers of the Preface, and that which is now call'd in the Church of Rome, the Canon of the Maſs. After the Conſecration of the Elements, the Biſhop receiv'd the Communion, and gave it to his Congregation, in the following Order. Firſt to the Prieſts and Deacons, and then to the Reſt of the Inferiour Clergy: After them, the Monks receiv'd, then the Deaconeſſes, Nuns and Virgins, then the Children, and laſtly, the reſt of the Congregation. To prevent the Service, being over long; when there was a great number of Communicants, there were ſeveral Prieſts appointed to give the Conſecrated Bread, and Deacons, to give the Cup. They gave the Remainder of the Conſecrated Elements to the Children, and likewiſe what was left of the Panis Benedictus, or the Bread which was bleſs'd and not Conſecrated, was diſtributed to thoſe who did not Communicate. About the end of the IVth. Century, the Communion was not Receiv'd ſo frequently as formerly, and St. Chryſoſtome complains, that ſeveral People were preſent at the holy Myſteries, without Receiving, and Communicated only on Holidays. He likewiſe obſerv'd, with diſſatisfaction, that ſome did not Communicate above once or twice a Year. All the whole Office or Divine Service was intermix'd with Hymns and Singing. St. Auguſtine makes St. Ambroſe the firſt who brought the cuſtom of Singing Pſalms into the Weſtern Church, in Imitation of the Eaſtern, and 'tis obſerv'd, that about the end of the IVth. Cent. this cuſtom was begun by Pope Damaſus. St. Baſil averrs, that in his Time, it was cuſtomary to Sing Pſalms, both in Private Houſes, and publickly abroad, and that their way of ſinging was very agreeable. As for the Divine Service, we have reaſon to believe, they ſelected thoſe Pſalms, which were beſt ſuited to the Majeſty of Religion and the Solemnity of the Occaſion. As for the ſinging of the Prayers and Leſſons there was very little Muſick in't, being pronounc'd with no more variation from common ſpeaking than was neceſſary to keep up the Voice to a due pitch, and give a proper diſtinction to the periods. Flurys Manners of the Chriſtians. The Liturgies of the Church are diverſified according to the diverſity of Nations profeſſing the Chriſtian Religion. The Armenians have their Liturgy in the old Armenian Tongue, which, they ſay, (according to the Report of Galanus in his Hiſtory) was compoſed by one of their Patriarchs named John, who lived ſome time after the Council of Chalcedon. It was printed at Rome, in 1642, with the Latin Tranſlation, but the Romiſh Cenſors have reformed (that is corrupted) it in ſeveral places. The Liturgy of the Cophti, or Chriſtians of Egypt, is writ in the Cophtick, or Egyptian, which is now ſcarcely underſtood by any Perſon; wherefore in the Manuſcript Copies of this Liturgy, there is an Arabick Verſion added, out of which it hath been Tranſlated into Latin by Victor Scialac, a Maronite of Mount Libanus, and is found in the Bibliotheca Patrum, attributed to St. Baſilius, St. Gregory and St. Cyril. The Æthiopian Liturgy is writ in the old Æthiopian Language, notwithſtanding that the Æthiopians, as well as the Syrians, call their Liturgies Chaldaick. Some Æthiopian Liturgies were printed at Rome, in 1548, wherein, beſides two others, is alſo that, whoſe Title is Canon Univerſalis Eccleſiæ Æthiopum, which was alſo printed there the Year following in Latin, and afterwards Re-printed in the Bibliotheca Patrum. That Liturgy, which the Æthiopians attribute to Dioſcorus, Patriarch of Alexandria, was printed in Æthiopian and Latin at London, in 1661, at the end of the Æthiopick Dictionary of Ludolphus. This laſt Liturgy is very ſhort, whereas that which is called Canon Eccleſiæ Æthiopum, is long enough. The Greeks have four Liturgies, viz. That of St. James, St. Mark, St. John Chryſoſtom, and St. Baſilius; but they ordinarily uſe only the two latter, the Liturgy of St. James being only read at Jeruſalem, and that of St. Mark, in the City of Alexandria. Moſt of the Eaſtern Chriſtians believe, that theſe Liturgies were compoſed by thoſe whoſe Names they bear. Leo Allatius himſelf, and Cardinal Bona aſſure us, that the Liturgy attributed to St. James, was his indeed, that it is the Original of all other Liturgies, and that it hath only in proceſs of time been enlarged: But the contrary may be proved from an Anſwer of Theodorus Balſamon, ſet down in the 5th. Book of the Jus Græco-Romanum. Some had demanded of Balſamon, by Letters, Whether the Liturgies that went under the Names of St. James and St. Mark, were really theirs; to which he anſwers, That neither the Holy Scripture, nor any Council, had ever attributed to St. Mark, the Liturgy that bears his Name, and that the 32d. Canon of the Council General in Trullo, had indeed attributed to St. James the Liturgy that went under his Name: But that the 85th. Canon of the Apoſtles, and the 59th. of the Council of Laodicea, in their reckoning up of the Books of Holy Writ, which were compoſed by the Apoſtles, and which are to be uſed in the Church, made no mention of the Liturgies of St. James or St. Mark. As for the Liturgies of St. John Chryſoſtom and St. Baſil, the Authority of Proclus, Archbiſhop of Conſtantinople, is commonly made uſe of, who aſſerts, that St. James was the firſt Author of the Greek Liturgy, which being afterwards, in proceſs of time, much enlarged, was abridg'd by St. John Chryſoſtom and St. Baſilius, for which reaſon theſe two Liturgies do alſo bear their Names. There are many more Syriack Liturgies, than there are Greek. Father Simon obſerves in his Supplement to the Jewiſh Ceremonies, that the Jacobites alſo reckon up 40 different Liturgies, all under different Names, and all in Manuſcript. The Maronites have printed at Rome, in 1592, their Miſſal, under the Title of Miſſale Chaldaicum juxta ritum Eccleſiæ Nationis Maronitarum, which contains 12 Liturgies, under the Names of St. Xyſtus Pope, St. John Chryſoſtom, St. John the Evangeliſt, St. Peter, Chief of the Apoſtles, St. Denys, St. Cyril, Matthew the Paſtor, John Patriarch, ſurnamed Suſan, St. Euſtathius, St. Maruta, Metropolitan of Tagrit, St. James the Apoſtle, and Brother of our Lord, St. Mark the Evangeliſt, and a Second of St. Peter. The Neſtorians alſo have their Liturgies writ in Syriack, which they make uſe of in their Publick Service. Father Simon tells us in his Remarks upon Gabriel of Philadelphia, that he had a Manuſcript Copy of theſe

Liturgies, which belonged to a Chaldee Prieſt, of the Neſtorian Rite, whoſe Name was Elias. This Manuſcript contained only three Liturgies, viz. That of the Twelve Apoſtles, That of Theodorus, ſurnamed The Interpreter, i. e. Of Theodorus of Mopſueſta; and the Third under the Name of St. Neſtorius. The Indian Chriſtians, called the Chriſtians of St. Thomas, who are of the Sect of the Neſtorians, make uſe of this Syriack Miſſal, which they read at Goa, Cochin, Angamala, and in other Places of the Indies, where theſe Chriſtians of St. Thomas do inhabit.

LIVIA, the Daughter of Druſus, Second Son of Livia, the Empreſs. She was married to another Druſus, the Son of Tiberius, by whom ſhe had two Sons, whereof the one died very young, and the other was murdered by Caligula; and a Daughter who was twice married; the firſt time to Nero, the Eldeſt Son of Germanicus, and after his death to Rubellius Blandus, the Father of Rubellius Plautus, whom Nero cauſed to be ſlain.

LIVIA (Druſilla) Empreſs, was the Daughter of Livius Druſus Calidianus, who having eſpouſed the Party of Brutus and Caſſius, killed himſelf after the Battel of Philippi, in 712. She married Tiberius Claudius Nero, by whom ſhe had the Emperor Tiberius, and Druſus, ſurnamed Germanicus. Afterwards, the Emperor Auguſtus, having Divorced Scribonia, took Livia from her Husband Tiberius Nero, notwithſtanding ſhe was big with Child, and married her. He had no Children by her, but adopted thoſe ſhe had had by her former Husband. She was of a high Spirit, but very politick, ſo that ſhe always made a ſhift to manage the Spirit of Auguſtus, as to keep her ſelf at the pitch, where her Beauty had, at firſt, placed her in his Affections. Tacitus tells us, that ſhe died in extream old Age, under the Conſulſhip of Rubellius and Fuſius, ſurnamed Geminus, that is, in the 29th Year after the Birth of our Saviour, being then 86 Years of Age. The ſame Tacitus tells us, That ſhe was not ſo ſevere as the Roman Dames, tho' ſhe equalled them in Chaſtity and Vertue; ſhe was imperious towards her Children, but complaiſant to her Husband, and of an Humour that comported very well with that of Auguſtus, and with the diſſembling Temper of Tiberius, who had not all the reſpect for her that he ought to have had, for her Funeral Pomp was but mean, and her Teſtament was a long time before it was executed. She was publickly praiſed by her Grandchild Caligula, who was afterwards Emperor. It is ſaid of her, that when ſome were for having indiſcreet Youths put to death, who had preſented themſelves ſtark naked before her, ſhe ſaved their Lives, by ſaying, That a naked Man was no more in the Eyes of a chaſt Woman than a Statue. Being demanded by what means ſhe had got, and kept the Maſtery of Auguſtus his Spirit, ſhe anſwered, By Obeying him blindly, by not prying into his Secrets, and by diſſembling my knowledge of many of his Amours. Tacitus in Annal. lib. 1, 2, 5. Sueton. in Auguſt. Dion. Hiſt. lib. 56, 58.

LIVIA (Oreſtilla) whom Dion Caſſius calls Cornelia, a Roman Lady, of a very noble Family; the Emperor Caligula ſeeing her the ſame day that ſhe was married to C. Piſo, ſhe appeared ſo beautiful in his Eyes, that after the Solemnity, he cauſed her to be brought home to him, and a few days after Divorced her. And two Years after, the barbarous Prince baniſhed her, only on the bare ſuſpicion that ſhe had ſeen her firſt Husband. Sueton in Calig. cap. 25. Dion lib. 59. Hiſt.

LIVIUS: See Titus Livius.

LIVIUS (Andronicus) an old Latin Poet. It is ſaid, he was the firſt that cauſed Comedy to be Acted in the City of Rome; and Aul. Gellius tells us, that this was 160 Years after the death of Sophocles and Eurypides, and near 52 after that of Menander; whence it appears, that it was in An. Rom. 514, tho' Cicero ſaith, it was in 510, that is, the Year before the Birth of Ennius, and under the Conſulſhip of C. Claudius, and M. Tuditanus. Some Authors attribute to this Livius Andronicus, 18 Books of the Roman Hiſtory. Cicer. de Clar. Orator. & de Seneſt. Aul. Gell. Noct. Atticæ lib. 17. cap. 21. Cælius Rodiginus lib. 7. Antiq. lect. cap. 4. Simler in Bibl. p. 546. Popeliniere lib. 5. de Hiſt. Glandorp, in Onomaſt. Voſſ. de Hiſt. & Poet. latin.

LIVONIA, or LIEFLAND, is a great Province of the European Sarmatia, annexed to the Kingdom of Poland, ever ſince it was taken from the Knights of the Teutonick Order, called The Knights of Pruſſia; but the greateſt part hath ſince been taken from it by the Swedes. It is bounded on the North by the Bay of Finland, on the Weſt by the Bay of Riga, (both Parts of the Baltick) on the South by Samogitia and Lithuania, and on the Eaſt with Ingria and Pleskow, two Provinces belonging to the Ruſs, which are the Bounds of this Province in its largeſt extent, as divided into theſe four Parts, viz. Eſten (Eſthonia) Curland, Semigallen, and Letten; for others divide it only into two Parts, viz. Eſten and Letten, conſidering Curland and Semigallen, as Dukedoms, that, at preſent, have their own Soveraign Princes feudatary to the Crown of Poland. The Iſles of Oeſel and Dagho, in the Baltick Sea, do alſo belong to Lithuania, which were poſſeſſed by the Danes, till in 1645, they were, by a Treaty at Bromsbro, yielded to the Swedes. Eſten is under the Swede, and alſo Letten, except a little part of it towards the Eaſt, which the Ruſſes have; ſo that the King of Poland, at preſent, retains very little of this Province, except it be the Town of Dunenburg. Riga is the Capital of Letten, the other Cities being Dunemund, Mariemburg, Creutsburg, &c. The other Cities of Eſten, or Eſthonia, are Derpt, Wolmer, Parnaw, Revel, Nerva, Felin, Hapſel, Lebal, Cockenhauſe, &c. Its length from Nerva to Memel, is 90 German Miles, its breadth from the Sea to Dodina 60. It produceth Wheat in abundance, which the Rivers Dwyna and Nerva bring down to Riga and Nerva for Tranſportation. The Foreſts abound with wild Boars, Bears, Foxes, &c. which come over the Nerva, out of Ruſſia. The Livonians were converted to the Faith about 1161, or, as others ſay, about 1186. Meinradus was their firſt Biſhop in 1190, and Beltoldus, an Abbot of the Order of Livonia, about this time, took great pains for their Converſion; which Order of the Livonian Knights, was Inſtituted to promote the Converſion of the barbarous Inhabitants of the Country, who being ſomewhat dull and obſtinate, it was thought fitting to make uſe of the more rough Way of the Swords of theſe Knights to convert them; and if we will believe Hiſtory, it was far more effectual than all the Remonſtrances the Prieſts could make to them. This Order was united to the Teutonick Order, or the Knights of Pruſſia, in 1234, and after their Conjunction, obtained many ſignal Victories. But Albert of Brandenburg, Grand Maſter of this Order, in the XVIth Century, having embraced the Reformation, one Walter ſeparated the Order of Livonia from that of Pruſſia, and was the Grand Maſter of it, being ſucceeded by William of Furſtemberg; but this Order was after aboliſhed, by Sigiſmond King of Poland, in 1587. The Country People of Livonia, are generally all of them Slaves to the Nobility and Gentry. The Swedes made themſelves Maſters of the greateſt part of this Country in 1617, and 1634, Ladiſlaus, King of Poland, agreed to the Treaty of Stumsdorf with the Swedes, in which was concluded a Truce of 26 Years, viz. till 1661, during which time, the Swedes were peaceably to enjoy all the Land they were poſſeſſed of, on the North of the River Dwyna, which was ſince wholly yielded to them, by the Peace of Oliva, in 1660. *Starovolſcius Deſcript. LIXA, a City of Libya in Africa, upon the River Lixus, where it runs into the Ocean, in the Province of Aſgar, now belonging to the Kingdom of Fez. The Modern Name is Larache. It lies 65 Leagues from the Streights of Gibraltar to the South, and has a Port and a Caſtle upon the River it ſtands on. The Spaniards made themſelves Maſters of it in 1630. In 1688, the Moors laid a formal Siege to it, and carried it, the whole Garriſon remaining Slaves. This Misfortune was owing to the French, who were ſaid to have ſent Ingineers to the Moors, to guide them in their Attacks, and encourage them to carry on their Works. The ancient Fables tell us, That this City was once the Capital of the Kingdom of Antæus, killed by Hercules, and the place of the famous Garden of Heſperides.

LIZARD-Point, the moſt Southern Part of Cornwal, ſhooting forth into the Sea.

LOANDA, a ſmall Iſland of Africa, on the Coaſt of the Kingdom of Congo, in which is the City of St. Paul, with a large and ſafe Port, and a ſtrong Caſtle, under the Dominion of the Portugueze, 180 Miles from the Mouth of the River Zaire to the South. This City was once taken by the Dutch, but re-taken by the Portugueze. The Biſhop of Angola has his Reſidence here. Long. 34. 40. Lat. 9. 10.

LOANGA, Lat. Loangum, a City and Kingdom of Africa, in the Weſt part of the Lower Æthiopia, between the Kingdom of Congo to the South, and Bidfara to the North. In this Country are found of the Loanchi and Bramas, which are a People of the Kingdom of Congo.

LOBARD Serichi, or Lombard de Sericho, lived in the XIVth Century. He was of Padua, and a Diſciple of Petrarcha, who began a Treatiſe of Illuſtrious and Famous Men, which he left imperfect, and was finiſhed by this Serichi. We have this piece amongſt the Works of Petrarcha, and in a particular Volume printed at Baſil in 1562. Scardeoni lib. 2. Rerum Patavin. Voſſ. lib. 3. de Hiſtor. Lat. cap. 3. Simler. in Epit. Bibl. Gerneri.

LOCARNO, a Town in Italy, on the Lake of Verbanus, (now Maggiore) 30 Miles from Como to the S. E. 40 from Novara, and 5 from the Confines of the Dukedom of Milan. This has been under the Swiſſes ever ſince 1512, but was heretofore a part of the Dutchy of Milan.

LOCHES, Lat. Lochia, a City of France in the Province of Touraine, upon the River Indre, with a ſtrong Caſtle, and an adjoining Foreſt, 7 Leagues from Amboiſe to the S. and 22 from Bourges. This City, and adjoining Country, was a part of the Patrimony of the firſt Earls of Anjou, who here kept their Priſoners of State. Du Cheſne Antiq. des Villes de France.

LOCRI, a Country in Greece, next to Phocis, a Province of Achaia, between Bœotia and Ætolia, thoſe that inhabited the Weſtern part of this Country, were called Ozolæ and Heſperides, but they who lived in the Eaſtern part, towards Mount Parnaſſus, were called Epicnemidii, from the Mountain Cnemis; but others of them Opuntic, from the City Opuns. The Inhabitants with a general Name are called Locrenſes, or Locri. Alſo a City and Territory of the Bruttii in Great Greece in Italy, which, ſome ſay, is now called Gieraci.

LOCUSTA, a Woman famous for her Skill in poiſoning, in the Court of Nero, who made uſe of her Art to poiſon Britannicus, and many others; he was ſo afraid of loſing this wicked Woman, that he ſet a Guard upon her, to keep her; and for a ward, beſtowed great Poſſeſſions upon her, and furniſhed her with Scholars, whom ſhe was to inſtruct in that deviliſh Art. Tacit. lib. 11. & 12. Sueton. in Neron. cap. 33.

LODEVE, Lat. Luteva, Forum Neronis, a City of France in the Lower Languedoc, more conſiderable for its Antiquity than Greatneſs, is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Narbonne. The Biſhop is Lord of the City, and ſtiles himſelf Earl of Montbrun, which is a Caſtle near the City. It is built amongſt the Mountains, near the Rivers Lergue and Solondre, which caſt themſelves into the Eraut, at the foot of Mount Cevennes, in the Borders of Rovergue, twelve Leagues from Narbonne to the North. This City has been expoſed to great Calamities, during the Wars of the Goths, of the Albigenſes, and the Civil Wars of France. It was formerly a Viſcounty. It is ſaid, that above 800 Gentlemen formerly held their Lands of the Biſhop of Lodeve, whoſe Biſhoprick was therefore called, The Noble Biſhoprick. Bernard. Gui. in Chron. Plant. de la Pauſe in Chron. Epiſc. Lodar. Catel. de Lang. Du Cheſne Antiq. des Villes. San Marth Gall. Chriſt.

LODI, or New Lodi, upon the River Adda, a City of Italy, in the Dukedom of Milan, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Milan, it lies between Milan and Cremona, and is the Capital of Lodiſan, ſituate in a very Fruitful Soil. The old City which took its Name from the Colony, which Pompey ſettled there, has been long ſince ruined, and is called Lodi Wechio, which is a Village near to Pavia, where many Medals and Inſcriptions are found, as a ſign of its Antiquity. The Gauls built this City, if we will believe Pliny, the Milaneſe ruined it, and the Emperor Frederick I. cauſed it to be re-built on the River Adda, in 1158, and is now great, populous, and well fortified, being a Frontier towards the State of Venice.

LOGOTHETA, or ACROPOLITA (Georgius) a Greek Author, who flouriſhed in the XIIIth Century, under the Empire of Michael Paleologus, and had a place much like that of Maſter of the Wardrobe. He compoſed the Chronicle of Conſtantinople, which contains the Hiſtory of about 58 Years, that is to ſay, from 1203, in which Baldwin, Earl of Flanders, was Crowned Emperor of Conſtantinople, to 1261, when Michael Paleologus put himſelf in the room of Baldwin II. He was a Man of ſingular Worth, who compoſed ſeveral Works, and was alſo a Mathematician. His Chronicle was printed at Paris, of the Louvre Impreſſion, with the Tranſlation of Leo Allatius. Leo Allatius, Voſſius, Douza, Labbe.

LOGOTHETA. This Word ſignifies a Perſon that is the Comptroller, or Inſpecter of the Accounts; there were two ſorts of them in the Gracian Empire, one for the Emperor's Palace, the other for the Church. Codinus, ſpeaking of the Office of the Logotheta of the Church of Conſtantinople, ſaith, that his Buſineſs was to ſet down in writing, all Matters appertaining to the People, or the Lords. In the Catalogue of the Great Officers of this Church, it is ſaid, that the Logotheta keeps the Patriarch's Seal, and that he Seals all that the Patriarch writes. And the ſame Codin, ſpeaking of the Great Logotheta, ſaith, that his Buſineſs was to put in order all the Imperial Diſpatches, and whatſoever ſtood in need of the Bulla Aurea, or the Emperor's Great Seal. Wherefore Nicetas expounds the Word Logotheta, by that of Chancellor. Logotheta, comes from the Word λόγος, which, amongſt other things, ſignifies Accounts, and τίθημι, to put, or ſet down in order.

LOIRE, Lat. Ligeris, the greateſt River of France. It hath its Name from a Meadow, which it waſheth near its Fountain, at the Foot of Mount Gerbier de Joux, a Mountain of the Sevennes, and divides France almoſt in two equal Parts; paſſing Northwards near Puy en Velay, it entreth Foretz, and paſſeth Feurs; then coming to Roanne, where it begins to bear Boats, it waters Nevers, la Charite, Sully, Gien, Gergeau, Orleans, Blois, Amboiſe, Tours, Saumur, le Pont de Cé, and diſchargeth it ſelf into the Sea, near Nantes in Britany, after a Courſe of near 200 French Leagues, 166 of which are Navigable by Boats, and 12 by Ships. Its Current is very rapid. It is ſaid alſo, that it receives mediately or immediately 112 Rivers, the moſt conſiderable whereof are Lignon, the Allier, the Loiret, the Cher, the Indre, the Vienne, and the Maine. Papire Maſſon. Deſcript. Flum. Gall. Cæſar. Plin. Tibull.

LOISEL (Anthony) Advocate or Councel to the Parliament of Paris, was born at Beauvais in 1536. He was a Perſon very eminent in his Profeſſion, and was at laſt preferr'd to be the King's Advocate. Thuanus, Pithaus, and ſeveral other conſiderable Men, give him a great Character. He wrote, Le Dialogue des Avocats du Parliament de Paris. Les Regles du Droit François. Les Memoires de Beauvais, &c.

LOLLARDS, the Followers of Wickliff, who, in the Reign of King Richard II. preſented a Remonſtrance to the Parliament, againſt the then Church of England. The Heads of their Exceptions, or Complaint, are as follow: Firſt, That when the Church of England began to Miſ-manage their Temporalities, in conformity to the Precedents of Rome, and the Revenues of Churches were Appropriated to ſeveral Places, Faith, Hope and Charity, began to take their Leave of our Communion. Secondly, That the Engliſh Prieſthood deriv'd from Rome, and pretending to a Power Superior to Angels, is not that Prieſthood which Chriſt ſettled upon his Apoſtles. They offer to prove their Propoſition thus: Becauſe, ſay they, the Prieſthood of the Church of Rome is conferr'd with outward Signs, Rites, and Pontifical Benedictions, which ſignify little, having no warrant in Holy Scripture: And beſides, People, in Mortal Sin, can neither convey, nor receive any Power or Authority from the Holy Ghoſt. Thirdly, That Celebacy, enjoyn'd the Clergy, was the occaſion of ſcandalous irregularities in the whole Church. Fourthly, That the pretended Miracle of Tranſubſtantiation, runs the greateſt part of Chriſtians upon Idolatry. Fifthly, That Exorciſms and Benedictions, pronounc'd over Wine, Bread, Water, Oil, Salt, &c. have more of Necromancy than Divinity in them. Sixthly, That the joyning the Offices of Prince and Biſhop, Prelate and Secular Judge, in the ſame Perſon, and making a Curate or Rector of a Pariſh a Civil Officer, facit quodlibet Regnum extra bonam Regionem, i. e. is a wrong management, and puts a Kingdom out of the right way. The proof of this Lollard Propoſition is as extraordinary as the Aſſertion, the concluſion being drawn from theſe Premiſes, (viz.) Becauſe, ſay they, The Diviſion of Temporal and Spiritual take in the whole Church, and no Man can be Qualified to Serve two Maſters. Seventhly, That Prayers made for the Dead, in which one particular Perſon is often nam'd and preferr'd before another, is a wrong Ground for Liberality and Charity, and therefore all the Chanteries of England ſtand upon a falſe Bottom. One of the Reaſons for this Concluſion is, That to Pray for the Damn'd is diſpleaſing to God Almighty. Now, tho' this Puniſhment, continue theſe Charitable Lollards, is uncertain, yet 'tis probable, that the Founders of theſe Religious Houſes, are the moſt part of them, upon the ſcore of their deteſtable Endowments, gone the Broad Way. Eighthly, That Pilgrimages, Prayers, and Offerings, made to Croſſes and Images, are near akin to Idolatry. Ninthly, They declare againſt Auricular Confeſſion, becauſe it lets the Prieſts into the Secrets of the Penitent, and gives opportunity for Intrigues, and other mortal Offences: And here they deny the Power of Prieſtly Abſolution. Tenthly, That taking away any Man's Life, either in War, or Courts of Juſtice, upon what account ſoever, is expreſly contrary to the Doctrine of the New Teſtament, which is a Law of Grace and Mercy. One of their Arguments to prove this Paradox, is, That moſt commonly, when Men fall a fighting, Poſt primum ictum, Charitas rumpitur, i. e. Charity is knock'd o'th' Head at the firſt Blow, and that thoſe who dye out of Charity, are certainly loſt. The next attempt, to prove their Aſſertion, is, A plain miſ-interpretation of our Saviours Words, He who ſmites with the Sword, ſhall periſh by the Sword. The Eleventh, and Laſt Concluſion, which I ſhall mention, is, Their excepting againſt unneceſſary Trades, as the occaſion of a great deal of Sin, and here they object, particularly, againſt Gold-Smiths and Sword-Cutlers, which, tho' they might be uſed under the Moſaick Diſpenſation, yet the New Teſtament has made theſe, and a great many others, unneceſſary and unlawful. Theſe Articles, the Lollards pretended to deliver, by Vertue of a Divine Commiſſion, and under the Character of Chriſt's Ambaſſadors, but the Government, not believing their Credentials, their Remonſtrance had no Succeſs. Spelman Concil. Vol. 2. pag. 646. See Wickliff.

LOLLIANUS, one of the Tyrants that raiſed up themſelves in the Empire, in the time of Galienus in the IIId Century. He rebelled in Gaul againſt Poſthumus, who was killed in Battel; after which, Lollianus ruled, till the Soldiers killed him. Trebellius in the Life of the 30 Tyrants.

LOLLIUS, commonly call'd Alberto Lollio, a Poet and Orator of Ferrara, much eſteem'd in the XVIth Century. He wrote ſeveral Ingenious Pieces, as, La Virtue de gli Academici Paſſati, Nobilita Creanza de preſenti. Orazioni. L'Aretuſa, &c. Ghilini Teater des Hommes de Lettres, P. 1.

LOMAZZI (John Paul) born at Milan in 1598, was both a good Painter and a good Scholar. He wrote ſeveral Ingenious Pieces, both in Proſe and Verſe, as, A Treatiſe of Painting in ſeven Books, dedicated to Charles Emanuel Duke of Savoy: Several Poems, &c.

LOMBARD: See DESIDERIUS Lombard, and PETRUS Lombard.

LOMBARDY, Lat. Lombardia, Longobardia, a large and conſiderable Country in the North of Italy, under which is contained the greateſt part of Gallia Ciſalpina. It is divided into the Upper and Lower; in the Upper, are Piedmont (with what is annexed to it) the Dukedoms of Milan and Montferrat. In the Lower, are the Dukedoms of Mantua, Modena, Parma, and Ferrara, with the Weſtern Parts of the State of Venice, viz. The Territories of Bergamo, Breſcia, Cremona, Verona and Vicenza, with the Territory of Bononia, (or Bologna) which, together with the Dukedom of Ferrara, belongs to the States of the Church. Others divide this Country into Lombardy, on this ſide the River Po, which is the Gallia Togata, or, as the Italians ſay, Lombardia di qua dal Po; and in that of the other ſide of the Po, called Italia Tranſpadana, or Lombardia di la dal Po. The former whereof is alſo called Æmilia, and contains the States of Parma, Modena, Montferrat, Ferrara, and part of Piedmont; the other contains the Dukedoms of Milan and Mantua, with the other part of Piedmont, and the Dominions of the Venetians. This part of Italy is very Fruitful and Beautiful. Thoſe who were the ancient Inhabitants of it, and gave it that Name, were the Winuli, afterwards called Lombards, Langobardi, or Longobardi, becauſe of the long Partiſans or Halbards they uſed for their Arms, whoſe Kingdom was deſtroyed by Charles the Great, after that he had at Pavia taken Deſiderius (or Didier) their laſt King Priſoner. The principal City of this Kingdom was Milan.

Authors tell us, that the Lombards, who had loſt their Dukes did in 389 chuſe Agelmond, the Son of Duke Aon, for their King, which Government continued under 11 Princes in Pannonia, or Hungary. They came into Italy in 568, under Alboin their King, whom Narſes had called in, and their Kingdom continued there under 21 Princes, till 774. In all 206 Years. They came originally from Scandinavia, Pomerania, and ſome other more Northern Provinces in Germany.

LOMBEZ, Lat. Lombaria, a ſmall City of Gaſcoign in France, in the County of Cominges, upon the River Sava, which falls into the Garonne, 4 Miles beneath Toulouſe. Lombes ſtands 5 Leagues from the Garonne to the North, 8 from Aux to the South Eaſt, and 10 from Tolouſe to the South Weſt. And is a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Tolouſe. Du Cheſne Antiq. des Villes de France. Sanmarth. Gall. Chriſtian. Tom. II.

LOMBROSO (Jacob) publiſhed a Hebrew Bible printed at Venice in 1639, which is much in requeſt with the Spaniſh Jews, becauſe of the Notes he hath added to it, with an explication of the moſt difficult Hebrew words in the Spaniſh Tongue, but writ in Hebrew Characters. This Author is very judicious in his Interpretations, and the convenience of his Book is, that it hath in the Margin a Grammatical Explication of what is moſt knotty in the Holy Scripture.

LOMENIE (Antony de) Lord of Lavilleaux, Cleves, and Secretary of State to the French King, was the Son of Martial, Lord of Verſaille, who was killed in the Maſſacre at Paris, in 1572, he died at Paris, Jan. 17. 1638. His Son, Henry Auguſtus of Lomenie, Count of Brienne and Montbron, &c. was likewiſe Secretary of State, which Office he diſcharged well nigh during the whole Reign of Lewis XIII. who ſent him Ambaſſador into England, about the Articles of Marriage between King Charles I. and his Siſter Henrietta. He died, Novemb. 5. 1666, Aged 71. His Son Lewis, Henry de Lomenie, enjoyed his Father's place of Secretary of State in 1651, when he was but 16 Years of Age, and the next Year Travelled into Holland and Sweden, which Travels of his he writ in Latin, and was afterwards employed in the moſt important Affairs of State, but the death of his Wife, which happened in 1664, did ſo deeply affect him, that he reſolved to leave the World, and betook himſelf to the Fathers of the Oratory.

LONDON, Lat. Londinum, and Auguſta Trinobantum, called by the French, Londres; by the Italians, Londra; and by the Saxons, Landain, the Capital of England, ſtands on a riſing ground along the River Thames. Its length from Eaſt to Weſt, from Lime-houſe to the farther end of Mill-bank in Weſtminſter, is 7500 Geometrical Paces, i. e. 7 meaſured Miles and a half, at a Thouſand Paces a Mile. Its breadth from the farther end of Shore-Ditch, to St. George's-Fields in Southwark, near three Miles. For Antiquity, Hiſtory tells us, of her being repaired and improved by the Britiſh King Lud, above 60 Years before our Saviour's Birth. The ancient Hiſtorian Tacitus, who lived under the Emperor Veſpaſian, ſays, That in Nero's Time, about An. Ch. 66. it was Copia Negotiatorum & Commeatu maxime celebre, a place of great Reſort for Commerce, and famous for plenty of Proviſions; and Ammianus Marcellinus, who lived in the IVth Century, calls it then an ancient City. The whole Country about it is ſo plentiful, the Roads that lead to it ſo fair, and the River ſo commodious for Navigation, that 'tis ſeldom ſenſible of any Scarcity. Its length for the conveniency of the River, and freeneſs of the Air, which has a free Paſſage North and South, makes the Town ſo much the healthfuller, and leſs obnoxious to contagious Diſeaſes. London, with its Suburbs, contains above 600 Streets, Lanes and Courts, and in them all, by a late Computation, above 100000 Houſes, ſo that allowing only 8 Perſons to a Houſe, one with another, the number of Inhabitants will amount to 800000. Boadicia, Queen of the Iceni, being provoked by the Romans to Aſſemble the Britains, fell firſt upon Camalodunum, now Maldon in Eſſex, and taking it by Surprize, put all the Romans to the Sword. Petilius Cerealis coming up with the 9th Legion, was defeated, and all his Foot put to the Sword too, the Horſe hardly eſcaping. In the interim, Suetonius, the Roman Proprætor, or Governor, who was then Conquering the Iſle of Angleſey, comes up to London, and, at firſt, deſigned to make it the Seat of the War; but finding Reaſons to alter his Reſolve, he marched away to St. Albans. So Boadicia, who was not far off, came up, and put all ſhe found in the Town to the Sword, and ſoon after treated St. Albans in the ſame manner. This City ſoon recovered the Loſs, and was afterwards as famous as ever. In An. Ch. 292, it was in danger of being Sacked by the Franks, but was preſerved by the unexpected arrival of ſome Roman Forces. Soon after this, Conſtantine the Great is ſaid to have Walled it. In 313, we find Reſtitutus, Biſhop of London, at the Council of Arles in France, ſubſcribing after Eborius, Biſhop of York. Bede is very poſitive, that it was then an Archbiſhop's See. Mr. Cambden is of Opinion, it was delivered up to the Saxons, under Hengiſt their firſt King, by Vortigern, about An. Ch. 463. Tho' this changed the State of the Iſland, and ruined Chriſtianity, yet London ſtill continued a conſiderable Mart, or Sea-Port. In 610, St. Paul's Church was built, or rather re-built, and aſſigned to the Uſes of Chriſtianity, by Athelbert, King of Kent. Mellitus was made firſt Biſhop of London, after the Converſion of the Saxons, in 604, the Metropolitick See being removed by Auguſtine, the Monk, then from London to Canterbury. About 707, Offa, King of the Eaſt Angles, Enlarged and Endowed the Church of Weſtminſter, which is ſince become another City joined to London. In 854, it fell into the hands of the Danes, who Sacked it, and Canterbury in 1012. Theſe Barbarians ſlew the Biſhop of London, for not paying them their Tribute. The Year after, Sweno, King of the Danes, took this City, and expelled Ethelred out of England. In 1016, it was again taken by Canutus, who was Crowned there in 1018. In 1042, an end was put to the Daniſh Race, and Edward the Confeſſor was Crowned King of England. In 1054, this Prince died, and Harold Uſurped upon Edward Atheling, the Right Heir, William, Duke of Normandy, entred England, ſlew him, and in 1066, was Crowned King in London. The Fate of London, has been much the ſame with that of England ever ſince; for this Prince, in 1078, having built the Tower of London, it became the ſettled Reſidence of our Kings from that Day forward. William II. walled the Tower in 1099. King John, in 1210, granted this City its firſt Charter, and inſtituted its Mayor and Government. In 1211, he built London-Bridge. In 1217, Lewis of France was beſieged in London by Henry III. and forced to leave the Land. In 1378, John Philpot, a Londoner, at his own Coſt, and upon his own Authority, put out a Fleet, and cleared the Seas of Pirates. In 1381, the Peaſants riſing againſt the Nobility, and one Jack Straw behaving himſelf inſolently towards the King in Smithfield, Sir William Wallworth, then Lord Mayor, ſtabbed him, and put an end to the Rebellion; for which Service, the Red Dagger is ſaid to have been added to the Arms of the City. In 1392, the Prince ſeized their Liberties, for refuſing to lend him Money. In 1567, the Royal Exchange was built by Sir Thomas Greſham. In ſucceeding Times, it throve to that degree, as to have 133 Pariſhes accounted within its Walls and Suburbs. In 1665, a Plague ſwept away 100000 of its Inhabitants. In 1666, a Fire burnt down 13000 of her Houſes; but at three Years end, near upon 10000 of them were raiſed up again, with great Improvements, and as many more Houſes added to the Suburbs ſince that time; and whereas, before the Fire, the Houſes were, for the moſt part, built with Timber only, with little regard to Uniformity, thoſe that have been built ſince, are all, but a few, of Brick, generally very fair, and much more convenient and uniform than heretofore. As for Merchant-houſes, and fair Taverns, ſcarce any City exceeds London; but for Noblemen's, and other Great Men's Houſes, the Caſe is different, tho' we have ſome here, eſpecially Montague-Houſe, which, for Uniformity and Statelineſs, is inferior to few beyond Sea. Here are alſo fine, ſtraight and ſpacious Streets, embelliſhed with an incredible number of fine Signs, and enlightned at Nights, with a particular Invention of Glaſs-Lanthorns. But what London excels all other Cities in, are its great number of fine Squares, inhabited chiefly by the Nobility and Gentry. Amongſt which, Lincolns-Inn-Fields is chiefly noted for its ſpacicuſneſs, and King's-Square in Sohoe for its ſtatelineſs. As to the publick Buildings, the moſt remarkable are, The Tower, the Cuſtom-Houſe, the Bridge, the Monument, the Royal Exchange, and Guild-Hall; beſides the Merchant's-Hall, the Lawyer's Inns, the Colleges, Hoſpitals, Churches, &c. The Tower, an ancient Structure, ſo called from the White Tower in the middle, ſtands by the River, on the Eaſt-ſide of the Bridge, is about a Mile in compaſs, ſurrounded with a Wall and Ditch, with Cannon planted on the Turrets, ſo that it Commands both the City and River. 'Tis alſo the principal Store-Houſe of England, for Arms and Ammunition, containing Arms for 60000 Men. Here are kept the Jewels and Ornaments of the Crown, and the ancient Records of the Nation; and here is the only Mint of England, for Coining of Gold and Silver. It has formerly been honoured with the Reſidence of ſeveral Kings, who kept their Courts here, and now 'tis the chief Priſon for Perſons of Quality, that are Charged with Crimes againſt the Government. The Cuſtom-Houſe alſo by the River ſide, was deſtroyed by the great Fire, but ſoon after re-built, much more commodious, uniform and magnificent. The Bridge which joins this City to the Borough of Southwark, on the other ſide of the River, conſiſts of 19 Arches, at 20 Foot diſtance from each other, with a Draw-Bridge, almoſt in the middle. Upon this Bridge, is a fine Row of Houſes on each ſide, with Shops furniſhed with moſt ſorts of Commodities, the Street being widened in the late Reign, from 12 to 20 Foot. A little above it, is the Fatal place where the great Fire began, in perpetual Memory whereof, was erected a Pillar 202 Foot high, and 15 Foot Diameter, with a Pedeſtal 40 Foot high, and 21 Foot ſquare. Not far from the Monument is the Royal Exchange, the fineſt Building of that kind in Europe, firſt Erected, An. 1556, juſt 100 Years before it was burnt, at the Coſt and Charges of Sir Thomas Greſham, a Merchant, but ſince the Fire, re-built much more ſtately by the Chamber of London, and Company of Mercers. Guild-Hall, the Place where the City Courts of Judicature are held, and where the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Common-Council meet, for the Management of the City Concerns, is a ſpacious Building, but finer within than without. The Merchant's-Hall, where the Companies meet, for managing their reſpective Trades, are moſt of them ſo ſtately, that they look like ſo many Palaces. Amongſt the Lawyers Inns, the four Inns of Court, viz. The Inner and the Middle Temple in Fleetſtreet, Grays-Inn in Holborn, and Lincolns-Inn in Chancery-Lane, are particularly worth Strangers curioſity, and ſo is the College of Civilians, called Doctor's Commons, near St. Paul's; the College of Phyſicians in Warwick-Lane, the Herald's Office upon St. Bennet's Hill, Greſham College in Biſhop's-Gate-Street, where the Royal Society meets, and Sion College near Cripple-Gate. For the Relief of poor People, here are five great Hoſpitals, viz, Chriſt's, St. Bartholomew's, and St. Thomas's Hoſpitals, the Charter-Houſe, and Bedlam. The firſt Erected for Children in the City, with three ſeveral Schools, one of them of 40 Boys, inſtructed in Geometry and Navigation, and other parts of Mathematicks. St. Bartholomew's and St. Thomas's Hoſpitals, are for the Relief and Cure of Poor, Sick, Wounded and Maimed People. The Charter-Houſe, otherwiſe called Sutton's Hoſpital, from its Founder Thomas Sutton, a Lincolnſhire Gentleman, is the nobleſt Foundation of any Subject in Europe; for beſides the Houſe it ſelf, which coſt the Founder 20000 l. in Purchaſe, and fitting up, he Endowed it with 4000 l. a Year, ſince improved to near 6000 l. out of which are maintained 80 decayed Gentlemen, Soldiers, and Merchants, beſides a School of 44 Scholars, allowed not only all Neceſſaries, while they ſtay there, but alſo 20 l. a Year, each of them, for eight Years after he comes to the Univerſity, or a Sum of Money to learn a Trade. Bedlam, the Hoſpital for Lunaticks, is a ſtately Fabrick in Moor-fields, not far from the back-ſide of the Royal-Exchange. For the Correction of Vagabonds, Lewd and Idle Perſons, are ſeveral Work-Houſes, the Principal of which is Bridewell, a large and ſumptuous Building, on the back of Fleet-ſtreet. For the bringing up the Youth to Learning, the chief Publick Schools are St. Paul's, Merchant Taylors, and Mercer's Chappel; and for Publick Devotion, here are, within the Walls only, and Freedom of the City, no leſs than 97 Pariſh-Churches, beſides a great many Chappels, and St. Paul's Cathedral. For Civil Government, here is a Lord Mayor choſen Yearly by the Citizens, out of the Body of Aldermen, whoſe State and Grandeur, far exceeds that of any ſuch Station beyond Sea, as appears by the Solemnity of his Inſtalment on the 29th of October, and the numerous Officers that attend him during his Magiſtracy, Four whereof are reputed Eſquires, by their Places; among which, the Sword-bearer has 1000 l. a Year allowed him for his Table, in the Lord Mayor's Houſe. Next to the Lord Mayor are the Aldermen, in all 26, which anſwers to the Wards the City is divided into; a peculiar Alderman being aſſigned to every Ward, with a certain number of Common-Council-Men under him, (whereof, one is his Deputy) and ſeveral inferior Officers: And out of the Wards are choſen the Common-Council-Men, in all 231. Amongſt the other Magiſtrates of this City, the Principal are, the Recorder, the two Sheriffs, and the City-Chamberlain. The firſt is uſually a grave and eminent Lawyer, well-verſed in the Laws and Cuſtoms of the City, to be an Aſſiſtant to the Lord Mayor: In which capacity he takes Place in Councils, and in Court, before any Man that has been Lord Mayor; and delivers the Sentences of the whole Court. The two Sheriffs of the City are alſo Sheriffs for the whole County: And each of them has an Under-Sheriff, ſix Clerks, and a certain number of Serjeants under him. The Chamberlain's Office extends it ſelf particularly over Shop-keepers and Apprentices, who, as ſuch, are under his peculiar Juriſdiction. The City-Traders are divided into diſtinct Companies, in all about 70, enjoying large Privileges granted them by former Kings; and have each of them an Hall, where they meet, and chuſe a Maſter, with other ſubordinate Officers, called Wardens and Aſſiſtants. As for the Militia, Enſurance-Office, and other Particularities of this flouriſhing City, ſee The Preſent State of England.

LONDON-DERRY, is a Colony of the Engliſh, planted in the County of Colrain, in the North of the Province of Ulſter, in a fruitful Soil, and upon Waters that afford it great Plenty of Fiſh of all ſorts. This, in 1612, was made a London-Colony, ſome of the Companies in London bearing the Charge of it; and one Colonel Dockwra, an old, experienced Commander of the Engliſh, being ſent to command, and take care of them. Being thus happily begun, and a great Number following the firſt, in a ſhort time it became the moſt conſiderable City in Ulſter: And being as carefully fortified and garriſon'd, as peopled, in the Time of the Iriſh Maſſacre, it ſtood ſo firm for the Engliſh, that no Force or Fraud of the Enemy could expel them. They were reduced to great Extremity in 1649, but one Owen Row O-Neal relieved the Town when it was juſt upon the Point of being ſtarved into a compliance. In 1689, it became celebrated over all Europe, by the long and ſtout Reſiſtance it made againſt King James's Army; which conſiſting of 20000 Men, but loſing between 8 and 9000 before it, and 100 Officers, was at laſt forced to draw off with Shame, when Major-General Kirk put Succours into the Town, July 19. 1689. Of the Garriſon, which conſiſted of 10000 Men, there died, and were killed about 3200. The length of the Town, from Ship-Key Gate to Biſhops Gate, is 1500 Foot; its breadth 180. It was defended by 8 Sakers, and 12 Demi-culverins. The People were at firſt chiefly encouraged to hold out by Colonel Murray, who gave frequent Proofs of an unheard-of Valour in his Sallies upon the Enemy; and killed the French General Maimont before the Walls.

LONGFORD, a Town and County in the Province of Leinſter. The County has Connaught on the Weſt, Ulſter on the North, Letrim and Roſcommon on the Eaſt, and Mayo on the South. The Town is ſmall, and ſtands on the North-ſide of the River Long, where it falls into the Lake of Eske.

LONGINUS, a Roman Patrician, and one of the firſt Exarchs of Ravenna, in the VIth Century. The Emperor Juſtin the Younger, ſent him to command in Italy, in the room of Narſes, about 567, or 568. He continued in that Government fifteen or ſixteen Years, and carried on the War againſt the Lombards, who in his Time ſettled themſelves in the Country. At laſt the Emperor re-called him. Roſamond Queen of the Lombards, who had cauſed her Husband Alboin to be put to death in 574, retired to Ravenna with her Paramour; and Longinus promiſed to marry her, upon condition ſhe would get her Gallant Helmigus diſpatched. Whereupon, ſhe gave him a Draught of Poiſon: But Longinus, inſtead of marrying her, made her drink the reſt of the Poiſon ſhe had prepared for her Lover.

LONGINUS, Brother of the Emperor Zeno, in the Vth Century, was hated becauſe of his Extortions and Debauches. Pelagius, the Patrician, hinder'd him from being choſen Cæſar. The Emperor Anaſtaſius put him to death in 498, according to Marcellin. in Chron.

LONGINUS, or Dionyſius Caſſius Longinus, a learned Sophiſt, Heir of Fronto, lived in the IIId Century, in great Reputation for his Knowledge. He was Porphyrius's Præceptor, who highly commends him, in the Life of Plotinus. He writ abundance of Books; of which, we have only left his Book De Sublimi Dicendi Genere, and ſome Fragments in the Life of Plotinus. He was Præceptor of Zenobia, Queen of the Palmyrians. Vopiſcus tells us, That the Emperor Aurelian cauſed him to be put to death, as taking him to have been the Author of the Letter that Queen writ to him in Syriack, and which appeared to him too bold and ſawcy. This was in 273. Zoſimus ſpeaks highly in commendation of his Learning, his Writings, and his Conſtancy in enduring his Death. Beſides the fore-mentioned Treatiſe, he writ De Oratione contra Phidiam. Dubitationes Homericæ. Utrum fuerit Philoſophus Homerus. Quænam contra Hiſtoricam fidem, tanquam Hiſtorica enarrent Philoſophi, &c. Euſeb. lib. 15. Suidas. Photius Bibl. Vopiſcus in Aurel. Porphyr. in Vita Plotini.

LONG-MEG and her Daughters, a Trophy in the County of Cumberland, erected at Salkeld, on the River Eden. It conſiſts of 77 Stones, each 10 Foot above Ground; but the higheſt is 15, and is by the Inhabitants called Long-Meg.

LONGOLIUS (Chriſtopher) was born at Malines in the Low Countries in 1490. He was well skill'd in the Belles Lettres, Antiquity and Languages, and wrote in Latin, both in Proſe and Verſe, with great Elocution, and Purity of Stile: He had ſo prodigious a Memory, that he never forgot any thing committed to it. In the progreſs of his Studies, he applied himſelf to the Reading of Law, Phyſick, and Divinity; and was, in ſhort, a Man of Univerſal Learning. He was likewiſe a great Traveller, and extreamly admir'd by Perſons of Learning, who very much regretted his Death, which happen'd at Padua, in the Flower of his Age, in 1522. Cardinal Bembo made him the following Epitaph, which was plac'd on his Tomb, in a Church of the Franciſcans at Padua.

> Chriſtophoro Longolio Belgæ, Romanam Civitatem, propter eximiam in Studiis Literarum Præſtantiam, adepto, Summo Ingenio, incredibili Induſtria, in omnibus Artibus prædito, ſupra Juventæ Annos, in qua extinctus eſt, magno cum Italiæ dolore, cui ingentem ſpem ſui nominis excitaverat, Petrus Bembus Amico atq; Hoſpiti poſuit.

> Te Juvinem rapuere Deæ, fatalia nentes
> Stamina, cum ſcirent moriturum tempore nullo,
> Longoli, tibi ſi canos ſeniumq; dediſſent.

His Works are, Comment. in Lib. 11. Plinii Hiſtoria Herbarum. Epiſtol. 4. Comment. ad Jus Civile. Oratio de laudibus C. Plinii. Oratio de Ludovici Francorum Regis & Gentis Laudibus, &c. Paul. Jov. in Elog. Doct. Viror. cap. 67. St. Marth. in Elog. Doct. Gal. Lib. 1. Melchior Adam in vit. Philoſ. Germ. &c.

LONGOMONTANUS (Chriſtophorus) a famous Aſtronomer, and a Dane by Nation; the Son of Severinus Longomontanus. He lived 8 Years with Tycho Brahe, and was preſent at all his Obſervations, by which he gained great Skill in that Science. Afterwards he was Profeſſor of Aſtronomy at Copenhagen, where he died in 1647, being above 80 Years of Age. We have ſeveral Works of his compoſing; the moſt conſiderable whereof are, his Aſtronomia Danica, wherein he lays down his Hypotheſis of the World, taken from the ancient Ptolemaick Syſtem, with thoſe of Copernicus, and Tycho Brahe. It was printed in 1640, at Amſterdam. Gaſſend. Voſſius, &c.

LONGUEVAL (Bonaventura de) Count of Buquoy, General of the Emperor's Army, reduced divers Cities of Bohemia in 1618, defeated Count Mansfelt ſeveral times, and in 1620, contributed to the Victory of Prague. He afterwards, with an Army of 5000 Men, defeated Bethlehem Gabor, who had 15000, took Presburg, and many other Places of the Kingdom of Hungary. He was ſlain at the Siege of Newhauſel, in 1621. Lotichius Res Germanicæ.

LONGUEVILLE, a Country Town of France, in the Country of Caux in Normandy, with the Title of an Earldom, and afterwards raiſed to that of a Dukedom, in 1505, by King Lewis XII. From this Place the Earls and Dukes of Longueville have their Title.

LONICERUS (Johannes) a German Profeſſor at Marpurg, was born in 1499, at Orthern, a Village in the County of Mansfelt. He was well-skilled in Hebrew, Greek and Latin. He taught at Strasburg, and ſeveral other Cities of Germany; but eſpecially at Marpurg, where his Name was very famous, and where he died July 20. 1569, being 70 Years of Age. He left ſeveral Children, who kept up his Reputation; and, amongſt the reſt, Adam Lonicerus the Phyſician, who was born at Marpurg, in 1528, and practiſed Phyſick at Francfort, where he died in 1586, being 58 Years of Age. He writ Botanicon. Hiſtoria Plantarum. Methodica explicatio omnium corporis humani affectuum, &c. Melchior Adam in Vit. Germ. Phil. & Med. Vander Linden de Script. Medic.

LOPEZ DE ZUNIGA (Diego) a Spaniard, living in the beginning of the XVIth Century. He wrote againſt Eraſmus, and publiſh'd an Abridgment of the Spaniſh Hiſtory. Andreas Schotus & Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp.

LOPEZ de Gomora (Franciſco) a Spaniſh Prieſt, born at Sevil, lived in 1550. He writ the General Hiſtory of the Indies, in Two Parts; which hath been tranſlated into French and Italian. Bernard Dias del Caſtillo, often confutes and contradicts this Author as a partial and unexact Hiſtorian.

LOPSKI. Guagninus placeth this People on the Eaſt of the Obb, and to the North of Lucomoria, upon the Shoars of the Frozen Ocean. He ſaith, it is a wandering Nation, extreamly barbarous, having no Bread, and feeding only on Fleſh and Fiſh; cloathing their Bodies with the Skins of Beaſts, of which they have great Variety. They Trade with the Ruſs, and pay their Tribute to the Emperor of Ruſſia in that Commodity. The Merchants carry coarſe Cloth, Hatchets, Knives, Beads, Needles, Pots and Looking-Glaſſes hither. At Midſummer there is but two Hours of Night, the Sun being under the Horizon no longer; and then is a bright Twilight. Theſe are the moſt Eaſtern People on the Frozen Sea, that belong to the Ruſs: And to the Eaſt of them lie the Tartars, that are ſubject to the King of China.

LOQUABRE, or LOCHABER, a County in Scotland, called by Latin Writers Abria and Loquabria, It lies on the Weſt of Scotland, towards the Hebrides, bounded on the North with the Ocean, and the County of Roſs on the Eaſt, with Murray and Athol on the South, with Perth, Menteith and Lorne, cut off from it by the River Tay; and on the Weſt by the Ocean. There are ſome Caſtles, but few Towns, and never a City of Note in it.

LOREDANO (Joannes Franciſcus) Senator of Venice, was born in 1606. He was a Man of great Fame for his Learning, and the Books he hath written, ſome of which he compoſed when he was very young. His Houſe was an Academy, and Place of Reſort for learned Men. And he it was that laid the Foundation of the Italian Academy, called Gl'Incogniti. His Merits alſo acquired him ſome of the higheſt Places in the Commonwealth. We have the following Books of his Writing: Scherzi Geniali. Bizzarie Academiche. Vita del Marini. Morte del Valſtain. Ragguagli di Parnaſo. Hiſtorie de Ré Luſignani. Lettere, &c. See Gualdo Priorato Scen. d'Huom. illuſtr. d'Ital. Ghilini Theat. d'Huom. Letter.

LORETTE, the Name of an Order of Knights, inſtituted by Pope Sixtus V. in 1587, when he made the Church of Our Lady of Loretto a Biſhop's See. During the Time of his Papacy, he made no leſs than 260 of them. The Popes conferred this Order indifferently on Sword-men and Lawyers, and honoured them with the Title of Count Palatines. They had all of them Penſions, with a Power of making Doctors in all Faculties; as alſo Publick Notaries, and that of Legitimating Baſtards.

LORETTO, or LAURETTE, Lat. Lauretum, a City of Italy, in the Eccleſiaſtical State, with a Biſhop's See, united to that of Recanati. This is a moſt Famous Place for being the Depoſitory (as they tell us) of the Chamber wherein the Holy Virgin conceived the Divine Word. Popiſh Authors ſay, That a Month after the Taking of Ptolemais, this Houſe was tranſported by Angels, from Nazareth to Dalmatia; and about three Years after, to the Dioceſs of Recanati in Italy, and placed in a Field belonging to a Pious Lady, called Loretto or Laurette, whence it took its Name. But this Field being ſurrounded with a Wood, whence the Pilgrims were often aſſaulted by Robbers, it was again tranſported about half a League farther, to an Hill; and afterwards, a little farther ſtill. Bernegger, a Lutheran Profeſſor of Strasburg, has endeavour'd to confute this Relation, in a Book writ by him on purpoſe. See alſo Mr. Emilianne's Obſervations on a Journey to Naples, and Mr. Miſſon's Journey into Italy.

LORGUE (Nicolaus de) the 21ſt Great Maſter of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, whoſe Convent at that Time was at Ptolemais, or St. John d'Acre. He was the Succeſſor of Hugh de Revel, in 1278. In his Time the Fortreſs of Margat in Phœnicia, was twice beſieged by the Saracens in 1282, and by the Sultan of Egypt in 1285, who finding himſelf unable to take the Place by Force, undermined it: Whereupon, the Hoſpitallers were forced to ſurrender the Caſtle, and retire to Ptolemais. The Grief which the Great Maſter conceived for the Loſs of this Place haſtned his Death, which happened in 1288. John Villers ſucceeding him. Boſio's Hiſtory of St. John of Jeruſalem.

LORGUES, Lat. Leonas, or Leonicas, a City of Provence in France, in the Dioceſs of Frejus. It is ſituate in a Fertile Soil, two Leagues from Draguignan, 5 from Frejus, and 14 from Aix.

LORINUS (John) a Jeſuit, born at Avignon in 1559. He was a great Scholar in all ſorts of Learning, but eſpecially in Divinity. There are excellent Commentaries of his extant, upon Numbers, Deuteronomy, the Pſalms, Eccleſiaſtes; the Wiſdom of Solomon, the Acts of the Apoſtles, and upon all the General Epiſtles. Alegamb. de Script. Soc. Jeſ. Miraus de Script. Sæc. 17.

LORIT, commonly call'd Glareanus, but his right Name was Henry Lorit, was born at Glarone, a Town in Switzerland, in 1488, and was much eſteem'd for his Learning and Probity. He was one of Eraſmus's Intimate Friends, and particularly eminent for his Skill in Muſick, as appears by his Dodeca-chordon, &c. Thuanus Hiſt. lib. 35. Eraſm. in Epiſt. Melchior Adam in vit. Germ. Philoſ. &c.

LORN, a Country which borders on Argyle, and reaches as far as Loquabre. The Country is plain and Fruitful, and gives the Title of Lord to the Earl of Argyle's Eldeſt Son.

LORRAIN, Lat. Lotharingia Auſtralia, a Sovereign Dukedom of Germany, of late ſeized by the French King. It was of old accounted part of the Gallia Belgica. It is bounded on the Eaſt with Alſatia, from whence it is ſeparated by the Mountain Vogeſus (la Vauge) and the Dukedom of Bipont; on the South with the County of Burgundy, or the Franche Comte; on the Weſt with the River Maez, which parts it from Champagne; and on the North with Luxemburg, Metz, Verdun, and the Land of Trier. It is commonly divided into two Parts, viz. Lorrain, properly ſo called, and the Dutchy of Barr; and is watered with ſeveral Rivers, and more eſpecially with the Moſelle, and the Maez; from the former whereof, the Upper Lorrain was called Moſellana Superior, and the Lower, Moſellana Inferior. This Country is in Length about four Days Journey, and about three in Breadth; being in ſome Parts much over-grown with Woods, and very Hilly and Mountainous, as being a Part of that once vaſt Foreſt of Ardenna; yet the Climate is generally very temperate, and the Soil Fruitful enough, plentifully affording all Neceſſaries of Life; for it abounds with Corn-Fields, and Hills ſet with Vines, and Mountains rich in Mines of Lead, Copper and Silver; but, above all, of Iron; with Salt Fountains: And affords great ſtore of Fowl, and the Rivers abundance of Fiſh. Its principal Cities are, Nancy, Metz, Toul, Verdun, Pont à Mouſſon, Mirecour, Barle-Duc, &c. And formerly it had a great many ſtrong Places; as, Stenay, Jamets, Damvilliers, Moyenvic, Marſal, Epinal and La Mothe; whereof, ſome are now demoliſhed. The Biſhopricks of Metz, Toul and Verdun, were ſubjected to the Crown of France, under the Reign of Henry II. in 1551, and were yielded to France by the 44th Article of the Peace of Munſter, in 1648. And the Dukedom of Bar, the Earldom of Clermont, Moyenvic, Stenay, &c. were conquered by Lewis XIII. and yielded to the Crown of France by the Pyrenæan Treaty in 1659. And by the ſame, the Dukedom of Lorrain was reſtored to the Duke Charles Leopold: But in 1674, the French re-aſſumed it again. In the Diviſion which the Children of Lewis the Meek made of their Father's Poſſeſſion in the Aſſembly of Verdun, in Auguſt 843, Charles the Bald, for his Share, had France, from the Maez and the Schelde on one ſide, to the Rhône and the Sône on the other. Lewis the Godly, King of Germany, had all the Country on the other ſide of the Rhine, with the Dioceſſes of Mentz, Worms and Spire. And Lotharius, who was already Emperor, had for his Part, beſides Italy, the Country that lies between the Rivers of the Schelde, the Counties lying near the Maez, and thoſe that lie on the other ſide of the Rhône, from Lyons. Lotharius dying in 855, left Lewis, who was Emperor, and King of Italy, Charles King of Provence, and Lotharius, who was poſſeſſed of that which remained between the Maez, the Schelde, and the Rhine, to the Sea, which was called the Kingdom of Lothaire, or Lorrain. This Lotharius II. King of Lorrain, died in 869. Charles the Bald, and Lewis King of Germany, his Uncles, and their Succeſſors, had great Conteſts about Lorrain. Under the Reign of Charles the Simple, Giſilbert was Duke or Governor of this Country, and died in 939. Henry, and after him, Otho, and laſtly, Conrade, and Bruno Archbiſhop of Cologne, governed Lorrain till 959. In this Year Lorrain was divided into the Upper Lorrain, called Moſellana, becauſe the Moſelle ran through it; and into the Lower Lorrain. The former contained the Dioceſſes of Trier, Strasburg, Metz, Toul, Verdun and Luxemburg: And the latter comprehended the Dioceſſes of Cologne, Utrecht, Liege and Cambray. The Emperor Otho, in 977, beſtowed the Dukedom of the Lower Lorrain, called Brabant, upon Charles of France, youngeſt Son of Lewis IV. who did Homage for it to Otho, which coſt him the Crown of France; for he was hereupon excluded, and afterwards defeated and taken Priſoner by Hugh Capet, who was made King of France in 987. Charles died in 991, and his Son Otho in 1004, or 1005. At which Time the Lower Lorrain was given to Godfrey Earl of Verdun, the Son of Godfrey of Ardenna, whom his Brother Gothelon ſucceeded, and left Godfrey II. ſurnamed Brook-Back; who dying without Iſſue, the Dutchy of the Lower Lorrain, in 1089, fell to his Nephew Godfrey of Bouillon, the Son of Ida, his Siſter, and of Euſtache II. Earl of Boulogne. Godfrey ſoon after croſſed himſelf to the Holy War, and his Eſtate was given to Henry of Limburg, who was afterwards deprived of it again. Godfrey of Louvain was poſſeſſed of it afterwards; from whom are deſcended the Dukes of Brabant, known by the Title of Dukes of Lotreich, or Lorrain; which they left to their Succeſſors. And thus much for the Lower Lorrain. As for the Upper, which is that where we ſhall find the Original of the Houſe of Lorrain, we are to obſerve, That after the Diviſion of the two Lorrains, in 959, Bruno Archbiſhop of Cologne retained the Title of Principal Duke, or Arch Duke; and that he beſtowed the Upper Lorrain upon Frederick, the Brother of Alberon Biſhop of Metz: Theodorick, his Son, ſucceeded him, and was followed by Frederick II. who left only two Daughters; Beatrix, married to Bonifacius Marquis of Montferrat; and Sophia, the Wife of Lewis Earl of Monçons. Theſe Daughters being not capable of governing, the Emperor Conrade beſtowed the Upper Lorrain upon Gothelon, who was already poſſeſſed of the Lower Lorrain. After his Death, the Emperor gave the Upper to Albert, whom ſome Authors take to be Albert II. of Namur, who married Regulinda, Daughter of the ſame Gothelon, ſurnamed The Great. After the Death of Albert, the Emperor beſtowed this Dukedom, in 1048, upon Gerard of Alſace, an Off-ſpring of the Houſe of Lorrain, who was Grandchild of Adelbert, or Albert, Count Marchis of Alſace. This Title of Marchis the Dukes of Lorrain took upon them, from the Country ſituate between the County of Metz, and that of Trier, in which are Vaudrevange, Sirk, Boſonville, &c. Adelbert had by his Wife Judith, Albert and Gerard; this latter was Count Marchis of Alſace, and died in 1048, leaving Theodorick and Gerard; which latter was Duke and Marchis of Lorrain. He married Hedwiga of Namur, the Daughter of Albert I. Earl of Namur; and of Ermengarda of Lorrain, who was the Daughter of Charles of France, Duke of Lorrain, and Grandchild of King Lewis IV. ſurnamed Ultramarin. This Gerard left Thierre, ſurnamed The Valiant, Duke of Lorrain, who died in 1115, and Gerard Count de Vaudemont. This is the true Original (if we may believe Moreri) of the Illuſtrious Family of Lorrain, which divers Authors, who have endeavoured to find it in Godfrey of Bouillon, or others, have not been able to meet with, becauſe they had not well apprehended the Difference of the two Lorrains. The French firſt poſſeſſed themſelves of this Dukedom under Lewis XIII. in 1663, but reſtored it by the Pyrenæan Treaty in 1659. In 1674, it was again re-taken by the French. Charles Leopold, the late Duke, of Famous Memory, being in the mean time employed by the Emperor, as his General, won more Honour than he could have done if he had ſucceeded his Uncle in his Rightful Inheritance. This great Prince died April 18. 1690, ſuddenly, in the 48th Year of his Age, at a Convent near Lintz, in his Journey to Vienna; his renowned Actions, and high Merits, making him extreamly lamented. He married Eleonora Maria of Auſtria, Dowager of Michael King of Poland, and Siſter to the preſent Emperor; by whom the Title to this Dukedom continues in this Family, to the eldeſt Son. Leopold, who by Vertue of the Treaty of Reſwick in 1697, was reſtored to the Inheritance of his Anceſtors, and the Year following married Elizabeth Charlotte, Daughter to the Duke of Orleans, and the French King's Niece, by whom he has had one Son, Stiled Prince of Bar, but died an Infant. See Charles Duke of Lorrain.

LOSA de Cordoua (Elizabeth) a Spaniſh Gentlewoman, well skilled in the Latin, Greek and Hebrew Languages; and was ſo well skilled in Divinity, that the Doctors admitted her to a Place in the Univerſities. After the Death of her Husband, ſhe ſpent her Time in Works of Piety and Charity. She died March 5. 1564, in the 73d Year of her Age. Nicol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſt.

LOT, the Son of Haran, Abraham's Nephew, was born A. M. 2048. See his Hiſtory, Gen. 11. 14, 19. Joſeph. lib. Antiq. Judaic. Salvian & Torniel. in Annales.

LOT, Lat. Olda, a River of Aquitain in France, which riſeth from the Sevennes, a Mountain of Gevaudan, a County of Languedoc, three Leagues from Mande; and traverſing Rovergue towards the North, enters into Quercy, where it waters Cahors; and then entring Agenois, falls into the Garonne, near Acquillon, four Leagues beneath Agen, after having taken in the River Trieure in Rovergue, the Sale in Quercy, and the Vert and the Maſſe in Agenois. Whereas heretofore this River was paſſable by Boats only, as far as Ville Neuve d'Agen, it is of late made Navigable as high as Cahors, by the preſent French King, in 1677.

LOTHARIUS I. Emperor of the Weſt, and King of Italy, was the Son of Lewis the Meek, who made him his Partner in the Empire in 819. He was Crowned King of Lombardy in 822, and afterwards Crowned Emperor by Pope Paſchal I. in 823. He was a generous and valiant Prince, but withal ambitious and jealous. His Father's firſt Wife was Ermengarda, by whom he had this Lotharius, Pepin, King of Aquitain, and Lewis King of Germany; after her death, he married Judith. This Second Marriage alienated the Minds of his Children from him, inſomuch, that Lotharius ſeized him in 833, and ſhut him up in the Monaſtery of St. Medard in Soiſſons, with deſign to have had him degraded, after a Publick Penance, but the Matter was accommodated. After the death of his Father, Lotharius conceiving that becauſe he was Emperor, and the Eldeſt Son, he ought to be Soveraign over his Brothers, took up Arms for that purpoſe; but they uniting their Forces, gave him a total Defeat at Fontenay, June 25. 841. And being beaten a Second time the next Year, he came to an Accommodation with them, by which he retained for his Share Italy, Gallia Belgica, ſince called Lorrain, Provence and Burgundy. But at laſt being diſtaſted with the World, he parted his Dominions amongſt his Children, and took the Habit of a Monk in the Abbey of Prum, where he died, Sept. 28. or 29. 855, after having Reigned 15 Years. He left the following Sons, Lewis II. Emperor, Lotharius II. King of Lorrain, and Charles King of Arles, or Provence. De St. Bertin the life of Lewis the Meek.

LOTHARIUS II. Emperor, Duke of Saxony, was the Son or Gebhardus, Count of Arnsberg, and of Hedwiga, Burgravin of Nuremberg. He was Choſen Sept. 13. 1125, after an Interregnum of three Years, and ſome Days, viz. From the Death of Henry V. As ſoon as he was choſen Emperor, he laid Claim to the Kingdom of Burgundy, which he pretended was united to the Empire; but Renold II. Earl of Burgundy, refuſed to own him as ſuch; at which refuſal, being offended, he deprived him, and beſtowed Burgundy upon Barthold, Duke of Zeringhen; which was an occaſion of great Wars between both thoſe Houſes, and were not terminated, but by the marriage of the Emperor Frederick with Beatrix, in 1157. In 1133, Lotharius went to Rome, where he was Crowned by Pope Innocent II. and in 1137, made War upon Roger King of Sicily. He received the Greek Ambaſſadors at Calabria, and died at Verona, or, according to others, near to Trent, the laſt of Sept. the ſame Year 1137, or 38. Otho Friſingen. lib. 4. Petrus Montcaſſin. in Chron. lib. 4.

LOTHARIUS, King of France, Son of Lewis IV. called Ultramarine, and of Gerberga of Saxony, was born at Laon in 941. He ſucceeded to his Father at the Age of 13, and was Crowned at Rheims, Nov. 12. 954. This King, aſſiſted by Hugh the Great, waged War in Poictou againſt William, Duke of Guienne, and laid Siege to Poictiers, but was fain to raiſe it in 955. He retook Arras and Doway. After this, Lotharius took up Arms againſt Otho II. Emperor, to Conquer the Lower Lorrain, which he had given to Charles, Lotharius, his Brother, as if he had had the diſpoſing of it; and ſetting upon the Emperor's Forces at Aix la Chapelle, he put him to flight; in revenge of which, Otho, at the Head of 60000 Men, pillaged Champagne, and advanced to Paris; but the Winter having oblig'd him to retire, he loſt all his Rear-Guard, at the Paſſage of the River Aine, and from thence was driven back by Lotharius his Army, as far as Ardennes, in 978. The Emperor finding himſelf in a bad condition, deſired a Peace, which Lotharius granted, and reſtored Lorrain to Otho in 980, to hold it in Fief of the Crown of France, which Treaty offended the Grandees of France; but ſome time after, upon the death of Otho, Lotharius entred again into Lorrain, in 984, took Verdun; but underſtanding that Otho III. was put into the place of his Father, by Conſent of all the Great Ones, he advanced no farther. He died at Rheims of Poiſon, March 2. 986, being aged about 45 Years, of which he had Reigned, from his Father's death, 31 Years. His Wife was Emma, the Daughter of Lotharius, King of Italy, by whom he had an only Son Lewis V. who ſucceeded him, and two Natural Sons, Arnulphus, Archbiſhop of Rheims, and Richard. Flodoard Hiſt. Rhem. Aimoin in Contin. Dupleix & Mezeray Tom. I. Hiſt. de France.

LOTHARIUS, King of Lorrain, was the Son of the Emperor Lotharius I. and Brother of the Emperor Lewis II. and of Charles, King of Provence. He married Thietberga, in 856, the Daughter of Hubert, Duke of Outre-le-mont-Jou; but being fallen into diſlike with her, and in love with Valdrada, Siſter of Gunther, Archbiſhop of Collen, and Niece of Thietgaud of Trier, he reſolved to divorce the former, and marry the latter. Theſe Prelates aſſembling their Suffragans at Aix la Chapelle, made them to diſſolve the King's Marriage, whereupon Lotharius married Valdrada. But Pope Nicholas I. diſapproving this proceeding, ſent about it to Thietgaud, and Gunther, as well as to the King, who promiſed to ſubmit himſelf to the Church. The Pope ſent his Legates in 895, whom theſe two Prelates corrupted, and made them approve of the Diſſolution of the Marriage; whereupon, the Pope convening a Synod at Latran, Excommunicated them; and the King, to avoid the Pope's diſpleaſure, was forced to take to himſelf his former Wife, in 855. But ſoon after, falling into his old diſlike of her, began to abuſe her, and would have her Tried for Adultery, which was the Cauſe of a great War. In the mean time, while the Saracens infeſted Italy, Lotharius took a Journey thither, to aſſiſt the Emperor Lewis, his Brother, but chiefly to inſinuate himſelf into the Favour of Adrian II. the Succeſſor of Nicholas, as hoping, by this means, to obtain of him a Diſſolution of his Marriage. The Pope received him with a great deal of Friendſhip, becauſe he aſſured him, that he had exactly followed the Orders of his Predeceſſor; and to the end he might be the more fully perſwaded of it, when he, and his Retinue, came to receive the Communion, he made them all to ſwear, That it was true, that he had quitted Valdrada, whereupon the moſt part of them died immediately, as if they had been ſtruck by the deſtroying Angel of God; and Lotharius himſelf being attacked by a Fever at Luca, died at Placenza, Auguſt 7. 869. Mezeray Annal. de Fuld.

LOTHARIUS, Son of Hugo, Earl of Provence, was made King of Italy, by his Father, in 932, and Reigned with him till 945. Berenger, and his other Competitors, ſuffered him to retain the Name of King, till 949, or 950, when he died at Milan. Flodoard ſaith, he was poiſoned. Leo of Oſtia lib. 1. in Chron. Caſſ. Luitprand. lib. 5. Hiſt. Flodoard.

LOTHIAN, Lat. Laudonia, a County in the South of Scotland, bounded on the North by the Fryth of Edinburg, on the Eaſt by the German Ocean, on the South by the Mers, Twedal and Clydesdale, and on the Weſt by the County of Sterling. This County is 34 Scotch Miles in length from Eaſt to Weſt, but not above 10 broad, for the moſt part. It is the principal County of that Kingdom, Edinburg ſtanding almoſt in the middle of it. Beſides which, it hath Leith, Dunbar, Dalkeith, Hadinton, Muſſelburgh, Tranent, Saltpreſton, &c. It is a very fruitful and pleaſant County, abounding with Towns, Villages, and Noblemen's Seats, and is well furniſhed with Coal and Salt. It gives Title of Earl to one of the Surname of Carr.

LOTOPHAGITES, an Iſland of Africa, called the Iſle of Gerbi, belonging to the Kingdom of Tripoli, once in poſſeſſion of the Spaniards, who were driven thence after a great Defeat. Ancient Authors make frequent mention of a People called Lotophagi.

LOVANGO, or LOANGA, a Kingdom of Lower Æthiopia, lying North from the Kingdom of Congo, in the South part of Africa, which is alſo called the County of Bramas. The Capital where the King keeps his Court, is ſituate about a League and half from the Sea Coaſt, and is called Lovango, or Banza Lavangiri, and by the Inhabitants Boarie, or Bury. The Houſes are adorned with Walks or Avenues, leading up to them, of Palm-Trees and Bananas. The King's Palace is ſurrounded with a kind of Paliſado of Palm-Trees, ſet in a Square, which is a League in length, and as much in breadth. The Country is very Fruitful, ſo that they have a Harveſt of Millet three times a Year. The Inhabitants are very ſtrong and vigorous. They are extreamly addicted to drink Palm-Wine. They ſeldom go any where without their Arms, which are a long Cut-laſh, with a Bow and Arrows. The Men wear Coats which reach from their Waſte to their Knees, the reſt of their Body being naked. The Women wear ſhort Coats, which only come down to their Knees; and 'tis they who Till the Ground, Sow and Reap, Bake Bread, Dreſs Meat, &c. They never ſpeak to their Husbands but on their Knees; and as ſoon as ever they ſee them, they clap their Hands for a mark of their Joy and Reſpect. The Inheritance doth not deſcend to their Children, but to their Brothers and Siſters; but upon Condition that they muſt take care of the Education of the deceaſed Party's Children, and teach them to get their Living. The chief Trades amongſt them are Weavers, Hatters, Black-Smiths, Poliſhers of Coral and Shells, Maſons and Fiſhers. The Money of Lovango, conſiſts of little ſquare pieces of Linen of Matombe, being a Tree, the Sprouts whereof they beat, as we do Hemp, and make Cloth of them; the leaſt of theſe pieces uſed by them for Money, are about a Span and half broad, and go for a Penny of our Money. The Trade of the Country conſiſts in Ivory, Copper, Tin, Lead and Iron, which the Inhabitants get from the Mines of Sondi, which are at a great diſtance from them; but their greateſt Gain is by ſelling Slaves. Thoſe of Europe are not permitted to Trade here, without firſt preſenting the King and his chief Officers with Gifts. The King is very Potent, and can raiſe a great Army; he hath a vaſt number of Women which he keeps in a Seraglio. The Council of State, chuſeth the moſt aged Princeſs of the Blood Royal, to whom they give the Title of Maconda, that is, Regent of the Kingdom, whom the King is obliged to conſult in all Matters of Importance. The King has two Houſes, where he makes his Meals, in the one whereof he Eats, and Drinks in the other. No body is ſuffered to be in the Room when he eats, and as ſoon as the Server hath placed the Meat upon the Table, he retires and leaves the King all alone; who, as ſoon as he hath done eating, enters the Houſe of Wine, which is the moſt ſumptuous Apartment of his Palace, where the Lords and great Officers of his Court preſent themſelves before him. The King hath two Cup-bearers ſtanding beſides him, whereof the one gives the Signal that the King is about to drink, by ſtriking two Iron Rods together, whereupon all preſent proſtrate themſelves with their faces to the ground, whilſt the other preſents the Cup to the King; and as ſoon as ever he hath drunk, all the Company clap their hands in token of their joy. They have ſo great a Veneration for their Kings, that they never touch the Meat the King leaves upon his Plate, but with a great deal of Reſpect, bury it in a hole made for that purpoſe in the Earth. When the King dies, his Brothers ſucceed him, each in their order. The Royal Obſequies are performed with a great deal of Pomp, and the Body is placed in a Vault, ſitting on a Chair, with many Wax and Wooden Figures about it, repreſenting his Principal Officers. As to their Religion, the Inhabitants of Lovango ſeem to have but an obſcure Notion of God; they alſo worſhip Dæmons, or Spirits, whom they call Moquiſies, and believe that they cauſe Sickneſs and Health, Death and preſervation of Life, Tempeſts, and fair Weather. Which Name of Moquiſie, they alſo give to their King, to intimate his Power, and the Veneration they have for him. In honour to theſe Moquiſies, they ſet up Images, build Temples, and appoint them Ganga's, or Prieſts, which are a kind of Magicians, or, at leaſt, pretend ſo to be, to abuſe the People by their real or ſeeming Enchantments. Circumciſion is obſerved amongſt them, tho' they cannot give a reaſon why they obſerve that Ceremony. Dapper Deſcript. of Africa.

LOUCHALI, or ULUZZALI, a famous Pirate, Native of Calabria in Italy, was made a Slave by the Turks in his Youth, and obtained his Liberty by renouncing Chriſtianity. When the Turks were about to lay Siege to Famagouſta in 1570, after having made themſelves Maſters of Nicoſia in the Iſle of Cyprus, Louchali came and joined their Fleet with his Squadron of 9 Gallies, and 30 other Veſſels; which was a great Encouragement to the Turks, who relied much upon his Valour and Experience, not without Reaſon, for he proved very ſerviceable in carrying of that Place, which was taken in 1571. At the Battel of Lepanto he commanded the Left Wing of the Turkiſh Fleet, which was oppoſed to the Squadron of Doria. He behaved himſelf in this Engagement with great Valour and Conduct, and at the beginning of the Fight took ſome of the Venetian Veſſels; but when afterwards, fluſhed with this Succeſs, he came to aſſiſt the Body of the Mahometan Fleet, Doria, and the Marquis of St. Croix, falling upon his Squadron, obliged him to take his Flight with 30 Galleys, the reſt of his Ships being either taken, ſunk, or burnt. However, becauſe he had made a ſhift to keep ſome of the Venetian Veſſels, which he had taken at the beginning of the Fight, he, with them, enter'd in a triumphant manner into the City of Conſtantinople, where the Grand Seignior highly commending his Valour, declared him Baſhaw of the Sea, in the room of Hali, who was killed at the ſaid Battel of Lepanto. Pope Pius V. propoſed to Philip II. of Spain, to offer this Renegade a City and Sovereignty in his own Country, in the Kingdom of Naples, in caſe he would deliver the Ottoman Fleet to Don John; but the Pope dying ſoon after, put a ſtop to this Deſign. Louchali, deſirous to ſhew himſelf worthy of the high Place of Command conferred upon him, ſuddenly equipped 200 Gallies, and put to Sea with his new Fleet in 1572, the Chriſtian Fleet being at that time about the Iſles of Cephalonia and Zante, with a Deſign to make a Deſcent upon the Morea: But Louchali only ſhewed his Fleet, carefully avoiding an Engagement, becauſe, tho' he had more Gallies than the Chriſtians, yet they were not near ſo well Mann'd ſince the Defeat the Turks had met with at Lepanto. The Fleets lay for a conſiderable Time within Cannon-ſhot of each other, without attempting any thing: But at laſt the Left Wing of the Ottoman Fleet ſet upon the Chriſtians great Ships, in hopes of getting an Advantage againſt them becauſe of their Unweildineſs, but were ſoon forced to retire in Diſorder; and the Chriſtians might have got a very ſignal Victory over them, had they been careful to purſue Louchali, who retired to Metapan, and the Chriſtian Fleet went to Anchor at Cerigo, and from thence ſet Sail to Corfu. Louchali in the mean time was in a very great Perplexity, as ſuppoſing himſelf equally loſt, either by ſtaying where he was, or by giving the Chriſtians Battel; and had already ſome thoughts to ſave himſelf by making his Eſcape into Africa, when he was informed that the Chriſtian Fleet was retreated to Corfu. Whereupon, he joyfully returned to Conſtantinople, where he was highly applauded by the Grand Seignior, for having obliged the Chriſtians to leave Greece, and that without hazarding his Fleet; tho', indeed, Louchali was beholden for all this Advantage to the Miſ-underſtanding that was amongſt the Commanders of the Chriſtian Fleet, which made them neglect ſo fair an Occaſion of utterly defeating the Turks, and reſtoring the poor Greeks to their Liberty. Gratian's Hiſtory of Cyprus.

LOUDUN, Lat. Lauſdunum, or Juliodunum, a City of France, in Poictou, ſix Leagues from Saumur to the South, ten from Poictiers, and eighteen from Amboiſe to the North-Weſt, and is the Capital of a ſmall Territory called Laudunois. *Du Cheſne Ant. des Villes de France. LOVELACE (Sir Richard) Son of Richard Lovelace of Hurley in Berkſhire, Eſq; was, by Letters Patent bearing date 31 Maii, 3 Car. I. advanced to the Degree and Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Lovelace of Hurley; which Place had heretofore been a Religious Houſe of Benedictine Monks, and a Cell to Weſtminſter-Abbey. He married to his firſt Wife Katharine, Daughter of George Hill, Widow of William Hide of Kingſton Liſle in Berkſhire; and to his ſecond Wife, Margaret, the ſole Daughter and Heireſs to William Dodſworth, Citizen of London, by whom he had Iſſue two Sons, John and Francis, and two Daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret. He died in 1634, and was ſucceeded by John, his Son and Heir; who took to Wife the Lady Anne, Daughter of Thomas Earl of Cleveland; and departing this Life at Woodſtock-Mannor in Oxfordſhire, in 1670, was buried at Hurley, before-ſpecified, leaving Iſſue John, his only ſurviving Son, who ſucceeded him in his Honour, and three Daughters; Anne, who died unmarried; Margaret, married to Sir William Noel of Kirkby-Malory in Leiceſterſhire, Baronet; and Dorothy, to Henry Drax, a Merchant in Barbadoes, Son of Sir James Drax, Knight. Which John took to Wife Martha, one of the Daughters and Co-Heirs to Sir Edmond Pye of Bradenham in Buckinghamſhire, Baronet; by whom he hath had ſeveral Children. He was amongſt the firſt who appeared for the Prince of Orange upon his Deſcent on England; and having about ſixty Men and Horſe with him, was ſurprized in his Inn at Cirenceſter, by ſome of the Militia: The Officer who commanded them was killed, as was alſo one of my Lord's Party, and himſelf taken Priſoner after a ſtout Reſiſtance, but ſet at liberty not long after, by ſome others who roſe for the Prince; and, upon whoſe coming to the Crown, he was made Captain to the Band of Penſioners; in which Station he continued to his Death. He left no Iſſue Male behind him, but one only Daughter married to Sir Henry Johnſon, yet the Honour did not dye, but is continued ſtill by one of the Name and Family.

LOUGHBOROUGH, an handſome, pleaſant Market-Town in Weſt Goſcote-Hundred in Leiceſterſhire, upon the Banks of the River Stowre, over which it has a Bridge, near the Foreſt of Sherwood, amongſt fertile Meadows.

LOUGHLOWMONT, a Lake at the Foot of the Mountains of Grandsbain in Scotland, twenty-four Miles long, and eight broad. It contains about twenty-four Iſlands, and abounds with Fiſh, particularly one ſort, called Pollacks, which have no Fins, and are very pleaſant to eat. It alſo gives Source to the River Leven. It has a ſtrong Caſtle in one of its Iſlands: And is moreover noted for a Floating Iſland, and raging continually with Waves, even in the calmeſt Weather.

LOUTH, Lat. Lutum, or Lautha, a ſmall Town in the Province of Leinſter, in the County of Louth, upon a River of the ſame Name, between Dundalk to the North, and Ardrac to the South, 7 Miles from either. The County of Louth is bounded on the Eaſt by the Iriſh Sea, on the North by Downe, on the Weſt by Ardmagh and Monaghan, and on the South by Fingal in Leinſter.

LOUVAIN, Lat. Lovanium; and by the Inhabitants, Loeven; a great City of Brabant, ſituate upon the River Dele, a little above, where it falls into the Demer, which runs into the Schelde at Rupelmondel; four Miles from Mechelen to the South Eaſt, eight from Namur to the North, and the ſame diſtance from Antwerp to the South Eaſt, and about three from Bruxels. The City is Famous for its Univerſity, Founded in 1426, by John IV. Duke of Brabant, and endowed with great Privileges by Pope Martin V. and Eugenius IV. and hath twenty Colleges, Founded by ſeveral Perſons, for the promoting of Learning. The moſt Famous are, The College of the three Languages, Lilium, Caſtrum, Porcus, Falco, &c. beſides the Schools, which are very magnificent. This City is four Miles in compaſs within the Walls, ſeated in a very fruitful Soil; and has ſo gentle and pleaſant an Air, that Wine is made both within the Walls, and without. It is ſo very ancient, that it is ſuppoſed to have been built by one Lupus, before the Time of Julius Caſar. There are within the Walls of this City large Meadows, beautiful Vineyards, and pleaſant Gardens and Orchards; which ſhews, that it is not over-ſtocked with Inhabitants. It is well Fortified, and hath many fair Churches, the chief whereof is, the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, beſides a great Number of Monaſteries. The Univerſity of Louvain hath oft had Conteſts with the Jeſuites; the greateſt was that which occaſioned its Cenſure in 1587, of the Doctrine of theſe Fathers concerning Grace. An Account whereof may be ſeen in a Treatiſe, Entituled, An Hiſtorical Apology for the Cenſures of Louvain and Doway, printed in 1688, and in the Hiſtory of the Controverſies about Grace, printed at Amſterdam in 1689.

The LOUVRE, the French King's Palace in the City of Paris, which was the ordinary Reſidence of their Kings, from Lewis XII. till Lewis XIV. who hath choſen Verſailles for his moſt common Abode. This Building was begun by Philip Auguſtus, in 1214, with Deſign to make it his Treaſury, and his Royal Priſon for Priſoners of Note. Francis I. began to build that part of this Fabrick which is called The Old Louvre, which, he leaving imperfect, it was continued by Henry II. Henry III. began that fair and large Gallery along the River, which joins the Louvre to the Tuilleries, which was finiſhed by Henry IV. and reaches from the King's Chamber to the little Garden of the Louvre towards the River. Lewis XIII. cauſed the great Pavillion to be built, which is over the Gate. Lewis XIV. ſent for the moſt able Architects and Work-men of Europe, to give it its laſt Perfection. The Court that is in the midſt is a perfect Square, whereof three Sides are already raiſed, but not quite finiſhed. The Work is adorned with three Rows of Pillars, Corinthian and Compoſit: And that which makes it very ſightly is, that the top of the Building is made in manner of a Terraſe-Walk. The Facade is ſupported by Corinthian Pillars, ſtanding out from the Work: And the Fronton conſiſts only of two Stones of a wonderful Bigneſs, being each 50 Foot in length. The King's Library is to be brought hither, which conſiſts of 60000 Volumes; together with his Cabinet, furniſhed with a vaſt number of Rarities and Antiquities, which, in the mean time, are kept in a private Houſe in the Vivian-Street. The Royal Printing-Houſe is in the Gallery: And the French Academy hath alſo an Apartment in the Louvre, where they keep their Aſſemblies. Le Maire Paris Ancient & Noveau.

LOWE, Eaſt and Weſt, two Market and Borough-Towns in Cornwal, in the Weſt-Hundred, both upon the South Sea, and both having the Election of two Burgeſſes for the Parliament. Betwixt both the Towns is a fair Stone-Bridge, ſuſtained by many Arches. Both 196 Miles from London.

It is an Imperial City, and the Capital of all the Hans-Towns upon the River Drave, in the Territory of Wagria, of which it is the chief City. It was at firſt a ſmall Country-Town, built by Adolph Earl of Holſtein, in the Time of the Emperor Conrade III. In 1209, the Danes being beaten out of it, it was made a free Imperial City by Frederick II. It is ſeated ſcarce two German Miles from the Baltick-Sea, upon which it hath a great and ſafe Harbour, and is in the Limits of the Dukedoms of Mechelenburg and Lawenburg, ten German Miles from Hamburg to the Eaſt, and as many from Wiſmar to the Weſt. This City embraced the Lutheran Part of the Reformation in 1561, and before that, got their Privileges confirmed at Augsburg, by the Emperor Charles V. by means of a Gift of one hundred thouſand Crowns. At preſent, Lubeck is a City of vaſt Trade, governed by way of a Commonwealth, and entred into cloſe Alliance with the States of Holland, who comprized them in the Seventy Second Article of the Treaty of Munſter in 1648. The River Drave, which, after it hath, like a Pool, encompaſſed the City, traverſeth the midſt of it, and carries large Veſſels to Travemund, which is the Harbour. The City is very fair, adorned with neat and large Streets, fine Places, and magnificent Buildings. Amongſt the Churches, the moſt beautiful and ſumptuous are, the Cathedral of St. John, the Collegiate-Church of our Lady, with thoſe of St. James, and St. Peter. The Biſhop is a Proteſtant; and the Biſhoprick is ſettled in Appennage, to the younger Sons of the Houſe of Holſtein Gottorp, the Chapter having only a Titular Election leſt to them. The Biſhops are called Dukes of Oytin, or Eutin, from a ſmall Town (four German Miles and an half from Lubeck to the North) where they, for the moſt part, have their Reſidence; which was given theſe Biſhops by Adolph Earl of Holſtein, before the See was removed from Oldenburg to Lubeck. There are twelve Hereditary Canons belonging to this Biſhoprick. In this Town of Oytin, there was a Peace concluded between the Emperor and the King of Denmark, in 1629. Long. 32. 45. The Air of them is very temperate, and the Soil produceth Maiz in abundance. They are very full of Birds, but more eſpecially of Pigeons.

LUCANIA, an ancient Province of Italy, which made a part of Great Greece. Theſe people deſcended from the Bruttii; or, as Pliny, from the Samnites, who, under the conduct of a Captain called Lucas, ſettled themſelves along the Coaſts of either Sea, before the Apulii, Calabri, Herpii and Picentini. Their Country reacheth on one ſide to the River Ldine, which runs into the Mediterranean, and took up that part which is now called the Baſilicata, with great part of the Hither Principate; the other part of Lucania, being a part of the Modern Calabria. The Romans waged War a long time againſt the Lucanians. Tit. Liv. Juſtin, Oroſius, &c. Cluver. in Ital. Deſcript.

LUCANUS, a Ring-leader of thoſe Hereticks, who, in the IId Century, ſpread the Errors of Cerdon and Mercian. Tertullian makes mention of him in his Book of Preſcriptions, cap. 5. and in his Book of the Reſurrection of the Body, cap. 2. where he accuſeth him of having entertained erroneous Sentiments concerning the Soul. St. Epiphanius tells us, That this Heretick diſapproved Marriage. Philaſtrius and Joannes Damaſcenus alſo make mention of him, as well as Baronius, under An. 146.

LUCANUS (Marcus Annæus) a Poet born at Corduba in Spain, Novemb. 3. about A. C. 39. He was the Son of Annæus Mela, Brother of Seneca, and of Acilia, the Daughter of Lucanus, a very famous Orator. His Maſters were, Palæmon, Virginius and Cornutus; the firſt of whom was a noted Grammarian, and the two other famous for the Belles Lettres, and Philoſophy. He made good uſe of their inſtructions: And when he was ſcarcely fourteen years of Age, he declaimed with applauſe, both in Greek and Latin. His Wit and Parts ſoon ſpread his Fame through Rome, where he was Educated with Perſius, the Author of the Satyrs, and ſome others. Nero, charmed with his wit, conferred the offices of Augur and Quæſtor upon him, before his Age did admit of it; and, upon ſeveral Occaſions, beſtowed upon him very ſignal Tokens of his Favour and Eſteem. He married Polla Argentaria, a Lady as conſiderable for her Learning and Birth, as ſhe was for Beauty; as Statius, Martial, and Sidonius Apollinarius inform us. Nero could not endure to ſee the Poetick Prize adjudged to Lucan, in Pompey's Theatre, for a Poem of Orpheus, which he had compoſed ex tempore; and ſpoke notwithſtanding Nero's Prohibition, who had a deſign to have repeated one of his own upon Niobe: Whereupon, Nero taking occaſion to diſparage Lucan's Verſes; he was ſo offended at it, that he engaged himſelf in Piſo's Conſpiracy; which being diſcovered, Lucan, who accuſed his Mother Attilia, had his Veins cut, as his Uncle Seneca had. He writ divers Poems; as, Of the Deſcent of Orpheus to Hell. Of the burning of Rome. In praiſe of his wife Polla. Saturnalia. Ten Books of Sylvæ. Epiſtles. An Oration againſt Octavius Sagitta, (whom he cauſed to be ſentenced to death for having killed Pontia) &c. But of all theſe, we have none left at preſent, but his great Poem of the Civil Wars. Lucan died in the tenth year of the Empire of Nero, 65 from the Birth of Chriſt.

St. LUCAS, or St. LUKE, the Evangeliſt, was of the City of Antioch, which is the Metropolis of Syria. St. Paul acquaints us, that he was a Phyſician. Beſides his Goſpel, he writ the Acts of the Apoſtles, which contain the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory of 29 or 30 years; from A. C. 33. till St. Paul's being a Priſoner at Rome the firſt time, which was in 63. Which makes it probable, that St. Luke writ that Book at Rome, at the ſame time. It is a thing queſtioned amongſt the Fathers whether he dyed a Martyr, or no. St. Jerom ſaith, that he was never married, and lived till he was 84 years of Age. Euſebius makes mention of him in his Chronicle and Hiſtory. Dr. Cave adds, That ſeveral others write, that he ſtudied not only at Antioch, then very famous for its learned Men, but in all the Schools both of Greece and Egypt; whereby he became accompliſhed in all Parts of Learning, and Humane Sciences; but particularly applied himſelf to Phyſick. And, beſides his Abilities in this profeſſion, he is ſaid to have been very ſkilful in Painting: And there are no leſs than three or four ſeveral pieces ſtill in Being, pretended to have been drawn by him. The Ancients are not well agreed, either about the Time or Manner of his Death; ſome affirming him to die in Egypt; others in Greece; the Roman Martyrology, in Bithynia; Dorotheus, at Epheſus: Some make him die a violent, others a natural Death. Nicephorus gives this particular Account; That coming into Greece, he ſucceſsfully preached, and baptized many Converts into the Chriſtian Faith, till a party of Infidels making head againſt him, drew him to Execution; and in want of a Croſs, whereon to diſpatch him, preſently hanged him upon an Olive-Tree, in the 80th or 84th year of his Age. Kirſtenius, from an ancient Arabick writer, makes him to have ſuffered Martyrdom at Rome; which he thinks might probably be after St. Paul's firſt Impriſonment there, and Departure thence, when St. Luke, being left behind him, as his Deputy, to ſupply his place, was ſhortly after put to Death. The reaſon, ſays he, why he no longer continued his Hiſtory of the Apoſtles Acts; which ſurely he would have done, had he lived any conſiderable Time after St. Paul's Departure. His Body afterwards, by the Command of Conſtantine, or his Son Conſtantius, was ſolemnly removed to Conſtantinople, and buried in the great Church, built to the Memory of the Apoſtles. For his Goſpel, St. Jerom ſuppoſes it to have been written in Achaia, during his Travels with St. Paul in thoſe Parts, whoſe Help he is generally ſaid to have made uſe of in the compoſing of it; nor does it in the leaſt detract from the Authority of his Relations, that he himſelf was not preſent at the doing of them, ſince he has delivered nothing in his whole Hiſtory, but what he had immediately received from perſons preſent at, and concerned in the Things which he has left us upon Record. The occaſion of his writing it is thought to have been partly to prevent thoſe falſe and fabulous Relations which even then began to be obtruded upon the world, and partly to ſupply what ſeemed wanting in the two Evangeliſts that wrote before him. His Hiſtory of the Apoſtolick Acts was written, no doubt, at Rome, at the end of St. Paul's two years impriſonment there; with which he concludes his Story. It contains the Actions, and ſometimes the Sufferings of ſome principal Apoſtles, eſpecially St. Paul. In both theſe Books his way of Writing is exact and accurate, his Stile polite and elegant, ſublime and lofty, and yet clear and perſpicuous, flowing with an eaſy and natural Grace and Sweetneſs, admirably accommodate to an Hiſtorical Deſign; all along expreſſing himſelf in a Vein of purer Greek than is to be found in the other Writers of the holy Story; though his Stile is ſometimes allayed with a Tang of the Syriack and Hebrew Dialect; in ſhort, As an Hiſtorian, he was faithful in his Relations, elegant in his Writings: As a miniſter, careful and diligent for the good of Souls: As a Chriſtian, devout and pious; and who crowned all the reſt with the laying down his Life for the teſtimony of that Goſpel which he had both preached and publiſhed to the World.

LUCAS, (Sir John) a perſon eminently accompliſhed with Learning, and well verſed in ſundry Languages, was, for his great Service to King Charles I. advanced by him in the 20th year of his Reign, to the Degree of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Lucas of Shenfield in Eſſex; with Limitation of that Dignity, for lack of Iſſue Male, unto Sir Charles Lucas, Knight, his younger Brother, and to the Heirs Male of his Body; with Remainder to Sir Thomas Lucas, Knight, his other Brother, and the Heirs Male of his Body. This John Lord Lucas married Ann, Daughter to Sir Chriſtopher Nevill of Newton St. Lo in Somerſetſhire, Knight of the Bath; by whom he had Iſſue one ſole Daughter, called Mary, married to Anthony Earl of Kent; on whoſe behalf, and conſidering he had no Iſſue Male, and that Sir Charles Lucas, Knight his valiant Brother, had been put to death upon the Loſs of Colcheſter, leaving no Iſſue, he procured on the behalf of his ſaid Daughter and her Deſcendants, certain Letters Patent, bearing Date 7 Maii, 15 Car. II. whereby the Dignity and Title of Baroneſs Lucas of Crudwell in Wiltſhire was conferred upon her; and of Baron Lucas of the ſame place, upon the Heirs Male of her Body. As alſo, that the Sons and Heirs, deſcended from her, or her Succeſſors, Earls of Kent, ſhould bear the Title of Lord Lucas of Crudwell; and in default of Iſſue Male, that the ſaid Title ſhould not be ſuſpended, but enjoyed by ſuch of the Daughters and Co-heirs, if any ſhall be, as other indiviſible Inheritances by the Common Law of this Realm are uſually poſſeſſed: And departing this Life, An. 1670. was buried with his Anceſtors at Colcheſter in Eſſex. Dying thus without Iſſue Male, the Title of Lord Lucas of Shenfield, by virtue of the Limitation above expreſſed, devolved to Charles, the Son and Heir of the ſaid Sir Thomas Lucas, Knight. Which Charles hath married Penelope, one of the Daughters to Francis late Earl of Scarſdale. Dugdale's Baronage.

LUCAS of Leyden, a noted Painter and Graver of Leyden in Holland, who took his Sir-name from the place where he was born. He was ſo ſtrangely addicted to his Work, that he grudged to allow himſelf any time to ſleep at Nights; ſo that his Mother was fain to come and take away his Candle, to make him leave his Work. and betake himſelf to reſt. He engraved and publiſhed ſome Pieces when he was but nine years of Age. He could alſo Paint upon Glaſs, and Etch. Albert Durez, a great Graver of thoſe Times, having ſeen of his Pieces, took a Journey to Leyden, on purpoſe to be acquainted with him. In 1525. he reſolved to take a Journey throughout all the Low-Countries, and viſit the moſt famous Painters that he could meet with. Coming to Middleburg, he met there with one of his Profeſſion, who was near his Equal in Art, and other Advantages; who ſeeming to be jealous of him, Lucas conceited he gave him ſomething to poyſon him; which, whether real or no, yet ſo wrought upon Lucas, that he led a languiſhing Life for five or ſix years after, and died in 1532, being 39 years of age. Meurſius Athen. Batav. Lib. I. Felibien.

LUCAS (Francis) born at Bruges, took his Doctor's Degree at Louvain, and was Dean of the Church of St. Omer. He was a Perſon much eſteem'd for his Learning, and particularly for being a great Orientaliſt, which Languages he Learned from the beſt Maſters of his time. He died in 1619. His Works are, Notationes in Bibl. Sacr. Itinerarium Jeſu Chriſti ex IV. Evang. Comment in Evang. Tom. IV. Apollogia pro Chaldaico Paraphraſt. Nota ad varias Lectiones in Evangelio, Lib. II. &c. Father Simon gives him a good Character in his Critical Hiſtory of the Verſions of the New Teſtament. Valer. Andreas Bibl. Belg. Miraus de ſcript. ſac. XVII. &c.

LUCCA, or LUCA, a City and Commonwealth of Italy, in the Dukedom of Florence, and a Biſhop's See, immediately ſubject to the Pope. It is very ſtrongly Fortified with 11 Baſtions, and very populous; built by the Thuſci, An. Mun. 3236. 39 Years after Rome, in the Times of Sennacherib, and Hezekiah Kings of Judah. Charles IV. left this City under the Government of a French Cardinal, who ſet them at liberty; but they were ſoon after deprived of it, by one of their own Country-men Paulus Guiniſius, who did not hold it long. In 1390, it was taken by Galeatius, Duke of Milan, but in 1430, they again recovered their liberty, which they have ſince carefully preſerved, and to that purpoſe, in 1626, made the preſent Fortifications. This Republick is under the Emperor's Protection. Lucca is ſituated in the midſt of a great Plain, near to the River Serchio, ſurrounded with pleaſant Hills; the Ramparts of the City are ſhaded with great Walks of Poplar-Trees, for the divertiſement of the Inhabitants, who are rich and wealthy, by the great Trade they drive with Silks, in the Manufactury whereof they are very ingenious and induſtrious, wherefore alſo this City is called Lucca l'Induſtrioſa. The Dominions belonging to this State are ſmall, not above 30 Miles long, and 25 broad, lying in a manner ſurrounded with the Territories of the Great Duke, bordering in ſome part on the Dutchies of Modena and Maſſa. The Soil is very Fruitful of Wine, Oil and Cheſnuts, but not ſo productive of Corn; the Country-People live on Millet and Cheſnuts. The Inhabitants have improved every Inch of it to the utmoſt, by which they have made it very pleaſant. The Republick of Lucca is Governed by a Chief Magiſtrate, whom they call a Gonfalonier, his Council is compoſed of 26 Citizens. His Habit of Ceremony is a Crimſon Velvet Gown, or Damask of the ſame colour, with a Cap of the ſame. He has his Reſidence in the Palace, as long as he is in Office, in the Court whereof he hath a Guard of 100 Soldiers. The City ſtands 10 Miles from Piſa to the North, 13 from the Sea to the Eaſt, and 45 from Florence to the Weſt. Long. 33. 16. Lat. 42. 50. This City is thought able to raiſe 15000 Foot, and 3000 Horſe

LUCERA, or LUCERIA, a City of Italy, in the Capitanata, a Province of the Kingdom of Naples, being a Biſhops See, under the Archbiſhop of Benevento; ten Miles from St. Severo to the South, ſeven from Troja to the North, 37 from Siponto to the Weſt, and 30 from Benevento to the North-Eaſt. Ptolemy makes mention of a Luceria in Gallia Ciſalpina, which is Luzara, on the River Po.

LUCERES, The Name of the Third Tribe or Diviſion of the people of Rome, in the time of Romulus, when all the Inhabitants of that City were divided into three Tribes; whereof, the Firſt was the Tribe of Romulus, who were called Ramnenſes; the Second was that whereof Tatius King of the Sabines was Chief, who were called Tatienſes; and thoſe of the Third were called Luceres, from Lucerus their Leader, who came, with a great number of People he had picked up, to Rome, to enjoy the Privileges and Franchiſes Romulus had promiſed to all that would come and inhabit his new City.

LUCERNE, Lat. Luceria, or Lucerna, by the Inhabitants called Lutzern, a City and Canton of Switzerland. The City ſtands in Argow, on the Lake of Lucerne, where the River Ruſs flows out of it, and divides this City in the midſt, being covered with three Bridges; ſix German miles from Berne to the Eaſt, and ſix from Altorf to the South-weſt. This was a free Imperial City till 1332. when it was united with the Swiſs-Cantons. The Marquiſs de la Parelle recovered it out of the hands of the French, Aug. 9. 1690. The Lake of Lucerne, called by the Germans, Lucernerzee, is extended twenty four Miles from Eaſt to Weſt, and is oft called the Waldtſtattenzee, from the four Cities which encompaſs it, viz. Altorf, Swiſs, Stantz, and Lucerne. The Canton of Lucerne is the Third of the Twelve Swiſs-Cantons, and is Roman-Catholick; being bounded N. W. S. and E. by the Cantons of Zurich, Swiſs and Stantz. The Popes Nuncio has his ordinary Reſidence at the City of Lucerne. Cluver. deſcript. Germ. Simler. & Plantin. Hiſt. of Switzerland.

LUCIANUS, a Prieſt of Antioch, and Martyr, who having eſcaped the Heat of Diocleſian's and Maximian's Perſecution, as it began to ſlacken, was taken by the Treachery of a Sabellian Prieſt, called Pancratius. The Infidels carried him to Nicomedia; and upon the Way, meeting with ſome Soldiers who, out of weakneſs, had denied the Faith, he made them aſhamed of their Frailty; and being encouraged by him, they, by a glorious Death, made amends for the Sin they had committed. Being come to Nicomedia, he was preſented to Maximianus Galerius, where, inſtead of Deteſting the Chriſtian Religion, as he was urged to do, he made an excellent Apology for it, in preſence of the Prefect of the City, and of the Emperor Maximianus too, who had hid himſelf in the Room: Whereupon, he was caſt into Priſon, and laid all along upon the Fragments of earthen Pots, with his Hands and Feet ſtretched out, and tied faſt, ſo that he could not ſtir himſelf. In this condition they brought him nothing but Meat offered to Idols; and he nobly reſolved, rather to die with hunger, than to preſerve his Life by Meats which might make it ſuſpected that he was fallen into Idolatry. The Chriſtians of the Place, with many others that were come from Antioch, gave him frequent Viſits; and the Feaſt of Epiphany being near, he told them that he was reſolved to celebrate it with them, for that the day after he ſhould leave the World, and go to God: But being ſo tied that he could not ſtir himſelf, he bad them lay the Symbols on his Breaſt; and, after having conſecrated them, they reached to him the Communion, and afterwards all the Aſſiſtants participated of the ſame. He died the next day, according as he had foretold it, A. C. 311. or 312. His Body was caſt into the Sea, with a Stone tied to it; but a Dolphin, as 'tis ſaid, brought it up to the Shoar again. This worthy Martyr had done great Service to the Church; for, finding that the Copies of the Septuagint were full of faults, he reviewed the ſame with great Care; which, being ſo reviſed by him, were made uſe of by all the Churches between Antioch and Conſtantinople, as St. Jerom aſſures us. Some accuſe him of having been ſomewhat inclined toward Arianiſm; but St. Athanaſius and St. Denys of Alexandria juſtify him as to that particular. St. Jerom de Script. & Epiſt. 207. ad Chron. Euſebius, lib. 8. & 9. St. Athanaſius in Synopſ. Metaphraſt. ad 7 Januarii. Baron. A. C. 311. Godeau Hiſt. Eccleſ. &c. Simon Hiſt. Crit. Vet. Teſtam. lib. 2.

LUCIANUS, a Carthaginian Prieſt and Martyr, who, in 250. gave a great deal of trouble to his Ordinary St. Cyprian, by granting Communion indifferently to all thoſe who had fallen during the time of Perſecution, if they could give a good Account of what they had done after their Fall. There is ſtill a Letter of his to be ſeen, amongſt thoſe of St. Cyprian, wherein he gives an Account of that Indulgence of the Martyrs of Carthage, and grants the Privileges of Communion to two Roman Ladies. It is the XXIId. Letter amongſt thoſe of St. Cyprian's, of the Oxford Edition.

LUCIANUS, a Greek Author of Samoſata, the Capital of Comagene. He was but of mean birth: His Father put him to a Trade, but having no great Stomach to it, he betook himſelf afterwards to Study. He firſt embraced the Profeſſion of an Advocate; but being diſtaſted with the wranglings of the Bar, he applied himſelf to Philoſophy, though he made no good uſe of it. He firſt ſettled himſelf at Antioch, and from thence paſſed into Ionia and Greece; and from thence travelling into Gaul and Italy, he returned into his own Country through Macedonia. He lived Ninety years, from the Reign of Trajan, till after that of Marcus Aurelius, under whom he was in great Eſteem. He was a Perſon of great Wit, but no Religion; mocking at all, both Chriſtian and Pagan. 'Tis ſaid, that he was once a Chriſtian, but that the Diſſoluteneſs of Manners ſoon overturned his Faith. Suidas tells us, that he was torn to pieces by Dogs. St. Jerom in Catal. Phot. Cod. 128. Suidas. Voſſius de Rhet. Antiq. Cap. 12. De Hiſt. Græc. lib. 2. cap. 15. Ablancourt. His Dialogues, &c. are printed in Greek and Latin in Folio, at Paris.

LUCIDUS, a Prieſt, who lived in the Vth Century. He maintained ſome Propoſitions concerning Predeſtination, which were condemned in the Council of Arles, in 475. This Lucidus, as it ſeems, was of St. Auſtin's Opinion: And Fauſtus of Riez, and ſome others, who made him retract his Opinions, were Semi-Pelagians. Uſher Antiq. Britan. cap. 13. & Norris Hiſt. Pelag. lib. 2. cap. 15.

LUCIDUS (Joannes) a famous Mathematician, who in the VIth Century was the Author of the following Treatiſes; De Emendatione Temporum. De vero die Paſſionis Chriſti. Epitome Emendationis Calendarii Romani. Canones in perpetuam Temporum Tabulam, &c.

LUCIFER, the Name of the firſt rebellious Angel, who, for his Pride, was caſt headlong from Heaven to Hell, with the third Part of the Angels; who, ſince that, tempt Men to Sin, and are called Devils.

LUCIFER, according to the Poets, is the Son of Jupiter and Aurora; and, according to Aſtronomers, the bright Planet Venus, which goes before the Sun in the Morning, and appears at Day-break; and in the Evening follows the Sun, and is then called Heſperus, or Evening-Star.

LUCIFER, Biſhop of Cagliari, the Metropolis of Sardinia and the neighbouring Iſles, lived in the IVth Century. He was very famous in the Church for his great Contempt of the World, his Love to the Holy Scripture, for the Purity of his Life, for the Conſtancy of his Faith, for the abundance of Divine Grace that did ſhine in all his Actions. Theſe are the commendations beſtowed upon him by two Prieſts of his Party, and confirmed by St. Athanaſius. He preſented himſelf to Pope Liberius, to go and perſwade the Emperor Conſtantius to convene a Council, in order to Examine and Decide the Queſtions of that time, which, when the Pope had approved of, he charged himſelf with the Commiſſion, An. Ch. 354, and procured the calling of a Council at Milan, which was celebrated in 355, where he himſelf was baniſhed, together with the reſt of the Orthodox Prelates, who defended St. Athanaſius. Lucifer, being of a vehement and undaunted Spirit, the Emperor was afraid of him, and often changed his place of Baniſhment; for he was firſt ſent to Eleutheropolis in Palæſtine, then to Germanicia, and thence to Thebais, where he was at the time when the Emperor Conſtantius died; he was recalled from his Baniſhment under Julian, in 361, when coming to Antioch, where the Church was extreamly divided, between the Followers of Euzoius the Arian, of Meletius, and Euſtathius, Orthodox Biſhops; to put an end to this Schiſm, he Ordained Paulinus, the Prieſt, Biſhop, who, tho' a Man of great Merit, yet both the Orthodox Parties could never agree in the approving of him. Euſebius of Verceil, whom the Council of Alexandria had ſent to put an end to this Schiſm, was very much troubled, to ſee things were become deiperate by the Ordination of Paulinus, whom he could not approve of; whereupon Lucifer, being of an inflexible Spirit, abſolutely broke off Communion with him, and retired to Sardinia, where he perſiſted, to his Death, in his Separation from the Communion with the fallen Prelates, and, by this means, gave birth to a Schiſm, which cauſed a great deal of Miſchief to the Church. During his Exile, he writ two Books, which are the moſt ſharp and invective of all the ancient Writings we have. He ſent them to Conſtantius the Emperor, againſt whom they were writ, who made Florentius, the Maſter of his Palace, to write to him, to know whether he were the Author of them, whoſe Letter, with Lucifer's Anſwer, we ſtill have; who, not only owns it to be his, but immediately publiſhed another, more ſharp than the foregoing. Theſe Works of his were printed at Paris, by the care of John du Tillet, Biſhop of Meaux, in this Order, Ad Conſtantium Imperatorem lib. 2. De Regibus Apoſtaticis. De non Conveniendo cum Hæreticis. De non parcendo delinquentibus in Deum. Quod moriendum ſit pro filio Dei. Epiſtola ad Florentium. To which are added, Florentius his Anſwer, three Epiſtles of St. Athanaſius, and one of Pope Liberius.

LUCIFERIANS, a Name given to thoſe who perſiſted in the Schiſm of Lucifer of Cagliari. St. Auſtin writes, that he had read that they held the Soul's Propagation from the Parents, but could not aſſure the truth of it, only that there went ſuch a Report of them. St. Jerom publiſhed a Treatiſe on purpoſe to confute them. It is not well known how long this Schiſm laſted, only that it continued till the end of the Empire of Theodoſius the Great, after whoſe time, Authors make little or no mention of them. St. Auguſt. de Hæreſ. cap. 81. *St. Ambroſ. C. LUCILIUS, a Roman Gentleman, born at Sueſſa in the Country of the Arunci, was great Uncle, by the Mother's ſide, to Pompey the Great. He was the firſt that ever writ Satyrs in Verſe amongſt the Romans, as Quinctilian and Pliny aſſure us. He left behind him 30 Books of this kind of Writing, of which only ſome Fragments remain, which Franciſcus Douza, the Son of Janus, hath written Notes upon. There was alſo a Comedy, and Hymns, which are ſuppoſed to be of his Writing, but they are loſt. Lucilius died at Naples, Aged 46, in the CLXIXth Olympiad, An. Rom. 651. Horace calls Lucilius the Author of a ſort of Poetry unknown to the Greeks. Græcis intacti Carminis Author, becauſe the Roman Satyr, as practiſ'd in the Time of Lucilius, was not in uſe among the Greeks. Velleius Paterc. lib. 2. *Juvenal. LUCILLA, Mother of Marcus Aurelius the Emperor; alſo the Daughter of the ſame Emperor, who gave her in Marriage to Lucius Ælius Verus, after having aſſociated him in the Empire. Alſo a Siſter of the Emperor Commodus, who raviſhed her, and after baniſhed her to the Iſland of Capreæ, where he cauſed her to be put to death, as Dio and Lampridius inform us.

LUCILLA, a Spaniſh Lady, who lived in Africa, in 306. The Schiſmaticks of Carthage drew her over to their Party, to the end, that with the help of her Riches, they might oppoſe the lawful Prelate Cecilianus, who had reproved Lucilla, for that before her going to the Communion, ſhe had kiſſed the Bones of a Martyr; whereupon being incenſed at this Reproof, ſhe, in revenge, aſſiſted the Schiſmaticks with her Purſe and Quality. Baron. A. M. 306.

LUCINA, a Goddeſs whom the Romans honoured, who preſided over Women's Travail, and bringing forth of Children. Some take her to be Diana, others Juno. The Name Lucina was given her, becauſe ſhe brought Children to light, from the Latin Word Lux. Alſo a Noble Roman Lady, who was converted to the Chriſtian Faith by her Husband Pinianus. Pope Marcellus Conſecrated her Houſe to be a Church; ſhe was afterwards proſcribed by Maxentius the Uſurper. The Acts of the Martyrs often make mention of Lucina, a holy Widow, and ſome others, who took care to ſeek for the Bodies of the Martyrs, in order to bury them.

LUCIUS I. of that Name, Pope, was a Roman by Nation, and ſucceeded Cornelius in 253, and ſoon after was baniſhed from his Flock, but did not continue long ſo, for notwithſtanding the heat of the Perſecution, he returned to the City, and reſiſting the Violence of the Emperors Gallus and Voluſienus. He was put to death March 4. 255. Amongſt other Decrees of his making, this was one, that a Biſhop ſhould be always accompanied with two Prieſts, and three Deacons, that he might always have unexceptionable Vouchers of his Innocence about him. St. Cyprian attributes ſeveral Letters to him, of which we have only one left in the firſt Volume of the Councils. St. Cyprian Epiſt. 59. Euſeb. in Chron. & Hiſt. Baron. in Annal. Biſhop Pearſon in Annal. Cyprian.

LUCIUS II. before called Gerard of Caccianimici, Library-keeper and Chancellor of the Church, was born at Bononia. He was made Cardinal by Pope Honorius II. in 1125, and ſucceeded Cœleſtine II. March 9. 1144, and Governed the Church of Rome 11 Months, and 14 Days. He was much troubled by the Romans, that were the Followers of Arnoldus of Breſcia, and died at Rome, in the Monaſtery of St. Gregory, Feb. 25. 1145. Several Letters are attributed to him, which we have in the Collection of Councils. Platina adds, That by Letters and Meſſengers, he animated all Chriſtrian Princes, to take the Croſs and Banner of Chriſt againſt the Saracens, and prevailed with Conrade of Schwaben, who had ſucceeded Lotharius in the Empire, to engage in the Expedition which became ſucceſsleſs, by the Treachery of Emanuel the Eleventh, Emperor of Conſtantinople, who over-perſwaded Conrade to take his Journey ſtraight to Iconium, and lay Siege to it, a City that was then well Fortified by Art and Nature; aſſuring him, at the ſame time, that he would ſupply his Army with whatever was neceſſary; but inſtead of performing this, mixed Lime with the Meal that their Bread was made of, which killed ſo many of the Soldiers, that they were forced to raiſe the Siege.

LUCIUS III. born at Lucca, of a Noble Family, his Name being Humbaldo Allucingoli. He was a Canon of Lucca, and Pope Innocent II. made him Cardinal in 1142. Adrian IV. ſent him Legate to Sicily, where, with great Zeal, he maintained the Intereſts of the Church of Rome. Alexander III. ſent him Legate to Frederick Barbaroſſa, whom he brought to a Peace, the management of which Affair gained him much Credit, and raiſed him to the See of Rome, after the death of Alexander III. Auguſt 29. 1181. The Romans rebelled againſt him, becauſe he oppoſed himſelf to ſome Cuſtoms, which his Predeceſſors had ſuffered to be introduced, whereupon he was forced to retire to Verona; but the Princes of Italy forced the Romans to ſubmit themſelves to the Pope. He conteſted with the Emperor Frederick, about ſome Rights he pretended to, in prejudice of the Church, and endeavoured to League the Chriſtian Princes againſt the Infidels, but death prevented him from bringing that Enterprize to an Iſſue, on November 25. 1185, having held the See four Years, two Months, and eighteen Days. He writ ſeveral Letters.

LUCIUS, an Arian, who, by ſome of his Sect, was put into the See of Alexandria in Athanaſius his Time, in 362, after the death of George, who was alſo an Arian. About ten Years after the death of St. Athanaſius, Peter was Canonically choſen to be put into his room, but Lucius being ſupported by the Authority of the Emperor Valens, oppoſed his taking Poſſeſſion, and perſecuted the Orthodox, and the Soli- tudinarians of Egypt, and, amongſt the reſt, baniſhed Iſidorus and Macarius, both Diſciples of St. Anthony, and Directors of thoſe holy Societies. Lucius continued his Violences till he was driven from that See in 377. Socrat. lib. 3. & 4. Sozomen lib. 5. & 6.

LUCIUS, Biſhop of Adrianople, in the IVth Century, who, for oppoſing himſelf to ſome of the Violences of the Arians, was ſent into Baniſhment, and there died in Irons. St. Athanaſius makes mention of him in his Letter, Ad Solitariam vitam agentes. This was in 347, when the Arians were protected by Conſtantius. We muſt not confound this Lucius, with the Arian of the ſame Name, whom thoſe of his Sect introduced into the See of Samoſata; and for whom the Orthodox had ſo great an abhorrence, that ſome Boys playing at Ball, finding that it had touched the foot of his Mule, they caſt it into the fire.

LUCIUS of Patras, writ in Greek a Treatiſe of Metamorphoſes, or Transformations, which Work was imitated by Lucian in his Golden Aſs, as Apuleius has imitated him; tho', it may be, Apuleius took his from the Original of Lucius, and not from Lucian, which yet he ſeems to intimate, by beginning his Work with theſe Words, Fabulam Græcanicam incipimus, &c. Salmaſ. in Proleg. in Solinum. Voſſ. lib. 4. de Hiſt. Græcis.

LUCIUS (Antonius) the Brother of Mark Anthony, who becoming inſolent, becauſe of his being Conſul of Rome, in 713, and his Brother's great Power, began to make freſh Commotions; but Auguſtus having beſieged him in Perougia, forced him, by Famine, to ſurrender himſelf. He was Uncle to Lucius Antonius, the Son of Mark Anthony and Fulvia, who married Marcella the Elder, Widow of Agrippa, and had by her a Son of the ſame Name, who died at Marſeilles. Dio. Plutarch. Tacit. & Sueton. in Auguſt.

LUCIUS (Pomponius) General of the Roman Armies in Germany, in the Reign of the Emperor Claudius. He Conquered the Catti, and deſerved the honour of Triumph, but was yet more famous for his Poems, as Tacitus tells us in his Annals.

LUCIUS (Pomponius Ælianus) in the IIId Century, joined himſelf with Salonius Amandus, who made themſelves the Heads of a mutinous Multitude, that called themſelves by the Name of Bacaudæ, or Bagaudæ, as much as to ſay, Barefooted, who ravaged the Gauls, till they were reduced by Maximianus.

LUCIUS (Verus) called alſo Lucius Cejonius Ælius, Commodus, Verus Antoninus, was the Son of another Lucius Verus, adopted by Adrian in 136. Marcus Aurelius made him his Co-partner in the Empire, and gave him his Daughter Lucilla in Marriage. He afterwards ſent him into the Eaſt againſt the Parthians, whom he defeated in 163, by means of his Generals; for during the whole War, which laſted 5 Years, he continued at Laodicea, or at Antioch, plunging himſelf in all manner of Voluptuouſneſs, and Gaming Day and Night, whilſt his Generals were in the Field. At his return to Rome, he triumphed in 165, which his Father-in-Law Antonine, who finding himſelf unable to break him of his bad Habits, prudently diſſembled it, and ſent him out of Rome, that the ſhame of his looſe Behaviour might the leſs reflect upon him. Theſe Emperors, without making any new Edicts againſt the Chriſtians, yet ſuffered them to be perſecuted. They undertook a War againſt the Marcomanni, and as they paſſed the Alps in a Litter, a Fit of Apoplexy ſurprized Lucius Verus, and killed him, in 169. Jul. Capitolin in his Life. Eutrop. Euſeb.

LUCIUS (Voluſius) of whom Tacitus makes this obſervation. Lucius Voluſius, ſaith he, alſo died this Year, (viz. An. Ch. 56.) Aged 93 Years, after having made a ſhift to preſerve his Life, under ſo many cruel Emperors, and with ſuch great Riches as he was poſſeſſed of by lawful and honeſt Means. He died in the Reign of Nero.

LUCIUS, a Britiſh King, Son to Coilus; ſaid to have been the firſt Chriſtian King of the World, and to have ſeal'd the Truth with his Blood in Germany, in the IId Century, where he preach'd the Goſpel. Later Hiſtorians think this Fabulous; but Biſhop Stillingfleet, tho' he proves it impoſſible that Lucius could have the Government of the whole Iſland, yet he believes him King of ſome part of it, by the favour of the Romans. He likewiſe proves him a Chriſtian, from the Authority of Bede, and from two Coins mention'd by Archbiſhop Uſher. Stillingfleet's Orig. Briton. Uſſer. de Primord. &c. p. 39, 40.

LUCKO, or LUSUCK, Lat. Luceoria, a great City of Poland, which is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Gneſna, and the Capital of a Palatinate, bearing the ſame Name in the Upper Volhinia. It ſtands upon the River Ster, by a Lake, and has a ſtrong Caſtle, about 7 or 8 Leagues from Ruſſia to the Eaſt, 34 from Lemberg to the North-Eaſt, and 85 from Kiovia to the Weſt. There are more Proteſtants and Jews than Roman Catholicks in this City. The other Towns of this Palatinate are, Conſtantinow, Zaſlaw, Oſtrog, (that are Dukedoms) Bereſtecka, Kzemenieck, Waldzimierz, Alexandria, Baranowka, &c. Ferrar. in Lex. Geogr. Starovolſius.

LUCOMORIA, a Province of the Deſart Tartary, belonging to the Great Duke of Muſcovy. It is beyond the River Obi in Aſia, and ſtretcheth out it ſelf towards the Frozen Sea. The Inhabitants lodge in Tents, in the midſt of the Woods.

LUCON, or LUSSON, in Latin, Luciona, or Lucionum, a ſmall City in Poictou, in France; 'tis a Biſhops See, under the Archbiſhoprick of Bourdeaux, ſituate in a Marſhy Ground, two Leagues from the Ocean. Cardinal Richelieu was once Biſhop of this See. Du Cheſne Ant. des Villes.

LUCON, or LUSSON, Lat. Luſſonia, the Principal of the Philippine Iſlands called alſo Manile, from the chief City of it, which is a Biſhop's See, and ſubject to the Spaniards. This Iſland is ſaid to be 1000 Miles in compaſs. See PHILIPPINES.

LUCRETIA, a Roman Lady, the Daughter of Lucretius, and Wife of Collatinus, was one of the faireſt and moſt virtuous Women of her Time. Her Husband, on a time, boaſting of her Beauty, in the company of the Sons of Tarquinius Superbus, brought them along with him to his Houſe to ſee her. Sextus, the Eldeſt of the Sons, fell in Love with her; and returning a while after to the Houſe of Collatinus, he forced her; whereupon ſhe ſent for her Father, her Husband, and ſome other of her Relations; and having related to them how ſhe had been abuſed, took a Dagger ſhe had hid in her Boſom, and ſtabbed her ſelf with it, An. Rom. 245. The Romans reſenting this Indignity, chaſed the Kings out of Rome. Tit. Liv. lib. 1. Florus lib. 1. Valer. Max. lib. 6. cap. 1. Ex. 1.

LUCRETIUS (T. Carus) a Latin Poet, of an ancient and famous Roman Family. His Parents ſent him to Athens to ſtudy, where he addicted himſelf to the Sect of Epicurus. He was highly eſteemed for his Learning, Eloquence, and Skill in Poetry. He died in the Flower of his Age, by means of a Philter given him by a Woman called Lucilia, which made him run mad; in the Intervals of which Phrenzy, he writ his ſix Books of the Nature of Things, to divert himſelf. Some ſay, that he killed himſelf afterwards, in the CLXXXIſt Olympiad, which was, An. Rom. 700, or 701, and the 42d or 43d of his Age. The Family of the Lucretii was very famous at Rome, and comprehended the Tricipitini, the Cinnæ, the Veſpillones, and the Offellæ.

LUCRIUS, the Heathen God of Gain; ſo called from Lucrum.

LUCTATIUS, (Catulus) ſurnamed Quintus, by ſome, and Caius by others, a Roman Conſul and General of their Fleet, who, in An. Rom. 512. defeated the Carthaginians near the Iſland of Ægates, between Sicily and Africa, ſinking 50 of their Ships, and taking 70. This loſs made them deſire a Peace, which was granted them, upon quitting all their Pretenſions to the Iſles that lie between Italy and Africa, and paying in 20 Years time the Sum of 2200 Talents; which was the end of the firſt Punick War. Aurel. Victor. cap. 41. Tit. Livius lib. 8. decad. 3.

Q. LUCTATIUS CATULUS, the Colleague of Marius, who was Conſul the 5th time, An. Rom. 653. They defeated the Cymbrians, who had made an Irruption into Italy, through the Country of the Griſons, and the Valley of Trent, and killed 140000 of them, beſides 60000 Priſoners. The ſame Luctatius was engaged in the Civil Wars of Sylla, and was choaked with the Fumes of Quick-lime, in a place where he had hid himſelf. He was a learned Man, and had writ a Book of his Conſulſhip, which is greatly commended by Tully, in his Book De Orator. illuſtr. Liv. Plutarch. Florus.

LUCULLUS (Lucius Lucinius) a Perſon of great Wealth and Eloquence, he was the Son, or Grandſon of that Lucullus, that was Conſul with Poſthumus Albinus, and after with Claudius Marcellus, a little before the firſt Punick War. It was he who procured to Sylla, whoſe Party he eſpouſed, the honour of defeating Ptolemy, King of Egypt, and the ſame, who being in Aſia, made himſelf Maſter of Mithridates his Fleet, by means of Muræna. All the time he was Prætor, he governed Africa with a great deal of Juſtice; when he was made Conſul to carry on the War againſt Mithridates, he delivered his Colleague Cotta, whom the Enemy had ſhut up in the City of Chalcedon. Afterwards he raiſed the Siege of Cyzicus, took Amiſa, Euparotia, Themiſcyra, and divers other places; and having beaten Mithridates, he forced him to betake himſelf to his Son-in-Law Tigranes, King of Armenia, An. Rom. 683.

The next Year, having ſubdued the Kingdom of Pontus, he paſſed into Armenia, in 685, and gained that memorable Victory over Tigranes, who was at the Head of an Army of 200000 Foot, and 60000 Horſe. This done, he carried Tigranocerta, the Capital of the Kingdom with Niſibe, and made himſelf dreadful to all the Country. True it is, that in 687, Triarius, his Lieutenant, being defeated by Mithridates, and finding himſelf forſaken by his Forces, was obliged to retire. He was received at Rome as a great Conqueror, and his Triumphal Pomp was very magnificent; and from that time forwards, he lived in the greateſt Splendor imaginable, as to Dreſſing, Houſe-Furniture and Diet. He was learned, and had ſtudied Eloquence and Philoſophy under excellent Maſters, viz. Antiochus Aſcalonita, Siſenna and Hortenſius. His love to Learning, made him furniſh an excellent Library mentioned by Tully. Aurelius Victor. Plutar. Oroſius.

LUCUS, whom ſome make the 8th King of the ancient Gauls, reigned after Bardus II. Some think, he gave his Name to the People about Paris, who were called Lucotetiani. Dupleix lib. 2. des Mem. des Gaulois cap. 9. Ptolem. lib. Geogr. cap. 8. Strabo lib. 4. Cæſar. lib. 6. & 7.

LUDLOW in Shropſhire, a fair, large Borough-Town, beautified with many good Edifices. The Town is ſtrong, being defended by a Wall, and a Caſtle; is alſo very populous, and of chief Note, for being the Place where the Courts for the Marches of Wales were formerly kept. 'Tis governed by Bailiffs and Burgeſſes, and is 136 Miles from London.

LUDOLPHUS, a Carthuſian, a Famous Writer of his Time, and a Saxon by Nation, flouriſhed about 1330. He writ The Life of Chriſt, drawn from the Four Evangeliſts, (a piece in great Eſteem) Commentaries upon the Pſalms, and a Treatiſe of the Remedy againſt Temptations. Ludolphus wrote the Hiſtory of Æthiopia, in which he gives a handſome Account of the Religion, Government, Product, &c. of that Country. Boſtius cap. 2. de vir. illuſtr. Carthuſ. Trithem. Bellarm. Poſſevinus. Voſſius.

LUDOLPHUS, Curate of Suchen, who about 1335, undertook a Journey to the Holy Land, in which he ſpent five Years, a Relation whereof he dedicated to Baldwin, Earl of Steinfurt, and Biſhop of Paderborne. Which Travels of his are publiſhed with thoſe of Mandeville and Mark Pole. Voſſ. lib. 3. de Hiſt. Lat. p. 798. Poſſevin. in Appar. Sacro. Geſner in Bibl.

LUDOLPHUS, call'd, by Bellarmine, Lupoldus de Bebenberg, was an eminent Lawyer in the XIIIth, or, as ſome ſay, in the XIVth Century. He was Chancellor to Baldwin of the Houſe of Luxemburg, Archbiſhop of Treves, and Brother to the Emperor Henry VII. which puts it paſt diſpute that he liv'd in the XIVth Century. To this Baldwin, Ludolphus dedicated his Book, De Juribus Regni & Imperii. He likewiſe wrote another, De Zelo Veterum Regum Galliæ & Germaniæ Principum. Bellarmin. de Script. Eccl. Poſſevin. de Appar. Sacr. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2. cap. 57.

LUGDUS, one of the ancient Kings of the Gauls, who ſucceeded Narbon, his Father. It is ſuppoſed, that he was the Builder of the City of Lyons, and that beſtowing his own Name upon it, it was called Lugdunum.

LUGO, Lat. Lucus Auguſti, Aræ Sextianæ, a City and Biſhop's See of Spain in Gallicia, under the Archbiſhop of Compoſtella, upon the River Minho, 18 Leagues from Compoſtella to the Eaſt, 10 from the Ocean South, and 30 from Leon Weſt. This was an ancient Roman City, mentioned by Pliny and Antoninus. Its hot Baths do ſtill preſerve it in repute. Long. 12.00. Lat. 43. 00. The firſt Council of Lugo, was celebrated in 569, to regulate the Bounds of Dioceſes. There was another held in 572. It is to this Council, that St. Martin of Bragua, ſent 84 Chapters or Canons, taken out of the Greek Synods, and put into Latin; as likewiſe many which he had taken out of the Councils of the Latin Churches. Some tell us of a third held in 610. Garcias de Prim. Eccleſ. Tolet. Collect. Concil.

LUGO, a Town about 15 Miles from Ferrara in Italy, which in 1688, was deſtroyed by an Inundation of the River Po, in which about 8000 Perſons, belonging to this Place, and the Neighbourhood of it, were drowned.

LUGO (John) a Cardinal, born at Madrid in 1583. He turn'd Jeſuite in 1603, had a Cardinal's Hat given him by Urban VIII. and died in 1660. He wrote ſeveral great Volumes in Folio: I. De Incarnatione Dominica. II. De Sacramentis in Genere, & de Euchariſtiæ Sacramento & Sacrificio. III. De Virtute & Sacramento Penitentiæ. IVth and Vth Volumes, Tract. de Jure & Juſtitia. The VIth. De Virtute Divinæ Fidei. VII. A Collection, Reſponſorum Moralium. Lugo was a very eminent School Divine, and had the Happineſs of being both brief and clear in his Writings, and had a ſtrong Judgment. As to the Preferments in the Church, he was very indifferent and mortify'd, and appear'd very uneaſie upon the News of his being made Cardinal. He was likewiſe very Charitable to the Poor, and diſtributed a great quantity of the Peruvian Bark, or Jeſuits Powder, among thoſe of them that had Fevers. Nathaniel Sotuel Bibliotheca Scriptor. Societ. Jeſ. pag. 471, 472, & alib.

LUITHBERT, King of the Lombards, was the Son of Cunibert, to whom he ſucceeded about 701; but being yet a young Child, he was Dethroned, after he had Reigned about 8 Months. Paul. Diacon. Hiſt. Long.

LUITPRAND, King of the Lombards, ſucceeded to his Father Anſprand, or Ariſprand, in 713, and Reigned 31 Years and 7 Months. He was Pious and Liberal, and contracted Friendſhip with Charles Martel, who had a great value for him. Thraſimund, Duke of Spoleto, having incenſed him, by entring into a League with Godeſchalck, who had invaded the Dukedom of Benevento, Luitprand took up Arms againſt them both, and forced them to retire for Safeguard into the Territories of Pope Gregory III. who entertained them, and made a League with them; whereupon Luitprand took ſome Places in the Eccleſiaſtical State, and advanced with his Army to beſiege Rome, which terrifying the Pope, he ſent to Charles Martel for his Aſſiſtance, who, being unwilling to break with Luitprandus, accommodated the Matter. After this, Luitprand entred into a League with Gregory, and reſtored to him ſome of the Places he had taken from him, after that he had ſubdued Thraſimund. In 742, he beſieged Ravenna, and Pope Zachary compoſed the Difference he had with the Exarch of that City. He died the Year after in 745. Paul. Diacon. Hiſt. Lomb. Anaſtaſ. in vit. Pontif. Baron. in Annal.

LUITPRAND, Sub-deacon of Toledo, Deacon of Pavia, and afterwards Biſhop of Cremona, lived in the Xth Century. He was Secretary to Berenger II. King of Italy, who, in 946, ſent him on an Embaſſy to Conſtantinople, to Conſtantine Porphyrogeneta; at his return, he had ſome Difference with Berenger, who chaſed him from his Biſhoprick, againſt whom Luitprand writ his Antapodoſis. He took a ſecond Journey to Conſtantinople, in 968, at the Requeſt of the Emperor Otho, who ſent him to Nicephorus Phocas. We have his Works printed in one Volume in Folio at Antwerp, in 1640, with the Notes of Father Jerom de la Higuera, a Jeſuit, and of Laurentius Ramires de Prado. As for the Hiſtory of the Popes attributed to him, which ends at Formoſus, it is ſure, that it is none of his, as the Learned agree, nor any of thoſe Pieces that are added at the end of his Works, nor thoſe Fabulous Chronicles of the Goths, which the Spaniards tell us are his, and which they publiſh as very rare and curious Pieces. Sigebert cap. 527. de Script. Eccleſ. Trithem. in Catal. & in Chron. An. Ch. 892. Ludovic. Clavitel in Annal. Cremonæ.

LULLIUS (Raimundus) Originally of Catalonia, and born in the Iſland Majorca, lived towards the end of the XIIIth Century, and at the beginning of the XIVth, was a Perſon of high Knowledge in Philoſophy, Chymiſtry and Phyſick, and, indeed, in all Sciences and Faculties whatſoever. He deciphered his extraordinary Genius in the Books following, viz. Generales Artium libri, libri Logicales, Philoſophici, Metaphyſici, Variarum Artium libri, Medicinæ, Juris utriuſque, libri Spirituales, Prædicabiles, Quodlibetici, & Diſputationum. Beſides his incomparable Writings in the ſecret Art of Chymiſtry, highly eſteemed by the Lovers of it. It it is ſaid, that towards the latter end of his Life, he wholly dedicated himſelf to God, and paſſing over into Africa, preached the Goſpel there to the Saracens, by whom he was ſtoned in that good Work, March 26. 1315, being then 80 Years of Age; whoſe Body being found, as 'tis ſaid, by a miraculous Apparition of a Pillar of Light over it, was brought back to Majorca, and buried in the Cathedral there, where, to this day, he is honoured as a Martyr. There are ſome, who give us a very different Account of this Lully, and would make him a Magician, or an Heretick; as for the imputation of a Magician, it probably was given him from his great Skill in the deepeſt Secrets of Nature; but as for the Name of Heretick, that was put upon him by Miſtake, as confounding him with one Raimund of Terraca, called Neophyta, a Jew, who embraced the Chriſtian Religion, and took the Habit of a Dominican at Arragon, where he maintained ſome very extravagant and ſtrange Opinions, as, That in ſome Caſes the Devil might be Worſhipped, with the Adoration of Latria; That in great Torments one might deny God with the Mouth, ſo as one did but confeſs him in the Heart; That every Sinner was an Heretick; That God loved the Evil as well as the Good; That the Law of Mahomet was as Orthodox as that of Jeſus Chriſt; That it was impoſſible to obſerve any one Divine Precept in this Life, &c. All which erroneous Opinions were examined before Petrus Flandrinus, ſent by Pope Gregory XI. for that purpoſe. *Charles de Bouville life of Raimund Lully. Wadinge in Annal. & Bibl. Min. Andr. LUNA (Alvarez) a Spaniſh Gentleman, the Favourite of John II. King of Caſtile, whom he abſolutely governed; but being puft up with his good Fortune, he abuſed his Power, kindled a War in the Kingdom, abuſed the Grandees, enriched himſelf by Oppreſſion, took Money of the Moors, to hinder the taking of the City of Granada; and being Convict of thoſe Crimes, in 1453, was condemned at Valladolid to have his Head cut off, which was expoſed in a Baſon for many days, to gather a Contribution for his Burial. This was a ſtrange ſight to thoſe who knew, that in his 30 Years Favouriteſhip, he had gathered Wealth enough, almoſt to equal the Riches of a King. It is told of him, that being curious to know his Deſtiny, he conſulted one that had Skill that way, who told him, he ſhould die at Cadahalſo, which was the Name of a Town that belonged to him, and, in Spaniſh, ſignifies alſo a Scaffold, which latter, proved but too true. Æneas Sylvius Deſcript. Europæ cap. 47. Mariana lib. 20, 21, 22.

LUNA, an old Town of Hetruria in Italy, famous for its Marble Mines mentioned by Strabo, Pliny and Titus Livius, out of whoſe Ruins the Modern Sarzana is riſen, which is a Biſhop's See, on the Coaſt of Genoua near Tuſcany.

LUNDEN, Lat. Lundis, Londinum Scaniorum, a City formerly of the Kingdom of Denmark, the Capital of the Province of Scania, and an Archbiſhop's See, with ſix Biſhops under it; but in 1658, it fell into the hands of the Swedes, who, in 1668, opened an Univerſity here. It ſtands 8 German Miles from Copenhagen to the Eaſt, and 6 from Lanskroon to the South-Weſt. It is now only a Biſhop's See, the Archbiſhoprick having been Tranſlated, in 1660, to Copenhagen.

LUNDY, a ſmall Iſland on the Coaſt of Devonſhire, 14 Miles from Hertneſs, two Miles long, and one broad, but ſo ſecured by Rocks, that 'tis not approachable in above two Places. The Ruins of the old Caſtle, with the Chapel of St. Helen, are yet to be ſeen. Heretofore it was cultivated, as appears by the Furrows on it, but now it is only the Habitation of Sea-Fowls. It has no Trees, but a few Elders, which are almoſt buried in the Bird's Dung. That unfortunate Prince Edward II. being forſaken by all his Subjects, and purſued by his enraged Wife, thought fit to ſhut himſelf up in this diſmal Iſland, with his Favourite Spencer. Sir Thomas Delamere, who wrote this King's Life, ſaith, it has pleaſant Paſtures, plentiful Springs, and plenty of Sea-Fowl, and ſeems to have been then inhabited, tho' not in Cambden's time. It lies in the Mouth of the Severn, on the North-Weſt Shoar.

LUNENBURG, Lat. Lunæburgum, a City of the Lower Saxony in Germany, formerly a Hans-Town, and the Capital of the Dukedom of Lunenburg. It ſtands upon the River Ilmenaw, about two German Miles from the Elbe to the South, ten from Lubeck, ſeven from Hamburg to the South-Weſt, and twenty from Bremen to the North-Eaſt, built by Henry the Lion, in 1190, but the Caſtle is 120 Years older. It took its Name from the Moon, which was worſhipped here till the Reign of Charles the Great. It is grown very conſiderable ſince 1290, by the ruin of Bardwick, a Town within two Miles of the Elbe to the South. It is now under the Duke of Lunenburg, and is one of the ſtrongeſt and beſt Fortified Towns of Germany. Near it ſtands a Mountain called the Kalikberg, from the Chalk it affords, and by it are many Salt Springs, that contribute much to its Wealth. It has one of the ſtatelieſt Bridges in Europe, over a Navigable River; the Houſes are magnificent, and the Inhabitants wealthy and numerous. The Dukedom of Lunenburg is a part of the Lower Saxony, having on the North the Earldom of Pinnerburg, and the Territories of Lubeck and Hamburg, on the Weſt the Earldom of Hoy, and the Dukedoms of Bremen and Ferden, on the South the Dukedom of Brunſwick, and the Biſhoprick of Hildeſheim, on the Eaſt the Dukedom of Mechlenburg, and the Marquiſate of Brandenburg. It is watered by the Elbe, the Aller, the Ilmenaw, and the Jetze. The principal Towns are, Zell, Danneberg, Harburg, Wimſen, Gifhorn, Borchdorp, Walſrade and Ultzen. This Dukedom was firſt given to one Otho, of the Houſe of Bavaria, by Frederick II. in 1235, which Family ſtill continues, tho' divided into many Branches. See BRUNSWICK.

LUPERCALIA, Feaſts which the Romans celebrated the 15th of the Calends of March, in honour of Pan, whoſe Prieſts were called Luperci, and who, at the time of this Solemnity, were uſed to run naked through the City, and to ſtrike the Hands and Bellies of Women with a Goat's Skin. Theſe Feaſts were celebrated at Rome, till the time of the Emperor Anaſtaſius, about 496, when Pope Gelaſius did wholly aboliſh them, according to the Teſtimony of Onuphrius and Baronius. This Solemnity was not Inſtituted by Romulus, but by Evander, who ſettled in Italy about 60 Years before the Wars of Troy. This Pan being a great pretended Deity in Arcadia, Evander, who was born there, brought his Worſhip along with him, and ſet it up at Mount Palatine, where he fix'd his Colony. The Luperci, i. e. the Prieſts of Pan, were divided into two Bodies, under the Name of Quintilians and Fabians, to keep up the Memory of one Quintilius and Fabius, one of which was chief of the Party of Romulus, and the other of that of Remus. The manner of celebrating the Lupercalia, notwithſtanding it was ſo diſhonourable to Natural Religion, yet Auguſtus reviv'd the Feſtival, after it had been ſome time diſcontinued, which we may the leſs wonder at, when we conſider that it was kept up under Chriſtian Emperors; and in the Year 496, when Pope Gelaſius would endure it no longer, there were ſome Chriſtian Senators who were not aſham'd to appear for it, as we may underſtand by the Pope's Apology againſt them. The Luperci were not the only Perſons, that run like Madmen about the Streets, on this Solemnity, but likewiſe there was a great many young People of Quality, together with ſome of the Principal Magiſtrates, who run publickly with them in the ſame circumſtances of Scandal. Dionyſius Halicarn. lib. 1. *Plutarch in vit. St. LUPUS, Biſhop of Troyes, in the Vth Century. He was born at Toul, and married Pimaniola, the Siſter of St. Hilary of Arles. They afterwards voluntarily ſeparated themſelves, and retired each of them to a Monaſtery, St. Lupus to the Monaſtery of Lerins, whence he was called to the Biſhoprick of Troyes in Champagne. Father Sirmond hath publiſhed in the firſt Volume of the Councils of France, an Epiſtle of St. Lupus, and of St. Euphronius of Autun, writ in 446, to Talviſius of Angers, De Solemnitatibus, & de Bigamis Clericis, & iis qui conjugati aſſumuntur. St. Lupus went twice to England with St. Germain of Auxerre, to oppoſe Pelagianiſm, being deputed by the Churches of France. Concerning which, ſee Archbiſhop Uſher's Antiquitates Britannicæ, and Stillingfleet's Antiquities of the Britannick Church. He died July 2. 479. St. Lupus went out of his City to meet Attila, and preſerved it from the violence of that Barbarian, by accoſting him in theſe Words, I am glad to ſee you come hither in health, whom I judge to be the Scourge of my Lord God, ſent to puniſh the Sins of the People; at which ſaying he was ſo ſtartled, that he ſpared his City. Whereupon Sigonius relates, That it was a common Saying amongſt the Huns, that their King had been ſtopt by two wild Beaſts, by a Wolf and a Lyon; becauſe St. Lupus of Troyes, and St. Leo the Pope, were the only Perſons that had put a ſtop to his Deſigns.

LUPUS, ſurnamed Protoſpata, born in Puglia, ſo called, becauſe he had the Command of the firſt Captain of the Guards. He lived at the beginning of the XIIth Century, and writ a Chronicle of the Kingdom of Naples, from 860 to 1202. This Chronicle was printed at Naples in 1626, with a Continuation, which ends in 1519, the Author whereof is not known.

LUPUS (Servatus) lived in the IXth Century. Aldric of Sens ſent him into Germany, where he was the Diſciple of Rabanus Maurus; at his return, he became known to the Empreſs Judith, Wife to Lewis the Meek, who beſtowed the Abbey of Ferrieres, called Bethlehem, upon him, with that of St. Joſſe de mar. He was in high Eſteem with all the great Men of his Age, as appears by his Letters ſent to Pope Benedict III. King Charles the Bald, to Lotharius, to Ethelulphus, or Athulphus, King of England, and to Eginardus and Rabanus, whom he calls his Maſters, to Hincmar of Rheims, and Jonas of Orleans, and other Perſons of conſideration. His Letters clear many Paſſages of his Time, Papyrius Maſſon publiſhed them in 1588, and Andrew du Cheſne has ſince added them to the IIId Tome of the Writers of the Hiſtory of France. Lupus alſo writ the Book of the three Queſtions, which Father Sirmond, Anthony Grimbert, and Sieur Maugin, have publiſhed. We have alſo ſome other Pieces that are attributed to him. 'Tis commonly ſaid, that he died in 852, but that cannot be, becauſe he aſſiſted at the Council of Soiſſons, which was celebrated in 853. Sigebert cap. 93. *Cat. Trithem. in Chron. LUSATIA, a Province of Germany, called by the Germans Lauſnitz, and has been annexed both to Miſnia and Bohemia; but in 1623, was granted by Frederick II. to the Elector of Saxony, and confirmed to him in 1637. It is bounded on the Eaſt by Sileſia, on the North by Marchia, on the Weſt by the Upper Saxony and Miſnia, and on the South by Bohemia. It is commonly divided into the Upper, which lies towards Bohemia and Miſnia, and the Lower towards Saxony; the Cities of the Upper Luſatia are, Gorlitz the Capital, Bautzen, Zittaw, and Lauben; and thoſe of the Lower are, Soraw the Capital, Guben and Cotbus; which laſt is under the Elector of Brandenburg. *Cluver. LUSTRATIONS, were a kind of Sacrifices, whereby the ancient Heathens were wont to purify any thing, as a houſe, a City, Camp, or a Perſon defiled by means of a dead Body, or any other piece of uncleanneſs. Upon this occaſion, beſides Fire and Fumigations, they made uſe alſo of Sacrifices. Some of theſe Luſtrations were neceſſary, that is, could not be diſpenſed with, as the Luſtration of Houſes in time of the Plague, or upon the death of a perſon; and others again, were done out of Choice, and at pleaſure. There were alſo publick Luſtrations, which were Celebrated every Fifth year, in which they led the Victim thrice about the place to be purified, and, in the mean time, burned a great quantity of perfumes. The Greeks joined to their Luſtration, an Anathema, that is, a human Victim, whom they offered, after having caſt upon him all the imprecations imaginable. The Romans called their Country-Luſtrations, Ambarvalia, which they celebrated before they began to reap their Corn; thoſe of their Armies, Armiluſtria, wherein ſome choſen Soldiers, crowned with Lawrel, led the Victims, (which were a Sow, a Sheep, and a Bull) thrice round the Army ranged in Battle array, in Mars his Field, which were afterwards Sacrificed to that Deity, after the pouring forth of many imprecations againſt their Enemies. Luſtrations of Flocks were performed in this manner, the Shepherd beſprinkled them with pure Water, and thrice ſurrounded his ſheepfold, with a Compoſition of Savin, Lawrel and Brimſtone ſet on fire, and afterwards Sacrificed to the Goddeſs Pales, an Offering of Milk, boiled Wine, a Cake and Millet. As for private Houſes, they were luſtrated with Water, and a fumigation of Lawrel, Juniper, Olive-tree, Savin, and ſuch like, and the Victim commonly was a Pig. Luſtrations made for Perſons were properly called Expiations, and the Victim Piacularis. There was alſo a kind of Luſtration uſed for Infants, by which they were purified, Girls the eighth day after their Birth, and Boys the ninth, which Ceremony was performed with pure Water or Spittle. Lomierus has Collected almoſt all that can be ſaid upon this Subject, in a Book Entituled, De Luſtrationibus Veterum Gentilium, Printed at Utrecht, in 1681. *Macrob. LUSTRUM, amongſt the Romans, was a general Muſter and Review of all the Citizens and their Goods, which was performed by the Cenſors at the end of every fifth year, ſo that the Luſtrum contained five years, whereas the Olympiad was only of four. The firſt Author of this Cuſtom was Servius Tullius, the ſixth King of Rome, about 180 from the foundation of that City. But in proceſs of time they were not Celebrated ſo often, as appears from the Faſti Capitolini, where we find that the 50th Luſtrum was Celebrated, An.Rom. 574. Tit. Liv. Roſin. Antiq. Rom.

LUTHER (Martin) was born at Iſleben, in the County of Mansfeld, in 1483. He ſtudied at Iſleben, Iſenach, Magdeburg, and Erford. After ſome time he turn'd Auguſtinian, and was ſent to Rome to take up ſome Controverſies, which happened among his own Order; which Buſineſs he Manag'd with great Prudence, and brought it to the Iſſue deſired. Upon his Return, he Commenced Dr. at Wittenburg, and in 1517. Preached againſt the Indulgences, publiſhed by Friar Tetzel. This Liberty brought him under Pope Leo Xth's diſpleaſure, to whom he wrote a very ſubmiſſive Letter; Letting the Pope underſtand, that theſe Collectors of Indulgences abus'd his Authority, praying his Holineſs not to give Credit to the Accuſations of his Enemies, and that, in ſhort, he ſubmitted all his Writings, and his Life too, to his Holineſſes Authority and Diſpoſal; but this Controverſy being reviv'd, and carried further by Luther's Defence of himſelf againſt Eckius and Pricrias, who wrote againſt him; he is cited by the Pope to appear at Rome, and give Account of his Tenents: But Luther on the other ſide, requeſted that his Cauſe might be try'd in Germany before Competent and Impartial Judges, and where his Perſon might be ſecur'd from Violence. At this time Cardinal Cajetan happening to be at Augsburg, Luther having procur'd a ſafe Conduct of the Emperour Maximilian, waited upon his Eminence, and had a Conference with him; And here the Cardinal waving a Diſpute, adviſed Luther to write no more upon thoſe points, and retract what he had done already: Luther was unwilling to retract, unleſs he could be convinc'd he was miſtaken, but as for Silence, he was not in compliant as to that point, but was willing to let the Controverſy ſleep, provided his Adverſaries were obliged to the ſame Conditions; however, his not going the full length of Cajetan's expectations, made this Cardinal treat him ruggedly, and diſmiſs him with menacing Language. The Cardinal was blam'd at Rome for the heat of his Management: They ſaid, that he was extreamly out in his Meaſures; that Luther ought to have been Careſs'd, gain'd over with Civilities, and promiſes of Preferment; But this Courſe not being taken, Luther grew exaſperated, which put him upon further Enquiries into the Errors of the Church of Rome; and Pope Leo publiſhing a Bull in Confirmation of Indulgencies, magnifying the Benefits of them, and ſtretching the Papal Authority to the Exceſſes of the Court of Rome, Luther found new matter of Complaint; Declares againſt the Popes Infallibility, and appeals from him to a Council: However, he writes a reſpectful Letter to the Pope, profeſſes a great regard to the Authority of the Church, and once more proffers to deſiſt from Writing, provided the other ſide would do the ſame. Theſe Overtures not being accepted, he publiſhes a Book of Confeſſion, and another concerning Vows, and once more offers Terms of Accommodation; his Demands were, that his Adverſaries might not be permitted to rail publickly againſt him, nor himſelf obliged to a Recantation, nor bound to interpret Scripture by Precedent, or Humane Authority; adding withal, that if they continued ſtill to treat him with Affronts and Injuries, they might perhaps find, to their coſt, that he would not ſo tamely give up his Cauſe: After this, his Books were Cenſur'd by the Faculty of Louvain, and at laſt he was Excommunicated at Rome, and his Books order'd by the Pope and Cardinals to be Burnt. Luther, at the hearing of this, ſeems to have been a little heated; for calling all the Students of the Univerſity of Wittenburg together, he publickly burnt the Canon-Law, together with a Decree of the Pope lately Publiſhed. *Father Pauls Hiſt. LUTZEN, Lat. Lutza, a ſmall Town in Miſnia, a Province of the Upper Saxony in Germany, where the Swedes won a Signal Victory over the Auſtrian Forces, but loſt Guſtavus Adolphus, the braveſt Prince they ever had. This Battle was fought, Nov. 16. 1632. Lutzen ſtands upon the River Elſter, two German Miles from Marieburg to the N. LUWOW or LEMBURG, Lat. Leopolis a great and populous City of Poland, the Capital of Red-Ruſſia, and an Arch-biſhops See. It ſtands amongſt the Hills upon the River Peltaw, (which, with the Bug, falls into the Viſtula above Ploczko) and is very ſtrong, being wall'd and fortified with two Caſtles, one within the City, and the other without. It was built by Leo, Duke of Ruſſia, who flouriſhed about 1280. It is famous for the Reſiſtance it made againſt the Turkiſh Army, after their taking of Kaminieck, in 1672. This City ſtands Fifteen Miles from Premiſlaw to the Eaſt, a little leſs from the Carpathian Hills to the North, and about fifty from Warſaw to the S. E. Lewis Liponan Celebrated a Council here in 1556. by the Authority of the Arch-biſhop of Gneſna.

LUXEMBURG, Lat. Luxemburgum, Auguſta Romanduarum, a very ſtrong City, and a Dukedom in the Low-Countries. It is ſituated upon the River Elſe, one part of it on a Hill, and the reſt on a Plain. It has a Convent of the Order of St. Francis, in which lies buried John, King of Bohemia, Father of Charles IV. Emperour of Germany, ſlain by the Engliſh at the Battle of Creſſy, in 1346. This City has ſuffered much by the Wars, between the French and Netherlands. In 1529. Charles V. took it from Francis I. of France. In 1542. it was taken and Sack'd by the Duke of Orleans, and re-taken and treated in the ſame manner the year following. It is now in the hands of the French, and ſtands four Leagues from Thionville to the North, ſix from Trier to the S. W. and nineteen from Maier to the N. E. The Dukedom of Luxemburg is one of the Sixteen Provinces, belonging of old to the Treviri; it has on the Eaſt the Biſhoprick of Trier, from which it is ſeparated by the Moſel in the North, the Dukedoms of Limburg and Namur on the W. Picardy and Hainault, on the South Lorrain, on the Weſt the Maez, and the Foreſt of Ardenna. The Weſt part of it is Barren, but abounds with Game; that, towards the Eaſt abounds in Corn, Minerals, Quarries of Stone, and whatſoever is neceſſary to the Life of Man. It is in compaſs about ſixty French Leagues.

The chief Cities, beſides the Capital, are, Baſtogne, Damvillers, Monmedy, Arlon, Thionville, Virton, Yvoix, Marville, beſides others to the number of 20. and contains near 1200. Villages. Luxemburg, at firſt, had the Title of an Earldom only, but was made a Dukedom by an Emperor of the Houſe of Luxemburg. The houſe of Luxemburg, is one of the moſt Noble Families of Europe, for it hath produc'd 5 Emperors, whereof 3 were Kings of Bohemia, and hath been poſſeſſed of great Eſtates in Germany and France. It hath alſo furniſh'd ſix Queens, and many Princeſſes, whoſe Alliance hath raiſed the Luſtre of many great Families. The moſt Ancient of this Houſe that we have Knowledge of, was Sigefredus, youngeſt Brother of Godfrey Earl of Verdun, who by exchange got the Caſtle of Luxemburg, of Wiker Abbot of St. Maximinus of Trier, April 17. 963. whence he took his Surname, and the Title of Earl, which he left to his Poſterity. This Family afterwards became very conſiderable about the XIIIth or XIVth Centuries, and was divided into Three Branches, viz. that of Luxemburg Ligni, of Luxemburg Brienne St. Paul, and Pinci, the Heireſs of which Branch the late Mareſchal of Luxemburg married; but he himſelf is deſcended of the Earls of Bouteville, though he calls himſelf Francis Henry of Montmorency, and hath taken the Arms of that Houſe. This Henry Duke of Luxemburg, has diſtinguiſh'd himſelf in the Field upon ſeveral Occaſions, particularly at the raiſing of the Siege of Woerden, where he defeated the Dutch: At the taking of Bodengrave in 1673. At the Fight of St. Denys or Mons, in 1678. Upon the Plains of Flerus, where he gave Prince Waldeck a great Defeat, in 1690. At the Battel of Landen, of 1693. where he routed part of the Confederate Army, and took their Canon and their Camp, &c. And, in ſhort, he was one of the Greateſt Generals of his Time. He died in Jan. 1694. The Third Branch is that of Luxemburg Fiennes and Martigues, which is alſo extinct, the laſt Male of that Family, Sebaſtian of Luxemburg, who lived in the laſt Century, having left nothing but Daughters.

LUZIGNAN, or LEZIGNEN, Lat. Luſignanum, or Luſinianum, a ſmall Town of France in Poictou, with a Caſtle on the River Vona, below St. Maixan, Four or Five Leagues from Poictiers to the N. W. towards Rochel; famous for the Valour of its Lords, who have been Kings of Cyprus, of Jeruſalem, and of Armenia, and, by the Story, of Meluſina. They ſay that this Fairy, half Woman and half Serpent, built the Caſtle of Luzignan, which was looked upon to be impregnable; being the ſame that Teligni ſurprized for the Proteſtants in 1569. and which was a little while after ſurrendred to the French King, and the Prince of Montpenſier did re-take it, after a Siege of Four Months, in 1574. and demoliſhed it.

The Family of Luzignan began with Hugh I. who was Great Maſter of the Game in France, in the Xth Century; and ended in Hugh XIII. who died without Iſſue in 1203. But the Branch of Luzignan ſurnamed Ultramarine, continued to the End of the XIIIth Century, when Hugo III. King of Cyprus and of Jeruſalem died without Children, in 1267.

LUZIGNAN (Guy de) a Prince of this Family, undertook the Journey to the Holy Land, with the Chriſtians, in the XIIth Century. He married Sibylla, the eldeſt Daughter of Amaury, or Emery, King of Jeruſalem, and Widow of William Marquis of Montferrat, ſurnamed Long-Sword. By this Marriage he got the Title of K. of Jeruſalem, and loſt that City, A. C. 1187. which Saladine took, Octob. 2. together with the greateſt part of the Holy Land. Afterwards Guy ſold this Title of King of Jeruſalem to Richard King of England, for that of Cyprus; which the Houſe of Luzignan kept till An. 1473. Guy died in 1194. according to the Anonymous Author in Geſta Dei per Francos. He left 4 Sons, which died at the Siege of Acre, or Acon.

LYCÆUM, a place at Athens, where Ariſtotle taught. Pauſanias tells us, That formerly it had been a Temple of Apollo, built by Lycus, the ſon of Pandion. But Suidas, and ſome others tell us, That it was a College founded by Piſiſtratus, or Pericles; or rather, begun by the one, and finiſhed by the other. 'Tis from this place that Ariſtotle's Philoſophy is called, The Philoſophy of the Lycæum: And becauſe he was uſed to teach there walking up and down, therefore the Name of Peripateticks was beſtowed upon his Diſciples. *Pauſan. in Attic. LYCIA, a Province of Aſia, whereof one Part is now called Aldmelli, and the other Manteſelli, or Briquia. It lies between Caria and Pamphylia, and took its Name from Lycus the Son of Pandion. This Province was famous for the Mountain Chymara, often mentioned by the Poets, and by the Cities of Patara and Mira, the Birth-place of St. Nicholas and Andriaca. See Strabo, Pliny, Iſidorus, Caſtaldus, Cluverius, and others, who mention this Country.

LYCOPHRON, was the Son of Periander King of Corinth, who began his Reign A. M. 3426. He was ſo concerned that his Father had murthered his Mother Lyſis, that he voluntarily baniſhed himſelf, and could never be perſuaded to return to his own Country, notwithſtanding that his Father ſent for him with Deſign to make him his Succeſſor, inſtead of his other Son Cypſelus. Periander at laſt, reſolv'd to go to Corfu, that his Son who would not ſee him, might return to Corinth, but the Inhabitants of Corfu, to prevent Periander's dwelling with them, of which they were apprehenſive, kill'd *Lycophron. LYCOPHRON, A Greek Poet and Grammarian, who liv'd in the 450th Year of Rome, in the time of Ptolemæus Philadelphus. He was born at Chalcis in Eubea, now called Negropont. He wrote a Poem, call'd Caſſandra, which has given the Learned a great deal of trouble to underſtand; for which reaſon they call'd him the Muddy, or Myſterious. This Poet likewiſe wrote 12 Tragedies, the Names of which are mention'd by Suidas. Voſſius de Poet. Græc. cap. 8. &c.

LYCOPOLIS, a City in Egypt, near the River Nile. Diodorus Siculus tells us, That the Egyptians were uſed to worſhip Wolves in the place where they built this City; which was therefore called The City of Wolves; for that is the import of Lycopolis in the Greek Tongue. This City is now called Munia, and was formerly an Epiſcopal See. LYCOSTHENES, or Wolfhart (Conradus) was born at Ruffach in Alſace, in 1618. He ſtudied at Heidelberg, and made himſelf famous for his Skill in Languages and Sciences. He was afterwards Profeſſor at Baſil, where he died in 1661. He left behind him Commentaries upon Pliny the Younger. He pubſiſhed the Treatiſe of Julius Obſequens of Prodigies, and continued it: And alſo, *Compendium Bibliothecæ Geſneri. LYCURGUS, the famous Lacedæmonian Legiſlator, was the Son of Eunomus King of the Lacedæmonians, of the Family of the Proclidæ, and Brother of Polydectes, who ſucceeded his Father. Eunomus had Lycurgus by a ſecond Wife, called Dionaſſa. He ſhewed his Inclination to Learning and Experience, by his travelling through all the cities of Greece and Crete; and, according to ſome, into Egypt alſo, and India, to confer with the learned Men of thoſe Countries. Neither was his Valour and Conduct in Martial Affairs inferior to his Deſire of Knowledge; wherefore alſo the Spartans had a ſingular Eſteem for him. After the Death of his Brother Polydectes, his Widow ſent to deſire Lycurgus to take the Crown upon him; promiſing that ſhe would make her ſelf miſcarry of the Child ſhe was big with, in caſe he would marry her: But Lycurgus generouſly refus'd the Offer, and contented himſelf to be the Guardian of his Nephew Charilaus; which was in the 300th Year after the taking of Troy, and the 108th before the firſt Olympiad. As ſoon as Charilaus was come to be of Age, he delivered up the Government to him. Notwithſtanding that Lycurgus's Actions were very prudent and blameleſs, yet could not he avoid the Reports of ſome, who accuſed him of affecting to uſurp the Sovereignty; which made him leave Sparta, and retire to Candia; where he ſpent his whole Time in ſtudying the Nature of the Laws and Cuſtoms of People. And being re-called again to his own Country, he reformed the Government, enacted very good Laws, which the Spartans engaged themſelves to obſerve inviolably. It is ſaid, That, to lay a ſtronger Tie upon them to obſerve his Laws, he made them promiſe to be obſervant of them till his Return from a Journey he was about to make. Whereupon, ſoon after he went into Candia, where ſome ſay he killed himſelf, (having firſt had his Laws confirmed and approved by the Delphick Oracle) leſt, by his Returning to his own Country, the Lacedæmonians might have thought themſelves freed from their Oath of Obſerving his Laws till his Return. Plutarch in Vit. Clemens Alexandrinus, Lib. 1. Strom. Clemens Alexandrinus, upon the Authority of Eratoſthenes, an ancient Chronologer, affirms, that Lycurgus undertook the Guardianſhip of his Nephew in the 300th Year after the Siege of Troy, and the 108th Year before the firſt Olympiad: Now Pauſanias aſſures us, That he liv'd in the Time of Iphitus, and that at the Inſtance of Lycurgus, Iphitus reviv'd the Olympick Games: Theſe Authorities have perſuaded Capellus and ſome others, that there was Two Licurgus's, and that Plutarch and Pauſanias were miſtaken, in making but one: But theſe modern Criticks are themſelves miſtaken, for the Authors cited in the Chronicon of Euſebius, obſerve, that notwithſtanding Iphitus reviv'd the Olympick Games, they were not publickly kept till 27 Olympiads after, i. e. till 108 Years after this Revival, when Chorœbus of Elis won the Prize: This Account perfectly reconciles Clemens Alexandrinus with Pauſanias. Riccioli Tom. 1. Chron. Reform. Lib. 3. N. 3.

LYCURGUS, the Son of Pheres King of Theſſaly, and Brother of Admetus. He had the Country of Nemæa beſtowed upon him for his Inheritance; and delivered his Son Opheltes to Hypſipile, to be nurſed and educated by her; who having on a time laid him down upon the Graſs whilſt ſhe went to direct the Epigoni, or Seven Captains, who where going to the Siege of Thebes, to a Fountain, a great Serpent ſeizing the Child, killed it. Whereupon, Lycurgus, in Memory of this young Prince, his Son, inſtituted the famous Nemæan Games. Apollodorus.

LYCURGUS, One of the Ten famous Orators of Athens, and a Perſon who made himſelf famous both by his Actions and by his Rhetorick: He was City-Treaſurer, and behav'd himſelf in that Office with great Integrity. He alſo increaſed the Number of their Ships, and furniſhed their Magazines with all neceſſary Proviſions and Ammunition. He enacted ſeveral ſerviceable Laws, for the Good of his Country. He ordered a kind of Vying of Tragedies on the Theatre, by comparing of them together, to honour thoſe Poets that had made the beſt; and by this means to excite a commendable Emulation amongſt Men of Wit and Learning: To this End he alſo ordered Statues to be erected to Sophocles, Æſchylus, and Eurypides. He turn'd all Vagabonds and leud Perſons out of the City. He built a place for publick Exerciſes; at which he was very active and excellent himſelf, and frequently came off Victor in thoſe Games that were celebrated in preſence of the People. During the whole Time of his Adminiſtration he kept an exact Account of all his Actions; and when he was out of Commiſſion, he affixed his Diary to a Pillar, to the End that every one might inſpect and cenſure his Management of Affairs. Not content with all this, when he lay upon his Death-bed, he cauſed himſelf to be carried into the Senate, where he gave an exact Account of all his Actions, ſo far as they concerned the Publick; which having been highly commended by all, he was carried home again, where he died ſoon after. The Athenians looking upon him as a Divine Perſon, conſecrated the Bird Ibis to him, (a kind of Egyptian Stork.) He left 3 Sons, Lycophron, Lycurgus and Aphron, who were all caſt into Priſon for ill Commonwealths-men; but upon Demoſthenes's Teſtimony, they were all reſtored to Liberty again. Pauſanias. Plutarch.

LYCURGUS, the Collegue of Ageſipolis III. King of Sparta, whom he aſſociated in that Kingdom; but he ungratefully chaſed away his Benefactor, and took the Crown upon him. He declared War againſt Philip I. of Macedonia, and his Son Demetrius; and the Fortune of War was equally balanced between them for a long while. At laſt, Lycurgus was accuſed before the Ephori, for having introduced pernicious Novelties into the State: Whereupon, being condemned to Baniſhment, he retired among the Ætolians, where he died. This was the firſt Tyrant of Sparta, or King of a ſtrange Race. Ageſipolis was the laſt of the Heraclidæ, or Deſcendants of Hercules. Pauſanias. Titus Livius, lib. 34.

LYCURGUS, King of Thrace, ſeeing that his Subjects were unmeaſurably addicted to drink Wine, cauſed all the Vines of his Kingdom to be plucked up. Whence the Poets took Occaſion to feign, That he was an Enemy to Bacchus; and having driven away his Nurſes, forced him to flee to the Iſle of Naxos: And that Bacchus to avenge this Affront, made him run mad; in which Diſtemper he cut off his own Legs. Plutarch de Poet. Util. Propertius, lib. 3.

LYCUS, a Greek Hiſtorian, Author of an Hiſtory of Libya and Sicily. He was Father to the Poet Lycophron. He lived in the Time of Ptolemæus Lagus, An. Rom. 435, and was put to death by Demetrius Phalereus.

LYDIA, a conſiderable County of Aſia Minor; which was alſo called Mæonia, and now Caraſia. Its Rivers are, Caicus, now Chimachi; Hermus, now Sambat; and Pactolus, now Chias, or Chiari; which ſeparates Lydia from Caria. Its Mountains are, Sipylus, Tmolus, Mimas, &c. And the moſt conſiderable Cities, Sardes, the Capital, Philadelphia, Thyatira, &c. Joſephus and St. Jerom tell us, That the Lydians were the Poſterity of Lud, the Son of Shem: But Profane Authors ſay, that one Lydus, the Son of Hercules, by Iola, gave his Name to this Country; and that the firſt Founder of the Kingdom of Lydia, was Argo, Hercules's Grand-child, being a Branch of the Race of the Heraclidæ: Which Line continued till Candaules, who was the 22d King, and was killed by Gyges, An. Rom. 40. A. M. 1339. or 40. and of the Julian Period 4000. with whom the Race of the Mermnades began, and was ſucceſſively continued by Ardis, Sadiattes, Halyattes and Crœſus, who in the 14th Year of his Reign was conquered, and made a Priſoner by Cyrus, An. Rom. 210. Thus Lydia became ſubject to the Perſians, and afterwards to the Greeks and Romans, and is now under the Turks. The Lydians were the firſt Inventers of Coined Money. They were good Horſemen, but generally very voluptuous and effeminate. They ſent a Colony into Italy, which ſetled themſelves in Thuſcany. *Joſeph. LYN, Lat. Linum Regis, a Sea-Port-Town and Corporation in Norfolk, ſeated on the Eaſtern Shoar of the River Ouſe, where it falls into the Waſhes called by Ptolemy, Æſtuarium Metaris. It is a large Town, encompaſſed with a deep Trench, and for the moſt part walled; divided by Two ſmall Rivers, which have above 15 Bridges over them; built out of the Ruines of another old Town, called Lyn too, but ſtanding in Marſhy Land, on the oppoſite ſide of the River: chiefly preferred on the Account of the Haven, which is ſafe and eaſy of Acceſs. It was at firſt called Biſhops-Lyn, becauſe the Ground it ſtands upon belonged to the Biſhop of Norwich, till the Reign of Henry VIII. It has great Privileges, which it obtained from King John, by ſiding with him againſt the Barons. He gave them his own Sword, to be carried before the Mayor; and a guilt Cup, which they ſtill keep. From this Place, he went, in 1216 with a mighty Army, over the Waſhes, into Lincolnſhire, with a Deſign to fighr the Barons, then united againſt him under Lewis the Dauphine of France; but loſt his Treaſures and Carriages in the Paſſage, and his Life ſoon after: Then it was that he granted them their Charter. But his ſon having a Neceſſity to comply with the Barons, for the Expulſion of the French, their Liberties were ſeized, and the Town reduced to what it was before. In 1221. a Rebellion breaking cut in Lincolnſhire, this Prince, Henry III. had Occaſion for their Loyalty and Valour again; and they gave him ſuch Experience of both, that he granted them their Charter, which they have ever ſince enjoyed. Nor does this Place deſerve leſs Commendation, for their Loyal Attempt on the behalf of King Charles I. in 1643. It ſuffered much in the Civil Wars. King Charles II. created Sir Horatio Townſend, Baronet, Baron of Lyn, April 20. 1661. It ſends Two Members to Parliament, contains 3 Pariſh Churches, and is 98 Miles from London.

LYNCEUS, one of the Argonautæ, who accompanied Jaſon to the Conqueſt of the Golden Fleece. He had ſo piercing a Sight, that, if we will believe the Poets, he could ſee through a Stone-Wall, and take a view of whatſoever paſs'd in Heaven or Hell. The ground of this Fable was, That he was a Perſon who underſtood all the ſecret Powers of Nature, whether Celeſtial, or Terreſtrial, in which the Generality of Men are Beetle-blind. Pliny, lib. 2. cap. 17. Valer. Flac. Argonaut. 1.

LYNCEUS, Son to Ægyptus, who was Brother of Danaus King of Argos. Marry'd Hypermneſtra, One of the Fifty Daughters of Danaus, who refus'd to kill her Husband the Night of her Marriage, according to her Father's Orders. Lynceus having eſcap'd this Danger, retir'd from Court, whither, as ſome ſay, he return'd no more, till after the Death of Danaus; though others ſay, that the King invited him back, and gave him his Wife Hypermneſtra, whom he had impriſon'd before. Apollodorus. Hyginus.

LYON, (John) Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorn, Lord Glammis is deſcended from the Ancient and Honourable Family D' Lyon, in France, which derives it ſelf further, from the Noble Houſe of the Leones, in Rome. One of his Lordſhip's Predeceſſors came from France, with William the Conqueror; and from thence to Scotland with King Edgar, Son to Malcolme III. in the Year 1098. This Lyon was a great Favourite of that Prince, and for the good Services he had done againſt Donald Bean the Uſurper, had a Grant of conſiderable Lands in the Sherifdom of Perth, which from him were called by the Name of Glen-Lyon. Afterwards John d' Lyon obtain'd a Grant from King David II. of the Baronies of Forteviot and Forgundeany and Drumgowan, in the Sherifdom of Aberdeen, Propter fortem & fidelem Operam ſibi & Patri ſuo præſtitam, which Grant was afterwards confirm'd by Robert II. To proceed, Sir John, commonly call'd the White Lyon from his Complexion, was Secretary to King Robert II. who granted him the Thaindom of Glammis, in the Year 1379. and gave him in Marriage Jane Stewart, Daughter to the ſaid King Robert II. by Elizabeth Mure, and likewiſe advanc'd him to the Degree of a Lord of Parliament, by the Title of Lord Glammis. He was alſo prefer'd by the ſaid King Robert to the Office of Lord Great Chamberlain of Scotland. In Privilege of his Marriage, he got the double Treſſure and Creſt belonging to his Arms; and had ſeveral Grants of Lands from the Crown, to which he made a large Addition by the Purchaſe of many Baronies. He was alſo made Governor of Edenburgh-Caſtle, during Life, and Lord Chancellor of Scotland; but was at laſt barbarouſly Murder'd by the Earl of Crawford; which was highly reſented by the King, who ordered him to be buried in the Abby of Scone. John II. Lord Glammis marry'd a Daughter of Patrick Graham, Earl of Stratherne. He died at Glammis, but being of Royal Blood, was bury'd among the Kings at Scone. Patrick, III Lord Glammis marry'd Iſabel Ogilvy, Daughter to the Lord Auchterhouſe; purchas'd the Barony of Backie, the Land of Cardean and Drumgley; and lies buried at Glammis. Alexander IVth Lord Glammis marry'd Agnes Crichton, Daughter to William Lord Crichton, Chancellor of Scotland; and died without Iſſue, in the Year 1473. John Lyon of Courteſtown, Vth Lord Glammis, his Brother marry'd Margaret Scrymſour, Daughter of the Conſtable of Dundee, and purchas'd the Heritable Office of Crownery, in the Sherifdoms of Forfar and Kincardin, and died in the Year 1497. John VI Lord Glammis marry'd Elizabeth Gray, Daughter to the Lord Gray, and Heir of the Line of the Lord Fowlis. He died at Glammis in 1500. George the VIIth Lord Glammis died a Minor and unmarry'd. John the VIIIth Lord Glammis ſucceeded to his Brother, and marry'd Jane Douglaſs, Siſter to Archibald Earl of Angus, who marry'd the Queen Dowager, Relict of King James IV. John the IXth Lord Glammis, who being a Minor at his Father's Death, was together with his Mother wrongfully accus'd of Treaſon. This Lord marry'd Jane Keith, Daughter to the Earl-Marſhal. John the Xth Lord Glammis, made Lord High Chancellor, marry'd Elizabeth Abernethy, Daughter to the Lord Abernethy of Saltown, was unfortunately Piſtol'd at Sterling, and his Death was much regretted by the Kingdom. Patrick IXth Lord Glammis, Captain of the King's Guard, and Lord Treaſurer of Scotland, marry'd Ann Murray, Daughter to the Lord Tullibarden, created Earl of Kinghorn in 1606. by King James VI. He died at Edenburgh, December 1615. John IId Earl of Kinghorn was firſt marry'd to Margaret Erskin, Daughter to the Earl of Marr, after whoſe Death he was marry'd again to Elizabeth Maul, Daughter to the Earl of Panmure. He died at Caſtle-Lyon in the Year 1649. leaving Iſſue, a Son by his laſt Lady. Patrick the IIId Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorn, (which firſt Title he had added to his Patent from King Charles II.) marry'd the Lady Helen Middleton, Daughter to John Earl of Middleton; and died at his Houſe at Caſtle-Lyon in 1695. being ſucceeded in his Honours by his Son John, the preſent Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorn, who, in 1691. marry'd the Lady Elizabeth Stanhope, Daughter to the Earl of Cheſterfield by his ſecond Lady. His Lordſhip's Arms are, A Lyon Rampant Arg. Arm'd and Langued Gules.

LYONS, Lat. Lugdunum Seguſianorum, an ancient City of France, Capital of the Lyonnois; being an Archbiſhop's See, and a very great, ſtrong, wealthy and populous City; ſeated partly on the Top, and partly at the Foot of an Hill upon the Confluence of the Saône and Rhône, in the Confines of La Breſſe and Dauphine; 100 Leagues from Paris to the South, 5 from Vienne, 36 from Avignon, 60 from Turin, and 65 from the Mediterranean Sea to the North. Authors are at variance about the Etymology of its Name Lugdunum; which ſome derive from one Lugdus, a King of the Celtæ; from whom this City was called Lugdunum, by Contraction, for Lugdi Dunum; that is, Lugdus-Hill. Plutarch, Strabo, and others, give us another Derivation; and tell us, That Momor, a Prince of the Gauls, being adviſed by ſome Oracle to build a City on the Confluence of the Rivers of the Rhône and the Saône, which was to be famous in future Times, ſaw a Flight of Crows that lighted upon an Hill near the Place the Oracle had mentioned; whereupon he reſolved to build the City there, which, from that Event he called Lugdunum, which, in the Language of the Gauls, ſignifies Crows-Hill. Others, ſuppoſing Lucius Minutius Plancus to be the firſt Builder of it, (though indeed it appears to be far more ancient) ſay, It was called Lugdunum, quaſi Lucii Dunum, or Lucius-Hill. Ancient Eccleſiaſtical Writers generally call it Lucdunum, quaſi Lucis Dunum; as much as to ſay, Light, or Bright-Hill. As to the Antiquity of this City, Hiſtorians tell us, That this was a Place where the Druids were uſed to keep their Aſſemblies, and where the Phœnicians and Greeks had ſetled themſelves long before the Romans ſent any Colony hither under Lucius Minutius Plancus. But, to inſiſt no longer upon the Name or Antiquity of this City, it muſt be owned, that Lyons, for its pleaſant Situation, the Sweetneſs and Temperature of its Climate, the Magnificence of its Places, the Sumptuouſneſs of its Sacred and Secular Buildings, and the Civility and Ingenuity of its Inhabitants, is one of the moſt famous and faireſt Cities of France. In the ancient Inſcriptions it is frequently called Colonia Claudia Copia: The firſt, becauſe that Emperor was born there; and the latter, becauſe the Romans looked upon this City, by Reaſon of its Plenty and Abundance, to be the Granary of all the Gauls, as being ſituate in the Centre of La Breſſe, Burgundy, Dauphine, Auvergne, Velay, Vivarois; whence it is furniſhed with Corn, Wine, Cattel, and all other Neceſſaries of Life, by means of Two great Rivers that come up to it. This City was burnt with Fire from Heaven in the Reign of Nero, who contributed a great Sum towards the Re-building of it. This Fire happened, A. C. 59. In 198. Severus treated this City very Cruelly, by plundering it, and conſuming Part of it by Fire, to avenge himſelf of the Inhabitants, who had entertained Albinus, his Enemy: And afterwards, in 202. he perſecuted the Chriſtians here with the utmoſt Barbarity; to that Degree that the Rivers were coloured with their Blood, and the publick Places of the City filled with their dead Bodies. The Uſurper Magnentius killed himſelf here with his own Hands, upon the News of Conſtantius's coming. And Gratianus the Emperor was perfidiouſly murthered here, by Andragathius, in 383. Majoranus, General to Leo the Emperor, at the Requeſt of Sidonius Apollinaris, did repair and beautifie this City: But it was not long after that it was expoſed to the Incurſions of the Germans and Goths; and at laſt of the Saracens in the VIIIth Century. The Romans continued Maſters of Lyons till the Time of Honorius, when Stilico having overcome the Goths, with the Help of the Burgundians, he beſtowed this City upon them, who made it the Capital of their Kingdom: And in the Reign of Clotharius it fell into the Hands of the French, about 532. they having put an End to the Kingdom of Burgundy. About 955. the French gave it to Conrade I. King of Burgundia Transjurana: And after this, it was for ſome Time ſubject to the Counts of Foreſt, till 1173. when Guy II. and III. reſigned it to Guichard the Archbiſhop, and to the Chapter of the City; from which Time this City was frequently moleſted with Troubles ariſing between the Inhabitants and the Archbiſhop's Officers, till King Philip the Fair purchaſed of the Archbiſhop Peter of Savoy, the Temporal Juriſdiction of that City, being poſſeſſed of a Sovereign Right before. The City is govern'd at preſent by a Provoſt of Merchants, and 4 Scabini, (Echevins, or Aldermen) whom the Kings of France have ennobled or made Gentlemen by Virtue of their Office. Lyons is divided into 37 Wards, or Penonages: It has 7 Gates; ſeveral fine Squares; a great many Noble Piles of building; particularly the Town-Houſe, which is a Maſter-Piece in its Kind. There are likewiſe ſeveral Remains of Roman Architecture, as part of an Amphitheatre, Aquæducts, and publick Baths: And ſince the Invention of Printing, that Art has been improv'd there, more than in any other City in Europe. Suetonius, ſpeaking of the Shews or Spectacles, which the Emperor Caligula order'd to be repreſented at Lyons, makes mention of a famous Academy for Rhetorick, which was there called the Athenæum, his Words are theſe: Amongſt other things, the Emperor propos'd a Prize to be given to the beſt Performances of Oratory in Greek and Latin; This Prize he ordered to be paid by thoſe who were worſted; adding withal, that they ſhould be oblig'd to write a Panegyrick upon thoſe who had been too hard for 'em; And as for thoſe whoſe Performances were ſtark naught, the Pennance aſſign'd 'em was, to ſpunge or blot out their Compoſitions with their Tongue: This they were either forc'd to do, or elſe to be whipt, or plung'd over Head and Ears, in a River. Juvenal alludes to this Cuſtom in his firſt Satyr,

Palleat ut nudis preſſit qui calcibus Anguem,
Aut Lugdunenſem Rhetor dicturus ad Aram.

The Church of LYONS.

St. Photinus and St. Irenæus, the Succeſſors of the Diſciples of the Apoſtles, laid the Foundations of the Church of Lyons, which was ſince watered, as is ſaid, with the Blood of 20000 Martyrs. The Archbiſhop of this Church is Primate of the Gauls, though the exact Time when this Church was advanced to the Dignity of a Primacy be not known. This Primacy comprehends Lyons, Rouen, Tours, Sens and Paris. The Chapter of Lyons hath, in former Ages eſpecially, been very famous: In the XIIIth Century it was compoſed of 74 Canons, whereof one was the Son of an Emperor, 9 the Sons of Kings, 14 Sons of Dukes, 30 Sons of Earls, and 20 Barons. The Flower of the European Nobility have been of this Chapter, where divers Princes have deſired to be admitted as Honorary Canons; and the French Kings themſelves have accepted the ſame. The Church of Lyons conſiſts of the Metropolitan Chapter, 4 Collegiate-Churches, 15 Pariſhes, 3 Abbeys, 4 Priories, 4 Houſes of Eccleſiaſticks, 41 Religious Houſes, 10 Congregations of Laicks, and 5 Companies of Penitents. The Metropolitan Church is dedicated to St. John the Baptiſt, and is an old Gothick Fabrick. The Suffragan Biſhops of this Arch-biſhoprick are, the Biſhops of Autun, Langres, Chalon, and Macon. Strab. lib. 4. Plin. lib. 4. *Ptolem. Merula. Cluver. in Geogr. The Firſt Council General of Lyons, (which the Roman Catholicks call the XIIIth Oecumenical Council) was convened by Pope Innocent IV. in 1245. who being engaged in a War with the Emperor Frederick II. and forced to retire into France, himſelf preſided in this Council, and Excommunicated the Emperour. This Council conſiſts of ſixteen Canons, part whereof we have in the Sixth Book of the Decretals. The Second General Council of Lyons (or XIVth Oecumenical) was Celebrated in that City, in 1247. on occaſion of the Weſtern Schiſm, by Pope Gregory the Xth, who preſided at it, aſſiſted by the Patriarch of Conſtantinople and Antioch, Fifteen Cardinals, a vaſt Number of Arch-biſhops, Biſhops, Abbots, Doctors, and Deputies of Chapters, beſides the Ambaſſadors of many Chriſtian Princes. This Council was opened May the 7th, and continued till July the 17th. We have Thirty one Canons of this Council, which Pope Boniface the VIIIth hath Collected in the Sixth Book of his Decretals: Which Canons were Commented upon by Gulielmus Durandus, ſurnamed Speculator; which we have, with the Notes of Majolus upon them. St. Irenæus being aſſembled here with thirteen Prelates of the Gauls, Confirmed the Decree for the Celebration of Eaſter, the Sunday after the Fourteenth day of the Moon of March; and writ a Letter to Pope Victor, blaming him for having Excommunicated the Churches of Aſia, becauſe they did not follow the ſame Decree. This Council was held in 197. according as it is ſet down in the Firſt Tome of the Councils, of the laſt Edition. There was another Council held here by the ſame Irenæus, about 185. againſt the Hereticks of his Time. St. Patient, Arch-Biſhop of Lyons, held another here againſt the Prædeſtinarians, about An. Ch. 474. Another is mentioned to have been held here in 517. againſt one Stephen, who had Contracted an inceſtuous Marriage with one of his Couſins. Another was celebrated here by King Gontram, in 567. againſt Salonius of Ambrun, and Sagittarius of Gap, who being accuſed of ſeveral Exceſſes, were there Depoſed, St. Nizier being then Arch-biſhop of this Church. His Succeſſor Priſcus held Two Synods more in 581. and 582. wherein ſeveral Important Canons were agreed upon for Regulating of the Clergy. There were two others held by Agobard in 829. and 836. And another in 878. by Pope John the VIIIth. Hildebrand, the Popes Legate, convened one in 1055. wherein it is ſaid, That a Simoniacal Prelate, not being able to pronounce the Word Holy Ghoſt, ſo affected ſome others, that they freely confeſſed themſelves to have been guilty of the ſame Crime. Hugh, Biſhop of Die, Legate of the See of Rome, aſſembled a Council here in 1080. where the Sentence of Depoſition againſt Manaſſes Arch-Biſhop of Rheims was confirmed. The Records of Lyons make mention of another held here in 1376. King Charles VII. aſſembled the Prelates at Lyons in 1449. to put an end to the Schiſm of Fœlix the Vth, againſt Nicholas the Vth. Whereupon, the Anti-Pope was forced to ſubmit.

LYS, (Iſle of) Lat. Igilium, Iginium, and Eginium; and by the Italians, Il Giglis; a ſmall Iſland of Italy, in the Tuſcan Sea, which has a City and Caſtle; Ten Miles from Mount Argentars. It formerly belonged to the Republick of Sienna, but now is part of the Eſtate of the Great Duke of Tuſcany. 'Tis full of Mountains and Woods.

LYSANDER, General of the Lacedæmonians, lived in the IVth Century after the Foundation of Rome. He made an Alliance with Cyrus the Son of Darius, ſurnamed The Baſtard, King of Perſia, and, with his Aſſiſtance, made himſelf dreaded by all Greece. An. Rom. 349. Attacked the Athenian Fleet, Commanded by Conon, at unawares, took moſt of their Ships, and killed them 3000 Men; and after having taken ſeveral of their Cities, he attacked Athens by Sea and Land: Whereupon, the Inhabitants were fain to Surrender themſelves the 16th of Munichion, which anſwers to our April, An. Rom. 350. and the XCIVth Olympiad. And after having ſubdued the Iſland Samos, whoſe Inhabitants ſupported the Athenians, he returned Triumphantly to Sparta. Finding himſelf thus powerful, he did his utmoſt endeavours to wreſt the Crown of Sparta from the Heraclidæ, which were in poſſeſſion of it; and to this end did not ſpare the Corrupting of the Oracles of Delphos, Dodona, and Jupiter-Hammon, but without Succeſs. An. Rom. 358. and the XCVIth Olympiad, the Thebans, Athenians, Argives, and thoſe of Corinth, entred into a League againſt the Lacedæmonians; and Lyſander being choſe Commander in Chief to oppoſe them, was killed in that Enterprize. He left behind him the Character of a cruel and diſſolute Perſon: and was uſed frequently to ſay, That though Truth were better than Lyes, yet both were to be made uſe of upon Occaſion; adding, We deceive Children with Toys, and Men with Words. A very pernicious Maxim, which deſtroys the Foundation of Humane Society. *Zenophon III. LYSIADES, Tyrant of Arcadia, was of mean Birth, but had a Noble and Generous Soul; and, by his Prudence and Valour, procured himſelf ſo great Authority in the City of Megalopolis, that he ſoon made himſelf Maſter of that People, but afterwards generouſly renounced the Sovereignty he had uſurped over them, of his own free Motion. He mediated an Alliance between the Arcadians and thoſe of Achaia, who choſe him to be their Pretor, with Aratus; but a Difference afterwards ariſing between them, Lyſiades made him to be Baniſhed, who himſelf afterwards was killed in a Battel againſt the Lacedæmonians. Pauſanias, Plutarch.

LYSIAS, a Tribune, who Commanded a Regiment of Roman Soldiers that were to guard the Temple on Feſtival-Days, to prevent any ſeditious Inſurrections. It was he who delivered St. Paul out of the Hands of the Jews, when they were about to have killed him, and ſent him to Fœlix the Governour. Acts of the Apoſtles, ch. 21, 22, 23. Joſeph. Ant. lib. 20. & 2. de Bello.

LYSIAS, The General of the Forces of Antiochus Epiphanes, King of Syria, Lieutenant of part of his Dominions, and his Son's Governour; who making War againſt the Jews, was defeated by Judas Maccabæus, An. Rom. 589. and 148. of Seleucides. After the Death of Epiphanes, Lyſias ſet Antiochus Eupator his Son upon the Throne, and made an Alliance with Judas Maccabæus. Demetrius Soter ſome time after Seized the Crown of Syria, which Antiochus Epiphanes, his Uncle, had Uſurped from his Father; and cauſed his Couſin Eupator and Lyſias to be put to death. 1 & 2 Maccab. Joſeph. lib. 2. Antiq. Jud. Appian in Syriac.

LYSIAS, a Greek Orator, the Son of Cephalus of Syracuſa, who cauſed his Son to be carefully Educated at Athens. Lyſias, afterwards being Fifteen years of Age, was one of thoſe whom the Athenians ſent to Thurium in Italy, in the LXXXIVth Olympiad, and An. Rom, 310. to ſettle a Colony there; where he purchaſed a Poſſeſſion, but was ſoon fain to leave it, by the Jealouſy of ſome envious Perſons, who cauſed him to be Baniſhed. He was looked upon as one of the moſt eloquent Orators of his Time. He writ a great Number of Orations, and An Apology for Socrates; Precepts for a ready expreſſing if ones Mind in Publick, and ſeveral Epiſtles. During the Celebration of the Olympick Games, in the XCVIIIth Olympiad, and An. Rom. 366. he compoſed his Oration called Olympian, againſt Dionyſius the Tyrant, frequently quoted by Authors. He died at the Age of 81. in the Cth Olympiad, and An. Rom. 376. Plutarch de 10. Orator. cap. 3. Cicero in Bruto. Suidas. Simler. in Epit. Geſn. Bibl.

LYSIMACHUS, one of the Captains of Alexander the Great, and, after his Death, one of his Succeſſors; who maintained a War againſt ſeveral of his Competitors, and made himſelf Maſter of a part of Thrace, where he reigned, and cauſed a City of his own Name to be Built, An. Rom. 445. He took part with Caſſander and Seleucus, againſt Antigonus and Demetrius; and was preſent at the famous Battel of Ipſus. Before this, he had married one of his Daughters to Antipater; who being driven from his Dominions, retired to Lyſimachus; who being diſſatisfied with his Behaviour, put him to Death, and caſt his Daughter into Priſon. Being taken Priſoner by Dromichetes, King of the Getæ, in Battel, he was reſcued, and ſet at Liberty by his Son Agathocles. Some time after, he took upon him the Crown of Macedonia, after that Demetrius had been driven from that Throne by his Subjects. Pyrrhus being in poſſeſſion of ſome part of that Kingdom, Lyſimachus made him to quit it. Theſe Succeſſes raiſed his Authority and Power to a great Pitch: But he ſtained theſe brave Actions by his unnatural Cruelty to his Relations. He cauſed his Son Agathocles to be poiſoned, for a Crime he was not guilty of; being falſely accuſed by his Step-Mother: For which, and other Cruelties, moſt of his beſt and greateſt Subjects left him, for fear of partaking of the ſame Fortune. Whereupon he undertook a War againſt Seleucus, who had given them Entertainment in his Dominions, and was killed in the Battle, in the Seventy fourth Year of his Age, in the CCXXIVth Olympiad, and An. Rom. 472. His Body was found amongſt the Dead, being diſtinguiſhed from the reſt by means of a little Dog that never ſtirred from it. Diodorus, lib. 19. & 20. Juſtin, lib. 13, 14, 16, 17. Quintus Curtius, lib. 8. *Vit. LYSIMACHUS, the Son of Ariſtides, to whom the Athenians gave an inheritance, in Conſideration of his Father's Merit and Vertue. Plutarch in Ariſtides. Alſo a Phyſician, who was a Sectator of Hippocrates. Alſo Lyſimachus of Alexandria, a Greek Hiſtorian, and Author of an Hiſtory of Egypt, cited by Joſephus, and of other Works; but more eſpecially, of a Treatiſe of Huſbandry, frequently mentioned by Pliny, Voſſius. lib. 3. de Hiſt. Græc. & Simler in Epit. Bibl. Geſner.

LYSIMACHUS a Jew, gain'd the High Prieſthood, in the year of the World 3882. by bribing Antiochus Epiphanes; and by this means, his Brother Menelaus was turn'd out of the Chair, for want of Money to reach the Sum, at which the Promotion was ſold. Lyſimachus was guilty of ſo great Injuſtice, and miſ-behav'd himſelf ſo very much, that the Jews were tir'd out with his Government, and got rid of him the next year. Maccabees, Lib. 2. Torniel, A. M. 3882.

LYSIPPUS, a famous Statuary, born at Sicyone, who Lived at the Time of Alexander the Great. He was at firſt a Lock-ſmith, but, by advice of the Painter Eupompus, betook himſelf to that Art; which he quitted ſoon after, to apply himſelf to that of a Statuary. Amongſt other Works, he had made a Statue of a Man rubbing himſelf, as coming out of a Bath; which was made ſo exactly to the Life, that Agrippa had placed it, as a ſingular Ornament, before his Baths: And Tiberius afterwards was ſo much in love with it, that he cauſed it to be taken away, and to be placed in his own Chamber; ordering a very curious Statue to be ſet up inſtead of it: At which the People of Rome were ſo diſpleaſed, that, notwithſtanding they feared Tiberius's Cruelty, yet they could not contain themſelves from crying out in the full Theatre, That they would have the Statue returned to the place where it ſtood before. Whereupon, Tiberius, fearing the Effect of a popular Commotion, ordered that it ſhould be reſtored to its former place, Lyſippus had alſo made a great Statue of the Sun, drawn in a Chariot of Four Horſes, which was Worſhipped at Rhodes. He alſo made ſeveral Statues of Alexander the Great, and of all his moſt beloved Favourites, which Metellus brought along with him to Rome, after having ſubdued Macedonia to the Roman Empire. Lyſippus, among other Excellencies in his way, had a peculiar Talent in making the Hair look more ſoft and natural than any before him: 'Twas likewiſe his way, to make the Head leſs, and the Body more ſlender than the Life; this he did with a deſign to make the Statues look more tall. And finding his account in this manner, he us'd to ſay of himſelf, that other Statuaries Repreſented men juſt as they were made, but he Repreſented them as they appeared to be made. He had Three Sons that were his Diſciples, Dalippus, Bedas, and Euthycrates, who were all of them famous Statuaries, but the laſt was the moſt eſteemed. Plin. lib. 34. c. 8.

LYSIS, a Pythagorean Philoſopher, the Maſter of Epaminondas, flouriſhed An. Rom. 466. and the XCVIIIth Olympiad, with Philiſtion, one of the Maſters of Eudoxus. It is ſuppoſed, that this Lyſis, or his Diſciple Philolaus, was Author of thoſe Verſes, known by the Name of Pythagoras his Golden Verſes. Aldus Manutius publiſhed one of the Epiſtles of Lyſis to Hipparchus, amongſt thoſe of other Greeks, which were printed at Venice. Voſ. de Hiſt. Græc. Simler in Bibl. Geſner.
